Anno 1778.

PHILLIPS·ACADEMY

OLIVER·WENDELL·HOLMES

LIBRARY

Per ampliora ad altiora.

Gift of Lester S. Morse, Jr. in honor of
Thomas T. Lyons

CASES ARGUED AND DECIDED

IN THE

SUPREME COURT

OF THE

UNITED STATES

219, 220, 221, U. S.

BOOK 55,

LAWYERS' EDITION,

CITED "LAW ED."

COMPLETE WITH HEAD LINES, HEAD NOTES, STATEMENTS OF CASES, POINTS AND AUTHORITIES OF COUNSEL, FOOT NOTES AND PARALLEL REFERENCES.

BY

THE PUBLISHERS' EDITORIAL STAFF

THE LAWYERS CO-OPERATIVE PUBLISHING COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, NEW YORK.
1926.

Copyright © 1911
by
THE LAWYERS CO-OPERATIVE PUBLISHING COMPANY.

1962 Reprint

R
348.73
Un35
v. 219-221

JUSTICES

OF THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

DURING THE TIME OF THESE REPORTS.

CHIEF JUSTICE,

HON. EDWARD DOUGLASS WHITE.[1]

ASSOCIATE JUSTICES,

HON. JOHN MARSHALL HARLAN,
HON. JOSEPH MCKENNA,
HON. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES,
HON. WILLIAM R. DAY,
HON. HORACE H. LURTON,
HON. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES,
HON. WILLIS VAN DEVANTER,[2]
HON. JOSEPH RUCKER LAMAR.[3]

ATTORNEY GENERAL,

HON. GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM.

SOLICITOR GENERAL,

HON. FREDERICK W. LEHMANN.[4]

CLERK,

JAMES HALL MCKENNEY, ESQ.

REPORTER.

HON. CHARLES HENRY BUTLER.

MARSHAL,

JOHN MONTGOMERY WRIGHT, ESQ.

[1] Commission ordered recorded, December 19, 1910.
[2] Commission ordered recorded, January 3, 1911.
[3] Commission ordered recorded, January 3, 1911.
[4] Commission ordered recorded, December 19, 1910.

126057

JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

From January 10, 1910, to January 9, 1911.

TOGETHER WITH THE DATES OF THEIR COMMISSIONS AND COMMENCEMENT OF SERVICE, RESPECTIVELY.

For Order of Court Making Allotment, see 54 L. ed., Appendix I. p. 1215.

Names of Justices, and Whence Appointed.	By Whom Appointed.	Circuits. 1902–1903.	Commissioned.	Sworn in.
Associate Justice OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, Massachusetts.	President Roosevelt.	First. Me., N. H., Mass., R. I.	1902. (Dec. 4.)	1902. (Dec. 8.)
Associate Justice HORACE H. LURTON, Tennessee.	President Taft.	Second. Vermont, Conn., New York.	1909. (Dec. 20.)	1910. (Jan. 3.)
Associate Justice WILLIAM H. MOODY, Massachusetts.	President Roosevelt.	Third. New Jersey, Pa., Del.	1906. (Dec. 12.)	1906. (Dec. 17.)
Chief Justice MELVILLE W. FULLER, Illinois.	President Cleveland.	Fourth. Md., Va., N. C., W. Va., S. C.	1888. (July 20.)	1888. (Oct. 8.)
Associate Justice EDWARD D. WHITE, Louisiana.	President Cleveland.	Fifth. Ga., Ala., Fla., Miss., La., Tex.	1894. (Feb. 19.)	1894. (Mar. 12.)
Associate Justice JOHN M. HARLAN, Kentucky.	President Hayes.	Sixth. Ky., Tenn., Ohio, Mich.	1877. (Nov. 29.)	1877. (Dec. 10.)
Associate Justice WILLIAM R. DAY, Ohio.	President Roosevelt.	Seventh. Ind., Ill., Wis.	1903. (Feb. 23.)	1903. (Mar. 2.)
Associate Justice DAVID J. BREWER, Kansas.	President Harrison.	Eighth. Minn., Iowa, Mo., Kan., Ark., Neb., Colo., N. D., S. D., Utah, Wyo., Oklahoma, New Mex.*	1889. (Dec. 18.)	1890. (Jan. 6.)
Associate Justice JOSEPH McKENNA, California.	President McKinley.	Ninth. Cal., Or., Nev., Mont., Wash., Idaho, Alaska,* Arizona,* Hawaii.*	1898. (Jan. 21.)	1898. (Jan. 26.)

Territories assigned to circuits by order of the Supreme Court.

JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

January 9, 1911.

TOGETHER WITH THE DATES OF THEIR COMMISSIONS AND COMMENCEMENT OF SERVICE, RESPECTIVELY.

For Order of Court Making Allotment, see infra, Appendix III. p. 906.

Names of Justices, and Whence Appointed.	By Whom Appointed.	Circuits. 1902–1903.	Commissioned.	Sworn in.
Associate Justice OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, Massachusetts.	President Roosevelt.	First. Me., N. H., Mass., R. I.	1902. (Dec. 4.)	1902. (Dec. 8.)
Associate Justice CHARLES E. HUGHES, New York.	President Taft.	Second. Vermont, Conn., New York.	1910. (May 2.)	1910. (Oct. 10.)
Associate Justice HORACE H. LURTON, Tennessee.	President Taft.	Third. New Jersey, Pa., Del.	1909. (Dec. 20.)	1910. (Jan. 3.)
Chief Justice EDWARD D. WHITE, Louisiana.	President Taft.	Fourth. Md., Va., N. C., W. Va., S. C.	1910. (Dec. 12.)	1910. (Dec. 19.)
Associate Justice JOSEPH R. LAMAR, Georgia.	President Taft.	Fifth. Ga., Ala., Fla., Miss., La., Tex.	1910. (Dec. 17.)	1911. (Jan. 3.)
Associate Justice JOHN M. HARLAN, Kentucky.	President Hayes.	Sixth. Ky., Tenn., Ohio, Mich.	1877. (Nov. 29.)	1877. (Dec. 10.)
Associate Justice WILLIAM R. DAY, Ohio.	President Roosevelt.	Seventh. Ind., Ill., Wis.	1903. (Feb. 23.)	1903. (Mar. 2.)
Associate Justice WILLIS VAN DEVANTER, Wyoming.	President Taft.	Eighth. Minn., Iowa, Mo., Kan., Ark., Neb., Colo., N. D., S. D., Utah, Wyo., Oklahoma, New Mex.*	1910. (Dec. 16.)	1911. (Jan. 3.)
Associate Justice JOSEPH McKENNA, California.	President McKinley.	Ninth. Cal., Or., Nev., Mont., Wash., Idaho, Alaska,* Arizona,* Hawaii.*	1898. (Jan. 21.)	1898. (Jan. 26.)

*Territories assigned to circuits by order of the Supreme Court.

GENERAL TABLE OF CASES REPORTED

IN THIS BOOK.

VOLUMES 219, 220, 221.

A.

Adamson v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 612) 609
Aguado v. Manila (220 U. S. 345) .. 491
Ainsworth, Reaves v. 225
Alabama, Bailey v. 191
Alabama & G. Mfg. Co. v. West Point Mfg. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 617) 611
Alonzo del Rio's Succession, Maria del Encarnación Prado v. (Mem.) 349
American Bank Protection Co. v. Electric Protection Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 619) 612
American Disappearing Bed Co. v. Arnaelsteen (Mem.) (220 U. S. 622) 613
American Federation of Labor v. Buck's Stove & Range Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 581) 345
Buck's Stove & Range Co. v. (Mem.) 345
American Land Co. v. Zeiss (219 U. S. 47) 82
American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister (221 U. S. 603) . 873
American Mfg. Co. v. Zulkowski (Mem.) (220 U. S. 609) .. 608
American Multigraph Co., Jared v. .. 389
American Pneumatic Service Co., Snyder v. (Mem.) 611
American Tobacco Co., United States v. 663
v. United States (221 U. S. 106) 663
American Turquoise Co., Sena v. 559
Appleby v. Buffalo (221 U. S. 524) ... 838
Apsey v. Kimball (221 U. S. 514) .. 834
v. Whittemore (221 U. S. 514) 834
Arkansas, Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. 290
Arnaelsteen, American Disappearing Bed Co. v. (Mem.) 613
Arnett v. Reade (220 U. S. 311) 477
Arsuaga, Van Syckel v. (Mem.) 603
Government of Italy v. (Mem.) 348
Asaro, King of Italy v. (Mem.) 348
Ashton, Bird v. (Mem.) 605
Assaria State Bank v. Dolley (219 U. S. 121) 123
Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., Oklahoma v. 465
United States v. 361
West v. (Mem.) 612
Atkinson v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 621) 613
Atlantic City R. Co. v. Clegg (Mem.) (220 U. S. 609) 608
Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., Day v. (Mem.) 611
v. Riverside Mills (219 U. S. 186) 167
Atlantic, G. & P. Co. v. Philippine Islands (219 U. S. 17) ... 70
Austin v. New York Stock Exchange (Mem.) (220 U. S. 621) 613

B.

Baglin v. Cusenier Co. (221 U. S. 580) 863
Bailey v. Alabama (219 U. S. 219) .. 191
Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 607
Baker Transp. Co. v. The John A. Hughes (Mem.) (220 U. S. 612) 609
Baley v. Woolley (Mem.) (220 U. S. 621) 613
Baltic Min. Co., Gay v. 389
Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission (221 U. S. 612) 878
La Compagnie Générale Transatlantique v. (Mem.) .. 347
Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. United States (220 U. S. 94) 384
Bank, Assaria State, v. Dolley (219 U. S. 121) 123
Canal-Louisiana, Waterman v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 621) 613
Corn Exchange Nat., Miner v. (220 U. S. 107) 389

Bank, Exchange, Millan v. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 584) 346
First State, Shallenberger v. (219 U. S. 114) 117
Lloyds, Sexton v. (219 U. S. 339) 244
Merrimac River Sav., v. Clay Center (219 U. S. 527) .. 320
National, of Commerce, Williams v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 628) 615
Noble State, v. Haskell (219 U. S. 104) 112
Noble State, v. Haskell (219 U. U. S. 575) 341
Phenix Nat., Waterbury v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) .. 614
Barber, United States v. 99
Bean v. Morris (221 U. S. 485) 821
Becker v. Exchange Mut. F. Ins. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 611) 608
Beecham, Jacobs v. 729
Benedict, Lester v. (Mem.) 612
Benson v. Dolan (Mem.) (220 U. S. 631) 616
Bierce, William W., v. Waterhouse. See WILLIAM W. BIERCE v. WATERHOUSE.
Billings, Chin Ying Don v. (Mem.) .. 616
Bird v. Ashton (Mem.) (220 U. S. 604) 605
Blanco y Blanco v. Hubbard (220 U. S. 233) 447
Board of Assessors, Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. 762
Orient Ins. Co. v. 769
Boggs v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Boisé Artesian Hot & Cold Water Co. v. Boisé City (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 611
Boisé City, Boisé Artesian Hot & Cold Water Co. v. (Mem.) 611
Boston Wharf Co., Cook v. 389
Bouck, Connolly v. (Mem.) 608
Box Elder Power & Light Co. v. Brigham City (Mem.) (220 U. S. 603) 604
Boyer, United States ex rel., v. Moore (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) .. 614
Bradford Kennedy Co. v. Morbeck (Mem.) (220 U. S. 629) .. 616
Brigham City, Box Elder Power & Light Co. v. (Mem.) .. 604
Briscoe v. Rudolph (221 U. S. 547) .. 848
British & F. M. Ins. Co. v. Maldonado & Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 622) 613
Broadnax v. Missouri (219 U. S. 285) 219
Broadway Realty Co., Brundage v. .. 389
Brooke, United States v. (MEM.) .. 615
Brown, Fletcher v. (Mem.) 609
v. United States (219 U. S. 346) 246
Brundage v. Broadway Realty Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Rexford v. (Mem.) 346
Bryant Electric Co., Marshall v. (Mem.) 613
Buck's Stove & Range Co. v. American Federation of Labor (Mem.) (219 U. S. 581) 345
American Federation of Labor v. 345
Gompers v. 797
Buffalo, Appleby v. 838
Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co., Schlemmer v. 596
Burdett v. Burdett (Mem.) (220 U. S. 627) 615
Burgess, Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 349
Burgoyne v. McKillip (Mem.) (220 U. S. 604) 605
Burlingame, Pennsylvania ex rel., v. Hare (Mem.) (220 U. S. 627) 615
Burroughs Adding Mach. Co., Comptograph Co. v. (Mem.) 347
Burton v. Jennings (Mem.) (220 U. S. 613) 610

C.

Calloway, Preston v. (Mem.) 608
Campbell v. Weyerhaeuser (219 U. S. 424) 279
Canal-Louisiana Bank & T. Co., Waterman v. (Mem.) 613
Carpenter v. Winn (221 U. S. 553) 842
Cedar Street Co. v. Park Realty Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Central R. Co. of N. J., United States v. 464
Chamberlin, United States v. 204
Chase, Worth v. (Mem.) 610
Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. McKell (Mem.) (220 U. S. 613) 609
Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire (219 U. S. 549) 328
Mauk v. (Mem.) 616
v. United States (220 U. S. 559) 582
v. Willard (220 U. S. 413) .. 521
Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. United States (219 U. S. 486) .. 305
Chicago Railways Co., Davies v. (Mem.) 611
Guaranty Trust Co. v. (Mem.) 611
Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Arkansas (219 U. S. 453) 290
Oklahoma ex rel. West v. .. 474
West v. (Mem.) 612
Chicago, St. L. & N. O. R. Co., Preston v. (Mem.) 608
Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. v. Latta (Mem.) (220 U. S. 614) 610

Chin Ying Don v. Billings (Mem.) (220 U. S. 629) 616
Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. Burgess (Mem.) (219 U. S. 590) 349
Cincinnati, C. & E. R. Co., Devou v. (Mem.) 605
Cincinnati Equipment Co. v. Degnan (Mem.) (220 U. S. 623) 614
Clark Iron Co., Mitchell v. 389
Clay Center, Merrimack River Sav. Bank v. 320
Clegg, Atlantic City R. Co. v. (Mem.) 608
Clemson Agricultural College, Hopkins v. 890
Cleveland, Nichols v. (Mem.) 604
Coffin v. Flint (Mem.) (219 U. S. 589) 348
Cohn, Western U. Teleg. Co. v. (Mem.) 615
Coleman, Perryman v. (Mem.) 604
Colhoun v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 629) 616
Colwell Lead Co. v. Torrance (Mem.) (220 U. S. 623) 614
Commercial Lead Co., Ingraham v. (Mem.) 612
Comptograph Co. v. Burroughs Adding Mach. Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 586) 347
Coney Island & B. R. Co., Van Derhoeff v. 389
Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co., Schurmeier v. (Mem.) 347
Connolly v. Bouck (Mem.) (220 U. S. 610) 608
Consolidated Rubber Tire Co., Diamond Rubber Co. v. 527
Cook v. Boston Wharf Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Globe Printing Co. v. (Mem.) 604
Cornell Steamboat Co., Merritt & C. Derrick & Wrecking Co. v. (Mem.) 611
Corn Exchange Nat. Bank, Miner v. 389
Corporation of St. Anthony v. Houlihan (Mem.) (220 U. S. 613) 609
Corrington v. Westinghouse Air Brake Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 584) 346
Cosper, Gold v. (Mem.) 610
Gotting, Maine Baptist Missionary Convention v. 424
Coyle v. Smith (221 U. S. 559) 853
Crane Co., Title Guaranty & T. Co. v. 72
Crovo, Western U. Teleg. Co. v. 498
Cusenier Co., Baglin v. 863

D.

Daily, Strassheim v. 735
Davies v. Chicago Railways Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 611
Day v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 617) 611
Degnan, Cincinnati Equipment Co. v. (Mem.) 614
Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., Interstate Commerce Commission v. 448
Troxell v. (Mem.) 346
Delk v. St. Louis & S. F. Co. (220 U. S. 580) 590
Denver Union Water Co., Venner v. (Mem.) 346
Dernfeld, Fourteenth Street Sav. Bank v. (Mem.) 612
Devou v. Cincinnati, C. & E. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 605) 605
Diamond Rubber Co. v. Consolidated Rubber Tire Co. (220 U. S. 428) 527
Dillingham, Jennings v. (Mem.) 613
Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. (220 U. S. 373) 502
Dolan, Benson v. (Mem.) 616
Dolley, Assaria State Bank v. 123
Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. Minnesota Moline Plow Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 588) 348
v. Smith (Mem.) (219 U. S. 588) 348
Dowdell v. United States (221 U. S. 325) 753
Dreier v. Henkel (221 U. S. 394). .784
v. United States (221 U. S. 394) 764
Dreyfus, Sexton v. 244
Duffer v. Seefeld (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 611

E.

Eagle White Lead Co. v. Pflugh (Mem.) (220 U. S. 615) 610
Eastern Cherokees, Re (220 U. S. 83) 379
Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. Kentucky (219 U. S. 140) 137
Edington v. Masson (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Electric Protection Co., American Bank Protection Co. v. (Mem.) 612
Eliot v. Freeman (220 U. S. 178) .. 424
Empire Timber Co. v. Woodbine Timber Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 589) 348
Engel v. O'Malley (219 U. S. 128) .. 128
Enriquez v. Go-Tiongco (220 U. S. 307) 476
Equitable Life Assur. Soc., Missouri ex rel., v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Erie R. Co. v. Russell (Mem.) (220 U. S. 607) 607

Erie R. Co., United States v. 464
Exchange Bank, Millan v. (Mem.) 346
Exchange Mut. F. Ins. Co., Becker v. (Mem.) 608
Ex parte Harding (219 U. S. 363).. 252
Manington (Mem.) (220 U. S. 604) 605
Metropolitan Water Co. (220 U. S. 539) 576
Oklahoma (220 U. S. 191) .. 431
Oklahoma (220 U. S. 210) .. 436

F.

Faber v. United States (221 U. S. 649) 397
Farbenfabriken, Kuchmsted v. (Mem.) 613
Fernandez y Perez, Perez y Fernandez v. 443
Ferry, Michigan Trust Co. v. (Mem.) 608
Field, Gray v. (Mem.) 347
Fifth Ave. Coach Co. v. New York (221 U. S. 467) 815
Fifty Associates, Phillips v. 389
First State Bank, Shallenberger v. .. 117
Fletcher v. Brown (Mem.) (220 U. S. 611) 609
Flint, Coffin v. (Mem.) 348
v. Stone Tracy Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Fluhrer v. New York L. Ins. Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Fore River Shipbuilding Co. v. Hagg (219 U. S. 175) 163
Foster Hose Supporter Co. v. Taylor (Mem.) (220 U. S. 611) . 609
Fourteenth Street Sav. Bank v. Dernfeld (Mem.) (220 U. S. 619) 612
Francis v. McNeal (Mem.) (220 U. S. 620) 612
Franklin, United States v. (Mem.) .. 614
Freeman, Eliot v. 424

G.

Gavieres v. United States (220 U. S. 338) 489
Gay v. Baltic Min. Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
German Alliance Ins. Co. v. Hale (219 U. S. 307) 229
Globe Printing Co. v. Cook (Mem.) (220 U. S. 603) 604
Glucksman v. Henkel (221 U. S. 508) 830
Gold v. Cosper (Mem.) (220 U. S. 615) 610
Golden, Northern P. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 614
Gompers v. Buck's Stove & Range Co. (221 U. S. 418) 797
Go-Tiongco, Enriquez v. 476
Government of Italy v. Asararo (Mem.) (219 U. S. 589) . 348
Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission (221 U. S. 400) 786
Gray v. Field (Mem.) (219 U. S. 586) 347
Gregory, Re (219 U. S. 210) 184
Grimaud, United States v. 563
Grizzard, United States v. 165
Gross, Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. 796
Guaranty Trust Co. v. Chicago Railways Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 611
Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co., Oklahoma ex rel. West v. 469
West v. (Mem.) 612
Guzman, Herencia v. 81

H.

Hagg, Fore River Shipbuilding Co. v. 163
Hale, German Alliance Ins. Co. v. 229
Hallock v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 613) 610
Hallowell v. United States (221 U. S. 317) 750
Hammers, United States v. 710
Hannibal Bridge Co. v. United States (221 U. S. 194) 699
Harding, Ex parte (219 U. S. 363) 252
Hare, Pennsylvania ex rel. Burlingame v. (Mem.) 615
Harriman, Walker v. (Mem.) 606
Harris, Re (221 U. S. 274) 732
Hart v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 609) 608
Haskell, Noble State Bank v. 112
Noble State Bank v. 341
Pond Creek v. (Mem.) 614
Hendrix v. United States (219 U. S. 79) 102
Henkel, Dreier v. 784
Glucksman v. 830
Wise v. 581
Hensey, Merillat v. 758
Herencia v. Guzman (219 U. S. 44).. 81
Herrick & Stevens, Sargeant & Lahr v. 787
Highland Glass Co., Schmertz Wire Glass Co. v. (Mem.) 348
Hillegas v. United States (Mem.) (219 U. S. 585) 347
Hills & Co. v. Hoover (220 U. S. 329) 485
Hine v. Home Life Ins. Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Hipolite Egg Co. v. United States (220 U. S. 45) 364
Home for Destitute Children v. Peter Bent Brigham Hospital (Mem.) (220 U. S. 603).. 604
Home Life Ins. Co., Hine v. 389
Hoover, Hills & Co. v. 485
Hopkins v. Clemson Agricultural College (221 U. S. 636) .. 890
Horn v. United States (Mem.) (219 U. S. 585) 347

Houlihan, Corporation of St. Anthony v. (Mem.) 609
House v. Mayes (219 U. S. 270) 213
Hoyt, Weyerhaeuser v. 258
Hubbard, Blanco y Blanco v. 447
v. Worcester Art Museum (Mem.) (220 U. S. 605) 606
Hunter v. South Carolina (Mem.) (219 U. S. 582) 345

I.

Inda, United States v. 563
Ingraham v. Commercial Lead Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 619) 612
Insurance Co., British & F. M., v. Maldonado & Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 622) 613
Connecticut Mut. L., Sehurmeier v. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 586) 347
Exchange Mut. F., Becker v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 611) 608
German Alliance, v. Hale (219 U. S. 307) 229
Home Life, Hine v. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Liverpool & L. & G., v. Board of Assessors (221 U. S. 346) 762
Metropolitan L., Missouri ex rel., v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
New York L., Fluhrer v. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Orient, v. Board of Assessors (221 U. S. 358) 769
Prudential, Missouri ex rel. v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Security Trust & L., Moore v. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 583) 346
Travelers, Lynch v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 614) 610
Interborough Rapid Transit Co., Lyman v. 389
International Banking Corp., Martinez v. 438
Interstate Commerce Commission, Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. 878
v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. (220 U. S. 235) 448
Southern P. Co. v. 283
Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. 310
Young v. 310
Iowa State Traveling Men's Asso., Tuttle v. (Mem.) 615

J.

Jacobs v. Beecham (221 U. S. 263) 729
Jared v. American Multigraph Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Jennings, Burton v. (Mem.) 610
v. Dillingham (Mem.) (220 U. S. 620) 613
Loeb v. (Mem.) 345
John A. Hughes, The, Baker Transp. Co. v. (Mem.) 609
John D. Park & Sons Co., Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. 502
John J. Sesnon Co. v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 609) 608
Johnson, United States v. 823
Jones, Wikle v. (Mem.) 610
Jover y Costas v. Philippine Islands (221 U. S. 623) 884
Philippine Islands v. 884
Justo Puente y Armsterdam v. Puente (Mem.) (219 U. S. 591) 349
J. W. Perry Co. v. Norfolk (220 U. S. 472) 548

K.

Kansas City Southern R. Co., West v. (Mem.) 612
Kansas Natural Gas Co., West v. .. 716
Kaw Valley Drainage Dist., Metropolitan Water Co. v. (Mem.) 610
Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. 137
Kentucky Union Co. v. 137
Kentucky Union Co. v. Kentucky (219 U. S. 140) 137
Kimball, Apsey v. 834
King of Italy v. Asaro. See GOVERNMENT OF ITALY v. ASARO.
Knight, Roughton v. 326
Kuehmsted v. Farbenfabriken (Mem.) (220 U. S. 622) 613

L.

La Compagnie Générale Transatlantique v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 585) 347
Lacroix v. Motor Taximeter Cab Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Larsen, Minnesota ex rel., v. Scott (Mem.) (219 U. S. 582) 345
Latta, Chicago, St. P. M. & R. Co. v. (Mem.) 610
Leesnitzer, Taylor v. 382
Lehigh Valley R. Co., United States v. 458
Lester v. Benedict (Mem.) (220 U. S. 619) 612
Lesure Lumber Co. v. Minnesota (Mem.) (220 U. S. 606) 606
Lewis v. Luckett (221 U. S. 554) .. 851
Light v. United States (220 U. S. 523) 570
Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. (220 U. S. 61) 369

Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Board of Assessors (221 U. S. 346) 762
Lloyds Bank, Sexton v. 244
Loeb v. Jennings (Mem.) (219 U. S. 582) 345
Lopez v. Rubert Hermanos (Mem.) (219 U. S. 590) 348
Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley (219 U. S. 467) 297
v. Scott (219 U. S. 209) 183
Lovell, New Jersey v. (Mem.) 347
Luckett, Lewis v. 851
Lyman v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Lynch v. Travelers Ins. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 614) 610

M.

McGuire, Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. 328
McKell, Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 609
MacKenzie v. Woods (Mem.) (220 U. S. 628) 615
McKillip, Burgoyne v. (Mem.) .. 605
McNeal, Francis v. (Mem.) 612
Maine Baptist Missionary Convention v. Cotting (220 U. S. 178) 424
Maldonado & Co., British & F. M. Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) 613
Malone, Provident Inst. for Sav. v. 899
Manila, Aguado v. 491
Trigas v. 491
Vilas v. 491
Manington, Ex parte (Mem.) (220 U. S. 604) 605
Maria del Encarnación Prado v. Alonzo del Rio's Succession (Mem.) (219 U. S. 590) 349
Marshall v. Bryant Electric Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 622) 613
Martinez v. International Banking Corp. (220 U. S. 214) .. 438
Marx & Rawolle v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 623) 614
Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co., Neal v. (Mem.) 348
Masson, Edington v. (Mem.) 616
Mauk v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 628) 616
Mayes, House v. 213
Merillat v. Hensey (221 U. S. 333) 758
Merrimack River Sav. Bank v. Clay Center (219 U. S. 527) 320
Merritt & C. Derrick & Wrecking Co. v. Cornell Steamboat Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 617) 611
Metropolitan L. Ins. Co., Missouri ex rel., v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Metropolitan Water Co., Ex parte (220 U. S. 539) 576
Metropolitan Water Co. v. Kaw Valley Drainage Dist. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 615) 610
Michigan Trust Co. v. Ferry (Mem.) (220 U. S. 610) 608
Midland Valley R. Co., West v. (Mem.) 612
Millan v. Exchange Bank (Mem.) (219 U. S. 584) 346
Miller, Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. .. 789
v. West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 619) 612
Mills, Wise v. 579
Miner v. Corn Exchange Nat. Bank (220 U. S. 107) 389
Mineral Point Zinc Co., Neurcuther v. (Mem.) 609
Minneapolis Syndicate, Zonne v. .. 428
Minnesota, Lesure Lumber Co. v. (Mem.) 606
Rat Portage Lumber Co. v. (Mem.) 606
ex rel. Larsen v. Scott (Mem.) (219 U. S. 582) 345
Minnesota Moline Plow Co., Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) 348
Missouri, Broadnax v. 219
Webber v. (Mem.) 614
ex rel. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Metropolitan L. Ins. Co. v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Prudential Ins. Co. v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Bailey (Mem.) (220 U. S. 608) 607
v. Richardson (Mem.) (220 U. S. 601) 603
West v. (Mem.) 612
Mitchell v. Clark Iron Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed (219 U. S. 35) 78
Montana Min. Co. v St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 611) 609
Montello Salt Co. v. Utah (221 U. S. 452) 810
Moore v. Security Trust & L. Ins. Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 583) 346
Smith v. (Mem.) 347
United States ex rel. Boyer v. (Mem.) 614
Morbeck, Bradford Kennedy Co. v. (Mem.) 616
Morris, Bean v. 821
Motor Taximeter Cab Co., Lacroix v. 389
Mottley, Louisville & N. R. Co. v. 297
Murphy, Shea v. (Mem.) 609
Tanner v. (Mem.) 609
Muskrat v. United States (219 U. S. 346) 246

N.

Nash v. United States (Mem.) (219 U. S. 587) 348
National Bank of Commerce, Williams v. (Mem.) 615
Natural Carbonic Gas Co., Lindsley v. 369
Neal v. Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 589) 348
Neureuther v. Mineral Point Zinc Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 612) 609
New Jersey v. Lovell (Mem.) (219 U. S. 587) 347
New Orleans v. Wakefield Sheet Piling Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 585) 347
New York, Fifth Ave. Coach Co. v. 815
New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. Schradin (Mem.) (220 U. S. 606) 606
New York L. Ins. Co., Fluhrer v. 389
New York Stock Exchange, Austin v. (Mem.) 613
Nichols v. Cleveland (Mem.) (220 U. S. 602) 604
Noble State Bank v. Haskell (219 U. S. 575) 341
v. Haskell (219 U. S. 104) .. 112
Norfolk, J. W. Perry Co. v. 548
White v. 548
Northern P. R. Co. v. Golden (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) 614
v. Trodick (221 U. S. 208) .. 704
v. Wass (219 U. S. 426) 280
Northern Trust Co., Smith v. 389

O.

O'Brien, United States v. 481
Oklahoma, Ex parte (220 U. S. 210) 436
Ex parte (220 U. S. 191) 431
v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. (220 U. S. 277) 465
ex rel. West v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (220 U. S. 302) 474
West v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (220 U. S. 290) 469
O'Malley, Engel v. 128
Orient Ins. Co. v. Board of Assessors (221 U. S. 358) 769

P.

Pabst Brew. Co. v. Thorley (Mem.) (219 U. S. 583) 346
Park Realty Co., Cedar Street Co. v. 389
Pennsylvania ex rel. Burlingame v. Hare (Mem.) (220 U. S. 627) 615
Pennsylvania R. Co., United States v. 464
Perez y Fernandez v. Fernandez y Perez (220 U. S. 224) .. 443
Perryman v. Coleman (Mem.) (220 U. S. 602) 604
Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Home for Destitute Children v. (Mem.) 604
Pflugh, Eagle White Lead Co. v. (Mem.) 610
Phenix Nat. Bank, Waterbury v. (Mem.) 614
Philadelphia & R. R. Co. v. United States (Mem.) (219 U. S. 590) 349
Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co. v. Tucker (Mem.) (220 U. S. 608) 607
Philippine Islands, Atlantic, G. & P. Co. v. 70
v. Jover y Costas (221 U. S. 623) 884
Jover y Costas v. 884
Phillips v. Fifty Associates (220 U. S. 107) 389
Pittsburgh Constr. Co., West Side Belt R. Co. v. 107
Pond Creek v. Haskell (Mem.) (220 U. S. 624) 614
Press Publishing Co., United States v. 65
Preston v. Calloway (Mem.) (220 U. S. 610) 608
v. Chicago, St. L. & N. O. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 610) 608
v. Sturgis Milling Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 610) 608
Price, Shelton v. (Mem.) 347
Provident Inst. for Sav. v. Malone (221 U. S. 660) 899
Prudential Ins. Co., Missouri ex rel. v. Vandiver (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Puente, Justo Puente y Armsterdam v. (Mem.) 349

R.

Radin v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 623) 614
Railroad Commission, Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. 786
Railroad Co., Atlantic City v. Clegg (Mem.) (220 U. S. 609) 608
Atlantic Coast Line, Day v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 617) 611
Atlantic Coast Line, v. Riverside Mills (219 U. S. 186) 167
Baltimore & O., Interstate Commerce Commission v. (221 U. S. 612) 878
Baltimore & O., La Compagnie Générale Transatlantique v. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 585) 347

Railroad Co., Baltimore & O. S. W., v. United States (220 U. S. 94) 384
Central of N. J., United States v. (220 U. S. 275) 464
Chicago, B. & Q., v. McGuire (219 U. S. 549) 328
Chicago, St. L. & N. O., Preston v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 610) 608
Choctaw, O. & G., v. Burgess (Mem.) (219 U. S. 590) 349
Coney Island & B., Van Derhoeff v. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Delaware, L. & W., Interstate Commerce Commission v. (220 U. S. 235) 448
Delaware, L. & W., Troxell v. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 584) 346
Erie, v. Russell (Mem.) (220 U. S. 607) 607
Erie, United States v. (220 U. S. 275) 464
Lehigh Valley, United States v. (220 U. S. 257) 458
Louisville & N., v. Mottley (219 U. S. 467) 297
Louisville & N., v. Scott (219 U. S. 209) 183
Midland Valley, West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Mobile, J. & K. C., v. Turnipseed (219 U. S. 35) 78
New York C. & H. R., v. Schradin (Mem.) (220 U. S. 606) 606
Pennsylvania, United States v. (220 U. S. 275) 464
Philadelphia, B. & W., v. Tucker (Mem.) (220 U. S. 608) 607
St. Louis & S. F., Delk v. (220 U. S. 580) 590
St. Louis & S. F., West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Texas & N. O., v. Gross (221 U. S. 417) 796
Texas & N. O., v. Miller (221 U. S. 408) 789
West Side Belt, v. Pittsburgh Constr. Co. (219 U. S. 92) 107
Yazoo & M. V., Vicksburg Water Works Co. v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 601) 603
Railway Co., Atchison, T. & S. F., Oklahoma v. (220 U. S. 277) 465
Atchison, T. & S. F., United States v. (220 U. S. 37) .. 361
Atchison, T. & S. F., West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Buffalo, R. & P., Schlemmer v. (220 U. S. 590) 596
Chesapeake & O., v. McKell (Mem.) (220 U. S. 613) 609
Railway Co., Chicago, B. & Q., Mauk v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 628) 616
Chicago, B. & Q., v. United States (220 U. S. 559) .. 582
Chicago, B. & Q., v. Willard (220 U. S. 413) 521
Chicago, I. & L., v. United States (219 U. S. 486) .. 305
Chicago, R. I. & P., v. Arkansas (219 U. S. 453) 290
Chicago, R. I. & P., Oklahoma ex rel. West v. (220 U. S. 302) 474
Chicago R. I. & P., West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Chicago, St. P. M. & O., v. Latta (Mem.) (220 U. S. 614) 610
Cincinnati, C. & E., Devou v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 605) 605
Grand Trunk W., v. Railroad Commission (221 U. S. 400) 786
Gulf, C. & S. F., Oklahoma ex rel. West v. (220 U. S. 290) 469
Gulf, C. & S. F., West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Kansas City Southern, West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Missouri, K. & T., v. Bailey (Mem.) (220 U. S. 603) 607
Missouri, K. & T., v. Richardson (Mem.) (220 U. S. 601) 603
Missouri, K. & T., West v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Northern P., v. Golden (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) 614
Northern P., v. Trodick (221 U. S. 208) 704
Northern P., v. Wass (219 U. S. 426) 289
Philadelphia & R., v. United States (Mem.) (219 U. S. 590) 349
Spokane & B. C., v. Washington & G. N. R. Co. (219 U. S. 166) 159
Texas & P., v. Stevenson (Mem.) (219 U. S. 591) 349
Washington & G. N., Spokane & B. C. R. Co. v. (219 U. S. 166) 159
Railways Co., Chicago, Davies v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 617
Chicago, Guaranty Trust Co. v. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 611
Rat Portage Lumber Co. v. Minnesota (Mem.) (220 U. S. 606) 606
Read, Samuels v. (Mem.) 614
Reaves v. Ainsworth (219 U. S. 296) 225
Reade, Arnett v. 477

Re Eastern Cherokees (220 U. S. 83) 379
Gregory (219 U. S. 210) .. 184
Harris (221 U. S. 274) 732
Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 584) 346
Rhodes, Sperry & H. Co. v. 561
Richardson, Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 603
Rimer, United States v. 578
Ripley v. United States (220 U. S. 491) 557
Riverside Mills, Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. 167
Robertson v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 616) 611
Roughton v. Knight (219 U. S. 537) 326
Rubert Hermanos, Lopez v. (Mem.) 348
Rudolph, Briscoe v. 848
Shea v. (Mem.) 616
Russell, Erie R. Co. v. (Mem.) .. 607

S.

Sac and Fox Indians v. Sac and Fox Indians (220 U. S. 481) 552
St. Louis, United Railways Co. v. (Mem.) 607
St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., Delk v. 590
West v. (Mem.) 612
St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co., Montana Min. Co. v. (Mem.) 609
St. Louis Street Flushing Mach. Co., Sanitary Street Flushing Mach. Co. v. (Mem.) .. 348
Samuels v. Read (Mem.) (220 U. S. 624) 614
Sanitary Street Flushing Mach. Co. v. St. Louis Street Flushing Mach. Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 588) 348
Sargeant & Lahr v. Herrick & Stevens (221 U. S. 404) 787
Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co. (220 U. S. 590) 596
Schmertz Wire Glass Co. v. Highland Glass Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 588) 348
Schradin, New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 606
Schurmeier v. Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 586) 347
Scott, Louisville & N. R. Co. v. 183
Minnesota ex rel., Larsen v. (Mem.) 345
Security Trust & L. Ins. Co., Moore v. (Mem.) 346
Seefeld, Duffer v. (Mem.) 611
Sena v. American Turquoise Co. (220 U. S. 497) 559
Sexton v. Dreyfus (219 U. S. 339) 244
v. Lloyds Bank (219 U. S. 339) 244
Shallenberger v. First State Bank (219 U. S. 114) 117
Shawnee Sewerage & Drainage Co. v. Stearns (220 U. S. 462) 544
Shea v. Murphy (Mem.) (220 U. S. 612) 609
v. Rudolph (Mem.) (220 U. S. 630) 616
Shelton v. Price (Mem.) (219 U. S. 587) 347
Smith, Coyle v. 853
Dowagiac Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) 348
v. Moore (Mem.) (219 U. S. 587) 347
v. Northern Trust Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Snyder v. American Pneumatic Service Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 611
South Carolina, Hunter v. (Mem.) 345
Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission (219 U. S. 433) 283
Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission (219 U. S. 498) 310
Sperry & H. Co. v. Rhodes (220 U. S. 502) 561
Spokane & B. C. R. Co. v. Washington & G. N. R. Co. (219 U. S. 166) 159
Standard Oil Co. v. United States (221 U. S. 1) 619
Standard Paint Co. v. Trinidad Asphalt Mfg. Co. (220 U. S. 446) 536
Stearns, Shawnee Sewerage & Drainage Co. v. 544
Stevenson, Texas & P. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 349
Stirlen v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 617) 611
Stone Tracy Co., Flint v. 389
Strassheim v. Daily (221 U. S. 280) 735
Sturgis Milling Co., Preston v. (Mem.) 608

T.

Tamer, Western U. Teleg. Co. v. (Mem.) 615
Tanner v. Murphy (Mem.) (220 U. S. 612) 609
Taylor, Foster Hose Supporter Co. v. (Mem.) 609
v. Leesnitzer (220 U. S. 90) 382
Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gross (221 U. S. 417) 796
v. Miller (221 U. S. 408) .. 789
Texas & P. R. Co. v. Stevenson (Mem.) (219 U. S. 591) 349
Thomas v. Thomas (Mem.) (220 U. S. 607) 607
Thorley, Pabst Brew. Co., v. (Mem.) 346

Tiger v. Western Investment Co. (221 U. S. 286) 738
Title Guaranty & T. Co. v. Crane Co. (219 U. S. 24) 72
v. Ward (Mem.) (220 U. S. 620) 613
Torrance, Colwell Lead Co. v. (Mem.) 614
Travelers Ins. Co. Lynch v. (Mem.) 610
Trigas v. Manila (220 U. S. 345) .. 491
Trinidad Asphalt Mfg. Co., Standard Paint Co. v. 536
Trodick, Northern P. R. Co. v. 704
Troxell v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 584) 346
Tucker, Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 607
Turnipseed, Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. 78
Tuttle v. Iowa State Traveling Men's Asso. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 628) 615

U.

United Railways Co. v. St. Louis (Mem.) (220 U. S. 607) 607
United States, Adamson v. (Mem.) 609
American Tobacco Co. v. 663
v. American Tobacco Co. (221 U. S. 106) 663
v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. (220 U. S. 37) 361
Atkinson v. (Mem.) 613
Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. 384
v. Barber (219 U. S. 72) 99
Boggs v. (Mem.) 616
v. Brooke (Mem.) (220 U. S. 626) 615
Brown v. 246
v. Central R. Co. of N. J. (220 U. S. 275) 464
v. Chamberlin (219 U. S. 250) 204
Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. 582
Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. 305
Colhoun v. (Mem.) 616
Dowdell v. 753
Dreier v. 784
v. Erie R. Co. (220 U. S. 275) 464
Faber v. 897
v. Franklin (Mem.) (220 U. S. 624) 614
Gavieres v. 489
v. Grimaud (220 U. S. 506) 563
v. Grizzard (219 U. S. 180) 165
Hallock v. (Mem.) 610
Hallowell v. 750
v. Hammers (221 U. S. 220) 710
Hannibal Bridge Co. v. 699
Hart v. (Mem.) 608
Hendrix v. 102
Hillegas v. (Mem.) 347
Hipolite Egg Co. v. 364
Horn v. (Mem.) 347
v. Inda (220 U. S. 506) 563
United States, John J. Sesnon Co. v. (Mem.) 608
v. Johnson (221 U. S. 488) 823
v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. (220 U. S. 257) 458
Light v. 570
Marx & Rawolle v. (Mem.) 614
Muskrat v. 246
Nash v. (Mem.) 348
v. O'Brien (220 U. S. 321) 481
v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (220 U. S. 275) 464
Philadelphia & R. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 349
v. Press Publishing Co. (219 U. S. 1) 65
Radin v. (Mem.) 614
v. Rimer (220 U. S. 547) .. 578
Ripley v. 557
Robertson v. (Mem.) 611
Standard Oil Co. v. 619
Stirlen v. (Mem.) 611
Wilson v. 771
Wilson v. (Mem.) 610
v. Wong You (Mem.) (220 U. S. 620) 612
ex rel. Boyer v. Moore (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) 614
Utah, Montello Salt Co. v. 810

V.

Van Derhoeff v. Coney Island & B. R. Co. (220 U. S. 107) 389
Vandiver, Missouri ex rel. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. (Mem.) 616
Missouri ex rel. Metropolitan L. Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) .. 616
Missouri ex rel. Prudential Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) 616
Van Syckel v. Arsuaga (Mem.) (220 U. S. 601) 603
Venner v. Denver Union Water Co. (Mem.) (219 U. S. 583) 346
Vicksburg Waterworks Co. v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 601) 603
Vilas v. Manila (220 U. S. 345) .. 491
Virginia v. West Virginia (220 U. S. 1) 353

W.

Wakefield Sheet Piling Co., New Orleans v. (Mem.) 347
Walker v. Harriman (Mem.) (220 U. S. 606) 606
Ward, Title Guarantee & Trust Co. v. (Mem.) 613
Washington & G. N. R. Co., Spokane & B. C. R. Co. v. 159
Wass, Northern P. R. Co. v. 280
Waterbury v. Phenix Nat. Bank (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) 614
Waterhouse, William W. Bierce v. 237

Waterman v. Canal Louisiana Bank & T. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 621) 613
Webber v. Missouri (Mem.) (220 U. S. 625) 614
Werckmeister, American Lithographic Co. v. 873
West v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. (221 U. S. 229) 716
v. Midland Valley R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Oklahoma ex rel., v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (220 U. S. 302) 474
Oklahoma ex rel., v. Gulf C. & S. F. R. Co. (220 U. S. 290) 469
v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. (Mem.) (220 U. S. 618) 612
Western Investment Co., Tiger v. .. 738
Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Cohn (Mem.) (220 U. S. 626) 615
v. Crovo (220 U. S. 364) .. 498
v. Tamer (Mem.) (220 U. S. 627) 615
Westinghouse Air Brake Co., Corrington v. (Mem.) 346
West Point Mfg. Co., Alabama & G. Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) 611
West Side Belt R. Co. v. Pittsburgh Constr. Co. (219 U. S. 92) 107
West Virginia, Virginia v. 353
West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co., Miller v. (Mem.) 612
Weyerhaeuser, Campbell v. 279
v. Hoyt (219 U. S. 380) 258
White v. Norfolk (220 U. S. 472) 548
Whitney Elevator & Warehouse Co. v. Whitney (Mem.) (219 U. S. 588) 348
Whitney Elevator & Warehouse Co. v. (Mem.) 348
Whittemore, Apsey v. 834
Wikle v. Jones (Mem.) (220 U. S. 615) 610
Willard, Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v... 521
Williams v. National Bank of Commerce (Mem.) (220 U. S. 628) 615
William W. Bierce v. Waterhouse (219 U. S. 320) 237
Wilson v. United States (221 U. S. 361) 771
v. United States (Mem.) (220 U. S. 614) 610
Winn, Carpenter v. 842
Wise v. Henkel (220 U. S. 556) .. 581
v. Mills (220 U. S. 549) 579
Wong You, United States v. (Mem.) 612
Woodbine Timber Co., Empire Timber Co. v. (Mem.) 348
Woods, MacKenzie v. (Mem.) 615
Woolley, Baley v. (Mem.) 613
Worcester Art Museum, Hubbard v. (Mem.) 606
Worth v. Chase (Mem.) (220 U. S. 614) 610

Y.

Yazoo & M. V. R. Co., Vicksburg Water Works Co. v. (Mem.) 603
Young v. Interstate Commerce Commission (219 U. S. 498) 310

Z.

Zeiss, American Land Co. v. 82
Zonne v. Minneapolis Syndicate (220 U. S. 187) 428
Zulkowski, American Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) 608

CASES

ARGUED AND DECIDED

IN THE

SUPREME COURT

OF THE

UNITED STATES

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1910.

Vol. 219.

REFERENCE TABLE

OF SUCH CASES

DECIDED IN U. S. SUPREME COURT,

OCTOBER TERM, 1910.

AND REPORTED HEREIN,

VOLUME 219,

AS ALSO APPEAR IN

OFFICIAL REPORTER'S EDITION.

Off. Rep. 219 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
1	United States v. Press Pub. Co.	65
2–9	" "	66
9–11	" "	67
11–14	" "	68
14–16	" "	69
16–17	" "	70
17	Atlantic, G. & P. Co. v. Philippine Islands	70
20–22	" "	71
22–23	" "	72
24	Title Guaranty & T. Co. v. Crane Co.	72
31–32	" "	76
32–35	" "	77
35	Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed	78
39–41	" "	79
41–43	" "	80
43–44	" "	81
44	Herencia v. Guzman	81
45–46	" "	82
47	American Land Co. v. Zeiss	82
48–55	" "	83
55	" "	84
55–56	" "	85
58–60	" "	94
60–63	" "	95
63–65	" "	96
65–68	" "	97
68–71	" "	98
71	" "	99
72–73	United States v. Barber	99
73–75	" "	100
75–78	" "	101
78–79	" "	102
79	Hendrix v. United States	102
86	" "	104
86–88	" "	105
88–91	" "	106
91	" "	107
92	West Side Belt R. Co. v. Pittsburgh Constr. Co.	107
96–97	" "	109
97–100	" "	110
100–102	" "	111
102–104	" "	112
104	Noble State Bank v. Haskell	112
109	" "	115
109–111	" "	116
111–113	" "	117
114	Shallenberger v. First State Bank	117
120	" "	123
121	Assaria State Bank v. Dolley	123
125–127	" "	127
127	" "	128
128	Engel v. O'Malley	128
134–135	" "	135
135–138	" "	136
138–139	" "	137
140	Kentucky Union Co. v. Kentucky	137
142–143	" "	150
143–145	" "	151
145–148	" "	152
148–151	" "	153
151–153	" "	154
153–156	" "	155
156–158	" "	156
158–161	" "	157
161–163	" "	158
163–165	" "	159
166	Spokane & B. R. Co. v. Washington & G. N. R. Co.	159
169–171	" "	161
171–174	" "	162
174–175	" "	163
175–176	Fore River S. Co. v. Hagg	163
176–179	" "	164
179	" "	165
180–182	United States v. Grizzard	165
182–185	" "	166
185–186	" "	167
186	Atlantic C. L. R. Co. v. Riverside Mills	167
187–188	" "	169
188	" "	170
194	" "	177
194–197	" "	178

Off. Rep. 219 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
197–199	Atlantic C. L. R. Co. v. Riverside Mills
200–202	" "	179
202–205	" "	180
205–207	" "	181
207–208	" "	182
209	Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott	183
209	" "	183
210	Matter of Gregory	184
212–213	" "	184
213–215	" "	188
215–218	" "	189
218	" "	190
219	Bailey v. Alabama	191
227–229	" "	191
229–232	" "	196
232–235	" "	197
235–237	" "	198
237–240	" "	199
240–242	" "	200
242–245	" "	201
245–248	" "	202
248–250	" "	203
250	United States v. Chamberlin	204
250–251	" "	204
251–253	" "	205
253–255	" "	206
255–258	" "	207
258–261	" "	208
261–264	" "	209
264–266	" "	210
266–269	" "	211
269–270	" "	212
270	House v. Mayes	213
277–278	" "	213
278–281	" "	216
281–284	" "	217
284–285	" "	218
285	Broadnax v. Missouri	219
289	" "	219
289–292	" "	222
292–295	" "	223
295–296	" "	224
296	Reaves v. Ainsworth	225
297–299	" "	225
299–302	" "	226
302–305	" "	227
305–307	" "	228
307	German Alliance Ins. Co. v. Hale	229
312	" "	229
312–315	" "	233
315–317	" "	234
317–320	" "	235
320	" "	236
320	Wm. W. Bierce v. Waterhouse	237
321–324	" "	237
324–325	" "	238
331–332	" "	239
332–335	" "	241
335–337	" "	242
337–338	" "	243
339–343	Sexton v. Dreyfus	244
343–345	" "	244
346	" "	245
346	Muskrat v. United States	246
348–350	" "	246
		247

Off. Rep. 219 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
350–353	Muskrat v. United States	248
353–355	" "	249
355–358	" "	250
358–361	" "	251
361–363	" "	252
363	Ex parte Harding	252
366–368	" "	253
368–370	" "	254
370–373	" "	255
373–375	" "	256
375–378	" "	257
378–380	" "	258
380	Weyerhaeuser v. Hoyt	258
382–383	" "	259
383–385	" "	260
385–388	" "	261
388–390	" "	262
390–393	" "	263
393–395	" "	264
395–396	" "	265
396–397	" "	266
397	" "	267
397–398	" "	268
398–399	" "	269
399–402	" "	270
402–404	" "	271
404–407	" "	272
407–409	" "	273
409–412	" "	274
412–414	" "	275
414–417	" "	276
417–419	" "	277
419–422	" "	278
422–424	" "	279
424	Campbell v. Weyerhaeuser	279
425	" "	280
426–427	Northern P. R. Co. v. Wass	280
427–429	" "	281
430–432	" "	282
432–433	" "	283
433	Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Com.	283
437–438	" "	284
438–441	" "	285
441–443	" "	286
443–446	" "	287
446–449	" "	288
449–451	" "	289
451–452	" "	290
453	Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Arkansas	290
457–459	" "	293
459–461	" "	294
461–464	" "	295
464–466	" "	296
466–467	" "	297
467	Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley	297
471–473	" "	299
473–475	" "	300
475–478	" "	301
478–480	" "	302
480–483	" "	303
483–486	" "	304
486	" "	305
486	Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. United States	305
490–491	" "	307
491–494	" "	308
494–497	" "	309

Off. Rep. 219 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
497	Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. United States	310
498	Southern P. T. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Com.	310
499–501	" "	311
501–504	" "	312
504–507	" "	313
507	" "	314
514	" "	315
514–517	" "	316
517–520	" "	317
520–522	" "	318
522–525	" "	319
525–527	" "	320
527	Merrimack River Sav. Bank v. Clay Center	320
532–534	" "	324
534–536	" "	325
536–537	" "	326
537–544	Roughton v. Knight	326
544–547	" "	327
547–548	" "	328
549	Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire	328
559–560	" "	335
560–562	" "	336
562–565	" "	337
565–568	" "	338
568–570	" "	339
570–572	" "	340
572–575	" "	341
575	Noble State Bank v. Haskell	341
580	" "	343
581–591	Memorandum Decisions	345
		349

THE DECISIONS

OF THE

Supreme Court of the United States

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1910.

1] *UNITED STATES, Plff. in Err.,
v.
PRESS PUBLISHING COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 1–17.)

Federal courts — jurisdiction — crimes on government reservations.

1. Punishment in the Federal courts as an offense against the United States, but only in the way and to the extent that such offense would have been punishable if the territory embraced by the government reservation where the crime was committed had remained subject to the jurisdiction of the state, is what was intended by the act of July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 717, chap. 576, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3652), § 2, adopting such punishment for offenses committed in places under the exclusive jurisdiction and control of the United States as the laws of the state in which such places are situated now provide for a like offense, the punishment therefor not being otherwise provided for by any law of the United States.

[For other cases, see Courts, VI. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Federal courts — criminal libel in government reservation.

2. The circulation in the government reservation at West Point and in the Postoffice building in New York city, of copies of a newspaper containing a criminal libel printed and primarily published in such city, cannot be punished in the Federal courts under the act of July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 717, chap. 576), § 2, providing that offenses committed in places under the exclusive jurisdiction and control of the United States, when not expressly made criminal by any law of the United States, shall be punished in accordance with the laws of the state in which such places are situated, since the state laws afford adequate punishment for the offense, without resorting to the Federal courts, and their plain purpose is that there shall be but a single prosecution and conviction for a criminal libel.

[For other cases, see Courts, VI. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 541.]

Argued October 24, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a judgment quashing for want of jurisdiction an indictment for publishing a criminal libel in a government reservation. Affirmed.

Statement by Mr. Chief Justice White:

On March 4, 1909, upon the assumed authority of the 2d section of an act of Congress approved July 7, 1898 (chap. 576, 30 Stat. at L. 717, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3652), a grand jury in the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York found a true bill against the Press Publishing Company, charging the commission of alleged criminal libels, set out in an indictment composed of fourteen counts. The asserted libels were contained in six issues of the World, a newspaper printed in the city of New York, of which newspaper the defendant in error, a New York corporation, was publisher. The first seven counts dealt with the publication of the libels by circulating copies of the newspaper containing the same within the reservation and military post in Orange county, New York, known as West Point. The remaining counts dealt with the publication of each of the libels by the delivery of a copy of the issue of the World containing the same to a postoffice inspector at his office in the Postoffice building in the city of New York. Both West Point and the Postoffice building were averred to be places within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States. Those who were alleged in each count to have been criminally libeled 3]were, at the *time of the publications, the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, and certain private individuals. The alleged libelous articles related to the purchase by the United States of the Panama canal. We need not state the contents of the articles, since, in the view taken of the case, we shall be only called upon to determine whether, conceding the publications to have been libelous as charged in the indictment, they constituted offenses against the United States within the purview of the act of 1898.

The case went to trial upon a plea of not guilty. The circulation of the newspapers containing the alleged libels on the military reservation, and their delivery to the inspector at the postoffice, as charged in the indictment, was admitted by the defendant. The government, on the other hand, admitted that all of the issues of the World newspaper referred to in the indictment were printed in the defendant's printing establishment in the city of New York, and were circulated therefrom.

At the close of the evidence introduced by the government, the defendant moved to quash the indictment or to instruct a verdict of acquittal, upon the following grounds:

"First. That court has no jurisdiction in this case, because there is no statute of the United States authorizing the prosecution.

"Second. The act of 1898 does not apply to the case as disclosed by the evidence.

"Third. If construed so as to cover the acts shown by the evidence, the act is unconstitutional.

"Fourth. The offense, if any, was committed wholly within the jurisdiction of the state of New York, and was punishable there.

"Fifth. The defendant, being a corporation, is incapable of committing the offense charged in the indictment."

The court announced, that it had concluded that the indictment was not authorized by the act of 1898, and therefore the motion to quash would be sustained. Be- 4] fore, *however, any formal entry to that effect was made, in order to obviate any question of double jeopardy, upon motion of the attorney for the United States a juror was withdrawn, and thereafter a judgment was duly entered quashing the indictment, it being expressly recited in the judgment that it was based upon a construction of the statute. To review the action of the trial court, this writ of error is prosecuted by the United States, under the authority of the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 220).

Mr. James C. McReynolds argued the cause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham and Mr. Stuart McNamara, filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. De Lancey Nicoll argued the cause, and, with Messrs. John D. Lindsay and Raymond D. Thurber, filed a brief for defendant in error.

*Mr. Chief Justice White, after mak- [8 ing the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

As we have stated, the indictment was based on the act of July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 717, § 2, chap. 576, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3652). The effect of the act, as pointed out in Franklin v. United States, 216 U. S. 559, 568, 569, 54 L. ed. 615, 618, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 434, 435, was to incorporate the criminal laws of the several states, in force on July 1, 1898, into the statute, and to make such criminal laws, to the extent of such incorporation, laws of the United States. The text of the 2d section of the act of 1898 is this:

"That when any offense is committed in any place jurisdiction over which has been retained by the United States, or ceded to it by a state, or which has been purchased with the consent of a state for the erection of a fort, magazine, arsenal, dockyard, or other needful building or structure, the punishment for which offense is not provided for by any law of the United States, the person committing such offense shall, upon conviction in a circuit or district court of the United States for the district in which the offense was committed, be liable to and receive the same punishment as the laws of the state in which such place is situated now provide for the like offense when committed within the jurisdiction of such state and the said courts are hereby vested with jurisdiction for such purpose; and no subsequent repeal of any such state law shall affect any such prosecution.

As it is conceded that there is no statute of the United States expressly defining and punishing the crime of criminal libel when committed on a United States reservation, etc., it follows that in order to determine the correctness of the ruling of the court below we are called upon (a) to accurately fix the extent to which, by the effect of the act of 1898, the criminal laws of the states were incorporated therein so as to authorize the punishment of crimes *de- [9 fined by such laws as offenses against the United States, and (b) this being done, to make an analysis of the criminal laws of the state of New York to ascertain whether the particular offenses here charged were made punishable by those laws, and if so, whether, by virtue of the act of 1898, they constituted offenses against the laws of the United States, punishable in the courts of the United States.

It is certain, on the face of the quoted section, that it exclusively relates to offenses committed on United States reservations, etc., which are "not provided for by any law of the United States," and that as to such offenses the state law, when they are by that law defined and punished, is adopted and made applicable. That is to say, while the statute leaves no doubt where acts are done on reservations which are expressly prohibited and punished as crimes by a law of the United States, that law is dominant and controlling, yet, on the other hand, where no law of the United States has expressly provided for the punishment of offenses committed on reservations, all acts done on such reservations which are made criminal by the laws of the several states are left to be punished under the applicable state statutes. When these results of the statute are borne in mind, it becomes manifest that Congress, in adopting it, sedulously considered the twofold character of our constitutional government, and had in view the enlightened purpose, so far as the punishment of crime was concerned, to interfere as little as might be with the authority of the states on that subject over all territory situated within their exterior boundaries, and which hence would be subject to exclusive state jurisdiction but for the existence of a United States reservation. In accomplishing these purposes it is apparent that the statute, instead of fixing by its own terms the punishment for crimes committed on such reservations which were not previously provided for by a law of the United [10] *States, adopted and wrote in the state law, with the single difference that the offense, although punished as an offense against the United States, was nevertheless punishable only in the way and to the extent that it would have been punishable if the territory embraced by the reservation remained subject to the jurisdiction of the state. While this meaning, we think, stands out in bold relief from the text of the section, the correctness of such meaning will be nevertheless readily demonstrated, even if, for the sake of argument, it be conceded that the text is ambiguous. We say this because a consideration of the genesis and development of the legislation which the act of 1898 embodies will leave no doubt that the construction we have given to the act enforces the exclusive and only purpose intended to be accomplished by its adoption.

It is undoubted, as pointed out in Franklin v. United States, supra, that the forerunner of the act of 1898 was the act of March 3, 1825 (chap. 65, 4 Stat. at L. 115), since the act of 1898 is virtually a repetition of the act of 1825, except as to provisions plainly inserted merely for the purpose of bring under the sway of the act United States reservations which, on account of the restrictive terms of the act of 1825, were not embraced within the sphere of its operations. The act of 1825 was entitled "An Act More Effectually to Provide for the Punishment of Certain Crimes against the United States, and for Other Purposes." Sections 1 and 2 of the act provided for the punishment of arson when committed within any fort, dockyard, and other enumerated places, "the site whereof is ceded to, and under the jurisdiction of, the United States." The 3d section was as follows:

"Section 3. And be it further enacted, that if any offense shall be committed in any of the places aforesaid, the punishment of which offense is not specially provided for by any law of the United States, such offense shall, upon a conviction in any court of the United States having *cog- [11 nizance thereof, be liable to, and receive the same punishment as the laws of the state in which such fort, dockyard, navy yard, arsenal, armory, or magazine, or other place, ceded as aforesaid, is situated, provide for the like offense when committed within the body of any county of such state."

This section came under consideration in United States v. Paul, 6 Pet. 141, 8 L. ed. 348, and it was held that its provisions referred only to the laws of the states existing at the time of the passage of the act; that is, those which were in force on March 3, 1825. It came also to pass that, in considering the words "whereof is ceded," in the 1st section, it was held that those words limited the operation of the act to places which had been ceded to the United States prior to the enactment of the act of 1825. United States v. Barney, 5 Blatchf. 294, Fed. Cas. No. 14,524.

By the 2d section of the act of April 5, 1866 (chap. 24, 14 Stat. at L. 13, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3651), Congress substantially re-enacted the 3d section of the act of 1825, changing, however, its phraseology so as to cause its provisions to apply not only, as did the act of 1825, to a place ceded to the United States, but to "any place which has been or shall hereafter be ceded." As thus adopted, the act passed into the Revised Statutes as § 5391 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3651), and continued in force until the passage of the act of 1898, which, it will be at once observed, makes no substantial change concerning the fundamental scope and purpose of the prior statute, since it simply enlarged the extent of its operation by causing the statute not only to embrace reservations which had been ceded to the United States, but those which had been carved out of the public domain.

If, then, the purpose and intent which led to the enactment of the act of 1825 can be discovered and made plain, it must clearly result, as that act was but the precursor of the act of 1898, that the light generated by the original intent and purpose will afford an efficacious means for discerning 12] *the intent and purpose of the act of 1898. The basis of the 3d section of the act of 1825 was the 11th section of a bill drawn by Mr. Justice Story, and of such 11th section its author said (Life of Justice Story, Boston, 1851, vol. 1, p. 293):

"This is the most important section of the whole bill. The criminal Code of the United States is singularly defective and inefficient . . . Few, very few, of the practical crimes (if I may so say) are now punishable by statutes, and if the courts have no general common-law jurisdiction (which is a vexed question), they are wholly dispunishable. The state courts have no jurisdiction of crimes committed on the high seas, or in places ceded to the United States. Rapes, arsons, batteries, and a host of other crimes may in these places be now committed with impunity. Suppose a conspiracy to commit treason in any of these places, by civil persons, how can the crime be punished? These are cases where the United States have an exclusive local jurisdiction. And can it be less fit that the government should have power to protect itself in all other places where it exercises a legitimate authority? That Congress has power to provide for all crimes against the United States is incontestable."

It is certain that the fundamental purpose thus contemplated by Mr. Justice Story was not overlooked or intended to be departed from by the writer of the act of 1825. There can be no doubt on this subject, in view of the fact that Mr. Webster, the author of that act, in referring to the 3d section of the bill by him drafted and reported to Congress (which section, as we have said, was based upon the 11th section of the bill drawn by Mr. Justice Story), said:

"'As to the 3d section, it must be obvious that, where the jurisdiction of a small place, containing only a few hundreds of people (a navy yard, for instance), was ceded to the United States, some provision was required *for the punishment of of- [13 fenses; and as, from the use to which the place was to be put, some crimes were likely to be more frequently committed than others, the committee had thought it sufficient to provide for these, and then to leave the residue to be punished by the laws of the state in which the yard, etc., might be. He was persuaded that the people would not view it as any hardship that the great class of minor offenses should continue to be punished in the same manner as they had been before the cession.' (Id. 338.)"

The demonstration of the purpose and scope of the act of 1825 is, if possible, made clearer by an amendment to which the act was subjected before it reached its final legislative form. As originally reported, the 4th section provided for the punishment of certain designated crimes by the law of the United States when committed "upon the sea, or in any arm of the sea, or in any river, haven, creek, basin, or bay within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States." But this provision was qualified in the passage of the bill, by the adoption of an amendment which added the words, "and out of the jurisdiction of any particular state." This amendment, as finally adopted, was the result in a somewhat modified form of a prior amendment offered by Mr. Wickliffe of Kentucky. Its meaning is not left to doubt, since Mr. Wickliffe, in urging the adoption of the amendment, expressly stated that it was "intended to prevent collisions between the authority of the general and state governments. . . . He conceived the state governments to be entirely competent to inquire into and punish crimes committed within their own jurisdiction, and that, as there was no necessity, there would be no advantage, in giving the United States concurrent power to do the same." Register of Debates in Congress, Gales & Seaton, 1824–1825, vol. 1, p. 154; Id. pp. 157, 165–166, 166–167, 168, 335, 335h, 338.

*Having fixed the meaning of the act [14 of 1898, and, as heretofore stated, there being no law of the United States specifically punishing the offense of criminal libel when committed on a reservation, etc., of the United States, it remains only to determine whether, applying the law of the state of New York, in accordance with the act of 1898, there was power in the grand jury to present the indictment here under consideration, or authority in the courts of the United States to entertain jurisdiction thereof as charging a substantive and distinct offense under the laws of the United States. That is to say, was the indictment found below consistent with the application of the state law in accordance with the provisions of the act of 1898?

The provisions of the Penal Code of New York on the subject of criminal libel at the date mentioned were as follows (Laws New York, 1881, vol. 3, chap. 8):

"Section 243. A person who publishes a libel is guilty of a misdemeanor.

"Section 245. To sustain a charge of publishing a libel, it is not necessary that the matter complained of should have been seen by another. It is enough that the defendant knowingly displayed it, or parted with its immediate custody, under circumstances which exposed it to be seen or understood by another person than himself."

Sections 249 and 250, in substance, provided that where a person libeled is a resident of the state, the prosecution shall be either in the county of such residence, or the county where the paper is published; and that where the person libeled is a nonresident, the prosecution shall be in the county in which the paper, on its face, purports to be published, or, if it does not so indicate, in any county in which it was circulated.

"Section 251. A person cannot be indicted or tried for the publication of the same libel, against the same person, in more than one county."

15] *Section 138 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Laws of New York, 1881, vol. 2, p. 43) contains similar provisions as to the place for the prosecution of a libel, and the immunity from liability to prosecution in more than one county. It was further provided:

"Section 139. When an act charged as a crime is within the jurisdiction of another state, territory, or county, as well as within the jurisdiction of this state, a conviction or acquittal thereof in the former is a bar to a prosecution or indictment therefor in this state.

"Section 140. When a crime is within the jurisdiction of two or more counties of this state, a conviction or acquittal thereof in one county is a bar to a prosecution or indictment thereof in another."

In view of the unity between the act of composing and the primary publication of a newspaper containing a libelous article within the state of New York, and of subsequent publications or repetitions thereof by the publisher of the newspaper which are clearly the resultant of the provisions of the laws of New York above quoted and referred to, two propositions are, we think, plainly established: First, that adequate means were afforded for punishing the circulation of the libel on a United States reservation by the state law and in the state courts, without the necessity of resorting to the courts of the United States for redress. Second, that resort could not be had to the courts of the United States to punish the act of publishing a newspaper libel by circulating a copy of the newspaper on the reservation, upon the theory that such publication was an independent offense, separate and distinct from the primary printing and publishing of the libelous article within the state of New York, without disregarding the laws of that state and frustrating the plain purpose of such law, which was that there should be but a single prosecution and conviction.

These propositions being true, it follows in the light *of the construction [16 which we have given the act of 1898, and the court below was right in quashing the indictment as not authorized by that act. No other conclusion we think was possible. As the court could not have sustained the indictment without giving to the statute a meaning directly conflicting with the construction which we have affixed to it. In other words, the court could not have upheld the indictment without deciding that because the statute provided that acts when committed on United States reservations, which were not expressly made criminal by a law of the United States, might be prosecuted and punished in accordance with the state law, therefore a prosecution was authorized which was inconsistent with that law, and in disregard thereof. And, further, albeit that Congress, having regard for the autonomy of the states, had deemed it best not to treat reservations within states as foreign to the states for the purpose of punishing crime unless expressly provided to the contrary, nevertheless the legislation enacted by Congress for this purpose had destroyed the end contemplated, since that legislation, when rightly construed, while applying the state legislation to crimes committed on a reservation as if the territory was not foreign, but domestic, at the same time exacted that the state law when thus applied should be enforced as if the territory was in no respects for the purpose domestic, but, on the contrary, was wholly foreign. The contradiction and confusion to which the contention thus reduces itself is too apparent to require anything but statement. Indeed, we think the misconception just pointed out lies at the basis of all the propositions so ably pressed at bar to secure a reversal, since they all depend upon a construction of the act of 1898 which we hold to be wrong. Great, therefore, as might otherwise be their potency, with the foundation gone upon which they rest, all come to this: that the statute sanctions that which it by necessary implication prohibits, and, moreover, destroys the great 17] public *purpose which its adoption was intended to foster and protect.

The ruling which we now make does not, of course, extend to a subject which is not before us. It follows, therefore, that we do not now intimate that the rule which in this case has controlled our decision would be applicable to a case where an indictment was found in a court of the United States for a crime which was wholly committed on a reservation, disconnected with acts committed within the jurisdiction of the state, and where the prosecution for such crime in the courts of the United States, instead of being in conflict with the applicable state law, was in all respects in harmony therewith.

Affirmed.

ATLANTIC, GULF, & PACIFIC COMPANY, Appt. and Plff. in Err.,
v.
GOVERNMENT OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 17-23.)

Public contracts — damage to incompleted structure — who liable.

The contractor for a public work must bear the loss occasioned during a typhoon by the pressure of the rock revetment and the action of wind and waves, although the storm would have done no damage had not the structure been previously weakened by a displacement of bulkhead and revetment by pressure from the inside fill, where the extent of the government's liability under the contract was expressly restricted to paying for the repair of any break caused by pressure resulting from the mud fill, and the contractor's responsibility expressly covered damage to the bulkhead or revetment arising from wave action, or from pressure of the revetment against the timber structure.

[For other cases, see Contracts, VIII.; United States, VI., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 64.]

Argued December 6, 1910. Decided December 19, 1910.

APPEAL from and IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Court of First Instance of the City of Manila, sustaining a demurrer to and dismissing the complaint in an action to recover from the government of the Philippine Islands the cost of repairing the damage to an incompleted public work. Affirmed.

See same case below, 10 Philippine, 166.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. James Russell Soley argued the cause, and, with Mr. Howard C. Dickinson, filed a brief for appellant and plaintiff in error:

The break of May 1, 1906, due to the pressure of the fill upon the inclosing bulkhead, was the proximate cause of the subsequent injury to the work, for the repair of which compensation is demanded.

Milwaukee & St. P. R. Co. v. Kellogg, 94 U. S. 469, 474, 476, 24 L. ed. 256, 258, 259; Ætna F. Ins. Co. v. Boon, 95 U. S. 117, 130, 24 L. ed. 395, 398; The G. R. Booth, 171 U. S. 450, 460, 43 L. ed. 234, 240, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 9.

Judicial notice will extend to well-known climatic conditions that may exist in certain localities, that are known by virtue of the fact that they are part of the general history of the land.

McGhee Irrigating Ditch Co. v. Hudson, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 21 S. W. 175.

Even such a matter as the limitations in reference to weather suitable for yachting has been made the subject of judicial notice by this court.

The Conqueror, 166 U. S. 110, 134, 41 L. ed. 937, 947, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510.

The interval of a fortnight or so between the proximate efficient cause and the ultimate result is of no importance.

Ætna F. Ins. Co. v. Boon, 95 U. S. 117, 130, 24 L. ed. 395, 398.

Assistant Attorney General Denison argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee and defendant in error:

The division of liability had no relation to any delinquency under the contract, nor to any negligence; and therefore the responsibility for remote consequences as in such delinquencies does not here exist, but only for the particular consequences contracted against, as in cases of insurance.

Holmes, Common Law, pp. 77, 302, 303; Phillips, Ins. p. 1134.

When, at any point in the chain of cause and effect, we reach a consequence actually foreseen and provided for by the parties before the event, the rule of proximate cause must cease, and we are thrown on the agreement of the parties.

Howard F. Ins. Co. v. Norwich & N. Y. Transp. Co. 12 Wall. 194, 20 L. ed. 378; Fuller v. Detroit F. & M. Ins. Co. 1 L.R.A. 801, 36 Fed. 470; Beakes v. Phœnix Ins. Co. 143 N. Y. 402, 26 L.R.A. 267, 38 N. E. 453; Warmcastle v. Scottish Union & Nat.

NOTE.—As to who must bear loss caused by destruction of building or other structure in process of erection—see note to Milske v. Steiner Mantel Co. 5 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1105.

Ins. Co. 201 Pa. 302, 50 Atl. 941; Gilson v. Delaware & H. Canal Co. 36 Am. St. Rep. 807, note; General Mut. Ins. Co. v. Sherwood, 14 How. 351, 14 L. ed. 452, 15 Harvard L. Rev. 541; Dudgeon v. Pembroke, L. R. 2 App. Cas. 297, 46 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 409, 36 L. T. N. S. 382, 25 Week. Rep. 499, 3 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 393, 14 Eng. Rul. Cas. 105, L. R. 9 Q. B. 585, 43 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 220, 31 L. T. N. S. 31, 22 Week. Rep. 914; Wilson v. The Xantho, L. R. 12 App. Cas. 514, 56 L. J. Prob. N. S. 116, 57 L. T. N. S. 701, 36 Week. Rep. 353, 6 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 207, 24 Eng. Rul. Cas. 372; Orient Mut. Ins. Co. v. Adams, 123 U. S. 67, 31 L. ed. 63, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 68; Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. (The Montana) 129 U. S. 397, 438, 32 L. ed. 788, 791, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 469; Northwest Transp. Co. v. Boston M. Ins. Co. 41 Fed. 800; 2 Arnould, Marine Ins. 6th ed. pp. 737, 753; Hildyard, Marine Ins. p. 269; Phillips, Ins §§ 1136, 1137.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action upon a contract for an extension to the Luneta of the city of Manila. Both courts below decided for the government, the defendant, upon demurrer to the complaint. Abridged, the allegations are these: A contract for the work was made on July 24, 1905. On May 1, 1906, about 200 feet of bulkhead and rock revetment were displaced by pressure from the inside fill and moved about 20 feet into the bay of Manila, so that a large quantity of the fill that had been pumped behind the bulkhead escaped into the bay. On May 18, before the break could be repaired, a severe typhoon occurred, and the bulkhead and rock revetment, being without the support of the inside fill, were destroyed for about 1800 feet by the pressure of the rock revetment and the wind and waves from the outside, and a large additional quantity of the inside fill escaped. The question is which party must bear the last-mentioned loss. If the first break had not happened, no damage would have been done by the typhoon. The plaintiff sets forth the cost of repairing the damages of May 18, and seeks to recover it in this suit.

The specifications of the contract contain the following:

"5. The contractor will be responsible for damages to the bulkhead and revetment, arising from wave action or from pressure of the revetment against the timber structure; but if a break is caused by pressure 21] resulting from *the mud fill, the repairs to the structure will be paid for by the government at the prices specified in the contract; provided that the specifications have been fully complied with."

"12. . . . All losses of dredged material from the fills, excepting those due to failure of the bulkheads from pressure of the mud fill, as stated in article 5, will be measured as carefully as conditions will permit, and the computed amounts deducted from the statement for the final payment."

On May 24 a supplemental contract was signed. It recited that the repairs made necessary by the break of May 1 ought to be paid for by the government; that the original project was modified so as to fill the space that had given way with rock, with clay etc., for the interstices; and that the change would either increase or diminish the cost. It then agreed that the plaintiff should make the repairs, and the government would pay the actual and reasonable cost, with certain qualifications, plus 15 per centum, which last was to cover all other items, including profit. This referred to the first damage only. On the next day, May 25, the government director telegraphed to Commissioner Forbes: "for most of typhoon damage I hold contractor responsible; they claim government responsible for all, on account delay repairing first break, but wish to make repairs in manner authorized for first break, leaving settlement of liability to be determined later. Repairs should be made at once, but in view of contract requirement . . . do not see how contractors can be authorized proceed before determination of liability." The answer approved "authorizing contractors to proceed immediately to make repairs on lines indicated, with the understanding that all rights reserved in regard to adjudication of liabilities." These telegrams were communicated to the plaintiff, and it was authorized to proceed to make repairs in the manner outlined in the agreement *of May 24. It did so, and the [22 government now refuses to pay.

It will be understood that this case is in no way concerned with the possible difference in cost between the mode of repair adopted and that which might have been followed under the original contract. The question here is which party is responsible for the repairs, assuming no such difference to exist. We need not consider whether the effect of all that we have recited was or was not to substitute the new mode and new cost for the old, as that which the parties left at risk when they agreed that the plaintiffs should go on and do the work. If the plaintiff should have any claim for the excess alone, if any, over the cost that would have been incurred under the original plan, it is not suing for it here.

Both sides found their case on the division of losses made by the specification quoted. On the one hand, the accident would not have happened but for the pressure from the mud fill; on the other, the more immediate cause was wave action and the pressure of the revetment against the timber structure, the effects of which the contractor was to bear. We agree with the court below that the contractor must bear the loss. The question is not whether the responsibility of the government might not have extended to the later consequences had it originally been a wrongdoer, and had it been sued in tort. The question is to what extent did the government assume a risk which, but for the contract, would not have fallen upon it at all. The contract qualified the relation only cautiously and in part. If the break was caused by pressure from the mud fill, the government agreed to pay for repairs to the structure. That was all.

But for the addition in 12, quoted above, it might be doubted whether "structure" meant anything but the bulkhead and revetment. But article 12 extends the government liability to loss of dredged ma-
23] terials due to *such a break. It is suggested that the reason for the government undertaking was that the plan was made by the government engineers. It may have been. But the plaintiff was content to work upon that plan; it, not the government, was doing the work, and it took the risk so far as the contract did not make a change. The government could not be charged by it with negligence or with causing the first break. That was only something for repairing which the government had promised to pay. Whatever the government had not promised to pay for, the contractor had to do, in order to offer the completed work which it had agreed to furnish. The case is stronger for the government than those upon policies of insurance, where courts refuse to look behind the immediate cause to remoter negligence of the insured. General Mut. Ins. Co. v. Sherwood, 14 How. 352, 366, 14 L. ed. 452, 458; Orient Mut. Ins. Co. v. Adams, 123 U. S. 67, 31 L. ed. 63, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 68; Dudgeon v. Pembroke, L. R. 2 App. Cas. 284, 295, 14 Eng. Rul. Cas. 105. Here, as we have said, the plaintiff cannot charge the defendant with negligence; the immediate event was one of which the plaintiff took the risk; on general principles of contract it took that risk unless it was agreed otherwise, and it does not matter to the result whether we say that we cannot look farther back than the immediate cause, or that the undertaking of the government did not extend to ulterior consequences, not specified, of the break for repairing which it undertook to pay, but which it did not cause.

Judgment affirmed.

---

*TITLE GUARANTY & TRUST COM- [24
PANY OF SCRANTON, PENNSYLVANIA, Plff. in Err.,

v.

CRANE COMPANY, F. R. Bates and T. S. Clark, Copartners as Bates & Clark Company, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 24–35.)

Bonds — of public contractor — liability for labor and material.

1. A vessel building for the United States, the title to which passes to the government as fast as paid for, is a "public work" within the meaning of the act of August 13, 1894 (28 Stat. at L. 278, chap. 280, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2523), as amended by the act of February 24, 1905 (33 Stat. at L. 811, chap. 778, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 948), requiring a bond from the contractor for the protection of persons furnishing labor or materials for the construction of public works.

Parties — in suit on bond of public contractor — action by laborers or materialmen.

2. The objection that the United States should have been made a party cannot avail to defeat the action on the bond of a contractor for a public work, given conformably to the act of August 13, 1894, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, for the protection of persons furnishing labor and materials, where the suit was begun in the name of the United States, to the real plaintiff's use.

[For other cases, see Parties, 62–66, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Bonds — of public contractor — action by laborers or materialmen — affidavit and copy of bond.

3. The failure of plaintiff, in an action on the bond of a contractor for a public work, given conformably to the act of August 13, 1894, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, for the protection of laborers or materialmen, to apply, as provided in the statute, for a copy of the bond, and furnish an affidavit that labor or materials have been supplied by him for the prosecution of the work, is not fatal to the suit, where no action has been brought by the United States for more than six months from the completion of the work,

---

Note.—On the right of subcontractor, materialman, or laborer to maintain action on contractor's bond to owner—see note to Knight & J. Co. v. Castle, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 573.

On the assignment of claims against the United States and of government contracts —see note to Greenville Sav. Bank v. Lawrence, 22 C. C. A. 650.

and affidavits are made and copies filed by interveners, since, under the circumstances, the omission is only a formal defect.

Bonds — of public contractor — claims for labor or materials.

4. Claims for cartage and towage to the place where a vessel is building for the United States, and for patterns furnished to the molding department of the builder, are within the obligation of the latter's bond, given conformably to the act of August 13, 1894, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, for the protection of laborers and materialmen.

Bonds — consideration — seal.

5. Want of consideration cannot be urged to defeat an action on the bond of a public contractor, given conformably to the act of August 13, 1894, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, for the protection of laborers and materialmen, because it was not executed until ten days after the contract was made,—especially where the bond was under seal.

[For other cases, see Bonds, 21–23, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Assignment — claims against public contractor.

6. Claims for labor and materials against a contractor for a public work may be assigned without losing the protection of the bond given conformably to the act of August 13, 1894, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, for the benefit of laborers and materialmen.

[For other cases, see Assignment, I., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Costs — docket fee — consolidated action.

7. Each successful claimant in an action on the bond of a public contractor, given conformably to the act of August 13, 1894, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, for the protection of laborers and materialmen, may be allowed the docket fee authorized by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 824, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 632, since the claims are several, and represent distinct causes of action in different parties, although consolidated in a single suit.

[No. 67.]

Argued and submitted December 6 and 7, 1910. Decided December 19, 1910.

IN ERROR to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed, with slight modification, a judgment of the Circuit Court for the Western District of Washington in favor of plaintiffs in a suit by laborers and materialmen upon the bond of a contractor for a public work. Affirmed.

See same case below, 89 C. C. A. 618, 163 Fed. 168.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. James B. Murphy argued the cause, and, with Messrs. C. H. Winders and M. M. Richardson, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The unquestioned purpose of Congress was to protect, first, the United States, and, second, to protect laborers and materialmen who had no right of lien by reason of the building or work being upon the property of, or belonging to, the sovereign, by giving them a right of action on such bond; the object of Congress as to materialmen and laborers, as uniformly held by the courts, being to substitute the bond for the building or public work, thus affording to them the same rights as against the bond as they were given by the statutes of the several states under the general mechanic lien laws.

United States use of Hill v. American Surety Co. 200 U. S. 197, 50 L. ed. 437, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; United States Fidelity & G. Co. v. Golden Pressed & Fire Brick Co. (United States Fidelity & G. Co. v. United States) 191 U. S. 416, 48 L. ed. 242, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; United States use of Sica v. Kimpland, 93 Fed. 403; American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co. 110 Fed. 717; United States use of Vermont Marble Co. v. Burgdorf, 13 App. D. C. 506; United States use of Standard Oil Co. v. City Trust, S. D. & Secur. Co. 21 App. D. C. 369; 23 Ops. Atty. Gen. 174.

Title to the vessel under the contract did not pass to the government until its completion, delivery, and acceptance.

Clarkson v. Stevens, 106 U. S. 505, 27 L. ed. 139, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 200; The John B. Ketcham, 2d, 38 C. C. A. 518, 97 Fed. 872; Benjamin, Sales, 7th ed. p. 298; United States v. Ollinger, 55 Fed. 959; Yukon River S. B. Co. v. Gratto, 136 Cal. 538, 69 Pac. 252; Williams v. Jackman, 16 Gray, 514; Green v. Hall, 1 Houst. (Del.) 506; West Jersey R. Co. v. Trenton Car Works Co. 32 N. J. L. 517; The Etna v. Treat, 15 Ohio, 585; Andrews v. Durant, 11 N. Y. 35, 62 Am. Dec. 55; Hawes v. Wm. R. Trigg Co. 110 Va. 165, 65 S. E. 538.

Defendants in error having a right of lien, being fully protected thereby, are wholly without the scope and intent of the act, outside of any question of estoppel.

United States use of Sabine & E. T. R. Co. v. Hyatt, 34 C. C. A. 445, 63 U. S. App. 767, 92 Fed. 442; American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co. 110 Fed. 717; United States use of Thomas Laughlin Co. v. Morgan, 111 Fed. 474; Thomas Laughlin Co. v. American Surety Co. 51 C. C. A. 247, 114 Fed. 627.

The record shows that the Puget Sound Engine Works, Inc., prior to the institution of this action, was adjudged a bankrupt. Under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 3466, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1091, p. 2314, claims due the United States in such cases are given preference over all other claims.

Re Stoever, 127 Fed. 394; Lewis v. United States, 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. ed. 513; Re Huddell, 47 Fed. 206; United States v. Barnes, 31 Fed. 705; Re Strassburger, 4 Woods, 558, Fed. Cas. No. 13,526; Bayne v. United States, 93 U. S. 643, 23 L. ed. 998; State v. Foster, 29 L.R.A. 226, note; United States v. McGee, 171 Fed. 209; Title Guaranty & S. Co. v. Guarantee Title & T. Co. 98 C. C. A. 603, 174 Fed. 385.

And the mere fact that the government might hold collateral or security does not require it to resort thereto before enforcing its direct remedy.

Re Stoever, 127 Fed. 396; Chemical Nat. Bank v. Armstrong, 28 L.R.A. 231, 8 C. C. A. 155, 16 U. S. App. 465, 59 Fed. 375; Lewis v. United States, 92 U. S. 618, 23 L. ed. 513; Merrill v. National Bank, 173 U. S. 140, 43 L. ed. 643, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 360; Childs v. N. B. Carlstein Co. 76 Fed. 86; Doe v. Northwestern Coal & Transp. Co. 78 Fed. 62; Wheeler v. Walton & W. Co. 72 Fed. 967; Levy v. Chicago Nat. Bank, 158 Ill. 88, 30 L.R.A. 380, 42 N. E. 131; Story, Eq. Jur. § 614.

Further, if the surety pays the debt of the government, it is entitled to be subrogated to its preference right.

Beaston v. Farmers' Bank, 12 Pet. 102, 9 L. ed. 1017; Hunter v. United States, 5 Pet. 173, 8 L. ed. 86; Field v. United States, 9 Pet. 182, 9 L. ed. 94; Re Huddell, 47 Fed. 206; United States v. Barnes, 31 Fed. 705; Re Kirkland, 2 Hughes, 208, Fed. Cas. No. 7,843; Kerr v. Hamilton, 1 Cranch, C. C. 546, Fed. Cas. No. 7,731; The M. M. Caleb, 9 Ben. 159, Fed. Cas. No. 9,682; Wilkinson v. Babbitt, 4 Dill. 207, Fed. Cas. No. 17,668.

The term "public works" includes only fixed works, and does not include a seagoing vessel.

Ellis v. Grand Rapids, 123 Mich. 567, 82 N. W. 244; Winters v. Duluth, 82 Minn. 130, 84 N. W. 788; Penn Iron Co. v. William R. Trigg Co. 106 Va. 557, 56 S. E. 329; 23 Ops. Atty. Gen. 174; 20 Ops. Atty. Gen. 454; 26 Ops. Atty. Gen. 30, 36; Hawes v. Wm. R. Trigg Co. 110 Va. 165, 65 S. E. 538; 23 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. p. 459; United States v. Ollinger, 55 Fed. 959.

If relator and intervener are without the terms of the statute, the circuit court had no jurisdiction.

North American Transp. & T. Co. v. Morrison, 178 U. S. 262, 44 L. ed. 1061, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 869.

But outside of the question of jurisdiction, as upon a common-law obligation, relator and interveners could not maintain this action.

Constable v. National S. S. Co. 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. ed. 903, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1062; Washington use of M'Cue v. Young, 10 Wheat. 406, 6 L. ed. 352; Sayward v. Dexter, H. & Co. 19 C. C. A. 176, 44 U. S. App. 376, 72 Fed. 758; Hennessy v. Bond, 23 C. C. A. 203, 48 U. S. App. 89, 77 Fed. 403; Vrooman v. Turner, 69 N. Y. 280, 25 Am. Rep. 195; Armour & Co. v. Western Constr. Co. 36 Wash. 529, 78 Pac. 1106; Northampton v. Elwell, 4 Gray, 81; Penn Iron Co. v. William R. Trigg Co. supra.

Further, the agreement of appellant and plaintiff in error was an agreement under seal; and it is well settled that no one can maintain an action at law upon such a contract who is not a party thereto.

Willard v. Wood, 135 U. S. 309, 34 L. ed. 210, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 831; Crowell v. Currier, 27 N. J. Eq. 152; Davis v. Clinton Waterworks Co. 54 Iowa, 60, 37 Am. Rep. 185, 6 N. W. 126; Anderson v. Fitzgerald, 21 Fed. 294; Carmichael v. Moore, 88 N. C. 29; Com. use of Kennet v. Fugate, 1 T. M. Mon. 1; Wright v. Terry, 23 Fla. 160, 2 So. 6; Woodland v. Newhall, 31 Fed. 434; Chung Kee v. Davidson, 73 Cal. 522, 15 Pac. 100; Montgomery v. Rief, 15 Utah, 495, 50 Pac. 623; Parker v. Jeffery, 26 Or. 186, 37 Pac. 712; Com. v. Hatch, 5 Mass. 191; Vrooman v. Turner, 69 N. Y. 280, 25 Am. Rep. 195; Jefferson v. Asch, 53 Minn. 446, 25 L.R.A. 257, 39 Am. St. Rep. 618, 55 N. W. 604; Parlin v. Hall, 2 N. D. 473, 52 N. W. 405; Burton v. Larkin, 36 Kan. 246, 59 Am. Rep. 541, 13 Pac. 398; Austin v. Seligman, 21 Blatchf. 506, 18 Fed. 519; State v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 125 Mo. 617, 28 S. W. 1074; Cragin v. Lovell, 109 U. S. 194, 27 L. ed. 903, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Keller v. Ashford, 133 U. S. 610, 33 L. ed. 667, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 494.

Before any person has a cause of action upon such a bond as the one in question, such party must apply by affidavit to the proper authorities and procure a certified copy of the bond.

United States use of Hill v. American Surety Co. 200 U. S. 197, 50 L. ed. 437, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168.

A railway and transportation company or carrier has no right of action on such bond for the carriage of goods or material which enter into the work.

United States use of Sabine & E. T. R. Co. v. Hyatt, 34 C. C. A. 445, 63 U. S. App. 767, 92 Fed. 442; United States ex rel. McAllister v. Fidelity & D. Co. 86 App. Div. 475, 83 N. Y. Supp. 752; Thomas Laughlin Co. v. American Surety Co. 51 C. C. A. 247, 114 Fed. 627; United States use of Thomas Laughlin Co. v. Morgan, 111 Fed. 474; American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co. 110 Fed. 717.

The supreme court of the state of Washington has also held that under the mechanics' lien law of that state one is given no lien thereunder for mere cartage charges.

Ryan v. Guilfoil, 13 Wash. 373, 43 Pac. 351; Webster v. Real Estate Improv. Co. 140 Mass. 526, 6 N. E. 71; Wilson v. Nugent, 125 Cal. 280, 57 Pac. 1008.

Personal property which may be acquired for use in the construction of a public building or the carrying on of some public work, which does not actually enter into such work, but which may be used for other purposes, is not such material as would give the furnisher thereof a right of action on the bond.

United States use of Thomas Laughlin Co. v. Morgan, 111 Fed. 474; United States use of Rockland Lake Trap Rock Co. v. Conkling, 68 C. C. A. 20, 135 Fed. 508.

The claims of Eyres Transfer Company and the Chesley Tow Boat Company for cartage and towage, and the claims of Chas. H. Allmond & Company and the Puget Sound Pattern Works for drawings and patterns, are not claims for material or for labor entering into and becoming a part of the public work, and are not such claims as are contemplated by the statute.

United States use of Standard Oil Co. v. City Trust, S. D. & Secur. Co. 21 App. D. C. 369; United States use of Chapman v. City Trust, S. D. & Surety Co. 23 App. D. C. 153; Wells v. Mehl, 25 Kan. 205; Basshor v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 65 Md. 99, 3 Atl. 285; United States use of Sica v. Kimpland, 93 Fed. 403; United States v. Simon, 38 C. C. A. 659, 98 Fed. 73; Central Trust Co. v. Texas & St. L. R. Co. 27 Fed. 178.

An action upon a contractor's bond by a materialman or laborer is purely statutory, and is given for the benefit of the individual laborer and materialman, and as such is personal to such laborer or materialman. This is true, as we understand the rule, in cases in which rights are purely statutory. This is the construction uniformly given to the mechanics' lien statutes of the several states.

20 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. p. 471; 1 Jones, Liens, §§ 982, 983, 990; Dexter, H. & Co. v. Sparkman, 2 Wash. 165, 25 Pac. 1070.

The giving of the bond was without consideration.

Brandt, Suretyship & Guaranty, 3d ed. § 764; Lafayette Mut. Bldg. Asso. v. Kleinhoffer, 40 Mo. App. 388; Ring v. Kelly, 10 Mo. App. 411.

Outside of any question as to the correct construction of the Federal statute requiring the defeated party to pay a docket fee, we do not believe it to be a correct construction of this act to tax against a bonding company that cannot, prior to the expiration of one year, satisfy these claims, an attorneys' fee to each individual laborer and materialman. Their several appearances in the circuit court are not brought about by any fault or default on the part of the surety.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Texas & P. R. Co. 38 Fed. 775; Central Trust Co. v. Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co. 32 Fed. 684.

The docket fee allowed is the individual property of the attorney or solicitor, and such attorney, although he may appear for a number of intervening claimants, is certainly, under the most broad construction, entitled to have no other fees allowed and taxed than one docket fee.

Barron v. The Mt. Eden, 87 Fed. 483.

Mr. Ira Bronson submitted the cause for defendants in error except the Crane Company:

A liberal construction of the act and the amended act by the courts shows that it is broader than the mechanics' lien statutes of the various states.

United States use of Hill v. American Surety Co. 200 U. S. 197, 50 L. ed. 437, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; United States use of Standard Furniture Co. v. Ætna Indemnity Co. 40 Wash. 87, 82 Pac. 171; United States use of Anniston Pipe & Foundry Co. v. National Surety Co. 34 C. C. A. 526, 92 Fed. 551.

The definitions of the words "public works," as given in the Century Dictionary and the American & English Encyclopedia of Law, second edition, are narrow and not comprehensive.

United States use of Tidewater Steel Co. v. Perth Amboy Shipbuilding & Engineering Co. 137 Fed. 689.

Some of the public works in which the bond has been required are the following: Wing dams and shore protections (United States v. Farley, 91 Fed. 474); a dry dock to be located on the water line of the Brooklyn Navy Yard (United States v. Freel, 92 Fed. 299); a jetty (United States use of Sabine & E. T. R. Co. v. Hyatt, 34 C. C. A. 445, 63 U. S. App. 767, 92 Fed. 442); a wharf and pier (United States use of Sica v. Kimpland, 93 Fed. 403); improvements on lock in river (United States use of Salem-Bedford Stone Co. v. Sheridan, 19 Fed. 236); erection of certain guns at Fisher's Island by Pneumatic Torpedo Co. (United States use of Flaherty v. American Surety Co. 127 Fed. 490); building gun emplacements and a wharf (United States use of Thomas Laughlin Co. v. Morgan, 111 Fed. 476).

The removal of obstructions to navigation in the rivers and harbors of the country is a part of the public work of the government.

United States v. Jefferson, 60 Fed. 736.

Under the contract of the Puget Sound Engine Works, laborers and materialmen are not protected by state lien laws.

Clarkson v. Stevens, 106 U. S. 505, 27 L. ed. 139, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 200; The John B. Ketcham 2d, 38 C. C. A. 518, 97 Fed. 873; The Poconoket, 67 Fed. 262, 17 C. C. A. 309, 28 U. S. App. 600, 70 Fed. 640, 168 U. S. 707, 42 L. ed. 1214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 939.

The contract was within the scope of the act and within its express terms. The materials and labor required were within the terms of the contract. Plaintiff in error entered into the engagement under the statute, and is now estoped to deny liability.

United States use of Standard Furniture Co. v. Ætna Indemnity Co. 40 Wash. 87, 82 Pac. 171.

Is an application by affidavit to the Department under whose direction the work is performed a condition precedent to bringing suit?

United States v. Hegeman, 21 Pa. Super. Ct. 459.

Claims of the Eyres Transfer Company are within the purview of the contract and bond.

American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co. 110 Fed. 717.

The claims of laborers and materialmen are assignable under the act, and the assignment does not defeat a recovery.

United States use of Fidelity Nat. Bank v. Rundle, 40 C. C. A. 450, 100 Fed. 400.

The taxation of costs was proper.

The Oregon, 68 C. C. 603, 133 Fed. 609.

31] *Mr. Justice Holmes, delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action brought under the act of August 13, 1894, chap. 280, 28 Stat. at L. 278, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2523, as amended by the act of February 24, 1905, chap. 778, 33 Stat. at L. 811, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 948, upon a bond given to the United States, as required by that act. The contract to secure which the bond was given was a contract by the Puget Sound Engine Works to build and deliver a single screw wooden steamer for the United States, and the main question in the case is whether the statute applies to a contract for such a chattel. If not, parties like the plaintiffs, who furnished labor or materials for the work, have no standing to maintain the suit. We proceed, as soon as may be, to dispose of that question, leaving details and minor objections to be taken up later in turn. It was raised by demurrer to the declaration, and subsequently by what was entitled an affirmative defense pleaded by the surety and a demurrer by the plaintiffs. The decision was for the plaintiffs, against the surety, in the circuit court of appeals. 89 C. C. A. 618, 163 Fed. 168.

The amended statute requires any person "entering into a formal contract with the United States for the construction of any public building, or the prosecution and completion of any public work, or for repairs upon any public building or public work, . . . to execute the usual penal bond . . . with the additional obligation that such contractor or contractors shall promptly make payments to all persons supplying him or them with labor and materials in the prosecution of the work." It gives any person who has furnished labor or materials used in the construction or repair of any public work, which have not been paid for, the right to intervene in a suit upon the bond. In short, besides securing the United States, the act is intended to protect persons furnishing materials or labor "for the construction of public works," as the title *declares. The question [32 narrows itself accordingly to whether the steamer was a "public work" within the meaning of the words as used.

As a preliminary to the answer, it is relevant to mention that by article 3 of the contract, partial payments are provided for as the "labor and materials furnished" equal certain percentages of the total, and that by article 4 "the portion of the vessel completed and paid for under said method of partial payments shall become the property of the United States," although the contractor remains responsible for the care of the portion paid for, and by article 2 there is to be a final test of the vessel when completed. The vessel has been built and accepted, and is now in possession of the United States. Notwithstanding these facts, it was argued that the statute did not apply to the contract, because the laborers and materialmen had a lien by the state law; and that, even if the statute applied, they had lost their rights by not asserting them before the delivery of the vessel, as before that, it is said, the title did not pass to the United States. Among other things, this ended the right to subrogation that the surety might have claimed. But the very recent decision in United States v. Ansonia Brass & Copper Co. 218 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 1107, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 49 [Nov. 28, 1910], establishes that the title to the completed portion of the vessel passed, as provided in article 4, and that the laborers and materialmen could not have asserted the lien supposed to exist.

The case cited shows, therefore, that such claimants are within the policy of the statute. It also contains a strong intimation that they are within the meaning of its words. For it refers to the statute, and says that it was in recognition of the inability of such persons to take liens upon the public property of the United States that Congress passed the act, and adds that, in view of this purpose to provide protection for those who could not protect themselves, the statute has been given liberal construction 33] by this court. *See also United States use of Hill v. American Surety Co. 200 U. S. 197, 50 L. ed. 437, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168. The reference and comment when the attempt was made to enforce a lien under state laws would have had no relevance unless they had been intended to point out the true remedy available in such a case. The argument that the vessel was not a public work loses most of its force when it appears that the title was in the United States as soon as the first payment was made. Of course, public works usually are of a permanent nature, and that fact leads to a certain degree of association between the notion of permanence and the phrase. But the association is only empirical, not one of logic. Whether a work is public or not does not depend upon its being attached to the soil; if it belongs to the representative of the public, it is public, and we do not think that the arbitrary association that we have mentioned amounts to a coalescence of the more limited idea with speech so absolute that we are bound to read "any public work" as confined to work on land. It is not necessary to discuss in detail some opinions from the Attorney General's office in cases where the title to the vessel did not pass that looked rather in the opposite direction. It is enough to say that there has been no such clear and established construction as to cause us to yield our own view. On the other hand, the decision of some other courts has been in accord with the judgment below and with what we now decide. United States use of Tidewater Steel Co. v. Perth Amboy Shipbuilding & Engineering Co. 137 Fed. 689, 693; American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co. 110 Fed. 717, 719; United States use of Standard Furniture Co. v. Ætna Indemnity Co. 40 Wash. 87, 82 Pac. 171.

Another defense, set up in the same manner as the first, is that the United States should have been made a party; and, in connection with this, a further one, that the suit cannot be maintained unless the plaintiff has applied, as provided in the statute, for a copy of the bond, and furnished an affidavit that labor or materials have been 34] supplied *by him for the prosecution of the work. The latter is the more substantial, as, of course, the suit was begun in the name of the United States, to the real plaintiffs' use. But the objection is not serious in either form. No suit had been brought by the United States for more than six months from the completion of the work, affidavits were made and copies filed by interveners, and in the circumstances the omission was only a formal defect. The language of the statute that, after giving the affidavit, the party should be furnished with a certified copy of the contract and bond, "upon which he or they shall have a right of action," etc., may be read as meaning "upon which bond" as easily as "upon doing which," and hardly can be construed as making a condition precedent. The conditions are attached in the form of provisos by later words.

Next it is objected that certain claimants are not entitled to the benefit of the bond, either because they had a lien or because the service was too remote. Of the former class are claims for cartage and towage to the spot where the work was going on. We agree with Judge Putnam in American Surety Co. v. Lawrenceville Cement Co. 110 Fed. 717, that in these smaller matters the objection, if carried to an extreme, would defeat the purpose of the statute, that such liens ordinarily are not insisted upon, and that it would be unreasonable to let the statute 'interfere with the convenience of minor dealings in such methods as the usual practices establish.' Of the other class are the claims for patterns furnished to the molding department of the Puget Sound Engine Works. As was said by the judge below, those who furnish the patterns have as fair a claim to be protected as those who erect the scaffolding upon which the carpenters stand in doing their work upon the ship.

Next it is said that the bond was without consideration because the contract was made on February 17, and the bond not executed until February 27, ten days later. But *the transactions may be regarded as 35] simultaneous in a practical sense, and the bond being under seal, consideration is presumed.

The assignment of some of the claims did not affect the remedy. United States use of Fidelity Nat. Bank v. Rundle, 40 C. C. A. 450, 100 Fed. 400.

The allowance of a docket fee of $10 to each claimant appears to us to be correct. Rev. Stat. § 824, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 632. The claims are several and represent distinct causes of action in different parties, although consolidated in a single suit.

Judgment affirmed.

MOBILE, JACKSON, & KANSAS CITY RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
J. A. TURNIPSEED, Administrator, etc.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 35–44.)

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — classification of railway employees — police power.

1. The abrogation of the fellow-servant rule as to railway employees, made by Miss. Code 1892, § 3559, does not offend against the equal protection of the laws clause of the Federal Constitution because construed as applying to the foreman of a section crew charged with keeping the track in repair.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 286–291, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — due process of law — statute creating presumption of negligence.

2. Neither the equal protection of the laws nor due process of law is denied by Miss. Code 1906, § 1985, under which, in actions against railway companies for damage done to persons or property, proof of injury inflicted by the running of the locomotives or cars is made prima facie evidence of negligence.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 266–291, 774–778, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 59.]

Submitted November 30, 1910. Decided December 19, 1910.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Mississippi to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Newton County, in that state, in favor of plaintiff in an action to recover damages for a wrongful death. Affirmed.

See same case below, 91 Miss. 273, 124 Am. St. Rep. 679, 46 So. 360.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. James N. Flowers submitted the cause for plaintiff in error:

Since railroad companies have been put in a class by themselves for the purpose of this special legislation, because the business in which they are engaged is peculiarly hazardous, the reason for the classification must be constantly kept in mind. Employees cannot claim the benefit of this special legislation simply because they are employed by railroad companies. Where the reason fails, the classification must fail. The employees sought to be helped are such only as are in need of help. No employee can claim the benefit of the special enactment whose safety is not imperiled by the hazards peculiar to railroading.

Bradford Constr. Co. v. Heflin, 88 Miss. 314, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1040, 42 So. 174, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1077.

A statute similar to the Mississippi statute has been construed to protect those employees only "who are exposed to the peculiar danger attending the operation of railroads, or what are, for brevity, called 'railroad dangers.'"

Blomquist v. Great Northern R. Co. 65 Minn. 69, 67 N. W. 804.

The Blomquist Case was at the time considered a close or "border" case, and was permitted to pass because of the charge that the plaintiff had to do the work in great haste, in order to avoid danger to trains that were or might be approaching.

Jemming v. Great Northern R. Co. 96 Minn. 302, 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 702, 104 N. W. 1079; Anderson v. Great Northern R. Co. 74 Minn. 432, 77 N. W. 240.

The Mississippi statute is arbitrary class legislation.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

Mr. C. H. Alexander submitted the cause for defendant in error. Mr. Chalmers Alexander was on the brief:

The proper construction of state legislation being a question of local, and not of Federal, law, the decision of a state court thereon is not subject to review by the Federal Supreme Court, on writ of error to that court.

Great Western Teleg. Co. v. Purdy, 162 U. S. 329, 40 L. ed. 986, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 810; Lombard v. West Chicago Park, 181 U. S. 33, 45 L. ed. 731, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; Smiley v. Kansas, 196 U. S. 447, 49 L. ed. 546, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Gatewood v. North Carolina, 203 U. S. 531, 51 L. ed. 305, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 167.

The construction given by the highest state court to its own Constitution is con-

NOTE.—On the validity of statute abrogating fellow-servant rule—see note to Bradford Constr. Co. v. Heflin, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1040.

As to the power of the legislature to make injury prima facie evidence of negligence—see note to Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 226.

As to the validity of class legislation—see note to State v. Goodwill, 6 L.R.A. 621, and State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

For a discussion of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

clusive on the Federal Supreme Court, in determining its validity under the Federal Constitution, on writ of error to such court.

Manley v. Clark, 187 U. S. 547, 47 L. ed. 296, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; West v. Louisiana, 194 U. S. 258, 48 L. ed. 965, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 650; Campbell v. California, 200 U. S. 87, 50 L. ed. 382, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 193 U. S. 53, 48 L. ed. 614, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396.

When a state court decides a case upon two grounds, one Federal and the other non-Federal, this court will not disturb the judgment if the non-Federal ground, fairly construed, sustains the decision.

Berea College v. Kentucky, 211 U. S. 45, 53 L. ed. 81, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33; Murdock v. Memphis, 20 Wall. 590, 636, 22 L. ed. 429, 443; Eustis v. Bolles, 150 U. S. 361, 37 L. ed. 1111, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131; Giles v. Teasley, 193 U. S. 146, 160, 48 L. ed. 655, 658, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 359; Allen v. Arguimbau, 198 U. S. 149, 49 L. ed. 990, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 622.

The work in which Hicks was engaged was such as habitually placed him within the hazards contemplated by the Mississippi Constitution.

Keatley v. Illinois C. R. Co. 103 Iowa, 282, 72 N. W. 545; Haden v. Sioux City & P. R. Co. 92 Iowa, 227, 60 N. W. 537; Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 130 Iowa, 580, 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 452, 107 N. W. 616, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 226; Jemming v. Great Northern R. Co. 96 Minn. 302, 1 L.R.A. (N.S.) 702, 104 N. W. 1079; Williams v. Iowa C. R. Co. 121 Iowa, 270, 96 N. W. 774; Croll v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 57 Kan. 548, 46 Pac. 972.

Section 1985 of the Mississippi Code of 1906 is not in conflict with the Federal Constitution.

Georgia R. Co. v. Ivey, 73 Ga. 499; Augusta & S. R. Co. v. Randall, 79 Ga. 305, 4 S. E. 674; 33 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1274.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

This was an action in tort for the wrongful killing of Ray Hicks, a section foreman in the service of the railroad company. There was a judgment for the plaintiff in a circuit court of the state of Mississippi, which was affirmed by the supreme court of the state.

The Federal questions asserted, which are supposed to give this court jurisdiction to review the judgment of the supreme court of the state, arise out of the alleged repugnancy of §§ 3559 and 1985 of the Mississippi Code to that clause of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution which guarantees to every person the equal protection of the laws.

*Section 3559 of the Mississippi Code [40 of 1892, being a rescript of § 193 of the Mississippi Constitution of 1890, abrogates, substantially, the common-law fellow-servant rule as to "every employee of a railroad corporation." It is urged that this legislation, applicable only to employees of a railroad company, is arbitrary, and a denial of the equal protection of law, unless it be limited in its effect to employees imperiled by the hazardous business of operating railroad trains or engines, and that the Mississippi supreme court had, in prior cases, so defined and construed this legislation. Ballard v. Mississippi Cotton Oil Co. 81 Miss. 532, 62 L.R.A. 407, 95 Am. St. Rep. 476, 34 So. 533; Bradford Constr. Co. v. Heflin, 88 Miss. 314, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1040, 42 So. 174, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1077.

It is now contended that the provision has been construed in the present case as applicable to an employee not subject to any danger or peril peculiar to the operation of railway trains, and that therefore the reason for such special classification fails, and the provision, so construed and applied, is invalid as a denial of the equal protection of the law.

This contention, shortly stated, comes to this: that although a classification of railway employees may be justified from general considerations based upon the hazardous character of the occupation, such classification becomes arbitrary and a denial of the equal protection of the law the moment it is found to embrace employees not exposed to hazards peculiar to railway operation.

But this court has never so construed the limitation imposed by the 14th Amendment upon the power of the state to legislate with reference to particular employments as to render ineffectual a general classification resting upon obvious principles of public policy, because it may happen that the classification includes persons not subject to a uniform degree of danger. The insistence, therefore, that legislation in respect of railway employees generally is repugnant to the clause of the Constitution *guaranteeing the equal protection of [41 the law, merely because it is not limited to those engaged in the actual operation of trains, is without merit.

The intestate of the defendant in error was not engaged in the actual operation of trains. But he was nevertheless engaged in a service which subjected him to dangers from the operation of trains, and brought him plainly within the general legislative purpose. The case in hand illustrates the fact that such employees, though not directly engaged in the management of trains, are nevertheless within the general line of hazard inherent in the railway business. The deceased was the foreman of a section crew. His business was to keep the track in repair. He stood by the side of the track to let a train pass by; a derailment occurred, and a car fell upon him and crushed out his life.

In the late case of Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Melton, 218 U. S. 36, 54 L. ed. 921, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676, an Indiana fellow-servant act was held applicable to a member of a railway construction crew who was injured while engaged in the construction of a coal tipple alongside of the railway track. This whole matter of classification was there considered. Nothing more need be said upon the subject, fo rthe case upon this point is fully covered by the decision referred to.

The next error arises upon the constitutionality of § 1985 of the Mississippi Code of 1906. That section reads as follows:

"Injury to persons or property by railroads prima facie evidence of want of skill, etc.—In all actions against railroad companies for damages done to persons or property, proof of injury inflicted by the running of the locomotives or cars of such company shall be prima facie evidence of the want of reasonable skill and care on the part of the servants of the company in reference to such injury. This section shall also apply to passengers and employees of railroad companies."

The objection made to this statute is that 42] the railroad *companies are thereby put into a class to themselves, and deprived of the benefit of the general rule of law which places upon one who sues in tort the burden of not only proving an injury, but also that the injury was the consequence of some negligence in respect of a duty owed to the plaintiff.

It is to be primarily observed that the statute is not made applicable to all actions against such companies. Its operation is plainly limited, first, to injuries sustained by passengers or employees of such companies; second, to injuries arising from the actual operation of railway trains or engines; and third, the effect of evidence showing an injury due to the operation of trains or engines is only "prima facie evidence of the want of reasonable skill and care on the part of the servants of the company in reference to such injury."

The law of evidence is full of presumptions either of fact or law. The former are, of course, disputable, and the strength of any inference of one fact from proof of another depends upon the generality of the experience upon which it is founded. For a discussion of some common-law aspects of the subject, see Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. South Fork Coal Co. 1 L.R.A. (N.S.) 533, 71 C. C. A. 316, 139 Fed. 528 et seq.

Legislation providing that proof of one fact shall constitute prima facie evidence of the main fact in issue is but to enact a rule of evidence, and quite within the general power of government. Statutes, national and state, dealing with such methods of proof in both civil and criminal cases, abound, and the decisions upholding them are numerous. A few of the leading ones are Adams v. New York, 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372; People v. Cannon, 139 N. Y. 32, 36 Am. St. Rep. 668, 34 N. E. 759; Horne v. Memphis & O. R. Co. 1 Coldw. 72; Meadowcroft v. People, 163 Ill. 56, 35 L.R.A. 176, 54 Am. St. Rep. 447, 45 N. E. 303; Com. v. Williams, 6 Gray, 1; State v. Thomas, 144 Ala. 77, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1011, 113 Am. St. Rep. 17, 40 So. 271, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 744.

We are not impressed with the argument that the supreme court of Mississippi, in construing the act, has *declared that [43 the effect of the statute is to create a presumption of liability, giving to it, thereby, an effect in excess of a mere temporary inference of fact. The statutory effect of the rule is to provide that evidence of an injury arising from the actual operation of trains shall create an inference of negligence, which is the main fact in issue. The only legal effect of this inference is to cast upon the railroad company the duty of producing some evidence to the contrary. When that is done the inference is at an end, and the question of negligence is one for the jury, upon all of the evidence. In default of such evidence, the defendant, in a civil case, must lose, for the prima facie case is enough as matter of law.

The statute does not, therefore, deny the equal protection of the law, or otherwise fail in due process of law, because it creates a presumption of liability, since its operation is only to supply an inference of liability in the absence of other evidence contradicting such inference.

That a legislative presumption of one fact from evidence of another may not constitute a denial of due process of law or a denial of the equal protection of the law, it is only essential that there shall be some rational connection between the fact proved and the ultimate fact presumed, and that the inference of one fact from proof of another shall not be so unreasonable as to be a purely arbitrary mandate. So, also, it must not, under guise of regulating the presentation of evidence, operate to preclude the party from the right to present his defense to the main fact thus presumed.

If a legislative provision not unreasonable in itself, prescribing a rule of evidence, in either criminal or civil cases, does not shut out from the party affected a reasonable opportunity to submit to the jury in his defense all of the facts bearing upon the issue, there is no ground for holding that due process of law has been denied him.

Tested by these principles, the statute as 44] construed and *applied by the Mississippi court in this case is unobjectionable. It is not an unreasonable inference that a derailment of railway cars is due to some negligence, either in construction or maintenance of the track or trains, or some carelessness in operation.

From the foregoing considerations it must be obvious that the application of the act to injuries resulting from "the running of locomotives and cars" is not an arbitrary classification, but one resting upon considerations of public policy, arising out of the character of the business.

Judgment affirmed.

JULIAN HERENCIA, Plff. in Err.,
v.
FELIX GUZMAN.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 44–46.)

Appeal — review of facts.

1. The objections that the verdict in a negligence action was against the weight of evidence, and that the damages allowed were excessive, cannot be considered by the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of error, where there is evidence proper for the consideration of the jury.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4755–4781, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — question not raised below — admissibility of evidence.

2. No question is presented to an appellate court with respect to the admissibility of the testimony of a physician appointed by the trial court in a negligence action to examine the plaintiff in order to ascertain his present condition, where such appointment was made with the consent of counsel, and the witness subsequently testified without objection.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4606–4637, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — amending record.

3. There is no error in amending a bill of exceptions, after an appeal bond has been given and approved, so as to conform to the facts, by showing that the court stated when a physician appointed by the court in a negligence action to ascertain plaintiff's present condition was called to testify, that his examination of the plaintiff had been made by consent, and that counsel had agreed that his evidence should be considered as correct, where it does not appear that such statement was unjustified, or that objection to it was made.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 3261–3271, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — excluding expert witness — when not ground for reversal.

4. The refusal to permit a physician called as an expert to testify in a negligence action is not ground for reversal, where the record does not show what testimony the witness was expected to give, or that he was qualified to give any.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5020–5070, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 46.]

Submitted November 29, 1910. Decided December 19, 1910.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a judgment in favor of plaintiff in an action to recover damages for personal injuries. Affirmed.

See same case below on motion for new trial, 3 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 472.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Willis Sweet submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Frederick L. Cornwell submitted the cause for defendant in error:

This court, on writ of error, will not disturb the verdict of the jury on questions of fact, nor consider any questions of law, unless properly raised in the trial court.

Lawrence v. McCalmont, 2 How. 426, 11 L. ed. 326; Gregg v. Moss, 14 Wall. 564, 20 L. ed. 740; United States Exp. Co. v. Ware, 20 Wall. 543, 22 L. ed. 422.

This court will not determine on writ of error whether the verdict in an action for personal injuries is excessive.

New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. v. Winter, 143 U. S. 60, 36 L. ed. 71, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 356; Lincoln v. Power, 151 U. S. 437, 38 L. ed. 225, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 387.

The right of the court to amend the record to show what actually transpired is inherent.

Gagnon v. United States, 193 U. S. 456, 48 L. ed. 747, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510.

The evidence rejected, or a statement of what it tended to prove, must appear in the bill of exceptions.

Ladd v. Missouri Coal & Min. Co. 14 C. C. A. 246, 32 U. S. App. 93, 66 Fed. 880; Northwestern Union Packet Co. v. Clough, 20 Wall. 528, 22 L. ed. 406; Florida R. Co. v. Smith, 21 Wall. 255, 22 L. ed. 513; Thompson v. First Nat. Bank, 111 U. S. 529, 28 L. ed. 507, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 689; Patrick v. Graham, 132 U. S. 627, 33 L.

ed. 460, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 194; Lyon v. Batz, 42 Mo. App. 606; Bener v. Edgington, 76 Iowa, 105, 40 N. W. 117.

Mr. Justiee Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

This action was brought in the district court of the United States for Porto Rico to recover damages for personal injuries resulting from the fall of a portion of the building owned by the plaintiff in error, which it was alleged he had negligently allowed to remain in a dangerous condition. It was tried by a jury, who gave a verdict against plaintiff in error for the sum of $9,000. Judgment was entered aecordingly, and the case comes here on writ of error.

The argument on behalf of the plaintiff in error proceeds upon the assumption that this eourt may review the evidenee as to negligenee and as to the damages reeoverable, and may reverse the judgment if the court is dissatisfied with the findings of the jury. This, however, is not the provinee of the court upon writ of error. As there was evidenee proper for the consideration of the jury, the objeetion that the verdiet was against the weight of evidenee, or that the damages allowed were excessive, cannot be eonsidered. United States Exp. Co. v. Ware, 20 Wall. 543, 22 L. ed. 422; New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. v. Winter, 143 U. S. 60, 75, 6 L. ed. 71, 80, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 356; Lincoln v. Power, 151 U. S. 436–438, 38 L. ed. 224, 225, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 387; Humes v. United States, 170 U. S. 210, 42 L. ed. 1011, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 602.

Nor was any exeeption taken by the plaintiff in error to the instructions which the trial eourt gave to the jury. The only questions which are properly before us for review are as to certain rulings upon the admissibility of testimony.

Error is assigned in admitting the testimony of a physician, Dr. Joaquin Martinez Guasp, "as correct, and it is further urged that the eourt "erred in changing the ree-46] ord *relative thereto after the bond on appeal had been given and approved." It appears that the witness was appointed by the court to examine the plaintiff below in order to ascertain his condition at the time of the trial, and that this aetion was taken with the eonsent of the eounsel for the defendant (the plaintiff in error). The examination was made and the witness subsequently testified without objeetion. In faet, the counsel for the plaintiff in error conducted the direet examination, and there was no eross-examination. No question, therefore, is presented with respeet to the admissibility of this testimony. The bill of exeeptions was amended so as to show that the eourt stated, when the testimony was introdueed, not only that the physician's examination had been made by consent, but that counsel had "agreed that his evidence should be considered as correct." This amendment, as the distriet judge states, was to conform the record to the fact. Assuming, as we must, that the statement was made by the eourt, it does not appear that it was unjustified or that it was objeeted to. The exeeption of the plaintiff in error is simply to its inclusion in the record.

It is further insisted that the eourt erred in refusing to allow one Dr. Gonzalez to testify. As to this, the record merely sets forth that eounsel "offered to present the testimony of one Dr. Gonzalez, as an expert, which testimony is not allowed by the eourt, and to whieh ruling of the court counsel for defendant thereupon noted an exeeption." Manifestly, the judgment eannot be set aside because of this ruling, for it does not appear what testimony the witness was expeeted to give, or that he was qualified to give any.

We have examined the other rulings of whieh plaintiff in error complains, with respect to the striking out of certain testimony, and we find no error.

Judgment affirmed.

---

*AMERICAN LAND COMPANY [47
v.
LOUIS ZEISS.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 47–71.)

Constitutional law — police power — restoring lost records.

1. A state possesses the power to remedy the confusion and uncertainty as to registered titles to land, arising from the loss or destruction of public records by flood, fire, or earthquake.

[Police power generally, see Constitutional Law, IV. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Note.—For a discusison of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

As to what eonstitutes due proeess of law —see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

On notice and hearing required to constitute due proeess of law—see notes to Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 657; Chauvin v. Valiton, 3 L.R.A. 194; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224.

Constitutional law — due process of law — lost records act — notice to unknown claimants.

2. The safeguards afforded unknown claimants or claims by the provisions of Cal. Laws 1906, chap. 59, for the establishment and quieting of title to real property in case of the loss or destruction of public records, by an action in rem, to be brought by a person in the actual and peaceable possession of the property against "all persons claiming any interest in or lien upon the real property herein described, or any part thereof," satisfy the due process of law clause of the Federal Constitution, where such statute, as construed by the state courts, requires the plaintiff to designate and serve all known claimants, and those whom, with reasonable diligence, he can ascertain to be such, and calls for constructive service by publication against nonresidents and unknown owners, for the conspicuous posting upon the property of a copy of the summons, and the recording of a lis pendens,—especially since, under Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 473, any person interested and having no actual notice of the decree may come in at any time within a year after its rendition, and, upon showing cause, may have the decree vacated as to him, and be allowed to answer to the merits.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 696–724, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 230.]

Argued October 14 and 17, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

ON A CERTIFICATE from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, presenting questions as to the invalidity under the Federal Constitution of the California lost records act and proceedings thereunder. Answered in the negative.

Statement by Mr. Chief Justice White:

As a result of the conditions caused in San Francisco by the great calamity of earthquake and fire which befell that city in April, 1906, an extraordinary session of the legislature of California was convoked. One reason stated for the call was the necessity of providing for restoring the record title to land in San Francisco. An act to [49] accomplish *that purpose became a law upon its approval on June 16, 1906. It is copied on the margin.†

The circuit court of appeals has certified the issues involved in a pending cause, the determination of which rests upon the validity of the statute just referred to. The pertinent facts arising on the record of the cause are stated in the certificate, and are hereafter set forth. The purpose contemplated is to obtain instructions as to *whether the act in question "is viola-[50] tive of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States," and whether by virtue of a decree rendered by the superior *court of the city and county of San [51] Francisco, referred to in the recital of facts, the American Land Company "has been deprived of its property without due process of law."

*The following are the facts recited [52] in the certificate:

"The appellant, as complainant in the court below, brought its bill in equity against the appellee to remove *a cloud from [53] its title to real property, and to quiet its title thereto. The bill alleges on April 10, 1908, and at all the times prior thereto, referred to in the bill, George H. Lent *and Mary G. Coggeshall were severally [54] the owners in fee simple of two adjacent lots of land in San Francisco, which lots are described in the bill. The lots and others similarly situated are known as city slip and water lots. Under the provisions of an act of the legislature of the state of California, approved March 5, 1851 (Stat. of 1851, p. 764), the state leased this property to the city of San Francisco for the term of ninety-nine years. The appellee is alleged to be the owner of the unexpired portion of this lease as successor in interest of the city's right, and to be entitled to the possession thereof until March 26, 1950. The bill alleges that the appellee has no right whatever other than this right of possession and occupation; that notwithstanding the premises, the appellee claims to be the owner in fee simple of said lands under a judgment and decree of the superior court of the state of California in and for the city and county of San Francisco, made and entered December 19, 1906, in a proceeding entitled 'Louis Zeiss, Plaintiff, vs. All Persons Claiming Any Interest in or Lien upon the Real Property Herein *Described, or Any Part Thereof, De-[55]

†Chapter 59.

An Act to Provide for the Establishment and Quieting of Title to Real Property in Case of the Loss or Destruction of Public Records.

[Approved June 16, 1906.]

The people of the state of California, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. Whenever the public records in the office of a county recorder have been, or shall hereafter be, lost or destroyed, in whole or in any material part, by flood, fire, or earthquake, any person who claims an estate of inheritance or for life in, and who is by himself or his tenant or other person holding under him, in the actual and fendants;' that said proceeding was brought under an act of the legislature of the state of California, entitled, 'An Act to Provide for the Establishment and Quieting of Title to Real Property in Case of the Loss or Destruction of Public Records,' approved June 16, 1906; that said claim of the appellee under said decree is without right, and said decree is void; that in the complaint in that proceeding the appellee, after properly setting forth the destruction of the records, alleged that he was the owner in fee simple, free of encumbrance, of the lands which are described in the bill in this case, and that he prayed for a decree of the superior court adjudging his title to be as set forth by him; that at the time of filing his complaint he filed his affidavit setting forth the character of the estate, the source of his title, his possession, and stating that he had made no conveyance of the land, that there were no liens on it, and that he did not know and that he had never been informed of any other person who claimed or may claim any interest or lien upon the property, or any part therepeaceable possession of any real property in such county, may bring and maintain an action in rem against all the world, in the superior court for the county in which such real property is situate, to establish his title to such property, and to determine all adverse claims thereto. Any number of separate parcels of land claimed by the plaintiff may be included in the same action.

---

Sec. 2. The action shall be commenced by the filing of a verified complaint, in which the party so commencing the same shall be named as plaintiff, and the defendants shall be described as "all persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the real property herein described, or any part thereof," and shall contain a statement of the facts enumerated in § 1 of this act, a particular description of such real property, and a specification of the estate, title, or interest of the plaintiff therein.

Sec. 3. Upon the filing of the complaint, a summons must be issued under the seal of the court, which shall contain the name of the court and county in which the action is brought, the name of the plaintiff, and a particular description of the real property involved, and shall be directed to "all persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon the real property herein described, or any part thereof," as defendants, and shall be substantially in the following form:

"In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County (or City and County) of ———.

Action No. —.

——— ———, Plaintiff, vs.

All Persons Claiming Any Interest in, or Lien upon, the Real Property Herein Described, or Any Part Thereof, Defendants.

The People of the State of California, to all persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the real property herein described, or any part thereof, defendants, Greetings:

You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint of ——— ———, plaintiff, filed with the clerk of the above entitled court and county, within three months after the first publication of this summons, and to set forth what interest or lien, if any, you have in or upon that certain real property or any part thereof, situated in the county (or city and county) of ———, state of California, particularly described as follows: (Here insert description.)

And you are hereby notified that, unless you so appear and answer, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint, to wit: (Here insert a statement of the relief so demanded.)

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this — day of ———, A. D. ———.

[Seal.] ——— ———, Clerk."

Sec. 4. The summons shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation, published in the county in which the action is brought. The newspaper in which such publication is to be made shall be designated by an order of the court or a judge thereof, to be signed and filed with the clerk. No other order for the publication of the summons shall be necessary, nor shall any affidavit therefor be required, nor need any copy of the complaint be served, except as hereinafter required. The summons shall be published at least once a week for a period of two months, and to each publication thereof shall be appended a memorandum in substance as follows:

"The first publication of this summons was made in ——— (here insert the name) newspaper on the —day of ——— A. D. ———; (inserting the date)."

And if the affidavit provided for in § 5 of this act discloses the name of any person claiming an interest in the property, or a lien thereon adverse to the plaintiff, that fact, together with the name and address (if given), of said person, shall be stated in a memorandum to be appended to the summons in substance as follows:

"The following persons are said to claim an interest in, or lien upon said property adverse to plaintiff (giving their names and addresses as above provided). A copy of the summons, together with a copy of the foregoing memoranda, shall be posted in a conspicuous place on each parcel of the property described in the complaint, within fifteen days after the first publication of the summons."

Sec. 5. At the time of filing the complaint, the plaintiff shall file with the same of, adversely to him. The affidavit contained no averment that inquiry of any kind had been made to ascertain whether such adverse claim did exist. It is shown in the bill that in said proceeding under said act of the legislature, summons was published in the Law Recorder for the space of two months, and was also posted on the land, and after the period of publication of the summons the appellee herein obtained a decree of the court, as prayed for by him. The bill further alleges that although the appellant's grantors were at all times citizens and residents of California, not seeking to evade, but ready to accept, service of summons, and easily reached for that purpose, no service was made upon them, nor did they in any way receive notice of the pendency of the action, nor did they gain any knowledge of the existence of the decree until more than a year after its entry. A demurrer *was interposed to the bill in [56 the court below for want of equity, which demurrer was sustained by the court and the bill was dismissed."

---

his affidavit, fully and explicitly setting forth and showing (1) the character of his estate, right, title, interest, or claim in and possession of the property, during what period the same has existed and from whom obtained; (2) whether or not he has ever made any conveyance of the property, or any part thereof, or any interests therein, and if so, when and to whom; also a statement of any and all subsisting mortgages, deeds of trust, and other liens thereon; (3) that he does not know and has never been informed of any other person who claims or who may claim, any interest in, or lien upon, the property or any part thereof, adversely to him, or, if he does know or has been informed of any such person, then the name and address of such person. If the plaintiff is unable to state any one or more of the matters herein required, he shall set forth and show, fully and explicitly, the reasons for such inability. Such affidavit shall constitute a part of the judgment roll. If the plaintiff be a corporation, the affidavit shall be made by an officer thereof. If the plaintiff be a person under guardianship, the affidavit shall be made by his guardian.

Sec. 6. If the said affidavit discloses the name of any person claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the property adverse to the plaintiff, the summons shall also be personally served upon such person if he can be found within the state, together with a copy of the complaint and a copy of said affidavit during the period of the publications of the summons; and to the copy of the summons delivered to any such person there shall be appended a copy of the memoranda provided for in § 4 hereof.

If such person resides out of this state, a copy of the summons, memoranda, complaint, and affidavit shall be within fifteen days after the first publication of the summons deposited in the United States post-office, inclosed in a sealed envelop, postage prepaid, addressed to such person at the address given in the affidavit, or if no address be given therein, then at the county seat at the county in which the action is brought. If such person resides within this state, and could not, with due diligence, be found within the state, within the period of the publication of the summons, then said copies aforesaid shall be mailed to him as above provided forthwith upon the expiration of said period of publication.

Sec. 7. Upon the completion of the publication and posting of the summons, and its service upon and mailing to the person, if any, upon whom it is hereby directed to be so specially served, the court shall have full and complete jurisdiction over the plaintiff and the said property, and of the person of everyone claiming any estate, right, title, or interest in or to, or lien upon, said property, or any part thereof, and shall be deemed to have obtained the possession and control of said property for the purposes of the action, and shall have full and complete jurisdiction to render the judgment therein which is provided for in this act.

Sec. 8. At any time within three months from the first publication of the summons, or within such further time, not exceeding thirty days, as the court may, for good cause, grant, any person having or claiming any estate, right, title, or interest, in or to, or lien upon, said property, or any part thereof, may appear and make himself a party to the action by pleading to the complaint. All answers must be verified and must specifically set forth the estate, right, title, interest, or lien so claimed.

Sec. 9. The plaintiff must, at the time of filing the complaint, and every defendant claiming any affirmative relief must, at the time of filing his answer, record in the office of the recorder of the county in which the property is situated, a notice of the pendency of the action, containing the object of the action or defense, and a particular description of the property affected thereby; and the recorder shall record the same in a book devoted exclusively to the recordation of such notices, and shall enter, upon a map or plat of the parcels of land, to be kept by him for that purpose, on that part of the map or plat representing the parcel or parcels so described, a reference to the date of the filing of such notice and, when recorded, to the book and page of the record thereof.

Sec. 10. No judgment in any such action shall be given by default; but the court must require proof of the facts alleged in the complaint and other pleadings.

Sec. 11. The judgment shall ascertain and determine all estates, rights, titles, interests, and claims in and to said property and every part thereof, whether the same be legal or equitable, present or future, vested or contingent, or whether the same

Mr. C. Irving Wright argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Samuel Knight, Edward J. McCutchen, and Charles Page, filed a brief for the American Land Company:

To constitute due process of law in judicial proceedings involving adversary rights of property there must be adequate notice, giving a real and substantial, and not merely a formal and illusory, opportunity to controvert the plaintiff's allegations. This is axiomatic.

Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410.

A judgment in such cases can conclude the rights of parties and privies only. This is an "immutable principle of natural justice."

Hollingsworth v. Barbour, 4 Pet. 466, 475, 7 L. ed. 922, 926.

It is res judicata after the court has, after argument and consideration, come to a decision on a contested matter.

Jenkins v. Robertson, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. App. Cas. 117; Tregea v. Modesto Irrig. Dist. 164 U. S. 179, 41 L. ed. 395, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52.

Of course, this means that there must be either an actual trial of contested issues or a default after due notice in a case in which an adversary is disclosed who may be served with notice.

The act is invalid even within the extreme doctrine of Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 55 N. E. 812; because it does not require any effort to ascertain claimants before concluding the rights of those who are undisclosed, and therefore unnotified.

State ex rel. Monnett v. Guilbert, 56 Ohio St. 575, 38 L.R.A. 519, 60 Am. St. Rep. 756, 47 N. E. 551; People ex rel. Deneen v. Simon, 176 Ill. 165, 44 L.R.A. 801, 68 Am. St. Rep. 175, 52 N. E. 910; State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175; Dewey v. Kimball, 89 Minn. 454, 95 N. W. 317, 895, 96 N. W. 704.

Here, without any inquiry whatever, and without any exercise of diligence, even on the part of the petitioner himself, without inquiry even from his immediate grantor, and upon his mere affidavit that he does not know and has never been informed of any other claimant,—facts that inhere "in his own consciousness, and of which he alone can have knowledge,"—the court acquires jurisdiction to proceed to a conclusive decree binding the rights of next-door neighbors, whose claims might, by the slightest inquiry, have been ascertained.

Hoffman v. Superior Court, 151 Cal. 386, 90 Pac. 939.

Of course, if the act contemplated any diligence whatsoever even on the part of the petitioner, it would have required in the consist of mortgages or liens of any description, and shall be binding and conclusive upon every person who, at the time of the commencement of the action, had or claimed any estate, right, title, or interest in or to said property, or any part thereof, and upon every person claiming under him by title subsequent to the commencement of the action. A certified copy of the judgment in such action shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which said action was commenced, and any party or the successor in interest of any party to said action may, at his option, file for record in the office of the recorder of such county the entire judgment roll in said action.

---

Sec. 12. Except as herein otherwise provided, all the provisions and rules of law relating to evidence, pleading, practice, new trials and appeals, applicable to other civil actions, shall apply to the actions hereby authorized.

At any time after the issuance of the summons, any party to the action may take depositions therein, in conformity to law, upon notice to the adverse party sought to be bound by such depositions, and who have appeared in the action (if any), and upon notice filed with the clerk. The depositions may be used by any party against any other party giving or receiving the notice (except the clerk), subject to all just exceptions.

Sec. 13. The clerk shall number consecutively, in a distinct series, all actions hereby authorized, and shall keep an index and register thereof devoted exclusively to such actions.

Sec. 14. Whenever judgment in an action hereby authorized shall have been entered as to any real property, no other action relative to the same property or any part thereof, maintained under this act, shall be tried until proof shall first have been made to the court that all persons who appeared in the first action, or their successors in interest, have been personally served with the papers mentioned in § 6 of this act, either within or without this state, more than one month before the time to plead expired.

Sec. 15. An executor, administrator, or guardian, or other person holding the possession of property in the right of another, may maintain as plaintiff, and may appear and defend in, the action herein provided for.

Sec. 16. The word "county," whenever used in this act, includes and applies to a consolidated city and county.

Sec. 17. The remedies provided for by this act shall be deemed cumulative, and in addition to any other remedy now or hereafter provided by law for quieting or establishing title to real property.

Sec. 18. All actions authorized hereby must be commenced before July 1st, 1909.

Sec. 19. This act shall be in force thirty days after its passage.

affidavit a statement of the facts showing diligence.

Forbes v. Hyde, 31 Cal. 354.

The rule of the Massachusetts case, notwithstanding its safeguards, is not sustainable as providing due process in a case in which the citizen has, as here, been deprived of his property without effectual notice.

Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 45 L. ed. 252, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410.

In proceedings termed quasi in rem, there is a suit against a personal defendant by name (The Hine v. Trevor, 4 Wall. 571, 572, 18 L. ed. 456), and such actions differ, among other things, from actions which are strictly in rem, in that the interest of the defendant is alone sought to be affected, that citation to him is required, and that the judgment therein is conclusive only between the parties (Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 185, 30 L. ed. 372, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165).

Proceedings under the McEnerney act cannot, without violation of the principles of natural justice, be brought within the class of cases where constructive service is permissible.

The Hine v. Trevor, 4 Wall. 571, 572, 18 L. ed. 456; Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 185, 30 L. ed. 372, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165; London v. London Joint Stock Bank, L. R. 6 App. Cas. 399; Fisher v. Lane, 3 Wils. 297, 2 W. Bl. 834; Bruce v. Wait, 1 Mann. & G. 1; London v. Cox, L. R. 2 H. L. 239; Hart v. Samsom, 110 U. S. 151, 28 L. ed. 101, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 596; Meyer v. Kuhn, 13 C. C. A. 298, 25 U. S. App. 174, 65 Fed. 705; Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Remer v. McKay, 54 Fed. 432.

The McEnerney act does not provide reasonable constructive service upon claimants who have not been ascertained, even if it could be conceived that it does require any precautions to ascertain claimants.

Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 409, 44 L. ed. 520, 524, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410.

No reasonable notice can be imparted by a publication not naming or describing the person to be cited, and not making any allegation against him.

Pennsylvania Co. v. Sears, 136 Ind. 460, 34 N. E. 15, 36 N. E. 353; Fanning v. Krapfl, 61 Iowa, 417, 14 N. W. 727, 16 N. W. 293; Skelton v. Sackett, 91 Mo. 377, 3 S. W. 874; Corrigan v. Schmidt, 126 Mo. 304, 28 S. W. 874; Detroit v. Detroit City R. Co. 54 Fed. 1; Meyer v. Kuhn, 13 C. C. A. 298, 25 U. S. App. 174, 65 Fed. 705; Netzorg v. Geren, 26 Tex. Civ. App. 119, 62 S. W. 789; Ohlmann v. Clarkson Saw Mill Co. 222 Mo. 62, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 432, 133 Am. St. Rep. 506, 120 S. W. 1155.

The "decree," so-called, rendered under the provisions of the act, was not rendered in a judicial proceeding. It was a mere declaration of right upon an ex parte application. To make such declaration is not the exercise of judicial power, which alone, under the Constitution, is due process of law, potent to transfer property from one citizen to another.

Austin, Jurisprudence, § 1036; Voluntary Jurisdiction, Bouvier, Law Dict.; Cushing v. Laird, 107 U. S. 69, 27 L. ed. 391, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 196; Blagge v. Moore, 6 Tex. Civ. App. 359, 23 S. W. 470; Third Street & Suburban R. Co. v. Lewis, 173 U. S. 457, 43 L. ed. 766, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 451; Atty. Gen. v. Avon, 3 De G. J. & S. 637, 33 L. J. Ch. N. S. 172; Bradstreet v. Neptune Ins. Co. 3 Sumn. 600, Fed. Cas. No. 1,793.

It is practically an ex parte application for the determination of a question which may never in fact arise. A mere barren right,—a purely moot question.

Tregea v. Modesto Irrig. Dist. 164 U. S. 179, 41 L. ed. 395, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52.

The complaint alleges no violation, or threatened violation, of right; discloses no controversy; designates no defendant.

That is judicial power which, in a controversy, decides the right to property between citizens or proper parties.

Miller, Const. p. 348; Re Prohibitions Del Roy, 12 Coke, 63; Bl. Com. Bk. 3, p. 25.

Judicial power requires a case of private rights or private property infringed, or in danger of actual or threatened infringement.

Georgia v. Stanton, 6 Wall. 50, 18 L. ed. 721; DeCamp v. Archibald, 50 Ohio St. 618, 40 Am. St. Rep. 692, 35 N. E. 1058; Canada Northern R. Co. v. International Bridge Co. 7 Fed. 653; Brewington v. Lowe, 1 Ind. 21, 48 Am. Dec. 349; Fuller v. Colfax County, 4 McCrary, 535, 14 Fed. 178; Magistrates of Edinburgh, 1 S. C. Sess. Cas. 3d Series, 892; Cashman v. Cashman, 123 Mo. 647, 27 S. W. 549; Blagge v. Moore, 6 Tex. Civ. App. 359, 23 S. W. 470; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 45 L. ed. 252, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Harvey v. Harvey, 73 N. H. 106, 59 Atl. 621.

Therefore courts have no jurisdiction of fictitious controversies.

Lord v. Veazie, 8 How. 255, 12 L. ed. 1069; Livingston v. D'Orgenoy, 108 Fed. 469.

They lose jurisdiction of suits where the controversy has been settled.

Dunn v. State, 163 Ind. 317, 71 N. E. 890; Cox v. Hakes, L. R. 15 App. Cas. 506, 60 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 89, 63 L. T. N. S. 392, 39 Week. Rep. 145, 17 Cox, C. C. 158, 54 J. P. 820.

They refuse to give opinions on moot questions.

Taylor v. Place, 4 R. I. 362; Opinion of Justices, 126 Mass. 567; Re Priority of Legislative Appropriations, 19 Colo. 58, 34 Pac. 278; Re Constitutionality of Senate Bill No. 65, 12 Colo. 470, 21 Pac. 478; State ex rel. Breckenridge v. Fleming, 70 Neb. 523, 97 N. W. 1063; Ex parte County Council [1891] 1 Q. B. 725.

And if an opinion is unnecessary to the determination of the controversy, such opinion is obiter dictum, not a decision.

Carroll v. Carroll, 16 How. 275, 286, 287, 41 L. ed. 936, 941.

A sentence is a judicial determination of a cause agitated between real parties, upon which a real interest has been settled; in order to make a sentence there must be a real interest, a real argument, a real prosecution, a real defense, a real decision.

Bandon v. Becher, 3 Clark & F. 511.

There must be a litigation upon actual transactions between real parties, growing out of a controversy affecting legal or equitable rights as to person or property.

Marye v. Parsons, 114 U. S. 325, 29 L. ed. 205, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 932, 962.

The so-called "decree" relied upon by appellee was rendered upon an ex parte application which disclosed no adversary, and cannot, therefore, be admitted as res judicata.

Jenkins v. Robertson, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. App. Cas. 117; Duchess of Kingston's Case, 20 How. St. Tr. 478; Bandon v. Becher, 3 Clark & F. 511; Carroll v. Carroll, 16 How. 275, 286, 14 L. ed. 936, 941; Tregea v. Modesto Irrig. Dist. 164 U. S. 179, 41 L. ed. 395, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52; Cushing v. Laird, 107 U. S. 69, 27 L. ed. 391, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 196; Re Howard, 9 Wall. 175, 19 L. ed. 634.

A "decree" by an admiralty court for the sale of a ship on the master's petition is not conclusive upon the owner or third persons, because it is made upon the application of the master, and not in an adverse proceeding. The proceeding, being ex parte, cannot be deemed conclusive in favor of the party promoting it.

The Tilton, 5 Mason, 474, Fed. Cas. No. 14,054.

It was never intended, and cannot be tolerated, that a state should have power to create an action whereby ordinary rights of property may be devested and transferred to another citizen, which action, where diversity of citizenship is presented, cannot be entertained by the Federal courts.

Madisonville Traction Co. v. St. Bernard Min. Co. 196 U. S. 239, 249, 253, 49 L. ed. 462, 466, 468, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 251.

If the act had expressly provided that no case arising thereunder should, under any circumstances, be triable in the Federal courts, it cannot be doubted that it would be declared void. It is the necessary effect of a statute that determines its constitutionality,—not what it expresses.

Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678.

The Federal courts can have no jurisdiction even of a contest between parties if the effect of the judgment is to conclude the rights of persons not parties. Such power would not properly be exerted in an ordinary suit inter partes.

Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 89, 50 L. ed. 101, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727.

The act cannot be sustained as analogous to the common-law fine.

McGregor v. Comstock, 17 N. Y. 169; 2 Bl. Com. 355, note (k), 356, 357; Portsmouth v. Vincent, 1 Sch. & Lef. 380; Smith v. Packhurst, 3 Atk. 135, 2 Strange, 1105; Brereton v. Gamul, 2 Atk. 240; Pomfret v. Windsor, 2 Ves. Sr. 472.

The act cannot be sustained as a statute of limitations.

The proceeding provided for by the act is not an action in rem in the sense that it may constitutionally conclude the rights of third parties.

Black, Judgm. § 793; Mankin v. Chandler, 2 Brock. 125, Fed. Cas. No. 9,030, Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 185, 30 L. ed. 372, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165; Hill v. Henry, 66 N. J. Eq. 150, 57 Atl. 554; Cole v. The Brandt, 1 Betts, D. C. Ms. 36, Fed. Cas. No. 2,978; The Heinrich Bjorn, L. R. 10 Prob. Div. 44, L. R. 11 App. Cas. 270, 55 L. J. Prob. N. S. 80, 55 L. T. N. S. 66, 6 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 1, 24 Eng. Rul. Cas. 608; State ex rel. Monnett v. Guilbert, 56 Ohio St. 575, 38 L.R.A. 519, 60 Am. St. Rep. 756, 47 N. E. 551; Bear Lake County v. Budge, 9 Idaho, 703, 108 Am. St. Rep. 179, 75 Pac. 614; Atlantic Works v. The Glide, 157 Mass. 525, 34 Am. St. Rep. 305, 33 N. E. 163, 167 U. S. 606, 42 L. ed. 296, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930; Vandewater v. Mills, 19 How. 82, 89, 15 L. ed. 554, 556; The Hine v. Trevor, 4 Wall. 571, 572, 18 L. ed. 456; Leigh v. Green, 193 U. S. 79, 48 L. ed. 623, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390.

The infinite conclusive effect of a real judgment in rem is the very respect in which it differs toto cœlo from a judgment quasi in rem.

Black, Judgm. § 793; Hill v. Henry, 66 N. J. Eq. 150, 57 Atl. 554; Cole v. Brandt, Fed. Cas. No. 2,978; The Heinrich Bjorn, L. R. 10 Prob. Div. 44, L. R. 11 App. Cas. 270, 55 L. J. Prob. N. S. 80, 55 L. T. N. S. 66, 6 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 1, 24 Eng. Rul. Cas.

608; State ex rel. Monnett v. Guilbert, 56 Ohio St. 575, 38 L.R.A. 519, 60 Am. St. Rep. 756, 47 N. E. 551; Bear Lake County v. Budge, 9 Idaho, 703, 108 Am. St. Rep. 179, 75 Pac. 614.

In determining the question whether a given statute violates the dictates of natural justice, or, as in the present case, more specifically, whether the notice provided by the statute is a substantial notice, giving a real, and not merely an illusory, opportunity to defend the action, it is prudent to take into careful consideration the procedure sanctioned by usage.

Cunnius v. Reading School Dist. 198 U. S. 458, 49 L. ed. 1125, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1121.

Unless notice of the action in rem be, at the least, so given as normally to come to the notice of an agent representative of all persons to be affected by the decree, the sentence of the court will be ex parte, and not to be regarded.

The Nautik, 7 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 591, 64 L. J. Prob. N. S. 61 [1895] P. 121, 11 Reports, 716, 72 T. L. N. S. 21, 43 Week. Rep. 703; Rose v. Himely, 4 Cranch, 241, 277, 278, 2 L. ed. 608, 619, 620.

The circumstance that alone saves a judgment in rem from being "manifestly contrary to natural justice" is the fact that there is, in all such proceedings, a substantial notice to the persons to be affected, who have, therefore, a real, and not merely an illusory, opportunity of protecting their interests.

The Parlement Belge, 4 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 234, L. R. 5 Prob. Div. 197, 42 L. T. N. S. 273, 28 Week. Rep. 642; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 725, 24 L. ed. 565, 570.

Since the 14th Amendment, the legislature cannot create a valid procedure against natural justice, nor except a case out of the general rule required by natural justice.

Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410.

The distinction between proceedings in rem and proceedings in personam is substantial, and not to be destroyed by the legislature without evasion of the constitutional rights of the parties.

McNamara v. Casserly, 61 Minn. 335, 63 N. W. 880; Kundinger v. Saginaw, 59 Mich. 355, 26 N. W. 634; State ex rel. Flint v. Fond du Lac, 42 Wis. 287; Re Smith, 9 Wash. 85, 37 Pac. 311, 494.

Mr. Otto tum Suden argued the cause and filed a brief for Louis Zeiss:

The state has the power to regulate the tenure of immovable property within its limits, the conditions of its ownership, and the modes of establishing the same, whether the owner be stranger or citizen.

United States v. Fox, 94 U. S. 315, 24 L. ed. 192; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 317, 33 L. ed. 918, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557; Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 265, 40 L. ed. 696, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Lynch v. Murphy, 161 U. S. 247, 251, 40 L. ed. 688, 689, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 523; Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Bennett v. Fenton, 10 L.R.A. 500, 41 Fed. 283; Gormley v. Clark, 134 U. S. 338, 33 L. ed. 909, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 554; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812.

And in that behalf the state may establish any procedure adequate for the purpose, so long as the constitutional guaranties of due process of law are not infringed upon. It may establish new remedies or alter common-law remedies.

Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 28 L. ed. 232, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; Iowa C. R. Co. v. Iowa, 160 U. S. 389, 40 L. ed. 467, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 344; Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, 111 U. S. 701–707, 28 L. ed. 569–572, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Kennard v. Louisiana, 92 U. S. 480, 23 L. ed. 478; People ex rel. Witherbee v. Essex County, 70 N. Y. 228; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812.

Judicial action does not require that a party seeking the remedy proceed against any particular adversary.

People ex rel. Deneen v. Simon, 176 Ill. 165, 44 L.R.A. 801, 68 Am. St. Rep. 175, 52 N. E. 910; Badger v. Gilmore, 37 N. H. 457; Hall v. Decker, 48 Me. 255; People ex rel. Bendon v. County Judge, 13 How. Pr. 398; Harris v. Phœnix Ins. Co. 35 Conn. 310; Cohen v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 5 L. ed. 257.

If the McEnerney act gives a remedy, then the proceeding in accordance with its provisions by one coming within their terms is an action or suit.

Harris v. Phœnix Ins. Co. 35 Conn. 310.

Nor is the scope and exact nature of the procedure a matter of inquiry here.

Iowa C. R. Co. v. Iowa, 160 U. S. 389, 40 L. ed. 467, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 344; Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 25 L. ed. 496; State ex rel. Newell v. Newell, 13 Mont. 302, 34 Pac. 28; Martin v. Simpkins, 20 Colo. 438, 38 Pac. 1092; Hoffman v. Superior Court, 151 Cal. 386, 90 Pac. 939; Robinson v. Kerrigan, 151 Cal. 40, 121 Am. St. Rep. 90, 90 Pac. 129, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 829; Robbins v. Chicago, 4 Wall. 657, 18 L. ed. 427; Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 289, 8 L.R.A. (N.S.) 682, 119 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356.

The proceeding in question, under the organic law of the state, is a judicial one, and properly maintainable in the courts of the state, under the grant of judicial power by the Constitution of the state.

Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 289, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 682, 19 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356.

It was for the legislature of the state to judge of the necessity for a remedy.

Laurel Hill Cemetery v. San Francisco, 216 U. S. 358, 54 L. ed. 515, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301.

The Federal Constitution does not and cannot control a state in the exercise of its governmental and administrative powers, nor in the character of the particular agencies through which it chooses to exert them. If its own court of last resort has declared them not to violate the fundamental law of the state, this court will not question that conclusion, but confine itself wholly to the inquiry whether or not, in the procedure adopted by the state, irrespective of the question whether the proceeding is judicial, legislative, or administrative, due regard has been paid to the provisions of the 14th Amendment.

Norton v. Shelby County, 118 U. S. 425–439, 30 L. ed. 178–185, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1121; Ridings v. Johnson, 128 U. S. 212, 32 L. ed. 401, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 72; Bacon v. Northwestern Mut. L. Ins. Co. 131 U. S. 258, 33 L. ed. 128, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 787; Iowa C. R. Co. v. Iowa, 160 U. S. 389, 40 L. ed. 468, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 344.

So far as a substituted instead of personal service is concerned, it is primarily for the legislature to judge of the necessity which will warrant a substituted instead of a personal service of process, and of the degree and character of the proof by which this necessity is to be established. It has determined that such necessity exists under the circumstances authorizing the proceedings under the act in question.

Laurel Hill Cemetery v. San Francisco, 216 U. S. 358, 54 L. ed. 515, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301.

And when, therefore, these circumstances are alleged and proven to exist, as they were alleged by the appellee, substituted service to persons out of reach of personal process, and to unknown owners, became proper.

Hoffman v. Superior Court, 151 Cal. 386, 90 Pac. 939.

The state has a direct and substantial interest in knowing who is the owner of lands within its borders.

Huling v. Kaw Valley R. & Improv. Co. 130 U. S. 564, 32 L. ed. 1048, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603.

Ownership of property implies two things: First, attention to it; and second, a discharge of all obligations of taxation or otherwise to the state which protects it.

Underwood v. Dugan, 139 U. S. 380, 35 L. ed. 197, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 618.

The world must move on, and those who claim an interest in persons or things must be charged with knowledge of their status and condition, and of the vicissitudes to which they are subject. This is the foundation of all judicial proceedings in rem.

Broderick's Will (Kieley v. McGlynn) 21 Wall. 519, 22 L. ed. 605.

The McEnerney act does provide due process of law to unknown owners.

Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 312, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 682, 119 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356.

He who asserts the unconstitutionality of a statute must show it to be so beyond a reasonable doubt.

Re Wellington, 16 Pick. 87, 26 Am. Dec. 631; Falconer v. Robinson, 46 Ala. 340; State ex rel. Bragg v. Rogers, 107 Ala. 444, 32 L.R.A. 520, 19 So. 909.

Mr. Garret W. McEnerney argued the cause, and, with Mr. Walter Rothchild, filed a brief as amici curiæ in support of the validity of the McEnerney act:

The state is sovereign over land lying within its boundaries, by whatever persons owned; and may make an adjudication as to the title to such land binding and conclusive upon all persons.

Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 256, 40 L. ed. 691, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316, 33 L. ed. 918, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557; Harris v. Palmore, 74 Ga. 273; Perkins v. Wakeham, 86 Cal. 580, 21 Am. St. Rep. 67, 25 Pac. 51; Bennett v. Fenton, 10 L.R.A. 500, 41 Fed. 283; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812; State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175; Quarl v. Abbett, 102 Ind. 233, 52 Am. Rep. 662, 1 N. E. 476; Mason v. Messenger, 17 Iowa, 261; Venable v. Dutch, 37 Kan. 515, 1 Am. St. Rep. 262, 15 Pac. 520; Dillon v. Heller, 39 Kan. 599, 18 Pac. 693; Covington & L. R. Co. v. Bowler, 9 Bush, 468; Loring v. Hildreth, 170 Mass. 328, 40 L. R.A. 127, 64 Am. St. Rep. 301, 49 N. E. 652; Ormsby v. Ottman, 29 C. C. A. 295, 56 U. S. App. 510, 85 Fed. 492; United States v. Fox, 94 U. S. 315, 24 L. ed. 192; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. ed. 565.

The question whether a particular proceeding amounts to due process of law is not to be determined by a consideration of its novelty.

Martin v. Hunter, 1 Wheat. 326, 4 L. ed. 102; Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 28 L. ed. 232, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; Brown v. New Jersey, 175 U. S. 172, 176, 44 L. ed. 119, 121, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 43

L. ed. 552, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 235, 41 L. ed. 984, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Kennard v. Louisiana, 92 U. S. 480, 23 L. ed. 478; Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dey, 82 Iowa, 312, 12 L.R.A. 436, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 584, 31 Am. St. Rep. 477, 48 N. W. 98; People ex rel. Witherbee v. Essex County, 70 N. Y. 228; Taylor v. Beckham, 178 U. S. 548, 44 L. ed. 1187, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 890, 1009; Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, 111 U. S. 701, 28 L. ed. 569, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Ex parte Wall, 107 U. S. 265, 289, 27 L. ed. 552, 562, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 569.

The failure of a party in a particular case to receive actual notice, where constructive notice to him is constitutionally permissible, cannot affect the validity of such constructive notice, as affording due process of law.

Simon v. Craft, 182 U. S. 427, 45 L. ed. 1165, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 836; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Schmidt, 177 U. S. 230, 44 L. ed. 747, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 620; Re Empire City Bank, 18 N. Y. 199; Bertrand v. Taylor, 87 Ill. 235; Underwood v. Dugan, 139 U. S. 380, 384, 35 L. ed. 197, 199, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 618; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 134 U. S. 465, 33 L. ed. 984, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 209, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 462, 702; Broderick's Will (Kieley v. McGlynn) 21 Wall. 519, 22 L. ed. 605; Huling v. Kaw Valley R. & Improv. Co. 130 U. S. 559, 32 L. ed. 1045, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603.

It is within the power of a state to provide a proceeding strictly in rem to establish and quiet title to real property within its limits.

Missouri v. Lewis, 101 U. S. 22, 31, 25 L. ed. 989, 992; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316, 33 L. ed. 918, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812; Gormley v. Clark, 134 U. S. 338, 346, 347, 33 L. ed. 909, 913, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 554; Cunnius v. Reading School Dist. 198 U. S. 458, 49 L. ed. 1125, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1121, affirming 206 Pa. 469, 98 Am. St. Rep. 796, 56 Atl. 16; Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 256, 274, 40 L. ed. 691, 699, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585.

The proceeding prescribed by the statute is one strictly in rem.

Martin v. King, 72 Ala. 354; State v. McMurry, 61 Kan. 87, 58 Pac. 962; Ex parte Kenmore Shoe Co. 50 S. C. 140, 27 S. E. 682; Freeman, Judgm. § 606; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812; Corson v. Shoemaker, 55 Minn. 386, 57 N. W. 134; 55 L. ed.

Cooper v. Reynolds, 10 Wall. 308, 19 L. ed. 931, Rose's Notes (U. S.) 321; Bennett v. Fenton, 10 L.R.A. 500, 41 Fed. 283; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. ed. 565; Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 406, 44 L. ed. 520, 523, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Overby v. Gordon, 177 U. S. 214, 221, 44 L. ed. 741, 744, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603; Leigh v. Green, 193 U. S. 79, 48 L. ed. 623, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390; Heidritter v. Elizabeth Oil Cloth Co. 112 U. S. 294, 28 L. ed. 729, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 135.

Whether or not the proceeding authorized by the act is one strictly in rem or substantially in rem is immaterial. In both jurisdiction rests upon the same basis, and the decrees in both have equal potency as to the res.

Johnson v. Hunter, 127 Fed. 219; Shepherd v. Ware, 46 Minn. 174, 24 Am. St. Rep. 212, 48 N. W. 773; Corson v. Shoemaker, 55 Minn. 386, 57 N. W. 134; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. ed. 565; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316, 33 L. ed. 918, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557; Boswell v. Otis, 9 How. 336, 13 L. ed. 164; Parker v. Overman, 18 How. 137, 15 L. ed. 318; Huling v. Kaw Valley R. & Improv. Co. 130 U. S. 559, 32 L. ed. 1045, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 605; Mellen v. Moline Malleable Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 33 L. ed. 178, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 781; Dick v. Foraker, 155 U. S. 404, 39 L. ed. 201, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; Lynch v. Murphy, 161 U. S. 247, 40 L. ed. 688, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 523; Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 256, 40 L. ed. 691, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Huling v. Kaw Valley R. & Improv. Co. 130 U. S. 559, 32 L. ed. 1045, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603; Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Overby v. Gordon, 177 U. S. 221, 44 L. ed. 744, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603; Ormsby v. Ottman, 29 C. C. A. 295, 56 U. S. App. 510, 85 Fed. 493; Meyer v. Kuhn, 13 C. C. A. 298, 25 U. S. App. 174, 65 Fed. 705; Bennett v. Fenton, 10 L.R.A. 500, 41 Fed. 283; Porter Land & Water Co. v. Baskin, 43 Fed. 323; Morris v. Graham, 51 Fed. 53; Morrison v. Marker, 93 Fed. 692; York County Sav. Bank v. Abbot, 131 Fed. 984; Connor v. Tennessee C. R. Co. 54 L.R.A. 687, 48 C. C. A. 730, 109 Fed. 931; Johnson v. Hunter, 127 Fed. 219; Perkins v. Wakeham, 86 Cal. 580, 21 Am. St. Rep. 67, 25 Pac. 51; Quarl v. Abbett, 102 Ind. 233, 52 Am. Rep. 662, 1 N. E. 476; Dillon v. Heller, 39 Kan. 599, 18 Pac. 693; Lane v. Innes, 43 Minn. 137, 45 N. W. 4; State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175; McClymond v. Noble, 84 Minn. 329, 87 Am. St. Rep. 354, 87 N. W. 838; Lantry v. Parker, 37 Neb. 353, 55 N. W. 962; Sloane v. Martin, 145 N. Y. 524, 28 L.R.A.

347, 45 Am. St. Rep. 630, 40 N. E. 217; McLaughlin v. McCrory, 55 Ark. 442, 29 Am. St. Rep. 56, 18 S. W. 762; Hanseom v. Hanseom, 6 Colo. App. 97, 39 Pac. 885; Harris v. Palmore, 74 Ga. 273; Otis v. De Boer, 116 Ind. 531, 19 N. E. 317; State ex rel. Michener v. Scanlon, 2 Ind. App. 320, 28 N. E. 426, 430; Williams v. Westcott, 77 Iowa, 332, 14 Am. St. Rep. 287, 42 N. W. 314; Venable v. Dutch, 37 Kan. 515, 1 Am. St. Rep. 262, 15 Pac. 520; Wunstel v. Landry, 39 La. Ann. 312, 1 So. 893; Young v. Upshur, 42 La. Ann. 362, 21 Am. St. Rep. 381, 7 So. 557; Cousins v. Alworth, 44 Minn. 505, 10 L.R.A. 504, 47 N. W. 169; Peters v. Dunnells, 5 Neb. 460; Keene v. Sallenbach, 15 Neb. 200, 18 N. W. 75; Watson v. Ulbrich, 18 Neb. 186, 24 N. W. 732; Sandiford v. Hempstead, 97 App. Div. 163, 90 N. Y. Supp. 79; Bernhardt v. Brown, 118 N. C. 700, 36 L.R.A. 402, 24 S. E. 527, 715; American Bldg. & L. Asso. v. Mathews, 13 Tex. Civ. App. 425, 35 S. W. 690; Roller v. Holley, 13 Tex. Civ. App. 636, 35 S. W. 1074; Martin v. Pond, 30 Fed. 15; Scarborough v. Myrick, 47 Neb. 794, 66 N. W. 867; Fowler v. Brown, 51 Neb. 414, 71 N. W. 54; Pool v. Lamon, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 28 S. W. 363.

Proceedings to determine the rights of unknown claimants are constitutional, and the rights of such claimants may be foreclosed in proceedings either strictly or substantially in rem.

Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 313, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 682, 119 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812; Robinson v. Kerrigan, 151 Cal. 40, 121 Am. St. Rep. 90, 90 Pac. 129, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 829; People ex rel. Smith v. Crissman, 41 Colo. 450, 92 Pac. 949, 23 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1241; Shepherd v. Ware, 46 Minn. 174, 24 Am. St. Rep. 212, 48 N. W. 773; Boswell v. Otis, 9 How. 348, 350, 13 L. ed. 169, 170; McClymond v. Noble, 84 Minn. 329, 87 Am. St. Rep. 354, 87 N. W. 838; State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175; Hardy v. Beaty, 84 Tex. 562, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80, 19 S. W. 778; Belcher v. Mhoon, 47 Miss. 613; Sloan v. Thompson, 4 Tex. Civ. App. 419, 23 S. W. 613; 30 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 206; Mason v. Messenger, 17 Iowa, 261; Sullivant v. Weaver, 10 Ohio, 275; People ex rel. Deneen v. Simon, 176 Ill. 165, 44 L.R.A. 801, 68 Am. St. Rep. 175, 52 N. E. 910; Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 256, 40 L. ed. 691, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Hall v. Melvin, 62 Ark. 439, 54 Am. St. Rep. 301, 33 S. W. 1109; McMahan v. Smith, 69 Ark. 591, 65 S. W. 459; Johnson v. Thomas, 23 App. D. C. 141; Gwin v. Brown, 21 App. D. C. 312; Simmons v. Fry, 8 Mackey, 472; People's Nat. Bank v. Cleveland, 117 Ga. 908, 44 S. E. 20; Pile v. McBratney, 15 Ill. 314; Mulvey v. Gibbons, 87 Ill. 367; Bertrand v. Taylor, 87 Ill. 235; Heacock v. Lubuke, 107 Ill. 396; Gage v. Caraher, 125 Ill. 447, 17 N. E. 777; Smith v. Gage, 11 Biss. 217, 12 Fed. 32; Glos v. Mulcahy, 210 Ill. 639, 71 N. E. 629; Gormley v. Clark, 134 U. S. 338, 33 L. ed. 909, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 554; Thornton v. Houtze, 91 Ill. 199; Burton v. Perry, 146 Ill. 71, 34 N. E. 60; Dickey v. Chicago, 152 Ill. 468, 38 N. E. 932; Walker v. Ogden, 192 Ill. 314, 61 N. E. 403; Whitney v. Kimball, 4 Ind. 546, 58 Am. Dec. 638; Otis v. DeBoer, 116 Ind. 531, 19 N. E. 317; Guise v. Early, 72 Iowa, 283, 33 N. W. 683; Shirley v. Mitchell, 3 J. J. Marsh, 684; Benningfield v. Reed, 8 B. Mon. 102; Hynes v. Oldham, 3 T. B. Mon. 266; Taylor v. Bate, 4 T. B. Mon. 267; Blight v. Banks, 6 T. B. Mon. 192, 17 Am. Dec. 136; Tevis v. Richardson, 7 T. B. Mon. 657; Jeffrey v. Hand, 7 Dana, 89; Thurston v. Masterson, 9 Dana, 228; Foxcroft v. Barnes, 29 Me. 128; Coombs v. Persons Unknown, 82 Me. 326, 19 Atl. 826; Cook v. Allen, 2 Mass. 462; Foster v. Abbot, 8 Met. 596; Loring v. Hildreth, 170 Mass. 328, 40 L.R.A. 127, 64 Am. St. Rep. 301, 49 N. E. 652; Ware v. Easton, 46 Minn. 180, 48 N. W. 775; Inglee v. Welles, 53 Minn. 197, 55 N. W. 117; Dewey v. Kimball, 89 Minn. 454, 95 N. W. 317, 895, 96 N. W. 704; State ex rel. Petts v. Staley, 76 Mo. 158; Charles v. Morrow, 99 Mo. 638, 12 S. W. 903; Coombs v. Crabtree, 105 Mo. 292, 16 S. W. 830; Myers v. McRay, 114 Mo. 377, 21 S. W. 730; Rohrer v. Oder, 124 Mo. 24, 27 S. W. 606; Cole v. Hall, 2 Hill, 625; Denning v. Corwin, 11 Wend, 647; Allen v. Allen, 11 How. Pr. 277; Moran v. Conoma, 27 Jones & S. 101, 13 N. Y. Supp. 625; Wheeler v. Scully, 50 N. Y. 667; People ex rel. Griffin v. Ryder, 65 Hun, 175, 19 N. Y. Supp. 977; Guyer v. Raymond, 8 Misc. 606, 29 N. Y. Supp. 395; Rogers v. Tucker, 7 Ohio St. 417; Harris v. Daugherty, 74 Tex. 1, 15 Am. St. Rep. 812, 11 S. W. 921; Byrnes v. Sampson, 74 Tex. 79, 11 S. W. 1073; Taliaferro v. Butler, 77 Tex. 578, 14 S. W. 191; Pool v. Lamon, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 28 S. W. 363; Bassett v. Sherrod, 13 Tex. Civ. App. 327, 35 S. W. 312; American Bldg. & L. Asso. v. Mathews, 13 Tex. Civ. App. 425, 35 S. W. 690; Kilmer v. Brown, 28 Tex. Civ. App. 420, 67 S. W. 1090; Kane v. Rock River Canal Co. 15 Wis. 179; Nash v. Church, 10 Wis. 303, 78 Am. Dec. 678; Truesdell v. Rhodes, 26 Wis. 215; Gray v. Gates, 37 Wis. 614; Meyer v. Kuhn, 13 C. C. A. 298, 25 U. S. App. 174, 65 Fed. 705; Brickell v. Farrell, 82 Fed. 220; Bryan v. Kennett, 113 U. S.

179, 28 L. ed. 908, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407; Huling v. Kaw Valley R. & Improv. Co. 130 U. S. 559, 32 L. ed. 1045, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603; Leigh v. Green, 193 U. S. 79, 48 L. ed. 623, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390, 4 Harvard L. Rev. 280; Carino v. Insular Government, 212 U. S. 449, 53 L. ed. 594, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334; Lawrence v. Hardy, 151 N. C. 123, 134 Am. St. Rep. 976, 65 S. E. 766; Ballard v. Hunter, 204 U. S. 241, 51 L. ed. 461, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261; Savage v. Gray, 96 Me. 557, 53 Atl. 61; Hess v. Webb, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 113 S. W. 618; Winn v. Campbell, 94 Ark. 338, 126 S. W. 1059; Nunley v. Blanton, — Tex. —, 126 S. W. 1110; Howell v. Garton, 82 Kan. 495, 108 Pac. 844; Kircher v. M. Keating & Sons Co. 145 Ill. App. 1; Sellers v. Simpson, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 115 S. W. 888; Parks v. Crockett, 61 Me. 489; Sheridan v. Ireland, 61 Me. 486.

The notice to unknown claimants is not only as full as could be devised, but is of the same efficacy as that afforded by any proceeding in which the rights of such persons may be concluded.

Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812; State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175; People ex rel. Deucen v. Simon, 176 Ill. 165, 44 L.R.A. 801, 68 Am. St. Rep. 175, 52 N. E. 910; People ex rel. Smith v. Crissman, 41 Colo. 450, 92 Pac. 949; Robinson v. Kerrigan, 151 Cal. 40, 121 Am. St. Rep. 90, 90 Pac. 129, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 829; McGehee, Due Process of Law, p. 117.

The proceeding prescribed by the act is conclusive upon unknown claimants not only as a judicial and binding determination of their rights, but as a statute of limitations.

Gormley v. Clark, 134 U. S. 338, 33 L. ed. 909, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 554; Bertrand v. Taylor, 87 Ill. 235, 238.

The suggestion that the proceeding prescribed by the act is not judicial concerns only the right of the legislature, under the state Constitution, to confer jurisdiction over such proceedings upon the courts of the state. The decision of the state supreme court that the proceeding is strictly judicial is decisive of this question.

Reetz v. Michigan, 188 U. S. 505, 47 L. ed. 563, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390; Dreyer v. Illinois, 187 U. S. 71, 83, 47 L. ed. 79, 85, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 32, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 253.

The contention that the proceeding prescribed by the act is nonjudicial rests upon no claim that any element or essential of due process of law is denied a party, but upon the suggestion that the legislature has no right to create a cause of action for the discovery and settlement of unknown claims to real property.

Simon v. Craft, 182 U. S. 427, 45 L. ed. 1165, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 836; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 409, 410, 45 L. ed. 252, 254, 255, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

The 14th Amendment does not control the power of a state to prescribe the basis of relief in its courts, or the forms of procedure therein.

Hooker v. Los Angeles, 188 U. S. 314, 47 L. ed. 487, 63 L.R.A. 471, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 397; Iowa C. R. Co. v. Iowa, 160 U. S. 389, 393, 40 L. ed. 467, 469, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 344; Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 468, 35 L. ed. 225, 227, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579.

The opinions rendered by the supreme court of California show that the proceeding prescribed by the act is unquestionably judicial.

Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 289, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 682, 119 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356; Robinson v. Kerrigan, 151 Cal. 46, 121 Am. St. Rep. 90, 90 Pac. 129, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 829; Hoffman v. Superior Court, 151 Cal. 386, 90 Pac. 939.

Mr. Garret W. McEnerney also filed a separate brief as amicus curiæ:

The act, as construed by the supreme court of California, does require that the plaintiff make inquiry and exercise diligence to ascertain the identity of all who may claim an interest in or lien upon the property described in his complaint.

Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 289, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 682, 119 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356; Hoffman v. Superior Ct. 151 Cal. 386, 90 Pac. 939.

But, even if the supreme court of California had not already determined the question, there could be no doubt of the meaning of the statute. Under all statutes providing for service of process upon unknown claimants, it is held that no person is such whose claims can by diligence be discovered.

Leigh v. Green, 64 Neb. 533, 101 Am. St. Rep. 592, 90 N. W. 255; Shepherd v. Ware, 46 Minn. 174, 24 Am. St. Rep. 212, 48 N. W. 773; Mulvey v. Gibbons, 87 Ill. 377; Nunley v. Blanton, — Tex. —, 126 S. W. 1110.

So, where these statutes do not (as does the one here involved) require the plaintiff to be in actual possession before he may begin an action against unknown owners, it is held that a party in possession cannot be an "unknown," since due diligence would discover him.

State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175; Sellers v. Simpson, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 115 S. W. 888.

The words "known" and "unknown," so employed, are always held to refer to persons or things capable of being known with the exercise of reasonable diligence. The phrase "known property" means "property which, by use of ordinary diligence, might have been known."

Tucker v. Wells, 12 Vt. 240; Farnham v. Thomas, 56 Vt. 33; Moore v. Quint, 44 Vt. 97.

The means of knowledge are in effect the same thing as knowledge itself.

Wood v. Carpenter, 101 U. S. 143, 25 L. ed. 809.

Due process of law depends upon reasonable notice and an opportunity to be heard; not upon the requirement or form of an affidavit preliminary to publication, or any particular form of procedure.

Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 28 L. ed. 232, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 78, 110, 111, 53 L. ed. 97, 110, 111, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14.

Mr. Chief Justice White, after making the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

Although not objecting to an answer to the questions, nevertheless the American Land Company, which was the appellant below, suggests at bar a want of power to reply to the questions for a twofold reason: 59]First, because *the certificate on its face indicates that the court below was not in a state of mind which required the instruction of this court, but was merely desirous of provoking a direct decision by this court, to avoid the delay and the public inconvenience which otherwise might result. Second, because the certificate is so broad as simply to refer the whole case to this court for decision, instead of presenting definite propositions of law for solution. While it may be that these suggestions find possible support, considering the record in a detached way, we think when the certificate is considered as a whole, and the subject with which it deals is properly weighed, the suggestions are without merit. We therefore pass to a consideration of the questions propounded.

It is apparent that the substantial considerations involved in the questions certified are embraced in the following: (a) the authority of the state to deal with the subject with which the statute is concerned; (b) upon the hypothesis of the existence of power, the sufficiency of the safeguards provided in the statute; (c) upon the like hypothesis the adequacy of the proceedings had in the particular cause with which the certificate deals. We shall consider these subjects separately.

As to the power of the state.

The conditions which led to the legislation in question were stated by the supreme court of California in Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan, 150 Cal. 289, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 682, 119 Am. St. Rep. 199, 88 Pac. 356. The court said:

"It is also matter of common knowledge that in the city and county of San Francisco, at least, if not in other counties, the disaster of April last worked so great a destruction of the public records as to make it impossible to trace any title with completeness or certainty. That some provision was necessary to enable the holders and owners of real estate in this city to secure to themselves such evidence of title as would enable them not only to *defend[60 their possession, but to enjoy and exercise the equally important right of disposition, is clear."

As it is indisputable that the general welfare of society is involved in the security of the titles to real estate and in the public registry of such titles, it is obvious that the power to legislate as to such subjects inheres in the very nature of government. This being true, it follows that government possesses the power to remedy the confusion and uncertainty as to registered titles arising from a disaster like that described by the court below. We might well pursue no further the subject of the power of the state to enact the law in question, and thus leave its authority to depend upon the demonstration necessarily resulting from the obvious considerations just stated. As, however, the question of power is intimately interwoven with the sufficiency of the procedure adopted, and as a clear comprehension of the scope of the power will serve to elucidate the question of procedure, we shall briefly refer to some of the leading cases by which the elementary doctrine of power over the subject of titles to real estate, and the application of that doctrine to a case like the one in hand, is settled beyond question. That a state has the power, generally speaking, to provide for and protect individual rights to the soil within its confines, and declare what shall form a cloud on the title to such soil, was recognized in Clark v. Smith, 13 Pet. 195, 10 L. ed. 123. So, also, it is conclusively established that when the public interests demand, the law may require even a party in actual possession of land, and claiming a perfect title, to appear before a properly constituted tribunal, and establish that title by a judicial proceeding. Such was the method employed by the United States in settling, as between itself and claimants under Mexican grants, the title to property in California. Barker v. Harvey, 181 U. S. 481, 45 L. ed. 963, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 690; Mitchell v. Furman, 180 U. S. 402, 45 L. ed. 596, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 430; Botiller v. Dominguez, 130 U. S. 238, 32 L. ed. 926, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 525; More v. Steinbach, 127 U. S. 70, 32 L. ed. 51, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1067.

61] *The question of what authority a state possesses over titles to real estate, and what jurisdiction over the subject it may confer upon its courts, received much consideration in Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316, 33 L. ed. 918, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557. It was there held that, even as to ordinary controversies respecting title to land, arising between rival claimants, the state possessed the power to provide for the adjudication of titles to real estate not only as against residents, but as against nonresidents, who might be brought into court by publication. In the course of the opinion the court said (p. 320):

"It [the state] has control over property within its limits; and the condition of ownership of real estate therein, whether the owner be stranger or citizen, is subjection to its rules concerning the holding, the transfer, liability to obligations, private or public, and the modes of establishing titles thereto. It cannot bring the person of a nonresident within its limits,—its process goes not out beyond its borders,—but it may determine the extent of his title to real estate within its limits; and for the purpose of such determination may provide any reasonable methods of imparting notice. The well-being of every community requires that the title to real estate therein shall be secured, and that there be convenient and certain methods of determining any unsettled questions respecting it. The duty of accomplishing this is local in its nature; it is not a matter of national concern or vested in the general government; it remains with the state; and as this duty is one of the state, the manner of discharging it must be determined by the state, and no proceeding which it provides can be declared invalid, unless in conflict with some special inhibitions of the Constitution, or against natural justice."

Manifestly, under circumstances like those here presented, the principle applies with equal force in the case of unknown claimants. Undisclosed and unknown claim-

62] ants *are, to say the least, as dangerous to the stability of titles as other classes. This principle received recognition and was applied in Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 256, 40 L. ed. 691, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585, where it was held to be competent for a state to make provision for promptly ascertaining, by appropriate judicial proceedings, who has succeeded to property upon the death of a person leaving such property within the state. It was said (p. 275):

"If such proceedings are had, after actual notice by service of summons to all known claimants, and constructive notice by publication to all possible claimants who are unknown, the final determination of the right of succession, either among private persons, as in the ordinary administration of estates, or between all persons and the state, as by inquest of office or similar process to determine whether the estate has escheated to the public, is due process of law; and a statute providing for such proceedings and determination does not impair the obligation of any contract contained in the grant under which the former owner held, whether that grant was from the state or from a private person."

The application of the doctrine of governmental power, as just stated, to a condition like the one here in question, was aptly pointed out by the supreme court of Illinois in Bertrand v. Taylor, 87 Ill. 235, where, in considering the Illinois burnt record act, the court said:

"It was demanded as a matter of safety in a great emergency. It was not calculated to take any reasonable being by surprise. It was known throughout the civilized world that a large part of the city of Chicago had been destroyed by fire, and that the records of the courts and the records of deeds were all destroyed. This naturally commanded the attention of all reasonable persons everywhere, and called upon them to attend and see what means would be adopted to mitigate the evils and dangers incident to the destruction. This legislation was not done *in a corner,[63 but before the observation of the civilized world. We cannot doubt the power of the general assembly to pass the act."

The supreme court of California, in the Kerrigan Case, supra, addressing itself to the same subject, pertinently observed:

"Applying the principles which have led the courts in cases like Arndt v. Griggs and Perkins v. Wakeham, 86 Cal. 580, 21 Am. St. Rep. 67, 25 Pac. 51, to sustain judgments quieting titles against nonresidents upon substituted service, why should not the legislature have power to give similar effect to such judgments against unknown claimants where the notice is reasonably full and complete? The validity of such judgments against known residents is based upon the grounds that the state has power to provide for the determination of titles to real estate within its borders, and that, as against nonresident defendants or others, who cannot be served in the state, a substituted service is permissible, as being the only service possible. These grounds apply with equal force to unknown claimants. The power of the state as to titles should not be limited to settling them as against persons named. In order to exercise this power to its fullest extent, it is necessary that it should be made to operate on all interests, known and unknown. As was said by Holmes, Ch. J., in Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812, in speaking of a statute which, in the particular under discussion, was similar to ours: 'If it does not satisfy the Constitution a judicial proceeding to clear titles against all the world hardly is possible; for the very meaning of such a proceeding is to get rid of unknown as well as known claimants—indeed, certainty against the unknown may be said to be its chief end,—and unknown claimants cannot be dealt with by personal service upon the claimant.'"

The power exerted by the act being, then, 64]clearly within *the legislative authority, we are brought to consider whether the lawful power was manifested in such a manner as to cause the act to be repugnant to the 14th Amendment. And this brings us to the second proposition heretofore stated, viz.:

The adequacy of the safeguards which the statute provides.

As no complaint is made concerning the provisions of the statute relating to the designation of and notice to known claimants, we put that subject out of view and address ourselves to the provisions relating to unknown claimants or claims. The action which the statute authorizes may be brought by "any person who claims an estate of inheritance or for life in, and who is by himself or his tenant, or other person holding under him, in the actual and peaceable possession of any real property" situated in a county where "the public records in the office of a county recorder have been lost or destroyed, in whole or in any material part, by flood, fire, or earthquake." In the caption of the complaint the statute requires that the defendants shall be described as "all persons claiming any interest in or lien upon the real property herein described, or any part thereof." The summons is required to contain a description of the property affected by the suit, and to be directed to "all persons claiming an interest in or lien upon the real property herein described, or any part thereof." The summons is to be published at least once a week for two months, and the defendants are commanded to appear and answer within three months after the first publication of the summons. A copy of the summons is required to be posted in a conspicuous place on each separate parcel of the property described in the complaint within fifteen days after the first publication of the summons. At the time of filing the complaint a notice of the pendency of the action, giving, among other things, a particular description of the property affected thereby, must be recorded *in the office of the recorder of the coun-[65 ty in which the property is situated, and it is made the duty of the recorder to enter, "upon a map or plat of the parcels of land, to be kept by him for that purpose, on that part of the map or plat representing the parcel or parcels so described, a reference to the date of the filing of such notice, and, when recorded, to the book and page of the record thereof." In considering the statute, we are bound by the construction affixed to it by the supreme court of the state, and therefore treat as embraced within its terms that which the highest court of the state has declared the statute exacts, either expressly or by necessary implication. In the Kerrigan Case, supra, it was held that the result of the provisions of the statute was "to require the complainant to designate and to serve as known claimants all whom, with reasonable diligence, he could ascertain to be claimants,"—a construction which in effect declared that the statute prohibited the omission of a known claim or claimant, upon the conception that the rights of such claim or claimant would be foreclosed by the general designation and notice prescribed for unknown claimants. And in Hoffman v. Superior Court, 151 Cal. 386, 90 Pac. 939, where the doctrine of the Kerrigan Case was reiterated and applied, the court, after holding that the statute requires the plaintiff in his affidavit to allege in terms "that he does not know and has never been informed" of any adverse claimants whom he has not specifically named, pointed out that failure of the plaintiff to make inquiry or to avail himself of knowledge which would be imputed to him because of facts sufficient to put him on inquiry as to the existence of adverse claims would be available "in any subsequent attack upon the decree, upon the ground that there was extraneous fraud of the plaintiff in making a false affidavit to obtain jurisdiction."

It is to be borne in mind that it has been settled (Griffith v. Connecticut, 218 U. S. 563, 54 L. ed. 1151, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132, 66]and cases cited) that *the 14th Amendment does not operate to deprive the states of their lawful power, and of the right, in the exercise of such power, to resort to reasonable methods inherently belonging to the power exerted. On the contrary, the provisions of the due process clause only restrain those arbitrary and unreasonable exertions of power which are not really within lawful state power, since they are so unreasonable and unjust as to impair or destroy fundamental rights.

It is to be observed that the statute not only requires a disclosure by the plaintiff of all known claimants, but moreover, at the very outset, contains words of limitation that no one not in the actual and peaceable possession of property can maintain the action which it authorizes. No person can therefore be deprived of his property under the statute unless he had not only gone out of possession of such property and allowed another to acquire possession, or, if he had a claim to such property or an interest therein, had so entirely failed to disclose that fact as to enable a possessor to truthfully make the affidavit which the statute exacts of a want of all knowledge of the existence of other claimants than as disclosed in his affidavit. Besides, it is to be considered that the statute, as construed by the California court, imposed upon the one in possession seeking the establishment of an alleged title the duty to make diligent inquiry to ascertain the names of all claimants. Instead, therefore, of the statute amounting to the exertion of a purely unreasonable and arbitrary power, its provisions leave no room for that contention. On the contrary, we think the statute manifests the careful purpose of the legislature to provide every reasonable safeguard for the protection of the rights of unknown claimants, and to give such notice as, under the circumstances, would be reasonably likely to bring the fact of the pendency and the purpose of the proceeding to the attention of those interested. To argue that the provisions 67]*of the statute are repugnant to the due process clause because a case may be conceived where rights in and to property would be adversely affected without notice being actually conveyed by the proceedings is in effect to deny the power of the state to deal with the subject. The criterion is not the possibility of conceivable injury, but the just and reasonable character of the requirements, having reference to the subject with which the statute deals. The doctrine on this subject was clearly expressed by the court of appeals of New York in Re Empire City Bank, 18 N. Y. 199, where, speaking of the right of a state to prescribe in a suitable case for constructive service, it was said:

"Various prudential regulations are made with respect to these remedies, but it may possibly happen, notwithstanding all these precautions, that a citizen who owes nothing, and has done none of the acts mentioned in the statute, may be deprived of his estate without any actual knowledge of the process by which it has been taken from him. If we hold, as we must, in order to sustain this legislation, that the Constitution does not positively require personal notice in order to constitute a legal proceeding due process of law, it then belongs to the legislature to determine in the particular instance whether the case calls for this kind of exceptional legislation, and what manner of constructive notice shall be sufficient to reasonably apprise the party proceeded against of the legal steps which are taken against him."

And in accordance with this view, the supreme court of California, in the Kerrigan Case, pointed out that the statute furnished all the safeguards for which, in reason, it could have been expected to provide consistently with the condition dealt with. The court said:

"Where, as here, the summons describing the nature of the action, the property involved, the name of the plaintiff, and the relief sought, is posted upon the property, *and is published in a newspaper for[68 two months, and a lis pendens containing the same particulars is recorded in the recorder's office and entered upon the recorder's map of the property, we cannot doubt that, so far as concerns the possible claimants who are not known to the plaintiff, the notice prescribed by the act is as complete and full as, from the nature of the case, could reasonably be expected."

The case of Ballard v. Hunter, 204 U. S. 241, 51 L. ed. 461, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261, is instructive on this feature of the case. In that case a judgment of the circuit court of Arkansas was affirmed which sustained the validity of a sale of lands for levee taxes. The Arkansas statute authorized the proceedings which had resulted in the sale, upon constructive publication against nonresidents and unknown owners. Lands of Josephine Ballard were sold under the statutory proceeding, she not having knowledge of the existence of the suit or of the fact that the taxes had been assessed against her property. In the course of the opinion the court, speaking through Mr. Justice McKenna, said (p. 261):

"It is said, however, that Josephine Ballard was not made a defendant in the suit, though the records of the county showed that she was an owner thereof. But the statute provided against such an omission. It provided that the proceedings and judgment should be in the nature of proceedings in rem, and that it should be immaterial that the ownership of the lands might be incorrectly alleged in the proceedings. We see no want of due process in that requirement, or what was done under it. It is manifest that any criticism of either is answered by the cases we have cited. The proceedings were appropriate to the nature of the case.

"It should be kept in mind that the laws of a state come under the prohibition of the 14th Amendment only when they infringe fundamental rights. A law must be framed and judged of in consideration of 69]the practical *affairs of man. The law cannot give personal notice of its provisions or proceedings to everyone. It charges everyone with knowledge of its provisions; of its proceedings it must, at times, adopt some form of indirect notice, and indirect notice is usually efficient notice when the proceedings affect real estate. Of what concerns or may concern their real estate, men usually keep informed, and on that probability the law may frame its proceedings; indeed, must frame them, and assume the care of property to be universal, if it would give efficiency to many of its exercises. This was pointed out in Huling v. Kaw Valley R. & Improv. Co. 130 U. S. 559, 32 L. ed. 1045, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603, where it was declared to be the 'duty of the owner of real estate, who is a nonresident, to take measures that in some way he shall be represented when his property is called into requisition; and if he fails to get notice by the ordinary publications which have been usually required in such cases, it is his misfortune, and he must abide the consequences.' It makes no difference, therefore, that plaintiffs in error did not have personal notice of the suit to collect the taxes on their lands, or that taxes had been levied, or knowledge of the law under which the taxes had been levied."

While we are of opinion that the views just stated demonstrate the want of merit in the contention that the statute, because of the insufficiency of its requirements, was repugnant to the 14th Amendment, a consideration of a provision of the general law of California, which, by the construction of the supreme court of California, is incorporated into the statute under consideration, would lead to the same result. Thus, in the Hoffman Case, the court said:

"In this connection it is proper to say that, in determining whether or not due process of law is afforded, other statutes applicable to the proceeding may be considered. The provisions of § 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure *apply in such cases.[70 Any person interested in the property, and having no actual notice of the decree, may come in at any time within a year after its rendition, and by showing that he has not been personally served with process, and stating facts constituting a good defense to the proceeding,—that is, facts sufficient to show that he has a valid adverse interest in the property,—he may have the decree vacated as to him, and be allowed to answer to the merits."

The right conferred by § 473 of the Code, it is to be observed, is an absolute right, although the section declares that the court may impose "such terms as may be just." Holiness Church v. Metropolitan Church Asso. 12 Cal. App. 445, 107 Pac. 635; Gray v. Lawlor, 151 Cal. 352, 90 Pac. 691, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 990.

Under this construction it might well be held, if it were necessary to do so, as establishing a rule of limitation which it was in the power of the state to prescribe, in view of the circumstances to which the limitation was made applicable. See Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812, and State ex rel. Douglas v. Westfall, 85 Minn. 437, 57 L.R.A. 297, 89 Am. St. Rep. 571, 89 N. W. 175. See also Illinois cases concerning the power to fix a short period of limitation to meet a disaster like the one to which the statute in question relates, collected in Gormley v. Clark, 134 U. S. 346, 347, 33 L. ed. 913, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 554.

These views dispose of all the contentions concerning the repugnancy of the statute to the 14th Amendment which we think it necessary to separately consider. In saying this we are not unmindful of a multitude of subordinate propositions pressed in the voluminous brief of counsel, and which were all in effect urged upon the supreme court of California in the Kerrigan and Hoffman Cases, and were in those cases adversely disposed of, and which we also find to be without merit. Some of them we briefly refer to. We do not think it is important to determine the precise nature of the action authorized by *the statute,[71 since the method of procedure which was prescribed was within the legislative competency. So, also, we do not deem it important to discuss what constitutes a judicial proceeding, since the statutory proceeding provided by the act was within the authority of the state to enact, and that it was judicial in character has been expressly determined by the court of last resort of the state. Indeed, not only these, but all the contentions proceed upon a misconception as to the legislative authority of the state and the effect thereon of the due process clause of the Constitution of the United States. The error which all the propositions involve was pointed out in Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 78, 53 L. ed. 97, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14, where, speaking by Mr. Justice Moody, the court said:

"Due process requires that the court which assumes to determine the rights of parties shall have jurisdiction [citing cases], and that there shall be notice and opportunity for hearing given the parties [citing cases]. Subject to these two fundamental conditions, which seem to be universally prescribed in all systems of law established by civilized countries, this court has, up to this time, sustained all state laws, statutory or judicially declared, regulating procedure, evidence, and methods of trials, and held them to be consistent with due process of law."

3. The adequacy of the proceedings pursued in the case referred to in the certificate.

As there is no claim that fraud, actual or constructive, was employed by Zeiss in obtaining the judgment complained of, and the proceedings conformed to the California statute, the considerations previously stated entirely dispose of this question.

It follows that both of the questions certified must be answered in the negative.

And it is so ordered.

72] *UNITED STATES, Plff. in Err.,
v.
JAMES T. BARBER, Sumner G. Moon, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 72-79.)

Appeal — by government in criminal case — judgment below sustaining plea in bar.

1. The judgment actually entered below, and not the terms of a stipulation of counsel previously made and filed, controls the Federal Supreme Court in determining whether such judgment is reviewable on writ of error under the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 220), as one sustaining a special plea in bar when the defendant has not been put in jeopardy.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — by government in criminal case — judgment below sustaining plea to statute of limitations.

2. A judgment of a Federal district court purporting to dismiss an indictment upon the ground that the statute of limitations was a bar to the prosecution is one sustaining a special plea in bar within the meaning of the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564), governing the right of the government to a review in a criminal case, although the plea of the statute of limitations filed and heard by consent and stipulation was denominated a plea in abatement.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Criminal law — pleading statute of limitations.

3. The averment of an indictment charging a continuing conspiracy to defraud the United States, that such conspiracy continued to the date of the filing of the indictment, must be denied under the general issue, and not by a special plea of the statute of limitations.

[For other cases, see Criminal Law, II. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — by government in criminal case — scope of review.

4. The Federal Supreme Court when reviewing, under the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564), the act of the trial court sustaining a plea in bar of the statute of limitations to an indictment charging a continuing conspiracy, is not concerned with the technical sufficiency or redundancy of the indictment, or even with any consideration of the nature of the overt acts alleged.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 444.]

Argued October 17, 18, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for the District of Idaho to review a judgment sustaining a plea of the statute of limitations to an indictment for a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Reversed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Assistant Attorney General Fowler argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. C. T. Bundy argued the cause, and, with Messrs. James H. Hawley, A. A. Fraser, N. H. Clapp, A. E. McCartney, Joseph G. Dudley, and Roy P. Wilcox, filed a brief for defendants in error.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

On April 14, 1908, in the district court of the United States for the district of Idaho, an indictment was returned, *which,[73 in four counts, charged James T. Barber, Sumner G. Moon, Frank Martin, and Albert E. Palmer with having violated the conspiracy section of the Revised Statutes, viz., § 5440 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3676). In the court below, Frank Martin was dismissed from the indictment. Palmer made no appearance, presumably not having been arrested.

NOTE.—On review by government in criminal case under the act March 2, 1907—see note to United States v. Stevenson, 54 L. ed. U. S. 153.

The final judgment, to reverse which this writ of error was sued out, is as follows:

"Now came the attorneys for the respective parties herein, and thereupon the demurrer to the third count in the indictment herein is withdrawn by the defendants. The demurrer to the second count of the indictment is confessed by complainant, and it is ordered that the demurrer and plea in abatement to the first count of the indictment be and is hereby overruled and denied. It is further ordered that plea in abatement to the fourth count of the indictment be and is hereby sustained. Thereupon counsel for the government moved and asked that the three first counts of the indictment in the above-entitled action be nollied; thereupon said motion was granted and the cause dismissed; all in accordance with the direction of Hon. Robert S. Bean, district judge, who heretofore heard and took under advisement said demurrer and plea in abatement."

As by this judgment the first, second, and third counts of the indictment were dismissed by the court at the request of the United States, only the action of the court on the fourth count is open for consideration. It is for the purpose of correcting such action that the United States has prosecuted this writ, doing so upon the assumption that the judgment complained of is embraced within the third class of judgments which it is provided by the act of March 2, 1907 (chap. 2564, 34 Stat. at L. 1246, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 220), may be removed to this court by writ of error, viz., a judgment "sustaining a special plea in bar when the defendant has not been put in jeopardy."

74] *It is at once to be observed that the text of the judgment purports to sustain a plea in abatement to the fourth count of the indictment, and as the act of 1907 contains no provision authorizing the review of a judgment sustaining a plea in abatement, counsel for defendants in error now urge that we are without jurisdiction, because each of the pleas upon which the judgment dismissing the indictment was based was filed as a plea in abatement and was argued as such, and the judgment "is an abatement and dismissal of the pending cause only."

Briefly the state of the record on the subject is this: By the fourth count of the indictment it was charged as follows:

"And the grand jurors aforesaid, upon their oaths aforesaid, do further present that the said James T. Barber, Sumner G. Moon, Albert E. Palmer, and Frank Martin, in the state and district of Idaho, and within the jurisdiction of this court, heretofore, to wit, on the 1st day of September, in the year 1901, and at the time of the committing of the several overt acts hereinafter in this indictment set forth, and continuously at all times between said 1st day of September, in the year 1901, and the day of the presenting and filing of this indictment, did unlawfully conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together and with Frank Steunenberg, William Sweet, John Kinkaid, Louis M. Pritchard, John I. Wells, Patrick Downs, and divers other persons whose names are to the grand jurors unknown, knowingly, wickedly, falsely, and corruptly to defraud the United States of America out of the possession and use of and title to divers large tracts of timber lands of the United States situate in township 6 north, ranges 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8 east of the Boisé meridian, township 7 north, ranges 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8 east of the Boisé meridian, and township 8 north, range 5 east of the Boisé meridian, in the county *of Boisé, in the state[75 of Idaho, and within the Boisé, Idaho, land district of the United States, all of which lands were then and there public lands of the United States, with the intent and purpose unlawfully to obtain the title to said lands for the use, benefit, and profit of themselves and a certain corporation thereafter to be organized, and organized, to wit, the Barber Lumber Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Wisconsin, and doing business in the state of Idaho, with an office and agent at the city of Boisé in said state, and ultimately to obtain the transfer of the title to said lands to said corporation. . . ."

The count next averred in substance that the object of the conspiracy was to be accomplished by unlawfully, etc., procuring a large number of persons to apply for and enter lands under the timber laws of the United States, for the use and benefit of the conspirators, upon the following understandings and agreements to be had with the proposed applicants prior to and at the time of the first application to enter the lands: (a) that the title to lands to be applied for, when acquired, should inure to the use and benefit of the conspirators and the corporation; (b) that the conspirators should select the land, furnish a description of the same to each applicant, prepare all necessary papers in connection with each application, and represent the applicants before the Land Department; and (c) that the conspirators should advance any money needed to make a final payment, and without expense to the applicants should prepare the necessary conveyances to vest a record title to the land acquired in the conspirators and the corporation. The remainder of the count dealt with the overt acts charged to have been done in furtherance of the conspiracy. Some of the overt acts were alleged to have been committed upon dates more than three years before and others upon dates within three years of the filing of the indictment.

76] *Barber and Moon demurred to the count, on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute an offense against or under the laws of the United States. The demurrer was argued, and at the close of the hearing leave was given "to file plea in abatement and motion to quash the indictment on account of duplicity." Each defendant thereupon filed what was denominated a "plea in abatement," which concluded with the prayer that the particular defendant might be "dismissed and discharged . . . from the premises" as to such count. The ground upon which it was insisted that the United States ought not to further prosecute was stated to be that the offense was barred "by the provision of § 1044 of the Revised Statutes of the United States of America (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 725), in this: that more than three years have elapsed between the date of the commission of the alleged crime . . . and the date of the finding of the said indictment." Recitals were made in the plea, tending to support the claim that the particular defendant was not a fugitive from justice at any time between the dates of the commission of the offense alleged and the finding of the indictment. The United States demurred to each of the pleas, and argument was had thereon. Subsequently, the judgment which we have heretofore excerpted was entered. On the same day the following stipulation was signed by counsel and filed with the papers in the case:

"The court, by order duly filed, having sustained the demurrer and plea in abatement of the defendants James T. Barber and Sumner G. Moon to the fourth count of the indictment heretofore returned and filed in the above-entitled action, it is hereby stipulated as follows:

"1st. That a nolle and order of dismissal shall, under the consent of the court, be entered in the above-entitled proceedings as to counts numbered 1, 2, and 3 thereof.

77] *"2d. That the demurrer and plea in abatement of the defendants to the fourth count of said indictment shall be heard and determined together, and that the order or ruling made on either shall be deemed to have been made on both."

In support of the contention that the pleas of the statute of limitations, filed below, should be regarded in this court, as they were designated below, as pleas in abatement, it is urged by counsel for defendants in error that the pleas presented the following propositions:

"First, conceding that the indictment alleged the existence of a conspiracy within three years, there was no allegation of any act within that time which could, by any possible interpretation, be said to have been done to effectuate its purpose; and therefore the right to prosecute had not accrued; and second, that as all acts therein alleged which could be said to effectuate the purpose of the conspiracy were performed more than three years before filing the indictment, the government should proceed no further on this indictment."

The claim is then made "that in cases of conspiracy, a plea in abatement is the proper method of raising the defense that the right to prosecute has not accrued, because no one of the conspirators has 'done an act to effectuate the object of the conspiracy.'"

Following this claim, it is urged that the defendants have, by reason of the stipulation heretofore referred to, "the right to a formal judgment dismissing the action on demurrer for the reason that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute an offense." Upon this assumption it seems to be contended that the judgment should be regarded as entered on the demurrer, and as the judgment does not show that the trial court decided any question in passing on such demurrer which would give this court jurisdiction, the writ of error should be dismissed.

So far as the claim based upon the stipulation is concerned, *it is plainly without merit, since we can only look to the judgment which was actually entered to determine what was decided with respect to the fourth count, and the court in that judgment expressly placed its decision that the United States could not prosecute the defendants upon the plea of the bar of limitations. The claim that the pleas were not in bar, but merely in abatement, is, we think, equally untenable. The designation of the respective pleas as a plea in abatement did not change their essential nature. As said by counsel for the government, "the plea of the statute of limitation does not question the validity of the indictment, but is directed to the merits of the case; and if found in favor of the defendant, the judgment is necessarily an acquittal of the defendant of the charge, and not a mere abatement of the action; and it has been universally classed, in both civil and criminal procedure, as a plea in bar, and not in abatement." The motion to dismiss the writ of error for want of jurisdiction is overruled.

[78

Many propositions have been urged at bar in support of the contention that the judgment complained of was erroneous. We find it necessary, however, to consider but one, wherein it is claimed that "a special plea in bar is not permissible in a criminal case, but the defense of the statute of limitations must be made under the general issue." This contention, as applied to the character of case now under consideration, must be sustained, upon the authority of the recent decision in United States v. Kissel, No. 390, this term [218 U. S. 601, 54 L. ed. 1168, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124]. In that case it was held that where an indictment charges a continuing conspiracy, which is expressly alleged to have continued to the date of the filing of the indictment, such allegation must be denied under the general issue, and not by a special plea, and it was further decided that in reviewing, under the act of 1907, the action of a trial court upon such a plea, "we are not concerned with the technical sufficiency or 79]*redundancy of the indictment, or even . . . with any consideration of the nature of the overt acts alleged." That the fourth count of the indictment in the case at bar to which the pleas were directed charged a continuing conspiracy is manifest. The charge is that the defendants "did unlawfully conspire," etc., "on the 1st day of September, in the year 1901, and at the time of the committing of the several overt acts hereinafter in this indictment set forth, and continuously at all times between said 1st day of September, in the year 1901, and date of the presenting and filing of this indictment." The indictment also explicitly charges a continuing object of the conspiracy, viz., the acquisition of public land within a large area of country, which was necessarily to be obtained in small parcels, and the ability to secure which in a great measure was dependent upon the power of the conspirators from time to time to procure persons willing to make the desired unlawful entries.

Judgment reversed.

WILLIAM HENDRIX, Plff. in Err.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 79–91.)

Venue — of homicide by Indian — sufficiency of order for change.

1. The Federal district court at Paris, Texas, cannot be said to have been without jurisdiction to try a member of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nation charged with homicide, because the order of the United States court in the Indian territory, changing the venue, pursuant to the act of June 28, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 511, chap. 517), § 29, did not state whether the cause was transferred to the Federal district or circuit court, but only to the "United States court" at that place, where the district court was the only court to which the case could have been removed under the statute, and the record was transferred to and filed in that court, and the case was tried there.

[Venue of action, see Venue, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — presumption — jurisdiction.

2. The presumption will be indulged that the jurisdictional fact of the Indian citizenship of the accused in a homicide case was presented to the United States court in the Indian territory, and constituted the ground of its order changing the venue, pursuant to the act of June 28, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 511, chap. 517), § 29, to the Federal district court at Paris, Texas, where such citizenship is admitted, and the affidavit upon which the order of removal was made is not in the record, and the order recited that the court granted the motion, "being well advised in the premises," and it is stated in the affidavit of the attorney for the accused, filed in support of a motion to send the case back to Oklahoma, that the motion for removal was made "under the Federal statute permitting said removal to be made."

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4106–4111, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Federal court — jurisdiction — effect of admission of state.

3. A homicide cause, the venue of which had been changed conformably to the act of June 28, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 511, chap. 517), § 29, because of the Indian citizenship of the accused, from the United States court in the Indian territory to the Federal district court at Paris, Texas, was not pending in the United States court in the Indian territory, within the meaning of the provisions of the Oklahoma enabling act of June 16, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 267, chap. 3335), § 20, as amended by the act of March 4, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1287, chap. 2911), for the transfer to the Oklahoma courts of all cases pending in the United States courts of Oklahoma and Indian territories, not transferred to the United States circuit or district courts in the state of Oklahoma.

[For other cases, see Courts, III. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Witnesses — competency — husband and wife.

4. The wife of the accused is not competent to testify in the Federal courts on his behalf.

[For other cases, see Witnesses, IV. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Note.—On competency of witnesses in Federal courts—see notes to O'Connell v. Reed, 5 C. C. A. 602; Hinchman v. Parlin & O. Co. 21 C. C. A. 278.

New trial — affidavits of jurors.

5. The trial court commits no error in denying a motion for a new trial in a criminal case, founded upon the affidavits of jurors to the effect that they did not understand the legal effect of their verdict.

[For other cases, see New Trial, V. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 319.]

Argued November 28 and 29, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Texas to review a conviction of murder. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. James G. Dudley argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Jurisdiction in a criminal case is never presumed, but must always be shown; is never waived by a defendant, and want of jurisdiction can be attacked at any stage of a criminal proceeding, or even collaterally.

Re Nielsen, 131 U. S. 176, 33 L. ed. 118, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 672; United States v. Rogers, 23 Fed. 662; Re Mills, 135 U. S. 270, 34 L. ed. 110, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 762; Re Graham, 138 U. S. 461, 34 L. ed. 1051, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 363.

When the jurisdiction of a cause depends upon a statute, the repeal of the statute takes away the jurisdiction, and causes pending at the time fall, unless saved by provision of the statute.

United States v. Boisdore, 8 How. 113, 12 L. ed. 1009; Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Grant, 98 U. S. 398, 25 L. ed. 231; United States v. Tynen, 11 Wall. 88, 20 L. ed. 153; Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Ritchie, 5 Wall. 541, 18 L. ed. 540; McNulty v. Batty, 10 How. 79, 13 L. ed. 335; Ex parte McCardle, 7 Wall. 514, 19 L. ed. 265; Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U. S. 248, 45 L. ed. 1091, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 770; Gwin v. United States, 184 U. S. 675, 46 L. ed. 750, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526; Murphy v. Utter, 186 U. S. 109, 46 L. ed. 1078, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 776; Bird v. United States, 187 U. S. 124, 47 L. ed. 103, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 42; Colt v. Young, 2 Blatchf. 473, Fed. Cas. No. 3,032; United States v. Barr, 4 Sawy. 255, Fed. Cas. No. 14,527; United States v. Hague, 22 Fed. 706; United States v. Van Vliet, 23 Fed. 35; Manley v. Olney, 32 Fed. 709; Birdseye v. Shaeffer, 37 Fed. 825; Aspley v. Murphy, 50 Fed. 377; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co. 89 Fed. 194; Fairchild v. United States, 91 Fed. 298; Strong v. United States, 93 Fed. 258; Emblen v. Lincoln Land Co. 94 Fed. 713; United States v. Jacobus, 37 C. C. A. 469, 96 Fed. 262; United States v. Kelly, 38 C. C. A. 276, 97 Fed. 461; Cincinnati Brewing Co. v. Bettman, 102 Fed. 17; Emblen v. Lincoln Land Co. 42 C. C. A. 502, 102 Fed. 562; McClain v. Williams, 10 S. D. 336, 43 L.R.A. 289, 73 N. W. 72; Roush v. Morrison, 47 Ind. 416; State ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Wharton, 25 La. Ann. 32; Walmsley v. Nicholls, 36 La. Ann. 801; State ex rel. Church v. Weeks, 38 Mo. App. 579; Olcott v. Maclean, 10 Hun, 282; State v. Bank of Tennessee, 3 Baxt. 409; Texas Mexican R. Co. v. Jarvis, 80 Tex. 464, 15 S. W. 1089.

So, if an act conferring jurisdiction is repealed, without reservation as to pending cases, they fall with it.

Sherman v. Grinnell, 123 U. S. 679, 31 L. ed. 278, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 260; National Exch. Bank v. Peters, 144 U. S. 570, 36 L. ed. 545, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 767; Gurnee v. Patrick County, 137 U. S. 141, 34 L. ed. 601, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 34; United States v. Kelly, 38 C. C. A. 276, 97 Fed. 461; Sims v. Black Dog, 9 Okla. 671, 60 Pac. 504.

And if a statute giving a special remedy is repealed without a saving clause in favor of pending suits, all suits must stop where the repeal finds them.

South Carolina v. Gaillard, 101 U. S. 433, 25 L. ed. 937; Texas Mexican R. Co. v. Jarvis, 80 Tex. 464, 15 S. W. 1089; Larkin v. Saffarans, 15 Fed. 153; Vance v. Rankin, 194 Ill. 627, 88 Am. St. Rep. 173, 62 N. E. 807; Griffis v. Payne, 22 Tex. Civ. App. 522, 55 S. W. 757; Burlington v. Burlington Traction Co. 70 Vt. 495, 41 Atl. 514; Dulin v. Lillard, 91 Va. 725, 20 S. E. 821.

The district court of the United States for the eastern district of Texas, to have had jurisdiction in this case by the order transferring the same, must not only have had jurisdiction of the offense, but must have obtained jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, by some means known to the law.

Re Johnson, 167 U. S. 124, 42 L. ed. 103, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 735.

If the wife was a competent witness by the state statute, that was controlling.

Lucas v. Brooks, 18 Wall. 436, 21 L. ed. 779.

There is no presumption in favor of the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States, but the jurisdictional facts upon which jurisdiction rests must appear from the record.

Ex parte Smith, 94 U. S. 455, 24 L. ed. 165; Grace v. American Cent. Ins. Co. 109 U. S. 283, 27 L. ed. 934, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Smith v. McNeal, 109 U. S. 431, 27 L. ed. 987, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 319; Continental L. Ins. Co. v. Rhoads, 119 U. S. 239, 30 L. ed. 380, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 193; Fishback v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 161 U. S. 100, 40 L. ed. 631, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 506.

Assistant Attorney General Fowler argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The admission of Oklahoma into the Union as a state did not abrogate the offense which plaintiff in error had committed, nor did it deprive the proper court of the power to proceed with the prosecution to a final judgment.

Holt v. United States, 218 U. S. 245, 54 L. ed. 1021, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 2; United States v. Baum, 74 Fed. 46; Stevens v. Dimond, 6 N. H. 330; Bishop, Stat. Crimes, § 182.

If the creation of Oklahoma into a state had the effect of repealing § 5339, under which this indictment was drawn, in so far as it applied to the territory embraced within said state, yet this offense was kept alive by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 13, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 6.

United States v. Reisinger, 128 U. S. 398, 32 L. ed. 480, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 99.

The United States district court at Paris, Texas, was the only court which, after the creation of the state of Oklahoma, had jurisdiction to try this case.

McNulty v. Batty, 10 How. 72, 79, 80, 13 L. ed. 333, 335, 336.

The United States court at Pauls Valley, Indian territory, had jurisdiction of both the subject-matter and of the person of William Hendrix, and the record failing to show that the facts justifying the removal existed, the order must be presumed to be valid.

Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet. 193, 7 L. ed. 650; Voorhees v. Jackson, 10 Pet. 449, 472, 9 L. ed. 490, 499; Grignon v. Astor, 2 How. 319, 338, 11 L. ed. 283, 290; Harvey v. Tyler, 2 Wall. 328, 342, 17 L. ed. 871, 873; Applegate v. Lexington & C. C. Min. Co. 117 U. S. 255, 270, 29 L. ed. 892, 896, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 742.

The change of venue was made on plaintiff in error's own motion, and he cannot now be heard to impeach its validity on the ground that the facts authorizing the transfer did not exist.

Ball v. United States, 140 U. S. 118, 35 L. ed. 377, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 761; Murphy v. Massachusetts, 177 U. S. 155, 44 L. ed. 711, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 639; Perteet v. People, 70 Ill. 178; State v. McEvoy, 68 Iowa, 355, 27 N. W. 273; People ex rel. Walker v. Court of Special Sessions, 4 Hun, 441.

Under the statutes directing the enrolment of the Indians, records thereof must be kept in the Interior Department, and the courts will take judicial knowledge of such records.

Knight v. United Land Asso. 142 U. S. 161, 169, 35 L. ed. 974, 978, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 258.

The court did not err in refusing to permit Evelina Hendrix, the wife of plaintiff in error, to testify in his behalf.

United States v. Reid, 12 How. 361, 366, 13 L. ed. 1023, 1025; Logan v. United States, 144 U. S. 263, 298, 302, 36 L. ed. 429, 441, 442, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; United States v. Black, 1 Haskell, 570, Fed. Cas. No. 14,602; United States v. Hawthorne, 1 Dill. 422, Fed. Cas. No. 15,332; United States v. Brown, 1 Sawy. 531, Fed. Cas. No. 14,671; United States v. Hall, 53 Fed. 352.

Plaintiff in error is not entitled to a new trial for the reasons set forth in certain affidavits which it is claimed were made by members of the jury.

1. These affidavits undertake to detail a misunderstanding of the jurymen as to the effect of the verdict "Guilty, without capital punishment," when jurymen cannot be permitted to impeach by affidavit their verdict upon such ground.

Mattox v. United States, 146 U. S. 140, 149, 36 L. ed. 917, 920, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50.

2. The order overruling the motion for a new trial does not recite whether the affidavits were or were not considered by the trial court. Therefore, if the affidavits were of such character that it was the duty of the court to consider them, it will be presumed that the court committed no error, and considered them; and the question whether a new trial should be granted being one within the court's discretion, and he having determined that the motion should be overruled, it is not subject to review by this court.

Henderson v. Moore, 5 Cranch, 11, 12, 3 L. ed. 22; Marine Ins. Co. v. Young, 5 Cranch, 187, 191, 3 L. ed. 74, 75; M'Lanahan v. Universal Ins. Co. 1 Pet. 187, 7 L. ed. 106; United States v. Buford, 3 Pet. 12, 32, 7 L. ed. 585, 591; Indianapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Horst, 93 U. S. 291, 23 L. ed. 898; Mattox v. United States, 146 U. S. 140, 147, 36 L. ed. 917, 920, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50.

3. The affidavits are not made a part of the bill of exceptions, and consequently constitute no part of the record in this court.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Hendrix was indicted in the United States court in the Indian territory for the crime of murder, for killing one Roler W. Voss. On his motion the case was transferred for trial to the United States court for the eastern district of Texas, at Paris, Texas. The order transferring the case recited that it was made on the motion of Hendrix, "the court being well advised in the premises."

On the 4th of March, 1909, in the district court, he objected to the jurisdiction of the court, on the ground that the crime was committed in the state of Oklahoma, and "that, under the act of Congress known as the 'enabling act,' passed June 16, 1906 [34 Stat. at L. 267, chap. 3335], all criminal cases pending in the United States court within the Indian territory were transferred to the district courts of the state of Oklahoma, and of the county of said state where the alleged offense is said to have been committed."

A motion was made to send the cause to such county, to the end that the offense "be tried in the county and state where alleged to have been committed, in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States and the statutes made in pursuance thereof."

The motion was supported by the affidavit of the attorney of Hendrix, which stated that he was instrumental in having the cause removed to Paris, Texas, on account of the prejudice of the presiding judge of the southern district of the Indian territory, and that, "under the Federal statute permitting said removal to be made, the same was done by Will Hendrix on my advice and suggestion, especially for the reason before mentioned. . . ."

87] *The motion was denied. Hendrix was convicted and sentenced to hard labor for life in the penitentiary of the United States at Atlanta, Georgia.

A motion for a new trial was made, stating as the grounds thereof certain rulings upon evidence, and the action of the court in denying the motion to transfer the case to Garvin county, Oklahoma. And the same grounds constitute the assignments of error in this court.

Another ground is urged in the argument. It is urged that the district court at Paris, Texas, did not have jurisdiction of the person of Hendrix, because, as it is contended, the order of the court changing the venue of the case directed it to be transmitted "to the United States court at Paris, Texas," and did not designate the district court, as required by the statute. "There were district and circuit courts," it is said, "for the eastern district of Texas, at Paris, Texas, but no court by the name of the 'United States court.'" And it is asked, "to which of these courts was this case transferred?" The question is easily answered. The statute under which the change of venue was made provides "that whenever a member of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations is indicted for homicide, he may, within thirty days after such indictment . . . file . . . his affidavit that he cannot get a fair trial, . . . and it thereupon shall be the duty of the judge . . . to order a change of venue in such case to the United States district court for the western district of Arkansas, at Fort Smith, Arkansas, or to the United States district court for the eastern district of Texas, at Paris, Texas. . . ." 30 Stat. at L. 511, chap. 517. Reading the order of the court changing the venue of the case in connection with the statute, the order is not uncertain. Besides, the record was transferred and filed in the district court at Paris, Texas, and Hendrix was tried in that court. In other words, the case was removed to the only United States court at Paris, Texas, designated by the statute, *and tried in the only United States[88 court there in which it could be tried.

It is further contended that such district court had no jurisdiction of the person of Hendrix because the order of removal did not recite "the jurisdictional facts or findings authorizing such change of venue," nor are such facts or findings shown by the record. That is, it is not shown that he was a member of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations. To both objections it might be immediately answered that a complete record of the case is not here. The affidavit upon which the order of removal was made is not here. It is not denied that an affidavit was filed, as required by the statute, and it may be assumed that it was sufficient to justify the action of the court. It is admitted that Hendrix is an Indian and a member of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations. The motion for change of venue was made by him, and could only have been made by him, and the order recites that the court granted the motion, "being well advised in the premises." This means advised by Hendrix in the way provided by the statute. And it has indubitable confirmation in the affidavit of his attorney, filed in support of the motion to send the case back to Oklahoma. It is stated that the motion for removal was made "under the Federal statute permitting said removal to be made."

The inference is palpable that the jurisdictional fact that Hendrix was an Indian was presented to the court and constituted its ground of action,—action which, we may say, was imperatively required by the statute.

The next contention of Hendrix is that jurisdiction was taken from the district court in Texas by § 20 of the act to enable the people of Oklahoma to form a constitution and a state government, as amended March 4, 1907. By that section it was provided that all causes, civil and criminal, pending in the United States courts of Oklahoma territory, or in the United States 89]courts in the Indian *territory, at the time those territories should become a state, not transferred to the United States circuit court or district courts in the state of Oklahoma, should be proceeded with, held, and determined by the courts of the state, with rights of appeal to the final appellate court of the state and to the Supreme Court of the United States. And it is provided that "all criminal cases pending in the United States courts in the Indian territory, not transferred to the United States circuit or district courts in the state of Oklahoma, shall be prosecuted to a final determination in the state courts of Oklahoma under the laws now in force in that territory." 34 Stat. at L. 1287, chap. 2911.

The argument is that, by certain acts of Congress, explained in Re Johnson, 167 U. S. 120, 42 L. ed. 103, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 735, the United States courts in the Indian territory were given jurisdiction of offenses committed in the territory against the laws of the United States, and that the laws which conferred jurisdiction on the United States courts held in Arkansas, Kansas, and Texas, outside of the limits of the territory, were repealed. But we have seen that by § 29 of the act of June 28, 1898, a change of venue of cases in the United States courts of the territory could be invoked by a member of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations, and that under the statute the venue of the pending case was, on the motion of Hendrix, changed to the district court at Paris, Texas. It is, however, contended that the power of the court to make the order "had been taken away and repealed by the act of Congress known as the 'enabling act,' and the state of Oklahoma had been erected and the state courts had succeeded to the jurisdiction of the United States courts in the Indian territory." The "enabling act," it is urged, "makes no exception or provision saving cases pending in the United States court in the Indian territory, nor any provision saving cases then pending in any of the United States 90] courts" at Paris, *Texas, or in the eastern district of Texas, on change of venue, and therefore the court had no jurisdiction to try Hendrix. To support the contention it is argued that when the jurisdiction of a cause depends upon a statute, the repeal of the statute takes away the jurisdiction and causes pending at the time fall, unless saved by provision of the statute. Many cases are cited to support the proposition, and other cases to sustain the view that, "if an act conferring jurisdiction is repealed without reservation as to pending cases, they fall with it." The effect would have to be admitted if the imputed cause existed. The act of June 28, 1898, under which the change of venue was ordered, was not repealed. The conditions of its future application, of course, disappeared with the admission of the state in the Union, but what had been done before that time was not abrogated, nor was the statute repealed. It had performed its office as to the pending case, but even if we should consider it necessarily as a continuing power, not completely fulfilling its purpose by the transfer simply of a case from one court to another, we cannot regard it as having been repealed, nor that jurisdiction had been taken from the district court at Paris, Texas. The "enabling act" provides only for the transfer of cases to the courts of Oklahoma which were pending in the district court of the territory of Oklahoma and in the United States courts of Indian territory. That this case was so pending was the conception of counsel when the motion was made to transfer it to the district court of Gravin county, Oklahoma, and the same conception is expressed in the argument. And it is necessary to meet the words of the enabling act, which embraced, as we have seen, only cases pending in the courts of Oklahoma and Indian territories. The foundation of the conception seems to be that the venue of the case was not legally changed to the district court at Paris, Texas, and that it was still pending in the United States court in *the Indian ter-[91 ritory when the enabling act was passed, and was transferred by the act to the courts of the state. To this operation of the act we cannot assent. The act is explicit in its terms and provisions. It was careful in its accommodations for the new conditions,—the change of the territories into a state, and in the adjustments made necessary by the creation of new jurisdictions, state and Federal. There was no such necessity for cases transferred to other jurisdictions still adequate to dispose of them. The contention is therefore untenable.

It is assigned as error that the wife of Hendrix was not allowed to testify in his behalf to certain matters which, it is contended, were "vitally material to his defense." The ruling was not error. Logan v. United States, 144 U. S. 263, 36 L. ed. 429, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617.

On the motion for new trial, affidavits of four jurors were offered, stating with some detail that they did not understand the legal effect of the verdict. Only one of the affidavits is in the record. The maker states that, by finding the defendant guilty, as charged in the indictment, without capital punishment, "he did not understand what the punishment would be on such a verdict, and agreed to it on the understanding that the punishment would only be two years in the penitentiary." He further states that he was in favor of a verdict for manslaughter, and would never have consented to the verdict had he thought or believed it "would carry with it a life penalty." The motion for new trial, as we have said, was denied. We see no error in the ruling. Mattox v. United States, 146 U. S. 140, 36 L. ed. 917, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50.

The other errors assigned are not pressed in the argument.

Judgment affirmed.

Mr. Justice Harlan dissents.

92] *WEST SIDE BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, Francis H. Skelding, and Henry W. McMasters, Receivers, Plffs. in Err.,

v.

PITTSBURGH CONSTRUCTION COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 92–104.)

Error to state court — frivolousness of Federal question.

1. The contention that full faith and credit were not given to the judgment of a Federal court dismissing an action by a foreign corporation because of its failure to register within the state before entering into the contract in suit, by a decision of a state court holding that such judgment was not a bar to a second action between the same parties upon the same contract, where the corporation had brought itself within the curative provisions of Pa. act May 23, 1907, is not so far frivolous as not to serve as the basis of a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the state court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1110–1137, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — construction of curative act.

2. Whether the provisions of Pa. act May 23, 1907, validating contracts of foreign corporations, extended to a contract which had previously been adjudged invalid by a Federal court because of the corporation's failure to register within the state before entering into such contract, will be determined by the Federal Supreme Court for itself on a writ of error to a state court, presenting the question whether full faith and credit were given to such judgment by the decision of the state court that it was not a bar to a second action between the same parties on the same contract, after the corporation had brought itself within the terms of such statute.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2124–2151, 2249–2251, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Foreign corporations — invalid contracts — curative legislation.

3. Contracts of a foreign corporation which have been adjudged invalid because of its failure to register within the state before making such contracts are embraced by the provisions of Pa. act May 23, 1907, legalizing contracts of foreign corporations which, after making such contracts, but prior to the passage of the act, have established a known place of business in the state, and designated authorized agents for the transaction of its business, and, before commencing suit, have paid all taxes that would have accrued if they had complied with the law at the time of beginning business.

[Foreign corporations generally, see Corporations XII., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Judgment — full faith and credit.

4. The judgment of a Federal court dismissing an action by a foreign corporation because of its failure to register within the state before entering into the contract in suit is not denied full faith and credit by a decision of a state court holding that such judgment is not a bar to a second action between the same parties upon the same contract, where the corporation has brought itself within the provisions of Pa. act May 23, 1907, legalizing contracts made by foreign corporations which, after making such contracts, but prior to the passage of the

---

NOTE.—On the general subject of writs of error from the United States Supreme Court to state courts—see notes to Martin v. Hunter, 4 L. ed. U. S. 97; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 267; Re Buchanan, 39 L. ed. U. S. 884; and Kipley v. Illinois, 42 L. ed. U. S. 998.

On what adjudications of state courts can be brought up for review in the Supreme Court of the United States by writ of error to those courts—see note to Apex Transp. Co. v. Garbade, 62 L.R.A. 513.

On necessity of color of merit in Federal question to sustain writ of error to state court—see note to Offield v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 51 L. ed. U. S. 231.

On review of decisions of state courts presenting questions of full faith and credit —see note to Allen v. Alleghany Co. 49 L. ed. U. S. 551.

On what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider in reviewing the judgments of state courts—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 571.

As to validity of contracts made by foreign corporations which have not complied with statutory conditions of the right to do local business—see note to Edison General Electric Co. v. Canadian P. Nav. Co. 24 L.R.A. 315.

As to conclusiveness and effect of judgments as between Federal and state courts —see notes to Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. v. Morgan, 21 C. C. A. 478; and Union & Planters' Bank v. Memphis, 49 C. C. A. 468.

act, have established a known place of business in the state, and designated authorized agents for the transaction of its business, and before commencing suit, have paid all taxes that would have accrued if they had complied with the laws at the time of beginning business.

[For other cases, see Judgment, VI., VIII., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 681.]

Submitted December 5, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County in that state holding that a judgment of a Federal court dismissing an action by a foreign corporation because of its failure to register within the state before making the contract in suit was not a bar to a second action between the same parties upon the same contract, after the corporation had complied with the provisions of a curative statute. Affirmed.

See same case below, 227 Pa. 90, 75 Atl. 1029.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Thomas Patterson submitted the cause for plaintiffs in error:

The effect to be given a Federal judgment in any subsequent proceeding in a state court, where such judgment is pleaded, raises a Federal question that is reviewable in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Long Island Loan & T. Co. 172 U. S. 493, 43 L. ed. 528, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 238; Deposit Bank v. Frankfort, 191 U. S. 499, 48 L. ed. 276, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154.

The judgment of a court of record in Pennsylvania being conclusive upon the parties, and not open to collateral attack or inquiry, the effect necessarily to be given by the court of Pennsylvania to the judgment of the circuit court of the United States is that of a judgment which is, as a plea, a bar; and as evidence, conclusive in any further litigation between the parties.

Hancock Nat. Bank v. Farnum, 176 U. S. 640, 44 L. ed. 619, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 506; Deposit Bank v. Frankfort, 191 U. S. 499, 48 L. ed. 276, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154; Stevens v. Hughes, 31 Pa. 384.

While a prohibition of contracting power which is imposed by the legislature solely in the interests of the public may, in like manner, be removed by the legislature, and the contract validated so long as it remains in fieri, yet when action has been brought on the contract, the statutory prohibition has been pleaded, and final judgment has passed in favor of the defendant upon this ground, it is then too late for the legislature to remove the statutory bar and revitalize the contract, for the contract no longer has a separate existence, but is merged in the judgment,—transit in rem judicatum,—and the successful party has a vested right in the judgment in his favor which is beyond legislative control.

United States v. Lefflcr, 11 Pet. 86, 9 L. ed. 642; Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 151, 27 L. ed. 685, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 408; Gross v. United States Mortg. Co. 108 U. S. 488, 27 L. ed. 798, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 940; Erskine v. Steele County, 87 Fed. 630, affirmed in 39 C. C. A. 173, 98 Fed. 215; Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. v. Butchers' Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. 120 U. S. 141, 30 L. ed. 614, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 472; Cooley, Const. Lim. p. 528; Sutherland, Stat. Constr. § 480; Lewis v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 220 Pa. 317, 18 L.R.A.(N.S.) 278, 69 Atl. 821, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1142.

No court will lend its assistance in any way towards carrying out the terms of an illegal contract. In case any action is brought in which it is necessary to prove the illegal contract in order to maintain the action, courts will not enforce it, nor will they enforce any alleged rights directly springing from such contracts.

McMullen v. Hoffman, 174 U. S. 654, 48 L. ed. 1123, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 839.

An appellate court must and does decide cases which are pending before it in accordance with the existing laws, even though the law may not have been passed until after the judgment in the lower court was rendered. And it matters not that, to give effect to the new law, the appellate court must set aside a judgment rightful when entered.

United States v. The Peggy, 1 Cranch, 103, 2 L. ed. 49; Dinsmore v. Southern Exp. Co. 183 U. S. 115, 46 L. ed. 111, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Day v. Day, 22 Md. 530; Simpson v. Stoddard County, 173 Mo. 423, 73 S. W. 700; Pelt v. Payne, 60 Ark. 637, 30 S. W. 426; Sidway v. Lawson, 58 Ark. 117, 23 S. W. 648.

Messrs. Samuel McClay and Edwin W. Smith submitted the cause for defendant in error:

The construction of a state statute is a matter for the state court, and its determination thereof is binding on this court.

Miller v. Swann (Miller v. Anderson) 150 U. S. 132, 37 L. ed. 1028, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52.

The supreme court of Pennsylvania gave the same effect to the judgment of the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Pennsylvania, when it was pleaded in bar of this action, that it would have given to a judgment of a court of its own state.

Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Long Island Loan & T. Co. 172 U. S. 493, 515, 43 L. ed. 528, 535, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 238; Hancock Nat. Bank v. Farnum, 176 U. S. 640, 44 L. ed. 619, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 506.

A real, and not a fictitious, Federal question, is essential to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over the judgment of a state court.

Millingar v. Hartupee, 6 Wall. 258, 18 L. ed. 829; New Orleans v. New Orleans Waterworks Co. 142 U. S. 79, 35 L. ed. 943, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; Spies v. Illinois, 123 U. S. 131, 31 L. ed. 80, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21, 22; Re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 438, 34 L. ed. 521, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930.

A color for a motion to dismiss, where the claim of a Federal question is not so clearly superfluous as to authorize its dismissal, may be sufficient to permit the court to proceed to the consideration of the question involved, where, with the motion to dismiss, was a motion to affirm, on the ground that the writ of error was taken merely for delay.

Douglas v. Wallace, 161 U. S. 346, 40 L. ed. 727, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485; Lowry v. Silver City Gold & S. Min. Co. 179 U. S. 196, 45 L. ed. 151, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 104, 21 Mor. Min. Rep. 113; Capital City Dairy Co. v. Ohio, 183 U. S. 238, 46 L. ed. 171, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 120.

The curative act of May 23, 1907, of the Pennsylvania legislature, is constitutional.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. 535; Watson v. Mercer, 8 Pet. 88, 8 L. ed. 876, 1 Watts, 358; Satterlee v. Matthewson, 16 Serg. & R. 169; Randall v. Kreiger, 90 U. S. 137–150, 23 L. ed. 124–127; Gross v. United States Mortg. Co. 108 U. S. 477–488, 27 L. ed. 795–799, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 940; Rosenplanter v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc. 46 L.R.A. 473, 37 C. C. A. 566, 96 Fed. 721; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. 538, 539; Hess v. Werts, 4 Serg. & R. 356.

The judgment in the circuit court of the United States is res judicata only of the issues then presented, of the facts as they appeared, and of the legislation existing at the rendition of the judgment in the court below.

Utter v. Franklin, 172 U. S. 417, 43 L. ed. 498, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 183; Barnet v. Barnet, 15 Serg. & R. 72, 16 Am. Dec. 516; Mercer v. Watson, 1 Watts, 356; New York & O. Land Co. v. Weidner, 169 Pa. 364, 32 Atl. 557.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

This is the second action between the parties, defendant in error being plaintiff in both, and the purpose of both being the recovery of $332,750.98 upon an award of James H. McRoberts chief engineer of the railroad company, made under the circumstances hereinafter detailed. In the present action the declaration contains a count upon a quantum meruit.

The first action was brought in the United States circuit court for the western district of Pennsylvania. A verdict was directed for the plaintiff (defendant in error here) for the full amount of the award, subject to the court's decision upon a point reserved. Subsequently judgment non obstante was entered for the defendant (plaintiff in error here). One of the grounds of the motion, and, as it was the only one considered, it is not necessary to give the others, was that the action could not be maintained because the plaintiff (defendant in error here) being a foreign corporation (it was incorporated under the laws of West Virginia) did not register as required by the statute of Pennsylvania, before making the contract on which the action was based.

An act passed in 1874 provided that no foreign corporation should do business in the state until it had established an office or offices and appointed an agent or agents for the transaction of business therein. And it was made unlawful for such corporation to do any business until it had filed in the office of the secretary of the commonwealth a statement, under seal, signed by the president and secretary, showing the title and object of the corporation, *the location[97 of its offices, and the names of its agents. A certificate of the secretary of the commonwealth of such filing was required to be kept for public inspection in every office. Transacting business without complying with the provisions of the act was made a misdemeanor.

An act was passed in 1889 which provided that any limited partnership, bank, joint stock association organized under the laws of the commonwealth, or under the laws of any other state, and doing business in the commonwealth, should register, in the office of the auditor general, the place of its business and postoffice address, the names of certain of its officers, and the amount of capital authorized and the amount paid. Such registration was also required of every corporation then engaged in business in the commonwealth. Annual registration was required thereafter. A penalty of $500 was imposed for violations of the act.

The plaintiff had not registered at the time the contract involved in the act was made. It, however, subsequently registered.

It was held, following the decisions of the courts of Pennsylvania, that the statutes made unlawful business transactions within the state by a foreign corporation which had not complied with their provisions. And it was said [151 Fed. 130]:

"Nor does the award of the engineer have any efficacy in this case. Authority on his part to act, and the obligation of parties to abide by his decision, rests in both cases on the provision of a contract which is contra legem. The law will not enforce an award based on an illegal contract. Benton v. Singleton, 114 Ga. 556, 58 L.R.A. 181, 40 S. E. 811."

The opinion concluded as follows:

"Upon the whole, therefore, we are of opinion that, by reason of the nonregistration of the plaintiff corporation prior to the contract here involved, the verdict for plaintiff cannot be sustained. Judgment 98] will *therefore be entered in favor of the defendant non obstante veredicto, but said judgment shall not bar any subsequent suit or proceeding by the plaintiff for services performed."

The circuit court of appeals, to which the case was carried, also expressed the view, applying, as it said, the decisions of the courts of the state, that the contract was illegal, and its illegality made void the award made under it. The judgment of the circuit court was affirmed.

Then an act of legislature of Pennsylvania was passed, entitled, "An Act Validating Contracts, Bonds, or Obligations Made by Corporations of Other States, Without First Having Established Known Places of Business and Designating Authorized Agents for the Transaction of Their Business Within This Commonwealth, and Providing for the Enforcement of the Same." P. L. 205.

Thereupon this action was brought not only upon the award made by James H. Roberts, but also for work and labor done as upon a quantum meruit. Among other defenses, the judgment in the United States circuit court was pleaded as a bar to the action notwithstanding the act of May 23, 1907. The trial court was of opinion that the act "cured the defect in plaintiff's contract," and accordingly the judgment was not a bar to the action. The court also ruled against the other defenses, and entered judgment for plaintiff (defendant in error here). It was sustained by the supreme court of the state, on the ground that the adjudication in the circuit court "settled nothing with respect to the merits of this case; all that was there adjudicated was the plaintiff's right to maintain its action as an unregistered foreign corporation." The supreme court further decided that "the effect of the act of May 23, 1907, was to remove the impediment created by the prior act to the enforcement of the contract, and the plaintiff had at once acquired the right to maintain an action thereon."

*The action of the state court, decid-[99 ing against the judgment of the United States circuit court as a bar, constitutes the Federal question in the case, the contention of plaintiff in error being that due faith and credit were denied the judgment. A motion, however, is made to dismiss the writ of error on the ground that no Federal question is presented by the record, or alternatively to affirm the judgment.

The motion to dismiss is based on the contention that the judgment of the circuit court reserved to plaintiff a right of action for the services performed, and that the supreme court of the state having decided that the present action was within the reservation, it gave, not denied, the same faith and credit it would have given to a state judgment rendered under similar circumstances.

When a party asserts that due faith and credit have not been given to a judgment rendered in an action between him and the other party, he asserts a right under the Constitution of the United States, and necessarily this raises a Federal question. This is the assertion in the present case, and the consideration which the supreme court of Pennsylvania gave it demonstrates that it is not so far frivolous as to sustain a motion to dismiss. The motion is therefore denied. On the other hand, we cannot say that the motion to dismiss is without color, and pass, therefore, to the merits, for the determination of which a fuller statement of the facts becomes necessary.

The West Side Belt Railroad Company, which we shall refer to as the railroad company, entered into a contract with one Petrie to construct an extension of its road. Petrie engaged to construct and complete the proposed work in the manner and within the time called for by the specifications, and the railroad company agreed to pay for the work the sum of $400,000. The contract was dated April 25, 1901. On the 24th of May following, Petrie, with the consent of the railroad company, entered *into a[100 contract with the Pittsburgh Construction Company, referred to herein as the construction company, to do the work. This contract was a transcript of the contract between Petrie and the railroad company, except as to the consideration. Following the signatures of the parties this appears: "For value received, the Westside Belt Company and John S. Scully and T. S. Barnsdall do hereby guarantee and become surety for the payment of the money mentioned in this contract as the same becomes due and payable."

Under the contract John H. McRoberts was made the final arbitrator to determine all matters in dispute, and disputes arose which were submitted to him. He, after full hearing, made an award in favor of the construction company in the sum of $332,750.98.

The construction company brought the action to which we have referred in the circuit court of the United States against the railroad company, Scully and Barnsdall, on their contract of guaranty for the amount of the award. The proceedings in the circuit court, and its judgment, and that of the circuit court of appeals, have been stated.

An act of May 23, 1907, mentioned above, provided that contracts made by foreign corporations should be binding, and might be enforced in the courts of the commonwealth, provided the corporation had subsequently and prior to the passage of the act complied with the laws of the commonwealth by establishing a known place of business in the state, and designating authorized agents for the transaction of its business, and before commencing any suit upon such contract, bond, or obligation, and had paid all taxes that would have accrued to the commonwealth if it had complied with the laws at the time of beginning business.

After the passage of the act this action was brought. The declaration contained two counts, one for the recovery of the sum of $332,750.98, with interest, for services 101] performed *and materials furnished, conclusively evidenced by the award of James H. McRoberts, and the other upon a quantum meruit for the value of the work done and materials furnished, as of the date of the performing and furnishing the same. Judgment was rendered for the construction company, as we have stated.

The decision in this case turns upon a comparison of the two actions, and the effect of the act of May 23, 1907.

It was assumed by the trial court, and also by the supreme court, that the action in the circuit court was between the same parties and upon the same cause of action as this one. Making that assumption, the trial court said the question was, Did the act of May 23 "revitalize the contract, which the United States court declared invalid?" And, construing the statute, decided that it was its intention to legalize every contract, bond, or obligation of a foreign corporation which had not complied with the laws of the state, but subsequently had done so, and paid all of the taxes which would have accrued. "The act makes no distinction," the court said, "between contracts which have been litigated and those which have not been litigated;" and as it was found that the plaintiff (defendant in error) had complied with all the requirements of the statute, it was held that the defect in the contract was cured and the judgment of the circuit court was no bar to recovery. The supreme court pronounced the ruling correct, and, we may assume, approved the grounds upon which it was based. It is true the learned court discussed the judgment more than it did the act of May 23, but this, we infer, was for the purpose of showing that the judgment in the circuit court was rendered not upon the controversies which arose between the parties in consequence of the contract, its terms, the extent or manner of its performance, or the liability of the railroad company upon its contract of guaranty, but "was based," as the court said, "exclusively on the *plain-[102 tiff's disability to maintain the action because of its failure to register within the state before the contract sued upon was entered into," and that, therefore, the judgment did not preclude a consideration of the act of May 23, or take from it the power to "revitalize" the contract. We agree, therefore, with the railroad company, that the effect of the act of May 23 constitutes "the real and only issue in the case."

That the action could be maintained without it is not contended. It is true that the declaration contained a count upon a quantum meruit, in order to bring the case within the reservation of the judgment of the circuit court, but evidence to sustain it was ruled out upon the objection of plaintiff in error, on the ground substantially that the contract furnished its own measure of damages, "ascertained in the manner set forth" in the contract, that is, by an appraisement and award, and that the evidence offered was a "contradiction of the written contracts in the case," and therefore incompetent. The quantum meruit, therefore, is out of the case, and the action rests on the contract, as the action in the circuit court did, and the judgment in the latter, adjudging its invalidity, is a bar to the present action, unless such effect has been taken from it by the act of May 23, 1907. And this is admitted. Indeed, defendant in error asserts that it was assumed by everybody at the trial, but it is insisted that the effect of the act is not a Federal question, but solely one for the state courts. In this we cannot concur. It is an element in the consideration of the question whether due faith and credit were given to the judgment of the circuit court, and we are brought to the consideration of the curative effect of the act.

In Watson v. Mercer, 8 Pet. 88, 8 L. ed. 876, such an act was sustained against a charge that it devested vested rights and impaired the obligation of a contract. The act considered made valid the deeds of mar-103] ried women which were invalid *by reason of defective acknowledgments, and avoided a judgment in ejectment rendered against one of the parties to the action because of such a defect in a deed relied on for title. The controversy was between the successor by descent of the married woman and the grantee in the deed. It was said in the argument that the descents had been confirmed by two judgments of the supreme court of the state against the deed, adjudicating it to be void on points involving its validity, which judgments, it was contended, were conclusive evidence that the deed was no deed, and that the rights acquired by descent were absolute vested rights. The act was nevertheless sustained, as we have stated.

Satterlee v. Matthewson, 2 Pet. 380, 7 L. ed. 458, is to the same effect. Title was set up as a defense in an action of ejectment to which the plaintiff replied that, conceding it to be older and better than his, it nevertheless could not be set up against him, as the defendant was his tenant. The trial court took that view, and the supreme court of the state reversed it on the ground that, by the statute law of the state, the relation of landlord and tenant could not subsist under a Connecticut title. Before the second trial of the case the legislature of the state (Pennsylvania) passed a law providing that the relation of landlord and tenant should exist under such titles. This court affirmed the judgment of the supreme court of the state, sustaining the law.

The doctrine of Satterlee v. Matthewson and Watson v. Mercer was repeated in Randall v. Kreiger, 23 Wall. 137, 150, 23 L. ed. 124, 126.

In Gross v. United States Mortg. Co. 108 U. S. 477, 27 L. ed. 795, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 940, the same principles were applied to sustain an act of the state of Illinois, making valid a mortgage which was inoperative under the provisions of prior laws. So also Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 143, 27 L. ed. 682, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 408.

In Utter v. Franklin, 172 U. S. 416, 43 L. ed. 498, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 183, it was de-104] cided that *an act of Congress validating a defect in bonds of the territory of Arizona was within the power of Congress.

The principle of the cases is declared to be by Mr. Justice Matthews, in Ewell v. Daggs, supra, "that the right of a defendant to avoid his contract is given to him by statute, for purpose of its own and not because it affects the merits of his obligation; and that whatever the statute gives, under such circumstances, as long as it remains in fieri, and not realized by having passed into a completed transaction, may, by a subsequent statute, be taken away. It is a privilege that belongs to the remedy, and forms no element in the rights that inhere in the contract." And such view of curative statutes is entertained by the supreme court of Pennsylvania, as indicated by its opinion in the present case and the cases there cited.

The Federal question having been correctly decided, the judgment is affirmed.

NOBLE STATE BANK, Plff. in Err.,
v.
C. N. HASKELL, G. W. Bellamy, J. P. Connors, J. A. Menefee, M. E. Trapp, and H. H. Smock.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 104–113.)

Constitutional law — reserved right to amend corporate charter — creating depositor's guaranty fund.

1. Contract obligations under a bank's charter which is subject to alteration or repeal are not unconstitutionally impaired by the levy and collection, under a state statute, of an assessment based upon average daily deposits, for the purpose of creating a depositors' guaranty fund to secure the full repayment of deposits in case it or any other bank existing under the state laws becomes insolvent, unless such statute deprives the bank of liberty or property without due process of law.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 1386–1412, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — police power — due process of law — creating depositors' guaranty fund.

2. The levy and collection, under a state statute, from every bank existing under the

---

Note.—As to reserved power to alter, amend, or repeal corporate charters—see note to Greenwood v. Union Freight R. Co. 26 L. ed. U. S. 961 and Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha, 77 C. C. A. 281.

As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. OBrien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

For a discussion of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

state laws, of an assessment based upon average daily deposits, for the purpose of creating a depositors' guaranty fund to secure the full repayment of deposits in case any such bank becomes insolvent, is a valid exercise of the police power, and cannot be regarded as depriving a solvent bank of its liberty or property without due process of law.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 582–604, 881–890, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — police power — regulating banking.

3. The police power of a state extends to the regulation of the banking business, and even to its prohibition except on such conditions as the state may prescribe.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 881–890, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 71.]

Argued December 8, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court of Logan County in that state, dismissing the petition in a suit to enjoin the levy and collection from a state bank of an assessment for the purpose of creating a depositors' guaranty fund. Affirmed.

See same case below 22 Okla. 48, 97 Pac. 590.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. C. B. Ames argued the cause, and, with Messrs. J. B. Dudley and D. T. Flynn, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The law requires a taking of the plaintiff's property for a private use.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 658, 22 L. ed. 460; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 99; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 510, 27 L.R.A. 72, 31 Atl. 208; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130.

It is not an exercise of the power of taxation.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 658, 22 L. ed. 460; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 99; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 510, 27 L.R.A. 72, 31 Atl. 208; Sutherland-Innes Co. v. Evart, 30 C. C. A. 305, 58 U. S. App. 335, 86 Fed. 597; Weismer v. Douglas, 64 N. Y. 91, 21 Am. Rep. 586.

It is not a valid exercise of the police power.

Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; Minnesota v. Barber, 136 U. S. 313, 34 L. ed. 455, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 185, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 862; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362, 38 L. ed. 1014, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Campbell, 61 Kan. 439, 48 L.R.A. 251, 78 Am. St. Rep. 328, 59 Pac. 1051; Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 188, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 302.

It is therefore a taking of property without due process of law, and violative of the Constitution of the United States.

Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Harding v. Butts, 18 Ill. 503; Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 512, 53 Am. Dec. 325; Atty. Gen. v. Boston & A. R. Co. 160 Mass. 62, 22 L.R.A. 112, 35 N. E. 252; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Campbell, 61 Kan. 439, 48 L.R.A. 251, 78 Am. St. Rep. 328, 59 Pac. 1051; Mays v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 455, 56 S. E. 30; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130.

In taking the plaintiff's property it impairs the obligation of contracts; and, being a taking without due process of law, cannot be upheld as an amendment of the plaintiff's charter.

Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 135, 3 L. ed. 177; Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 720, 748, 25 L. ed. 501, 512; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; People v. O'Brien, 111 N. Y. 1, 2 L.R.A. 255, 7 Am. St. Rep. 684, 18 N. E. 692; Opinion of Justices, 66 N. H. 629, 33 Atl. 1079; Hill v. Glasgow, R. Co. 41 Fed. 615; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Campbell, 61 Kan. 439, 48 L.R.A. 251, 78 Am. St. Rep. 328, 59 Pac. 1051; Grand Rapids Sav. Bank v. Warren, 52 Mich. 557, 18 N. W. 356; Hawthorne v. Calef, 2 Wall. 10, 17 L. ed. 776; McDonnell v. Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co. 85 Ala. 401, 5 So. 120; Ireland v. Palestine, B. N. P. & N. W. Turnp. Co. 19 Ohio St. 369; Mays v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 455, 56 S. E. 30; Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co. 202 U. S. 453, 50 L. ed.

1102, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 660, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 253.

The governor, when acting as a member of the state banking board, is subject to the control of the courts.

Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362, 38 L. ed. 1014, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Rolston v. Missouri Fund Comrs. (Rolston v. Crittenden) 120 U. S. 390, 30 L. ed. 721, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 599; Davis v. Gray, 16 Wall. 203, 21 L. ed. 447; Scott v. Donald, 165 U. S. 58, 41 L. ed. 632, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. ed. 714, 13 L.R.A.(N.S.) 932, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The petition alleges and the demurrer admits that it is the purpose of the defendants to compel the plaintiff to pay the assessment required by the law. It therefore shows a sufficient state of facts to justify relief by injunction.

Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362, 38 L. ed. 1014, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418.

Messrs. C. B. Ames, D. T. Flynn, and T. G. Chambers also filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Property cannot be taken for private use in the exercise of the right of eminent domain, even when part of the property taken is needed for public use.

Re Albany Street, 11 Wend. 149, 25 Am. Dec. 618; Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 512, 53 Am. Dec. 325; 1 Lewis, Em. Dom. § 204.

Property cannot be taken for private use under the taxing power.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 510, 27 L.R.A. 72, 31 Atl. 208.

Regulating railroads is clearly an exercise of the police power; but, in so doing, the state cannot do anything which takes for private use the smallest part of the railroad's property.

Atty. Gen. v. Boston & A. R. Co. 160 Mass. 62, 22 L.R.A. 112, 35 N. E. 252; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Campbell, 61 Kan. 439, 48 L.R.A. 251, 78 Am. St. Rep. 328, 59 Pac. 1051; Mays v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 455, 56 S. E. 30; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 217 U. S. 196, 54 L. ed. 727, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989.

Private property cannot be taken for private use by the amendment of corporate charters.

Woodward v. Central Vermont R. Co. 180 Mass. 599, 62 N. E. 1051; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Campbell, 61 Kan. 439, 48 L.R.A. 251, 78 Am. St. Rep. 328, 59 Pac. 1051; Mays v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 455, 56 S. E. 30.

Mr. Charles West, Attorney General of Oklahoma, argued the cause, and, with Messrs. E. G. Spilman and W. C. Reeves, filed a brief for defendants in error:

Laws exist restricting the issuance of circulation, and attaching conditions to the same,—notably by making the issuance of circulating medium a franchise or privilege, and restricting its use to particular corporations established for that purpose in the state or nation. The constitutionality of this regulation has everywhere been upheld or taken for granted.

Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 596, 10 L. ed. 274, 311; Myers v. Manhattan Bank, 20 Ohio, 295; People v. Bartow, 6 Cow. 290; People v. Brewster, 4 Wend. 498; Pennington v. Townsend, 7 Wend. 276.

The security of the public in its dealings with banks is a governmental function, and the creation of a mutual reserve fund is a safety to the public and a compulsory benefit to the banks.

Freund, Pol. Power, §§ 40, 400, 401.

Banking is public business.

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; State v. Richcreek, 167 Ind. 217, 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 875, 119 Am. St. Rep. 491, 77 N. E. 1085, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 899.

The Constitution should be liberally construed.

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 187, 6 L. ed. 68.

The law is valid unless plainly invalid.

Hylton v. United States, 3 Dall. 171, 175, 1 L. ed. 556, 558.

A modification of a common-law rule is not a deprivation of property.

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 421, 46 N. W. 970; Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Cooley v. Port Wardens, 12 How. 299, 13 L. ed. 996; Tenney v. Lenz, 16 Wis. 566; Van Horn v. People, 46 Mich. 183, 41 Am. Rep. 159, 9 N. W. 246; Holst v. Roe, 39 Ohio St. 340, 48 Am. Rep. 459; Wilton v. Weston, 48 Conn. 325; Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Board of Health, 118 U. S. 455, 30 L. ed. 237, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 98, 32 L. ed. 353, 2 Inters. Com.

Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. ed. 238; New York ex rel. New York Electric Lines Co. v. Squire, 145 U. S. 175, 36 L. ed. 666, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 880; Head v. Amoskeag Mfg. Co. 113 U. S. 9, 28 L. ed. 889, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441; Wurts v. Hoagland, 114 U. S. 606, 29 L. ed. 229, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; State ex rel. Utick v. Polk County, 87 Minn 325, 60 L.R.A. 161, 92 N. W. 216; Swift v. Calnan, 102 Iowa, 206, 37 L.R.A. 462, 63 Am. St. Rep. 443, 71 N. W. 233; Firemen's Benev. Asso. v. Lounsbury, 21 Ill. 511, 74 Am. Dec. 115; Fire Dept. v. Helfenstein, 16 Wis. 140; Exempt Firemen's Benev. Fund v. Roome, 93 N. Y. 313, 45 Am. Rep. 217; Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Fire Dept. 117 Ala. 631, 42 L.R.A. 468, 23 So. 843.

Can all banking be made a franchise?

Zane, Banks & Bkg. §§ 7–15; Morse, Bkg. § 13; State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; Myers v. Manhattan Bank, 20 Ohio, 295; State v. Stebbins, 1 Stew. (Ala.) 299; Allnutt v. Inglis, 12 East, 527, 11 Revised Rep. 482; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Hale, de Portibus Maris, 1 Hargrave's Law Tracts, 78.

The exercise of the police power violates no vested rights.

Sioux City Street R. Co. v. Sioux City, 138 U. S. 98, 34 L. ed. 898, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 226; New York & N. E. R. Co. v. Bristol, 151 U. S. 556, 38 L. ed. 269, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 437; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Cummings v. Spaunhorst, 5 Mo. App. 21; Atty. Gen. v. North American L. Ins. Co. 82 N. Y. 172.

Mr. Charles West also filed a separate brief for defendants in error:

What at common law was a common right may be prohibited for the public good without violating due process of law.

The Oil Case—Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 740, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 466; The Sheep Case—Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 311, 51 L. ed. 499, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; The Bulk Sale Law Decisions—Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Kidd, D. & P. Co. v. Musselman Grocer Co. 217 U. S. 461, 54 L. ed. 839, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 606.

Private property may be taken pursuant to a public demand, for individual use, without violating the 14th Amendment.

The Ditch Case—Clark v. Nash, 198 U. S. 369, 49 L. ed. 1088, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1171; The Aerial Right of Way Case—Strickley v. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. 200 U. S. 531, 50 L. ed. 583, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1174; Compulsory Sale of Minority Stock Case—Offield v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 203 U. S. 378, 51 L. ed. 236, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 72.

The following groups of cases exemplify the public right to involuntary co-operation by owners of property.

The Dog Tax Cases—Tenney v. Lenz, 16 Wis. 566; Van Horn v. People, 46 Mich. 183, 41 Am. Rep. 159, 9 N. W. 246; Holst v. Roe, 39 Ohio St. 340, 48 Am. Rep. 459; Wilton v. Weston, 48 Conn. 325; The Quarantine Fees Cases—Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Board of Health, 118 U. S. 455, 461, 30 L. ed. 237, 240, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; The Public Utility Expense Cases—Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; The Firemen Fund Cases—Firemen's Benev. Asso. v. Lounsbury, 21 Ill. 511, 74 Am. Dec. 115; Fire Dept. v. Helfenstein, 16 Wis. 141; Exempt Firemen's Benev. Fund. v. Roome, 93 N. Y. 313, 45 Am. Rep. 217; Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Fire Dept. 117 Ala. 631, 42 L.R.A. 471, 23 So. 843.

As to these cases the Dog Tax Cases are not overruled or impaired by Fox v. Mohawk & H. River Humane Soc. 165 N. Y. 517, 51 L.R.A. 684, 80 Am. St. Rep. 767, 59 N. E. 353.

In the Firemen Fund Cases, the question of the 14th Amendment was squarely passed upon. In Firemen's Benev. Asso. v. Lounsbury, 21 Ill. 511, 74 Am. Dec. 115, it was said: "The power the legislature possesses of imposing burdens upon certain members of the community who are supposed to be benefited by the efforts or acts of certain other members" is the power upon which the cases rest.

The diversion of such funds for the upbuilding of an efficient fire service was held a public purpose, and not violative of the 14th Amendment.

Exempt Firemen's Benev. Fund v. Roome, 93 N. Y. 313, 45 Am. Rep. 217; Fire Dept. v. Noble, 3 E. D. Smith, 440.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a proceeding against the governor of the state of Oklahoma and other officials who constitute the state banking board, to prevent them from levying and collecting an assessment from the plaintiff under an act approved December 17, 1907. This act creates the board, and directs it to levy upon every bank existing under the laws of the state an assessment of 1 per cent of the bank's average daily deposits, with certain deductions, for the purpose of creating a depositors' guaranty fund. There are provisos for keeping up the fund, and by an act passed March 11, 1909, since the suit was begun, the assessment is to be 5 per cent. The purpose of the fund is shown by its name. It is to secure the full repayment of deposits. When a bank becomes insolvent and goes into the hands of the bank commissioner, if its cash immediately available is not enough to pay depositors in full, the banking board is to draw from the depositors' guaranty fund (and from additional assessments if required) the amount needed to make up the deficiency. A lien is reserved upon the assets of the failing bank to make good the sum thus taken from the fund. The plaintiff says that it is solvent and does not want the help of the guaranty fund, and that it cannot be called upon to contribute toward securing or paying the depositors in other banks, consistently with article 1, § 10, and the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States. The petition was dismissed on demurrer by the supreme court of the state. 22 Okla. 48, 97 Pac. 590.

The reference to article 1, § 10, does not 110]strengthen the *plaintiff's bill. The only contract that it relies upon is its charter. That is subject to alteration or repeal, as usual, so that the obligation hardly could be said to be impaired by the act of 1907 before us, unless that statute deprives the plaintiff of liberty or property without due process of law. See Sherman v. Smith, 1 Black, 587, 17 L. ed. 163. Whether it does so or not is the only question in the case.

In answering that question, we must be cautious about pressing the broad words of the 14th Amendment to a drily logical extreme. Many laws which it would be vain to ask the court to overthrow could be shown, easily enough, to transgress a scholastic interpretation of one or another of the great guaranties in the Bill of Rights. They more or less limit the liberty of the individual, or they diminish property to a certain extent. We have few scientifically certain criteria of legislation, and as it often is difficult to mark the line where what is called the police power of the states is limited by the Constitution of the United States, judges should be slow to read into the latter a nolumus mutare as against the lawmaking power.

The substance of the plaintiff's argument is that the assessment takes private property for private use without compensation. And while we should assume that the plaintiff would retain a reversionary interest in its contribution to the fund, so as to be entitled to a return of what remained of it if the purpose were given up (see Danby Bank v. State Treasurer, 39 Vt. 92, 98), still there is no denying that by this law a portion of its property might be taken without return to pay debts of a failing rival in business. Nevertheless, notwithstanding the logical form of the objection, there are more powerful considerations on the other side. In the first place, it is established by a series of cases that an ulterior public advantage may justify a comparatively insignificant taking of private property for what, in its immediate purpose, is a private use. Clark v. Nash, 198 U. S. 361, 49 L. ed. 1085, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1171; Strickley v. *Highland Boy Gold Min.[111 Co. 200 U. S. 527, 531, 50 L. ed. 581, 583, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1174; Offield v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 203 U. S. 372, 51 L. ed. 231, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 72; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 311, 315, 51 L. ed. 499, 501, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289. And in the next, it would seem that there may be other cases beside the everyday one of taxation, in which the share of each party in the benefit of a scheme of mutual protection is sufficient compensation for the correlative burden that it is compelled to assume. See Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 190, 44 L. ed. 729, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 576. At least, if we have a case within the reasonable exercise of the police power as above explained, no more need be said.

It may be said in a general way that the police power extends to all the great public needs. Camfield v. United States, 167 U. S. 518, 42 L. ed. 260, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 864. It may be put forth in aid of what is sanctioned by usage, or held by the prevailing morality or strong and preponderant opinion to be greatly and immediately necessary to the public welfare. Among matters of that sort probably few would doubt that both usage and preponderant opinion give their sanction to enforcing the primary conditions of successful commerce. One of those conditions at the present time is the possibility of payment by checks drawn against bank deposits, to such an extent do checks replace currency in daily business. If, then, the legislature of the state thinks that the public welfare requires the measure under consideration, analogy and principle are in favor of the power to enact it. Even the primary object of the required assessment is not a private benefit, as it was in the cases above cited of a ditch for irrigation or a railway to a mine, but it is to make the currency of checks secure, and by the same stroke to make safe the almost compulsory resort of depositors to banks as the only available means for keeping money on hand. The priority of claim given to depositors is incidental to the same object, and is justified in the same way. The power to restrict liberty by fixing a minimum of capital required of those who 112]would engage in banking is not *denied. The power to restrict investments to securities regarded as relatively safe seems equally plain. It has been held, we do not doubt rightly, that inspections may be required and the cost thrown on the bank. See Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255. The power to compel, beforehand, co-operation, and thus, it is believed, to make a failure unlikely and a general panic almost impossible, must be recognized, if government is to do its proper work, unless we can say that the means have no reasonable relation to the end. Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 188, 44 L. ed. 725, 728, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633. So far is that from being the case that the device is a familiar one. It was adopted by some states the better part of a century ago, and seems never to have been questioned until now. Danby Bank v. State Treasurer, 39 Vt. 92; People v. Walker, 17 N. Y. 502. Recent cases going not less far are Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 496, 53 L. ed. 295, 300, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Kidd, D. & P. Co. v. Musselman Grocer Co. 217 U. S. 461, 54 L. ed. 839, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 606.

It is asked whether the state could require all corporations or all grocers to help to guarantee each other's solvency, and where we are going to draw the line. But the last is a futile question, and we will answer the others when they arise. With regard to the police power, as elsewhere in the law, lines are pricked out by the gradual approach and contact of decisions on the opposing sides. Hudson County Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349, 355, 52 L. ed. 828, 831, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 560. It will serve as a datum on this side, that, in our opinion, the statute before us is well within the state's constitutional power, while the use of the public credit on a large scale to help individuals in business has been held to be beyond the line. Citizens' L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39.

The question that we have decided is not much helped by propounding the further one, whether the right to engage in banking is or can be made a franchise. But as the latter question has some bearing on the 113]former, and as it *will have to be considered in the following cases, if not here, we will dispose of it now. It is not answered by citing authorities for the existence of the right at common law. There are many things that a man might do at common law that the states may forbid. He might embezzle until a statute cut down his liberty. We cannot say that the public interests to which we have adverted, and others, are not sufficient to warrant the state in taking the whole business of banking under its control. On the contrary, we are of opinion that it may go on from regulation to prohibition except upon such conditions as it may prescribe. In short, when the Oklahoma legislature declares by implication that free banking is a public danger, and that incorporation, inspection, and the above-described co-operation are necessary safeguards, this court certainly cannot say that it is wrong. State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; Brady v. Mattern, 125 Iowa, 158, 106 Am. St. Rep. 291, 100 N. W. 358; Weed v. Bergh, 141 Wis. 569, 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1217, 124 N. W. 664; Com. v. Vrooman, 164 Pa. 306, 25 L.R.A. 250, 44 Am. St. Rep. 603, 30 Atl. 217; Myers v. Irwin, 2 Serg. & R. 368; Myers v. Manhattan Bank, 20 Ohio, 283, 302; Atty. Gen. v. Utica Ins. Co. 2 Johns. Ch. 371, 377. Some further details might be mentioned, but we deem them unnecessary. Of course, objections under the state Constitution are not open here.

Judgment affirmed.

---

*ASHTON C. SHALLENBERGER[114 Governor of the State of Nebraska, Silas R. Barton, Auditor of Public Accounts of the State of Nebraska, et al., Appts.,

v.

FIRST STATE BANK OF HOLSTEIN, Nebraska, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 114-120.)

This case is governed by the decision in Noble State Bank v. Haskell, ante, 112.

[No. 445.]

Argued December 8, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Nebraska to review a decree enjoining the enforcement of a statute forbidding banking except by a corporation formed under the act, and providing for a guaranty fund. Reversed.

See same case below 172 Fed. 999.

Mr. Charles O. Whedon argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants:

Every reasonable construction must be resorted to in order to save the statute from unconstitutionality.

Parsons v. Bedford, 3 Pet. 433, 448, 7 L. ed. 732, 737; United States v. Coombs, 12 Pet. 72, 75, 9 L. ed. 1004, 1005; Grenada County v. Brogden (Grenada County v. Brown) 112 U. S. 261, 28 L. ed. 704, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 125; Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S. 252, 269, 29 L. ed. 615, 620, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 657, 39 L. ed. 301, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207.

The Supreme Court leaves it to the states, in the exercise of their police powers, to determine what tends to promote not only the public health and morals, but the public welfare and safety as well.

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273.

The right of a merchant to sell his entire stock in bulk without notice to his creditors was and is a natural right, yet a large number of the states have enacted laws forbidding such sales, and these laws have been held constitutional by this court.

Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Kidd, D. & P. Co. v. Musselman Grocer Co. 217 U. S. 461, 54 L. ed. 839, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 606.

A law which declared grain option contracts to be gambling contracts, and the making of them to be a criminal offense, is valid.

Booth v. People, 186 Ill. 43, 50 L.R.A. 762, 78 Am. St. Rep. 229, 57 N. E. 798, 184 U. S. 425, 431, 46 L. ed. 623, 626, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425.

The whole matter of the legislative element of sovereignty, as opposed to individual liberty, must, in the absence of other constitutional restriction, be left to the gradual processes of judicial inclusion and exclusion, as the cases presented for decision require.

Parks v. State, 159 Ind. 220, 59 L.R.A. 190, 64 N. E. 862.

The supreme court of Ohio sustained a law which prohibited the practice of healing by those classing themselves as Christian Scientists.

State v. Marble, 72 Ohio St. 21, 70 L.R.A. 835, 106 Am. St. Rep. 570, 73 N. E. 1063, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 898.

The state of Nebraska enacted that no female should be employed in any manufacturing, mechanical, or mercantile establishment, hotel, or restaurant in the state more than sixty hours during any one week, and that ten hours should constitute a day's labor. The validity of the statute was called in question in the case of Wenham v. State, 65 Neb. 394, 58 L.R.A. 825. 91 N. W. 421, and the statute was sustained as a proper exercise of the police power of the state.

Why may not the legislature add to the above matters which have been regulated and prohibited under the police power, the securing of bank deposits?

Blaker v. Hood, 53 Kan. 509, 24 L.R.A. 854, 36 Pac. 1115; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 595, 10 L. ed. 274, 311.

The question is not what may be the individual opinions of those constituting courts as to the wisdom of such legislation, but what is the power of the state?

Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 718, 25 L. ed. 501; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 684, 32 L. ed. 256, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257.

The general terms under which such legislation is justified is the police power of the state; and however indefinite and difficult of exact definition this power may be, it is sufficient to say that it is ample.

Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 924, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Nesbit v. Independent Dist. 144 U. S. 615, 36 L. ed. 564, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 746; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 523, 29 L. ed. 466, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; San Bernardino County v. Southern P. R. Co. 118 U. S. 423, 30 L. ed. 127, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1144; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 72, 30 L. ed. 580, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 663, 31 L. ed. 211, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Pembina Consol. Silver Min. & Mill. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 125 U. S. 189, 31 L. ed. 653, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 24, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 737; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 683, 32 L. ed. 256, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 29, 32 L. ed. 586, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Bell's Gap. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 238, 33 L. ed. 895, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U. S. 130, 34 L. ed. 139, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 36, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 449, 34 L. ed. 524, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930; Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 394, 35 L. ed. 1054, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; McPherson v. Blacker, 146 U. S. 39, 36 L. ed. 878, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 662, 37 L. ed. 601, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; New York & N. E. R. Co. v. Bristol, 151 U. S. 569, 38 L. ed. 273, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 437; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 136, 38 L. ed. 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Marchant v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 153 U. S. 390, 38 L. ed. 756, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 894; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 666, 40 L. ed. 845, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Jones v. Brim, 165 U. S. 182, 41 L. ed. 678, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 383, 42 L. ed. 788, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep.

383; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 103, 43 L. ed. 912, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; L'Hote v. New Orleans, 177 U. S. 596, 44 L. ed. 903, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 788; Leovy v. United States, 177 U. S. 631, 44 L. ed. 918, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 797; Interstate Consol. Street R. Co. v. Massachusetts, 207 U. S. 79, 52 L. ed. 111, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 26, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 555; Phillips v. Mobile, 208 U. S. 479, 52 L. ed. 581, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; New York v. Miln, 11 Pet. 102, 9 L. ed. 648.

Who is to determine the measure of control that is to be exercised, if not the state? And if the state shall say that, to accomplish the desired control, banking must be done by corporations only, must not the individual surrender his so-called "inalienable right" to engage in the banking business, for the public good?

Adams Exp. Co. v. State, 161 Ind. 346, 67 N. E. 1033; Parks v. State, 159 Ind. 211, 59 L.R.A. 190, 64 N. E. 862; New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Louisiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 661, 29 L. ed. 520, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252; Jones v. Brim, 165 U. S. 182, 41 L. ed. 678, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282; Harbison v. Knoxville Iron Co. 103 Tenn. 421, 56 L.R.A. 316, 76 Am. St. Rep. 682, 53 S. W. 955; License Cases, 5 How. 583, 12 L. ed. 291; State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; People v. Utica Ins. Co. 15 Johns. 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243; State v. Richcreek, 167 Ind. 217, 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 874, 119 Am. St. Rep. 491, 77 N. E. 1085, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 899; Com. v. Vrooman, 164 Pa. 306, 25 L.R.A. 250, 44 Am. St. Rep. 603, 30 Atl. 217; Pennsylvania R. Co's Appeal, 116 Pa. 78, 8 Atl. 914; Nance v. Hemphill, 1 Ala. 557; Myers v. Manhattan Bank, 20 Ohio, 283.

By the statute of Nebraska, marriage is declared to be a civil contract. Ordinarily such contracts are entered into with a view to the "pursuit of happiness." Yet no matter what power for good one of the parties possesses, or what his or her mental ability may be, if he or she is possessed of one fourth or more of negro blood, the contract is by statute declared to be void and the issue of the marriage illegitimate. Such marriages are, by the laws of many states, made felonies; and so far as I am advised, they have never been held to be invalid. On the contrary, they have been held enforceable in State v. Gibson, 36 Ind. 402, 10 Am. Rep. 42; State v. Jackson, 80 Mo. 177, 50 Am. Rep. 499; State v. Hairston, 63 N. C. 453; Green v. State, 58 Ala. 190, 29 Am. Rep. 739; Lonas v. State, 3 Heisk. 309.

If one may constitutionally be deprived of selling cream which does not contain 20 per cent of fat, in the exercise of the police power of the state, why may the state not require that a person desiring to engage in the banking busines shall do so under the form of a corporation?

State v. Crescent Creamery Co. 83 Minn. 284, 54 L.R.A. 466, 85 Am. St. Rep. 464, 86 N. W. 107.

The legislature of Massachusetts enacted a law compelling all inhabitants over twenty-one years of age to submit, under certain circumstances, to vaccination, under penalty for refusal. In the case of Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 765, Jacobson was convicted in the state court of a refusal to be vaccinated. The conviction was sustained by the highest court of the state, and that judgment was affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

In Phillips v. State, 77 Ohio St. 214, 82 N. E. 1064, a statute of Ohio requiring junk dealers and dealers in secondhand articles, to retain such articles for thirty days before disposing of the same, was upheld.

As the legislative act in question operates upon all individuals alike, and does not prohibit them from engaging in the banking business, but merely prescribes the terms and conditions upon which they may engage in that business, it is valid.

McPherson v. Blacker, 146 U. S. 1, 36 L. ed. 869, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 436, 34 L. ed. 519, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930; Pembina Consol. Silver Min. & Mill. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 125 U. S. 181, 188, 31 L. ed. 650, 653, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 24, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 737; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 71, 30 L. ed. 578, 580, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350.

The state may pass laws amending previous statutes under which corporations are created.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. State, 47 Neb. 549, 41 L.R.A. 481, 53 Am. St. Rep. 557, 66 N. W. 624, 170 U. S. 57, 42 L. ed. 948, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 513; Sherman v. Smith, 1 Black, 587, 17 L. ed. 163; Inland Fisheries Comrs. v. Holyoke Water Power Co. 104 Mass. 446, 6 Am. Rep. 247, 15 Wall. 500, 21 L. ed. 133; Close v. Glenwood Cemetery 107 U. S. 466, 476, 27 L. ed. 408, 412, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 267; Anderson v. Seymour, 70 Minn. 358, 73 N. W. 171; Shields v. Ohio, 95 U. S. 319, 24 L. ed. 357; Roxbury v. Boston & P. R. Corp. 6 Cush. 434; Massachusetts General Hospital v. State Mut. Life Assur. Co. 4 Gray, 227; Parker v. Metropolitan R. Co. 109 Mass. 506; Story v. Jersey City & B. P. Pl. Road Co. 16 N. J. Eq. 14, 84 Am. Dec. 134; People ex rel. Kimball v. Boston & A. R. Co. 70 N. Y. 569; Montclair Twp. v. New York & G.

L. R. Co. 45 N. J. Eq. 443, 18 Atl. 242; Pennsylvania College Cases, 13 Wall. 190, 20 L. ed. 550; Greenwood v. Union Freight R. Co. 105 U. S. 13, 26 L. ed. 961; Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Owensboro, 173 U. S. 637, 43 L. ed. 840, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 530, 571; New York & N. E. R. Co. v. Bristol, 151 U. S. 556, 567, 38 L. ed. 269, 272, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 437; Looker v. Maynard, 179 U. S. 46, 52, 45 L. ed. 79, 81, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21; Bissel v. Heath, 98 Mich, 472, 57 N. W. 585.

Mr. Arthur F. Mullen, Attorney General of Nebraska, and Mr. I. L. Albert also argued the cause, and, with Mr. Grant G. Martin, filed a brief for appellants:

Banking is a proper subject for legislative control.

State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; People v. Utica Ins. Co. 15 Johns. 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243; Zane, Banks & Bkg. 7–15, § 8.

Where the legislature undertakes to regulate a trade or business which is a proper subject of legislative control, and the means employed have a real, substantial relation to the end sought, such means will not be declared unconstitutional on the ground that they are unnecessarily arbitrary, oppressive, or unjust, unless those characteristics are so manifest as to leave no room for doubt in reasonable minds.

Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 718, 25 L. ed. 501; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 346, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; State ex rel. Milwaukee Medical College v. Chittenden, 127 Wis. 468, 107 N. W. 500; Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137, 2 L. ed. 60; State v. Namias, 49 La. Ann. 618, 62 Am. St. Rep. 657, 21 So. 852; State v. Vandersluis, 42 Minn. 129, 6 L.R.A. 119, 43 N. W. 789; Logan v. Postal Teleg. & Cable Co. 157 Fed. 570; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Offield v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 203 U. S. 375, 51 L. ed. 235, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 72; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 514, 29 L. ed. 463, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175.

Is the provision restricting banking to corporations, and those providing for the guaranty of deposits, so manifestly and unnecessarily arbitrary, unjust, or oppressive that reasonable minds cannot differ with respect to them?

Weed v. Bergh, 141 Wis. 569, 25 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1217, 124 N. W. 664; State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; Myers v. Irwin, 2 Serg. & R. 368; Com. v. Vrooman, 164 Pa. 306, 25 L.R.A. 250, 44 Am. St. Rep. 603, 30 Atl. 217; Brady v. Mattern, 125 Iowa, 158, 106 Am. St. Rep. 291, 100 N. W. 358.

The very title of the act shows that it had for its object not revenue, but regulation. The same may be said of its several provisions. It is not an attempted exercise of the taxing power, but of the police power, by the state. While the guaranty feature of the act operates as a guaranty to depositors, such result is merely subsidiary to the real purpose of the act, which is, to protect the public against the disastrous consequences of bank failures, ofter precipitated by unfounded apprehensions on the part of depositors as to the safety of their deposits.

Tide-water Co. v. Coster, 18 N. J. Eq. 523, 90 Am. Dec. 634; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 26, 49 L. ed. 649, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 765; Adams Exp. Co. v. State, 161 Ind. 346, 67 N. E. 1033.

The fact that the law operates to the direct advantage of depositors does not invalidate it.

Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Cooley v. Port Wardens, 12 How. 299, 13 L. ed. 996; Wilton v. Weston, 48 Conn. 325; Tenney v. Lenz, 16 Wis. 566; Van Horn v. People, 46 Mich. 183, 41 Am. Rep. 159, 9 N. W. 246; Holst v. Roe, 39 Ohio St. 340, 48 Am. Rep. 459; Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Board of Health, 118 U. S. 455, 30 L. ed. 237, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; New York ex rel. New York Electric Lines Co. v. Squire, 145 U. S. 175, 36 L. ed. 666, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 880; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 98, 32 L. ed. 353, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. ed. 238; Firemen's Benev. Asso. v. Lounsbury, 21 Ill. 511, 74 Am. Dec. 115; Fire Dept. v. Helfenstein, 16 Wis. 141; Exempt Firemen's Benev. Fund v. Roome, 93 N. Y. 313, 45 Am. Rep. 217; Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Fire Dept. 117 Ala. 631, 42 L.R.A. 468, 23 So. 843; San Francisco v. Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. 74 Cal. 123, 5 Am. St. Rep. 425, 15 Pac. 380.

Other states have had a guaranty law.

Re Gibson, 21 N. Y. 9; Re Reciprocity

Bank, 22 N. Y. 9; People v. Walker, 17 N. Y. 502; Elwood v. State, 23 Vt. 701; Danby Bank v. State, 39 Vt. 92.

It is significant that in neither of these states was the constitutionality of the guaranty feature called in question.

Mr. I. L. Albert also filed a separate brief for appellants:

Banking is a proper subject for police regulation.

State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; Weed v. Bergh, 141 Wis. 569, 25 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1217, 124 N. W. 664; Myers v. Manhattan Bank, 20 Ohio, 283; Myers v. Irwin, 2 Serg. & R. 368.

It may pass from a common-law right, exercisable at pleasure, to a right lawfully exercisable only under a franchise from the state.

McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 424, 4 L. ed. 605; People v. Utica Ins. Co. 15 Johns. 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243.

Whatever may be the modern conception of a bank, the power to issue notes with a view to their circulation as money was formerly incidental to the right to engage in banking.

Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 595, 596, 10 L. ed. 274, 311; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. New York, 121 U. S. 138, 156, 30 L. ed. 895, 902, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; State v. Scougal, 3 S. D. 55, 15 L.R.A. 477, 44 Am. St. Rep. 756, 51 N. W. 858; Exchange Bank v. Hines, 3 Ohio St. 31.

The right to issue notes with a view to their circulation as money has long been regarded as a franchise, and not one exercisable at the pleasure of each citizen.

Encyclopedia Britannica, title, "Banking;" Zane, Banks & Bkg. 7–15.

If the legislature can take away one branch of banking from private citizens for the public good, it would seem to follow as a matter of strict logical deduction that all branches of the business could be made franchises.

A bank, or banking system, is an appropriate governmental agency which the state may create and employ to serve its legitimate ends.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 424, 4 L. ed. 605.

The power to create such agency carries with it the power to make it exclusive in the domain within which it operates, whether such agency be operated directly by the state, or through instrumentalities created by it.

Ibid.; New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Louisiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 650, 29 L. ed. 516, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252; New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Rivers, 115 U. S. 674, 29 L. ed. 525, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Louisville Gas Co. v. Citizens' Gaslight Co. 115 U. S. 683, 29 L. ed. 510, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; St. Tammany Waterworks Co. v. New Orleans Waterworks Co. 120 U. S. 64, 30 L. ed. 563, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 405; Davenport Gas & Electric Co. v. Davenport, 124 Iowa, 22, 98 N. W. 892; Atlantic City Waterworks Co. v. Atlantic City, 39 N. J. Eq. 367; Memphis v. Memphis Water Co. 5 Heisk. 495.

Mr. John Lee Webster argued the cause, and, with Mr. William V. Allen, filed a brief for appellees:

The business of banking is one in which individuals, of right, have engaged from time immemorial.

Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 595, 596, 10 L. ed. 274, 311; Bank of California v. San Francisco, 142 Cal. 276, 64 L.R.A. 918, 100 Am. St. Rep. 130, 75 Pac. 832; State v. Scougal, 3 S. D. 55, 15 L.R.A. 477, 44 Am. St. Rep. 756, 51 N. W. 858.

Many cases recognize the right to regulate banking in a reasonable degree, and at the same time recognize the right of private banking.

Ex parte Pittman, 31 Nev. 56, 99 Pac. 704; International Trust Co. v. American Loan & T. Co. 62 Minn. 501, 65 N. W. 78, 632; Marymont v. Nevada State Bkg. Board, — Nev. —, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 477, 111 Pac. 295.

It is not within the police power of the state to confine banking to corporations, and to deprive citizens of their common-law right to do a banking business.

State v. Scougal, 3 S. D. 55, 15 L.R.A. 477, 44 Am. St. Rep. 756, 51 N. W. 858; Marymont v. Nevada State Bkg. Board, — Nev. —, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 477, 111 Pac. 295.

Can a statute be ruled to be a regulation of a natural, inherent, and inalienable right of the citizen when it takes from him the liberty and the privileges and immunities which are protected in the citizens by the Constitution of the United States?

State v. Scougal, 3 S. D. 55, 15 L.R.A. 477, 44 Am. St. Rep. 756, 51 N. W. 858; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 97, 21 L. ed. 415; Butchers' Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. v. Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. 111 U. S. 746, 757, 28 L. ed. 585, 591, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 652; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 590, 41 L. ed. 832, 836, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Re Jacobs, 98 N. Y. 98, 50 Am. Rep. 636; Gillespie v. People, 188 Ill. 183, 52 L.R.A. 283, 80 Am. St. Rep. 176, 58 N. E. 1007; Braceville Coal Co. v. People, 147 Ill. 71, 22 L.R.A. 340, 37 Am. St. Rep. 206, 35 N. E. 62; People v. Marx, 99 N. Y. 377, 52

Am. Rep. 34, 2 N. E. 29; Wyeth v. Board of Health (Wyeth v. Thomas) 200 Mass. 478, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 147, 128 Am. St. Rep. 439, 86 N. E. 925.

It has been ruled in New York that a statute is unconstitutional which limits the right of a citizen to become a member of a copartnership.

Schnaier v. Navarre Hotel & Importation Co. 182 N. Y. 88, 70 L.R.A. 722, 108 Am. St. Rep. 790, 74 N. E. 561.

In People v. Ringe, 197 N. Y. 143, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 528, 90 N. E. 451, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 474, the court held a statute unconstitutional which prohibited the formation of a partnership for the business of undertaking, unless each member was licensed.

The state cannot compel private bankers to incorporate. The formation of corporations must be the voluntary act of the parties.

1 Cook, Corp. 4th ed. § 2–a; 1 Thomp. Corp. § 52; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 707, 708, 4 L. ed. 629, 676, 677.

The taking of the assets of one bank to pay the claims of depositors of another bank is taking property for a private use without due process of law, and without compensation.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Parkersburg v. Brown, 106 U. S. 487, 27 L. ed. 238, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 442; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 99; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 510, 27 L.R.A. 72, 31 Atl. 208; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 417, 41 L. ed. 489, 495, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97–102, 24 L. ed. 616–619; Dodge v. Mission Twp. 54 L.R.A. 242, 46 C. C. A. 661, 107 Fed. 827; Lucas County v. State (Davies v. State) 75 Ohio St. 135, 7 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1196, 78 N. E. 955; State ex rel. Garrett v. Froehlich, 118 Wis. 129, 61 L.R.A. 345, 99 Am. St. Rep. 985, 94 N. W. 50; William Deering & Co. v. Peterson, 75 Minn. 118, 77 N. W. 568; Cole v. La Grange, 113 U. S. 1, 28 L. ed. 896, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416.

The guaranty-fund provision of the act is a phase of paternalism that is obnoxious to our system of government.

State ex rel. Garth v. Switzler, 143 Mo. 287, 40 L.R.A. 280, 65 Am. St. Rep. 653, 45 S. W. 245.

A bank has been held by this court to be a private, as distinct from a public, corporation.

Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 669, 4 L. ed. 629, 667. See also Briscoe v. Bank of Kentucky, 11 Pet. 257–324, 9 L. ed. 709–735; Bolton v. White, 2 Cranch, C. C. 426, Fed. Cas. No. 1,616; Rundle v. Delaware & R. Canal, 1 Wall. Jr. 275, Fed. Cas. No. 12,139; Piqua Branch of State Bank v. Knoop, 16 How. 369, 14 L. ed. 977.

This court has gone so far as to hold that even though a sovereign state owns stock in the bank, nevertheless the bank remains a private corporation, and that a suit against the bank is not a suit against the state.

Bank of United States v. Planters' Bank, 9 Wheat. 904, 907, 6 L. ed. 244.

The fact that a state bank is a private corporation adds force to our contention that the claim of a depositor of a bank is a private claim, and that the taking of the money from the banks by the process of the guaranty fund, to pay the depositors of another bank, is an appropriation of the money to a private use, and not for a public use.

Parkersburg v. Brown, 106 U. S. 487, 491, 27 L. ed. 238, 240, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 442; Cole v. La Grange, 113 U. S. 1, 9, 28 L. ed. 896, 898, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416; Dodge v. Mission Twp. 54 L.R.A. 242, 46 C. C. A. 661, 107 Fed. 832; Allen v. Jay, 60 Me. 124, 11 Am. Rep. 185; Coates v. Campbell, 37 Minn. 498, 35 N. W. 366; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Patty v. Colgan, 97 Cal. 251, 18 L.R.A. 744, 31 Pac. 1133; Lucas County v. State (Davies v. State) 75 Ohio St. 135, 7 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1196, 78 N. E. 955; Wisconsin Keeley Institute Co. v. Milwaukee County, 95 Wis. 153, 36 L.R.A. 55, 60 Am. St. Rep. 105, 70 N. W. 68; State ex rel. Garrett v. Froehlich, 118 Wis. 129, 61 L.R.A. 345, 99 Am. St. Rep. 985, 94 N. W. 50; State ex rel. Garth v. Switzler, 143 Mo. 287, 40 L.R.A. 280, 65 Am. St. Rep. 653, 45 S. W. 245; Kingman v. Brockton, 153 Mass. 255, 11 L.R.A. 123, 26 N. E. 998; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 99; William Deering & Co. v. Peterson, 75 Minn. 118, 77 N. W. 568; Deal v. Mississippi County, 107 Mo. 464, 14 L.R.A. 622, 18 S. W. 24; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Campbell, 61 Kan. 439, 48 L.R.A. 251, 78 Am. St. Rep. 328, 59 Pac. 1051; Harp v. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. 118 Fed. 169; Oxnard Beet Sugar Co. v. State, 73 Neb. 57, 102 N. W. 80, 105 N. W. 716; Michigan Sugar Co. v. Auditor General, 124 Mich. 674, 56 L.R.A. 329, 83 Am. St. Rep. 354, 83 N. W. 625; Minnesota Sugar Co. v. Iverson, 91 Minn. 30, 97 N. W. 455.

It is the taking of the assets of one bank without compensation. This cannot be done, even though the property taken be appropriated to a public use.

Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362–399, 38 L. ed. 1014–1024, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Cotting v. Kansas City Stockyards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79–87, 46 L. ed. 92–100, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30.

The guaranty provision of the new banking act is not within the scope of the police powers of the state. The police power has its limitations. The police power cannot justify the invasion of any property or contract right of the citizen, granted to him under the Constitution.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 558, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S. 223–237, 239, 49 L. ed. 169–175, 176, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150–158, 41 L. ed. 666–669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Minnesota v. Barber, 136 U. S. 313, 319, 34 L. ed. 455, 458, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 185, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 862; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 699, 43 L. ed. 858, 865, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 188, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 302; Wisconsin Keeley Institute Co. v. Milwaukee County, 95 Wis. 153, 36 L.R.A. 55, 60 Am. St. Rep. 105, 70 N. W. 68.

The police power is the law of necessity, which means more than expediency.

Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U. S. 275, 280, 23 L. ed. 550, 552; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; Bryan v. Chester, 212 Pa. 259, 108 Am. St. Rep. 870, 61 Atl. 894; Crawford v. Topeka, 51 Kan. 756, 20 L.R.A. 692, 37 Am. St. Rep. 323, 33 Pac. 476; Passaic v. Paterson Bill Posting, Adv. & Sign Painting Co. 72 N. J. L. 285, 111 Am. St. Rep. 676, 62 Atl. 267, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 995; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 110, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408; Belleville v. St. Clair County Turnp. Co. 234 Ill. 428, 17 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1071, 84 N. E. 1049; Sayre v. Phillips, 148 Pa. 482, 16 L.R.A. 49, 33 Am. St. Rep. 842, 24 Atl. 76.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a suit by many banks to prevent the banking board of Nebraska from carrying out and enforcing an act similar to the Oklahoma statute just passed upon. It forbids banking except by a corporation formed under the act, and provides for a guaranty fund. The circuit court held the statute unconstitutional, and issued an injunction against the enforcement of it. 172 Fed. 999. For the reasons given in the foregoing case, the decree of the circuit court must be reversed.

Decree reversed.

---

*ASSARIA STATE BANK OF ASSARIA, Citizens Bank of Axtell, et al., Appts., [121

v.

JOSEPH N. DOLLEY, as Bank Commissioner of the State of Kansas, and Mark Tulley, as State Treasurer of the State of Kansas.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 121–127.)

Constitutional law — police power — creating depositor's guaranty fund.

1. A state statute creating a bank depositors' guaranty fund for the purpose of securing the full repayment of deposits in case of the insolvency of any bank contributing to the fund is no less a valid exercise of the police power because contribution to such fund is not absolutely required.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 881–891, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — creating bank depositors' guaranty fund.

2. An unconstitutional discrimination does not result from the preference of ordinary depositors over other creditors, given by a state statute creating a bank depositors' guaranty fund for the purpose of securing the full repayment of deposits in case of the insolvency of any bank contributing to the fund.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — discrimination — bank depositors' guaranty fund.

3. Unincorporated banks, and banks not having a surplus of 10 per cent, are not unconstitutionally discriminated against by excluding them from availing themselves of the privileges of a state statute creating a bank depositors' guaranty fund for the purpose of securing the full repayment of deposits in case of the insolvency of any bank contributing to the fund.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 617.]

Argued December 8, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

NOTE.—For a discussion of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S 923.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kansas to review a decree dismissing a bill to enjoin the enforcement of a state statute creating a bank depositors' guaranty fund. Affirmed.

See same case below 175 Fed. 365.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Chester I. Long argued the cause, and, with Messrs. B. P. Waggener, John Lee Webster, James Willis Gleed, and John L. Hunt, filed a brief for appellants:

The so-called bank guaranty law is not a regulation of either banks or banking. It is a law creating an insurance scheme to be conducted by the state, the expenses of which are to be paid out of moneys raised by general taxation.

Re Right of National Banks to Participate in Kansas Bank Guaranty Law, 27 Ops. Atty. Gen. 272.

Taxation for a private purpose is a taking of property without due process of law.

Brannon, 14th Amendment, p. 160; Cole v. La. Grange, 113 U. S. 1, 28 L. ed. 896, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Cooley, Taxn. 67; Sharpless v. Philadelphia, 21 Pa. 147, 59 Am. Dec. 759.

The law is not a police regulation. A statute to compel payment of debts is not a police regulation.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

This law acts by way of gift,—by taking the property of one and giving it to another Police power is simply the enforcement of the maxim, Sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas, and acts by way of restraint.

Tiedeman, Pol. Power, § 1; Freund, Pol. Power, §§ 3, 8, 22.

An exercise of the police power can be justified only by the needs of the public generally. This law benefits only a limited class of bank depositors.

Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Hume v. Laurel Hill Cemetery, 142 Fed. 553; Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 188, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 302; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 89, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408; Frank L. Fisher Co. v. Woods, 187 N. Y. 90, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 707, 79 N. E. 836.

The police power exists only where a necessity for its exercise exists. This law does not depend upon the necessity of those benefited—the depositors—for its existence, because it may be put in action only by the voluntary act of private banking corporations.

Larabee v. Dolley, 175 Fed. 365; Tiedeman, Pol. Power, § 1; Freund, Pol. Power, §§ 3, 8, 22; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 28 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; California Reduction Co. v. Sanitary Reduction Works, 199 U. S. 306, 50 L. ed. 204, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 100; Gardner v. Michigan, 199 U. S. 325, 50 L. ed. 212, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 106; Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 98, 29 L.R.A. 79, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 40 N. E. 454; People v. Steele, 231 Ill. 340, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 361, 121 Am. St. Rep. 321, 83 N. E. 236.

The law is therefore not an exercise of the police power. No other public purpose justifies it. A public purpose is a governmental purpose.

Dodge v. Mission Twp. 54 L.R.A. 242, 46 C. C. A. 661, 107 Fed. 830.

A governmental purpose is one for the accomplishment of which, as shown by history, governments were instituted.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Opinion of Justices, 155 Mass. 598, 15 L.R.A. 809, 30 N. E. 1142.

Considered as an act for the relief of sufferers from bank failures, or as an act to pay the debts of banks, the purpose of the act is private, and not public.

Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 510, 27 L.R.A. 72, 31 Atl. 208; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 99; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455.

Classification must rest upon some difference which bears a reasonable and just relation to the act in relation to which the classification is proposed.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609.

Power to pass the law arises from the necessity for the law.

Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 137, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 89, 14 L.R.A. (N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408.

The state had no power to pass the law, except in the interest of the public generally.

Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 137, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Hume v. Laurel Hill Cemetery, 142 Fed. 552;

Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 188, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 302; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 89, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137; Frank L. Fisher Co. v. Woods, 187 N. Y. 90, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 707, 79 N. E. 836.

It is as much in the interest of the public generally that depositors in banks without a 10 per cent surplus should be paid as that depositors in other banks should be paid.

State v. Goodwill, 33 W. Va. 179, 6 L.R.A. 621, 25 Am. St. Rep. 863, 10 S. E. 285.

Classification in accordance with the peculiarities of the bank with which the depositor does business, and not in accordance with the needs of the depositor, is arbitrary.

State v. Haun, 61 Kan. 153, 47 L.R.A. 369, 59 Pac. 340.

The law deprives banks which have not a 10 per cent surplus of property without due process of law.

Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362, 38 L. ed. 1014, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; State v. Goodwill, 33 W. Va. 179, 6 L.R.A. 621, 25 Am St. Rep. 863, 10 S. E. 285; McKinster v. Sager, 163 Ind. 671, 68 L.R.A. 273, 106 Am. St. Rep. 268, 72 N. E. 854.

Giving banks which have a 10 per cent surplus the alternative of either being deprived of their property or of illegally conducting their business is depriving them of their property without due process of law just as certainly as if they were not given the alternative of illegally conducting their business.

Mr. John Lee Webster also argued the cause, and, with Messrs. B. P. Waggener, Chester I. Long, James Willis Gleed, and John L. Hunt, filed a brief for appellants:

The arbitrary and capricious discriminations between depositors and other creditors renders the bank guaranty deposit law unconstitutional.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 559, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 105, 29 L.R.A. 79, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 40 N. E. 454; State v Hinman, 65 N. H. 103, 23 Am. St. Rep. 25, 18 Atl. 194; State v. Montgomery, 94 Me. 192, 80 Am. St. Rep. 386, 47 Atl. 165, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 117; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 109–112, 46 L. ed. 92, 108–110, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30.

The fact that in the same city or locality some banks may and some may not become guaranteed banks produces such an arbitrary and unlawful discrimination between depositors of the same class as renders the whole act unconstitutional.

McKinster v. Sager, 163 Ind. 671, 68 L.R.A. 273, 106 Am. St. Rep. 268, 72 N. E. 854; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150–159, 41 L. ed. 666–669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Storck v. Baltimore, 101 Md. 476, 61 Atl. 330; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79–107, 46 L. ed. 92–107, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30.

Neither the right to regulate nor the police power of the state can be used as a weapon to destroy.

Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27–31, 28 L. ed. 923–925, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79–106, 46 L. ed. 92–107, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; State v. Haun, 61 Kan. 146, 47 L.R.A. 369, 59 Pac. 340; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 105, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408.

Conceding the power reasonably to regulate the business of banking, such power to regulate is not a power to destroy nor to take away the property of the banks without due process of law, and without just compensation.

Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 696, 43 L. ed. 863, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Budd v. New York, 143 U. S. 547, 36 L. ed. 256, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 468; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 397, 38 L. ed. 1023, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30

The police power is the law of necessity.

Bryan v. Chester, 212 Pa. 259, 108 Am. St. Rep. 870, 61 Atl. 894; Passaic v. Patterson Bill Posting, Adv. & Sign Painting Co. 72 N. J. L. 285, 111 Am. St. Rep. 676, 62 Atl. 267, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 995; People ex rel. Wineburgh Adv. Co. v. Murphy, 195 N. Y. 126, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 735, 88 N. E. 17; Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 550; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 89, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408;

Belleville v. St. Clair County Turnp. Co. 234 Ill. 428, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1071, 84 N. E. 1049; Sayre v. Phillips, 148 Pa. 482, 16 L.R.A. 49, 33 Am. St. Rep. 842, 24 Atl. 76.

If it be the law that a necessity must exist for the exercise of the police power, the statute cannot be justified as an exercise of the police power which leaves it to the will or caprice of the citizen or the bank whether they will or will not accept of its provisions. The mere fact that it is voluntary is a declaration on the face of it that it is not within the police power, and is not an exercise of the police power.

The police power can only be exercised when necessary to accomplish a public need. It must be demanded by the public generally, as distinct from the demand of a class.

Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Hume v. Laurel Hill Cemetery, 142 Fed. 552; Frank L. Fisher Co. v. Woods, 187 N. Y. 90, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 707, 79 N. E. 836; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 89, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408.

The police power does not recognize favorites. The police power will not justify arbitrary or capricious classifications.

Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 98, 29 L.R.A. 79, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 40 N. E. 454; State v. Montgomery, 94 Me. 192, 80 Am. St. Rep. 386, 47 Atl. 165, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 117; State v. Goodwill, 33 W. Va. 179, 6 L.R.A. 621, 25 Am. St. Rep. 863, 10 S. E. 285; State v. Haun, 61 Kan. 146, 47 L.R.A. 369, 59 Pac. 340.

Good intentions on the part of the legislature will not justify the discriminations.

Bonnett v. Vallier, 136 Wis. 200, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 486, 128 Am. St. Rep. 1061, 116 N. W. 885.

The Kansas bank guaranty act, when looked at collectively, is so full of classifications that are arbitrary and unreasonable, and of discriminations which are unlawful, that the entire act must be declared to be unconstitutional.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Storck v. Baltimore, 101 Md. 476, 61 Atl. 330; Bonnett v. Vallier, supra; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Sayre v. Phillips, 148 Pa. 482, 16 L.R.A. 49, 33 Am. St. Rep. 842, 24 Atl. 76; State v. Mitchell, 97 Me. 66, 94 Am. St. Rep. 481, 53 Atl. 887.

One of the primary purposes of the Kansas bank guaranty law is to take the property of certain banks, and appropriate the same to pay the private claim of an individual against some other bank, with whom the contributing banks sustain no obligation, moral or contractual. It is the taking of the property of one person to pay the private debts of another, hence is unconstitutional.

Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S. 223–237, 49 L. ed. 169–176, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; Crescent Liquor Co. v. Platt, 148 Fed. 898; Alma Coal Co. v. Cozad, 79 Ohio St. 348, 20 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1092, 87 N. E. 172; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 418, 19 Am. Rep. 99; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 510, 27 L.R.A. 72, 31 Atl. 208; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Dodge v. Mission Twp. 54 L.R.A. 242, 46 C. C. A. 661, 107 Fed. 827; Lucas County v. State (Davies v. State) 75 Ohio St. 114, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1196, 78 N. E. 955; State ex rel. Garrett v. Froehlich, 118 Wis. 129, 61 L.R.A. 345, 99 Am. St. Rep. 985, 94 N. W. 50; William Deering & Co. v. Peterson, 75 Minn. 118, 77 N. W. 568; State ex rel. Garth v. Switzler, 143 Mo. 287, 40 L.R.A. 280, 65 Am. St. Rep. 653, 45 S. W. 245; First State Bank v. Shallenberger, 172 Fed. 999.

The obligation of a contract in the constitutional sense includes the right to have the contract enforced; and that no statute which tends to postpone or retard the enforcement of the contract for the benefit of others, and which discriminates against such right of enforcement, is constitutional.

People ex rel. Reynolds v. Buffalo, 140 N. Y. 300, 37 Am. St. Rep. 563, 35 N. E. 485; Barnitz v. Beverly, 163 U. S. 128, 41 L. ed. 100, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1042; Western Nat. Bank v. Reckless, 96 Fed. 77; Peninsular Lead & Color Works v. Union Oil & Paint Co. 100 Wis. 488, 42 L.R.A. 331, 69 Am. St. Rep. 934, 76 N. W. 359.

An act is unconstitutional which changes the remedy, unless it supplies an alternative remedy equally adequate and efficacious.

People ex rel. Reynolds v. Buffalo, 140 N. Y. 300, 37 Am. St. Rep. 563, 35 N. E. 485; McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662–693, 34 L. ed. 304–314, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972.

Statutes which seriously impair the remedy which existed at the time the contract was entered into "impair the obligation" of the contract, within the meaning of the Constitution.

Hawthorne v. Calef, 2 Wall. 10, 17 L. ed. 776; Louisiana v. New Orleans, 102 U. S. 203, 26 L. ed. 132; Seibert v. Lewis (Seibert v. United States) 122 U. S. 284, 30 L. ed. 1161, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1190.

Messrs. Fred S. Jackson, Attorney General of Kansas, and A. C. Mitchell argued the cause, and, with Mr. G. H. Buckman, filed a brief for appellees:

The Kansas bank guaranty law is a voluntary law, and applies only to those who seek and obtain admission to its benefits, and therefore cannot constitute a taking of property without due process of law, or a denial of the equal protection of the laws.

Merchants' & M. Nat. Bank v. Pennsylvania, 167 U. S. 461, 42 L. ed. 236, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829, 168 Pa. 309, 31 Atl. 1065.

The appellant banks have not presented by their bill such a state of facts as will work a justiciable injury to them.

Albany County v. Stanley, 105 U. S. 305, 26 L. ed. 1044; Clark v. Kansas City, 176 U. S. 114, 44 L. ed. 392, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284; Smiley v. Kansas, 196 U. S. 447, 49 L. ed. 546, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Merchants' & M. Nat. Bank v. Pennsylvania, 167 U. S. 461, 42 L. ed. 236, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Com. v. Merchants' & Mfrs. Nat. Bank, 168 Pa. 309, 31 Atl. 1065; Turpin v. Lemon, 187 U. S. 51, 47 L. ed. 70, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 20; Braxton County Ct. v. West Virginia, 208 U. S. 192, 52 L. ed. 450, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 275; State v. Smiley, 65 Kan. 240, 67 L.R.A. 903, 69 Pac. 199; Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137, 2 L. ed. 60; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 45 L. ed. 252, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

The appellants, being all citizens of the state of Kansas, have not presented a state of facts which raises a controversy under the Constitution of the United States.

Metcalf v. Watertown, 128 U. S. 586, 32 L. ed. 543, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 173; Tennessee v. Union & Planters' Bank, 152 U. S. 454, 38 L. ed. 511, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 654; Blackburn v. Portland Gold Min. Co. 175 U. S. 571, 44 L. ed. 276, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 222.

The banking business is a public business, and its regulation is within the police power of the state.

Freund, Pol. Power, §§ 400, 401; Tiedeman, Pol. Power, § 194; Blaker v. Hood, 53 Kan. 499, 24 L.R.A. 854, 36 Pac. 1115; State v. Richcreek, 167 Ind. 217, 5 L.R.A. (N.S.) 878, 119 Am. St. Rep. 491, 77 N. E. 1085, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 899; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 10 L. ed. 274; Zane, Banks & Bkg. §§ 8, 9; Morse, Bkg. § 13; Bank of California v. San Francisco, 142 Cal. 276, 64 L.R.A. 918, 100 Am. St. Rep. 130, 75 Pac. 832.

The Kansas bank guaranty law is a regulation of banking, and is a proper exercise of the police power of the state.

Freund, Pol. Power, § 400; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137, 2 L. ed. 60; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a bill in equity brought by many state banks of Kansas to prevent the enforcement of the Kansas law *providing for a bank depositors' guaranty fund. [126 The defendants demurred. The circuit court, while holding the act unconstitutional, dismissed the bill on the ground that the appellants did not show that their rights under the Constitution were infringed, and therefore did not state a case within the jurisdiction of the court. 175 Fed. 365, 375, 381, 382. The ground of complaint was that the law imposed certain conditions upon sharing the benefits and burdens of contributors to the guaranty fund, that the appellants would not or could not contribute, and that unless they did, the effect of the law would be to drive them out of business. It was complained also that whereas theretofore the plaintiffs would have been entitled to share pro rata in the assets of an insolvent bank to which they had given credit, now depositors with such of their debtors as should go into the guaranty system would be preferred. Again, various conditions of the scheme not affecting the plaintiffs were pointed out as unreasonable and arbitrary, and the whole act was alleged to be unconstitutional and void. There was added a charge that the act required taxation to meet the expenses of carrying out the scheme. To all this the court replied that so far as the plaintiffs were concerned, it did not appear that they could not change their condition so as to enable themselves to contribute, and that the possible preference of other creditors was put as a pure speculation, it not being averred that any guaranteed bank indebted to any of the plaintiffs had failed, to which it might be added that the plaintiffs are free to withdraw their credits and collect their debts now. The charge as to taxation did not state a case under the Constitution, and violation of constitutional rights was the only ground for coming into the circuit court.

The case of Noble State Bank v. Haskell, just decided [219 U. S. 104, ante, 112, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186] cuts the root of the plaintiffs' case, except so far as the Kansas law shows certain minor differences from *that of Oklahoma. [127 The most important of these is that contribution to the fund is not absolutely required. On this ground it is said, and was thought by the circuit judge, that the law could not be justified under the police power. We cannot agree to such a limitation. If, as we have decided, the law might compel the contribution on the grounds that we have stated, it may try to bring about the same result by the creation of motives less compulsory than command and of disadvantages in holding aloof less peremptory than an immediate stop. We shall not go through the details of minute criticism urged by the appellants, in most if not all of which they are in no way concerned. Perhaps the most striking of these subordinate matters is the preference of ordinary depositors over other creditors,—a preference that seems to be overstated by the appellants. This, obviously, is in aid of what we have assumed to be the one of the chief objects and justifications of such laws,—securing the currency of checks. The ordinary deposits are those that are drawn against in that way. Another discrimination complained of is that against unincorporated banks and banks not having a surplus of 10 per cent. But if the state might require incorporation, it may give advantages to incorporated companies. It might provide that no banking business should be done except by corporations, and that corporations should not be formed or continue with less than a surplus of 10 per cent, both provisions being for the purpose of assuring safety. If, instead of that, it allows the plaintiffs to keep on without incorporation, and with a smaller surplus, they cannot complain that the safer banks will outstrip them as the result of the law. We think it unnecessary to discuss the case more at length.

Decree affirmed.

128] *MORRIS ENGEL, Appt.,
v.
EDWARD R. O'MALLEY, Frank Moss, Clark Williams, and William F. Baker.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 128–139.)

Statutes — who may assail validity.

1. One who can satisfy the requirement of N. Y. Laws 1910, chap. 348, for licensing private bankers, that the applicant for license must have been continuously for five years immediately preceding his application a resident of the United States, cannot complain that such provision is unconstitutional.

[For other cases, see Statutes, 53–60, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — police power — regulating private banking.

2. The business of receiving deposits of money in small sums from time to time until they reach an amount sufficient to be sent to other states or foreign countries is banking, and as such is a proper subject for regulation in the exercise of the police power of the state.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 881–891, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — police power — licensing private bankers.

3. The police power of the state justifies the requirement of N. Y. Laws 1910, chap. 348, that a license from the comptroller be obtained by individuals or partnerships desiring to engage in the business of receiving deposits of money for safe-keeping, or for the purpose of transmission to another, or for any other purpose.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 881–891, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — equal protection of the laws — licensing private bankers.

4. The possibility that the comptroller may refuse a license to a private banker upon his arbitrary whim does not inval-

---

Note.—For a discussion of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

State licenses or taxes as affecting interstate commerce—see notes to Rotherniel v. Meyerle, 9 L.R.A. 366; American Fertilizing Co. v. Board of Agriculture, 11 L.R.A. 179; Gibbons v. Ogden, 6 L. ed. U. S. 23; Brown v. Maryland, 6 L. ed. U. S. 678; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 32 L. ed. U. S. 229; Harmon v. Chicago, 37 L. ed. U. S. 217; Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 38 L. ed. U. S. 1041; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Adams, 39 L. ed. U. S. 311; and Pittsburg & S. Coal Co. v. Bates, 39 L. ed. U. S. 538.

Prohibiting or regulating private banking.

There is no doubt, under the authorities, of the right of the state, in the exercise of its police power, to regulate and impose conditions upon the business of private banking.

In State v. Richchreek, 167 Ind. 217, 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 874, 119 Am. St. Rep. 491, 77 N. E. 1085, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 899, there was upheld over objections founded on the constitutional prohibitions against taking property without compensation or due process of law, granting special privi-idate, under U. S. Const. 14th Amend., the requirement of N. Y. Laws 1910, chap. 348, that a license from that official be obtained by individuals or partnerships desiring to engage in that business.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 360–368, 586–590, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — licensing private bankers.

5. No unconstitutional discrimination is made by exempting those private bankers in whose business the average amount of each sum received is not less than $500, and those who give a bond in a specified amount, from the requirement of N. Y. Laws 1910, chap. 348, that a license from the comptroller be obtained by individuals or partnerships desiring to engage in the business of receiving deposits of money for safe-keeping, or for the purpose of transmission to another, or for any other purpose.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 360–368, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — state regulation — licensing private bankers.

6. Interstate commerce is not unconstitutionally regulated by the requirement of N. Y. Laws 1910, chap. 348, that a license from the comptroller be obtained by individuals or partnerships desiring to engage in the business of private banking, as applied to one whose business chiefly consists in receiving deposits in very small sums from time to time until they reach an amount sufficient to be sent to other states and foreign countries.

[For other cases, see Commerce, III. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 703.]

Argued December 15, 16, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a decree sustaining a demurrer to a bill which seeks to prevent the enforcement of a state statute forbidding the carrying on of the business of private banking without a license from the comptroller. Affirmed.

See same case below 182 Fed. 365.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

---

leges, or abridging the privileges and immunities of citizens, a statute applying both to new and established institutions, requiring that the real estate, furniture, and fixtures of private bankers shall constitute no more than one third of the entire capital of the bank, and that the responsibility and net worth of the individual members of a private banking concern shall be at least equal to double the amount of capital paid into the bank, and that all individual bankers and at least one member of a firm conducting a banking business must be residents of the state.

The legislature may define as banking the business of merchants in receiving deposits of money which the depositor may withdraw either in money or in goods, with interest, and throw around such business the general safeguards provided for the banking business proper. MacLaren v. State, 141 Wis. 577, 135 Am. St. Rep. 55, 124 N. W. 667, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 826.

A municipal ordinance assigning private bankers to different classes, and imposing a graded license tax and also an ad valorem tax on the capital employed, does not deny due process of law, nor violate constitutional requirements as to equality and uniformity of taxation, nor does it violate a provision of the state Constitution for the imposition of license taxes upon any business which cannot be reached by the ad valorem system. Bradley v. Richmond, 110 Va. 521, 66 S. E. 872.

In Blaker v. Hood, 53 Kan. 499, 24 L.R.A. 854, 36 Pac. 1115, the court upheld, as a valid exercise of the police power, an act providing for the organization of corporate banks, and for the regulation of all banking business, except that done by national banks, whether conducted by corporations, partnerships, or individuals; creating the office of bank commissioner; requiring that all engaged in the banking business make reports to him of their resources and liabilities, and submit to inspection and investigation in order to disclose their financial condition; and prescribing methods of business intended to protect depositors and patrons. It was also held in this case that the provisions of the Kansas Constitution authorizing the organization and control of banks of circulation apply only to banks of issue, and do not prohibit the enactment of laws imposing regulations upon banks of deposit and discount.

A statute making it a misdemeanor for any banker to discount commercial paper at more than a certain rate per cent was upheld in Youngblood v. Birmingham Trust & Sav. Co. 95 Ala. 521, 20 L.R.A. 58, 36 Am. St. Rep. 245, 12 So. 579, against the objection that it was unconstitutional as class legislation, because it applied to bankers only. This legislation applies to corporate as well as individual bankers,—a fact which the court regarded as a sufficient ground for distinguishing Carter Bros. v. Coleman, 84 Ala. 256, 4 So. 151, where the statute, then directed against individual bankers only, was held invalid.

The New York statute sustained in the principal case was held invalid in Lee v. O'Malley, 69 Misc. 215, 126 N. Y. Supp. 775, on two of the grounds unsuccessfully urged in the Federal Supreme Court: viz., the exemption of those private bankers whose deposits average $500 or more, and the purely arbitrary discretion vested in the comptroller.

When we come to the question of the right of the state to prohibit private banking, the authorities are conflicting.

The right to prohibit the business of banking by private individuals in all its

Mr. Charles Dushkind argued the cause, and filed a brief for appellant:

A statute that is repugnant to the Constitution is not voidable, but is absolutely void.

Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 129, 52 L. ed. 717, 13 L.R.A.(N.S.) 932, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep 441, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; Norton v. Shelby County, 118 U. S. 441, 30 L. ed. 185, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1121.

An unconstitutional act is rendered void not by judicial decision, but the Constitution itself declares it void. It is self-operating; it has no legal inception and never has a legal existence.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 558, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Anyone against whom an unconstitutional act is sought to be enforced should have the right to resist its enforcement, and attack the validity of the act, no matter whether the obnoxious feature of the law applies to him or not.

Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 45 L. ed. 252, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Hooker v. Burr, 194 U. S. 415, 48 L. ed. 1046, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep 706; Turpin v. Lemon, 187 U. S. 51, 47 L. ed. 70, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 20; Williams v. Eggleston, 170 U. S. 304, 42 L. ed. 1047, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Albany County v. Stanley, 105 U. S. 305, 26 L. ed. 1044; Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 534, 54 L. ed. 871, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594.

The statute is unconstitutional because it gives the comptroller arbitrary power to deprive the appellant of his right to carry on his business.

Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Baltimore v. Radecke, 49 Md. 217, 33 Am. Rep. 239; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633.

The statute is repugnant to the 14th Amendment because it contains unjust discriminations.

Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Cooley, Const. Law, 556, 557; Com. use of Titusville v. Clark, 195 Pa. 634, 57 L.R.A. 348, 86 Am. St. Rep. 694, 46 Atl. 286; State v. Gravett, 65 Ohio St. 289, 55 L.R.A. 791, 87 Am. St. Rep. 605, 62 N. E. 325; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43.

There is a wide distinction between the banking business and the occupations where public health or public morals are involved.

Butchers' Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. v. Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. 111 U. S. 746, 28 L. ed. 585, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 652; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 10 L. ed. 274; Austin v. Tennessee, 179 U. S. 343, 45 L. ed. 224, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 86, 34 L. ed. 620, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; Cooley, Const. Lim. pp. 289, 290.

It is one thing to tax merchants upon departments and incidents, including discount, deposit, and exchange, as well as the issuance of bills to circulate as money, is affirmed in State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970.

---

And requiring incorporation as a condition of doing a banking business is declared in Weed v. Bergh, 141 Wis. 569, 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1217, 124 N. W. 664, to be regulation, and not prohibition and therefore not to interfere unconstitutionally with the right to transact such business, even though all existing banks must be converted into corporations within three months after the passage of the statute, where incorporation may be effected within that time without loss by the application of ordinary business methods.

See also Shallenberger v. First State Bank, 219 U. S. 114, ante, 117, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 189, wherein was sustained, as a valid exercise of the police power, a Nebraska statute forbidding banking except by a corporation, and providing for a depositors' guaranty fund.

And see Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S. 104. ante, 112, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1062, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186, where the court said that the police power of the state extends even to the prohibition of the banking business except upon such conditions as the state may prescribe.

The right to prohibit private banking is denied, except as to the privilege of issuing bills to circulate as money, in State v. Scougal, 3 S. D. 55, 15 L.R.A. 477, 44 Am. St. Rep. 756, 51 N. W. 858.

And it was held in Marymont v. Nevada State Bkg. Board. — Nev. —, 32 L.R.A. (N.S.) 477, 111 Pac. 295, that ordinary banking by individuals may not be prohibited by statutory enactment while corporations are allowed and authorized to conduct this business. The court reviewed State ex rel. Goodsill v. Woodmansee; Weed v. Bergh; and State v. Scougal, — supra, and adopted the view held in the latter case as "the most carefully considered of the three cases." The constitutional objections which it finds fatal are those founded upon the guaranties of inalienable rights to liberty, property, safety, and happiness, of due process of law, and upon the reservation of nonenumerated rights to the people.

the volume of their business, and it is quite another thing to say that all merchants in a particular line whose business amounts to less than $10,000 per annum shall pay a license tax, file reports, deposit securities, and be under government supervision or close up their shops, while all those whose business amounts to $10,001 or more need not pay any tax, nor file any reports, nor deposit any securities, and they may transact their business as they see fit.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 558, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Hostile discriminations against any class singled out have been repeatedly condemned by this court.

Pembina Consol. Silver Min. & Mill. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 125 U. S. 181, 31 L. ed. 650, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 24, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 737; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 153, 41 L. ed. 666, 667, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Circumstances and conditions that led to the enactment of the law cannot be considered on the question as to the constitutionality of the law.

Doyle v. Continental Ins. Co. 94 U. S. 535, 24 L. ed. 148; Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 457, 20 L. ed. 287; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. ed. 529.

The statute is violative of the commerce clause of the Constitution because it attempts to regulate interstate and foreign commerce.

Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 702, 26 L. ed. 238, 241; Pom. Const. Law, § 378; Cooley, Const. Law, 7th ed. p. 688; Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U. S. 100, 34 L. ed. 128, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 36, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co. v. Illinois, 118 U. S. 557, 30 L. ed. 244, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 31, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 4; Cook v. Pennsylvania, 97 U. S. 566, 24 L. ed. 1015; State Freight Tax Case, 15 Wall. 232, 21 L. ed. 146; Fargo v. Michigan (Fargo v. Stevens) 121 U. S. 230, 30 L. ed. 888, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 51, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 857; Philadelphia & S. Mail S. S. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 122 U. S. 326, 30 L. ed. 1200, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 308, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1118; State ex rel. Carr v. Woodruff Sleeping & Parlor Coach Co. 114 Ind. 155, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 798, 15 N. E. 814; Pickard v. Pullman Southern Car Co. 117 U. S. 34, 29 L. ed. 785, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 635; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 114 U. S. 196, 29 L. ed. 158, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 382, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 127 U. S. 411, 32 L. ed. 229, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 59, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1127; McCall v. California, 136 U. S. 104, 34 L. ed. 392, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 181, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 881; Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 32 L. ed. 311, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380; Preston v. Finley, 72 Fed. 857; Re Nichols, 48 Fed. 164; Re White, 11 L.R.A. 284, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 531, 43 Fed. 914; Culberson v. American Trust & Bkg. Co. 107 Ala. 457, 19 So. 34; International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 93, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 81, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1103; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Pendleton, 122 U. S. 347, 356, 30 L. ed. 1187, 1188, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 306, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1126; Butler Bros. Shoe Co. v. United States Rubber Co. 84 C. C. A. 167, 156 Fed. 17; Robbins v. Taxing Dist. 120 U. S. 489, 30 L. ed. 694, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592

A license fee is a tax.

Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 189, 44 L. ed. 725, 729, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Royall, v. Virginia, 116 U. S. 572, 579, 29 L. ed. 735, 737, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510.

Mr. Louis Marshall argued the cause, and, with Mr. E. H. Letchworth, filed a brief for appellees:

Legislation regulating various occupations by requiring them to be licensed, or by imposing special taxation upon them, or subjecting them to inspection, or by imposing other conditions to some extent hampering those engaged in the occupation, or affecting the profitableness of the property invested in the business, has been declared constitutional.

People ex rel. Armstrong v. Warden, 183 N. Y. 223, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 859, 76 N. E. 11, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 325; Musco v. United Surety Co. 132 App. Div. 300, 117 N. Y. Supp. 21, affirmed in 196 N. Y. 459, 134 Am. St. Rep. 851, 90 N. E. 171; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 37 L. ed. 599, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep 721; Plumley v. Massachusetts, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. ed. 223, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 590, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154; Gray v. Connecticut, 159 U. S. 74, 40 L. ed. 80, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 985; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Williams v. Fears, 179 U. S. 270, 45 L. ed. 186, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128; Clark v. Titusville, 184 U. S. 329, 46 L. ed. 569, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 382; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Illinois, 185 U. S. 203, 46 L. ed. 872, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 616; New York ex rel. Lieberman v. Van De Carr, 199 U. S. 552, 50 L. ed. 305, 26 Sup. Ct.

Rep. 144; California Reduction Co. v. Sanitary Reduction Works, 199 U. S. 306, 50 L. ed. 204, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 100; Gardner v. Michigan, 199 U. S. 325, 50 L. ed. 212, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 106; Wilmington Star Min. Co. v. Fulton, 205 U. S. 60, 51 L. ed. 708, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 412; Cox v. Texas, 202 U. S. 446, 50 L. ed. 1099, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 671; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Austin v. Tennessee, 179 U. S. 343, 45 L. ed. 223, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U. S. 114, 32 L. ed. 623, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 231; Hawker v. New York, 170 U. S. 194, 42 L. ed. 1004, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 573; Watson v. Maryland, 218 U. S. 173, 54 L. ed. 987, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; W. W. Cargill Co. v. Minnesota, 180 U. S. 452, 45 L. ed. 619, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423; People ex rel. Nechamcus v. Warden, 144 N. Y. 529, 27 L.R.A. 718, 39 N. E. 686; Tenement House Dept. v. Moeschen, 179 N. Y. 325, 70 L.R.A. 704, 103 Am. St. Rep. 910, 72 N. E. 231, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 439; Health Dept. v. Trinity Church, 145 N. Y. 32, 27 L.R.A. 710, 45 Am. St. Rep. 579, 39 N. E. 833; Grand Rapids v. Braudy, 105 Mich. 670, 32 L.R.A. 116, 55 Am. St. Rep. 472, 64 N. W. 29; People v. Granite State Provident Asso. 161 N. Y. 492, 55 N. E. 1053.

Private banking not only can, but should, be similarly regulated.

Atty Gen. v. Utica Ins. Co. 2 Johns. Ch. 375, 15 Johns. 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243; Curtis v. Leavitt, 15 N. Y. 252; Perkins v. Smith, 116 N. Y. 444, 23 N. E. 21; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 596, 10 L. ed. 274, 311; Blaker v. Hood, 53 Kan. 499, 24 L.R.A. 854, 36 Pac. 1115; Youngblood v. Birmingham Trust & Sav. Co. 95 Ala. 521, 20 L.R.A. 58, 36 Am. St. Rep. 245, 12 So. 579; State v. Richcreek, 167 Ind. 217, 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 874, 119 Am. St. Rep. 491, 77 N. E. 1085, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 899; State ex rel. Godsill v. Woodmansee, 1 N. D. 246, 11 L.R.A. 420, 46 N. W. 970; State v. Scougal, 3 S. D. 55, 15 L.R.A. 477, 44 Am. St. Rep. 756, 51 N. W. 858; Weed v. Bergh, 141 Wis. 569, 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1217, 124 N. W. 664; MacLaren v. State, 141 Wis. 577, 135 Am. St. Rep. 55, 124 N. W. 667, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 826.

It being conceded that the complainant is a citizen and has carried on business in the state of New York for upwards of twenty years, and there being nothing to indicate that he has applied for or has been refused a license by the comptroller on any ground whatsoever, he is not in a position to attack the constitutionality of this law, even assuming, but by no means conceding, that in a proper case the provisions relating to five years' residence, and to the discretionary power of the comptroller with respect to the granting or refusing of a license, might be successfully attacked.

Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 534, 54 L. ed. 871, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Williams v. Eggleston, 170 U. S. 304, 42 L. ed. 1047, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 45 L. ed. 252, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Turpin v. Lemon, 187 U. S. 51, 60, 47 L. ed. 70, 74, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 20; Hooker v. Burr, 194 U. S. 415, 48 L. ed. 1046, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 706; Worcester v. Worcester Consol. Street R. Co. 196 U. S. 539, 49 L. ed. 591, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 327; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 160, 51 L. ed. 415, 422, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Albany County v. Stanley, 105 U. S. 305, 26 L. ed. 1044; Red River Valley Nat. Bank v. Craig, 181 U. S. 548, 45 L. ed. 994, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 703; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Wiley v. Sinkler, 179 U. S. 58, 45 L. ed. 84, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 17; Chadwick v. Kelley, 187 U. S. 540, 47 L. ed. 293, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 175; Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 114, 54 L. ed. 688, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496.

Part of a statute may be void and the remainder be valid, and the courts will uphold the valid features of the statute unless they are so inextricably bound up with the void provisions as to taint the entire mass.

Eilenbecker v. District Ct. 134 U. S. 31, 33 L. ed. 801, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; United States v. Steffens, 100 U. S. 82, 25 L. ed. 550; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 29 L. ed. 185, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Jaehne v. New York, 128 U. S. 189, 32 L. ed. 398, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 70; Loeb v. Columbia Twp. 179 U. S. 472, 45 L. ed. 280, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174.

In any event this act should be sustained, unless its invalidity appears beyond reasonable doubt

Sage v. Brooklyn, 89 N. Y. 196; Re New York Elev. R. Co. 70 N. Y. 342; People v. Equitable Trust Co. 96 N. Y. 394; People ex rel. Sinkler v. Terry, 108 N. Y. 7, 14 N. E. 815; Rogers v. Buffalo, 123 N. Y. 181, 9 L.R.A. 579, 25 N. E. 274; Sweet v. Syracuse, 129 N. Y. 316, 27 N. E. 1081, 29 N. E. 289; People ex rel. Carter v. Rice, 135 N. Y. 484, 16 L.R.A. 836, 31 N. E. 921; People ex rel. Metropolitan Street R. Co. v. State Tax Comrs. 174 N. Y. 437, 63 L.R.A. 884, 105 Am. St. Rep. 674, 67 N. E. 69; Re Fishway, 131 App. Div. 418, 115 N. Y. Supp. 745; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87, 3 L. ed. 162; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. St. Rep. 609; Sweet v. Rechel, 159 U. S. 386, 40 L. ed. 193, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; United States v. Gettysburg Electric R. Co. 160 U. S. 668, 40 L. ed. 576, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Union P. R. Co. v. United States, 99 U. S. 700, 25 L. ed. 496; Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 492, 48 L. ed. 534, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 349; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

The clause of the statute which provides that one who proposes to engage in the business of private banking must show that he has been continuously, for a period of five years immediately preceding the date of his application, a resident of the United States, is valid.

State v. Richcreck, 167 Ind. 217, 5 L.R.A. (N.S.) 874, 119 Am. St. Rep. 491, 77 N. E. 1085, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 899; Chadwick v. Kelley, 187 U. S. 540, 47 L. ed. 293, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 175; Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U. S. 114, 32 L. ed. 623, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 231; Com. v. Hana, 195 Mass. 262, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 799, 122 Am. St. Rep. 251, 81 N. E. 149, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 514.

The provision in the act, to the effect that, after notice of application for a license has been posted, the comptroller may, in his discretion, approve or disapprove the application, does not confer the arbitrary power of rejection. The discretion conferred is a legal discretion, which must be reasonable.

New York ex rel. Lieberman v. Van De Carr, 199 U. S. 552, 50 L. ed. 305, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 144, affirming 81 App. Div. 128, 80 N. Y. Supp. 1108, and 175 N. Y. 440, 108 Am. St. Rep. 781, 67 N. E. 913; Davis v. Massachusetts, 167 U. S. 43, 42 L. ed. 71, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 731; Wilson v. Eureka City, 173 U. S. 32, 43 L. ed. 603, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 317; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 765; Fischer v. St. Louis, 194 U. S. 361, 48 L. ed. 1018, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 92–94, 34 L. ed. 624, 625, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; 2 Willoughby, Const. 1294.

That the discretion conferred on the comptroller is not to be exercised capriciously is further indicated by § 26, which relates to the revocation of a license where issued, which must be "for cause shown." This phrase has a well-settled meaning in the jurisprudence of New York, and negatives arbitrary action.

People ex rel. Munday v. Fire Comrs. 72 N. Y. 445; People ex rel. New York v. Nichols, 79 N. Y. 582.

A court may refer to the public history of the times, and to legislative documents, to ascertain the reason of an enactment as well as the meaning of particuar provisions therein, and to that end may consider the evil which it is designed to remedy, contemporaneous events, and the existing situation with regard to the subject-matter of the legislation as it was pressed upon the attention of the legislative body.

Tenement House Dept. v. Moeschen, 179 N. Y. 325, 70 L.R.A. 704, 103 Am. St. Rep. 910, 72 N. E. 231, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 439; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 91 U. S. 72, 79, 23 L. ed. 224, 228; Platt v. Union P. R. Co. 99 U. S. 60, 25 L. ed. 428; Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 463, 36 L. ed. 229, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511; The Delaware, 161 U. S. 472, 40 L. ed. 776, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 516; Shaw v. Kellogg, 170 U. S. 331, 42 L. ed. 1057, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Musco v. United Surety Co. 196 N. Y. 465, 134 Am. St. Rep. 851, 90 N. E. 171.

The act does not deprive the complainant and those similarly situated of the equal protection of the law. The exceptions contained therein constitute a legitimate exercise of the right of classification. All persons coming within the class to which the complainant belongs are accorded like treatment, and there is no discrimination among the members of any of the classes enumerated in the act.

People ex rel. Farrington v. Mensching, 187 N. Y. 16, 10 L.R.A.(N.S.) 625, 79 N. E. 884, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 101; Musco v. United Surety Co. 132 App. Div. 300, 117 N. Y. Supp. 21, affirmed in 196 N. Y. 466, 134 Am. St. Rep. 851, 90 N. E. 171; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 337, 29 L. ed. 414, 419, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Pacific Exp. Co. v. Seibert, 142 U. S. 339, 35 L. ed. 1035, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 810, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 250; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 294, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1042, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 274, 49 L. ed. 471, 476, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; New York ex rel. Metropolitan Street R. Co. v. New York State Tax Comrs. 199 U. S. 1, 50 L. ed. 65, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 381; Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 L. ed. 451, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232; Cox v. Texas, 202 U. S. 446, 50 L. ed. 1099, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 671; District of Columbia v. Brooke, 214 U. S. 138, 53 L. ed. 941, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 560; Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 114, 54 L. ed. 688, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496; Brown-Forman Co. v.

Kentucky, 217 U. S. 563, 54 L. ed. 883, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578; People ex rel. Eisman v. Ronner, 185 N. Y. 285, 77 N. E. 1061; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Lang v. New Jersey, 209 U. S. 467, 52 L. ed. 894, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Ohio ex rel. Lloyd v. Dollison, 194 U. S. 445, 48 L. ed. 1062, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 703; People v. Havnor, 149 N. Y. 195, 31 L.R.A. 689, 52 Am. St. Rep. 707, 43 N. E. 541; Com. v. Danziger, 176 Mass. 290, 57 N. E. 461; Tenement House Dept. v. Moeschen, 179 N. Y. 325, 70 L.R.A. 704, 103 Am. St. Rep. 910, 72 N. E. 231, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 439, affirmed in 203 U. S. 583, 51 L. ed. 328, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 781; Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 91, 107, 53 L. ed. 923, 930, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. May, 194 U. S. 267, 48 L. ed. 971, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Savannah, T. & I. of H. R. Co. v. Savannah, 198 U. S. 392, 49 L. ed. 1097, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 690; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Illinois, 185 U. S. 203, 46 L. ed. 872, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 616; Wilmington Star Min. Co. v. Fulton, 205 U. S. 60, 51 L. ed. 708, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 412; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; New York N. H. & H. R. Co. v. New York, 165 U. S. 628, 41 L. ed. 853, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Fidelity Mut. Life Asso. v. Mettler, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. ed. 922, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 662; Clark v. Titusville, 184 U. S. 329, 46 L. ed. 569, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 382; Williams v. Fears, 179 U. S. 270, 45 L. ed. 186, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128; W. W. Cargill Co. v. Minnesota, 180 U. S. 452, 45 L. ed. 619, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 311, 51 L. ed. 499, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Halter v. Nebraska, 205 U. S. 43–46, 51 L. ed. 701–703, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 525; Watson v. Maryland, 218 U. S. 173, 54 L. ed. 987, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 52 L. ed. 236, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Ozan Lumber Co. v. Union County Nat. Bank, 207 U. S. 251, 52 L. ed. 195, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 89; Muller v. Oregon, 208 U. S. 412, 52 L. ed. 551, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 324, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 957; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Willcox v. Consolidated Gas Co. 212 U. S. 19, 53 L. ed. 382, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1034; Williams v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 79, 54 L. ed. 673, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 865; Hammond Packing Co. v. Arkansas, 212 U. S. 322, 53 L. ed. 530, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 645; Standard Oil Co. v. Tennessee, 217 U. S. 413, 54 L. ed. 817, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 543; People ex rel. Williams Engineering & Contracting Co. v. Metz, 193 N. Y. 148, 24 L.R.A.(N.S.) 201, 85 N. E. 1070; Erb v. Morasch, 177 U. S. 584, 44 L. ed. 897, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 819; Interstate Consol. Street R. Co. v. Massachusetts, 207 U. S. 79, 52 L. ed. 111, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 26, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 555; State v. McFarland, — Wash. —, 110 Pac. 792; Ex parte Crowder, 171 Fed. 250; State v. Foster, 22 R. I. 163, 50 L.R.A. 339, 46 Atl. 833; Daniels v. State, 150 Ind. 348, 50 N. E. 74; Strauss v. Galesburg, 203 Ill. 234, 67 N. E. 836; Bush v. New York L. Ins. Co. 135 App. Div. 447, 119 N. Y. Supp. 796; Re Home Discount Co. 147 Fed. 538; White v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. 230 Mo. 287, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 874, 130 S. W. 325; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

There is nothing in this legislation which comes within the purview of the commerce clause; but, on the contrary, it is a legitimate exercise of the police power.

Musco v. United Surety Co. 196 N. Y. 466, 134 Am. St. Rep. 851, 90 N. E. 171.

Banking and its several branches do not come within the commerce clause.

Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 347; Passenger Cases, 7 How. 283, 12 L. ed. 702; Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 702, 26 L. ed. 238, 241; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 114 U. S. 196, 29 L. ed. 158, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 382, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648, 39 L. ed. 297, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep 207; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 169, 19 L. ed. 357; New York L. Ins. Co. v. Cravens, 178 U. S. 389, 44 L. ed. 1116, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 962; Fire Asso. of Philadelphia v. New York, 119 U. S. 110, 30 L. ed. 342, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108; John Hancock Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Warren, 181 U. S. 73, 45 L. ed. 755, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535; Security Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Prewitt, 202 U. S. 249, 50 L. ed. 1014, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 619, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 317; Nathan v. Louisiana, 8 How. 73, 12 L. ed. 992; Williams v. Fears, 179 U. S. 270, 45 L. ed. 186, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; McCready v. Virginia, 94 U. S. 391, 24 L. ed. 248; Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 346, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Cornell v. Coyne, 192 U. S. 418, 428, 48 L. ed. 504, 508, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383.

At the most, banking is a mere incident of commerce, which may be regulated under the police power.

Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 655, 39 L. ed. 300, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Osborne v. Mobile, 16 Wall. 479, 21 L. ed. 470; New York ex rel. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Knight, 192 U. S. 21, 48 L. ed. 325, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202; The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. 557, 566, 19 L. ed. 999, 1002; Diamond Match Co. v. Ontonagon, 188 U. S. 82, 47 L. ed. 394, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 266; Ficklen v. Taxing Dist. 145 U. S. 1, 36 L. ed. 601, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 79, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 810; Crossman v. Lurman, 192 U S. 189, 48 L. ed. 401, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234; New York ex rel. Silz v. Hesterberg, 211 U. S. 40, 41, 53 L. ed. 79, 80, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10; Pennsylvania Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Asbell v. Kansas, 209 U. S. 251, 52 L. ed. 778, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1101; Geer v. Connecticut, 161 U. S. 519, 40 L. ed. 793, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 600.

In any event, the regulation of private banks, though engaged in the transmission of money abroad, was a proper subject of state legislation until Congress might choose to deal with the subject, which it has not yet done.

Covington & C. Bridge Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 209, 38 L. ed. 965, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 649, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1087; Olsen v. Smith, 195 U. S. 332, 49 L. ed. 224, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Mazursky, 216 U. S. 122, 54 L. ed. 411, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 378; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Haber, 169 U. S. 613, 42 L. ed. 878, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 488; Reid v. Colorado, 187 U. S. 137, 47 L. ed 108, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 506; Sinnot v. Davenport, 22 How. 227, 243, 16 L. ed. 243, 247; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Hennington v. Georgia, 163 U. S. 299, 41 L. ed. 166, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; Gladson v. Minnesota, 166 U. S. 427, 41 L. ed. 1064, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 627; People v. Erie R. Co. 198 N. Y. 369, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 240, 91 N. E. 849, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 811.

Mr. Theodcre Connoly also filed a brief for appellee William F. Baker.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a bill in equity to prevent the carrying out of chapter 348 of the Laws of New York for 1910, which forbids individuals or partnerships to engage in the business of receiving deposits of money for safe-keeping, or for the purpose of transmission to another, or for any other purpose, without a license from the comptroller. The requirements for obtaining the license, so far as they affect the plaintiff, are that the applicant shall deposit $10,000 with the comptroller, and present a bond with a penalty of not more than $50,000 or less than $10,000, to be fixed by the comptroller, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties undertaken. After notice shall have been posted for two weeks, the comptroller may approve or disapprove the application, in his discretion, and licensees are to pay a fee of $50. § 25. The license is revocable at all times by the comptroller for cause shown. § 26. Carrying on the business specified, or using the word "banking" or "banker" on signs, letter heads, or advertisements in connection with any business, without a license, is made a misdemeanor. § 27. The foregoing provisions do not apply to any corporation or "individual banker" authorized to do business under the banking law, or to national banks; to any hotel keeper who shall receive money for safe-keeping from a *guest; [135 to any express or telegraph company receiving money for transmission; to individuals or partnerships where the average amount of each sum received on deposit or for transmission in the ordinary course of business shall have been not less than $500 during the fiscal year preceding an affidavit to that effect; or, finally, to any individual or partnership filing a bond approved by the comptroller for $100,000 when the business is in a city having a million inhabitants, or, if elsewhere, for $50,000; or money, or securities that the comptroller approves. § 29d.

The plaintiff alleges that he is a citizen of the United States, and has been engaged in the business specified in the statute for twenty years; that by good reputation and considerable expenditure he has made his business of great value, and that it chiefly consists in receiving deposits in very small sums from time to time until they reach an amount sufficient to be sent to other states and mainly to foreign countries. The plaintiff further alleges that he has not the means that would enable him to make the deposit and give the bond required, and that the enforcement of the law against him will compel him to close. He avers that the statute is unconstitutional as against him under the 14th Amendment and under the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States. Article 1, § 8. The bill was demurred to and the demurrer was sustained by the circuit court.

The first objection urged by the plaintiff in argument is to a requirement that we have not mentioned,—that the applicant must have been continuously for five years immediately preceding his application a resident of the United States. As the plaintiff alleges that he satisfies this requirement, he has nothing to complain of. And therefore, without intimating any doubt as to the validity of the clause, we pass at once to the matters in which he is concerned. Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 524, 534, 54 L. ed. 868, 871, 30 Sup. 136]Ct. Rep. 594. *As a preliminary to his argument, the plaintiff denies that he is in any sense a banker, and even goes so far as to treat the receipt of money for safe-keeping or transmission within the meaning of the act as a case of bailment, in which the very coins received must be returned or sent on. Of course, this is not a true construction of the statute, as is sufficiently indicated by the title "Private Banking." The receipt of money by a bank, although it only creates a debt, is in a popular sense the receipt of money for safe-keeping, since the depositor can draw it out again at such time and in such sums as he chooses. It is safe to assume that the transmission of money contemplated very generally is accomplished by a draft, and practically never by sending on the identical currency received. One form, at least, of the business aimed at, and, on the face of the bill, that carried on by the plaintiff, is a branch of the banking business. Furthermore, it is a business largely done with poor and ignorant immigrants, especially on their first arrival here.

We presume that the money deposited with the plaintiff is not drawn upon by checks, so that a part of the argument in Noble State Bank v. Haskell, just decided [219 U. S. 104, ante, 112, 32 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1062, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186], may not apply. On the other hand, experience has shown that the protection of such depositors against fraud, which is the purpose running through the statute, is especially needed by at least that class of them with whom the persons hit by the statute largely deal. The case cited establishes that the state may regulate that business, and may take strong measures to render it secure. It also establishes that the plaintiff has no such constitutional right to carry it on at will as to raise him above state laws not manifestly unfit to accomplish the supposed end, greatly in excess of the need, or arbitrary and capricious in discrimination. The quasi paternal relations shown in argument and by documents to exist between those following the plaintiff's calling and newly-arrived 137] *immigrants justifies a supervision more paternal than is needed in ordinary affairs. Whether the court thinks them wise or not, such laws are within the scope of the discretion which belongs to legislatures, and which it is usual for them to exert.

This appeal seems to have been taken upon the notion that the plaintiff had a business which, under the 14th Amendment, the state could not touch. But although cut off from that broad proposition, his counsel presents other more specific objections to the act with earnestness and force. It is said that even if the plaintiff could furnish the money and bond required, the comptroller might refuse a license upon his arbitrary whim. No guides are given in § 25 for the discretion that he is to exercise, and a provision in § 29c that nothing in the article shall be construed to require the comptroller to make any inquiry as to the solvency of any applicant is thought to exclude solvency as the test, and to leave the matter at sea. We do not so understand the purpose and purport of § 29e, and should suppose that the discretion to be exercised in the refusal to grant the license under § 25 was similar to that exercised under § 26 in revoking one; and that in each case the comptroller was expected to act for cause. But the nature and extent of the remedy, if any, for a breach of duty on his part, we think it unnecessary to consider; for the power of the state to make the pursuit of a calling dependent upon obtaining a license is well established, where safety seems to require it, and what we have said before sufficiently indicates that this calling is one to which the requirement may be attached. See Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; New York ex rel. Lieberman v. Van de Carr, 199 U. S. 552, 50 L. ed. 305, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 144.

Again, it is argued that the statute makes unconstitutional discriminations by excepting the classes mentioned in § 29d above, especially those in whose business the average amount of each sum received is not less than $500, *and those who[138 give a bond of $100,000 or $50,000. But the former of these exceptions has the manifest purpose to confine the law as nearly as may be to the class thought by the legislature to need protection, and the latter merely substitutes a different form of security, as it well may. "Legislation which regulates business may well make distinctions depend upon the degree of evil." Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 355, 356, 52 L. ed. 236, 244, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114. It is true, no doubt, that where size is not an index to an admitted evil, the law cannot discriminate between the great and small. But in this case size is an index. Where the average amount of each sum received is not less than $500, we know that we have not before us the class of ignorant and helpless depositors, largely foreign, whom the law seeks to protect. See Musco v. United Surety Co. 196 N. Y. 459, 465, 134 Am. St. Rep. 851, 90 N. E. 171; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 551, 53 L. ed. 315, 321, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

We come to the final objection, that this statute is an attempt to regulate commerce with other states. When, as in this matter, the Constitution takes from the states only a portion of their otherwise absolute control, there may be expected difficulties in drawing the dividing line, because where it shall be put is a question of more or less. The trouble is inherent in the situation, but it is the same in kind that meets us everywhere else in the law. The question is whether the state law creates a direct burden upon what it is for Congress to control, and the facts of the specific case must be weighed. In doing so we recur to what we have said above,—that we cannot regard the statement of the plaintiff's business in his bill as describing the receipt of bailments for the transmission of the identical objects received to other states. Neither do we regard the law as having had such bailments primarily in mind. Under the statement in the bill and the words of the law, we must take it that the money received, even when received for transmission, becomes the money of the 139] depositary, *and his obligation that of a debtor under contract to pay as may be directed. Presumably the depositor retains the right to call for his money himself, or to change any direction that may have been given, until the money has left the "private banker's" hands. The law, as was said of a similar one by the New York court of appeals, was passed for the purpose of regulating and safeguarding the business of receiving deposits which precedes and is not to be confounded with the later transmission of money, although leading to it. Musco v. United Surety Co. 196 N. Y. 459, 466, 467, 134 Am. St. Rep. 851, 90 N. E. 171. The fact that it is very likely to lead to it does not change the result. Diamond Glue Co. v. United States Glue Co. 187 U. S. 611, 616, 47 L. ed. 328, 332, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206. The case is similar in principle to Ware v. Mobile County, 209 U. S. 405, 52 L. ed. 855, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1031, where the nearest cases on the other side are distinguished. See further Williams v. Fears, 179 U. S. 270, 45 L. ed. 186, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128. We are of opinion that the commerce clause of the Constitution is not infringed, and, on the whole case, that the decree of the Circuit Court was right.

Decree affirmed.

---

*KENTUCKY UNION COMPANY, [140
Plff. in Err.,
v.
COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, Deft. in Err. (No. 22.)

EASTERN KENTUCKY COAL LANDS CORPORATION, Plff. in Err.,
v.
COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, Deft. in Err. (No. 47.)

EASTERN KENTUCKY COAL LANDS CORPORATION, Plff. in Err.,
v.
COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, Deft. in Err. (No. 48.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 140-165.)

Constitutional law — ex post facto laws — forfeiting land titles.

1. The objection that the retrospective features of Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, forfeiting land titles for failure to list and pay taxes, make the law an ex post facto one, is not valid, where such legislation, as construed by the highest court of the state, imposes no retrospective penalties or punishment of a criminal nature.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 949-953, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — taxation — forfeiture for nonpayment — notice and hearing.

2. Due process of law in forfeiting lands to the state for failure to list and pay taxes for certain specified years is afforded by Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, under which a judicial proceeding is provided by

---

NOTE.—On what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

On notice and hearing required to constitute due process of law—see notes to Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 657; Chauvin v. Valiton, 3 L.R.A. 194; and Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 255.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

As to what laws are ex post facto—see notes to State v. Cooler, 3 L.R.A. 181; Anderson v. O'Donnell, 1 L.R.A. 632; Calder v. Bull, 1 L. ed. U. S. 648; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 L. ed. U. S. 529; Re Medley, 33 L. ed. U. S. 835; Otoe County v.

which the owner of the title may have the taxes assessed, and, upon payment thereof, the forfeiture avoided, and such forfeiture is declared only after a judicial proceeding in which the owner of the title is summoned and heard.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 552, 553, 725–744, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — forfeiture for nonpayment of taxes — cutting down statute of limitations.

3. The forfeiture to the state for the benefit of actual occupants in adverse possession, which is provided for by Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, in case of the failure of the owner or claimant to list the lands and pay taxes thereon for certain specified years, is not lacking in due process of law because the effect is to cut down the period of limitation in which actions may be brought by the holders of the title to recover against adverse claimants.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 686–688, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — taxation — forfeiture for benefit of adverse occupant.

4. There is no denial of due process of law in the provisions of Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, under which the forfeiture of land titles to the state, as the result of proper proceedings and after due notice to the owner of the title, who is in default for payment of taxes, is to inure to the benefit of adverse claimants occupying and paying taxes upon the land, and not in default.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 6, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — Federal question — when raised in time.

5. A Federal question first raised by a petition for rehearing in the highest state court is open for review in the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error to the state court, if that court considered such question in denying the petition.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1304–1307, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — forfeiture for nonpayment of taxes —judicial sale.

6. A judicial sale under Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, of lands forfeited to the state for failure to list and pay taxes for certain specified years, is not lacking in due process of law because, under such statute, it is not necessary that the petition for forfeiture shall point out and describe the parts of the tract held by adverse claimants to whose benefit the forfeiture will accrue, where it is open to the defendant to show what parts of the tract are subject to sale, if less than the whole is to be sold.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 543–550, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — question of local law.

7. The dismissal of the petition of the owner, brought under Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, for the assessment and taxation of his lands to escape the forfeiture provided by that statute, because such petition did not contain a description of the land sufficient to identify it, involves no Federal question which can be reviewed by the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error to a state court, unless the ruling was so arbitrary and baseless as to amount to a deprivation of due process of law.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2140–2143, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — forfeiture for nonpayment of taxes.

8. The provisions for the forfeiture of land titles to the state for failure to list and pay taxes thereon for certain specified years, made by Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, do not deny the equal protection of the laws because, in the application of such statute, it can only meet conditions such as are embraced within the law in a part of the counties of the state.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 292–336, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — forfeiture for nonpayment of taxes.

9. Landowners who did not acquire their title until after the delinquencies had occurred cannot claim to have been denied the equal protection of the laws by the application to them of the provisions of Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, for the forfeiture of such lands to the state, because of the failure of the owners to list lands for taxation and pay the taxes thereon for certain specified years.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 292–336, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

States — Virginia compact — land titles.

10. Requiring upon notice and hearing

Baldwin, 28 L. ed. U. S. 331; and Barnitz v. Beverly, 41 L. ed. U. S. 94.

On the general subject of writs of error from the United States Supreme Court to state courts—see notes to Martin v. Hunter, 4 L. ed. U. S. 97; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 267; Re Buchanan, 39 L. ed. U. S. 884; and Kipley v. Illinois, 42 L. ed. U. S. 998.

On how and when questions must be raised and decided in a state court in order to make a case for a writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States—see note to Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. McGrew, 63 L.R.A. 33.

On what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider in reviewing the judgments of state courts—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 571.

As to when Federal question is raised in time to sustain the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over state courts—see note to Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. McGuire, 49 L. ed. U. S. 414.

On vested right in defense of statute of limitations—see notes to McEldowney v. Wyatt, 45 L.R.A. 609, and Slover v. Union Bank, 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 528.

On due process of law in revenue proceedings—see note to Read v. Dingess, 8 C. C. A. 398.

the listing of land titles for taxation for certain specified years, or, in default thereof, forfeiting such title to the state, as is done by Ky. act of March 15, 1906, art. 3, does not, as to titles under grants from the state of Virginia, violate the provisions of the compact of 1789, between the states of Virginia and Kentucky, for the security of private rights existing at the time of the separation of the states, to be determined by the then-existing laws of Virginia.
[For other cases, see States, VII. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 22, 47, 48.]

Argued October 28 and 31, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Leslie Circuit Court, in that state, forfeiting certain land titles to the state for failure to list and pay taxes thereon for certain specified years. Affirmed. Also

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Letcher Circuit Court, in that state, dismissing the petition of a landowner for the assessment and taxation of his lands for certain specified years, to escape forfeiture to the state. Affirmed. Also

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Pike Circuit Court, in that state, forfeiting certain lands to the state for failure to list and pay taxes for certain specified years. Affirmed.

See same case below, No. 22, 128 Ky. 610, 108 S. W. 931, 110 S. W. 398; No. 47, 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138; No. 48, 33 Ky. L. Rep. 857, 111 S. W. 362.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Louis B. Wehle and William B. Dixon argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error in No. 22:

The Kentucky statute in question violates the Constitution of the United States, for,

1. It is an ex post facto law.

Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Com. 118 Ky. 51, 80 S. W. 479, 81 S. W. 686; Chicago, St. L. & N. O. R. Co. v. Com. 115 Ky. 278, 72 S. W. 1119; Com. v. Nute, 115 Ky. 239, 72 S. W. 1090; Campbell v. Thomas, 9 B. Mon. 82; New Domain Oil Gas Co. v. Gaffney Oil Co. 134 Ky. 792, 121 S. W. 699; Ballowe v. Hillman, 18 Ky. L. Rep. 677, 37 S. W. 950; Breathitt Coal, Iron & Lumber Co. v. Strong, 106 Ky. 699, 51 S. W. 189; Kidd v. Central Trust & S. D. Co. 23 Ky. L. Rep. 1402, 65 S. W. 355; Helton v. Central Trust & S. D. Co. 24 Ky. L. Rep. 628, 69 S. W. 720; Bryant v. Kendall, 25 Ky. L. Rep. 1859, 79 S. W. 186; Goff v. Lowe, 25 Ky. L. Rep. 2176, 80 S. W. 219; Steele v. Bryant, 132 Ky. 569, 116 S. W. 755; Cooley, Const. Lim. 5th ed. p. 323; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87, 3 L. ed. 162; Watson v. Mercer, 8 Pet. 110, 8 L. ed. 884; Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. 277, 18 L. ed. 356; Ex parte Garland, 4 Wall. 333, 18 L. ed. 366; Pierce v. Carskadon, 16 Wall. 234, 21 L. ed. 276; Locke v. New Orleans, 4 Wall. 172, 18 L. ed. 334; Burgess v. Salmon, 97 U. S. 381, 24 L. ed. 1104; Kring v. Missouri, 107 U. S. 221, 27 L. ed. 506, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 443.

2. It denies to persons of whom the plaintiff in error is one the equal protection of the laws.

Wurts v. Hoagland, 114 U. S. 606, 29 L. ed. 229, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Indiana, 165 U. S. 304, 41 L. ed. 725, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 345; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 29 L. ed. 414, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 237, 33 L. ed. 892, 895, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533.

3. It takes the property of the plaintiff in error without due process of law; for,

(a) It cuts off the owner's right of action in ejectment against adverse occupants.

Batterton v. Chiles, 12 B. Mon. 352, 54 Am. Dec. 539; Wheeler v. Jackson, 137 U. S. 255, 34 L. ed. 663, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 76; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 207, 4 L. ed. 529, 551; Piatt v. Vattier, 1 McLean, 158, Fed. Cas. No. 11,117; Koshkonong v. Burton, 104 U. S. 668, 675, 26 L. ed. 886, 889; Berry v. Ransdall, 4 Met. (Ky.) 292; Price v. Hopkin, 13 Mich. 318; Osborn v. Jaines, 17 Wis. 574; Rodebaugh v. Philadelphia Traction Co. 190 Pa. 358, 42 Atl. 953; Soper v. Lawrence Bros. Co. 201 U. S. 359, 50 L. ed. 788, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 473.

(b) The terms of forfeiture imposed by it are arbitrary and excessive.

Story, Const. 4th ed. § 1943; Cooley, General Principles of Const. Law, 3d ed. p. 241; Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, 111 U. S. 701, 708, 28 L. ed. 569, 572, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 698, 43 L. ed. 864, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Central Stock Yards Co. 212 U. S. 132, 53 L. ed. 441, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246; Livingston v. Moore, 7 Pet. 469, 493, 551.

8 L. ed. 751, 759, 781; 11 Cooley, Tax. 3d ed. p. 1023; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Walker v. Sauvinet, 92 U. S. 90, 93, 23 L. ed. 678, 679; Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 31, 25 L. ed. 989, 992; Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 535, 28 L. ed. 232, 238, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; King v. Hatfield, 130 Fed. 564; Barbour v. Nelson, 1 Litt. (Ky.) 60; Marshall v. McDaniel, 12 Bush, 378; Shaw v. Robinson, 111 Ky. 715, 64 S. W. 620; 2 Tidd, Pr. p. 1069.

The requirement to pay 30 per cent interest and 15 per cent penalty as part of the proceeding for extinguishment of the cause for forfeiture, which the Kentucky court of appeals has held to be ex post facto, may not be stricken out of article 3, because it is not separable from the other requirements for the extinguishment of the cause for forfeiture. The suggestion of the Kentucky court of appeals, that the requirement may be stricken and article 3 still enforced in accordance with the apparent legislative intent, is not binding upon this court, for it is not a construction.

United States v. Fisher, 2 Cranch, 358, 2 L. ed. 304; Lewis v. United States, 92 U. S. 618, 621, 23 L. ed. 513, 514; Doggett v. Florida R. Co. 99 U. S. 72, 25 L. ed. 301; Bate Refrigerating Co. v. Sulzberger, 157 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 601, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 508; Venice v. Murdock, 92 U. S. 494, 23 L. ed. 583.

Even if the requirement to pay the interest and penalty were separable, a delinquent, until there has been a judicial decision to that effect, is protected in relying upon the presumption that a petition to list his land, without offering to pay the interest and penalty, would be rejected.

Tibbs v. Timberlake, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 13; Stapp v. Phelps, 7 Dana, 296; Gorham v. Farson, 119 Ill. 425, 10 N. E. 1; Hamilton v. McLaughlin, 145 Mass. 20, 12 N. E. 424.

Messrs. J. W. M. Stewart and Z. T. Vinson argued the cause, and, with Mr. James Breathitt, Attorney General of Kentucky, and Messrs. James H. Jeffries, David W. Baird, John F. Hager, John H. Holt, and Aaron Kohn, filed a brief for defendant in error:

The statute does not impair any contract obligation growing out of the Virginia compact.

Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. Com. 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138; Hawkins v. Barney, 5 Pet. 457, 8 L. ed. 190.

The statute affords due process.

Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. Com. 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 428, 43 L. ed. 214, 223, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Fay v. Crozer, 156 Fed. 486, 217 U. S. 455, 54 L. ed. 837, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 568; Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 443, 54 L. ed. 832, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532.

The statute is neither an ex post facto nor retrospective law.

Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. Com. 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 428, 43 L. ed. 214, 223, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648; Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 475, 46 L. ed. 285, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; Elder v. Wood, 208 U. S. 226, 52 L. ed. 464, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 263; Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 443, 54 L. ed. 832, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532.

The statute does not deny to the plaintiffs in error the equal protection of the laws, nor does it double-tax them.

Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. Com. 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 428, 43 L. ed. 214, 223, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 475, 46 L. ed. 285, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; Elder v. Wood, 208 U. S. 226, 52 L. ed. 464, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 263; Olds v. Com. 3 A. K. Marsh. 465; Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 443, 54 L. ed. 832, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532.

The act in question was a necessity.

Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 125, 54 L. ed. 694, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496.

The West Virginia system, although legislative in form and operation, does not violate the due process clause of the Federal Constitution.

Fay v. Crozer, 217 U. S. 456, 54 L. ed. 837, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 568; Staats v. Board, 10 Gratt. 400; Smith v. Chapman, 10 Gratt. 445; Hale v. Branscum, 10 Gratt. 418; McClure v. Maitland, 24 W. Va. 561; Smith v. Tharp, 17 W. Va. 221; Hays v. Camden, 38 W. Va. 109, 18 S. E. 461; State v. Sponaugle, 45 W. Va. 420, 43 L.R.A. 727, 32 S. E. 283; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; King v. Panther Lumber Co. 171 U. S. 437, 43 L. ed. 227, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 573; King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Swann v. West Virginia, 188 U. S. 739, 47 L. ed. 677, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 848; Armstrong v. Morrill, 14 Wall. 120, 20 L. ed. 765; Read v. Dingess, 8 C. C. A. 389, 8 U. S. App. 526, 60 Fed. 21; Van Gunden v. Virginia

Coal & I. Co. 3 C. C. A. 294, 8 U. S. App. 229, 52 Fed. 851.

If the West Virginia system does not violate due process, how can it be reasonably contended that the Kentucky system is in violation of that provision?

Kidd, D. & P. Co. v. Musselman Grocer Co. 217 U. S. 472, 54 L. ed. 845, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 606; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, 111 U. S. 701, 28 L. ed. 569, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 533, 28 L. ed. 237, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 115 U. S. 321, 29 L. ed. 414, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Winona & St. P. Land Co. v. Minnesota, 159 U. S. 526, 40 L. ed. 247, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 83; Fallbrook Irrig. Dist. v. Bradley, 164 U. S. 112, 41 L. ed. 369, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 56; Security Trust & S. V. Co. v. Lexington, 203 U. S. 323, 51 L. ed. 204, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 87.

It is the duty of owners of property in Kentucky to list it for taxation.

Com. v. E. H. Taylor, Jr. Co. 101 Ky. 325, 41 S. W. 11; Belknap v. Com. 120 Ky. 59, 85 S. W. 693; Olds v. Com. 3 A. K. Marsh. 465; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com. 85 Ky. 198, 3 S. W. 139; Marshall v. McDaniel, 12 Bush, 378.

The state legislature had the power to enact laws providing for the collection of back taxes, and imposing omitted assessments upon all property within its jurisdiction that had escaped taxation.

Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 835, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532, Security Trust & S. V. Co. v. Lexington, 203 U. S. 323, 51 L. ed. 204, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 87; Gray, Limitations of Taxing Power, §§ 12–116; Covington v. Covington Gaslight Co. 8 Ky. L. Rep. 515, 2 S. W. 326; Chesapeake & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Grayson County, 8 Ky. L. Rep. 877; Lewis & M. Turnp. Road Co. v. Com. 8 Ky. L. Rep. 960; Livingston v. Paducah, 80 Ky. 656; Levi v. Louisville, 97 Ky. 394, 28 L.R.A. 480, 30 S. W. 973; Durrett v. Davidson, 122 Ky. 851, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 546, 93 S. W. 25; Kentucky Union Co. v. Com. 128 Ky. 610, 108 S. W. 931, 110 S. W. 398.

Retroactive acts for the collection of taxes are valid.

Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 471, 46 L. ed. 283, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; Carpenter v. Pennsylvania, 17 How. 456, 15 L. ed. 127; League v. Texas, 184 U. S. 156, 46 L. ed. 478, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Gray, Limitations of Taxing Power, §§ 1219, 1290, 1293; Cooley, Tax. § 228; Olmsted v. Barber, 31 Minn. 256, 17 N. W. 473, 944; State v. Memphis & C. R. Co. 14 Lea, 62; Security Trust & S. V. Co. v. Lexington, 203 U. S. 334, 51 L. ed. 208, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 87.

The time of ten months given the delinquent in which to comply with the act before any forfeiture can accrue is reasonable and liberal under the circumstances.

Terry v. Anderson, 95 U. S. 628, 24 L. ed. 365; 9 Rose's Notes, p. 310; Schauble v. Schulz, 69 C. C. A. 581, 137 Fed. 389; Morgan v. Des Moines, 8 C. C. A. 562, 19 U. S. App. 593, 60 Fed. 208; Lamb v. Powder River Live Stock Co. 67 L.R.A. 558, 65 C. C. A. 570, 132 Fed. 434; Vance v. Vance, 108 U. S. 514, 27 L. ed. 808, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 854; Smith v. Packard, 12 Wis. 372; Power v. Kitching, 10 N. D. 254, 88 Am. St. Rep. 691, 86 N. W. 737; Wheeler v. Jackson, 137 U. S. 245, 34 L. ed. 659, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 76; Turner v. New York, 168 U. S. 90, 42 L. ed. 392, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 38; Bigelow v. Bemis, 2 Allen, 496; Stine v. Bennett, 13 Minn. 153, Gil. 138.

The legislature of Kentucky had the constitutional power to make classification of property for the purposes of taxation.

Brown-Forman Co. v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 572, 573, 54 L. ed. 886, 887, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Powers, 201 U. S. 292, 293, 50 L. ed. 761, 762, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 37 L. ed. 599, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; Adams Exp. Co. v. Ohio State Auditor, 165 U. S. 194, 41 L. ed. 683, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Billings v. Illinois, 188 U. S. 97, 47 L. ed. 400, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Merchants' & M. Nat. Bank v. Pennsylvania, 167 U. S. 461, 42 L. ed. 236, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 29 L. ed. 414, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Clark v. Titusville, 184 U. S. 329, 46 L. ed. 569, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 382; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730, 47 L. ed. 669, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401; Turpin v. Lemon, 187 U. S. 51, 47 L. ed. 70, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 20; Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 471, 46 L. ed. 283, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 125, 54 L. ed. 694, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496.

Messrs. J. W. M. Stewart, David W. Baird, and John F. Hager also filed a separate brief for defendant in error:

Since the creation of the state of Kentucky, claim to ownership of land is and has been property; and if property, may be taxed; and if taxable, is required by the Constitution to be taxed.

Olds v. Com. 3 A. K. Marsh. 465; Com. v. Gatliff, 132 Ky. 95, 116 S. W. 263. See also Elder v. Wood, 208 U. S. 226, 52 L. ed. 464 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 263; St. Louis Min. & Mill. Co. v. Montana Min. Co. 171 U. S. 650, 43 L. ed. 320, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 61, 19 Mor. Min. Rep. 575; Manuel v. Wulff, 152 U. S. 505, 38 L. ed. 532, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 651, 18 Mor. Min. Rep. 85.

The state may adopt new remedies for the collection of taxes, and apply them to taxes already overdue without a violation of the Federal Constitution. The delinquent taxpayer has no vested right in any existing mode of collecting taxes, and there is no contract between him and the state that the latter will not vary the mode of collection.

Judson, Tax. § 336.

Placing habitual delinquents in one class, and requiring them to remove such delinquency in a manner different from that required in other cases, or differing from the method therctofore existing, is not an arbitrary classification within the inhibition of the Federal Constitution against the state passing a law depriving a person of the equal protection of the laws, but such classification is reasonable in all respects.

Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 471, 46 L. ed. 283, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; League v. Texas, 184 U. S. 156, 46 L. ed. 478, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 354, 52 L. ed. 236, 243, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Fay v. Crozer, 217 U. S. 455, 54 L. ed. 837, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 568; Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 29 L. ed. 414, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Brown-Forman Co. v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 563, 54 L. ed. 883, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Powers, 201 U. S. 245, 50 L. ed. 744, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Henley v. Myers, 215 U. S. 373, 54 L. ed. 240, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 114, 54 L. ed. 688, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496; Standard Oil Co. v. Tennessee, 217 U. S. 413, 54 L. ed. 817, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 543; Williams v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 79, 90, 54 L. ed. 673, 677, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 865.

A man cannot get rid of his liability to a tax by buying without notice.

Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 443, 54 L. ed. 832, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532; Seattle v. Kelleher, 195 U. S. 351, 49 L. ed. 232, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 44.

The time allowed to comply with the act was reasonable.

Ballard v. Hunter, 204 U. S. 241, 51 L. ed. 461, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261; Mulvey v. Boston, 197 Mass. 178, 83 N. E. 402, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 349; Power v. Kitching, 10 N. D. 254, 88 Am. St. Rep. 691, 86 N. W. 737; Terry v. Anderson, 95 U. S. 628, 24 L. ed. 365; Wheeler v. Jackson, 137 U. S. 245, 34 L. ed. 659, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 76; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. ed. 529.

The states, so far as the Federal Constitution is concerned, may pass retroactive laws.

Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 475, 46 L. ed. 285, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; League v. Texas, 184 U. S. 156, 46 L. ed. 478, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Wade, Retroactive Laws, § 253; Municipality No. 1 v. Wheeler, 10 La. Ann. 745; New Orleans v. Poutz, 14 La. Ann. 866; New Orleans v. Cordeviolle, 13 La. Ann. 268; New Orleans v. Locke, 14 La. Ann. 867, 4 Wall. 172, 18 L. ed. 334; State v. Weyerhauser, 68 Minn. 371, 71 N. W. 265, 72 Minn. 519, 75 N. W. 718, 176 U. S. 550, 44 L. ed. 583, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485; State, Dixon, Prosecutor, v. Jersey City, 37 N. J. L. 39.

One cannot be an innocent purchaser of real estate which has not been assessed for taxation, or upon which the taxes have not been paid if assessed.

Seattle v. Kelleher, 195 U. S. 351, 49 L. ed. 232, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 44; Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 443, 54 L. ed. 832, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532; Tallman v. Janesville, 17 Wis. 71.

The government has the right, independent of the question of payment of taxes, to require a property holder to list his property, and to enforce this duty in any constitutional way it sees fit; either by a fine or the forfeiture of the property or estate failed to be listed. The right so to forfeit the property for failure to list is as clearly recognized in all the authorities as is the right to forfeit for failure to pay.

King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925.

The compact with Virginia has no effect whatever upon the right of Kentucky to pass laws regulating taxation, or providing forfeiture for failure to assess or pay taxes.

Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; Hawkins v. Barney, 5 Pet. 457, 8 L. ed. 190.

The statute in question gave a much longer time to a class of more stubborn offenders than was given by the statute in the case of Wheeler v. Jackson, 137 U. S. 245, 34 L. ed. 659, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 76, and the evil to be remedied in that case was less grievous than here.

Messrs. James Breathitt, James H. Jeffries, David W. Baird, John F. Hager, and J. W. M. Stewart also filed a brief for defendant in error:

The legislature has practically unlimited power and authority to levy and collect all taxes, and unlimited power and authority to forfeit, seize upon, and sell the property of the citizen for nonassessment or nonpayment of taxes; the only restrictions upon this power of the legislature being that the taxing laws shall be as uniform as the nature of the case will admit, that the taxes shall be levied and collected for public purposes, and that in cases of forfeiture and sale of property for nonassessment or nonpayment of taxes, that the person whose property is thus forfeited and sold shall have his day in court, and opportunity to be heard upon the issues arising in the forfeiture proceedings.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. chap. 14, p. 587; M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428, 430, 4 L. ed. 579, 606, 607; Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514, 561, 7 L. ed. 939, 955; Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491, 25 L. ed. 558; Board of Education v. McLandsborough, 36 Ohio St. 227, 38 Am. Rep. 582; Kirby v. Shaw, 19 Pa. 258; Sharpless v. Philadelphia, 21 Pa. 147, 59 Am. Dec. 759; Weister v. Hade, 52 Pa. 474; Wingate v. Sluder, 51 N. C. (6 Jones, L.) 552; Herrick v. Randolph, 13 Vt. 525; Armington v. Barnet, 15 Vt. 745, 40 Am. Dec. 705; Thomas v. Leland, 24 Wend. 65; People ex rel. Griffin v. Brooklyn, 4 N. Y. 419, 55 Am. Dec. 266; Portland Bank v. Apthorp, 12 Mass. 252; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Mayer, 28 Ohio St. 521; State v. Board of Education, 38 Ohio St. 3.

The periods of limitation fixed by the legislature in the revenue law under discussion are not only reasonably long, but amply so for the purposes for which they were intended.

Cooley, Tax. 1st ed. p. 376; Black, Tax Titles, 2d ed. chap. 32, §§ 492–501; Terry v. Anderson, 95 U. S. 628, 24 L. ed. 365; Terry v. Tubman, 92 U. S. 156, 23 L. ed. 537.

Similar revenue laws of both Virginia and West Virginia have been upheld on all points by the supreme courts of the respective states, and also by the Supreme Court of the United States.

State v. Sponaugle, 45 W. Va. 415, 43 L.R.A. 727, 32 S. E. 283; King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925. See also Brannon, 14th Amend. p. 260. See also Morrison v. Larkin, 26 La. Ann. 699; Wild v. Serpell, 10 Gratt. 405; Yokum v. Fickey, 37 W. Va. 762, 17 S. E. 318; Smith v. Tharp, 17 W. Va. 221.

If retroactive, the law is not, for that reason alone, unconstitutional.

Thornton v. McGrath, 1 Duv. 355; Broaddus v. Broaddus, 10 Bush, 306.

A law enacted by the legislature is always within its legislative competency unless the same is inhibited by the state Constitution, or is in conflict with some provision of the Constitution of the United States.

McPherson v. Blacker, 146 U. S. 25, 36 L. ed. 873, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Cooley, Const. Lim. 5th ed. 206, *175.

The judicial interpretation given to the law by the highest court of the state removes from it any semblance of an ex post facto law.

King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 428, 43 L. ed. 223, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corp. v. Com. 127 Ky. 716, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138.

Mr. John G. Johnson argued the cause for plaintiff in error in Nos. 47 and 48.

Mr. William Jackson Hendrick also argued the cause, and, with Messrs. James H. Hazelrigg, Eugene M. Berard, and Samuel Howland Hoppin, filed a brief for plaintiff in error in Nos. 47 and 48:

The Kentucky statute violates § 10, art. 1, of the Constitution of the United States, which declares that no state shall pass any bill of attainder or ex post facto law.

Kring v. Missouri, 107 U. S. 233, 27 L. ed. 510, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 443; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 138, 3 L. ed. 178; Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. 322, 330, 18 L. ed. 362, 365; Pierce v. Carskadon, 16 Wall. 234, 21 L. ed. 276; Burgess v. Salmon, 97 U. S. 381, 385, 24 L. ed. 1104, 1106; Thompson v. Utah, 170 U. S. 343, 351, 42 L. ed. 1061, 1066, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 620; Rice v. Minnesota & N. W. R. Co. 1 Black, 358, 373, 17 L. ed. 147, 151; Walker v. Whitehead, 16 Wall. 314, 318, 21 L. ed. 357, 358.

A legislature probably cannot constitutionally enact a retroactive law imposing taxes for previous years upon property which was not, during such years, subject to taxation under any valid law.

First Nat. Bank v. Covington, 103 Fed. 523.

A legislature cannot declare what the law was, but what it shall be. To declare what the law is or has been is a judicial power; to declare what the law shall be is legislative.

Ogden v. Blackledge, 2 Cranch, 272, 2 L. ed. 276.

The ex post facto effect of a law cannot be evaded by giving a civil form to that which is essentially criminal.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. p. 320; 8 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1033; Burgess v. Salmon, 97 U. S. 381, 24 L. ed. 1104; United States v. Hughes, 8 Ben. 29, Fed. Cas. No. 15,416.

The term "penalty" involves the idea of punishment; and its character is not changed by the mode in which it is inflicted, whether by civil action or criminal prosecution.

United States v. Chouteau, 102 U. S. 603, 26 L. ed. 246; Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 667, 36 L. ed. 1127, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 224.

The law so declared by this court has been duly followed in Kentucky, prior to the decisions now before the court.

Marshall v. Clark, Hughes (Ky.) 77; Chiles v. Monroe, 4 Met. (Ky.) 72; Com. v. Edwards, 9 Dana, 447; Franklin County Ct. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 84 Ky. 59; McCracken County v. Mercantile Trust Co. 84 Ky. 344, 1 S. W. 585; Estill v. Lewis, Sneed (Ky.) 343; Shaw v. Robinson, 111 Ky. 715, 64 S. W. 620.

Statutes fixing the times within which claimants to property may assert their rights are not constitutional when vested rights are impaired.

8 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 905; Bank of Louisville v. Public Schools, 83 Ky. 219.

In the above-cited cases the court has been merely declaring the law recognized and enforced, not only in Kentucky, but by the state courts throughout the land.

Parish v. East Coast Cedar Co. 133 N. C. 478, 98 Am. St. Rep. 718, 45 S. E. 768; J. L. Roper Lumber Co. v. Elizabeth City Lumber Co. 135 N. C. 742, 47 S. E. 757; Turner v. Turner, 4 Call. (Va.) 234; Day v. Pickett, 4 Munf. 104; Danville v. Pace, 25 Gratt. 1, 18 Am. Rep. 663; Merchants' Bank v. Ballou, 98 Va. 112, 44 L.R.A. 306, 81 Am. St. Rep. 715, 32 S. E. 481; Grand Rapids v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 130 Mich. 238, 97 Am. St. Rep. 473, 89 N. W. 932; State ex rel. Board of Education v. Board of Education, 22 Ohio C. C. 224, 12 Ohio C. D. 423; Gager v. Prout, 48 Ohio St. 89, 26 N. E. 1013; Erie County v. Walker, 10 Ohio Dec. Reprint, 558; Ryan v. State, 5 Neb. 276; State, Dixon, Prosecutor, v. Jersey City, 37 N. J. L. 39; 8 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 900; Carpenter v. Pennsylvania, 17 How. 456, 15 L. ed. 127; Watson v. Mercer, 8 Pet. 88, 8 L. ed. 876; Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648; Vanhorne v. Dorrance, 2 Dall. 304, 1 L. ed. 391, Fed. Cas. No. 16,857; Stebbins v. Pueblo Co. 2 McCrary, 196, 4 Fed. 282; Haley v. Philadelphia, 68 Pa. 45, 8 Am. Rep. 153; Howard v. Savannah, T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 173; People ex rel. Johnson v. Peacock, 98 Ill. 172; Weister v. Hale, 52 Pa. 474.

The same principle applies to judicial decisions. These cannot have the effect of an ex post facto law in devesting rights or impairing contracts any more than can acts of legislature.

Havermeyer v. Iowa County, 3 Wall. 294, 18 L. ed. 38; Weightman v. Clark, 103 U. S. 256, 26 L. ed. 392; Louisiana v. Pilsbury, 105 U. S. 278, 26 L. ed. 1090; Martin v. United States, 93 C. C. A. 484, 168 Fed. 202; Erbaugh v. United States, 97 C. C. A. 663, 173 Fed. 435.

This statute is also void when attempted to be enforced against plaintiff in error, because plaintiff in error was a subsequent purchaser.

Alexander v. Preston, 8 Cranch, 53, 3 L. ed. 485; 25 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, p. 127; 1 Cooley, Tax. pp. 24, 25, 84–86, 641; Pendleton v. Com. 110 Va. 229, 65 S. E. 536; Heine v. Levee Comrs. 19 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 223; Morgan v. Frankfort, 135 Ky. 178, 121 S. W. 1033; Brocking v. O'Bryan, 129 Ky. 543, 112 S. W. 631; Brodie v. Parsons, 23 Ky. L. Rep. 833, 64 S. W. 426; Kentucky C. R. Co. v. Com. 92 Ky. 64, 17 S. W. 196; Lasher v. McCreery, 66 Fed. 834; Com. v. Alger, 7 Cush. 53; 1 Thayer, Cases on Const. Law, pp. 693, 705.

It is the policy of the law to put at rest stale demands of whatever character. This applies as well to taxes as to other matters.

Chicago, St. L. & N. O. R. Co. v. Com. 115 Ky. 278, 72 S. W. 1119.

While the commonwealth of Kentucky has appealed to this court, and not in vain, to enforce the rights which were secured to it by the Virginia compact, some of its officials have not been so eager to comply with its obligations as declared by this court.

Graves v. Graves, 2 Bibb, 207, 4 Am. Dec. 697; Fowler v. Halbert, 4 Bibb, 55; The Register v. Haggin, 1 A. K. Marsh. 446; Kendal v. Slaughter, 1 A. K. Marsh. 378; Clay v. Fox, 1 A. K. Marsh. 557; M'Cracken v. Beall, 3 A. K. Marsh. 212; Hoy v. M'Murry, 1 Litt. (Ky.) 364; Luckett v. Dunn, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 218; Jackson v. Winn, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 326; Shepherd v. Young, 1 T. B. Mon. 204; Botts v. Chiles, 2 T. B. Mon. 36; Boone v. Helm, 4 Dana, 403; Roberts v. Caldwell, 5 Dana, 512; Bodley v. Gaither, 3 T. B. Mon. 59; Fisher v. Cockerill, 5 T. B. Mon. 133; Beard v. Smith, 6 T. B. Mon. 517; Clark v. Gale, 5 J. J. Marsh. 315; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; Hawkins v. Barney, 5 Pet. 457, 8 L. ed. 190; Doe ex dem. Gaines v. Buford, 1 Dana, 486; Rollins v. Clark, 8 Dana, 19; Ray v. Barker, 1 B. Mon. 367; Collins v. Collins, 79 Ky. 92; Shaw v. Robinson, 111 Ky. 715, 64 S.

W. 620; Dembitz, Ky. Jur. pp. 116, 162, 163.

Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5. L. ed. 547, was a very well-considered case, and is still the true "law of the land."

Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 316, 317, 11 L. ed. 145; Shipp v. Miller, 2 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 248, 11 Wheat. 441, 6 L. ed. 515; Miller v. M'Intyre, 6 Pet. 61, 8 L. ed. 320; Carver v. Jackson, 4 Pet. 1, 101, 7 L. ed. 761, 796; Fisher v. Cockcrell, 5 Pet. 248, 253, 259, 8 L. ed. 114, 115, 118; Hawkins v. Barney, 5 Pet. 457, 8 L. ed. 190; Poole v. Fleeger, 11 Pet. 185, 9 L. ed. 680; Pollard v. Kibbe, 14 Pet. 414, 10 L. ed. 519; Pennsylvania v. Wheeling & B. Bridge Co. 13 How. 560–565, 14 L. ed. 266–269; Curan v. Arkansas, 15 How. 316, 319, 14 L. ed. 711, 712; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 548, 550, 553, 18 L. ed. 408, 409; Parkersburg & O. River Transp. Co. v. Parkersburg, 107 U. S. 691, 705, 27 L. ed. 584, 589, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 732; Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, 24 L. ed. 793; Indiana v. Kentucky, 136 U. S. 479, 34 L. ed. 329, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1051; Henderson Bridge Co. v. Henderson, 173 U. S. 610, 43 L. ed. 829, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 553; Stearns v. Minnesota, 179 U. S. 245, 45 L. ed. 174, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 73; Wedding v. Meyler, 192 U. S. 573, 582, 48 L. ed. 570, 574, 66 L.R.A. 833, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 322.

Compacts between states are subject to the same rules of construction as contracts between individuals.

Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; Virignia v. Tennessee, 148 U. S. 503, 37 L. ed. 537, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 728; Davis v. Gray, 16 Wall. 203, 21 L. ed. 447; Wolff v. New Orleans, 103 U. S. 358, 26 L. ed. 395; Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514, 7 L. ed. 939; Home of the Friendless v. Rouse, 8 Wall. 430, 19 L. ed. 495; Farrington v. Tennessee, 95 U. S. 679, 24 L. ed. 558; New Jersey v. Yard, 95 U. S. 104, 24 L. ed. 352; Mechanics' & T. Bank v. Thomas, 18 How. 384, 15 L. ed. 460; Piqua Branch of State Bank v. Knoop, 16 How. 369, 14 L. ed. 977; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 4 L. ed. 629; Hunter v. United States, 5 Pet. 185, 8 L. ed. 91.

In the construction of a compact between states, the same rules should be applied as to treaties.

United States v. Reynes, 9 How. 127, 13 L. ed. 74.

The court will give it judicial meaning and interpretation as a contract on the principles of justice and the rules of equity.

United States v. Arredondo, 6 Pet. 691, 8 L. ed. 547; Chew Heong v. United States, 112 U. S. 536, 28 L. ed. 770, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Geofroy v. Riggs, 133 U. S. 258, 33 L. ed. 642, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 295.

And will interpret in a spirit of uberrima fides.

Tucker v. Alexandroff, 183 U. S. 424, 46 L. ed. 264, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 195; Wright v. Henkel, 190 U. S. 57, 47 L. ed. 954, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 781, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 386; Huidekoper v. Douglass, 3 Cranch, 1, 70, 71, 2 L. ed. 347, 369; Hans v. Louisiana, 134 U. S. 1, 20, 33 L. ed. 842, 849, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 504; Pennoyer v. McConnaughy, 140 U. S. 1, 18, 35 L. ed. 363, 368, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 699; Sims v. Irvine, 3 Dall. 425, 456, 1 L. ed. 665, 678.

This court will not alter, amend, or add to any treaty by inserting any clause, small or great, any more than in a law.

The Amiable Isabella, 6 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 191.

Congress is bound to regard treaties, and has no power to nullify titles vested thereunder.

Reichart v. Felps, 6 Wall. 160, 18 L. ed. 849; Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 32, 44 L. ed. 61, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1.

In solemn treaties it can never be presumed that either state intends to provide the means for perpetrating or protecting frauds.

United States v. The Amistad, 15 Pet. 518, 10 L. ed. 826.

Where a treaty admits of two constructions, one restrictive as to the rights that may be claimed under it, and the other liberal, the latter is to be preferred.

Hauenstein v. Lynham, 100 U. S. 483, 25 L. ed. 628; Society for Propagation of the Gospel v. New Haven, 8 Wheat. 464, 5 L. ed. 662; Bass v. Dinwiddie, Cooke (Tenn.) 130; Lowry v. Francis, 2 Yerg. 534; Thompson v. Holton, 6 McLean, 386, Fed. Cas. No. 13,958; Covington & C. Bridge Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 204, 38 L. ed. 962, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 649, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1087, reversing 15 Ky. L. Rep. 320, 22 S. W. 851; Preston v. Walsh, 10 Fed. 315.

It is conclusively presumed that both states understood the conditions of the compact.

Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 4 How. 635, 11 L. ed. 1135; Virginia v. Tennessee, 148 U. S. 525, 527, 37 L. ed. 545, 546, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 728.

The compact restricts the decisions of the courts as well as the acts of the legislature of Kentucky.

Bodley v. Taylor, 5 Cranch, 191, 223, 3 L. ed. 75, 84.

At the date of the compact there was no law permitting the forfeiture of lands for failure to enter them on the books or list them for taxation, nor even for any other cause; not even for treason.

Hutchinson, Land Titles in Va. & W. Va. pp. 2–8; State v. Sponaugle, 45 W. Va. 415, 43 L.R.A. 727, 32 S. E. 283; State v. West Branch Lumber Co. 64 W. Va. 673, 63 S. E. 377; Hale v. Marshall, 14 Gratt. 489; Kinney v. Beverley, 2 Hen. & M. 318.

Grants from the state are protected from impairment as much as grants from individuals.

Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 107, 3 L. ed. 169; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; New Jersey v. Wilson, 7 Cranch, 164, 166, 3 L. ed. 303; Wolff v. New Orleans, 103 U. S. 358, 367, 26 L. ed. 395, 399; Davis v. Gray, 16 Wall. 203, 21 L. ed. 447; Louisiana v. Jumel, 107 U. S. 750, 27 L. ed. 461, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128; Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514, 560, 7 L. ed. 939, 955; Woodruff v. Trapnall, 10 How. 190, 207, 13 L. ed. 383, 390; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 271, 297, 29 L. ed. 185, 195, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. 617, 9 L. ed. 851; Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 581, 20 L. ed. 322; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 237, 41 L. ed. 985, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Stearns v. Minnesota, 179 U. S. 223, 233, 245–262, 45 L. ed. 162, 170, 174–181, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 73; New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Lousiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 650, 672, 29 L. ed. 516, 524, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252; Terrett v. Taylor, 9 Cranch, 43, 3 L. ed. 650; Pawlet v. Clark, 9 Cranch, 292, 3 L. ed. 735; Farrington v. Tennessee, 95 U. S. 679, 24 L. ed. 558; Mechanics' & T. Bank v. Thomas, 18 How. 384, 15 L. ed. 460; Franklin County Ct. v. Deposit Bank, 87 Ky. 370, 95 S. W. 212; Baldwin v. Com. 11 Bush, 432; The Homestead Cases, 22 Gratt. 266, 12 Am. Rep. 507.

This court will determine independently of the state courts whether there is a contract, and whether it has been impaired.

Stearns v. Minnesota, 179 U. S. 233, 45 L. ed. 170, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 73, reversing 72 Minn. 200, 75 N. W. 210; Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 416, 451, 14 L. ed. 997, 1011; Wright v. Nagle, 101 U. S. 791, 794, 25 L. ed. 921, 922; Louisville Gas Co. v. Citizens' Gaslight Co. 115 U. S. 683, 29 L. ed. 510, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. v. Dennis, 116 U. S. 665, 667, 29 L. ed. 770, 771, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 625; New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana Sugar Ref. Co. 125 U. S. 18, 36, 31 L. ed. 607, 614, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 741; Bryan v. Board of Education, 151 U. S. 639, 38 L. ed. 297, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 465; Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Tennessee, 153 U. S. 486, 493, 38 L. ed. 793, 796, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 968; Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 219, 41 L. ed. 132, 137, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023; McCullough v. Virginia, 172 U. S. 102, 109, 43 L. ed. 382, 384, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 134; Walsh v. Columbus, H. Valley & A. R. Co. 176 U. S. 469, 44 L. ed. 548, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 393; Sullivan v. Texas, 207 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 277, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 215; Jefferson Branch Bank v. Skelly, 1 Black, 436, 443, 17 L. ed. 173, 177; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 66, 77, 44 L. ed. 673, 680, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 545; St. Paul Gaslight Co. v. St. Paul, 181 U. S. 142, 147, 45 L. ed. 788, 791, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 575; Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co. 197 U. S. 544, 49 L. ed. 872, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Butz v. Muscatine, 8 Wall. 575, 19 L. ed. 490; Rowan v. Runnels, 5 How. 134, 12 L. ed. 85; Given v. Wright, 117 U. S. 648, 656, 29 L. ed. 1021, 1024, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 907; Piqua Branch of State Bank v. Knoop, 16 How. 369, 14 L. ed. 977; Yazoo & M. Valley R. Co. v. Thomas, 132 U. S. 174, 184, 33 L. ed. 302, 306, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 68.

The laws existing when and where a contract is made form a part of it, and cannot be changed so as to impair it.

Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, 24 L. ed. 793; McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662, 34 L. ed. 304, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; Woodruff v. Trapnall, 10 How. 190, 13 L. ed. 383; Furman v. Nichol, 8 Wall. 44, 19 L. ed. 370; Walker v. Whitehead, 16 Wall. 314, 317, 21 L. ed. 357, 358; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 18 L. ed. 403; Tennessee v. Sneed, 96 U. S. 69, 24 L. ed. 610; Memphis v. United States, 97 U. S. 293, 24 L. ed. 920; Memphis v. Brown, 97 U. S. 300, 24 L. ed. 924; Howard v. Bugbee, 24 How. 461, 16 L. ed. 753; Collins v. Collins, 79 Ky. 92; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; Blair v. Williams, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 35; Lapsley v. Brashears, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 47; M'Kinney v. Carroll, 5 T. B. Mon. 96; Grayson v. Lilly, 7 T. B. Mon. 6; Griswold v. Hepburn, 2 Duv. 20; Louisville & T. Turnp. Road Co. v. Boss, 19 Ky. L. Rep. 1954, 44 S. W. 981.

The decision of the state court construing statutes will not be allowed by this court to impair the obligation of contracts.

Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 432, 14 L. ed. 1003; Gelpcke v. Dubuque, 1 Wall. 175, 17 L. ed. 520; Jefferson Branch Bank v. Skelly, 1 Black, 436, 17 L. ed. 173; New Jersey v. Yard, 95 U. S. 104, 24 L. ed. 352; Memphis & C. R. Co. v. Gaines, 97 U. S. 697, 24 L. ed. 1091; Northwestern University v. Illinois, 99 U. S. 309, 25 L. ed. 387; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Palmes, 109 U. S. 244, 27 L. ed. 922, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 193; Memphis Gaslight Co. v. Taxing Dist. 109 U. S. 398, 27 L. ed. 976, 3

Sup. Ct. Rep. 205; Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. v. Dennis, 116 U. S. 665, 29 L. ed. 770, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 625; Gray, Limitations of Taxing Power, p. 488.

A change of judicial construction of statutes will not be permitted to impair prior contracts.

Douglass v. Pike County, 101 U. S. 677, 686, 25 L. ed. 968, 971; Rowan v. Runnels, 5 How. 134, 139, 12 L. ed. 85, 87; Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 416, 432, 14 L. ed. 997, 1003; Carroll County v. United States, 18 Wall. 71, 21 L. ed. 771; Fairfield v. Gallatin County, 100 U. S. 47, 25 L. ed. 544; Elmwood Twp. v. Marcy, 92 U. S. 289, 23 L. ed. 710; Anderson v. Santa Anna Twp. 116 U. S. 356, 364, 29 L. ed. 633, 635, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 413; Weightman v. Clark, 103 U. S. 256, 26 L. ed. 392; Louisiana v. Pilsbury, 105 U. S. 278, 26 L. ed. 1090; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87, 3 L. ed. 162; Los Angeles v. Los Angeles City Water Co. 177 U. S. 558, 44 L. ed. 886, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 736; Thomson v. Lee County, 3 Wall. 327, 18 L. ed. 177; Gray, Limitations of Taxing Power, p. 523; Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co. 197 U. S. 544, 49 L. ed. 872, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Birrell v. New York & H. R. Co. 198 U. S. 390, 49 L. ed. 1096, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 667; Story v. New York Elev. R. Co. 90 N. Y. 122, 43 Am. Rep. 146; Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 27 L. ed. 359, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 548, 18 L. ed. 403, 408; Kuhn v. Fairmount Coal Co. 215 U. S. 359, 54 L. ed. 233, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Chicago v. Sheldon, 9 Wall. 50, 19 L. ed. 594; Chesapeake & O. Canal Co. v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 4 Gill & J. 1; Canal Co's Case, 83 Md. 626, 35 Atl. 161, 365, 581; State v. Miller, 50 Mo. 129; Forest Products Co. v. Russell, 161 Fed. 1004; Carroll County v. Smith, 111 U. S. 562, 28 L. ed. 519, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539; Francis v. Francis, 203 U. S. 233, 242, 51 L. ed. 165, 168, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129; Gelpcke v. Dubuque, 1 Wall. 175, 17 L. ed. 520; Havemeyer v. Iowa County, 3 Wall. 294, 295, 18 L. ed. 38, 39; Lee County v. Rogers, 7 Wall. 181, 19 L. ed. 160; Kenosha v. Lamson, 9 Wall. 477, 19 L. ed. 725; Olcott v. Fond du Lac County, 16 Wall. 678, 21 L. ed. 382; Taylor v. Ypsilanti, 105 U. S. 60, 26 L. ed. 1008; German Sav. Bank v. Franklin County, 128 U. S. 526, 32 L. ed. 519, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 159; Folsom v. Township 96, 159 U. S. 611, 40 L. ed. 278, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Murray v. Wilson Distilling Co. 92 C. C. A. 1, 164 Fed. 1.

The plaintiff in error is protected by the 14th Amendment of the national Constitution.

Covington & L. Turnp. Road Co. v. Sandford, 164 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 560, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 198; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Lafayette Ins. Co. v. French, 18 How. 404, 15 L. ed. 451; American & F. Christian Union v. Yount, 101 U. S. 352, 25 L. ed. 888; Lathrop v. Commercial Bank, 8 Dana, 114, 33 Am. Dec. 481.

The 14th Amendment requires more than the "due process of law" theretofore required.

Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12 Pet. 657, 9 L. ed. 1233; Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34, 38 L. ed. 896, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108; United States v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 165 Fed. 746.

A "day in court" in the state court does not make this article 3, and the proceedings thereunder, constitutional or valid.

Norton v. Shelby County, 118 U. S. 425, 30 L. ed. 178, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1121; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 29 L. ed. 185, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Brannon, 14th Amend. p. 97; Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34, 38 L. ed. 896, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108.

The general rule that this court will accept without question the decision of a state court that a state statute conforms to the state Constitution does not apply to the question now before the court.

Head v. Amoskeag Mfg. Co. 113 U. S. 9, 28 L. ed. 889, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441; Gelpcke v. Dubuque, 1 Wall. 210, 17 L. ed. 527; Douglass v. Pike County, 101 U. S. 677, 686, 25 L. ed. 968, 971; Fairfield v. Gallatin County, 100 U. S. 47, 25 L. ed. 544.

The judgment of a court of the state is void when it denies "due process of law."

Old Wayne Mut. Life Asso. v. McDonough, 204 U. S. 8, 15, 51 L. ed. 345, 348, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 236; Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 339, 346, 347, 354, 25 L. ed. 676, 679, 680, 682, 3 Am. Crim. Rep. 547; Neal v. Delaware, 103 U. S. 370, 26 L. ed. 567; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Gibson v. Mississippi, 162 U. S. 565, 40 L. ed. 1075, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 904; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 66, 44 L. ed. 673, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 545; Bradley v. Lightcap, 195 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 65, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 748; Stuart v. Palmer, 74 N. Y. 183, 30 Am. Rep. 289; Union Bank v. Oxford, 90 Fed. 7; Ho Ah Kow v. Nunan, 5 Sawy. 552, Fed. Cas. No. 6,546; Re Tiburcio Parrott, 6 Sawy. 349, 1 Fed. 481, Railroad & Teleph. Cos. v. Board of Equalizers, 85 Fed. 302; Meacham v. Bear Valley Irrig. Co. 145 Cal. 606, 68 L.R.A. 600, 79 Pac. 281; University of the South v. Jetton, 155 Fed. 182; Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34, 46, 38 L. ed. 896, 901, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108; Thompson v. Whitman, 18 Wall. 457, 468, 21 L. ed. 897, 901; Rose v. Himely, 4 Cranch, 241, 269, 2 L. ed. 608, 617; Williamson v. Berry, 8 How. 495, 540, 12 L. ed. 1170, 1189; Story, Const. 1313; Mills v. Duryee, 7 Cranch, 481, 484, 3 L. ed. 411, 413; Galpin v. Page, 18 Wall, 350, 365, 366, 368, 21 L. ed. 959, 962, 963; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 271, 29 L. ed. 185, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Guthrie, 14th Amend. p. 73; Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 100, 101, 53 L. ed. 106, 107, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14; McCracken v. Mercantile Trust Co. 84 Ky. 352, 1 S. W. 585; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 234, 235, 41 L. ed. 983, 984, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; A. Backus Jr. & Sons v. Fort Street Union Depot Co. 169 U. S. 557, 565, 42 L. ed. 853, 857, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 445; Raymond v. Chicago Union Traction Co. 207 U. S. 20, 36, 52 L. ed. 78, 87, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 7, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 757.

The decision of this court in King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925, does not tend to sustain the statute and proceedings thereunder in the cases now at bar.

This is true: (a) because the Constitution and statutes construed in King v. Mullins, and the proceedings thereunder, contained none of the worst atrocities shown in the cases now at bar; and (b) because this court, in King v. Mullins, passed only upon the question whether, in that case, there was a sufficient "day in court" to constitute due process, taken in connection with the other conditions there shown.

The plaintiff in error has been denied due process of law and equal protection of the laws by the provisions of the article:

(a) By the unconstitutional discriminations.

(b) By unconstitutional duplicate taxation.

Allen v. Perrine, 103 Ky. 516, 41 L.R.A. 351, 45 S. W. 500; Holzhauer v. Newport, 94 Ky. 396, 22 S. W. 752; Montgomery v. Montgomery, 119 Ky. 761, 78 S. W. 465, 80 S. W. 1108; Minix v. Macoffin County, 17 Ky. L. Rep. 628, 32 S. W. 165, 749; Cooley, Taxn. 398, 399; Livingston v. Paducah, 80 Ky. 656, 659; Standard Oil Co. v. Com. 119 Ky. 75, 82 S. W. 1020; Com. ex rel. McElroy v. Walsh, 133 Ky. 103, 117 S. W. 398.

(c) By allowing a hearing upon the claim of unconstitutionality only at the risk, if mistaken, of being subjected to confiscation of its whole property.

Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 147, 148, 52 L. ed. 723, 724, 13 L.R.A.(N.S.) 932, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. 183 U. S. 79, 99, 100, 102, 46 L. ed. 92, 105, 106, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Mercantile Trust Co. v. Texas & P. R. Co. 51 Fed. 543; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. McChord, 103 Fed. 223; Consolidated Gas Co. v. Mayer, 146 Fed. 153; McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662, 694, 34 L. ed. 304, 314, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972; Central R. Co. v. Wright, 207 U. S. 127, 52 L. ed. 134, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 47, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 463; Ex parte Wood, 155 Fed. 190.

Tax laws are void when taxation is a mere pretext for confiscation for the benefit of private persons.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; McGehee, Due Process of Law, p. 255; Robinson v. Swope, 12 Bush, 21; Hancock Stock & Fence Law Co. v. Adams, 87 Ky. 417, 9 S. W. 246, 8 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1127; Society for Propagation of the Gospel v. New Haven, 8 Wheat. 464, 5 L. ed. 662; Proprietors of Kennebec Purchase v. Laboree, 2 Me. 275, 11 Am. Dec. 79; Newland v. Marsh, 19 Ill. 385; Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 481, 22 L.R.A. 379, 17 S. E. 540; Davis v. Gray, 16 Wall. 203, 21 L. ed. 447; Graded School Dist. No. 2 v. Bracken Academy, 95 Ky. 436, 26 S. W. 8; Beekman v. Saratoga & S. R. Co. 3 Paige, 45, 22 Am. Dec. 679; Brookhaven v. Smith, 188 N. Y. 74, 9 L.R.A. (N.S.) 326, 80 N. E. 665, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1; Maguiar v. Henry, 84 Ky. 13, 4 Am. St. Rep. 182; Standard Oil Co. v. Com. 119 Ky. 75, 82 S. W. 1020; Louisville v. Cochran, 82 Ky. 27.

The "police power" resides with the legislature, and not with the courts, and the latter cannot justify enforcing a statute as a police measure by merely construing it to be such, contrary to the true intent as found by this court.

Western Turf. Asso. v. Greenberg, 204 U. S. 359, 51 L. ed. 520, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 384.

Even if this article 3 were an attempted exercise of the police power, it would not be superior to the national Constitution.

1 Thayer, Cases on Const. Law, p. 742, note; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 135, 3 L. ed. 177; Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 581, 20 L. ed. 322; Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 388, 1 L. ed. 649; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 293, 297, 306, 29 L. ed. 193, 195, 198, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 237, 41 L. ed. 985, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Terrett v. Taylor, 9 Cranch, 50, 52, 3 L. ed. 653, 654; Wilkinson v. Leland, 2 Pet. 627, 658, 7 L. ed. 542, 553; Logan v. Postal Teleg. & Cable Co. 157 Fed. 571; Stone v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 116 U. S. 307, 331, 29 L. ed. 636, 644, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334, 388, 1191; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 593, 598, 50 L. ed. 596, 609, 611, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; United States v. Delaware & H. Co. 164 Fed. 225; Yesler v. Washington Harbor Line, 146 U. S. 655, 36 L. ed. 1122, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 658, 22 L. ed. 459; New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Louisiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 650, 667, 29 L. ed. 516, 522, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252; McGehee, Due Process of Law, p. 205; Sweet v. Rechel, 159 U. S. 380, 40 L. ed. 188, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 101, 102, 24 L. ed. 616, 618, 619; Tracy v. Ginzberg, 205 U. S. 170, 178, 51 L. ed. 755, 760, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461; New York ex rel. Silz v. Hesterberg, 211 U. S. 39, 53 L. ed. 79, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 259, 23 L. ed. 543; Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 550; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; United States v. Arredondo, 6 Pet. 691, 8 L. ed. 547; Mead v. Portland, 200 U. S. 148, 50 L. ed. 413, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171; Society for Propagation of the Gospel v. New Haven, 8 Wheat. 492, 5 L. ed 669; Com. v. Alger, 7 Cush. 53; Doe ex dem. Gaines v. Buford, 1 Dana, 490; Com. v. International Harvester Co. 131 Ky. 551, 133 Am. St. Rep. 256, 115 S. W. 703; Litchfield v. Bond, 186 N. Y. 66, 78 N. E. 719; State v. Post, 55 N. J. L. 264, 26 Atl. 683; Harvey v. Hoffman, 108 Va. 626, 62 S. E. 371; California Reduction Co. v. Sanitary Reduction Works, 61 C. C. A. 91, 126 Fed. 29, affirmed in 199 U. S. 306, 50 L. ed. 204, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 100; Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S. 223, 49 L. ed. 169, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18, reversing 139 Cal. 179, 96 Am. St. Rep. 95, 72 Pac. 970; Daly v. Elton, 195 U. S. 242, 49 L. ed. 177, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 22, reversing 139 Cal. 216, 72 Pac. 1097.

If private property be taken, compensation must be made.

Pumpelly v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co 13 Wall. 166, 20 L. ed. 557.

Confiscation is justifiable only under the war power.

Miller v. United States (Page v. United States) 11 Wall. 268, 20 L. ed. 135; State v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. 100 Tex. 153, 97 S. W. 71.

Even treason does not justify confiscation.

Bigelow v. Forrest, 9 Wall. 339, 19 L. ed. 696; Day v. Micou, 18 Wall. 160, 162, 21 L. ed. 862; Ex parte Lange, 18 Wall. 176, 177, 21 L. ed. 878, 879; Wallach v. Van Riswick, 92 U. S. 202, 23 L. ed. 473; Miller v. United States (Page v. United States) 11 Wall. 268, 20 L. ed. 135; Jenkins v. Collard, 145 U. S. 552, 36 L. ed. 814, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 868; Doe ex dem. Gaines v. Buford, 1 Dana, 492; Louisville School Board v. King, 127 Ky. 824, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 379, 107 S. W. 247.

Mr. Hannis Taylor also filed a brief for plaintiff in error in Nos. 47 and 48:

When the highest court of a state authoritatively construes and enforces a state law in such manner as to take away a Federal right or immunity, this court may strike down such construction, so as to preserve such right or immunity without putting the stamp of nullity upon the state law in any other particular.

Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 90, 53 L. ed. 102, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14; Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 339, 25 L. ed. 676, 3 Am. Crim. Rep. 547; Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34, 38 L. ed. 896, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226, 41 L. ed. 979, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581.

It has ever been axiomatic here that our entire state system rests upon English law, and that the sovereignty of the states is so limited and fettered by that law that no sovereign act that attempts to affect the security of life and property can be in accordance with the law of the land, or its equivalent, due process of law, if it finds no sanction in the history of English law as it existed in the mother country and in the colonies, prior to the adoption of our Federal Constitution.

Martin v. Waddell, 16 Pet. 410, 10 L. ed. 1012; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616.

No one who knows anything of the history of English law will for a moment contend that the state power in question to work a forfeiture or outlawry as a means of settling land titles, or as a means of collecting taxes, was ever exercised, either by the Crown or Parliament.

Martin v. Snowden, 18 Gratt. 100; Bennett v. Hunter, 9 Wall. 326, 19 L. ed. 672.

There can be no justification for the contention that this court has no jurisdiction to determine whether or no the transfer of property under the authority of a state, pretending to exercise this confiscatory power by "legislative fiat," is not an open violation of the 14th Amendment.

Cohen v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 5 L. ed. 257.

No state has derived from English law the right to forfeit land or to outlaw the title thereto, by legislative fiat, as a means of collecting the taxes thereon.

Martin v. Snowden, 18 Gratt. 100; Bennett v. Hunter, 9 Wall. 336, 19 L. ed. 675.

There can be no proceeding against life, liberty, or property which may result in the deprivation of either, without the observance of those general rules established in our system of jurisprudence for the security of private rights.

Hagar v. Reclamation Dist. No. 108, 111 U. S. 701, 28 L. ed. 569, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663.

Private rights cannot be devested except by the "law of the land,"—the ancient and customary laws of the English people.

Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616.

The 14th Amendment in question applies whenever there is an abuse of law amounting to confiscation of property or a deprivation of personal rights.

Norwood v. Baker, 172 U. S. 269, 43 L. ed. 443, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 187.

The precise question was more exactly met in Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533, when this court, after declaring that a state legislature in the matter of taxation may impose "all such regulations, and those of like character, so long as they proceed within reasonable limits and general usages," held that it could not "make hostile discriminations against particular persons and classes, especially such as are of an unusual character, unknown to the practice of our government."

Under the due process of law clause of the 5th Amendment, no landowner can be deprived of his land under a tax proceeding, either by sale or forfeiture, when it is made to appear that such landowner stood ready to pay the tax prior to the proceeding by which his title was devested.

United States v. Lee, 106 U. S. 196, 27 L. ed. 171, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 240.

The 14th Amendment operates to extend to the citizens and residents of the states the same protection against arbitrary state legislation affecting life, liberty, and property as is afforded by the 5th Amendment against similar legislation by Congress.

Re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 436, 34 L. ed. 519, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930; French v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 181 U. S. 324, 45 L. ed. 879, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 625; McGehee, Due Process of Law, p. 35.

A state's full control over the procedure in its courts is subject to the qualification that such procedure must not work a denial of fundamental rights, or conflict with specific and applicable provisions of the Federal Constitution.

Ex parte Reggel, 114 U. S. 642, 29 L. ed. 250, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1148, 5 Am. Crim. Rep. 218; Iowa C. R. Co. v. Iowa, 160 U. S. 389, 40 L. ed. 467, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 344; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226, 41 L. ed. 979, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; West v. Louisiana, 194 U. S. 263, 48 L. ed. 969, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 650; Hovey v. Elliott, 167 U. S. 409, 42 L. ed. 215, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 841; McGehee, Due Process of Law, pp. 170, 425.

Mr. David W. Baird argued the cause, and, with Messrs. John F. Hager, J. W. M. Stewart, Z. T. Vinson, James Breathitt, James H. Jeffries, John H. Holt, and Aaron Kohn, filed a brief for defendant in error in Nos. 47 and 48. For their contentions, see their briefs as reported supra, p. 140.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

These are writs of error to the court of appeals of the state of Kentucky, and involve the constitutionality of an act of the legislature of the state, passed March 15, 1906, entitled, "An Act Relating to Revenue and Taxation." Acts of 1906, pp. 88–248. Article 3 is brought in question in these cases. It is set forth in full in the opinion of the court of appeals of Kentucky in case No. 47. 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138. Its salient features are:

Section 1 of the article makes it the duty of every owner or claimant of land to pay the taxes which have been assessed, and which should have been assessed, against him, and those under whom he claims, as the owner or claimant *thereof, as of the[143 15th day of September, 1901, 1902, 1903, the 1st day of September, 1904, and the 1st day of September, 1905, and provides that if the owner or claimant, or those under whom he claims, have failed to list the land, or any part thereof, for taxation, as of said dates, or any of them, it shall be his duty to have the same assessed and listed for taxation as is provided in the act, as of each of said dates for which the assessment has been omitted, and to pay the taxes, interest, and penalties thereon. It is provided that the fact that the land has been listed for taxation, or the taxes paid thereon by another claimant, shall not relieve against the duty imposed by the act; and if any any such owner or claimant, or those under whom he claims, has failed to list the land for assessment and taxation, as of any three of said dates, or has failed to pay the taxes charged, or which should have been charged against him, or those under whom he claims, as the owner or claimant thereof upon said dates, for any three of the years for which said assessments were or should have been made, said owner and claimant and those under whom he claims are declared delinquent; and such failures, or either of them, shall be cause for forfeiture and transfer to the commonwealth of his said claim and title thereto, in a proceeding to be instituted for that purpose, as required in the act. But it is provided that the cause for forfeiture shall be extinguished if the owner or claimant, his heirs, representatives, or assigns, shall, within the time and in the manner provided in the article, cause the land to be assessed for taxation, and, on or before March 1, 1907, pay the taxes charged and which should have been charged against him, or against those under whom he claims, as the owner or claimant thereof, for each and all of said five years for which he or those under whom he claims are delinquent, together with the interest and penalties provided by law in the case of the redemption of land sold for the nonpayment of taxes.

144] *Section 2 provides for the ascertainment of the amount of taxes unpaid and the assessment required by the preceding section by a proceeding in the county court where the land lies, upon the application of the owner or claimant, by a petition filed in the court on or before January 1, 1907, in which the land sought to be charged shall be described, so as to be identified, and the years for which it was listed and the years for which the taxes were not paid shall be stated; in which petition shall also be stated the grant under which petitioner claims, if he derives title from a grant, and the instrument through or the manner in which the title devolved upon him. A hearing is provided upon a day to be fixed by the applicant, not less than ten nor more than twenty days after the filing of the petition, after notice to the county attorney, who is required to attend and represent the state and county.

The county court is required to decide upon the application in a summary manner, upon such evidence as may be offered, having regard to the value of adjacent property; to ascertain the amount of unpaid taxes which the applicant and those under whom he claims should have paid for any and all of said years, whether assessments were originally made as of said dates or not. The court is required to find the proportion of the taxes due the county and state, at the rates fixed by law for such years; and to make a record of its findings, and certify the same to the auditor of the state and county clerk. Should the court find that the land has been assessed against such owner or claimant, or those under whom he claims, as of any of said dates, it shall accept such assessment as a basis upon which to ascertain the amount of unpaid taxes for the year such assessment shall have been made.

Provision is made for an appeal to the circuit court of the county; also for the payment of the taxes as ascertained, and for compensation to the officers whose services are required.

*Section 3 provides the method of[145 procedure against the owner or claimant by the commonwealth's attorney, in case such owner or claimant fails to have the land assessed, or fails to pay the taxes charged or which should have been charged against him, or those under whom he claims, and it is made the duty of the commonwealth's attorney to institute in the circuit court of the county in which the land or any part thereof lies, a proceeding in equity in the name of the commonwealth of Kentucky, as plaintiff, against the said tract of land and the owners or claimants of said land, as defendants, naming them if their names are known to him, and if their names are unknown to him, designating them as the unknown owners and claimants thereof; which proceeding is for the purpose of declaring the title or claim of said defendants forfeited to the commonwealth, and for selling the same. It is provided that this suit shall be proceeded with to final judgment in all respects as other equity causes, so far as applicable.

Provision is made for posting the notice and a copy of the petition at the door of the courthouse.

The petition is required to allege the facts constituting the cause of forfeiture under the provisions of the article, and there shall be filed with the petition a copy of the grant or instrument upon which the title or claim sought to be forfeited is based; and no other title, claim, or possession, or continuity thereof, whether owned or claimed by the defendant or by others, is to be forfeited or in any manner affected by the proceeding. If judgment is in favor of forfeiture, it is provided that the judgment shall operate as a transfer to and vesting in the commonwealth of the title and claim of each and all the defendants, and those under whom they claim, without execution of deed or other instrument. If the court finds the title is not subject to forfeiture under the provisions of the article, it shall so adjudge, and dismiss the petition of the plaintiff.

It is provided that judgments under the 146]article shall be *conclusive as against all defendants, including infants, lunatics, and married women, and shall not be subject to certain provisions of the Code of Practice.

An appeal is provided to the court of appeals within thirty days after judgment.

In § 4 provision is made for the purchase back of the forfeited title, and upon the proper pleadings and hearings the court is authorized to ascertain and adjudge the amount of unpaid taxes charged, and that ought to have been charged, against the defendant and those under whom he claims, as the owner or claimant of said land, for the fifty years immediately preceding the filing of such counterclaim, and if the court finds and adjudges that said defendant is the owner of the title so forfeited to and vested in the commonwealth, it shall enter judgment against such defendant for a sum equal to the amount of the unpaid taxes charged, and that ought to have been charged, against said defendant, and those under whom he claims as the owner or claimant of the land, for said fifty years, together with interest at the rate of 15 per centum per annum from the time the said unpaid taxes for said several years were due and the costs of the proceedings, including a reasonable fee to the commonwealth's attorney. No person is to be entitled to purchase back from the commonwealth the title so forfeited except such defendant as may, but for such forfeiture, establish in such proceeding a title thereto in himself upon which he could maintain an action of ejectment. Upon payment of the amount of the judgment, the court is required to enter a judgment retransferring to such defendant the title and claim so forfeited to and vested in the commonwealth.

Provision is made for the sale of the said title and claim in the event that the judgment is not paid.

The 5th section provides that any owner or claimant who institutes a proceeding allowed by § 2 of the article, who does not, within the time there limited, pay the 147]*amount ascertained as charged or chargeable against him and those under whom he claims, as the owner or claimant of the land, shall not be allowed to purchase back, under the proceedings authorized by § 4 of the article.

Section 6 of the article provides that all title and claim proceeded against under the article, and forfeited to and vested in the commonwealth, and not purchased back by the owner or claimant thereof, as authorized in § 4, whether such forfeiture be for past delinquencies or for future delinquencies, as authorized under § 10, is transferred to and vested in any person for so much thereof as such person, or those under whom he claims, has had the actual adverse possession for five years next preceding the judgment of forfeiture, under claim or color of title, derived from any source whatsoever, and who, or those under whom he claims, shall have paid taxes thereon for the five years in which such possession may have been or may be held; and in those in privity with such person, his heirs, representatives, or assigns, as to the mineral or other interests or rights in or appurtenant to such land.

Section 7 provides that all title and claim to land transferred to and vested in the commonwealth, under the provisions of this article, and not purchased back by the owner or claimant, as provided by § 4, and not vested in the occupant, as provided in § 6, shall be sold to the highest and best bidder for cash in hand, which sale shall be made pursuant to a judgment of the circuit court in said action, and shall be at public auction at the door front of the courthouse upon the first day of some regular term of the circuit or county court, after notice of sale shall have been advertised in the manner required by law in the case of the sales of land under execution. The commissioner shall report the sale to the court for its confirmation, and, when confirmed, the court shall order the commissioner to make a deed to the purchaser, which deed shall operate to transfer to the purchaser such title and claim to the land *so forfeited to and[148 vested in the commonwealth as remains in it after the operation of § 6 of the article.

The money realized from the sale is to be distributed for the payment of costs including the commissioner's and attorneys' fee; second, to the county and state the proportion to which each may be entitled, together with interest and penalty, as in this article provided; third, the remainder to be paid over to the former owner or claimant or his personal representative or assigns.

Section 8 provides that no action to enforce a forfeiture, as authorized and provided in the article, shall be instituted after the expiration of five years from the accrual of the right thereto.

Section 9 provides that no owner or claimant of any land in the commonwealth shall be allowed to prevent the operation of the article by the payment, after January 1, 1906, of any amount less than the whole of the unpaid taxes, interest, and penalties provided by law, that were charged and that should have been charged against said owner or claimant of said land and those under whom he claims, as of each and all of said five dates first mentioned in § 1 of the article; and where such payment is made after the passage of the act, it is provided that the amount to be paid shall be ascertained and payment made as in the article provided.

Section 10 provides that when, for any five successive years after the 1st day of August, 1906, any owner or claimant of or to any land in the commonwealth shall fail to list the same for taxation and cause himself to be charged with the taxes properly chargeable thereon, or fail to pay the same, as provided by law, then such failure shall be cause for the forfeiture of his title and claim thereto, and the transfer of the same to the commonwealth of Kentucky; and it is made the duty of the commonwealth's attorney to institute an action in the circuit court of the county wherein the land or 149]any part thereof lies, for the *purpose of declaring the forfeiture, and for the sale of such parts thereof as, under the provisions of the article, are liable to sale, such actions and proceedings to conform to the provisions of article 3 as far as the same may be applicable.

Case No. 22 originated in a petition filed by the commonwealth of Kentucky through the commonwealth's attorney, against the Kentucky Union Company, for the forfeiture, for failure to list and pay taxes upon some 40,000 acres of land in Leslie county, Kentucky, granted by letters patent of the commonwealth of Kentucky, June 12, 1872, the proceedings resulting in a judgment of forfeiture, which was affirmed in the court of appeals of Kentucky, 128 Ky. 610, 108 S. W. 931, 110 S. W. 398.

Case No. 47 was a petition brought by the Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corporation under article 3, for the assessment and taxation of the tracts of land in controversy, consisting of large bodies of land which the Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corporation claimed to be the owners of under patents issued under Virginia warrants, principally antedating the year 1789; and while the petition was dismissed upon the ground that the same did not conform to the requirements of the law, the court of appeals of Kentucky found that the constitutionality of the act was necessarily involved, and in an elaborate opinion by the chief justice sustained the validity of the law. 127 Ky. 667, 106 S. W. 260, 108 S. W. 1138.

Case No. 48 was a proceeding by the commonwealth's attorney in behalf of the state, against the Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corporation and others, for the forfeiture of the lands described, for the failure to list the lands and pay taxes as required by article 3 of the act of March 15, 1906, which resulted in the affirmance of the judgment rendered in the lower court, forfeiting the title of the Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corporation to lands held in Pike county, Kentucky, under the old Virginia *titles, and aggregating over 300,000[150 acres; and while the case is not officially reported, the opinion of the Kentucky court of appeals is found in 33 Ky. L. Rep. 857, 111 S. W. 362.

The conditions which led to the passage of article 3 of the act of March, 1906, are elaborately set forth in the opinion of the chief justice in 127 Ky. supra. They are also more briefly stated in a report of the commission appointed by the legislature of Kentucky to investigate and revise the taxing laws of the state, upon whose recommendation the act in question was passed.

It would too greatly lengthen this opinion to quote the history of the legislation so fully set forth in the opinion of the court of appeals. It appears that the tracts in question were formerly a part of the state of Virginia, and prior to 1792, when Kentucky was admitted into the Union, the state of Virginia had granted large tracts of land in that part of the territory which is now eastern Kentucky. These grants, often conflicting and overlapping, were made for small sums and for large tracts, the grants ranging from 5,000 acres to 500,000 acres. Similar grants were made in what is now the southwestern portion of the state of West Virginia. The regions covered were at the time unsettled and the lands of little present value. They were not taken possession of by the original patentees or those claiming under them, nor were the taxes paid thereon, nor, up to the passage of the act of 1906, had taxes in any considerable amount been paid upon such lands.

A number of acts were passed by the legislature of Kentucky, seeking to reach these lands for taxation. Some of them were held unconstitutional, and up to the passage of this act no effectual means has been found of subjecting these lands to the payment of public taxes. Some of the same lands were afterwards granted by the state of Kentucky, and very considerable portions of them have been occupied under grants from that state, and have been continuously *occupied and cultivated by those[151 claiming under such grants.

With these lands thus covered by conflicting grants from the state of Virginia and the later grants under the authority of the state of Kentucky, and in view of the failure of former legislation to require the same to be taxed, and the fact that the old grants were outstanding and affording no revenue to the state, and encumbering the titles of the occupants of the land and those under whom they claimed, it was sought by the act of 1906 to subject these lands to taxation, and to forfeit these old titles which had not been effectually subjected to the taxing laws of the state, and to make the forfeited titles inure to the benefit of the occupying claimants, who had paid the taxes thereon in the manner provided by the law. Similar legislation, as we shall have occasion to see, was adopted in the state of West Virginia.

In elaborate arguments at the bar, and in briefs covering many pages, a most severe arraignment is made of the drastic character of this legislation, and its alleged unfairness to the claimants of old titles under grants from the state of Virginia.

This court is concerned only with the constitutionality of the law in view of applicable provisions of the Federal Constitution. The state is left to choose its own methods of taxation and its form and manner of enforcing the payment of the public revenues, subject, so far as the Federal power is concerned, to the restricting regulations of the Constitution of the United States.

Passing questions which are purely of a state character, and which were ruled upon against the contentions of the plaintiffs in error by the court of appeals of Kentucky, we come to a consideration of the questions of a nature involving consideration of the Constitution of the United States.

It is first contended that the law in ques-
152]tion imposes *penalties of a character which could not theretofore have been imposed upon the owner of the land, as a condition of saving the title from forfeiture under the provisions of article 3. The court of appeals of Kentucky having intimated that the part of the law requiring the payment of penalty and interest was separable from the other features thereof, upon the rehearing, in 128 Ky. 610–624, 108 S. W. 931, 110 S. W. 398, held in answer to the contention that the taxes, interest, and penalties provided by the act visited upon the delinquent greater penalties than he was subject to prior to the passage of the act, that the article, in so far as it required the payment of interest and penalties for the years covered by the act, is inoperative, and the delinquents for those years would be required to pay only taxes, without interest or penalty; and that the elimination of the interest and penalies for those years did not affect the other provisions of the article with respect to those years or years subsequent thereto.

We must therefore take the act as the court of appeals of Kentucky has construed it, stripped of the requirement to pay interest and penalties as a condition of saving the lands from forfeiture.

It is nevertheless contended—and this is the first objection of a Federal nature—that the law is ex post facto. It is to be noted in this connection that the law does not undertake to forfeit the lands only because of things done or undone prior to its passage, but because of the failure of the claimant to comply with the provisions of the law; and he is given until the 1st of January, 1907, in which to file a petition for the ascertainment of the taxes assessable and due upon his title, and until March 1, 1907, to pay the back taxes. But an ex post facto law and a retroactive law are entirely different things.

Laws of a retroactive nature, imposing taxes or providing remedies for their assessment and collection, and not impairing vested rights, are not forbidden by the Federal *Constitution. League v. Texas,[153 184 U. S. 156, 46 L. ed. 478, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475. This court had occasion in a very early case to consider the meaning of an ex post facto law as the term is used in the Federal Constitution, prohibiting the states from passing any law of that character. Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386–390, 1 L. ed. 648–650. In that case it held that such laws, within the meaning of the Federal Constitution, had reference to criminal punishments, and did not include retrospective laws of a different character. That case has been cited and followed in later cases in this court. See Kring v. Missouri, 107 U. S. 221, 27 L. ed. 506, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 443; Orr v. Gilman, 183 U. S. 278, 285, 46 L. ed. 196, 200, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 213.

In the latter case a former decision of this court, in Carpenter v. Pennsylvania, 17 How. 456, 463, 15 L. ed. 127, 129, opinion by Mr. Justice Campbell, was quoted with approval. It was therein said:

"The debates in the Federal convention upon the Constitution show that the terms 'ex post facto laws' were understood in a restricted sense, relating to criminal cases only, and that the description of Blackstone of such laws was referred to for their meaning. 3 Madison's Papers, 1399, 1450, 1579.

"This signification was adopted in this court shortly after its organization, in opinions carefully prepared, and has been repeatedly announced since that time. Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87, 3 L. ed. 162; Watson v. Mercer, 8 Pet. 88, 8 L. ed. 876; Charles River Bridge v. Warren, 11 Pet. 420, 9 L. ed. 773."

The Kentucky statute, as construed by the court of appeals of Kentucky, imposes no penalty or punishment of a criminal nature, and is not an ex post facto law within the meaning of the Federal Constitution.

It is next contended that the Kentucky statute under consideration denies to the plaintiffs in error due process, of law, in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

This court has had frequent occasion to comment upon the effect of this Amend-[154]ment in respect to laws of the *states for the levy and collection of taxes. A summary procedure has been sustained where the person taxed has been allowed opportunity to be heard in opposition to the enforcement of taxes and penalties against him. In McMillen v. Anderson, 95 U. S. 37, 41, 24 L. ed. 335, 336, this court said:

"The mode of assessing taxes in the states by the Federal government, and by all governments, is necessarily summary, that it may be speedy and effectual. By summary is not meant arbitrary, or unequal, or illegal. It must, under our Constitution, be lawfully done."

See, in this connection, Leigh v. Green, 193 U. S. 79, 48 L. ed. 623, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390; Ballard v. Hunter, 204 U. S. 241, 51 L. ed. 461, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261, and cases therein cited.

Summary proceedings adapted to the circumstances, and permitting the taxpayer to appear and be heard at some stage of the proceedings, have been held to satisfy the requirements of due process of law. Security Trust & S. V. Co. v. Lexington, 203 U. S. 323, 51 L. ed. 204, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 87.

The state of West Virginia, by its Constitution, in 1872, inaugurated a system of forfeiture of lands for nonpayment of taxes in some respects analogous to the one under consideration now. The West Virginia system was before this court in King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925. In that case due process of law, in connection with the taxing system of the state, was given full consideration; and the Constitution of West Virginia, when read in connection with the statutes of the state, was held to afford due process of law. The Constitution of the state of 1872, by article 13, § 6, made it the duty of every owner of land to have it entered on the land books of the county in which it, or a part of it, is situated, and to cause himself to be charged with the taxes thereon and pay the same; and when, for any five successive years after the year 1869, the owner of any tract of land containing 1,000 acres or more should not have been charged on such books with the state tax on said land, then, by operation of the Constitution, the land was forfeited and the title vested in the *state.[155] The statute of the state provided for proceedings by the commissioner of the school fund to subject forfeited lands to sale, in which proceeding the owner was permitted to intervene by petition and obtain a redemption of his land from the forfeiture claimed by the state; and after a full discussion of the subject and the bearings of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution upon the statute, Mr. Justice Harlan, who delivered the opinion of the court, said:

"For the reasons stated, we hold that the system established by West Virginia, under which lands liable to taxation are forfeited to the state by reason of the owner not having them placed or caused to be placed, during five consecutive years, on the proper land books for taxation, and caused himself to be charged with the taxes thereon, and under which, on petition required to be filed by the representative of the estate in the proper circuit court, such lands are sold for the benefit of the school fund, with liberty to the owner, upon due notice of the proceeding, to intervene by petition and secure a redemption of his lands from the forfeiture declared by paying the taxes and charges due upon them, is not inconsistent with the due process of law required by the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of the state."

In the present case the statute does not undertake to forfeit the lands for the failure to register them and pay the taxes upon them for the years stated, without a judicial proceeding by which the owner of the title may have the taxes assessed, and, upon payment thereof, the forfeiture avoided; and the forfeiture is declared only after a judicial proceeding instituted by the commonwealth's attorney, in which there is opportunity for a hearing and after which the forfeiture may be declared.

The case of King v. Mullins, supra, was followed and approved in this court in King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225, and in Fay v. Crozer, 217 U. S. 455, 54 L. ed. 837, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 568.

*It is, however, insisted that although[156] a hearing before forfeiture is provided, the proceedings are so arbitrary and oppressive as to deprive the owner of due process of law, notwithstanding there is opportunity to appear and contest the forfeiture.

As bearing upon this alleged lack of due process in this statute, it is contended that it cuts down the period of limitation in which actions may be brought by the holder of the title to recover against adverse claimants, and this because of the short time given in which to take proceedings against such claimants. The argument is that as § 6 of article 3 transfers the forfeited title to occupying claimants in actual adverse possession for five years next preceding the judgment of forfeiture, and as the statute of limitations for the recovery of real property in Kentucky is fifteen years, there were still ten years in which to have sued an occupying claimant of five years' standing, but because of the action required to prevent forfeiture under article 3, which it is contended under the Kentucky Constitution did not take effect until ninety days after the adjournment of the session at which it was passed, there was visited upon the owner the necessity of terminating the adverse possession by an action brought within six and one half months. But we do not perceive in this indirect effect upon the statute of limitations any deprivation of due process of law. The state statute limiting actions between individuals cannot operate to affect the right of the state to require the registration of the lands withheld from taxation, or prevent acts for the summary registration or forfeiture of such lands, wherein, as in the case at bar, an opportunity, not unreasonable in character, is given for compliance with the laws after the same go into effect, and the forfeiture is had upon a proceeding in which the owner of the title is summoned and heard.

A time not unreasonably short for the beginning of actions may be fixed by the legis-157]lature, having in view particular *conditions, without violating the due process clause. Terry v. Anderson, 95 U. S. 628, 24 L. ed. 365.

Much is said of the purpose of this law not being that of legitimate taxation, but intended to and in its operation having the practical effect of transferring the title of the owners to others. This argument is based upon the provision of the statute which makes the title, when forfeited to the state, inure to the benefit of occupants in possession who have paid the taxes as provided in the act. This feature of the law, in substance, is in the West Virginia Constitution, and was referred to in the opinion in King v. Mullins, supra.

It is not a valid objection to a law of this character that the title forfeited to the state as the result of proper proceedings and due notice to the owner of the title, who is in default for the payment of taxes, may be transferred to others occupying and paying taxes upon the lands, and not in default. That the similar feature of the West Virginia Constitution did not invalidate the law where opportunity was given for a hearing was held in King v. West Virginia, supra, to have been concluded by King v. Mullins, supra, and the same doctrine was applied in Fay v. Crozer, supra. This view may have the effect of subjecting the owner of the title which is forfeited to proceedings which devest his title, notwithstanding another claimant may have paid taxes upon a separate title in the same land; but this consideration does not affect the validity of the law. The state may, so far as the Federal Constitution is concerned, tax each claimant of title upon the same premises, and may, by a proper procedure, devest the owner of one in default.

Much comment is made upon the statement in the opinion of the learned chief justice of Kentucky, who spoke for the court in No. 47, as to the purpose of the state to incidentally "outlaw" the titles claimed under the old Virginia grants for the benefit of occupying claimants, but as *was held in King v. Mullins, and the[158 subsequent cases in this court, following that case, this effect of a valid law of the state having also for its object the subjection of the lands to taxation does not invalidate the law.

Nor do we find valid objection to the constitutionality of the law in the contention that the lands not transferred may be sold without adequate description.

This contention seems to have been made in case No. 22 by objections to the petition for failing to disclose that parts, if any, of the land, were held by occupants who had paid taxes for five years preceding, and by objection to the judgment as erroneous because it did not segregate the parts to which the forfeited title would inure.

No mention appears to have been made of the Federal Constitution in this connection until petition for a rehearing, when it was objected that the statute, in providing for the sale of the forfeited title, furnished no means of identification or description of the land to be sold, nor for such an ascertainment of the holdings of occupying claimants as would enable a purchaser to know what was being offered for sale; and it was urged that a judicial sale in pursuance of such a proceeding would be no less than a sacrifice of the defendant's property, and that such an order would violate the due process of law secured by the Constitution.

In the opinion upon the petition for a rehearing, the court of appeals announced that it found nothing in the statute which deprived the owner of due process of law within the meaning of the 14th Amendment. The court having thus considered the Federal question, the objection is open here.

In the original opinion concerning this objection, the court said:

"So far as disclosed by the record, there is no part of the tract held by occupants. But the court judicially knows, and it was admitted in argument, that practically, if 159]not *quite, all the land described in the petition is adversely held by occupants under claim or color of title. The record shows only that the appellant is the owner or claimant of the title to the tract of land, which is specifically described by metes and bounds, courses and distances, and that appellant has failed to comply with the provisions of the article with respect to the listing of it for taxes and the payment of taxes thereon. The petition contains all the allegations necessary to show that the appellant was delinquent, and its title subject to forfeiture, and the demurrer thereto was therefore properly overruled. Nor is the judgment erroneous on that ground. Certainly the title to the tract of land described in the petition, and which is adjudged to be subject to forfeiture and sale, can be sold by the same description, the purchaser taking that which, under the article, passes at the sale. The doctrine of caveat emptor applies in this, as in other proceedings. And the purchaser, and not the occupant, as argued by counsel for appellant, would be required to show, in actions to recover under his purchase, that the land claimed by him was not of the excluded class. The rule is universal that where one seeks to recover under a grant or deed which does not convey all the land within the boundary described, he must show that the land sought to be recovered is within boundary, and without the exclusions. Hall v. Martin, 89 Ky. 9, 11 S. W. 953.

"The act provides that the deed shall transfer to the purchaser the title and claim 'so forfeited and transferred to, and vested in, the commonwealth, as remains in it after the operation of § 6 of this article, and shall so recite.'

"The article, taken as a whole, clearly shows that such was the legislative intent. It is not necessary for the petition to describe more than the tract of land the title to which is sought to be forfeited.

"After the judgment of forfeiture be-160]comes final, the *main purpose to be conserved is the interest of the commonwealth, and circumstances might arise or be shown to exist that would authorize different modes of executing it. We have no hesitancy in holding that it is not necessary for the judgment to ascertain and describe the parts of the tract held by occupants. If, at the hearing, it should be made manifest that the title as to certain parts only of the tract would pass to the purchaser under a sale, the statute would be complied with by a sale of the title covering those parts alone. In any event, it is the duty of the court to prescribe what parts thereof shall be sold, if less than the whole is to be sold. Therefore, the judgment appealed from, in so far as it authorizes the commissioner to sell the tract as a whole or in parcels, to suit the purchaser, is erroneous."

As we construe this part of the opinion, it means that it was not necessary in the petition for forfeiture to point out and describe the parts of the tract held by occupants. But from what is said in the latter part of the paragraph just quoted we think that it is apparent that the defendant might show what parts of the land were subject to sale, if less than the whole was to be sold. That is, while in the absence of a showing in this matter, a sale in gross would be ordered, it was nevertheless open for the defendant to show that only a part of the tract, in view of other provisions of the statute, would be subject to sale. With the opportunity to be thus heard, and have a definite ascertainment of the parts to be sold, we think the statute, as construed by the court of appeals of Kentucky, does not deprive the defendant of due process of law in this respect.

It is alleged that there was an offer to pay the taxes properly assessable against these lands, notwithstanding which they were declared forfeited; but an inspection of the record shows that such offer was in effect an offer of compromise, not justified by the statute, and not in accord with its terms.

*The denial of the prayer of the pe-[161 tition involved in case No. 47, because the same did not contain a description of the land sufficient to identify it, which was the basis of the decision of the Kentucky court of appeals, presents no Federal question. Whether that petition contained an adequate description was a question for the state to determine in the construction of its own statute. There is nothing to show that the ruling made upon that subject was so arbitrary and baseless as to amount to a deprivation of due process of law.

It is next contended that the statute denies the equal protection of the laws within the meaning of the 14th Amendment, be-157 cause it does not apply equally upon all the lands in the state. The fact that in its application it can only meet conditions such as are embraced within the law in a part of the counties of the state does not render it obnoxious to the 14th Amendment. Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 471, 46 L. ed. 283, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176.

This court has frequently held that the state may classify the subjects of taxation, so long as all persons similarly situated are treated alike. Michigan C. R. Co. v. Powers, 201 U. S. 245, 50 L. ed. 744, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459. This law applies with equal force to all who are in a condition to come within its terms.

The fact that the plaintiff in error did not acquire the land until after the delinquencies had occurred cannot prevent the operation of the law against it. In such cases the doctrine of innocent purchasers does not apply. Citizens' Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 443, 54 L. ed. 832, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532.

Another ground of objection under the Federal Constitution is insisted upon in the alleged violation of the Virginia compact of 1789, embodied in the Constitution of Kentucky, and held by this court to be a binding contract between the states. By the 7th section of that compact it is provided:

"Sec. 7. Third, that all private rights and interests of lands within the said district 162][Kentucky], derived from the *laws of Virginia prior to such separation, shall remain valid and secure under the laws of the proposed state, and shall be determined by the laws now existing in this state."

Section 8 provides that a neglect of cultivation or improvement of any land within either the proposed state or the commonwealth of Virginia, belonging to nonresident citizens of the other, shall not subject such nonresidents to forfeiture or other penalty within the term of six years after the admission of the said state (Kentucky) into the Federal Union.

Section 9 provides that no grant of land or land warrant to be issued by the proposed state shall interfere with any warrant theretofore issued from the land office of Virginia, which shall be located on land within the said district, now liable thereto, on or before the 1st day of September, 1791.

This compact has been the subject of frequent consideration in the courts of Kentucky, and more than once in this court.

In the case of Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547, the effect of this compact upon certain laws of the state of Kentucky was considered and determined. The case was twice argued, on the first hearing the opinion being given by Mr. Justice Story, and upon rehearing the opinion was given by Mr. Justice Washington. In that case it was held that the seventh article of the compact meant to secure all private rights and interests derived from the laws of Virginia as they were under the then-existing laws of the state, and that laws of the state of Kentucky which undertook to prevent the owner of the land from a recovery thereof, without certain payments to the tenant in possession, impaired the obligation of the contract, and were therefore null and void.

Under the Kentucky statutes the owner could not recover his property without paying for improvements made by the occupying claimant, and making allowances in connection *therewith, which it was held[163 had the effect of depriving the true owner of the property vested in him under the laws of Virginia at the time the compact became operative in 1789. "He [the owner] is no more bound," said Mr. Justice Story, "by the laws of Virginia to pay for improvements which he has not authorized, which he may not want, or which he may deem useless, than he is to pay a sum to a stranger for the liberty of possessing and using his own property, according to the rights and interests secured to him by those laws. It is no answer that the acts of Kentucky, now in question, are regulations of the remedy, and not of the right to lands. If those acts so changed the nature and extent of existing remedies as materially to impair the rights and interests of the owner, they are just as much a violation of the compact as if they directly overturned his rights and interests."

These conclusions were adhered to upon a rehearing, and reaffirmed in the opinion of Mr. Justice Washington.

The Virginia compact came again before this court in the case of Hawkins v. Barney, 5 Pet. 457, 8 L. ed. 190. In that case the validity of a law of Kentucky which undertook to limit the right of bringing suits for the recovery of lands to seven years, instead of twenty, as was the case under the laws of Virginia at the time the compact was made, was sustained. The case of Green v. Biddle was reviewed, and it was said that, "looking through the course of legislation in Virginia, there was found no principle or precedent to support such laws; the court was induced to pass upon them as laws calculated in effect to annihilate the rights secured by the compact, while they avoided an avowed collision with its literal meaning. But in all their reasoning on the subject they will be found to acknowledge that whatever course of legislation could be sanctioned by the principles and practice of Virginia would be regarded as an unaffected compliance with the compact."

164] *And Mr. Justice Johnson, who spoke for the court in that case, said:

"It can scarcely be supposed that Kentucky would have consented to accept a limited and crippled sovereignty; nor is it doing justice to Virginia to believe that she would have wished to reduce Kentucky to a state of vassalage. Yet it would be difficult, if the literal and rigid construction necessary to exclude her from passing this law were to be adopted,—it would be difficult, I say, to assign her a position higher than that of a dependent on Virginia. Let the language of the compact be literally applied, and we have the anomaly presented of a sovereign state governed by the laws of another sovereign; of one half the territory of a sovereign state hopelessly and forever subjected to the laws of another state. Or a motley multiform administration of laws, under which A would be subject to one class of laws, because holding under a Virginia grant; while B, his next-door neighbor, claiming from Kentucky, would hardly be conscious of living under the same government."

And the learned judge referred to the language of the eighth article of the compact, recognizing the power of Kentucky to pass similar laws to those which existed in Virginia, after the period of six years; referring to the laws of Virginia, where one who had received a grant of land had failed, at first in three and afterwards in five years, to seat and improve it, and was held to have abandoned it as lapsed and forfeited land, and anyone might take out a grant for it.

We think the effect of these decisions is to declare that while the Virginia compact prevents the cutting down of the titles secured under the state of Virginia prior to its date, so as to take away substantial rights incident to the title, as was the case in Green v. Biddle, supra, it did not mean to prevent the state, upon notice and hearing, from requiring the registration of land 165]titles for taxation, or, in *default thereof, from forfeiting such titles to the state. These laws do not have the effect of taking away legitimate rights secured by the old grants, but enable the new sovereign to enforce against such lands, as well as others, the taxing laws of the state. It was, of course, recognized that the land would pass under the dominion of a new state, which would require revenues for its support and while the title obtained from the state of Virginia was protected, it was not intended that it should be immune from constitutional laws having the effect to subject such lands to the taxing power of the new sovereignty, and to require their owners, by all proper methods, to contribute their share to the public burdens of the state.

As we have said, many considerations are urged against the policy and justice of this statute, and other objections are made which depend solely upon the laws of the state and their interpretation by the courts of the state. We are unable to find that rights secured by the Federal Constitution were denied by the judgments of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky.

The judgments in each and all of the cases are therefore affirmed.

---

*SPOKANE & BRITISH COLUMBIA[166 RAILWAY COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
WASHINGTON & GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, Washington Improvement & Development Company, John Hughes, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 166–175.)

Public lands — railway land grants — forfeiture.

1. A breach of the conditions upon which a railway right of way was granted in præsenti by the act of June 4, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 430, chap. 377),—viz., that the railway company shall commence grading within six months after the approval of its map of definite location or its location shall be void, and that the right therein granted shall be forfeited unless the company shall construct 25 miles of road within two years after the passage of the act,—does not of itself work a forfeiture, but such conditions being conditions subsequent, there can be no forfeiture without some appropriate judicial or legislative action.

[For other cases, see Public Lands, 288–295, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — questions of local law.

2. Contentions in a suit between two railway companies, each claiming the same right of way through an Indian reservation, that the congressional grant to one company was abandoned by the grantee,

---

NOTE.—As to land grants to railroads—see note to Kansas P. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 28 L. ed. U. S. 794.

On the general subject of writs of error from the United States Supreme Court to state courts—see notes to Martin v. Hunter, 4 L. ed. U. S. 97; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 267; Re Buchanan, 39 L. ed. U. S. 884; and Kipley v. Illinois, 42 L. ed. U. S. 998.

On what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider in reviewing the judgments of state courts—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L. R. A. 571.

and that the circumstances show an estoppel to claim under it, do not present Federal questions which may be reviewed on a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to a state court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2072–2123, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 49.]

Submitted November 29, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Washington to review a decree which reversed a decree of the Superior Court for Ferry County in that state enjoining interference with the use of a railway right of way. Affirmed.

See same case below, 49 Wash. 280, 95 Pac. 64.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. William T. Beck and W. C. Keegin submitted the cause for plaintiff in error. Mr. A. M. Craven was on the brief:

The fact that words of grant are found in the act of June 4, 1898, does not make the case other than one of statutory construction. Although a statute may contain the elements of a compact between the government and an individual, nevertheless it should be construed according to the rules for construction of statutes, and not according to those for construction of contracts.

Black, Const. & Interpretation of Laws, p. 315; Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44, 22 L. ed. 551; 5 Thomp. Corp. § 6588. p. 5195.

A strict construction in favor of the government is demanded by public policy.

Sutherland, Stat. Constr. § 378; Black, Const. & Interpretation of Laws, p. 315; Rice v. Minnesota & W. R. Co. 1 Black, 358, 17 L. ed. 147; Dubuque & P. R. Co. v. Litchfield, 23 How. 66, 16 L. ed. 500.

It is not material to this inquiry that the words "there is hereby granted" are used. The use of such language could hardly be avoided. Acts containing such or other language importing a grant in præsenti have been construed not to be grants in præsenti; and vice versa, acts without any terms of conveyance at all have been construed to be grants in præsenti.

New York Indians v. United States, 170 U. S. 1, 42 L. ed. 927, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531; Heydenfeldt v. Daney Gold & S. Min. Co. 93 U. S. 634, 23 L. ed. 995, 13 Mor. Min. Rep. 204.

Congress intended that before the grant should attach, maps showing location must be filed; but such location was to be of no effect without commencement of work. The doing of two things by the grantee was essential to devest the government of title; to wit, location and commencement of work; the former, without the latter, to be void.

United States ex rel. Search v. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. 3 Okla. 404, 41 Pac. 729; New York, H. & N. R. Co. v. Boston, H. & E. R. Co. 36 Conn. 196; 5 Thomp. Corp. §§ 6586–6589, pp. 5193 et seq.

Mr. Thomas R. Benton submitted the cause for defendants in error:

The grant made by the act of June 4, 1898, is a grant in præsenti. It passed to the Washington Improvement & Development Company a present interest in the right of way granted, requiring only a definite location of the line of railway to identify the lands granted. When the line of the proposed railway was definitely located, and a map thereof filed with and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, the title to the lands granted vested in the grantee as of the date of the granting act.

Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44, 22 L. ed. 551; St. Joseph & D. C. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 103 U. S. 426, 26 L. ed. 578; Noble v. Union River Logging Co. 147 U. S. 165–176, 37 L. ed. 123–127, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 271; New York Indians v. United States, 170 U. S. 1–17, 42 L. ed. 927–933, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531; Leavenworth, L. & G. R. Co. v. United States, 92 U. S. 733, 23 L. ed. 634; Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Alling, 99 U. S. 463–474, 25 L. ed. 438–443; St. Paul & P. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 139 U. S. 1, 35 L. ed. 77, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 389; Jamestown & N. R. Co. v. Jones, 177 U. S. 125, 44 L. ed. 698, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 568.

The condition that when a map showing that any portion of the company's located line is filed, the company shall commence grading the located line within six months thereafter, or such location shall be void, contained in § 3 of the act of 1898, and the condition that the right granted by that act shall be forfeited unless at least 25 miles of the railroad shall be constructed through the Indian reservation within two years after the passage of the act, contained in § 5 of such act, are conditions subsequent, of which no one can take advantage but the United States, the grantor. Until the United States has asserted its right to enforce a forfeiture for the breach of these conditions, either by legislation declaring a forfeiture, or by judicial proceedings authorized by law, the title remains unimpaired in the grantee.

Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44, 22 L. ed. 551; Grinnell v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 103 U. S. 739, 26 L. ed. 456;

Van Wyck v. Knevals, 106 U. S. 360, 27 L. ed. 201, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 336; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. McGee, 115 U. S. 469, 29 L. ed. 446, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; Bybee v. Oregon & C. R. Co. 139 U. S. 663, 35 L. ed. 305, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641; Utah, N. & C. R. Co. v. Utah & C. R. Co. 110 Fed. 879; New York Indians v. United States, 170 U. S. 1, 42 L. ed. 927, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

In this case the Spokane & British Columbia Railway Company, plaintiff in error, began an action in the superior court of the state of Washington for Ferry county, to enjoin the Washington & Great Northern Railway Company, the Washington Improvement & Development Company, and others, from interfering with the use of a certain right of way for railway purposes through the Colville Indian Reservation in the state of Washington, which, it was alleged, belonged to the plaintiff. The plaintiff had judgment in its favor in the superior court. Upon proceedings in error, the judgment was reversed and a judgment entered in favor of the present defendants in error, defendants below. 49 Wash. 280, 95 Pac. 64. To that judgment a writ of error was sued out from this court.

The case presents a conflict between the right of way of the Spokane & British Co-170]lumbia Railway Company *and a right of way therctofore granted by the United States to the Washington Improvement & Development Company, grantor of the Washington & Great Northern Railway Company. The case is stated in the supreme court of Washington as follows:

"By an act of Congress approved June 4, 1898 [30 Stat. at L. 430, chap. 377], there was granted to the appellant Washington Improvement & Development Company, and to its assigns, a right of way for its railway, telegraph, and telephone lines through the Colville Indian Reservation, beginning on the Columbia river near the mouth of the Sans Poil river, running thence northerly through said reservation toward the international line. There was also granted grounds adjacent for the purposes of stations, other buildings, side tracks, and switch tracks. The act provided for the filing of maps showing the route when determined upon, said maps of definite location to be approved by the Secretary of the Interior. These maps were subsequently filed, and were approved by the Honorable Secretary prior to November 27, 1899. Before the commencement of this action, the Washington Improvement & Development Company transferred all of its rights, privileges, and immunities acquired under this act of Congress to the appellant Washington & Great Northern Railway Company. Since the filing and approval of the maps of definite location, as aforesaid, this respondent [plaintiff in error here], acting under authority of the act of Congress of March 3, 1875 [18 Stat. at L. 482, chap. 152, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1568], and the act of Congress of March 2, 1899 [30 Stat. at L. 990, chap. 374, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1581], located a route for its railway over practically the same line indicated by the maps filed by the Washington Improvement & Development Company, as aforesaid, and filed its maps with the Secretary of the Interior, who approved the same on October 17, 1905. The act of June 4, 1898, under which appellants [defendants in error here] claim, contained the following provision:

*" 'Provided, That when a map show-[171
ing any portion of said railway company's located line is filed herein, as provided for, said company shall commence grading said located line within six months thereafter or such location shall be void, and said location shall be approved by the secretary of the Interior in sections of twenty-five miles before the construction of any such section shall be begun.'

"Section 5 of the statute reads as follows:

" 'That the right herein granted shall be forfeited by said company unless at least twenty-five miles of said railroad shall be constructed through the said reservation within two years after the passage of this act.'

"Neither the Washington Improvement & Development Company nor its successor, the Washington & Great Northern Railway Company, commenced grading within six months after the approval of its maps of definite location, nor did it construct 25 miles of railroad, nor any, within two years after the passage of the act. For these reasons the respondent claims that appellant's location of the strip indicated by its map became void and forfeited, and that respondent had a right to go upon the same strip of land, and survey and locate its line of railway; that having surveyed and marked out its proposed line of railway upon substantially this same strip of ground after the expiration of two years, and its said maps of location having been approved by the Secretary of the Interior, respondent claims that its location thereupon is legal, and that appellants have no rights whatever in the premises, and should be enjoined from in any manner interfering (which appellants were doing) with the respondent's use and occupancy thereof."

From this statement it is apparent that the case turns upon the rights of the defendants in error, the Washington & Great Northern Railway Company, in the right of way, as the successor of the Washington Improvement & Development Company, in view of the facts just stated.

172] *The grant to the Washington Improvement & Development Company, to it and its assigns, by the act of Congress of June 4, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 430, chap. 377), was of the right of way for its railway, telegraph, and telephone lines in and through the Colville Indian Reservation in the state of Washington, and its language is:

"That there is hereby granted to the Washington Improvement & Development Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of Washington, and to its assigns, a right of way for its railway, telegraph, and telephone lines through the Colville Indian Reservation in the state of Washington."

A description of the right of way is inserted, and in § 3 of the act it is provided that maps of the route of its located lines through the reservation shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Interior, and after the filing of the maps no claim for a subsequent settlement and improvement upon the right of way shown by said maps shall be valid as against said company; the act then cites the proviso already quoted from the opinion of the supreme court of Washington, requiring the company to commence grading the located lines within six months "or such location shall be void."

Section 4 authorized the company to enter upon the reservation for the purpose of surveying and locating the line.

Section 5 provided that the right therein granted should be forfeited by said company unless at least 25 miles of said railroad shall be constructed through the said reservation withing two years after the passage of the act.

As found by the supreme court of Washington, the grading was not begun within the six months provided, nor were 25 miles of said railroad constructed through the reservation within two years after the passage of the act, as provided in § 5.

173] *Subscquently the maps of location of the plaintiff in error were approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and the contention is on its behalf that the rights of the defendant in error, as successors of the original grantee, had terminated because of the failure to keep the conditions of the granting act. On the part of the defendant in error it is contended that, inasmuch as the grant was in præsenti, and there has been no subsequent act of Congress or direct proceeding in behalf of the United States to forfeit the title of the grantee, its rights are unimpaired and superior in the conflicting right of way to those of the plaintiff in error.

The supreme court of Washington, reviewing the decisions in this court, was of opinion that the rights granted in the act of June 4, 1898, had not been forfeited, and inured to the benefit of the Washington & Great Northern Railway Company as successor of the Washington Improvement & Development Company.

This court has had frequent occasion to consider acts of this character, and a brief review of its decisions will, we think, establish the rule to be applied. The leading case is Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44, 22 L. ed. 551. In that case there was an act of Congress making a grant of lands, conditioned that all lands remaining unsold after ten years should revert to the United States. It was there held that notwithstanding this condition, no one could take advantage of its nonperformance except the grantor or his heirs, or the successors of the grantor, if the grant proceeded from an artificial person, and that unless such persons asserted the right to forfeiture, the title remained unimpaired in the grantee; and it was further held that if the grant be a public one, the right to forfeiture must be asserted by judicial proceedings authorized by law, the equivalent of an inquest of office at common law, or there must be some legislative assertion of ownership for the breach of the condition. This doctrine was approved *in Grinnell v. Chicago, R. I. [174 & P. R. Co. 103 U. S. 739, 26 L. ed. 456; Van Wyck v. Knevals, 106 U. S. 360, 27 L. ed. 201, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 336; and St. Louis I. M. & S. R. Co. v. McGee, 115 U. S. 469, 29 L. ed. 446, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123.

In New York Indians v. United States, 170 U. S. 1, 42 L. ed. 927, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531, this court, after referring to Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44, 22 L. ed. 551, said:

"It has always been held that these were grants in præsenti, although the lands could not be identified until the map of definite location of the road was filed, when the title which was previously imperfect acquired precision and became attached to the land. The doctrine of this case has been affirmed so many times that the question is no longer open to argument here."

In Bybee v. Oregon & C. R. Co. 139 U. S. 663, 35 L. ed. 305, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641, the grant provided that not only the lands should revert to the United States for failure to perform the conditions, but the grant itself should be null and void for noncompliance with the conditions. It was nevertheless held that the conditions were subsequent, and the title could not be forfeited except upon proper proceedings by the government, judicial in their character, or an act of Congress, competent for that purpose.

Applying the principles of those cases to the grant in question, we find that in its terms the granting clause is clear and distinct, and conveys an estate in præsenti. There is nothing in the conditions inconsistent with the vesting of the title, or requiring things to be done before the title can be vested. The company is required to commence grading its located line within six months, and the grant is to be forfeited unless at least 25 miles shall be constructed within two years after the passage of the act. These things may be done after the vesting of the title, and do not necessarily precede the vesting of the estate.

Reading this grant in the light of the former adjudications of this court, we think 175]it must be held that it was *the intention of Congress that the grantee should perform these conditions after acquiring title and taking possession, and therefore that the conditions were subsequent. This being true, there could be no forfeiture on the part of the United States without some appropriate judicial or legislative action, which it is not claimed was taken in this case. We think the supreme court of the state of Washington was right in its construction of the grant under the circumstances shown.

The contention that the grant was abandoned by the grantee, or that the circumstances show estoppel to make claim under it, do not present questions reviewable here. The state court having, in our view, properly decided the Federal question made, upon which this court alone could take jurisdiction, its judgment must be affirmed.

FORE RIVER SHIPBUILDING COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
SELMA T. HAGG.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 175–179.)

Appeal — jurisdiction — considering question on own motion.

1. The Federal Supreme Court will inquire whether it has jurisdiction of the writ of error before it, although counsel do not raise that question.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 3994–4012, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

NOTE.—On direct review in Federal Supreme Court of circuit or district court decrees, see note to Gwin v. United States, 46 L. ed. U. S. 741.

Error to circuit court — jurisdiction below.

2. The question whether a Federal circuit court, in a suit in which the requisite diversity of citizenship exists, may enforce a cause of action based on a state statute alleged to be penal in its nature, does not involve the jurisdiction of the court as a Federal court, which alone can support a direct writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court, under the act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. at L. 826, chap. 517, Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 549), § 5, as a case in which the jurisdiction of the circuit court was in issue.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 895–902, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 75.]

Submitted December 16, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts to review a judgment in favor of plaintiff in a suit to recover damages under the state employers' liability act. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. John Lowell and James A. Lowell submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Asa P. French submitted the cause for defendant in error. Mr. James S. Allen, Jr., was on the brief.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

This case is here upon a question involving the jurisdiction of the circuit court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts to entertain the action. It was begun in the circuit court by Selma T. Hagg, a citizen of Sweden, against the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, a corporation of the commonwealth of Massachusetts. The object of the suit was to recover damages under the employers' liability act of Massachusetts (Revised Laws, chap. 106, § 73), and was for the death, without conscious suffering, of her husband, Charles A. Hagg, an employee of the defendant company, resulting from an injury received in the defendant's forge shop in Quincy, Massachusetts. The action resulted in a verdict and judgment for the plaintiff below. The defendant below moved the court to dismiss the action on the ground that it was without jurisdiction, for the reason that the Massachusetts statute was of a penal character, and therefore an action upon it could be maintained only in the courts of Massachusetts. The case comes here upon certificate of the judge of the circuit court, and the question stated is "whether or not the statute under which the plaintiff's action was brought was of such a penal character that the circuit court did not have jurisdiction of said action."

In behalf of the defendant company, now plaintiff in error, it is contended that a 177]penal action of this character *can be brought only in the courts of Massachusetts, and it is insisted that such is the rule applicable to cases of this character as between separate and distinct sovereignties. It is argued that the act under which the suit was brought is a penal statute, and it is insisted that the wrong done as primarily an offense against the public, and the relief sought not of the class of actions remedial in their nature, wherein recovery is given in the form of compensation to the widow or children of the deceased, which actions have been sustained in the courts of states other than those enacting the statute.

The question presented, therefore, is whether, owing to the character of the Massachusetts act, the courts of another sovereignty will enforce its provisions, or whether the sole remedy is under the laws of the commonwealth enacting the statute.

This court takes notice of its own jurisdiction, and whether the question is raised by the counsel or not, inquires of its own motion whether there is jurisdiction to entertain any given case before it. Mansfield, C. & L. M. R. Co. v. Swan, 111 U. S. 379–382, 28 L. ed. 462, 463, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510, 511.

In that case Mr. Justice Matthews, who spoke for the court, said:

"On every writ of error or appeal, the first and fundamental question is that of jurisdiction; first, of this court, and then of the court from which the record comes. This question the court is bound to ask and answer for itself, even when not otherwise suggested, and without respect to the relation of the parties to it."

We shall then inquire, Has this court jurisdiction to entertain this attempt at a direct review of the circuit court's judgment certified here upon the question of jurisdiction? By the court of appeals act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. at L. 826, chap. 517, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 549), a writ of error may be taken directly from a circuit court to this court in certain cases, among which is "any case in which the 178]jurisdiction of *the court is in issue;" and it is further provided: "In such cases the question of jurisdiction alone shall be certified to the Supreme Court from the court below for decision." The question then is, Does this case involve a question of jurisdiction reviewable in the manner sought in this case by writ of error to the circuit court?

The court has had frequent occasion to determine what is meant in the statute providing for review of cases in which the jurisdiction of the court is in issue, and it has been held that the statute means to give a review, not of the jurisdiction of the court upon general grounds of law or procedure, but of the jurisdiction of the court as a Federal court.

A leading case on this subject, and one frequently cited with approval since its decision, is Louisville Trust Company v. Knott, 191 U. S. 225, 48 L. ed. 159, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 119. In that case a state court had taken jurisdiction of an action in equity in which a receiver was asked for, and none had been appointed at the time when another suit was begun in the circuit court of the United States, and a receiver appointed therein. Thereafter the state court which had first taken jurisdiction appointed a receiver, and upon its direction that receiver intervened in the Federal court and asked to have the property turned over to him. The circuit court of the United States maintained its own jurisdiction, and refused to give the property to the state receiver. The case came to this court upon certificate of a question involving the jurisdiction of the circuit court of the United States. This court dismissed the writ of error for want of jurisdiction, holding that the question presented was one of the equity jurisdiction of one court as against the like jurisdiction in another court, and did not present a distinctive question as to the jurisdiction of the Federal court as such. The former cases were reviewed, and Mr. Justice Harlan, who spoke for the court, said:

"The question of jurisdiction which the statute permits *to be certified to this [179 court directly must be one involving the jurisdiction of the circuit court as a Federal court, and not simply its general authority as a judicial tribunal to proceed in harmony with established rules of practice governing courts of concurrent jurisdiction as between each other."

See also, in this connection, Bache v. Hunt, 193 U. S. 523, 48 L. ed. 774, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 547, in which the same principle is announced.

Applying the rule thus settled to the case under consideration, there was jurisdiction in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts under the judiciary act, as the plaintiff was a citizen of Sweden and the defendant shipbuilding company a corporation of Massachusetts. Thus having jurisdiction, it was at liberty to decide all questions properly before it, including the one whether, under the applicable principles of law, a court of another sovereignty would enforce a cause of action based upon the Massachusetts statute. But the determination of that question did not involve the jurisdiction of the circuit court as a Federal court. It was a question to be decided upon the application of the same principles as would apply had the action been brought in a court of another state or nation. Whether other sovereignties would enforce penal actions of the character alleged to arise under the Massachusetts statute was not a question peculiar to the Federal jurisdiction of the court. It was general in its nature, and to be determined upon principles controlling in other courts as well as those of Federal creation.

Without enlarging the discussion, and applying principles thoroughly settled in this court, we are of opinion that a direct writ of error will not lie from the determination of the Circuit Court of the United States to exercise its jurisdiction in the present case. The writ of error is therefore dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Dismissed.

180] *UNITED STATES, Plff. in .Err.,
v.
LUCINDA GRIZZARD, William Grizzard, Mrs. Lila Chaney, and Wilson Chaney.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 180–186.)

Damages — in eminent domain — injury to land not taken — access.

Just compensation to the owner of a farm, a part of which is taken by the United States by permanently flooding it in improving navigation, as an incident to which a public highway crossing the flooded land is also flooded, demands an award of the damages to that part of the farm not taken by reason of the destruction of the easement of access to the turnpike by way of the highway thus destroyed.

[For other cases, see Damages, VI. m, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 66.]

Argued December 6, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Kentucky to review a judgment awarding damages to the owners of a farm, a part of which was taken by the government for public purposes. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Assistant Attorney General John Q. Thompson argued the cause, and, with Mr. P. M. Cox, filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendants in error.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

Action by the owners of a farm for a taking of a part thereof by the United States for public purposes. Judgment for the plaintiffs below.

The farm of the defendants in error lies upon Tates creek, a tributary of the Kentucky river. For the purpose of improving the navigation of that stream, the government *has erected a series of locks [182 and dams. As a consequence, the waters of Tates creek are backed up to such an extent as to flood or submerge a strip of the Grizzard farm, permanently destroying its use for agricultural purposes. The court below, a jury being waived, found that 7½ acres of land had been actually taken. He then added:

1. "That in addition there is taken an easement of access from plaintiff's land by way of the county road to the Tates creek pike.

2. "That the whole land was worth $3,000 before said taking, and what was left after the taking was worth $1,500.

3. "I divide the damage by reason of the taking between the land taken and the easement of access, taken equally; i. e., I allow $750 for the land taken, and a like sum of $750 for the easement of access taken.

"I therefore conclude as a matter of law that plaintiffs are entitled to a judgment for $1,500."

The errors assigned relate only to so much of the judgment as allows damages for the "easement of access," referred to in the findings above set out. That there was a taking by flooding permanently the 7½ acres, valued at $750 by the court below, is not contested. Pumpelly v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co. 13 Wall. 166, 20 L. ed. 557; United States v. Lynah, 188 U. S. 445, 47 L. ed. 539, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 349; United States v. Welch, 217 U. S. 333, 54 L. ed. 787, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; High Bridge

NOTE.—On interference with access to highway from the part of parcel not taken, by the taking of another part, as element of damages in condemnation—see note to United States v. Welch, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 385.

On cutting off access to a highway as a taking—see note to Ranson v. Sault Ste. Marie, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 49.

As to what lands are to be deemed part of the tract damaged by taking a portion thereof under eminent domain—see note to Sharpe v. United States, 57 L.R.A. 932.

Lumber Co. v. United States, 16 C. C. A. 460, 37 U. S. App. 234, 69 Fed. 323.

The contention is that the "easement of access" destroyed, and therefore taken, was not a private right of way constituting property such as that for which compensation was allowed in United States v. Welch, but was a public county road; and reference has been made to the well-known class of cases touching an injury to land not taken by the construction of a railroad along and upon an abutting public road, or 183]a change of grade, to the damage *of adjacent property, and like indirect injuries to the use of property adjacent, but of which no part was taken from the owner. Northern Transp. Co. v. Chicago, 99 U. S. 635; 25 L. ed. 336; Sharp v. United States, 191 U. S. 341, 48 L. ed. 211, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114.

But here there has been an actual taking by permanently flooding a part of the farm of the defendants in error. An incident of that flooding is that a public road running across the flooded land is also flooded. But if this were not so, and the roadway had simply been cut off by the interposition of the flooded portion of the farm, the damage would be the same. Since, therefore, there has been a taking of a part of the owners' single tract, and damage has resulted to the owners' remaining interest by reason of the relation between the taken part and that untaken, or by reason of the use of the taken land, the rule applied in the cases cited does not control this case.

That the petition laid stress upon the flooding of the highway which crossed the flooded land, and sought to recover for a deterioration of an easement in the public road, is not fatal. The damage to the land not appropriated is the obvious consequence of the taking of a part of the whole by flooding,—a manner of appropriating which has made the village market, church, and school so inconvenient of access as to add some 3 miles of travel by an unimproved and roundabout country road. Whenever there has been an actual physical taking of a part of a distinct tract of land, the compensation to be awarded includes not only the market value of that part of the tract appropriated, but the damage to the remainder resulting form that taking, embracing, of course, injury due to the use to which the part appropriated is to be devoted. Thus, in Sharp v. United States, 191 U. S. 341, 353, 48 L. ed. 211, 215, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114, damage resulting to adjacent but distinct parcels was denied because there had been no actual appropriation of any part of such separate parcel, but the principle was conceded as to 184]injury, from the character of the *use of that taken, to that untaken, of the same tract. Upon this distinction the court said:

"Upon the facts which we have detailed, we think the plaintiff in error was not entitled to recover damages to the land not taken because of the probable use to which the government would put the land it proposed to take. If the remaining land had been part of the same tract which the government seeks to condemn, then the damage to the remaining portion of the tract taken, arising from the probable use thereof by the government would be a proper subject of award in these condemnation proceedings. But the government takes the whole of one tract."

To the same effect see Cooley, Const. Lim. pages 565, 566.

There is nothing in United States v. Welch, cited above, which conflicts with the conclusion we have reached, but, upon the contrary, the trend of the opinion is toward the decision we announce.

The constitutional limitation upon the power of eminent domain possessed by the United States is that "private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation." The "just compensation" thus guaranteed obviously requires that the recompense to the owner for the loss caused to him by the taking of a part of a parcel, or single tract of land, shall be measured by the loss resulting to him from the appropriation. If, as the court below found, the flooding and taking of a part of the plaintiff's farm has depreciated the usefulness and value of the remainder, the owner is not justly compensated by paying for only that actually appropriated, and leaving him uncompensated for the depreciation over benefits to that which remains. In recognition of this principle of justice it is required that regard be had to the effect of the appropriation of a part of a single parcel upon the remaining interest of the owner, by taking into account *both the benefits which accrue [185 and the depreciation which results to the remainder in its use and value. Thus, in Bauman v. Ross, 167 U. S. 548, 574, 42 L. ed. 270, 283, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 966, 976, it is said:

"Consequently, when part only of a parcel of land is taken for a highway, the value of that part is not the sole measure of the compensation or damages to be paid to the owner; but the incidental injury or benefit to the part not taken is also to be considered. When the part not taken is left in such shape or condition as to be in itself of less value than before, the owner is entitled to additional damages on that account. When, on the other hand, the part which he retains is specially and directly increased in value by the public improvement, the damages to the whole parcel by the appropriation of part of it are lessened."

In Sharp v. United States, 191 U. S. 341, 354, 48 L. ed. 211, 215, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114, and High Bridge Lumber Co. v. United States, 16 C. C. A. 460, 37 U. S. App. 234, 69 Fed. 320, 323, as well as in United States v. Welch, supra, the principle is recognized as settled law.

Both the petition and the finding show that access to the public road has been cut off by the intervention of flooded land actually taken.

That the trial judge found the damages for the land and for the easement of access separately is not controlling. The determining factor was that the value of that part of the Grizzard farm not taken was $1,500, when the value of the entire place before the taking was $3,000. A judgment for a less sum will not be that "just compensation" to which the defendants are entitled. The case is not different in legal consequence from what it would have been if a railway had been constructed across one's lawn, cutting the owner off from his road and outbuildings, etc. To say that such an owner would be compensated by paying him only for the narrow strip actually appropriated, and leaving out of consideration the depreciation to the remain-186]ing *land by the manner in which the part was taken, and the use to which it was put, would be a travesty upon justice.

Judgment affirmed.

ATLANTIC COAST LINE RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
RIVERSIDE MILLS.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 186–208.)

Commerce — Federal power generally.

1. No question with reference to the power of Congress to enact a regulation of interstate commerce can arise if the regulating act be one directly applicable to such commerce, not obnoxious to any other provision of the Federal Constitution, and reasonably adapted to the purpose by reason of legitimate relation between such commerce and the rule provided.

[For other cases, see Commerce, 1–36, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — Federal power — regulating liability of connecting carriers.

2. The imposition upon an interstate carrier voluntarily receiving property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another state, of liability to the holder of the bill of lading for a loss anywhere en route, with a right of recovery over against the carrier actually causing the loss, which is made by the act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154), § 20, as amended by the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, 595, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 1149, 1166), in spite of any agreement or stipulation limiting liability to its own line, is a valid regulation of interstate commerce.

[For other cases, see Commerce, 328–333, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — freedom to contract — regulating liability of connecting carriers.

3. The liberty of contract secured by U. S. Const., 5th Amend., was not unconstitutionally denied by the enactment by Congress, in the exercise of its power under the commerce clause, of the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, by which an interstate carrier voluntarily receiving property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another state is made liable to the holder of the bill of lading for a loss anywhere en route, in spite of any agreement or stipulation to the contrary, with a right of recovery over against the carrier actually causing the loss.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 591–604, 870–876, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — regulating liability of connecting carriers.

4. The property of the initial carrier is not taken in violation of U. S. Const., 5th Amend., to pay the debt of an independent connecting carrier whose negligence may have been the sole cause of a loss, by the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, under which an interstate carrier voluntarily receiving property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another state is made liable to the holder of the bill of lading for a loss anywhere en route, in spite of any agreement or stipulation to

---

NOTE.—On the power of Congress to regulate commerce—see notes to State ex rel. Corwin v. Indiana & O. Oil, Gas & Min. Co. 6 L.R.A. 579; Bullard v. Northern P. R. Co. 11 L.R.A. 246; Re Wilson, 12 L.R.A. 624; Gibbons v. Ogden, 6 L. ed. U. S. 23; Brown v. Maryland, 6 L. ed. U. S. 678; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 32 L. ed. U. S. 229; Harmon v. Chicago, 37 L. ed. U. S. 216; and Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 38 L. ed. U. S. 1041.

On the constitutionality of statutes restricting contracts and business—see note to State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed.

the contrary, with a right of recovery over against the carrier actually causing the loss, since the liability of the receiving carrier which results in such a case is that of a principal, for the negligence of his own agents.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 441–499, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Costs — attorneys' fees — under act to regulate commerce.

5. The attorneys' fee taxable as a part of the costs under the act of February 4, 1887, § 8, where the cause of action is the doing of something made unlawful by some provision of the act, or the omission to do something required by the act, and there is a recovery of damages sustained in consequence of any such violation of the act, may not be taxed to the successful plaintiff in an action by a shipper against an initial carrier for a loss on a connecting line, in which the carrier's liability is dependent upon the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, since the cause of action is the loss of property which is in no way traceable to the violation of any provision of the statute.

[For other cases, see Costs and Fees, 104–108, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 215.]

Argued October 19, 20, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Georgia to review a judgment holding an initial carrier in an interstate shipment liable to the shipper for a loss on a connecting line. Affirmed.

See same case below, 168 Fed. 990.

U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

Validity of statutes regulating liability of connecting carrier for loss beyond its own line.

The so-called Carmack amendment to the Hepburn act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1149), § 7, under which a carrier receiving property for interstate transportation is made liable for a loss anywhere en route, and may not contract against such liability, is the most important, because the widest in its application, of the many statutes in various jurisdictions, which attempt to regulate the liability of a connecting carrier for a loss beyond its own line.

This statute has been made the subject of vigorous attack, but the decisions had so uniformly upheld its validity that the formal approval by the Federal Supreme Court in the principal case was confidently expected. It had previously been sustained as a valid regulation of commerce in Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 649; Central R. Co. v. Sims, — Ala. —, 53 Co. 826; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Heyser, — Ark. —, 130 S. W. 562; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. Co. v. Mitchell, — Ind. —, 91 N. E. 735; Dodge v. Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. 111 Minn. 123, 126 N. W. 627; Welch Lumber Co. v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. 137 App. Div. 248, 121 N. Y. Supp. 985; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lewis, — Tex. —, 129 S. W. 594; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Dixie Tobacco Co. 111 Va. 813, 69 S. E. 1106.

It does not take property without due process of law. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Heyser, — Ark. —, 130 S. W. 562; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Mitchell, — Ind. —, 91 N. E. 735; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. F. A. Piper Co. 52 Tex. Civ. App. 568, 115 S. W. 107; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wallace, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 117 S. W. 169; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Crow, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 117 S. W. 170; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Johnson, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 133 S. W. 725.

It does not unconstitutionally interfere with the liberty of contract. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott, 219 U. S. 209, post, 183, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Heyser, — Ark. —, 130 S. W. 562; Welch Lumber Co. v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. 137 App. Div. 248, 121 N. Y. Supp. 985.

It does not take private property for public purposes. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott, 133 Ky. 724, 118 S. W. 990, affirmed in 219 U. S. 209, post, 183, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lewis, — Tex. —, 129 S. W. 594.

The property of the initial carrier is not taken, in violation of U. S. Const. 5th Amend., to pay the debt of an independent connecting carrier whose negligence may have been the sole cause of a loss, by the Carmack amendment. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott, 219 U. S. 209, post, 183, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171.

The statute is valid as against the objection that it takes the carrier's property without compensation, and deprives the carrier of the equal protection of the laws. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wallace, — Tex. —, 117 S. W. 169; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Crow, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 117 S. W. 170; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Johnson, — Tex Civ. App. —, 133 S. W. 725.

It does not invade the rights of the states. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. F. A. Piper Co. 52 Tex. Civ. App. 568, 115 S. W. 107; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wallace, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 117 S. W. 169; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Crow, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 117 S. W. 170.

State statutes affecting the carrier's liability in this regard have frequently been attacked as unconstitutional regulations of interstate commerce, with varying results.

Interstate commerce is not unconstitutionally interfered with by the provisions of the Missouri statute, under which the receipt by a carrier of goods marked for a point beyond its own line imports a contract for through transportation, unless by specific agreement the carrier contracts to carry the shipment only over its own line. Dimmitt v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R.

Statement by Mr. Justice Lurton:

This was an action to recover the value of goods received by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad at a point on its line in the state of Georgia for transportation to points in other states. The agreed statement of facts showed that the goods were safely delivered by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to connecting carriers, and were lost while in the care of such carriers, and the question is whether the initial carrier is liable for such loss.

The stipulated facts showed that the goods were tendered to the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, and through bills of lading demanded therefor, which were duly issued, as averred, on the dates named in the petition. That the goods so received were forwarded over the lines of the receiving road and in due course delivered to a connecting carrier engaged in interstate shipment for continuance of the transportation. It was also stipulated "that the Riverside Mill made constant and frequent shipments over the Atlantic Coast Line, and had a blank form of receipt, like the attached, marked 'A,' which the *Riverside Mill [188 filled out, showing what goods it had loaded into cars, and the name of the consignee; said receipt containing a stipulation that the shipment is 'per conditions of the company's bill of lading,' and that the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, on said receipts prepared by the Riverside Mill, issued, for each of the shipments hereinbefore referred

---

Co. 103 Mo. 433, 15 S. W. 761; Nines v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 107 Mo. 475, 18 S. W. 26; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755, affirming 133 Mo. 59, 35 L.R.A. 110, 33 S. W. 71.

And construing this statute as preventing a carrier undertaking through carriage from limiting liability for negligence of connecting lines does not make the statute invalid as applied to interstate shipments. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755, affirming 133 Mo. 59, 35 L.R.A. 110, 33 S. W. 71; Marshall & M. Grain Co. v. Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. 176 Mo. 480, 98 Am. St. Rep. 508, 75 S. W. 638; Western Sash & Door Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 177 Mo. 641, 76 S. W. 998.

Making the initial railway carrier liable for loss or damage to goods shipped over its own and connecting lines, as is done by S. C. Civ. Code 1902, § 2176, unless a receipt in writing is produced from the next succeeding carrier, is not unconstitutional as applied to interstate commerce. Jonesville Mfg. Co. v. Southern R. Co. 77 S. C. 480, 58 S. E. 422; Skipper v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 276, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 388, 117 Am. St. Rep. 901, 55 S. E. 454, 9 A. & A. Ann. Cas. 808.

The Virginia statute making a carrier which accepts anything for transportation to a point beyond its own lines liable for its safe carriage to such point of destination, in the absence of a written contract to the contrary, signed by the owner or his agent, and imposing upon the carrier the duty, even in case of such contract, to inform the shipper where the loss happened beyond its own line, is not an unconstitutional interference with interstate commence. Richmond & A. R. Co. v. R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co. 169 U. S. 311, 42 L. ed. 759, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 335, affirming 92 Va. 670, 41 L.R.A. 511, 24 S. E. 261.

Each carrier in a contract of shipment under which the responsibility of each carrier was to cease upon delivery to the connecting carrier in good order must, under S. C. Code 1902, § 1710, within forty days after notice, adjust any loss or damage, or give information as to where it occurred; or it will be liable therefor as though the loss or damage occurred on its own line, unless it can show that, by the exercise of due diligence, it has been unable to trace the loss. This statute is valid as to interstate shipments. Skipper v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 276, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 388, 117 Am. St. Rep. 901, 55 S. E. 454, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 808; Venning v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 78 S. C. 42, 12 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1217, 125 Am. St. Rep. 768, 58 S. E. 983.

But the Georgia statute under which, before the initial or connecting carrier can avail itself of a valid contract of exemption from liability beyond its own line, it must, if requested, trace the freight, and inform the shipper in writing when, where, and how, and by which carrier, the freight was lost, damaged, or destroyed, and give the names of the parties and their official position, if any, and by whom the truth of the facts set out in the information can be established, while otherwise valid (Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Austin, 101 Ga. 629, 29 S. E. 11), is not so as applied to interstate shipments when it runs counter to the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution. Central R. Co. v. Murphey, 196 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 444, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 218, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 514, reversing 116 Ga. 863, 60 L.R.A. 817, 43 S. E. 265. The court distinguished Richmond & A. R. Co. v. R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co. supra, saying that the duty imposed upon the carrier was much more onerous than the obligation created by the Virginia statute involved in the earlier case.

The requirement of S. C. act May 13, 1903, under which all carriers recognizing a contract for through shipment are made the agents of each other, and each is made liable to the consignee for loss or damage, whether occurring on its own line or not, with a right of recovery over against the carrier in fault, is invalid as to interstate shipments. Venning v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 78 S. C. 42, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1217, 125 Am. St. Rep. 768, 58 S. E. 983, over-to, bills of lading on forms like that attached, marked exhibit 'B.'"

Upon the reverse side of the bill of lading were certain conditions, one of which was that "no carrier shall be liable for loss or damage not occurring on its portion of the route." The tenth clause thereof was in these words:

"This bill of lading is signed for the different carriers who may engage in the transportation, severally, but not jointly, each of which is to be bound by and have the benefits of the provisions thereof, and in accepting this bill of lading the shipper, owner, and consignee of the goods, and the holder of the bill of lading, agree to be bound by all its stipulations, exceptions, and conditions, whether printed or written."

The court below, upon this state of facts, instructed a verdict for the plaintiff, upon which there was judgment for the amount of the verdict, and, upon motion of the plaintiff, an attorney's fee of $100 was ordered to be taxed as part of the costs in the case. Thereupon error was assigned, and this writ of error sued out by the railroad company.

Mr. Joseph R. Lamar argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

At common law, except as to gross negligence, the carrier could contract for exemption from liability.

1 Hutchinson, Carr. 3d ed. 153, 405; Cau v. Texas & P. R. Co. 194 U. S. 427, 48 L. ed. 1053, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663.

It is just and reasonable that, beyond its line, it shall not be liable unless by virtue of a special contract.

Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 102, 27 L. ed. 325, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425.

If, then, in the absence of a contract, it is not liable, it can, a fortiori, and to save ruling Skipper v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 75 S. C. 276, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 388, 117 Am. St. Rep. 901, 55 S. E. 454, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas 808; Winslow Bros. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 79 S. C. 344, 60 S. E. 709; Burress v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 79 S. C. 250, 60 S. E. 692.

---

Interstate commerce is not unconstitutionally regulated by applying to shipments from outside the state the provisions of the Georgia statute, under which liability is imposed on the last connecting carrier receiving goods as in good order, for damages sustained, whether sustained on its own line or not. Kavanaugh v. Southern R. Co. 120 Ga. 62, 47 S. E. 526, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 705.

The Texas statute permitting joint actions applies to interstate shipments, and when so applied, does not impose any such burden upon interstate commerce, as distinguished from commerce within the state, as amounts to an infringement upon the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Wester, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 96 S. W. 769.

Of course, any of the provisions of the statutes just considered, which may conflict with the "Carmack amendment," are superseded by that act, and, even if consistent with the congressional enactment, such statutes will probably now be held invalid as to interstate shipments, under the doctrine that, Congress having undertaken to regulate the matter, the states cannot make additional regulations.

A few other constitutional objections have been urged, but unsuccessfully, against statutes of this character.

The South Carolina statute, under which all carriers recognizing, acquiescing, or acting upon a contract for through shipment, are made the agents of each other with respect to the transportation, a through bill of lading being made prima facie evidence of the agency and contract, and any of the carriers may be sued for loss or damage occurring on any part of the route, being given the right of recovery over against the carrier in fault, is valid as to intrastate shipments so far, at least, as any objection founded on the denial of the equal protection of the laws is concerned. Venning v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 78 S. C. 42, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1217, 125 Am. St. Rep. 768, 58 S. E. 983.

The Texas statute (Tex. Rev. Stat. 1895, arts, 331a, 331b) is identical with, and evidently served as the model for, the South Carolina statute just noted, except that the Texas statute by its express terms applies to transportation only between points in the state.

This Texas statute is not open to the objection that it denies due process of law or the equal protection of the laws, or abridges constitutional privileges and immunities, since it does not prevent each carrier from receiving and carrying the freight under an independent contract of its own. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Randle, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 348, 44 S. W. 603.

An invasion of the right of contract cannot be deemed produced by this statute, under which the terminal carrier acquiescing in a through shipment may be held liable for a loss on the initial carrier's line, although every railroad company in the state is required by arts. 4535–4539 to receive all freight coming to it from a connecting line, and carry it at rates fixed by the railroad commission, and the fact of its doing so is, by arts. 331a, 331b, made prima facie evidence of its participation in the through shipment as a joint carrier, any stipulation to the contrary notwithstanding, since both under the common law and Tex. Const. art. 10, § 1, it is the duty of the connecting carrier to receive such freight under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Bigham, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 47 S. W. 814.

any question, contract for exemption from liability beyond its own line.

Ibid.; 1 Hutchinson, Car. § 233.

The statute depriving the carrier of this ancient right to make a "just and reasonable" contract is contrary to the 5th Amendment.

Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 589, 41 L. ed. 835, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 174, 52 L. ed. 436, 442, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The statute, in providing that the initial carrier shall issue a bill of lading, and shall be liable to the holder of the bill of lading for any damage caused by any connecting carrier, makes the initial carrier liable for the debts of the connecting carrier, in violation of the 5th Amendment.

Atty. Gen. v. Old Colony R. Co. 160 Mass. 62, 22 L.R.A. 112, 35 N. E. 252; Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Stuart's Draft Mill. Co. 109 Va. 184, 63 S. E. 415; McCann v. Eddy, — Mo. —, 27 S. W. 542; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. 150; Lindsay & P. Co. v. Mullen. 176 U. S. 143, 155, 44 L. ed. 400, 411, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 325; Camp v. Rogers, 44 Conn. 297; Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 188, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 303; Ohio & M. R. Co. v. Lackey, 78 Ill. 55; Knoxville Traction Co. v. McMillan, 111 Tenn. 521, 65 L.R.A. 296, 77 S. W. 665; Woodward v. Central Vermont R. Co. 180 Mass. 599, 62 N. E. 1053; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 217 U. S. 196, 205, 54 L. ed. 727, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989; Dirkin v. Kingston Coal Co. 171 Pa. 203, 29 L.R.A. 808, 50 Am. St. Rep. 805, 33 Atl. 237; Williams v. Thacker Coal & Coke Co. 44 W. Va. 599, 40 L.R.A. 812, 30 S. E. 107.

Making the initial carrier pay the connecting carrier's debt, so as to serve the convenience of the holder of the bill of lading, is to "take private property for private purposes," contrary to the provision of the 5th Amendment.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 217 U. S. 196, 54 L. ed. 727, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989.

And giving the initial carrier "its day in court" does not save the statute, for the legislature cannot pass a law for the purpose of working the wrong. No provision for hearing will support a statute that takes the property of A to pay the debt of B.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 234, 41 L. ed. 983, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Long Island Water Supply Co. v. Brooklyn, 166 U. S. 695, 41 L. ed. 1168, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 718; Taylor v. Porter, 4 Hill, 140, 40 Am. Dec. 278.

But the act does not even give the connecting carrier "its day in court." It is bound by the judgment without notice, and if it had notice, the connecting carrier is not estopped from showing that it was free from negligence.

Chicago v. Robbins, 2 Black, 418, 17 L. ed. 298; Boston v. Worthington, 10 Gray, 496, 71 Am. Dec. 678; Lincoln v. First Nat. Bank, 67 Neb. 401, 60 L.R.A. 924, 108 Am. St. Rep. 690, 93 N. W. 698.

Even if the judgment against the initial carrier did bind the connecting carrier, that could not satisfy the requirement of the Constitution, for a subsequent and contingent right to an action at law against corporations or individuals of undefined responsibility is not the compensation which the Constitution requires.

Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. River R. Co. 18 Wend. 9, 31 Am. Dec. 313; Atty. Gen. v. Old Colony R. Co. 160 Mass. 62, 22 L.R.A. 120, 35 N. E. 252; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Central Stock Yards Co. 212 U. S. 132, 144, 53 L. ed. 441, 446, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246; Haverhill Bridge v. Essex County, 103 Mass. 120, 4 Am. Rep. 518; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 192 U. S. 568, 48 L. ed. 565, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 339; Cherokee Nation v. Southern Kansas R. Co. 135 U. S. 661, 34 L. ed. 303, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 965.

Citizens have the right to engage in interstate commerce.

Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 57, 35 L. ed. 652, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851.

They are not obliged to yield to an unconstitutional statute as a condition precedent to doing interstate business. Nor can Congress treat the right to engage in interstate commerce as a privilege which cannot be availed of except upon such conditions as Congress may prescribe, even though the conditions would be otherwise beyond the power of Congress.

Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 502, 52 L. ed. 310, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 174, 52 L. ed. 436, 442, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The right of the national government, under its grant of power, to regulate commerce, is subject to the limitations imposed by the 5th Amendment.

Monongahela Nav. Co. v. United States, 148 U. S. 345, 37 L. ed. 474, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 622.

The power to regulate commerce is the power to facilitate and expedite commerce, including transportation of goods. It does not authorize the prohibition of reasonable and just contracts under which commerce has been developed, which do not in fact impede transportation, and which were not intended to form an impediment to commerce.

Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Richmond, 19 Wall. 589, 590, 22 L. ed. 173, 176; Central R. Co. v. Murphey, 196 U. S. 204, 205, 49 L. ed. 448, 449, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 218, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 514; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 362, 47 L. ed. 503, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561.

The making of through and joint rates is essentially contractual.

Star Grain & Lumber Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 14 Inters. Com. Rep. 364; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 L.R.A. 289, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 351, 37 Fed. 630.

And the courts have never decided to what extent the carrier can be required to make through and joint rates.

Southern P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 553, 50 L. ed. 593, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 680, 28 L. ed. 296, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Coles v. Central R. & Bkg. Co. 86 Ga. 255, 12 S. E. 749; Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dey, 82 Iowa, 312, 12 L.R.A. 436, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 584, 31 Am. St. Rep. 499, 48 N. W. 98; Jacobson v. Wisconsin, M. & P. R. Co. 71 Minn. 519, 40 L.R.A. 389, 70 Am. St. Rep. 364, 74 N. W. 893, affirmed in 179 U. S. 292, 45 L. ed. 196, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 115; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 192 U. S. 571, 48 L. ed. 569, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 339.

But wherever through and joint rates are made, it does not make one carrier liable for the contracts of another,—does not bind road to road in the sense that the two are used or operated by either corporation. There is neither unity of ownership nor unity of operation, but only a singleness of charge, and a continuity of transportation over connecting roads.

Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Osborne, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 257, 3 C. C. A. 347, 10 U. S. App. 430, 52 Fed. 915; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Stickney, 215 U. S. 98, 106, 54 L. ed. 112, 114, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66; Penn Ref. Co. v. Western New York & P. R. Co. 208 U. S. 208, 222, 52 L. ed. 456, 462, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268.

Limited liability acts of Congress, whether passed in pursuance of the admiralty jurisdiction or the commerce clause, or both, were primarily intended to prevent the making of unreasonable stipulations in bills of lading (The Delaware, 161 U. S. 472, 40 L. ed. 776, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 516), and at most only related to the liability of owners for their own negligence, and did not make them or the vessel liable for injuries occasioned by the negligence of another vessel by which the goods might be forwarded.

The initial carrier is not liable on the ground stated in Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 661, that the act became a part of the contract, for if the act is void, it imposes no duties, and is as though it had never been passed.

Norton v. Shelby County, 118 U. S. 426, 30 L. ed. 178, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1121; Cleveland v. Clements Bros. Constr. Co. 67 Ohio St. 197, 59 L.R.A. 775, 93 Am. St. Rep. 670, 65 N. E. 885; People ex rel. Rodgers v. Coler, 166 N. Y. 1, 52 L.R.A. 814, 82 Am. St. Rep. 605, 59 N. E. 716.

Nor has the company voluntarily made itself liable. This is a suit on the statute, and what the company may choose voluntarily to do furnishes no measure of the power of Congress. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 697, 43 L. ed. 864, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565. But there was no voluntary acceptance, as suggested in Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott, 133 Ky. 724, 118 S. W. 992, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 392, because at common law the carrier was obliged to accept the goods when tendered, and thereupon, eo instanti, came within the circle of the Carmack amendment, and subject to the command that the company receiving the goods shall issue a bill of lading, and shall be liable for damages caused by the connecting carrier, and that no contract should exempt it from the liability hereby imposed.

The contract under which the goods were received is an entirety. Part of it cannot be laid hold of to acquire interstate jurisdiction, and the balance ignored, whereby interstate relation is stipulated to cease in law when it ceases in fact by delivery to the next carrier.

McCarn v. International & G. N. R. Co. 84 Tex. 352, 16 L.R.A. 39, 31 Am. St. Rep. 51, 19 S. W. 549; Hartley v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co. 115 Iowa, 612, 89 N. W. 88; Duhuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Richmond, 19 Wall. 589, 22 L. ed. 176; Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 110, 27 L. ed. 327, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425.

The Carmack amendment was intended to compel the initial carrier to issue a bill of lading, to make it liable for damages by connecting carrier, and to prevent the contract of exemption from the liability hereby imposed; and thereby to change the common law, which required no bill of lading (1 Hutchinson, Carr. § 152), which permitted contracts for exemption from liability, and also to legislate directly contrary to the Missouri statute, which the courts held did not require the initial carrier to asume liability beyond its line, but permitted contracts of exemption.

Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755.

The provision as to attorneys' fees also takes property without due process of law.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 160, 162, 41 L. ed. 666, 670, 671, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

Messrs. Joseph R. Lamar, Charles H. Moorman, Benjamin D. Warfield, and Henry Lane Stone also filed a supplemental brief for plaintiff in error:

The Carmack amendment, read with the whole statute, may conceivably be construed as declaratory of the English rule of evidence.

Burtis v. Buffalo & State Line R. Co. 24 N. Y. 269; Root v. Great Western R. Co. 45 N. Y. 524.

If the Carmack amendment is susceptible of such a construction, then we agree that it is the duty of the courts to give it such a construction, as that construction will avoid constitutional objection.

United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 53 L. ed. 836, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1075.

Messrs. John Maynard Harlan and Lewis W. McCandless filed a brief as amici curiæ:

Under the terms of the bill of lading, taking no account of the Hepburn law, the defendant was entitled to a judgment herein; and the judgment for plaintiffs was predicated directly and solely on the Hepburn law.

Palmer v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 101 Cal. 187, 35 Pac. 630; Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 102, 27 L. ed. 325, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 667, 28 L. ed. 291, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Jones, 155 U. S. 333, 39 L. ed. 176, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Coats v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 239 Ill. 154, 87 N. E. 929; Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. (The Montana) 129 U. S. 397, 32 L. ed. 788, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 469; St. Louis Ins. Co. v. St. Louis, V. T. H. & I. R. Co. 104 U. S. 146, 26 L. ed. 679; Mather v. American Exp. Co. 9 Biss. 293, 2 Fed. 49; North Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 123 U. S. 727, 31 L. ed. 287, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 266; 3 Hutchinson, Carr. 3d ed. 1906, § 1348; Beard v. St. Louis, A. & T. H. R. Co. 79 Iowa, 518, 44 N. W. 803; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Renfroe, 82 Ark. 143, 10 L.R.A.(N.S.) 317, 118 Am. St. Rep. 58, 100 S. W. 889.

The construction which the trial court put upon the provisions of the Hepburn law involved in this case was the correct construction.

Root v. Great Western R. Co. 45 N. Y. 524; Burtis v. Buffalo & State Line R. Co. 24 N. Y. 269; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Cau v. Texas & P. R. Co. 194 U. S. 427, 48 L. ed. 1053, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Bachman v. Clyde S. S. Co. 81 C. C. A. 529, 152 Fed. 403; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Call Pub. Co. 181 U. S. 92, 45 L. ed. 765, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 561; Despeaux v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 133 Fed. 1009; Robinson v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 64 W. Va. 406, 63 S. E. 323; Halliday Mill. Co. v. Louisiana & N. W. R. Co. 80 Ark. 536, 98 S. W. 374; New Jersey Steam Nav. Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 6 How. 344, 12 L. ed. 465; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Mineral Springs Mfg. Co. 16 Wall. 318, 21 L. ed. 297; Peoria & R. I. R. Co. v. Coal Valley Min. Co. 68 Ill. 489; Peoria & P. Union R. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 109 Ill. 135, 50 Am. Rep. 605; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Jones. 149 Ill. 361, 24 L.R.A. 141, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 683, 41 Am. St. Rep. 278, 37 N. E. 247; Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 102, 27 L. ed. 325, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Seasongood, S. K. Co. v. Tennessee & O. River Transp. Co. 21 Ky. L. Rep. 1142, 49 L.R.A. 270, 54 S. W. 193; Inman v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 14 Tex. Civ. App. 39, 37 S. W. 37; Brintnall v. Saratoga & W. R. Co. 32 Vt. 665; Erie R. Co. v. Wilcox, 84 Ill. 239, 25 Am. Rep. 451; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 29 L. ed. 185, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Illinois C. R. Co. v. McKendree, 203 U. S. 514, 51 L. ed. 298, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 153; People ex rel. Livergood v. Greer, 43 Ill. 213; Smith v. Townsend, 148 U. S. 490, 37 L. ed. 533, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 634; Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 36 L. ed. 227, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 91 U. S. 72, 23 L. ed. 224; Kohlsaat v. Murphy, 96 U. S. 153. 24 L. ed. 844; United States v. Jessup, 15 Fed. 790; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Maryland, 21 Wall. 456, 22 L. ed. 678; Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Richmond, 86 U. S. 584, 22 L. ed. 173; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 50 L. ed. 585, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 192 U. S. 568, 48 L. ed. 565, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 339; Oregon Short Line & U. N. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 249, 51 Fed. 465; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 26 L.R.A. 192, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 854, 11 C. C. A. 417, 27 U. S. App. 380, 63 Fed. 775; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 L.R.A. 289, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 351, 37 Fed. 567; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 112 Fed. 823; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 763, 41 Fed. 559; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 192, 43 Fed. 37; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 184, 40 L. ed. 935, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 391, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 700; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 42 L. ed. 414, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 52 L. ed. 705, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. 167 U. S. 479, 42 L. ed. 243, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 896.

The provision of the Hepburn law here in question is not a regulation of commerce within the purview of the Constitution, and Congress had no power to enact this provision.

Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. 277, 18 L. ed. 356; Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 259, 23 L. ed. 543; Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 550; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Board of Health, 118 U. S. 455, 30 L. ed. 237, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; Compagnie Francaise de Navigation a Vapeur v. State Bd. of Health, 186 U. S. 380, 46 L. ed. 1209, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 811; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Hepburn v. Griswold, 8 Wall. 603, 19 L. ed. 513; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1103; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 47 L. ed. 492, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561; Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 363, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648, 39 L. ed. 297, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 99, 23 L. ed. 819; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 158 U. S. 431, 39 L. ed. 1043, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 896; Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 485, 24 L. ed. 547; State Tax on R. Gross Receipts, 15 Wall. 284, 21 L. ed. 164; Nathan v. Louisiana, 8 How. 73, 12 L. ed. 992; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; New York ex rel. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Knight, 192 U. S. 21, 48 L. ed. 325, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 470; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; McNeill v. Southern R. Co. 202 U. S. 543, 50 L. ed. 1142, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 722; Reid v. Southern R. Co. 149 N. C. 423, 63 S. E. 112; Reid v. Southern R. Co. 150 N. C. 753, 64 S. E. 874, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 247; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Davis v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 217 U. S. 157, 54 L. ed. 708, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 823, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 463.

The provisions of the Hepburn law here in question are void because repugnant to the 5th Amendment to the Constitution.

Monongahela Nav. Co. v. United States, 148 U. S. 312, 37 L. ed. 463, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 622; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 47 L. ed. 492, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Brimson, 154 U. S. 447, 38 L. ed. 1047, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 545, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1125; Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U. S. 547, 35 L. ed. 110, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 816, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 195; Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 25 L. ed. 496; Covington & L. Turnp. Road Co. v. Sandford, 164 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 560, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 198; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Commission, 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. ed. 933, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 398; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 262, 54 L. ed. 472, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Tompkins, 176 U. S. 167, 44 L. ed. 417, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 336; Railroad Commission Cases, 116 U. S. 307, 29 L. ed. 636, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 388, 1191; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 192, 43 Fed. 37; Lochner

v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539; 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; People v. Steele, 231 Ill. 340, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 361, 121 Am. St. Rep. 321, 83 N. E. 236; Fairbank v. United States, 181 U. S. 283, 45 L. ed. 862, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 135; Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. ed. 746, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Freeland v. Williams, 131 U. S. 405, 33 L. ed. 193, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 763; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 134 U. S. 418, 33 L. ed. 970, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 209, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 462, 702; Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1103; Oregon Short Line & U. N. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 249, 51 Fed. 465; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 52 L. ed. 705, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 763, 41 Fed. 559; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 667, 28 L. ed. 291, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Vincent v. Chicago & A. R. Co. 49 Ill. 33; People ex rel. Hempstead v. Chicago & A. R. Co. 55 Ill. 95, 8 Am. Rep. 631; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. People, 56 Ill. 365, 8 Am. Rep. 690; Hoyt v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 93 Ill. 601; Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 21 C. C. A. 103, 43 U. S. App. 308, 74 Fed. 803; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 L.R.A. 289, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 351, 37 Fed. 567; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 26 L.R.A. 192, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 854, 11 C. C. A. 417, 27 U. S. App. 380, 63 Fed. 775; Atty. Gen. v. Boston & A. R. Co. 160 Mass. 92, 22 L.R.A. 112, 35 N. E. 252; Central R. Co. v. Murphey, 196 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 444, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 218, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 514; St. Louis Ins. Co. v. St. Louis, V. T. H. & I. R. Co. 104 U. S. 146, 26 L. ed. 679; United States Exp. Co. v. Kountze Bros. 8 Wall. 342, 19 L. ed. 457; Hinckley v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 56 N. Y. 429; Ackley v. Kellogg, 8 Cow. 223; Johnson v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 33 N. Y. 610, 88 Am. Dec. 416; Maghee v. Camden & A. R. Co. 45 N. Y. 514, 6 Am. Rep. 124; Fisher v. Boston & M. R. Co. 99 Me. 338, 68 L.R.A. 390, 105 Am. St. Rep. 283, 59 Atl. 532; Bibb Broom Corn Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 94 Minn. 269, 69 L.R.A. 509, 110 Am. St. Rep. 361, 102 N. W. 709, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 450; Merchants' Despatch Transp. Co. v. Kahn, 76 Ill. 520; Wald v. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 162 Ill. 545, 35 L.R.A. 356, 53 Am. St. Rep. 332, 44 N. E. 888; Wells, F. & Co's Express v. Fuller, 4 Tex. Civ. App. 213, 23 S. W. 412; Homer Ramsdell Transp. Co. v. LaCompagnie Générale Transatlantique, 182 U. S. 406, 45 L. ed. 1155, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 831; James v. San Francisco, 6 Cal. 528, 65 Am. Dec. 526; McCann v. Eddy, — Mo. —, 27 S. W. 541; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Jones, 155 U. S. 333, 39 L. ed. 176, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Durkin v. Kingston Coal Co. 171 Pa. 193, 29 L.R.A. 808, 50 Am. St. Rep. 801, 33 Atl. 237; Williams v. Thacker Coal & Coke Co. 44 W. Va. 599, 40 L.R.A. 812, 30 S. E. 107; Henrietta Coal Co. v. Martin, 221 Ill. 460, 77 N. E. 902; Fulton v. Wilmington Star Min. Co. 68 L.R.A. 168, 66 C. C. A. 247, 133 Fed. 193, 205 U. S. 60, 51 L. ed. 708, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 412; Gibbs v. Tally, 133 Cal. 373, 60 L.R.A. 815, 65 Pac. 970; Ohio & M. R. Co. v. Lackey, 78 Ill. 55; Jensen v. Union P. R. Co. 6 Utah, 253, 4 L.R.A. 724, 21 Pac. 994; Catril v. Union P. R. Co. 2 Idaho, 576, 21 Pac. 416; Bielenberg v. Montana Union R. Co. 8 Mont. 271, 2 L.R.A. 813, 20 Pac. 314; Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Smalley, 1 Wash. 206, 22 Am. St. Rep. 143, 23 Pac. 1008; Schenck v. Union P. R. Co. 5 Wyo. 430, 40 Pac. 840; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Woodward v. Central Vermont R. Co. 180 Mass. 599, 62 N. E. 1051; People ex rel. Griffin v. Brooklyn, 4 N. Y. 419, 55 Am. Dec. 266; Cary Library v. Bliss, 151 Mass. 364, 7 L.R.A. 765, 25 N. E. 92; Levy v. Dunn, 160 N. Y. 504, 73 Am. St. Rep. 699, 55 N. E. 288.

Mr. Alexander Akerman submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. Charles Akerman and R. J. Southall were on the brief:

The mischief sought to be remedied by the statute was the trouble, delay, and expense to the shipper in collecting claims for loss or damage by the carriers. This court had, only a short time prior to the enactment of the Hepburn bill, decided that the state legislatures could give no relief in matters of interstate shipment.

Central R. Co. v. Murphey, 196 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 444, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 218, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 514.

The Constitution gives Congress full power to regulate interstate commerce.

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 196, 6 L. ed. 70; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 649; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 47 L. ed. 492, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561.

Section 20 of the Hepburn bill was only intended to compel the carriers to return to the common-law rule which made the initial carriers liable, in the absence of contract limiting the carrier to liability for loss occurring on its own line, and to prohibit such contracts, as being contrary to the declared public policy of the United States.

Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 686, 28 L. ed. 298, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Southern P. Co. v. Crenshaw Bros. 5 Ga. App. 675, 63 S. E. 865; Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 649.

The liberty of contract guaranteed by the Constitution is subject to such reasonable restraints as may be imposed by Congress for the public good and general welfare.

Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 571, 43 L. ed. 288, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276.

Railroad companies are subject to legislative control for the protection of the public.

New York & N. E. R. Co. v. Bristol, 151 U. S. 556, 38 L. ed. 269, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 437; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 96, 32 L. ed. 352, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; Georgia, R. & Bkg. Co. v. Smith, 128 U. S. 174, 32 L. ed. 377, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 47; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U. S. 114, 32 L. ed. 623, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 231; Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Emmons, 149 U. S. 364, 37 L. ed. 769, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 870.

Congress may fix a new rule of civil liability in matters of interstate commerce.

Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 363, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158.

The power of Congress to regulate the liability of carriers and others engaged in interstate commerce for injury to person or property has been distinctly recognized in a number of cases.

Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 99, 23 L. ed. 819; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baugh, 149 U. S. 368, 37 L. ed. 772, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 914; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Martin v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co. 203 U. S. 284, 51 L. ed. 184, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 100, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 87.

It is for Congress to determine what public policy requires with respect to common carriers engaged in interstate commerce.

United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 569, 571, 573, 43 L. ed. 287–289, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161.

The allowance of attorneys' fees was proper.

Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Seegers, 207 U. S. 73, 52 L. ed. 108, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307.

Assistant to the Attorney General Kenyon argued the cause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham, filed a brief for the government as amicus curiæ:

At the time of the passage of the Hepburn act, railroads were not compelled to establish through routes or to make joint tariffs.

Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 102, 106, 27 L. ed. 325, 326, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 553, 50 L. ed. 585, 593, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 192, 43 Fed. 50; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Mineral Springs Mfg. Co. 16 Wall. 318, 324, 21 L. ed. 297, 301.

By the enactment of the statute in question, the shipper in interstate commerce was to be relieved from following a claim through the various departments of numerous carriers until not only his patience, but his money, was entirely exhausted.

Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Seegers, 207 U. S. 73, 52 L. ed. 108, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28.

Congress, under the commerce clause of the Constitution, has plenary power with reference to interstate commerce, complete in itself, acknowledging no limitations other than those prescribed in the Constitution.

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 196, 6 L. ed. 23, 70; Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 363, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 47 L. ed. 492, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, 492, 48 L. ed. 525, 534, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 349.

That there may be an apparent harshness resulting to the initial carrier is no concern of the courts.

St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Taylor, 210 U. S. 281, 295, 52 L. ed. 1061, 1068, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 616.

There is no such thing as absolute liberty of contract.

The Irrawaddy (Flint v. Christall) 171 U. S. 187, 43 L. ed. 130, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 831; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; State v. Brown & S. Mfg. Co. 18 R. I. 16, 17 L.R.A. 856, 25 Atl. 246; Harbison v. Knoxville Iron Co. 103 Tenn. 421, 56 L.R.A. 316, 76 Am. St. Rep. 682, 53 S. W. 955, 183 U. S. 13, 46 L. ed. 55, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Kilpatrick v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 74 Vt. 288, 93 Am. St. Rep. 887, 52 Atl. 531; McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 131 Iowa, 340, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 108 N. W. 902; Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 165, 39 L. ed. 657, 658, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 586; Patterson v. The Eudora, 190 U. S. 169, 47 L. ed. 1002, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 821; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648, 39 L. ed. 297, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Shaffer v. Union Min. Co. 55 Md. 74, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 59; International Text-Book Co. v. Weissinger, 160 Ind. 349, 65 L.R.A. 599, 98 Am. St. Rep. 334, 65 N. E. 521; Maloney v. Newton, 85 Ind. 565, 44 Am. Rep. 46; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168.

The business of the shipper and the railroad cannot be carried on except by virtue of through routes and joint rates.

Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 649, 656; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Central Stock Yards Co. 212 U. S. 143, 53 L. ed. 445, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246.

The statute does not take the property of the initial carrier without due process of law.

Clark v. Russell, 38 C. C. A. 541, 97 Fed. 900; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathews, 165 U. S. 1, 41 L. ed. 611, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 154 U. S. 421, 38 L. ed. 1031, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 29 L. ed. 463, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Fidelity & C. Co. v. Dorough, 46 C. C. A. 364, 107 Fed. 389; Farmers & M. Ins. Co. v. Dobney, 189 U. S. 301, 47 L. ed. 821, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Great Southern Fire-Proof Hotel Co. v. Jones, 193 U. S. 532, 48 L. ed. 778, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Lambert v. Davis, 116 Cal. 292, 48 Pac. 123.

Statutes should be declared unconstitutional only after every reasonable presumption has been indulged in favor of their validity.

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Interstate Consol. Street R. Co. v. Massachusetts, 207 U. S. 88, 52 L. ed. 116, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 26, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 555.

No court, as far as we are able to learn, has held the act to be unconstitutional.

Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 649; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. F. A. Piper Co. 52 Tex. Civ. App. 568, 115 N. W. 107; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott, 133 Ky. 724, 118 S. W. 992, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 392; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Mitchell, — Ind. —, 91 N. E. 740, Greenwald v. Weir, 130 App. Div. 696, 115 N. Y. Supp. 311; Riverside Mills v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 168 Fed. 987.

Corporations created by the states are as much under the control of Congress in the regulation of interstate commerce as if they existed by virtue of acts of Congress.

Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370.

It has not seemingly been questioned that Congress has the right to establish through routes and joint rates.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 216 U. S. 531, 54 L. ed. 605, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415.

The right of a corporation, particularly a railroad corporation, of one state, to carry on business in interstate commerce, depends upon the will of Congress.

Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 181, 19 L. ed. 357, 360; Northwestern Nat. L. Ins. Co. v. Riggs, 203 U. S. 243, 51 L. ed. 168, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 126, 7 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1104; Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, 35 L. ed. 649, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 75, 50 L. ed. 665, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 53 L. ed. 836, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 47 L. ed. 492, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Central Stock Yards Co. 212 U. S. 143, 53 L. ed. 445, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246.

After making the above statement, Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

The goods of the defendants in error were lost by a connecting carrier to whom they had been safely delivered. Though received for a point beyond its own line, and for a point on the line of a succeeding carrier, there was no agreement for their safe carriage beyond the line of the plaintiff in error, but, upon the contrary, an express 195]*agreement that the initial carrier should not be liable for "a loss or damage not occurring on its own portion of the route." Such a provision is not a contract for exemption from a carrier's liability as such, but a provision making plain that it did not assume the obligation of a carrier beyond its own line, and that each succeeding carrier in the route was but the agent of the shipper for a continuance of the transportation. It is therefore obvious that at the common law an initial carrier under such a state of facts would not be liable for a loss through the fault of a connecting carrier to whom it had, in due course, safely delivered the goods for further transportation. Ogdensburg & L. C. R. Co. v. Pratt, 22 Wall. 123, 22 L. ed. 827; Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 102, 27 L. ed. 325, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Southern P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 554, 50 L. ed. 585, 593, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330. Liability is confessedly dependent upon the provision of the act of Congress regulating commerce between the states, known as the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, 595, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 1149, 1166). The 20th section of the act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154), as changed by the Carmack amendment, reads as follows:

"That any common carrier, railroad, or transportation company receiving property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another state shall issue a receipt or bill of lading therefor, and shall be liable to the lawful holder thereof for any loss, damage, or injury to such property, caused by it or by any common carrier, railroad, or transportation company to which such property may be delivered, or over whose line or lines such property may pass, and no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation shall exempt such common carrier, railroad, or transportation company from the liability hereby imposed. Provided, that nothing in this section shall deprive any holder of such receipt or bill of lading of any remedy or right of action which he has under existing law.

196] *"That the common carrier, railroad, or transportation company issuing such receipt or bill of lading shall be entitled to recover from the common carrier, railroad, or transportation company on whose line the loss, damage, or injury shall have been sustained, the amount of such loss, damage, or injury as it may be required to pay to the owners of such property, as may be evidenced by any receipt, judgment, or transcript thereof."

The power of Congress to enact this legislation has been denied, first, because it is said to deprive the carrier and the shipper of their common-law power to make a just and reasonable contract in respect to goods to be carried to points beyond the line of the interstate carrier; and, second, that in casting liability upon the initial carrier for loss or damage upon the line of a connecting carrier, the former is deprived of its property without due process of law.

The indisputable effect of the Carmack amendment is to hold the initial carrier engaged in interstate commerce and "receiving property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another state" as having contracted for through carriage to the point of destination, using the lines of connecting carriers as its agents.

Independently of the Carmack amendment the carrier, when tendered property for such transportation, might elect to contract to carry to destination, in which case it necessarily agreed to do so through the agency of other and independent carriers in the line; or, it might elect to carry safely over its own lines only, and then deliver to the next carrier, who would then become the agent of the shipper. In the first case the receiving carrier's liability as carrier extends over the whole route, for, on obvious grounds, the principal is liable for the acts of its agent. In the other case its carrier liability ends at its own terminal, and its further liability is merely that of a forwarder. Having this power to make the one or the *other contract, the [197 only question which has occasioned a conflict in the decided cases was whether it, in the particular case, made the one or the other.

The general doctrine accepted by this court, in the absence of legislation, is, that a carrier, unless there be a special contract, is only bound to carry over its own line, and then deliver to a connecting carrier. That such an initial carrier might contract to carry over the whole route was never doubted. It is equally indisputable that if it does so contract, its common-law carrier liability will extend over the entire route. Ohio & M. R. Co. v. McCarthy, 96 U. S. 258, 266, 24 L. ed. 693, 696; Ogdensburg & L. C. R. Co. v. Pratt, supra; Northern P. R. Co. v. American Trading Co. 195 U. S. 439, 49 L. ed. 269, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 84; Muschamp v. Lancaster & P. R. Co. 8 Mees. & W. 421.

The English cases beginning with Muschamp v. Lancaster & P. R. Co. supra, decided in 1841, down to Bristol & E. R. Co. v. Collins, 7 H. L. Cas. 194, have consistently held that the mere receipt of property for transportation to a point beyond the line of the receiving carrier, without any qualifying agreement, justified an inference of an agreement for through transportation, and an assumption of full carrier liability by the primary carrier. The ruling is grounded upon considerations of public policy and public convenience, and classes the receipt of goods so designated for a point beyond the carrier line as a holding out to the public that the carrier has made its own arrangements for the continuance by a connecting carrier of the transportation after the goods leave its own line. There are American cases which take the same view of the question of evidence thus presented. Some of them are Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Campbell, 7 Heisk. 257; Alabama & G. S. R. Co. v. Mt. Vernon Co. 84 Ala. 175, 4 So. 356; Central R. Co. v. Hasselkus, 91 Ga. 384, 44 Am. St. Rep. 37, 17 S. E. 838; Beard v. St. Louis, A. & T. H. R. Co. 79 Iowa, 531, 44 N. W. 803; Kyle v. Laurens R. Co. 10 Rich. L. 382, 70 Am. Dec. 231; Erie R. Co. v. Wilcox, 84 Ill. 240, 25 Am. Rep. 451; East Tennessee & V. R. Co. v. Rogers, 6 Heisk. 143, 19 Am. Rep. 589.

198] *Upon the other hand, many American courts have repudiated the English rule which holds the carrier to a contract for transportation over the whole route, in the absence of a contract clearly otherwise, and have adopted the rule that unless the carrier specifically agrees to carry over the whole route, its responsibility as a carrier ends with its own line; and that, for the continuance of the shipment, its liability is only that of a forwarder. The conflict has therefore been one as to the evidence from which a contract for through carriage to a place beyond the line of the receiving carrier might be inferred.

In this conflicting condition of the decisions as to the circumstances from which an agreement for through transportation of property designated to a point beyond the receiving carrier's line might be inferred, Congress, by the act here involved, has declared, in substance, that the act of receiving property for transportation to a point in another state, and beyond the line of the receiving carrier, shall impose on such receiving carrier the obligation of through transportation, with carrier liability throughout. But this uncertainty of the nature and extent of the liability of a carrier receiving goods destined to a point beyond its own line was not all which might well induce the interposition of the regulating power of Congress. Nothing has perhaps contributed more to the wealth and prosperity of the country than the almost universal practice of transportation companies to co-operate in making through routes and joint rates. Through this method, a situation has been brought about by which, though independently managed, connecting carriers become in effect one system. This practice has its origin in the mutual interests of such companies and in the necessities of an expanding commerce.

In the leading case of Muschamp v. Lancaster & P. R. Co. cited above, Lord Abinger defended the inference of a contract for through carriage from the mere *re-[199 ceipt of a package destined to a point beyond the line of the receiving carrier upon the known practice in his day of such carriers. Upon this subject, in speaking of connecting lines of railway, he said: "These railway companies, though separate in themselves, are in the habit, for their own advantage, of making contracts, of which this was one, to convey goods along the whole line, to the ultimate terminus, each of them being agents of the other to carry them forward, and each receiving their share of the profits from the last."

The tenth clause of the conditions annexed to this bill of lading, and shown elsewhere, affords a fair illustration of the customary methods of connecting carriers to co-operate for their mutual benefit in carrying on transportation begun by one which must be continued by other lines over which the thing to be transported must go. The receiving carrier makes the rate and the route, and as the agent of every such connecting carrier executes a contract which is to bind each of them, "severally, but not jointly," one of the terms of the agreement being that each carrier shall be liable only for loss or damage occurring on its own line. Through this well known and necessary practice of connecting cariers there has come about, without unity of ownership or physical operation, a singleness of charge and a continuity of transportation greatly to the advantage of the carrier, and beneficial to the great and growing commerce of the country.

Along with this singleness of rate and continuity of carriage there grew up the practice by receiving carriers, illustrated in this case, of refusing to make a specific agreement to transport to points beyond its own line, whereby the connecting carrier, for the purpose of carriage, would become the agent of the primary carrier. The common form of receipt, as the court may judicially know, is one by which the shipper is compelled to make with each carrier in the route over which his package 200] *must go a separate agreement limiting the carrier liability of each separate company to its own part of the through route. As a result the shipper could look only to the initial carrier for recompense for loss, damage, or delay occurring on its part of the route. If such primary carrier was able to show a delivery to the rails of the next succeeding carrier, although the packages might and usually did continue the journey in the same car in which they had been originally loaded, the shipper must fail in his suit. He might, it is true, then bring his action against the carrier so shown to have next received the shipment. But here, in turn, he might be met by proof of safe delivery to a third separate carrier. In short, as the shipper was not himself in possession of the information as to when and where his property had been lost or damaged, and had no access to the records of the connecting carriers who, in turn, had participated in some part of the transportation, he was compelled in many instances to make such settlement as should be proposed.

This burdensome situation of the shipping public in reference to interstate shipments over routes including separate lines of carriers was the matter which Congress undertook to regulate. Thus, when this Carmack amendment was reported by a conference committee, Judge William Richardson, a congressman from Alabama, speaking for the committee of the matter which it was sought to remedy, among other things, said:

"One of the great complaints of the railroads has been—and, I think, a reasonable, just, and fair complaint—that when a man made a shipment, say, from Washington, for instance, to San Francisco, California, and his shipment was lost in some way, the citizen had to go thousands of miles, probably, to institute his suit. The result was that he had to settle his damages at what he could get. What have we done? We have made the initial carrier, the carrier that takes and receives the shipment, re-201] sponsible *for the loss of the article in the way of damages. We save the shipper from going to California or some distant place to institute his suit. Why? The reasons inducing us to do that were that the initial carrier has a through-route connection with the secondary carrier, on whose route the loss occurred, and a settlement between them will be an easy matter, while the shipper would be at heavy expense in the institution of a suit. If a judgment is obtained against the initial carrier, no doubt exists but that the secondary carrier would pay it at once. Why? Because the arrangement, the concert, the co-operation, the through route courtesies between them, would be broken up if prompt payment were not made. We have done that in conference." (40 Cong. Rec. Pt. 10, p. 9580.)

It must be conceded that the effect of the act in respect of carriers receiving packages in one state for a point in another, and beyond its own lines, is to deny to such an initial carrier the former right to make a contract limiting liability to its own line. This, it is said, is a denial of the liberty of contract secured by the 5th Amendment to the Constitution. To support this, counsel cited such cases as Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 589, 41 L. ed. 835, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; and Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

This power to regulate is the right to prescribe the rules under which such commerce may be conducted. "It is," said Chief Justice Marshall, in Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 196, 6 L. ed. 23, 70, "the power . . . vested in Congress as absolutely as it would be in a single government having in its Constitution the same restrictions on the exercise of the power as are found in the Constitution of the United States." It is a power which extends to the regulation of the appliances and machinery and agencies by which such commerce is conducted. Thus, in Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 363, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158, an act prescribing safety appliances *was upheld. And in Interstate [202 Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155, it was held that the equipment of an interstate railway, including cars used for the transportation of its own fuel, was subject to the regulation of Congress. In Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago & A. R. Co. 215 U. S. 479, 54 L. ed. 291, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 163, it was held to extend to the distribution of coal cars to the shipper, so as to prevent discrimination. In the Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141, power to pass an act which regulated the relation of master and servant, so as to impose on the carrier, while engaged in interstate commerce, liability for the negligence of a fellow servant, for which at common law there was no liability, and depriving such carrier of the common-law defense of contributory negligence save by way of reduction of damages, was upheld. In Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96, and Northern Securities Co. v. United ed States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24

Sup. Ct. Rep. 436, it was held that this power of regulation extended to and embraced contracts in restraint of trade between the states.

It is obvious, from the many decisions of this court, that there is no such thing as absolute freedom of contract. Contracts which contravene public policy cannot be lawfully made at all; and the power to make contracts may in all cases be regulated as to form, evidence, and validity as to third persons. The power of government extends to the denial of liberty of contract to the extent of forbidding or regulating every contract which is reasonably calculated to injuriously affect the public interests. Undoubtedly the United States is a government of limited and delegated powers, but in respect of those powers which have been expressly delegated, the power to regulate commerce between the states being one of them, the power is absolute, except as limited by other provisions of the Constitution itself.

Having the express power to make rules [203] for the conduct *of commerce among the states, the range of congressional discretion as to the regulation best adapted to remedy a practice found inefficient or hurtful is a wide one. If the regulating act be one directly applicable to such commerce, not obnoxious to any other provision of the Constitution, and reasonably adapted to the purpose by reason of legitimate relation between such commerce and the rule provided, the question of power is foreclosed. "The test of power," said Mr. Justice White, speaking for this court in the Employers' Liability Cases, cited above, "is not merely the matter regulated, but whether the regulation is directly one of interstate commerce, or is embraced within the grant [of power] conferred on Congress to use all lawful means necessary and appropriate to the execution of the power to regulate commerce."

That a situation had come about which demanded regulation in the public interest was the judgment of Congress. The requirement that carriers who undertook to engage in interstate transportation, and as a part of that business held themselves out as receiving packages destined to places beyond their own terminal, should be required, as a condition of continuing in that traffic, to obligate themselves to carry to the point of destination, using the lines of connecting carriers as their own agencies, was not beyond the scope of the power of regulation. The rule is adapted to secure the rights of the shipper by securing unity of transportation with unity of responsibility. The regulation is one which also facilitates the remedy of one who sustains a loss, by localizing the responsible carrier. Neither does the regulation impose an unreasonable burden upon the receiving carrier. The methods in vogue, as the court may judicially know, embrace not only the voluntary arrangement of through routes and rates, but the collection of the single charge made by the carrier at one or the other end of the route. This involves frequent and prompt settlement of traffic *bal-[204] ances. The routing in a measure depends upon the certainty and promptness of such traffic balance settlements, and such balances have been regarded as debts of a preferred character when there is a receivership. Again, the business association of such carriers affords to each facilities for locating primary responsibility as between themselves which the shipper cannot have. These well-known conditions afford a reasonable security to the receiving carrier for a reimbursement of a carrier liability which should fall upon one of the connecting carriers as between themselves.

But it is said that any security resulting from a voluntary agreement constituting a through route and rate is destroyed if the receiving carrier is not at liberty to select his own agencies for a continuance of the transportation beyond his own line. This is an objection which has no application to the present case. This action was for loss and damage arising from several distinct shipments to different places beyond the line of the plaintiff in error, who was the initial or receiving carrier. The presumption, from the absence of anything to the contrary in the record, is that the routing was over connecting lines with whom the plaintiff in error had theretofore made its own arrangements and rate. This record presents no question as to the right of the initial carrier to refuse a shipment designated for a point beyond its own line, nor its right to refuse to make a through route or joint rate when such route and rate would involve the continuance of a transportation over independent lines. We therefore refrain from any consideration of the large question thus suggested. The shipments involved in the present case were voluntarily received by an initial carrier who undertook to escape carrier's liability beyond its own line by a provision limiting liability to loss upon its own line. This was forbidden by the Carmack amendment, and any stipulation and condition in the *special receipt which contravenes the [205] rule in question is invalid.

Reduced to the final results, the Congress has said that a receiving carrier, in spite of any stipulation to the contrary, shall be deemed, when it receives property in one state, to be transported to a point in another, involving the use of a connecting carrier for some part of the way, to have adopted such other carrier as its agent, and to incur carrier liability throughout the entire route, with the right to reimbursement for a loss not due to his own negligence. The conditions which justified this extension of carrier liability we have already adverted to. The rule of the common law which treated a common carrier as an insurer grew out of a situation which required that kind of security for the protection of the public. To quote the quaint but expressive words of Lord Holt, in Coggs v. Bernard, 2 Ld. Raym. 909, when defending and applying the doctrine of absolute liability against loss not due to the act of God or the public enemy, "This rule," said he, "is a politick establishment contrived by the policy of the law for the safety of all persons the necessity of whose affairs oblige them to trust these sorts of persons, that they may be safe in their ways of dealing."

If it is to be assumed that the ultimate power exerted by Congress is that of compelling co-operation by connecting lines of independent carriers for purposes of interstate transportation, the power is still not beyond the regulating power of Congress, since, without merging identity of separate lines or operation, it stops with the requirement of oneness of charge, continuity of transportation, and primary liability of the receiving carrier to the shipper, with the right of reimbursement from the guilty agency in the route. That there is some chance that this right of recoupment may not be always effective may be conceded without invalidating the regulation. If the 206] *power existed and the regulation is adapted to the purpose in view, the public advantage justifies the discretion exercised, and upholds the legislation as within the limit of the grant conferred upon Congress. Touching the range of legislative discretion of the states in respect to occupations or trades which are affected by a public use, this court, in Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 188, 44 L. ed. 725, 728, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633, 635, said:

"Unless the regulations are so utterly unreasonable and extravagant in their nature and purpose that the property and personal rights of the citizen are unnecessarily, and in a manner wholly arbitrary, interfered with or destroyed without due process of law, they do not extend beyond the power of the state to pass, and they form no subject for Federal interference. As stated in Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 86, 34 L. ed. 620, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13: 'The possession and enjoyment of all rights are subject to such reasonable conditions as may be deemed by the governing authority of the country essential to the safety, health, peace, good order, and morals of the community.'"

But it is said that the act violates the 5th Amendment by taking the property of the initial carrier to pay the debt of an independent connecting carrier whose negligence may have been the sole cause of the loss. But this contention results from a surface reading of the act, and misses the true basis upon which it rests. The liability of the receiving carrier which results in such a case is that of a principal for the negligence of his own agents.

In substance Congress has said to such carriers: "If you receive articles for transportation from a point in one state to a place in another, beyond your own terminal, you must do so under a contract to transport to the place designated. If you are obliged to use the services of independent carriers in the continuance of the transit, you must use them as your own agents, and not as agents of the shipper." It is therefore not the case of making one pay the debt of another. The receiving *carrier is, as principal, liable not[207 only for its own negligence, but for that of any agency it may use, although, as between themselves, the company actually causing the loss may be primarily liable.

In Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Seegers, 207 U. S. 73, 78, 52 L. ed. 108, 110, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28, 30, legislation by the state of Georgia imposing a penalty on common carriers for failure to adjust damage claims within forty days was held to neither deny due process nor the equal protection of the law. Speaking by Mr. Justice Brewer, the court said of the reasonableness of the requirement and classification, that "the matter to be adjusted is one peculiarly within the knowledge of the carrier. It receives the goods and has them in its custody until the carriage is completed. It knows what it received and what it delivered. It knows what injury was done during the shipment, and how it was done. The consignee may not know what was in fact delivered at the time of the shipment, and the shipper may not know what was delivered to the consignee at the close of the transportation. The carrier can determine the amount of the loss more accurately and promptly and with less delay and expense than anyone else, and for the adjustment of loss or damage to shipments within the state forty days cannot be said to be an unreasonably short length of time."

The conclusion we reach in respect to the validity of the amendment has the support of some well-considered cases. Among them we cite: Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R.

Co. 158 Fed. 649; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Mitchell (Ind.) 91 N. E. 735; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scott, 133 Ky. 724, 118 S. W. 992.

The judgment included an attorneys' fee, taxed as part of the costs. The authority for this is supposed to be found in the 8th section of the act to regulate commerce of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. pp. 379, 382, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 3154, 3159). The section reads as follows:

"That in case any common carrier sub-208] ject to the provisions *of this act shall do, cause to be done, or permit to be done, any act, matter, or thing in this act prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or shall omit to do any act, matter, or thing in this act required to be done, such common carrier shall be liable to the person or persons injured thereby for the full amount of damages sustained in consequence of any such violation of the provisions of this act, together with a reasonable counsel or attorneys' fee, to be fixed by the court in every case of recovery, which attorneys' fees shall be taxed and collected as part of the costs in the case."

But that section applies to cases where the cause of action is the doing of something made unlawful by some provision of the act, or the omission to do something required by the act, and there is a recovery "of damages sustained in consequence of any such violation of this act," etc. The cause of action in the present case is not for damages resulting from "any violation of the provisions of this act." True, the plaintiff in error attempted by contract to stipulate for a limitation of liability to a loss on its own line, and in this action has defensively denied liability for a loss not occurring on its own line. But the cause of action was the loss of the plaintiff's property which had been intrusted to it as a common carrier, and that loss is in no way traceable to the violation of any provision of the act to regulate commerce. Having sustained no damage which was a consequence of the violation of the act, the section has no application to this case.

The judgment was erroneous to this extent, and the provision for an attorneys' fee is stricken out, and the judgment thus modified is affirmed.

209] *LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

N. P. SCOTT.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 209.)

This case is governed by the decision in Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, ante, 167.

[No. 286.]

Argued October 19, 20, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Henry Circuit Court in that commonwealth, in favor of the shipper, in an action against an interstate carrier for a loss on the line of a connecting carrier. Affirmed.

See same case below, 133 Ky. 724, 118 S. W. 990, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 392.

Mr. Charles H. Moorman argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Benjamin D. Warfield and Henry Lane Stone, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

To construe § 20 of the act of June 29, 1906, as making the carrier liable for loss, damage, or injury to freight on such carrier's connecting lines, would render such section unconstitutional, because it is not a regulation of interstate commerce.

Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 176, 52 L. ed. 436, 443, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

To interpret said section so as to hold the initial carrier liable for loss, injury, or damage to freight on the lines of connecting carriers, when the carrier has not expressly agreed to transport the shipment through to destination, but, on the contrary, has, by contract, limited its liability to its own line, would be to make the statute unconstitutional and void because obnoxious to the 5th Article of the Amendments to the Constitution of the United States.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 134 U. S. 418, 33 L. ed. 970, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 209, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 462, 702; McCann v. Eddy, — Mo. —, 27 S. W. 541; Atty. Gen. v. Old Colony R. Co. 160 Mass. 62, 22 L.R.A. 112, 35 N. E. 252; Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Richmond, 19 Wall. 584, 22 L. ed. 173; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 353, 47 L. ed. 499, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561; Monongahela Nav. Co. v. United States, 148 U. S. 336, 37 L. ed. 471, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 622; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Lynch, 97 Tex. 25, 75 S. W. 486; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 593, 50 L. ed. 596, 609, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Stickney, 215 U. S. 109, 110, 54 L. ed. 115, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Central Stock Yards Co. 212 U. S. 132, 144, 53 L. ed. 441, 446, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246, 133 Ky. 148, 97 S. W. 778; Inman v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 14 Tex. Civ. App. 39, 37 S. W. 37; Fremont, E. & M. Valley R. Co. v. Waters, 50 Neb. 592, 70 N. W. 225; York Mfg. Co. v. Illinois C. R. Co. 3 Wall. 107, 18 L. ed. 170.

Assistant to the Attorney General Kenyon argued the cause for the government as amicus curiæ.

For additional contentions of counsel, see their briefs as reported in Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, ante, 167.

No counsel for defendant in error.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

This case was heard with No. 215, Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, just decided. [219 U. S. 186, ante, 167, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 7, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164.] Like that case it presents only the question of the constitutionality of the Carmack amendment of the act to regulate commerce.

The facts are not substantially different, and the judgment of the Court of Appeals of the Commonwealth of Kentucky is affirmed upon the authority of that case.

Affirmed.

210]*IN THE MATTER OF WALTER J. GREGORY, Petitioner.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 210–218.)

Habeas corpus — scope of review — sufficiency of information or agreed case.

1. A Federal court will not consider on habeas corpus questions of the sufficiency of the information on which the conviction of the accused was had, or whether the acts set out in the agreed statement of facts, which it is stipulated should be considered as a part of the information, constituted a crime.

[For other cases, see Habeas Corpus, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — punishing gift enterprise.

2. Liberty and property are not taken without due process of law, contrary to U. S. Const., 5th Amend., by the provisions of D. C. Rev. Stat. § 1177, making it a crime to engage in any manner in any gift enterprise business in the District.

[Due process of law as to criminal matters, see Constitutional Law, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Gift enterprise — what constitutes.

3. The definition of a gift enterprise as the business of selling merchandise, coupled with a promise to give any other article in consideration of the purchase, which is made by D. C. Laws 1871–72, pt. 2, pp. 96, 97, licensing various trades and businesses, was not imported into D. C. Rev. Stat. § 1177, making it a crime in any manner to engage in any gift enterprise business in the District, by the provisions of § 1176, disapproving and repealing the earlier legislation for the licensing of gift enterprises, and declaring it thereafter to be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in said business in any manner, as defined in the repealed act or otherwise.

Habeas corpus — scope of remedy — want of jurisdiction.

4. The business of issuing and redeeming trading stamps is not so manifestly outside the range of judicial consideration, under D. C. Rev. Stat. § 1177, making it a crime to engage in any manner in any gift-enterprise business in the District, as to justify relief by habeas corpus to a person convicted of that offense, on the theory that the trial court was without jurisdiction.

[For other cases, see Habeas Corpus, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 17, Original.]

Argued December 5, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

PETITION for a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into a detention under a conviction in the police court of the District of Columbia of engaging in a gift enterprise business within the District. Rule discharged and petition dismissed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. John Hall Jones and W. Benton Crisp argued the cause and filed a brief for petitioner:

The police power extends only to such legislation as will promote the public health, public safety, or public morals, or to business affected with a public interest.

Note.—On habeas corpus in the Federal courts—see notes to Re Reinitz, 4 L.R.A. 236; State ex rel. Cochran v. Winters, 10 L.R.A. 616; Re Huse, 25 C. C. A. 4; and Tinsley v. Anderson, 43 L. ed. U. S. 91.

As to habeas corpus to test constitutionality of statute—see note to Hovey v. Elliott, 39 L.R.A. 449.

As to questions reviewable by habeas corpus—see notes to State v. Jackson, 1 L.R.A. 373; Bion's Appeal, 11 L.R.A. 694; Glass v. The Betsey, 1 L. ed. U. S. 489; United States v. Hamilton, 1 L. ed. U. S. 490; Re Carll, 27 L. ed. U. S. 288; Oteiza y Cortes v. Jacobus, 34 L. ed. U. S. 464; and Pearce v. Texas, 39 L. ed. U. S. 164.

On the validity of legislation regulating or forbidding the use of trading stamps—see notes to District of Columbia v. Kraft, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 957; Denver v. Frueauff, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1131; and Ex parte Drexel, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 588.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 47–53, 49 L. ed. 937–940, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 669, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 213, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 136, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 547, 53 L. ed. 315, 319, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 608, 47 L. ed. 323, 327, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; O'Keeffe v. Somerville, 190 Mass. 114, 112 Am. St. Rep. 316, 76 N. E. 457, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 684; Young v. Com. 101 Va. 863, 45 S. E. 327; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 389, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; State v. Hyman, 98 Md. 613, 64 L.R.A. 637, 57 Atl. 6, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 742; Toledo, W. & W. R. Co. v. Jacksonville, 67 Ill. 40, 16 Am. Rep. 611; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 313, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; Ex parte Drexel, 147 Cal. 767, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 588, 82 Pac. 429, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 878; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 80, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234.

Petitioner's business was legal.

Humes v. Little Rock, 138 Fed. 929; Territory v. M. A. Gunst & Co. 18 Haw. 196; Sperry & H. Co. v. Louis Weber & Co. 161 Fed. 219; Sperry & H. Co. v. Temple, 137 Fed. 992; Ex parte Hutchinson, 137 Fed. 950; Sperry & H. Co. v. Mechanics' Clothing Co. 135 Fed. 833; John D. Park & Sons Co. v. Hartman, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 135, 82 C. C. A. 158, 153 Fed. 24; Sperry & H. Co. v. Mechanics' Clothing Co. 128 Fed. 800. Bitterman v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 207 U. S. 205, 52 L. ed. 171, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 693; Sperry & H. Co. v. Brady, 134 Fed. 691; State v. Shugart, 138 Ala. 86, 100 Am. St. Rep. 17, 35 So. 28; Montgomery v. Kelly, 142 Ala. 552, 70 L.R.A. 209, 110 Am. St. Rep. 43, 38 So. 67; Ex parte McKenna, 126 Cal. 429, 58 Pac. 916; Ex parte Drexel, 147 Cal. 763, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 588, 82 Pac. 429, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 878; Denver v. Frueauff, 39 Colo. 20, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1131, 88 Pac. 389, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 521; Hewin v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 731, 67 L.R.A. 795, 49 S. E. 765, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 296; O'Keeffe v. Somerville, 190 Mass. 110, 112 Am. St. Rep. 316, 76 N. E. 457, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 684; Com. v. Emerson, 165 Mass. 146, 42 N. E. 559; Com. v. Sisson, 178 Mass. 578, 60 N. E. 385; Long v. State, 74 Md. 565, 12 L.R.A. 425, 28 Am. St. Rep. 268, 22 Atl. 4; State ex rel. Simpson v. Sperry & H. Co. 110 Minn. 378, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 966, 126 N. W. 120; State v. Ramseyer, 73 N. H. 31, 58 Atl. 958, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 445; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 389, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343; People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 65 L.R.A. 167, 47 S. E. 457; Com. v. Moorhead, 7 Pa. Co. Ct. 513; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 77, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234; State v. Dodge, 76 Vt. 197, 56 Atl. 983, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 47; Young v. Com. 101 Va. 853, 45 S. E. 327.

A "gift enterprise" is a transaction wherein the element of chance determines how property shall be distributed.

1 Bouvier's Law Dict. Rawle's Rev. p. 884; Black's Law Dict. p. 539; Anderson's Law Dict. p. 488.

As the trading stamp business is not a species of lottery, or a "gift enterprise," Congress cannot prohibit as a "gift enterprise" something that is not such.

Com. v. Moorehead, 7 Pa. Co. Ct. 519; Perry v. Keene, 56 N. H. 514; Robbins v. Taxing Dist. 120 U. S. 489, 30 L. ed. 694, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592.

The term "gift enterprise" can be applied properly only to lotteries; the trading stamp business is not a "gift enterprise," as there is in it no element of chance.

State v. Shugart, 138 Ala. 86, 100 Am. St. Rep. 17, 35 So. 28; Humes v. Little Rock, 138 Fed. 929; Denver v. Frueauff, 39 Colo. 20, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1131, 88 Pac. 389, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 521; Territory v. M. A. Gunst & Co. 18 Haw. 196; Long v. State, 74 Md. 565, 12 L.R.A. 425, 28 Am. St. Rep. 268, 22 Atl. 4; Com. v. Emerson, 165 Mass. 146, 42 N. E. 559; Com. v. Sisson, 178 Mass. 578, 60 N. E. 385; O'Keeffe v. Somerville, 190 Mass. 110, 112 Am. St. Rep. 316, 76 N. E. 457, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 684; People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111; Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 65 L.R.A. 167, 47 S. E. 457; Com. v. Moorhead, 7 Pa. Co. Ct. 513; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 77, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234; Young v. Com. 101 Va. 853, 45 S. E. 327.

The courts have uniformly held unconstitutional statutes which prohibited the giving of trading stamps by a merchant, to be redeemed by a third party, while allowing the giving of stamps by a merchant, redeemable himself.

People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; State v. Walker, 105 La. 492, 29 So. 973; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 77, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234; State v. Dodge, 76 Vt.

197, 56 Atl. 983, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 47; Young v. Com. 101 Va. 853, 45 S. E. 327.

In the following cases, the case of Lansburgh v. District of Columbia, 11 App. D. C. 512, was referred to, and either disregarded or expressly disapproved:

State v. Shugart, 138 Ala. 86, 100 Am. St. Rep. 17, 35 So. 28; Montgomery v. Kelly, 142 Ala. 552, 70 L.R.A. 209, 110 Am. St. Rep. 43, 38 So. 67; Humes v. Little Rock, 138 Fed. 929; Ex parte Drexel, 147 Cal. 763, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 588, 82 Pac. 429, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 878; Denver v. Frueauff, 39 Colo. 20, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1131, 88 Pac. 389, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 521; Hewin v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 731, 67 L.R.A. 795, 49 S. E. 765, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 296; Territory v. M. A. Gunst & Co. 18 Haw. 196; State ex rel. Simpson v. Sperry & H. Co. 110 Minn. 378, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 966, 126 N. W. 120; State v. Ramseyer, 73 N. H. 31, 58 Atl. 958, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 445; Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 65 L.R.A. 167, 47 S. E. 457; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 77, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234; Leonard v. Bassindale, 46 Wash. 301, 89 Pac. 879.

Messrs. Edward H. Thomas and William Henry White argued the cause, and, with Mr. Francis H. Stephens, filed a brief for respondent:

Nothing but the constitutionality of the statute is before the court in this proceeding.

Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 571, 29 L. ed. 277, 279, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1050; Ex parte Siebold, 100 U. S. 371, 374, 375, 25 L. ed. 717, 718, 719; Ex parte Hung Hang, 108 U. S. 552, 553, 27 L. ed. 811, 812, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 863; Ex parte Kearney, 7 Wheat. 38, 43, 5 L. ed. 391, 392; Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet. 193, 203, 7 L. ed. 650, 653; Ex parte Carll, 106 U. S. 521, 522, 27 L. ed. 288, 289, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535, 4 Am. Crim. Rep. 253; Re Eckart, 166 U. S. 481, 483, 41 L. ed. 1085, 1086, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Ex parte Parks, 93 U. S. 18–20, 23 L. ed. 787–788; Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62, 50 L. ed. 90, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 760; United States v. Pridgeon, 153 U. S. 48, 38 L. ed. 631, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 746; Ex parte Bigelow, 113 U. S. 330, 28 L. ed. 1006, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 542; Re Belt, 159 U. S. 95, 99, 100, 40 L. ed. 88, 90, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 987; Davis v. Beason, 133 U. S. 333, 33 L. ed. 637, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 297, 8 Am. Crim. Rep. 89; Toy Toy v. Hopkins, 212 U. S. 542, 548, 53 L. ed. 644, 646, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416; Ex parte Terry, 128 U. S. 289, 32 L. ed. 405, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77; Kaizo v. Henry, 211 U. S. 146, 53 L. ed. 125, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 41; Ex parte Harding, 120 U. S. 782, 30 L. ed. 824, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 780; Re Moran, 203 U. S. 96, 51 L. ed. 105, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25.

The phrase (gift enterprise) has attained such notoriety as to justify us in taking judicial notice of what is meant and understood by the use of it. Lohman v. State, 81 Ind. 18.

A gift enterprise is a species of lottery. 19 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. p. 590; Meyer v. State, 112 Ga. 20, 51 L.R.A. 496, 81 Am. St. Rep. 17, 37 S. E. 96; Reg. v. Harris, 10 Cox, C. C. 352; Reg. v. Freeman, 18 Ont. Rep. 524; Cross v. People, 18 Colo. 321, 36 Am. St. Rep. 292, 32 Pac. 821; Davenport v. Ottawa, 54 Kan. 711, 45 Am. St. Rep. 303, 39 Pac. 708; State v. Moren, 48 Minn. 555, 51 N. W. 618; United States v. Wallis, 58 Fed. 942; State v. Mumford, 73 Mo. 647, 39 Am. Rep. 532; Queen v. Parker, 9 Manitoba L. Rep. 203; Dunn v. People, 40 Ill. 465; Randle v. State, 42 Tex. 580; State v. Bryant, 74 N. C. 207.

A gift enterprise is, in common parlance, a scheme for the distribution of certain articles of property, to be determined by chance, among those who have taken shares in the scheme.

20 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1188.

Since the offense is clear and the act is complete without the definition, the question as to the constitutionality of the expunged part is immaterial.

State Freight Tax Case, 15 Wall. 232, 282, 21 L. ed. 146, 163; Albany County v. Stanley, 105 U. S. 305, 313, 26 L. ed. 1044, 1050; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 304, 305, 29 L. ed. 185, 197, 198, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; White v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 307, 29 L. ed. 199, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 923, 962; Re Chapman, 166 U. S. 661, 666, 667, 41 L. ed. 1154, 1157, 1158, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 677; Erie R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 15 Wall. 282, 283, 21 L. ed. 164; Trade Mark Cases, 100 U. S. 82, 98, 25 L. ed. 550, 553; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 127 U. S. 411, 424, 32 L. ed. 229, 232, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 59, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1127; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Charleston, 153 U. S. 692, 698, 38 L. ed. 871, 874, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 637, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1094; Baldwin v. Franks, 120 U. S. 678, 688, 689, 30 L. ed. 766, 769, 770, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 656, 763; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 636, 39 L. ed. 1125, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S. 252, 263, 29 L. ed. 615, 618, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580; Keokuk Northern Line Packet Co. v. Keokuk, 95 U. S. 80, 89, 24 L. ed. 377, 381; El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Gutierrez, 215 U. S. 87, 96, 54 L. ed. 106, 111, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21; Penniman's Case, 103 U. S. 714, 717, 26 L. ed. 602, 604; Hyde v. Southern R. Co. 31 App. D. C. 466;

Unity v. Burrage, 103 U. S. 447, 459, 26 L. ed. 405, 409.

Congress can exercise the full police power of the national government in the District of Columbia, and its power is at least coextensive with that of the legislature of a state.

Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 324, 5 L. ed. 100; Cohen v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 424, 5 L. ed. 296; Kendall v. United States, 12 Pet. 619, 9 L. ed. 1218; Mattingly v. District of Columbia, 97 U. S. 690, 24 L. ed. 1099; Shoemaker v. United States, 147 U. S. 300, 37 L. ed. 185, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 361; Parsons v. District of Columbia, 170 U. S. 52, 42 L. ed. 946, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 521; Capitol Traction Co. v. Hof, 174 U. S. 5, 43 L. ed. 874, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580; Wight v. Davidson, 181 U. S. 384, 45 L. ed. 906, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 616; El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Gutierrez, 215 U. S. 87, 96, 54 L. ed. 106, 111, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21.

The language of the definition is so comprehensive as to embrace, possibly, acts perfectly harmless, as well as acts detrimental. There are two ways of meeting this situation: First, by applying the rule that a possible application to extreme cases is not the test of the reasonableness of public rules and regulations.

Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174.

Second, by construction the statute will be allowed its full force and operation as applicable to all cases rightfully and constitutionally within its provisions, but such application will be restrained as to those objects simply to which the statute is forbidden to extend. This is the rule, as we understand it, upon which the Supreme Court acted in the State Freight Tax Case, 15 Wall. 232, 21 L. ed. 146; Albany County v. Stanley, 105 U. S. 305, 313, 26 L. ed. 1044, 1050; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 29 L. ed. 185, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; and other cases that could be cited.

Chapman v. United States, 5 App. D. C. 131; Re Chapman, 166 U. S. 667, 41 L. ed. 1158, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 677; Erie R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 15 Wall. 282, 283, 21 L. ed. 164; Trade Mark Cases, 100 U. S. 82, 98, 25 L. ed. 550, 553; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 127 U. S. 411, 424, 32 L. ed. 229, 232, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 59, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1127; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Charleston, 153 U. S. 692, 698, 38 L. ed. 871, 874, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 637, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1094; Baldwin v. Franks, 120 U. S. 678, 688, 689, 30 L. ed. 766, 769, 770, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 656, 763; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 636, 39 L. ed. 1125, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S. 252, 263, 29 L. ed. 615, 618, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580; Keokuk Northern Line Packet Co. v. Keokuk, 95 U. S. 80, 89, 24 L. ed. 377, 381; El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Gutierrez, 215 U. S. 87, 96, 54 L. ed. 106, 111, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21; Penniman's Case, 103 U. S. 714, 717, 26 L. ed. 602, 604; Unity v. Burrage, 103 U. S. 447, 459, 26 L. ed. 405, 409; Hyde v. Southern R. Co. 31 App. D. C. 466.

The police power is certainly ample to prohibit the conduct of the trading-stamp business.

Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 32, 28 L. ed. 923–925, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 592, 50 L. ed. 596, 609, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Ohio, 173 U. S. 285, 292, 43 L. ed. 702, 704, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 465; Gilman v. Philadelphia, 3 Wall. 713, 729, 18 L. ed. 96, 100; Pound v. Turck, 95 U. S. 459, 464, 24 L. ed. 525, 527; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 470, 24 L. ed. 530; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 311, 317, 51 L. ed. 499, 502, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 429, 46 L. ed. 623, 626, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 13, 46 L. ed. 55, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Western Turf Asso. v. Greenberg, 204 U. S. 359, 364, 51 L. ed. 520, 522, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 384; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; State ex rel. Simpson v. Sperry & H. Co. 110 Minn. 378, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 966, 126 N. W. 120; Clark v. Nash, 198 U. S. 361, 369, 49 L. ed. 1085, 1088, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1171; Atkin v. Kansas, 191 U. S. 207, 48 L. ed. 148, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. ed. 552, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 409, 43 L. ed. 746, 748, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 86, 34 L. ed. 620, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; Patterson v. Kentucky, 97 U. S. 501, 24 L. ed. 1115; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Butchers Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. v. Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. 111 U. S. 746–750, 28 L. ed. 585–587, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 652; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 547, 548, 53 L. ed. 315, 319, 320, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

The element of chance in the trading stamp scheme makes it a species of lottery.

Horner v. United States, 147 U. S. 449, 37 L. ed. 237, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 409; State v. Hawkins, 95 Md. 143, 93 Am. St. Rep.

328, 51 Atl. 850; 14 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. p. 601, note, 1.

Where a contract which is entire contains an illegal stipulation or agreement which is not severable from the balance of the contract, such illegal stipulation or agreement cannot be ignored and the other provisions of the contract enforced. The illegal stipulation or agreement in such a case penetrates and corrupts the whole contract, and vitiates it as an entirety.

15 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, p. 988; Williams v. Hastings, 59 N. H. 373.

Where the consideration of a contract consists of several different elements, and no apportionment or separate valuation, or means of apportionment or valuation, of the different elements of the consideration, is made by the parties, the entire contract will be held illegal if one of the elements of the consideration is immoral or against public policy.

15 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, p. 989; Robinson v. Gueen, 3 Met. 159; 9 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 566; Bishop v. Palmer, 146 Mass. 469, 4 Am. St. Rep. 339, 16 N. E. 299.

Where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, a note made for liquors and other articles sold in a lump, for a fixed price, is void in the hands of the payee, or of an assignee having notice of the circumstances. The illegal part of the consideration cannot be separated from the legal.

Braitch v. Guelick, 37 Iowa, 212.

A contract by which, in consideration of a gross sum, S. leased the bar of his hotel to G., and sold G. the right to sell liquors under a license obtained by S., and agreed to board G. during the lease, is totally void. The legal part of the contract cannot be separated from the illegal.

Sanderson v. Goodrich, 46 Barb. 616.

We find but two habeas corpus cases in the Federal courts, and one equity case, all depending on the validity of license laws, and all entirely inapplicable on the facts which have any bearing on the case at bar, except to show that city councils have regarded the trading-stamp business as a business which needed regulation, if not prohibition, in the interest of the common welfare and of the public morals.

Ex parte Hutchinson, 137 Fed. 949, 950; Humes v. Little Rock, 138 Fed. 931; Sperry & H. Co. v. Mechanics' Clothing Co. 135 Fed. 833; Sperry & H. Co. v. Louis Weber & Co. 161 Fed. 219; Sperry & H. Co. v. Temple, 137 Fed. 993.

None of the state habeas corpus cases held that a statute prohibiting "gift enterprises" is not within the police power.

State v. Shugart, 138 Ala. 86, 100 Am. St. Rep. 17, 35 So. 28; Ex parte McKenna, 126 Cal. 429, 58 Pac. 916; Ex parte Drexel, 147 Cal. 763, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 588, 82 Pac. 429, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 878; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111.

And this conclusion is not denied in any of the following state cases:

Montgomery v. Kelly, 142 Ala. 552, 70 L.R.A. 209, 110 Am. St. Rep. 43, 39 So. 67; Hewin v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 723, 67 L. R.A. 795, 49 S. E. 765, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 296; Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 65 L.R.A. 167, 47 S. E. 457; State v. Dodge, 76 Vt. 197, 56 Atl. 983, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 47; State v. Ramseyer, 73 N. H. 37. 58 Atl. 958, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 445; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 77, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234; State ex rel. Simpson v. Sperry & H. Co. 110 Minn. 378, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 966, 126 N. W. 120; Com. v. Sisson, 178 Mass. 578, 60 N. E. 385; Com. v. Emerson, 165 Mass. 146, 42 N. E. 559; O'Keeffe v. Somerville, 190 Mass. 110, 112 Am. St. Rep. 316, 76 N. E. 457, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 684; Young v. Com. 101 Va. 853, 45 S. E. 327; Com. v. Gibson Co. 125 Ky. 440, 101 S. W. 385; Long v. State, 74 Md. 565, 12 L.R.A. 425, 28 Am. St. Rep. 268, 22 Atl. 4; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 389, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343; Denver v. Frueauff, 39 Colo. 20, 7 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1131, 88 Pac. 389, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 521.

The policy of the particular piece of legislation is a matter for the legislature; and the courts will not interfere "unless the act in question is unmistakably and palpably in excess of legislative power."

McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. By information filed in the police court of the District of Columbia, the petitioner was charged with engaging "in *the business of a gift enterprise,"[213 in violation of § 1177 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia. Thereupon an agreed statement of facts was filed, by which it appeared that the petitioner, as the managing officer of the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, was conducting, within the District, its business of issuing and redeeming so-called "trading stamps" in the particular manner set forth. It was stipulated that the statement should be considered as a part of the information, and the petitioner made a motion to quash. This motion was sustained and the petitioner was discharged.

On writ of error, the court of appeals of the District of Columbia reversed the judgment of the police court, and ordered the cause to be remanded for further proceedings in conformity with its opinion. Application was made to this court for a writ of certiorari, which was refused. 218 U. S. 673, 54 L. ed. 1205, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 223. The petitioner was then arraigned in the police court, pleaded not guilty, and waived trial by jury; and the case was submitted to the court upon the agreed statement. Judgment of guilty was entered, and the petitioner was sentenced to pay a fine. He then obtained leave of this court to file the present petition.

The only question before us is whether the police court had jurisdiction. A habeas corpus proceeding cannot be made to perform the function of a writ of error, and we are not concerned with the question whether the information was sufficient, or whether the acts set forth in the agreed statement constituted a crime, that is to say, whether the court properly applied the law, if it be found that the court had jurisdiction to try the issues and to render the judgment. Ex parte Kearney, 7 Wheat. 38, 5 L. ed. 391; Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet. 193, 7 L. ed. 650; Ex parte Parks, 93 U. S. 18, 23 L. ed. 787; Ex parte Yarbrough, 110 U. S. 651, 28 L. ed. 274, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 152; Re Coy, 127 U. S. 731, 32 L. ed. 274, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1263; Gonzales v. Cunningham, 164 U. S. 612, 41 L. ed. 572, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182; Re Eckart, 166 U. S. 481, 41 L. ed. 1085, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Storti v. Massachusetts, 183 U. S. 138, 46 L. ed. 121, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 72; Dimmick v. Tompkins, 194 U. S. 540, 48 L. ed. 1110, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 780; Hyde v. Shine, 199 U. S. 62, 83, 50 L. ed. 90, 97, 25 Sup. Ct. 214]Rep. 760; *Whitney v. Dick, 202 U. S. 132, 136, 50 L. ed. 963, 964, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 584; Kaizo v. Henry, 211 U. S. 146, 148, 53 L. ed. 125, 126, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 41. This rule has recently been applied in a case where it was contended in a habeas corpus proceeding that the record should be examined to determine whether there was any testimony to support the accusation. And this court, affirming the judgment which discharged the writ, said by Mr. Justice Day: "The contention is that, in the respects pointed out, the testimony wholly fails to support the charge. The attack is thus not upon the jurisdiction and authority of the court to proceed to investigate and determine the truth of the charge, but upon the sufficiency of the evidence to show the guilt of the accused. This has never been held to be within the province of a writ of habeas corpus. Upon habeas corpus the court examines only the power and authority of the court to act, not the correctness of its conclusions." Harlan v. McGourin, 218 U. S. 448, 54 L. ed. 1101, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 47.

We come, then, to the grounds upon which the jurisdiction of the police court is assailed. It is urged that the prohibition contained in the statute under which the information was brought is unconstitutional, in that it violates the 5th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States by depriving the petitioner of liberty and property without due process of law The information rested on § 1177 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia, which makes it a crime "in any manner" to engage "in any gift-enterprise business" in the District. If this section be read alone, no basis appears for the argument of invalidity. It cannot be said that the words "gift-enterprise business" are so uncertain as to make the prohibition nugatory, or that they necessarily include conduct which lies outside the range of legislative interference in the exercise of the police power. While these words are general, they may be regarded as embracing a class of transactions which the legislature is competent to condemn. Thus, a "gift *enterprise" has been defined to be "a[215 scheme for the division or distribution of certain articles of property, to be determined by chance, amongst those who have taken shares in the scheme." Bouvier's Law Dict. (Rawle's Rev.) p. 884; Black's Law Dict. p. 539; Anderson's Law Dict. p. 488. See also Lohman v. State, 81 Ind. 15, 17; Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 279, 65 L.R.A. 167, 47 S. E. 457; Randle v. State, 42 Tex. 580.

But it is said that § 1177 must be read in connection with § 1176, which in turn has reference to the act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia, approved August 23, 1871. The argument in substance is that these statutes furnish a controlling definition of the words "gift-enterprise business," as used in § 1177, and that if this be so, the section must be held unconstitutional.

The act passed in 1871 by the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia, to which reference is made, was entitled, "An Act Imposing a License on Trades, Business, and Professions Practised or Carried on in the District of Columbia." It provided as follows:

"The proprietors of gift enterprises shall pay $1,000 annually. Every person who shall sell or offer for sale any real estate or article of merchandise of any description whatever, or any ticket of admission to any exhibition or performance, or other place of amusement, with the promise, expressed or implied, to give or bestow, or in any manner hold out the promise of gift or bestowal, of any article or thing, for and in consideration of the purchase by any person of any other article or thing, whether the object shall be for individual gain or for the benefit of any institution, of whatever character, or for any purpose whatever, shall be regarded as a gift enterprise: Provided, That no such proprietor, in consequence of being thus taxed, shall be exempt from paying any other taxes imposed by law, and the license 216]herein *required shall be in addition thereto." Laws of the District of Columbia, 1871-72, Part 2, pages 96, 97.

Congress, by act of February 17, 1873, chap. 148, 17 Stat. at L. 464, disapproved and repealed this legislation, and enacted the prohibitions which later were incorporated in § 1176 and 1177 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia, as follows:

"Sec. 1176. So much of the act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia entitled, 'An Act Imposing a License on Trades, Business, and Professions Practised or carried on in the District of Columbia,' approved August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, as authorizes gift enterprises therein, and licenses to be issued therefor, is disapproved and repealed, and hereafter it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in said business in any manner as defined in said act or otherwise.

"Sec. 1177. Every person who shall in any manner engage in any gift-enterprise business in the District shall, on conviction thereof in the police court, on information filed for and on behalf of the District, pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned in the District jail not less than one nor more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court."

It will be observed that while § 1176 refers to the District act of 1871, and to "gift enterprises" as therein described, it does not treat that description as exclusive. It assumes that there are other gift enterprises than those defined in the act of 1871. It denounces the former not less than the latter. It does not limit its provisions to the transactions which previously had been licensed under the act of 1871, but expressly includes gift enterprises conducted "in any manner, as defined in said act or otherwise."

The purpose of the provision of §1176 was to disapprove and repeal the former author-217]ization, but not to establish *an exclusive definition based upon it. The language of § 1176 conclusively negatives such an intention. It follows that § 1177 is not controlled by the definition to be found in the act of 1871. Even if it were assumed that the condemnation contained in § 1176 of the transactions particularly described in the act of 1871 was too sweeping, and that Congress went beyond its power in giving the prohibition so wide a scope, this would not affect the provision of § 1177, relating, as we have seen, to a recognized category of offenses for which it was within the power of Congress to prescribe punishment. Whether it be read alone or in the light of its context, § 1177 cannot be adjudged invalid. And it is upon this section that the information in question was based.

We have, then, a statute with valid operation. This being established, there can be no question that it conferred upon the police court, by its express terms, jurisdiction of the offense, and that court tried and convicted the petitioner.

But it is insisted that the facts do not support the conviction. The argument ignores the nature of this proceeding, unless it be meant that no colorable question was presented; that on the agreed statement of facts, and viewing the statute as prohibiting transactions involving the element of chance, there was such an obvious and palpable want of criminality that the judicial judgment cannot be said to have been invoked, and that therefore the court had no jurisdiction to determine whether or not the statute had been violated.

Such a contention is without merit. It is by no means manifest that the scheme or enterprise in which the petitioner was engaged lay outside the range of judicial consideration under the statute. On the contrary, the agreed statement of facts presented questions requiring the exercise of judicial judgment, and the case falls within the well-established rule. Given a valid enactment, the *question (assuming[218 it to be one demanding judicial examination) whether a particular case falls within the prohibition is for the determination of the court to which has been confided jurisdiction over the class of offenses to which the statute relates.

As said by Chief Justice Marshall in Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet. 193, on page 203, 7 L. ed. 650, 653: "The judgment of such a tribunal has all the obligations which the judgment of any tribunal can have. To determine whether the offense charged in the indictment be legally punishable or not is among the most unquestionable of its power and duties. The decision of this question is the exercise of jurisdiction, whether the judgment be for or against the prisoner. The judgment is equally binding in the one case and in the other; and must remain in full force unless reversed regularly by a superior court capable of reversing it." And in Ex parte Parks, 93 U. S. 18, on page 20, 23 L. ed. 787, 788, the court said: "Whether an act charged in an indictment is or is not a crime by the law which the court administers (in this case the statute law of the United States) is a question which has to be met at almost every stage of criminal proceedings; on motions to quash the indictment, on demurrers, on motions to arrest judgment, etc. The court may err, but it has jurisdiction of the question."

In hearing this application, this court does not sit to review the correctness of the conclusion of the police court as to the violation of the statute by the petitioner, or of the decision of the court of appeals of the District as to the sufficiency of the information filed against him. The question here is not one of guilt or innocence, but simply whether the court below had jurisdiction to try the issues. And as we find that the statute conferred that jurisdiction, the application for a writ of habeas corpus must be denied.

Rule discharged and petition dismissed.

219]*ALONZO BAILEY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
STATE OF ALABAMA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 219–250.)

Constitutional law — involuntary servitude — peonage — punishing breach of labor contract.

So far as the refusal without just cause to perform the labor called for in a written contract of employment under which the employee has obtained money which was not refunded, or property which was not paid for, is made prima facie evidence of an intent to defraud by Ala. Code 1896, § 4730, as amended by Gen. Acts 1903, p. 345, and Gen. Acts 1907, p. 636, and therefore punishable as a criminal offense, such legislation offends against the prohibition of the 13th Amendment to the Federal Constitution against involuntary servitude, except as punishment for crime, and against the provisions forbidding peonage, found in U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 1990, 5526, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1266, 3715, enacted to secure the enforcement of such Amendment,—especially since, under the local practice, the accused may not, for the purpose of rebutting the statutory presumption, testify as to his uncommunicated motives, purposes, or intentions.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 1581–1587, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 300.]

Argued October 20, 21, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Alabama to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Montgomery City Court, in that state, convicting an employee of a breach of a contract of employment, with intent to injure or defraud the employer. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 161 Ala. 75, 49 So. 886.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Edward S. Watts argued the cause, and, with Mr. Daniel W. Troy, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

"Due process of law" requires that a party shall be properly brought into court, and when there, shall have a right to set up any lawful defense.

Wright v. Cradlebaugh, 3 Nev. 341.

"Due process of law" includes an opportunity to answer.

Huber v. Reily, 53 Pa. 112.

"Due process of law" means a law which hears before it condemns.

Clark v. Mitchell, 64 Mo. 564.

Both as a matter of law and fact, every person is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is proved beyond a reasonable doubt; and it is the high and solemn duty of the court to see that all elements of the crime are proved, or that testimony is adduced which justifies the jury in finding these elements.

Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207–222, 49 L. ed. 726–731, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429.

On account of a rule of evidence in Alabama which prevents a person from testifying as to his uncommunicated motives, purposes, or intent, plaintiff in error was unable to show by his own testimony that he entered into the contract in good faith, and that he rescinded the contract for reasons other than those constituting a crime.

McCormick v. Joseph, 77 Ala. 240; Holmes v. State, 136 Ala. 84, 34 So. 180; Bailey v. State, 161 Ala. 75, 49 So. 886; Johnson v. State, 102 Ala. 16, 16 So. 99; Brown v. State, 79 Ala. 54; Harrison v. State, 78 Ala. 11; Alexander v. Alexander, 71 Ala. 298; Burns v. Campbell, 71 Ala. 291; Burke v. State, 71 Ala. 382; Wheless v. Rhodes, 70 Ala. 419.

There was no witness to the execution of the contract by whom plaintiff in error could prove his good faith, nor was there any witness to the rescission of the contract by whom he could prove that he terminated the contract for reasons other than those constituting a crime. Any declaration made by him as to his motives either in entering into the contract, or in failing or refusing to perform the contract, was inadmissible as evidence in his favor on the trial, for it has been established in Alabama that a defendant cannot thus make evidence for himself.

NOTE.—On the constitutionality of statutes providing for imprisonment for breach of contract of labor or rental—see note to Ex parte Hollman, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 242.

Harkness v. State, 129 Ala. 71, 30 So. 73.

The legislature denied "due process of law" when it authorized the court to convict of fraud on no other evidence than that of the execution of a contract, the failure to return the consideration therefor in case of its breach, or the failure to perform the services provided for in the contract.

State v. Norman, 110 N. C. 484, 14 S. E. 968; State v. Williams, 150 N. C. 802, 63 S. E. 949.

The legislature, under the guise of enacting a prima facie rule of evidence, fixed a conclusive one; and by so doing plaintiff in error was denied the opportunity of establishing his case of defense. The act of the legislature creating the rule of evidence denies "due process of law," and is void.

Hovey v. Elliott, 167 U. S. 409, 42 L. ed. 215, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 841; Ex parte Wall, 107 U. S. 289, 27 L. ed. 562, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 569; Galpin v. Page, 18 Wall. 350, 21 L. ed. 959; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 4 L. ed. 629.

There is no criterion laid down by the statute by which one can regulate his actions so as to know that he is abiding by the law.

United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563; James v. Bowman, 190 U. S. 127–140, 47 L. ed. 979–983, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 678; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Dey, 1 L.R.A. 744, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 325, 35 Fed. 876; Tozer v. United States, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 245, 52 Fed. 919; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com. 99 Ky. 132, 33 L.R.A 209, 59 Am. St. Rep. 457, 35 S. W. 129.

"Equal protection of the laws" prohibits class legislation where unreasonable, and where imposing arbitrary, unjust, or odious discrimination.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 9, 21 L.R.A. (N.S.) 242, 60 S. E. 20, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1105; Peonage Cases, 123 Fed. 671; Ex parte Drayton, 153 Fed. 986; State v. Williams, 32 S. C. 123, 10 S. E. 876; Stockton Laundry Case, 26 Fed. 611; Re Sam Kee, 31 Fed. 681; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas 764; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Grand Rapids Chair Co. v. Runnels, 77 Mich. 105, 43 N. W. 1006; Wilder v. Chicago & W. M. R. Co. 70 Mich. 384, 38 N. W. 289; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357.

It is, of course, proper that Bailey should have performed his part of the contract, or should have placed the other party in statu quo.

But it is more improper and unjust to have him burdened as the statute provides.

Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150–159, 41 L. ed. 666–669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 35 L. ed. 225, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232–237, 33 L. ed. 892–895, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356–369, 30 L. ed. 220–226, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27–31, 28 L. ed. 923–925, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357.

Peonage sanctioned involuntary servitude as an obligation growing out of a contract; it sanctioned the exercise of a dominion over the person and liberty of the peon by the master to coerce a liquidation of the obligation under the contract. Even if the entering into the peonage system was voluntary, it became involuntary the moment the peon desired to withdraw, and was coerced to perform the services against his will.

Peonage Cases, 123 Fed. 673; Jaremillo v. Romero, 1 N. M. 190; 30 Cyc. Law & Proc. pp. 1382, et seq.

The statute, in violation of the 13th Amendment, enforces involuntary servitude not in punishment for a crime, and is also repugnant to the peonage statutes in that it violates the 14th Amendment, and is therefore unconstitutional and void, and in no manner authorizes the holding of the plaintiff in error.

Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207, 49 L. ed. 726, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429; Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 9, 21 L.R.A. (N.S.) 242, 60 S. E. 20, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1105; Ex parte Drayton, 153 Fed. 986, Re Lewis, 114 Fed. 963; 30 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1382.

Mr. Fred S. Ball also filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

This statute will be considered according to its real purpose and effect rather than its mere language.

Rogers v. Alabama, 192 U. S. 226, 48 L. ed. 417, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 257; Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92

U. S. 259, 23 L. ed. 543; Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. 325, 18 L. ed. 363.

This statute denies to plaintiff in error his right to trial by jury because it arbitrarily overcomes the presumption of his innocence, and gives him no fair opportunity to rebut the prima facie evidence of his guilt.

Wilmering v. Corbin Bkg. Co. 126 Ala. 279, 28 So. 640; Wilburn v. McCalley, 63 Ala. 436; 24 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 192.

A state may establish and alter rules of evidence as to what constitutes proof of an offense, provided the accused is given a fair opportunity to explain and contest the charge, and the rule is not arbitrary in character.

Com. v. Wallace, 7 Gray, 222; Adams v. New York, 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372.

Statutes have been held valid which make the possession of stolen goods, burglars' tools, gambling paraphernalia, policy slips, and intoxicating liquors in certain cases prima facie evidence of crime, because there is a logical connection between these things and the offense, and evidence is possible and admissible to rebut the prima facie case.

Adam v. New York, 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372.

A statute creating an offense not existing at common law must be sufficiently certain to show what the legislature intended to prohibit and punish; otherwise it will be void for uncertainty.

12 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 142; United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563.

The statute denies to plaintiff in error the equal protection of the laws.

Toney v. State, 141 Ala. 120, 67 L.R.A. 286, 109 Am. St. Rep. 23, 37 So. 332, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 319.

The statute plainly and flagrantly violates the 13th Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Carr v. State, 106 Ala. 35, 34 L.R.A. 634, 54 Am. St. Rep. 17, 17 So. 350; Ex parte Drayton, 153 Fed. 986; State v. Murray, 116 La. 655, 40 So. 930, 7 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 957; Re Thompson, 117 Mo. 83, 20 L.R.A. 462, 38 Am. St. Rep. 639, 22 S. W. 863; Re Turner, 1 Abb. U. S. 84, Fed. Cas. No. 14,247; Clark's Case, 1 Blackf. 122, 12 Am. Dec. 213; Webb v. Webb, 140 Ala. 268, 103 Am. St. Rep. 30, 37 So. 96; United States v. Clement, 171 Fed. 974; Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 9, 21 L.R.A. (N.S.) 242, 60 S. E. 19, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1105; Murray v. Murray, 84 Ala. 365, 4 So. 239.

"Involuntary servitude" includes all forms of compulsory service for the benefit or pleasure of others.

Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 21 L. ed. 394; Civil Rights Case, 109 U. S. 3, 27 L. ed. 836, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207, 49 L. ed. 726, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429; Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U. S. 275, 41 L. ed. 715, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 326.

If the statute here assailed be upheld, will not the practical effect be to legalize and establish a condition of involuntary servitude and virtual peonage?—a condition that world-wide civilization and enlightenment has condemned as utterly destructive of the best elements of manhood in both servant and master.

Clark's Case, 1 Blackf. 122, 12 Am. Dec. 213; Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 9, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 242, 60 S. E. 19, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1105; Butts and Penry, 3 Keble, 785; Chamberlain v. Harvey, 1 Ld. Raym. 146; Smith v. Gould, 2 Ld. Raym. 1275, 2 Salk. 666; Sommersett's Case, 20 How. St. Tr. 82; Lives of Chief Justices of Eng. vol. 3, p. 156, vol. 4, p. 134.

Assistant Attorney General Harr argued the cause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham, filed a brief as amicus curiæ:

Peonage, however created, is compulsory service,—involuntary servitude. The peon can release himself therefrom, it is true, by the payment of the debt, but otherwise the service is enforced.

Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207, 216, 49 L. ed. 726, 729, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429.

The act is the result of a serious effort on the part of the state of Alabama to enforce the performance of labor contracts.

Bailey v. State, 158 Ala. 24, 48 So. 498.

It may be that the legislature can punish fraudulent practices in obtaining property by false pretenses under contract for the performance of an act or service. If such were the real object of the statute, it would be clearly distinguishable from one punishing a mere breach of contract.

Freeman v. United States, 217 U. S. 539, 54 L. ed. 874, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 755.

But is the fact that "on its face the purpose is to punish fraudulent practices, not the mere failure to pay a debt," sufficient? Clearly not. As this court has said, "in whatever language a statute may be framed, its purpose must be determined by its natural and reasonable effect."

Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 268, 23 L. ed. 547.

Fortunately, the supreme court of Alabama has itself informed us as to at least one of the chief objects of the statute, and by a parity of reasoning the other may be easily inferred.

McIntosh v. State, 117 Ala. 128, 23 So. 668.

The judgment in this case, and the statute of Alabama upon which it is founded, are in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States—

(1) As denying the defendant the equal protection of the laws.

Ex parte Drayton, 153 Fed. 986; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 373, 30 L. ed. 220, 227, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 558, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 151, 41 L. ed. 667, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Peonage Cases, 123 Fed. 691.

(2) As depriving the defendant of liberty and property without due process of law.

People v. Cannon, 139 N. Y. 43, 36 Am. St. Rep. 668, 34 N. E. 759; State v. Beswick, 13 R. I. 211, 43 Am. Rep. 26; Board of Excise v. Merchant, 103 N. Y. 148, 57 Am. Rep. 705, 8 N. E. 484; Com. v. Rubin, 165 Mass. 453, 43 N. E. 200; Kelly v. Jackson, 6 Pet. 622, 631, 8 L. ed. 523, 526; Vankirk v. Staats, 24 N. J. L. 123; Steinhardt v. Beir, 28 Jones & S. 489, 16 N. Y. Supp. 609; Mooney v. La Follette, 21 App. Div. 510, 48 N. Y. Supp. 460; Greenl. Ev. § 33.

The principal that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law, axiomatic and elementary; and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our criminal law.

Coffin v. United States, 156 U. S. 432, 453, 39 L. ed. 481, 491, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 394.

The statute would seem to be void for ambiguity.

United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563; 12 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 142.

Consistently with the requirements of due process, no change in ancient procedure can be made which disregards those fundamental principles, to be ascertained from time to time by judicial action, which have relation to process of law, and protect the citizen in his private right, and guard him against the arbitrary action of government.

Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 78, 101, 53 L. ed. 97, 107, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14.

Messrs. Alexander M. Garber and Thomas W. Martin argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The offense is but a species of the common-law crime of cheating by false pretenses; and if in fact the statute does define and punish a crime, there can be no question here of its validity.

Ex parte Riley, 94 Ala. 82, 10 So. 528; Bailey v. State, 158 Ala. 18, 48 So. 498; Toney v. State, 141 Ala. 120, 67 L.R.A. 286, 109 Am. St. Rep. 23, 37 So. 332, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 319; Peonage Cases, 123 Fed. 690; Ex parte Drayton, 153 Fed. 986; Lamar v. State, 120 Ga. 312, 47 S. E. 958; State v. Williams, 150 N. C. 802, 63 S. E. 949; Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 9, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 242, 60 S. E. 19, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1105.

The statute we are now considering is wholly different from the law held to be obnoxious to the state Constitution.

Toney v. State, 141 Ala. 120, 67 L.R.A. 286, 109 Am. St. Rep. 23, 37 So. 332, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 319; Peonage Cases, 123 Fed. 671; Bailey v. State, 158 Ala. 18, 48 So. 498; State v. Vann, 150 Ala. 66, 43 So. 357, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1058.

The statute was meant either to prevent employees from making fraudulent contracts, or to prevent them from obtaining money by promising service.

McIntosh v. State, 117 Ala. 127, 23 So. 668.

This court cannot hold the law to be violative either of the 13th Amendment or of the peonage statute, except on the theory that it imprisons for a debt.

Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207, 49 L. ed. 726, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429.

The statute cannot, by any canon of construction, be held to imprison for debt.

Freeman v. United States, 217 U. S. 539, 54 L. ed. 874, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 755; Re Ebenhack, 17 Kan. 618; State v. Nicholson, 67 Md. 1, 8 Atl. 817; State v. Yardley, 95 Tenn. 546, 34 L.R.A. 656, 32 S. W. 481.

The statute does not deny the equal protection of the laws.

Clark v. Kansas City, 176 U. S. 114, 44 L. ed. 392, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284; Moore v. Missouri, 159 U. S. 673, 40 L. ed. 301, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 179; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247; Halter v. Nebraska, 205 U. S. 34, 51 L. ed. 696, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 525; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. May, 194 U. S. 267, 48 L. ed. 971, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; State v. Chapman, 56 S. C. 420, 76 Am. St. Rep. 557, 34 S. E. 961; Dreyer v. Pease, 88 Fed. 978; Rogers v. Alabama, 192 U. S. 226, 48 L. ed. 417, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 257; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Tinsley v. Anderson, 171 U. S. 101, 43 L. ed. 91, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 805; American Steel & Wire Co.

v. Speed, 192 U. S. 500, 523, 48 L. ed. 538, 547, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 365; Ex parte King, 102 Ala. 182, 15 So. 524; Re Milecke, 52 Wash. 312, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 259, 132 Am. St. Rep. 968, 100 Pac. 743; State v. Yardley, 95 Tenn. 546, 34 L.R.A. 656, 32 S. W. 481; Hutchinson v. Davis, 58 Ill. App. 358; State v. Engle, 156 Ind. 339, 58 N. E. 698.

The statute does not deny due process of law.

Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 78, 53 L. ed. 97, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14; Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U. S. 128, 32 L. ed. 628, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 231; Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 35 L. ed. 225, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579.

The right of the legislature to establish a prima facie rule of evidence in criminal cases has been recognized by every court, state and Federal, in which the question has been presented.

Li Sing v. United States, 180 U. S. 486, 45 L. ed. 634, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 449; Adams v. New York, 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372; Ah How v. United States, 193 U. S. 65, 48 L. ed. 619, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U. S. 698, 719, 37 L. ed. 905, 915, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1016; Com. v. Williams, 6 Gray, 1; State v. Beach, 147 Ind. 74, 36 L.R.A. 179, 43 N. E. 949; State v. Buck, 120 Mo. 479, 25 S. W. 573; State v. Kingsley, 108 Mo. 135, 18 S. W. 994; Meadowcroft v. People, 163 Ill. 56, 35 L.R.A. 176, 54 Am. St. Rep. 447, 45 N. E. 303; Baker v. State, 54 Wis. 368, 12 N. W. 12; Robertson v. People, 20 Colo. 279, 38 Pac. 326, 9 Am. Crim. Rep. 284; Voght v. State, 124 Ind. 358, 24 N. E. 680; People v. Cannon, 139 N. Y. 32, 36 Am. St. Rep. 668, 34 N. E. 759; Board of Excise v. Merchant, 103 N. Y. 148, 57 Am. Rep. 705, 8 N. E. 484; Re Milecke, 52 Wash. 312, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 259, 132 Am. St. Rep. 968, 100 Pac. 743.

The validity of this provision of the statute has been considered and upheld in three different cases by the supreme court of Alabama.

Bailey v. State, 158 Ala. 18, 48 So. 498; State v. Vann, 150 Ala. 66, 43 So. 357, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1058; State v. Thomas, 144 Ala. 77, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1011, 113 Am. Am. St. Rep. 17, 40 So. 271, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 744; State v. Sattley, 131 Mo. 464, 33 S. W. 41.

A prima facie rule of evidence in a criminal case does not overcome the presumption of innocence, or change the burden of proof, or require the jury to convict, unless they are satisfied, from all the evidence, of the guilt of the accused beyond a reasonable doubt.

24 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 192.

Nor does the presumption of innocence attend a defendant throughout the whole trial, but only "until sufficient evidence is introduced to overcome the proof which the law has created."

Coffin v. United States, 156 U. S. 453, 39 L. ed. 491, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 394.

Moreover, whether the facts are consistent with innocence is a conclusion for the jury to draw; and they may, notwithstanding the present rule of evidence, find the defendant not guilty. It is the duty of the jury to consider all the evidence in the case, and to find the defendant not guilty if a reasonable doubt arises out of any part of the evidence.

Hurd v. State, 94 Ala. 100, 10 So. 528.

Under an indictment for larceny, certain presumptions arise against the defendant from recent possession of stolen goods. As said by Judge Brickell, in Martin v. State, 104 Ala. 78, 16 So. 82: "It is the settled law of this state, that the recent possessions of stolen goods imposes on the possessor the onus of explaining the possession; and, if he fails to make a reasonable explanation, raises a presumption of guilt, which will support a verdict of guilty."

To the same effect, see Wilson v. United States, 162 U. S. 613, 40 L. ed. 1090, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 895; Considine v. United States, 50 C. C. A. 272, 112 Fed. 342.

At the same time, our court recognizes the doctrine of the presumption of innocence. See Newsom v. State, 107 Ala. 133, 18 So. 206.

The entire contention of a class discrimination calls on this court to disregard the interpretation given to a state statute by the court of last resort of the state, and, by an adverse construction, to decide that the state law is repugnant to the Constitution of the United States. But the elementary rule is that this court accepts the interpretation of a statute of a state, affixed to it by the court of last resort thereof.

Tullis v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. 175 U. S. 348, 353, 44 L. ed. 192, 194, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; American Steel & Wire Co. v. Speed, 192 U. S. 523, 48 L. ed. 547, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 365.

While we are confident that the statute is valid in its entirety, and that the rule of evidence should be upheld, yet, if the court should be of opinion that the statute, as originally passed, was valid, and that the rule of evidence is an improper exercise of legislative power, then we insist that the original statute would remain in force.

Marshall Field & Co. v. Clark, 143 U. S. 649, 36 L. ed. 294, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495; Allen v. Louisiana. 103 U. S. 80, 83, 26

L. ed. 318, 319; Baldwin v. Franks, 120 U. S. 678, 30 L. ed. 766, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 656, 763; Kimmish v. Ball, 129 U. S. 217, 32 L. ed. 695, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 407, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277; Noble v. Mitchell, 164 U. S. 367, 41 L. ed. 472, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Bailey v. Alabama, 211 U. S. 453, 53 L. ed. 278, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141.

Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a writ of error to review a judgment of the supreme court of the state of Alabama, affirming a judgment of conviction in the Montgomery city court. The statute upon which the conviction was based is assailed as in violation of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States upon the ground that it deprived the plaintiff in error of his liberty without due process of law and denied him the equal protection of the laws, and also of the 13th Amendment, and of the act of Congress providing for the enforcement of that Amendment, in that the effect of the statute is to enforce involuntary servitude by compelling personal service in liquidation of a debt.

The statute in question is § 4730 of the Code of Alabama of 1896, as amended in 1903 and 1907. The section of the Code as it stood before the amendments provided that any person who, with intent to injure or defraud his employer, entered into a written contract for service, and thereby obtained from his employer money or other personal property, and with like intent and without just cause, and without refunding the money or paying for the property, refused to perform the service, should be punished as if he had stolen it. In 1903 (Gen. Acts [Ala.]1903, p. 345) the section was amended so as to make the refusal or failure to perform the service, or to refund the money, or pay for the property, without just cause, prima facie evidence of the intent to injure or defraud. This amendment was enlarged by that of 1907. Gen. Acts. (Ala.) 1907, p. 636. The section, thus amended, reads as follows:

"Any person who, with intent to injure or 228]defraud his *employer, enters into a contract in writing for the performance of any act of service, and thereby obtains money or other personal property from such employer, and with like intent, and without just cause, and without refunding such money, or paying for such property, refuses or fails to perform such act or service, must on conviction be punished by a fine in double the damage suffered by the injured party, but not more than $300, one half of said fine to go to the county and one half to the party injured; and any person who, with intent to injure or defraud his landlord, enters into any contract in writing for the rent of land, and thereby obtains any money or other personal property from such landlord, and with like intent, without just cause, and without refunding such money, or paying for such property, refuses or fails to cultivate such land, or to comply with his contract relative thereto, must on conviction be punished by fine in double the damage suffered by the injured party, but not more than $300, one half of said fine to go to the county and one half to the party injured. And the refusal or failure of any person, who enters into such contract, to perform such act or service, or to cultivate such land, or refund such money, or pay for such property, without just cause, shall be prima facie evidence of the intent to injure his employer or landlord or defraud him. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions hereof be and the same are hereby repealed."

There is also a rule of evidence enforced by the courts of Alabama which must be regarded as having the same effect as if read into the statute itself, that the accused, for the purpose of rebutting the statutory presumption, shall not be allowed to testify "as to his uncommunicated motives, purpose, or intention." 161 Ala. 77, 78, 49 So. 886.

Bailey, the plaintiff in error, was committed for detention on the charge of obtaining $15 under a *contract in writing with[229 intent to injure or defraud his employer. He sued out a writ of habeas corpus, challenging the validity of the statute. His discharge was refused, and the supreme court of the state affirmed the order, holding the statute to be constitutional. 158 Ala. 18, 48 So. 498. On writ of error from this court it was held that the case was brought here prematurely, and the questions now presented were expressly reserved. Bailey v. Alabama, 211 U. S. 452, 53 L. ed. 278, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141.

Having failed to obtain his release on habeas corpus, Bailey was indicted on the following charge:

"The grand jury of said county charge that before the finding of this indictment Alonzo Bailey, with intent to injure or defraud his employer, the Riverside Company, a corporation, entered into a written contract to perform labor or services for the Riverside Company, a corporation, and obtained thereby the sum of $15 from the said the Riverside Company, and afterwards with like intent, and without just cause, failed or refused to perform such labor or services, or to refund such money, against the peace and dignity of the state of Alabama."

Motion to quash and a demurrer to the indictment were overruled. Upon the trial the following facts appeared: On December 26, 1907, Bailey entered into a written contract with the Riverside Company, which provided:

"That I, Lonzo Bailey, for and in consideration of the sum of $15 in money, this day in hand paid to me by said the Riverside Company, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, I, the said Lonzo Bailey, do hereby consent, contract, and agree to work and labor for the said Riverside Company as a farm hand on their Scott's Bend place in Montgomery county, Alabama, from the 30 day of December, 1907, to the 30 day of December, 1908, at and for the sum of $12 per month.

230] *"And the said Lonzo Bailey agrees to render respectful and faithful service to the said the Riverside Company, and to perform diligently and actively all work pertaining to such employment, in accordance with the instructions of the said the Riverside Company or agent.

"And the said the Riverside Company, in consideration of the agreement above mentioned of the said Lonzo Bailey, hereby employs the said Lonzo Bailey as such farm hand for the time above set out, and agrees to pay the said Lonzo Bailey the sum of $10.75 per month."

The manager of the employing company testified that at the time of entering into this contract there were present only the witness and Bailey, and that the latter then obtained from the company the sum of $15; that Bailey worked under the contract throughout the month of January and for three or four days in February, 1908, and then, "without just cause, and without refunding the money, ceased to work for said Riverside Company, and has not since that time performed any service for said company in accordance with or under said contract, and has refused and failed to perform any further service thereunder, and has, without just cause, refused and failed to refund said $15." He also testified, in response to a question from the attorney for the defendant, and against the objection of the state, that Bailey was a negro. No other evidence was introduced.

The court, after defining the crime in the language of the statute, charged the jury, in accordance with its terms, as follows:

"And the refusal of any person who enters into such contract to perform such act or service, or refund such money, or pay for such property, without just cause, shall be prima facie evidence of the intent to injure his employer, or to defraud him."

Bailey excepted to these instructions, and requested the court to instruct the jury that the statute and the *provision creat- [231 ing the presumption were invalid, and further that "the refusal or failure of the defendant to perform the service alleged in the indictment, or to refund the money obtained from the Riverside Company under the contract between it and the defendant, without cause, does not of itself make out a prima facie case of the defendant's intent to injure or defraud said Riverside Company."

The court refused these instructions and Bailey took exception.

The jury found the accused guilty, fixed the damages sustained by the injured party at $15, and assessed a fine of $30. Thereupon Bailey was sentenced by the court to pay the fine of $30 and the costs, and in default thereof to hard labor "for twenty days in lieu of said fine, and one hundred and sixteen days on account of said costs."

On appeal to the supreme court of the state, the constitutionality of the statute was again upheld and the judgment affirmed. 161 Ala. 75, 49 So. 886.

We at once dismiss from consideration the fact that the plaintiff in error is a black man. While the action of a state, through its officers charged with the administration of a law fair in appearance, may be of such a character as to constitute a denial of the equal protection of the laws (Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 373, 30 L. ed. 220, 227, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064), such a conclusion is here neither required nor justified. The statute, on its face, makes no racial discrimination, and the record fails to show its existence in fact. No question of a sectional character is presented, and we may view the legislation in the same manner as if it had been enacted in New York or in Idaho. Opportunities for coercion and oppression, in varying circumstances, exist in all parts of the Union, and the citizens of all the states are interested in the maintenance of the constitutional guaranties, the consideration of which is here involved.

*Prior to the amendment of the year [232 1903, enlarged in 1907, the statute did not make the mere breach of the contract, under which the employee had obtained from his employer money which was not refunded or property which was not paid for, a crime. The essential ingredient of the offense was the intent of the accused to injure or defraud. To justify conviction, it was necessary that this intent should be etasblished by competent evidence, aided only by such inferences as might logically be derived from the facts proved, and should not be the subject of mere surmise or arbitrary assumption.

This was the construction which the supreme court of Alabama placed upon the statute, as it then stood, in Ex parte Riley, 94 Ala. 82, 10 So. 528. In that case the court said (id. 83, 84):

"The ingredients of this statutory offense are: (1) A contract in writing by the accused for the performance of any act or service; (2) an intent on the part of the accused, when he entered into the contract, to injure or defraud his employer; (3) the obtaining by the accused of money or other personal property from such employer by means of such contract entered into with such intent; and (4) the refusal by the accused, with like intent, and without just cause, and without refunding such money, or paying for such property, to perform such act or service. This statute by no means provides that a person who has entered into a written contract for the performance of services, under which he has obtained money or other personal property, is punishable as if he had stolen such money or other personal property, upon his refusal to perform the contract, without refunding the money or paying for the property. A mere breach of a contract is not by the statute made a crime. The criminal feature of the transaction is wanting unless the accused entered into the contract with intent to injure or defraud his employer, and unless his refusal to perform [233]*was with like intent and without just cause. That there was an intent to injure or defraud the employer, both when the contract was entered into and when the accused refused performance, are facts which must be shown by the evidence. As the intent is the design, purpose, resolve, or determination in the mind of the accused, it can rarely be proved by direct evidence, but must be ascertained by means of inferences from the facts and circumstances developed by the proof. Carlisle v. State, 76 Ala. 75; Mack v. State, 63 Ala. 138. In the absence, however, of evidence from which such inferences may be drawn, the jury are not justified in indulging in mere unsupported conjectures, speculations, or suspicions as to intentions which were not disclosed by any visible or tangible act, expression, or circumstance. Green v. State, 68 Ala. 539." See also Dorsey v. State, 111 Ala. 40, 20 So. 629; McIntosh v. State, 117 Ala. 128, 23 So. 668.

We pass, then, to the consideration of the amendment, through the operation of which under the charge of the trial court this conviction was obtained. No longer was it necessary for the prosecution to comply with the rule of the Riley Case (supra) in order to establish the intent to injure or defraud which, as the court said, constituted the gist of the offense. It was "the difficulty in proving the intent, made patent by that decision," which "suggested the amendment of 1903." Bailey v. State, 158 Ala. p. 25, 48 So. 498. By this amendment it was provided, in substance, that the refusal or failure to perfom the service contracted for, or to refund the money obtained, without just cause, should be prima facie evidence of the intent to injure or defraud.

But the refusal or failure to perform the service, without just cause, constitutes the breach of the contract. The justice of the grounds of refusal or failure must, of course, be determined by the contractual obligation assumed. *Whatever the rea-[234 son for leaving the service, if, judged by the terms of the contract, it is insufficient in law, it is not "just cause." The money received and repayable, nothing more being shown, constitutes a mere debt. The asserted difficulty of proving the intent to injure or defraud is thus made the occasion for dispensing with such proof, so far as the prima facie case is concerned. And the mere breach of a contract for personal service, coupled with the mere failure to pay a debt which was to be liquidated in the course of such service, is made sufficient to warrant a conviction.

It is no answer to say that the jury must find, and here found, that a fraudulent intent existed. The jury by their verdict cannot add to the facts before them. If nothing be shown but a mere breach of a contract of service and a mere failure to pay a debt, the jury have nothing else to go upon, and the evidence becomes nothing more because of their finding. Had it not been for this statutory presumption, supplied by the amendment, no one would be heard to say that Bailey could have been convicted.

Prima facie evidence is sufficient evidence to outweigh the presumption of innocence, and if not met by opposing evidence, to support a verdict of guilty. "It is such as, in judgment of law, is sufficient to establish the fact; and, if not rebutted, remains sufficient for the purpose." Kelly v. Jackson, 6 Pet. 632, 8 L. ed. 526.

We are not impressed with the argument that the supreme court of Alabama has construed the amendment to mean that the jury is not controlled by the presumption, if unrebutted, and still may find the accused not guilty. That court, in its opinion, said: "Again, it must be borne in mind that the rule of evidence fixed by the statute does not make it the duty of the jury to convict on the evidence referred to in the enactment, if unrebutted, whether satisfied thereby of the guilt of the accused beyond a reasonable doubt or not. On the contrary, *with such evidence before them, the[235 jury are still left free to find the accused guilty or not guilty, according as they may be satisfied of his guilt or not, by the whole evidence." 161 Ala. 78, 49 So. 886.

But the controlling construction of the statute is the affirmance of this judgment of conviction. It is not sufficient to declare that the statute does not make it the duty of the jury to convict, where there is no other evidence but the breach of the contract and the failure to pay the debt. The point is that, in such a case, the statute authorizes the jury to convict. It is not enough to say that the jury may not accept that evidence as alone sufficient; for the jury may accept it, and they have the express warrant of the statute to accept it as a basis for their verdict. And it is in this light that the validity of the statute must be determined.

It is urged that the time and circumstances of the departure from service may be such as to raise not only an inference, but a strong inference, of fraudulent intent. There was no need to create a statutory presumption, and it was not created for such a case. Where circumstances are shown permitting a fair inference of fraudulent purpose, the case falls within the rule of Ex parte Riley (supra), which governed prosecutions under the statute before the amendment was made. The "difficulty," which admittedly the amendment was intended to surmount, did not exist where natural inferences sufficed. Plainly, the object of the statute was to hit cases which were destitute of such inferences, and to provide that the mere breach of the contract and the mere failure to pay the debt might do duty in their absence.

While, in considering the natural operation and effect of the statute, as amended, we are not limited to the particular facts of the case at the bar, they present an illuminating illustration. We may briefly restate them. Bailey made a contract to work 236]for a year at $12 a month. He *received $15, and he was to work this out, being entitled monthly only to $10.75 of his wages. No one was present when he made the contract but himself and the manager of the employing company. There is not a particle of evidence of any circumstance indicating that he made the contract or received the money with any intent to injure or defraud his employer. On the contrary, he actually worked for upwards of a month. His motive in leaving does not appear, the only showing being that it was without legal excuse and that he did not repay the money received. For this he is sentenced to a fine of $30 and to imprisonment at hard labor, in default of the payment of the fine and costs, for 136 days. Was not the case the same in effect as if the statute had made it a criminal act to leave the service without just cause and without liquidating the debt? To say that he has been found guilty of an intent to injure or defraud his employer, and not merely for breaking his contract and not paying his debt, is a distinction without a difference to Bailey.

Consider the situation of the accused under this statutory presumption. If, at the outset, nothing took place but the making of the contract and the receipt of the money, he could show nothing else. If there was no legal justification for his leaving his employment, he could show none. If he had not paid the debt, there was nothing to be said as to that. The law of the state did not permit him to testify that he did not intend to injure or defraud. Unless he were fortunate enough to be able to command evidence of circumstances affirmatively showing good faith, he was helpless. He stood, stripped by the statute of the presumption of innocence, and exposed to conviction for fraud upon evidence only of breach of contract and failure to pay.

It is said that we may assume that a fair jury would convict only where the circumstances sufficiently indicated a fraudulent intent. Why should this be assumed *in[237 the face of the statute and upon this record? In the present case the jury did convict, although there is an absence of evidence sufficient to establish fraud under the familiar rule that fraud will not be presumed, and the obvious explanation of the verdict is that the trial court, in accordance with the statute, charged the jury that refusal to perform the service, or to repay the money, without just cause, constituted prima facie evidence of the commission of the offense which the statute defined. That is, the jury were told in effect that the evidence, under the statutory rule, was sufficient, and hence they treated it as such. There is no basis for an assumption that the jury would have acted differently if Bailey had worked for three months, or six months, or nine months, if in fact his debt had not been paid. The normal assumption is that the jury will follow the statute, and, acting in accordance with the authority it confers, will accept as sufficient what the statute expressly so describes.

It may further be observed that under the statute, there is no punishment for the alleged fraud if the service is performed or the money refunded. If the service is rendered in liquidation of the debt, there is no punishment; and if it is not rendered, and the money is not refunded, that fact alone is sufficient for conviction. By a statute passed by the legislature of Alabama in 1901, it was made a misdemeanor for any person who had made a written contract to labor for or serve another for any given time, to leave the service before the expiration of the contract, and without the consent of the employer, and to make a second contract of similar nature with another person without giving the second employer notice of the existence of the first contract. This was held unconstitutional upon the ground that it interfered with freedom of contract. Toney v. State, 141 Ala. 120, 67 L.R.A. 286, 109 Am. St. Rep. 23, 37 So. 332, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 319. But, judging it by its necessary operation and obvious effect, the fundamental purpose plainly was 238]to compel, under the sanction *of the criminal law, the enforcement of the contract for personal service, and the same purpose, tested by like criteria, breathes despite its different phraseology through the amendments of 1903 and 1907 of the statute here in question.

We cannot escape the conclusion that, althought the statute in terms is to punish fraud, still its natural and inevitable effect is to expose to conviction for crime those who simply fail or refuse to perform contracts for personal service in liquidation of a debt; and judging its purpose by its effect, that it seeks in this way to provide the means of compulsion through which performance of such service may be secured. The question is whether such a statute is constitutional.

This court has frequently recognized the general power of every legislature to prescribe the evidence which shall be received, and the effect of that evidence, in the courts of its own government. Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U. S. 698, 749, 37 L. ed. 905, 925, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1016. In the exercise of this power numerous statutes have been enacted providing that proof of one fact shall be prima facie evidence of the main fact in issue; and where the inference is not purely arbitrary, and there is a rational relation between the two facts, and the accused is not deprived of a proper opportunity to submit all the facts bearing upon the issue, it has been held that such statutes do not violate the requirements of due process of law, or a denial of the equal 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372; Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed, decided by this court December 19, 1910 [219 U. S. 35, ante, 78, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136].

The latest expression upon this point is found in the case last cited, where the court, by Mr. Justice Lurton, said: "That a legislative presumption of one fact from evidence of another may not constitute a denial of due process of law, or a denial of the equal protection of the law, it is only essential that there shall be some rational connection between the fact proved and the ultimate fact *presumed, and that the infer-[239 ence of one fact from proof of another shall not be so unreasonable as to be a purely arbitrary mandate. So, also, it must not, under guise of regulating the presentation of evidence, operate to preclude the party from the right to present his defense to the main fact thus presumed. If a legislative provision not unreasonable in itself, prescribing a rule of evidence, in either criminal or civil cases, does not shut out from the party affected a reasonable opportunity to submit to the jury in his defense all of the facts bearing upon the issue, there is no ground for holding that due process of law has been denied him."

In this class of cases where the entire subject-matter of the legislation is otherwise within state control, the question has been whether the prescribed rule of evidence interferes with the guaranteed equality before the law, or violates those fundamental rights and immutable principles of justice which are embraced within the conception of due process of law. But where the conduct or fact, the existence of which is made the basis of the statutory presumption, itself falls within the scope of a provision of the Federal Constitution, a further question arises. It is apparent that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions. And the state may not in this way interfere with matters withdrawn from its authority by the Federal Constitution, or subject an accused to conviction for conduct which it is powerless to proscribe.

In the present case it is urged that the statute as amended, through the operation of the presumption for which it provides, violates the 13th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States and the act of Congress passed for its enforcement.

*The 13th Amendment provides:[240

"Section 1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

"Section 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

Pursuant to the authority thus conferred, Congress passed the act of March 2, 1867, chap. 187, 14 Stat. at L. 546, the provisions of which are now found in §§ 1990 and 5526 of the Revised Statutes (U. S.

Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1266, 3715), as follows:

"Sec. 1990. The holding of any person to service or labor under the system known as peonage is abolished and forever prohibited in the territory of New Mexico, or in any other territory or state of the United States; and all acts, laws, resolutions, orders, regulations, or usages of the territory of New Mexico, or of any other territory or state, which have heretofore established, maintained, or enforced, or by virtue of which any attempt shall hereafter be made to establish, maintain, or enforce, directly or indirectly, the voluntary or involuntary service or labor of any persons as peons, in liquidation of any debt or obligation, or otherwise, are declared null and void."

"Sec. 5526. Every person who holds, arrests, returns, or causes to be held, arrested, or returned, or in any manner aids in the arrest or return, of any person to a condition of peonage, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one thousand nor more than five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not less than one year nor more than five years, or by both."

The language of the 13th Amendment was not new. It reproduced the historic words of the ordinance of 1787 for the government of the Northwest territory, and gave them unrestricted application within the United States and all places subject to their jurisdiction. While the immediate concern was with African slavery, the 241]*Amendment was not limited to that. It was a charter of universal civil freedom for all persons, of whatever race, color, or estate, under the flag.

The words involuntary servitude have a "larger meaning than slavery."

"It was very well understood that, in the form of apprenticeship for long terms, as it had been practised in the West India Islands, on the abolition of slavery by the English government, or by reducing the slaves to the condition of serfs attached to the plantation, the purpose of the article might have been evaded, if only the word 'slavery' had been used." Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. p. 69, 21 L. ed. 406. The plain intention was to abolish slavery of whatever name and form and all its badges and incidents; to render impossible any state of bondage; to make labor free, by prohibiting that control by which the personal service of one man is disposed of or coerced for another's benefit, which is the essence of involuntary servitude.

While the Amendment was self-executing, so far as its terms were applicable to any existing condition, Congress was authorized to secure its complete enforcement by appropriate legislation. As was said in the Civil Rights Cases: "By its own unaided force and effect it abolished slavery, and established universal freedom. Still, legislation may be necessary and proper to meet all the various cases and circumstances to be affected by it, and to prescribe proper modes of redress for its violation in letter or spirit. And such legislation may be primary and direct in its character; for the Amendment is not a mere prohibition of state laws establishing or upholding slavery, but an absolute declaration that slavery or involuntary servitude shall not exist in any part of the United States." 109 U. S. 20, 27 L. ed. 842, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18.

The act of March 2, 1867 (Rev. Stat. §§ 1990 and 5526, supra), was a valid exercise of this express authority. Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207, 49 L. ed. 726, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429. It declared that all laws of any state, by virtue of which any attempt should be made "to establish, maintain, or enforce, directly or *indirect-[242 ly, the voluntary or involuntary service or labor of any person as peons, in liquidation of any debt or obligation, or otherwise," should be null and void.

Peonage is a term descriptive of a condition which has existed in Spanish America, and especially in Mexico. The essence of the thing is compulsory service in payment of a debt. A peon is one who is compelled to work for his creditor until his debt is paid. And in this explicit and comprehensive enactment, Congress was not concerned with mere names or manner of description, or with a particular place or section of the country. It was concerned with a fact, wherever it might exist; with a condition, however named and wherever it might be established, maintained, or enforced.

The fact that the debtor contracted to perform the labor which is sought to be compelled does not withdraw the attempted enforcement from the condemnation of the statute. The full intent of the constitutional provision could be defeated with obvious facility if, through the guise of contracts under which advances had been made, debtors could be held to compulsory service. It is the compulsion of the service that the statute inhibits, for when that occurs, the condition of servitude is created, which would be not less involuntary because of the original agreement to work out the indebtedness. The contract exposes the debtor to liability for the loss due to the breach, but not to enforced labor. This has been so clearly stated by this court in the case of Clyatt, supra, that discussion is unnecessary. The court there said:

"The constitutionality and scope of §§ 1990 and 5526 present the first questions for our consideration. They prohibit peonage. What is peonage? It may be defined as a status or condition of compulsory service, based upon the indebtedness of the peon to the master. The basal fact is indebtedness. As said by Judge Benedict, delivering the opinion in Jaremillo v. Romero, 243]1 N. M. 190, 194: *'One fact existed universally; all were indebted to their masters. This was the cord by which they seemed bound to their masters' service.' Upon this is based a condition of compulsory service. Peonage is sometimes classified as voluntary or involuntary, but this implies simply a difference in the mode of origin, but none in the character of the servitude. The one exists where the debtor voluntarily contracts to enter the service of his creditor. The other is forced upon the debtor by some provision of law. But peonage, however created, is compulsory service, involuntary servitude. The peon can release himself therefrom, it is true, by the payment of the debt, but otherwise the service is enforced. A clear distinction exists between peonage and the voluntary performance of labor or rendering of services in payment of a debt. In the latter case the debtor, though contracting to pay his indebtedness by labor or service, and subject like any other contractor to an action for damages for breach of that contract, can elect at any time to break it, and no law or force compels performance or a continuance of the service. We need not stop to consider any possible limits or exceptional cases, such as the service of a sailor (Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U. S. 275, 41 L. ed. 715, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 326), or the obligations of a child to its parents, or of an apprentice to his master, or the power of the legislature to make unlawful and punish criminally an abandonment by an employee of his post of labor in any extreme cases. That which is contemplated by the statute is compulsory service to secure the payment of a debt." 197 U. S. pp. 215, 216.

The act of Congress, nullifying all state laws by which it should be attempted to enforce the "service or labor of any persons as peons, in liquidation of any debt or obligation, or otherwise," necessarily embraces all legislation which seeks to compel the service or labor by making it a crime to refuse or fail to perform it. Such laws would furnish the readiest means of compulsion. 244]The 13th *Amendment prohibits involuntary servitude except as punishment for crime. But the exception, allowing full latitude for the enforcement of penal laws, does not destroy the prohibition. It does not permit slavery or involuntary servitude to be established or maintained through the operation of the criminal law by making it a crime to refuse to submit to the one or to render the service which would constitute the other. The state may impose involuntary servitude as a punishment for crime, but it may not compel one man to labor for another in payment of a debt, by punishing him as a criminal if he does not perform the service or pay the debt.

If the statute in this case had authorized the employing company to seize the debtor, and hold him to the service until he paid the $15, or had furnished the equivalent in labor, its invalidity would not be questioned. It would be equally clear that the state could not authorize its constabulary to prevent the servant from escaping, and to force him to work out his debt. But the state could not avail itself of the sanction of the criminal law to supply the compulsion any more than it could use or authorize the use of physical force. "In contemplation of the law, the compulsion to such service by the fear of punishment under a criminal statute is more powerful than any guard which the employer could station." Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 22, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 249, 60 S. E. p. 24, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1109.

What the state may not do directly it may not do indirectly. If it cannot punish the servant as a criminal for the mere failure or refusal to serve without paying his debt, it is not permitted to accomplish the same result by creating a statutory presumption which, upon proof of no other fact, exposes him to conviction and punishment. Without imputing any actual motive to oppress, we must consider the natural operation of the statute here in question (Henderson v. New York [Henderson v. Wickham] 92 U. S. p. 268, 23 L. ed. 547), and it is apparent that it furnishes a convenient instrument for the coercion *which[245 the Constitution and the act of Congress forbid; an instrument of compulsion peculiarly effective as against the poor and the ignorant, its most likely victims. There is no more important concern than to safeguard the freedom of labor upon which alone can enduring prosperity be based. The provision designed to secure it would soon become a barren form if it were possible to establish a statutory presumption of this sort, and to hold over the heads of laborers the threat of punishment for crime, under the name of fraud, but merely upon evidence of failure to work out their debts. The act of Congress deprives of effect all legislative measures of any state through which, directly or indirectly, the prohibited thing, to wit, compulsory service to secure the payment of a debt, may be established or maintained; and we conclude that § 4730, as amended, of the Code of Alabama, in so far as it makes the refusal or failure to perform the act or service, without refunding the money or paying for the property prima facie evidence of the commission received of the crime which the section defines, is in conflict with the 13th Amendment, and the legislation authorized by that Amendment, and is therefore invalid.

In this view it is unnecessary to consider the contentions which have been made under the 14th Amendment. As the case was given to the jury under instructions which authorized a verdict in accordance with the statutory presumption, and the opposing instructions requested by the accused were refused, the judgment must be reversed.

Reversed and cause remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Mr. Justice Holmes, dissenting:

We all agree that this case is to be considered and decided in the same way as if it [246]arose in Idaho or New York. *Neither public document nor evidence discloses a law which, by its administration, is made something different from what it appears on its face, and therefore the fact that in Alabama it mainly concerns the blacks does not matter. Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064, does not apply. I shall begin, then, by assuming for the moment what I think is not true, and shall try to show not to be true, that this statute punishes the mere refusal to labor according to contract as a crime, and shall inquire whether there would be anything contrary to the 13th Amendment or the statute if it did, supposing it to have been enacted in the state of New York. I cannot believe it. The 13th Amendment does not outlaw contracts for labor. That would be at least as great a misfortune for the laborer as for the man that employed him. For it certainly would affect the terms of the bargain unfavorably for the laboring man if it were understood that the employer could do nothing in case the laborer saw fit to break his word. But any legal liability for breach of a contract is a disagreeable consequence which tends to make the contractor do as he said he would. Liability to an action for damages has that tendency as well a fine. If the mere imposition of such consequences as tend to make a man keep to his promise is the creation of peonage when the contract happens to be for labor, I do not see why the allowance of a civil action is not, as well as an indictment ending in fine. Peonage is service to a private master at which a man is kept by bodily compulsion against his will. But the creation of the ordinary legal motives for right conduct does not produce it. Breach of a legal contract without excuse is wrong conduct, even if the contract is for labor; and if a state adds to civil liability a criminal liability to fine, it simply intensifies the legal motive for doing right; it does not make the laborer a slave.

But if a fine may be imposed, imprisonment may be *imposed in case of a[247 failure to pay it. Nor does it matter if labor is added to the imprisonment. Imprisonment with hard labor is not stricken from the statute books. On the contrary, involuntary servitude as a punishment for crime is excepted from the prohibition of the 13th Amendment in so many words. Also the power of the states to make breach of contract a crime is not done away with by the abolition of slavery. But if breach of contract may be made a crime at all, it may be made a crime with all the consequences usually attached to crime. There is produced a sort of illusion if a contract to labor ends in compulsory labor in a prison. But compulsory work for no private master in a jail is not peonage. If work in a jail is not condemned in itself, without regard to what the conduct is it punishes, it may be made a consequence of any conduct that the state has power to punish at all. I do not blink the fact that the liability to imprisonment may work as a motive when a fine without it would not, and that it may induce the laborer to keep on when he would like to leave. But it does not strike me as an objection to a law that it is effective. If the contract is one that ought not to be made, prohibit it. But if it is a perfectly fair and proper contract, I can see no reason why the state should not throw its weight on the side of performance. There is no relation between its doing so in the manner supposed, and allowing a private master to use private force upon a laborer who wishes to leave.

But all that I have said so far goes beyond the needs of the case as I understand it. I think it a mistake to say that this statute attaches its punishment to the mere breach of a contract to labor. It does not purport to do so; what it purports to punish is fraudulently obtaining money by a false pretense of an intent to keep the written contract in consideration of which the money is advanced. (It is not necessary to cite cases to show that such an intent *may be the subject of a material[248 false representation.) But the import of the statute is supposed to be changed by the provision, that a refusal to perform, coupled with a failure to return the money advanced, shall be prima facie evidence of fraudulent intent. I agree that if the statute created a conclusive presumption, it might be held to make a disguised change in the substantive law. Keller v. United States, 213 U. S. 138, 150, 53 L. ed. 737, 741, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 470, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1066. But it only makes the conduct prima facie evidence,—a very different matter. Is it not evidence that a man had a fraudulent intent if he receives an advance upon a contract over night and leaves in the morning? I should have thought that it very plainly was. Of course, the statute is in general terms, and applies to a departure at any time without excuse or repayment, but that does no harm except on a tacit assumption that this law is not administered as it would be in New York, and that juries will act with prejudice against the laboring man. For prima facie evidence is only evidence, and as such may be held by the jury insufficient to make out guilt. 161 Ala. 78, 49 So. 886. This was decided by the supreme court of Alabama in this case, and we should be bound by their construction of the statute, even if we thought it wrong. But I venture to add that I think it entirely right. State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 80 Me. 57, 12 Atl. 794, 7 Am. Crim. Rep. 291. This being so, I take it that a fair jury would acquit, if the only evidence were a departure after eleven months' work, and if it received no color from some special well-known course of events. But the matter well may be left to a jury, because their experience as men of the world may teach them that in certain conditions it is so common for laborers to remain during a part of the season, receiving advances, and then to depart at the period of need, in the hope of greater wages at a neighboring plantation, that when a laborer follows that course there is a fair inference of fact that he intended it from the beginning. The Alabama 249]statute, *as construed by the state court and as we must take it, merely says, as a court might say, that the prosecution may go to the jury. This means, and means only, that the court cannot say, from its knowledge of the ordinary course of events, that the jury could not be justified by its knowledge in drawing the inference from the facts proved. In my opinion, the statute embodies little if anything more than what I should have told the jury was the law without it. The right of the state to regulate laws of evidence is admitted, and the statute does not go much beyond the common law. Com. v. Rubin, 165 Mass. 453, 43 N. E. 200.

I do not see how the result that I have reached thus far is affected by the rule laid down by the court, but not contained in the statute, that the prisoner cannot testify to his uncommunicated intentions, and therefore, it is assumed, would not be permitted to offer a naked denial of an intent to defraud. If there is an excuse for breaking the contract, it will be found in external circumstances, and can be proved. So the sum of the wrong supposed to be inflicted is that the intent to go off without repaying may be put further back than it would be otherwise. But if there is a wrong it lies in leaving the evidence to the jury,—a wrong that is not affected by the letting in or keeping out an item of evidence on the other side. I have stated why I think it was not a wrong.

To sum up, I think that obtaining money by fraud may be made a crime as well as murder or theft; that a false representation, expressed or implied, at the time of making a contract of labor, that one intends to perform it, and thereby obtaining an advance, may be declared a case of fraudulently obtaining money as well as any other; that if made a crime it may be punished like any other crime; and that an unjustified departure from the promised service without repayment may be declared a sufficient case to go to the jury for their judgment; all without in any *way[250 infringing the 13th Amendment or the statutes of the United States.

Mr. Justice Lurton concurs in this dissent.

UNITED STATES, Plff. in Err.,
v.
CARL S. CHAMBERLIN, D. H. Rice, and Tyson S. Dines, as Executors of the Last Will and Testament of Winfield Scott Stratton, Deceased, Defendants in Error.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 250-270.)

Debt — for stamp tax — other remedies not exclusive.

1. The stamp tax which, under the war revenue act of June 13, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 448, chap. 448, U. S. Comp Stat. 1901, p. 2286), § 6, is to be "levied, collected, and paid" upon the execution of a conveyance, may be recovered by the United States in an action of debt, notwithstanding the further provisions of the statute imposing fine or imprisonment for issuing an unstamped conveyance, and making such unstamped instrument inadmissible in evidence, incapable of record, and invalid and of no effect, which must be deemed made in order to induce the payment of the tax, and not as substitutes for payment.

NOTE.—On retrospective legislation—see notes to Otoe County v. Baldwin, 28 L. ed. U. S. 331, and Barnitz v. Beverly, 41 L. ed. U. S. 94.

[For other cases, see Debt, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — retrospective operation — validating unstamped conveyance.

2. Conveyances of land previously made, as well as those subsequently executed, were comprehended by the amendment of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. at L. 941, chap. 806, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2296), by which the language of the original proviso in the war revenue act of June 13, 1908, § 13, for validating unstamped bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock or indebtedness, on making the prescribed payment, was broadened to as to embrace any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever mentioned in schedule A of the act, which specifically mentioned conveyances of land.

[For other cases, see Statutes, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — stamp tax — validating unstamped conveyance.

3. The satisfaction of a judgment for the recovery of the stamp tax which, under the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, is to be levied, collected, and paid upon the execution of a conveyance, must be deemed the equivalent of the payment of the price of the stamps under § 13 of that act, as amended by the act of March 2, 1901, validating unstamped instruments on making the prescribed payment, in view of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 3216, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2084, providing that all judgments and moneys recovered or received for taxes, costs, forfeitures, and penalties shall be paid to collectors as internal taxes are required to be paid.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III. 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Debt — to recover stamp tax.

4. Express statutory authority for an action by the United States to recover the stamp tax which, under the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, § 6, is to be levied, collected, and paid upon the execution of a conveyance, is given by § 31 of that act, making applicable all administrative, special, or stamp provisions of law, including the laws in relation to the assessment of taxes not heretofore specifically repealed, which must comprehend the authority conferred by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 3213, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2083, to sue for and recover taxes in the name of the United States in any proper form of action, before any Federal circuit or district court for the district within which the liability is incurred, or where the party from whom such tax is due resides.

[For other cases, see Debt, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 77.]

Argued December 16, 1910. Decided January 3, 1911.

ON WRIT of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of the District of Colorado, sustaining a demurrer to the complaint in an action by the United States to recover the stamp tax payable under the war revenue act upon the execution of a conveyance. Reversed.

See same case below, 84 C. C. A. 461, 156 Fed. 881, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 720.

Statement by Mr. Justice Hughes:

This case comes here on certiorari. The action was brought by the United States, in the district court of *the United[251 States for the district of Colorado, against the executors of the estate of Winfield Scott Stratton, deceased, to recover the amount of stamp taxes claimed to be payable under the war revenue act of June 13, 1898. [30 Stat. at L. 448, chap. 448, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2286.]

The plaintiff alleged that in May, 1899, Stratton had conveyed to a corporation known as Stratton's Independence, Limited, certain lands in the state of Colorado by deed reciting a consideration of $4,850,000; that internal revenue stamps of the value of $4,850 were affixed to the deed, whereas the actual consideration of the conveyance and the value of the lands was $9,733,000, and by reason thereof there became due and payable to the United States from Stratton a revenue tax amounting to $9,733, of which the sum of $4,833 remained unpaid, internal revenue stamps therefor not having been attached to the deed or canceled; that the Collector of Internal Revenue of the United States for the district of Colorado had reported the facts to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who had determined that the sum of $9,733 should have been paid, and demand for payment having been made and refused, the said Commissioner had directed suit be instituted.

The district court sustained a general demurrer to the complaint, and its judgment was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals.

The applicable provisions of the war revenue act of June 13, 1898, chapter 448 (30 Stat. at L. pp. 448–470; 2 U. S. Rev. Stat. Supp. pp. 779–804, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 2286–2311), are set forth in the margin, together with the amendment to § 13, made by the act of March 2, 1901, chapter 806 (31 Stat. at L. 941, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2296).†

†"Sec. 6. That on and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, there shall be levied, collected, and

Assistant Attorney General Denison argued the cause, and, with Mr. Barton Corneau, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The obligation here was a personal one to pay, and not merely an obligation of the things taxed, or of the owner to affix stamps.

3 Bl. Com. 160; Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493, 10 L. ed. 258, 262; United States v. Lyman, 1 Mason, 482, Fed. Cas. No. 15,647.

This personal obligation to pay created by the act imposing the tax, whether the tax be of one or another sort, is enforceable by any appropriate civil action, even though the taxing statute does not contain a specific grant of authority to proceed in that way.

Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493, 10 L. ed. 258, 262; United States v. Lyman, 1 Mason, 482, Fed. Cas. No. 15,647; United States v. Hathaway, 3 Mason, 326, Fed. Cas. No. 15,326; Dollar Sav. Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227, 22 L. ed. 80; Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. 531, 20 L. ed. 491; Chaffee v. United States, 18 Wall. 516, 21 L. ed. 908; King v. United States, 99 U. S. 229, 25 L. ed. 373; United States v. Erie R. Co. 106 U. S. 327, 27 L. ed. 151, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 223; United States v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 123 U. S. 113, 31 L. ed. 138, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77; United States v. Snyder, 149 U. S. 210, 37 L. ed. 705, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 846; United States v. George, 6 Blatchf. 416, Fed. Cas. No. 15,198; United paid, for and in respect of the several bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock and of indebtedness, and other documents, instruments, matters, and things mentioned and described in schedule A of this act, or for or in respect of the vellum, parchment, or paper upon which such instruments, matters, or things, or any of them, shall be written or printed by any person or persons or party who shall make, sign, or issue the same, or for whose use or benefit the same shall be made, signed, or issued, the several taxes or sums of money set down in figures against the same, respectively, or otherwise specified or set forth in the said schedule. . . .

---

"Sec. 7. That if any person or persons shall make, sign, or issue, or cause to be made, signed, or issued, any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever, without the same being duly stamped for denoting the tax hereby imposed thereon, or without having thereupon an adhesive stamp to denote said tax, such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, at the discretion of the court, and such instrument, document, or paper, as aforesaid, shall not be competent evidence in any court.

. . . . . .

"Sec. 13. That any person or persons who shall register, issue, sell, or transfer, or who shall cause to be issued, registered, sold, or transferred, any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever mentioned in schedule A of this act, without the same being duly stamped, or having thereupon an adhesive stamp for denoting the tax chargeable thereon, and canceled in the manner required by law, with intent to evade the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court; and such instrument, document, or paper, not being stamped according to law, shall be deemed invalid and of no effect: Provided, That hereafter, in all cases where the party has not affixed to any instrument the stamp required by law thereon at the time of issuing, selling, or transferring the said bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock or of indebtedness, and he or they, or any party having an interest therein, shall be subsequently desirous of affixing such stamp to said instrument, or, if said instrument be lost, to a copy thereof, he or they shall appear before the collector of internal revenue of the proper district, who shall, upon the payment of the price of the proper stamp required by law, and of a penalty of ten dollars, and where the whole amount of the tax denoted by the stamp required shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars, on payment also of interest, at the rate of six per centum on said tax from the day on which such stamp ought to have been affixed, affix the proper stamp to such bond, debenture, certificate of stock or of indebtedness, or copy, and note upon the margin thereof the date of his so doing, and the fact that such penalty has been paid; and the same shall thereupon be deemed and held to be as valid, to all intents and purposes, as if stamped when made or issued: And provided further, That where it shall appear to said collector, upon oath or otherwise, to his satisfaction, that any such instrument has not been duly stamped, at the time of making or issuing the same, by reason of accident, mistake, inadvertence, or urgent necessity, and without any wilful design to defraud the United States of the stamp, or to evade or delay the payment thereof, then and in such case, if such instrument, or, if the original be lost, a copy thereof, duly certified by the officer having charge of any records in which such original is required to be recorded, or otherwise duly proven to the satisfaction of the collector, shall, within twelve calendar months after the making or issuing thereof, be brought to the said collector of internal revenue to be stamped, and the stamp tax chargeable thereon shall be paid, it shall be lawful for the said collector to remit the penalty aforesaid, and to cause such States v. Phelps, 17 Blatchf. 312, Fed. Cas. No. 16,039; United States v. Pacific R. Co. 4 Dill. 6, Fed. Cas. No. 15,983; United States v. Cobb. 11 Fed. 76; United States v. Boyd, 24 Fed. 690; United States v. National Fibre Board Co. 133 Fed. 597; United States v. Hazard, Fed Cas No. 15,337; United States v. Dodge, Deady, 124, Fed. Cas. No. 14,973; United States v. Tilden, 9 Ben. 368, Fed. Cas. No. 16,519; United States v. Washington Mills, 2 Cliff, 601, Fed. Cas. No. 16,647; Atty. Gen. v. Jewers, Bunbury, 225; Atty. Gen. v. Hatton, Bunbury, 262; Atty. Gen. v. Weeks, Bunbury, 224; Atty. Gen. v. Tooke, Hardres, 334; Atty. Gen. v. ———, 2 Anstr. 558; Atty. Gen. v. Stranyforth, Bunbury, 97; 2 Dill. Mun. Corp. § 815; Waller v. Travers, Hardres, 301; Atty. Gen. v. Chitty, Parker, 37; Rex v. Malland, 2 Strange, 828; United States v. Mexican International R. Co. 154 Fed. 519.

The argument adopted by the court below, that a tax is not a "debt," and consequently is not recoverable by suit, is wholly beside the point. The name by which the obligation created by the levy of the tax is called cannot be important. United States v. Pacific R. Co. 4 Dill. 66, Fed. Cas. No. 15,983.

But although the irrelevancy of the question whether or not a tax is, technically speaking, a debt, seems too clear for argument, it is not improper to call attention to the fact that the cases relied on by ap-instrument to be duly stamped. And when the original instrument, or a certified or duly proven copy thereof, as aforesaid, duly stamped so as to entitle the same to be recorded, shall be presented to the clerk, register, recorder, or other officer having charge of the original record, it shall be lawful for such officer, upon the payment of the fee legally chargeable for the recording thereof, to make a new record thereof, or to note upon the original record the fact that the error or omission in the stamping of said original instrument has been corrected pursuant to law; and the original instrument or such certified copy, or the record thereof, may be used in all courts and places in the same manner and with like effect as if the instrument had been originally stamped: And provided further, That in all cases where the party has not affixed the stamp required by law upon any such instrument issued, registered, sold, or transferred at a time when and at a place where no collection district was established, it shall be lawful for him or them, or any party having an interst therein, to affix the proper stamp thereto, or, if the original be lost, to a copy thereof. But no right acquired in good faith before the stamping of such instrument, or copy thereof, as herein provided, if such record be required by law, shall in any manner be affected by such stamping as aforesaid."

---

The foregoing section (§ 13) was amended by the act of March 2, 1901, chapter 806 (31 Stat. at L. 941, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2296), by striking out the words "schedule A of" in the fourth line of the section as above quoted, and also by inserting in the first proviso after the words "bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock or of indebtedness," the words "or any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever, mentioned in schedule A of this act."

"Sec. 14. That hereafter no instrument, paper, or document required by law to be stamped, which has been signed or issued without being duly stamped, or with a deficient stamp, nor any copy thereof, shall be recorded or admitted, or used as evidence in any court until a legal stamp or stamps, denoting the amount of tax, shall have been affixed thereto, or prescribed by law. . . .

"Sec. 15. That it shall not be lawful to record or register any instrument, paper, or document required by law to be stamped unless a stamp or stamps of the proper amount shall have been affixed and canceled in the manner prescribed by law; and the record, registry, or transfer of any such instruments upon which the proper stamp or stamps aforesaid shall not have been affixed and canceled as aforesaid shall not be used in evidence.

. . . . . .

"Sec. 25. That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall cause to be prepared for the payment of the taxes prescribed in this act suitable stamps denoting the tax on the document, article, or thing to which the same may be affixed, and he is authorized to prescribe such method for the cancelation of said stamps, as substitute for or in addition to the method provided in this act, as he may deem expedient. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized to procure any of the stamps provided for in this act by contract whenever such stamps cannot be speedily prepared by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; but this authority shall expire on the first day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine. That the adhesive stamps used in the payment of the tax levied in schedules A and B of this act shall be furnished for sale by the several collectors of internal revenue, who shall sell and deliver them at their face value to all persons applying for the same, except officers or employees of the internal-revenue service: Provided, That such collectors may sell and deliver such stamps in quantities of not less than one hundred dollars of face value, with a discount of one per centum, except as otherwise provided in this act. And he may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, make all pellee do not establish what is claimed for them.

Lane County v. Oregon, 7 Wall. 71, 19 L. ed. 101; Meriwether v. Garrett, 102 U. S. 472, 26 L. ed. 197; Crabtree v. Madden, 4 C. C. A. 408, 12 U. S. App. 159, 54 Fed. 426.

The English copyright act did not, by giving a cause of action to a common informer, in case of a copyright infringement, deprive the holder of the copyright of his action for damages arising from such infringement.

Beckford v. Hood, 7 T. R. 620, 4 Revised Rep. 527.

This court has never yet held the government to be limited to one remedy merely because it was the only one given by the statute creating a right. On the contrary, the decisions have always been the other way.

Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493, 10 L. ed. 258, 262; Dollar Sav. Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227, 22 L. ed. 80; Blacklock v. United States, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. ed. 396, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 228; United States v. Stevenson, 215 U. S. 190, 54 L. ed. 153, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 35.

Mr. D. P. Strickler argued the cause, and, with Mr. P. H. Holme, filed a brief for defendants in error:

That part of the act of June 13, 1898, requiring stamps on deeds, does not create a liability authorizing an action of debt against one failing to comply with its requirements.

Lane County v. Oregon, 7 Wall. 71, 19 L. ed. 101; Meriwether v. Garrett, 102 U. S. 472, 26 L. ed. 197; Crabtree v. Madden, 4 C. C. A. 408, 12 U. S. App. 159, 54 Fed. 426; Fleshman v. McClain, 105 Fed. 610, 46 C. C. A. 15, 106 Fed. 880; United States v. Chamberlin, 84 C. C. A. 461, 156 Fed. 881, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 720.

The remedies and penalties prescribed by said act for a violation thereof are exclusive.

Meriwether v. Garrett, 102 U. S. 472, 26 L. ed. 197; United States v. Trucks, 27 Fed. 541, 28 Fed. 846; McClain v. Fleshman, 46 C. C. A. 15, 106 Fed. 880; Craft v. Schafer, 82 C. C. A. 349, 153 Fed. 175; United States v. Chamberlin, 84 C. C. A. 461, 156 Fed. 881, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 720; Thompson v. Allen County, 115 U. S. 550, 29 L. ed. 472, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Barkley v. Levee Comrs. 93 U. S. 258, 23 L. ed. 893; Heine v. Levee Comrs. 19 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 223.

Mr. Justice Hughes, after making the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

The question presented is whether an action lies by the United States to recover the amount of a stamp tax payable under the war revenue act of 1898 upon the execution of a conveyance.

If the statute creates an obligation to pay the tax, and does not provide an exclusive remedy, the action must be regarded as well brought.

At common law, customs duties were recoverable by the Crown by an information in debt or an exchequer information in the nature of a bill in equity for discovery and account. These informations rested upon the general principle "that in the given case the common law or the statute creates a debt, charge, or duty in the party personally to pay the duties immediately upon the importation; and that therefore the ordinary remedies lie for this, as for any other acknowledged debt due to the Crown." United States v. Lyman, 1 Mason, p. 499, Fed. Cas. No. 15,647. See also Comyn's Dig. (title "Debt" A, 9); Atty. Gen. v. Stranyforth, Bunbury, 97; Atty. Gen. v. Weeks, Bunbury, 223; Atty. Gen. v. Jewers, Bunbury, 225; Atty. Gen. v. Hatton, Bunbury, 262.

Applying this principle, it was held in the Lyman Case, supra, and in Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 10 L. ed. 258, that the government was entitled to maintain an action to recover duties upon imports as a personal indebtedness of the importers. The duty to pay was there derived from the language of the act of April 27, 1816, chap. 107 (3 Stat. at L. p. 310), that "there shall be levied, collected, and paid" the several duties mentioned, and in acneedful rules and regulations for the proper enforcement of this act.

---

Schedule A.

Stamp Taxes.

. . . . . .

"Conveyance: Deed, instrument, or writing, whereby any lands, tenements, or other realty sold shall be granted, assigned, transferred, or otherwise conveyed to, or vested in, the purchaser or purchasers, or any other person or persons, by his, her, or their direction, when the consideration or value exceeds one hundred dollars and does not exceed five hundred dollars, fifty cents; and for each additional five hundred dollars or fractional part thereof in excess of five hundred dollars, fifty cents.

. . . . . .

"Sec. 31. That all administrative, special, or stamp provisions of law, including the laws in relation to the assessment of taxes, not heretofore specifically repealed, are hereby made applicable to this act."

259] cordance with an *established rule of interpretation the charge of the duty on the goods was taken to mean a personal charge against the owner. In the case last cited the court, by Mr. Justice Story, said (p. 493):

"The first question is whether Smith and Buchanan were every personally indebted for these duties; or, in other words, whether the importers of goods do, in virtue of the importation thereof, become personally indebted to the United States for the duties due thereon; or the remedy of the United States is exclusively confined to the lien on the goods, and the security of the bond given for the duties. It appears to us clear upon principle, as well as upon the obvious import of the provisions of the various acts of Congress on this subject, that the duties due upon all goods imported constitute a personal debt due to the United States from the importer (and the consignee for this purpose is treated as the owner and importer), independently of any lien on the goods, and in any bond given for the duties. The language of the duty act of the 27th of April, 1816, chap. 107, 3 Stat. at L. 310, under which the present importations were made, declares that 'there shall be levied, collected, and paid' the several duties prescribed by tha act on goods imported into the United States. And this is a common formulary in other acts laying duties. Now, in the exposition of statutes laying duties, it has been a common rule of interpretation, derived from the principles of the common law, that where the duty is charged on the goods, the meaning is that it is a personal charge on the owner by reason of the goods. So it was held in Atty. Gen. v. ———, 2 Anstr. 558, where a duty was laid on wash in a still; and it was said by the court that where duties are charged on any articles in a revenue act, the word 'charged' means that the owner shall be debited with the sum; and that this rule prevailed even when the article was actually lost or destroyed before it became available to the 260] owner. Nor is there anything *new in this doctrine; for it has long been held that in all such cases an action of debt lies in favor of the government against the importer, for the duties, whenever by accident, mistake, or fraud, no duties, or short duties, have been paid."

A similar rule has been applied in the case of internal revenue taxes. United States v. Washington Mills, by Clifford, J., 2 Cliff. 601, 607, Fed. Cas. No. 16,647; Dollar Sav. Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227, 22 L. ed. 80; United States v. Pacific R. Co. by Miller and Dillon, JJ., 4 Dill. 66, Fed. Cas. No. 15,983; United States v. Tilden, by Blatchford, J., 9 Ben. 368, Fed. Cas. No. 16,519.

In Dollar Sav. Bank v. United States, supra, an action of debt was sustained to recover the amount of the internal revenue tax imposed by the act of July 13, 1866 (14 Stat. at L. 138, chap. 184), on the undistributed gains carried to the surplus funds of the bank. It was objected that the act provided a special remedy for the assessment and collection of the tax, and that no other could be used. But the court, finding no prohibition of the remedy by action, held the argument untenable, saying (pp. 238-240):

"It must also be conceded to be a rule of the common law in England, as it is in Pennsylvania and many of the other states, that where a statute creates a right and provides a particular remedy for its enforcement, the remedy is generally exclusive of all common-law remedies.

"But it is important to notice upon what the rule is founded. The reason of the rule is that the statute, by providing a particular remedy, manifests an intention to prohibit other remedies, and the rule, therefore, rests upon a presumed statutory prohibition. It applies and it is enforced whan anyone to whom the statute is a rule of conduct seeks redress for a civil wrong. He is confined to the remedy pointed out in the statute, for he is forbidden to make use of any other. But by the internal revenue law, the United States are not prohibited from adopting any remedies for the recovery of a debt due *to them which are[261 known to the laws of Pennsylvania. The prohibitions, if any, either express or implied, contained in the enactment of 1866, are for others, not for the government. They may be obligatory upon tax collectors. They may prevent any suit at law by such officers or agents. But they are not rules for the conduct of the state. It is a familiar principle that the King is not bound by any act of parliament unless he be named therein by special and particular words. The most general words that can be devised (for example, any person or persons, bodies politic or corporate) affect not him in the least, if they may tend to restrain or diminish any of his rights and interests. He may even take the benefit of any particular act, though not named. The rule thus settled respecting the British Crown is equally applicable to this government, and it has been applied frequently in the different states, and practically in the Federal courts. It may be considered as settled that so much of the royal prerogatives as belonged to the King in his capacity of parens patriæ, or universal trustee, enters as much into our political state as it does into the principles of the British Constitution.

"It must, then, be concluded that the government is not prohibited by anything contained in the act of 1866 from employing any common-law remedy for the collection of its dues. The reason of the rule which denies to others the use of any other than the statutory remedy is wanting, therefore, in applicability to the government, and the rule itself must not be extended beyond its reason." See also United States v. Stevenson, 215 U. S. p. 197, 54 L. ed. 156, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 35.

The statute in the Savings Bank Case contained a provision (now in § 3213, Rev. Stat., U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2083) which expressly authorized the bringing of an action. But the court also found a sufficient basis for its judgment in the general power of the government to collect by suit taxes that are due, where the statute imposing the tax does not deny that reme-[262] dy. *This point was presented, considered, and decided in the determination of the cause, and the decision is none the less authoritative because there was another ground for the ultimate conclusion. Florida C. R. Co. v. Schutte, 103 U. S. p. 143, 26 L. ed. 336; Union P. R. Co. v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. 199 U. S. p. 166, 50 L. ed. 137, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19.

Neither Lane County v. Oregon, 7 Wall. 71, 19 L. ed. 101, nor Meriwether v. Garrett, 102 U. S. 472, 26 L. ed. 197, relied upon by the defendants, involved the question. In the former case it was held that the acts of Congress of 1862 and 1863 [12 Stat. at L. 345, 532, 709, chaps. 33, 142, 73], making United States notes a legal tender for debts, had no reference to taxes imposed by state authority. The legal tender acts expressly provided that the notes should be receivable for national taxes, and the context forbade the conclusion that Congress intended to include state taxes under the term "debts," and there was hence no conflict with the statute of Oregon which required the taxes due the state to be collected in coin.

In Meriwether v. Garrett, supra, it was held that taxes levied before the repeal of the charter of a municipality, other than such as were levied in obedience to the special requiremant of contracts entered into under the authority of law, and such as were levied under judicial direction for the payments of judgments recovered against the city, could not be collected through the instrumentality of a court of chancery at the instance of the city's creditors. Such taxes could be collected only under authority from the legislature.

A tax may or may not be a "debt" under a particular statute, according to the sense in which the word is found to be used. But whether the government may recover a personal judgment for a tax depends upon the existence of the duty to pay, for the enforcement of which another remedy has not been made exclusive. Whether an action of debt is maintainable depends not upon the question who is the plaintiff or in what manner the obligation was *in-[263] curred, but it lies whenever there is due a sum either certain or readily reduced to certainty. Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. p. 542, 20 L. ed. 493.

Here the tax was a stamp tax, but the language as clearly imports the obligation to pay as did that of the statute before the court in the Meredith Case, supra. Section 6 of the war revenue act of 1898 provided that there should be "levied, collected, and paid" in respect of the instruments mentioned, "by any person or persons or party who shall make, sign, or issue the same, or for whose use or benefit the same shall be made, signed, or issued, the several taxes or sums of money" set forth in the schedule which followed. There is nothing in the nature of a stamp tax which per se negatives either the personal obligation, otherwise to be derived from the words imposing the tax, or its collection by action. The stamp is to be affixed to the instrument "to denote said tax." Secs. 7, 13, 14. Section 25 provided that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue should cause to be prepared "for the payment of the taxes prescribed in this act suitable stamps denoting the tax on the document, article, or thing to which the same may be affixed." The stamp is the evidence, and its purchase the convenient means, of payment. When a statute says that a person shall pay a given tax, it obviously imposes upon that person the duty to pay, and this may be enforced through the ordinary means adapted to the recovery of a definite sum due, unless that course is clearly prohibited.

The objection was made in the Savings Bank Case, supra, that the tax had not been assessed. The court held, however, that no other assessment than that made by the statute was necessary in order to determine the extent of the bank's liability. Following this rule, Judge Blatchford said in United States v. Tilden, 9 Ben. p. 386, Fed. Cas. No. 16,519, where the action was brought to recover unpaid taxes on income: "The extent of the liability of the individual for *income tax is defined by the stat-[264] ute, equally with the extent of the liability of the bank for the tax on undistributed earnings. In each case it is necessary, in an action of debt for the tax, to resort to sources of information outside of the statute, to ascertain the amount on which the per centum of tax fixed by the statute is to be calculated. . . . The difference between the two cases, in that respect, if there be any, will be, in every case, one of degree merely, not of principle. The statute, in imposing the per centum of tax on the income of the individual, makes a charge on him of a sum which is certain for the purposes of an action of debt, because it can be made certain through the action of a judicial tribunal, by following the rules laid down in the statute. That is the principle of the decision in the case of the bank, and it controls the present case." See also King v. United States, 99 U. S. p. 233, 25 L. ed. 374; United States v. Erie R. Co. 107 U. S. p. 2, 27 L. ed. 385, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 83; United States v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 123 U. S. p. 114, 31 L. ed. 139, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77; and United States v. Snyder, 149 U. S. 215, 37 L. ed. 707, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 846. The statute now before us fixes a tax of a specified amount, according to the consideration or value of the lands conveyed.

It is insisted, however, that the provision for penalties excludes the idea of a personal liability. Thus it is made a misdemeanor to sign or issue one of the described instruments to which a stamp has not been affixed, punishable under § 7 by a fine of not more than $100, and not exceeding $200 under § 10, in the case of a bill or note. And under § 13, where there is intent to evade the law, the offense is punished "by a fine not exceeding $50, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court." The unstamped instrument is made inadmissible in evidence (§§ 7, 14), is not allowed to be recorded (§ 15,) and by the provision of § 13 is to "be deemed invalid and of no effect."

265] *But these penalties were provided in order to induce the payment of the tax, and not as a substitute for payment. It cannot be supposed that Congress intended, by penalizing delinquency, to deprive the government of any suitable means of enforcing the collection of revenue. In large transactions, as in the case at bar, the fine which could be imposed would be much less than the tax, and no reason is suggested why the government should forego the collection of that which, under the statute, is its due. Punishment by imprisonment, under § 13, is imposed only where it can be shown that there was an "intent to evade the provisions" of the act; and while this remedy is appropriate in such a case, and is for the obvious purpose of discouraging evasion, it is without application where, for any other reason, the tax has not been paid, and thereby the government has lost its revenue. The provision invalidating the instrument is likewise punitive. The object was not primarily to deprive instruments of effect, but to insure the discharge of the obligation to pay; and that obligation would still be undischarged, even though, by reason of the nonpayment, the instrument was deemed invalid.

It is insisted, however, that there is no provision for the removal of the ban from the instrument in case the tax were collected by suit, and that this shows the intention to bar the latter remedy; for it is said that the purpose could not be to destroy the effect of the instrument and at the same time to compel the payment of the tax.

This argument proceeds upon a misconception of the statute. The provision under which unstamped instruments are made invalid is found in § 13, which also provides a method of validation on making the prescribed payment. The portion of this section which imposes the penalty is of comprehensive scope, and must be deemed to include a conveyance of land, as well as the other instruments within the purview of the statute. While the *language[266 of the first proviso, in its original form, specifically referred to "bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock or of indebtedness," this was broadened by the amendment made by the act of March 2, 1901, chapter 806 (31 Stat. at L. 941, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2296), so as to embrace "any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever mentioned in schedule A of this act." This amendment, in extending an existing opportunity so as expressly to include all instruments mentioned in the schedule, must be construed to refer not only to instruments subsequently executed, but to those as well which had been previously made or issued. No different construction is required by the language of the statute, the obvious policy of which was both to supply a measure of relief from the punitive provision and at the same time to encourage the payment of the tax. The provisions of the section as amended are as follows:

"Provided, That hereafter, in all cases where the party has not affixed to any instrument the stamp required by law thereon at the time of issuing, selling, or transferring the said bonds, debentures, or certificates of stock or of indebtedness, or any instrument, document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever mentioned in schedule A of this act, and he or they, or any party having an interest therein, shall be subsequently desirous of affixing such stamp to said instrument, or, if said instrument be lost, to a copy thereof, he or they shall appear before the collector of internal revenue of the proper district, who shall, upon the payment of the price of the proper stamp required by law, and of a penalty of ten dollars, and, where the whole amount of the tax denoted by the stamp required shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars, on payment also of interest, at the rate of six per centum, on said tax from the day on which such stamp ought to have been affixed, affix the proper stamp to such bond, debenture, certificate of stock or of indebted-267] ness, or copy, or instrument, *document, or paper of any kind or description whatsoever mentioned in schedule A of this act, and note upon the margin thereof the date of his so doing, and the fact that such penalty has been paid; and the same shall thereupon be deemed and held to be as valid, to all intents and purposes, as if stamped when made or issued: And provided further, That where it shall appear to said collector, upon oath or otherwise, to his satisfaction, that any such instrument has not been duly stamped at the time of making or issuing the same, by reason of accident, mistake, inadvertence, or urgent necessity, and without any willful design to defraud the United States of the stamp, or to evade or delay the payment thereof, then and in such case, if such instrument, or, if the original be lost, a copy thereof, duly certified by the officer having charge of any records in which such original is required to be recorded, or otherwise duly proven to the satisfaction of the collector, shall, within twelve calendar months after the making or issuing thereof, be brought to the said collector of internal revenue to be stamped, and the stamp tax chargeable thereon shall be paid, it shall be lawful for the said collector to remit the penalty aforesaid and to cause such instrument to be duly stamped. And when the original instrument, or a certified or duly proven copy thereof, as aforesaid, duly stamped so as to entitle the same to be recorded, shall be presented to the clerk, register, recorder, or other officer having charge of the original record, it shall be lawful for such officer, upon the payment of the fee legally chargeable for the recording thereof, to make a new record thereof, or to note upon the original record the fact that the error or omission in the stamping of said original instrument has been corrected pursuant to law; and the original instrument or such certified copy, or the record thereof, may be used in all courts and places in the same manner and with like effect as if the instrument had 268] been originally *stamped: And provided further, That in all cases where the party has not affixed the stamp required by law upon any such instrument issued, registered, sold, or transferred at a time when and at a place where no collection district was established, it shall be lawful for him or them, or any party having an interest therein, to affix the proper stamp thereto, or, if the original be lost, to a copy thereof. But no right acquired in good faith before the stamping of such instrument, or copy thereof, as herein provided, if such record be required by law, shall in any manner be affected by such stamping as aforesaid."

Neither the punitive provision, nor the means thus afforded to escape it through a voluntary payment, indicate an intention to deprive the government of the right to compel payment by action. The party may pay the tax in the first instance, or he may subsequently make payment as the statute provides, and thus render the instrument effective. If he is unwilling or fails to avail himself of this opportunity, why should he be heard to insist that because the instrument is made invalid he should escape payment of what is due the government? In the face of the express requirement of the statute that he shall pay the tax, there is no basis for the contention that from the provisions affecting the validity of the instrument should be implied an intent to prohibit the enforcement or the tax by suit.

Further, as the obvious purpose is to validate the instrument in case the prescribed payment is made, the satisfaction of a judgment for the recovery of the tax must be deemed the equivalent of the payment of the price of the stamps under the provisos above quoted. Section 3216 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2084) provides: "All judgments and moneys recovered or received for taxes, costs, forfeitures, and penalties shall be paid to collectors as internal taxes are required to be paid." If the case is not one within the second proviso permitting the remission *of the penalty, the additional pay-[269 ment of $10 will be required to meet the conditions of the first proviso. But so far as the tax is concerned, the person liable therefor, on satisfying the judgment, will have the same right to have the instrument stamped by the collector as though he had paid the taxes to the officer without suit. Such a case would present no administrative difficulty in accomplishing the intent of the statute.

We have examined the other statutory provisions to which our attention has been called in support of the defense, and we find none of controlling significance, or which, taken separately or together, detract from the force of the provision imposing the obligation to pay the tax, and deprive the government of the remedy here sought.

We are also of opinion that the statute itself provides that payment may be enforced by action. Section 31 makes "all administrative, special, or stamp provisions of law, including the laws in relation to the assessment of taxes not heretofore specifically repealed," applicable to the act. Within "administrative" provisions must be included those which relate to the collection of the taxes imposed. For the administration of the statute may well be taken to embrace all appropriate measures for its enforcement, and there is no substantial reason for assigning to the phrase which is used in the section quoted a narrower interpretation. It therefore comprehends the authority conferred by § 3213 of the Revised Statutes in the following words:

" . . . And taxes may be sued for and recovered in the name of the United States, in any proper form of action, before any circuit or district court of the United States for the district within which the liability to such tax is incurred, or where the party from whom such tax is due resides at the time of the commencement of the said action."

This provision authorizing suit, with the sanction of the Commissioner of Internal 270] Revenue (Rev. Stat. § 3214), *was originally enacted in 1866 (act of July 13, 1866, chap. 184, 14 Stat. at L. p. 111, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2084), as an amendment of the internal revenue act of June 30, 1864, chap. 173 (13 Stat. at L. 239), and included within its scope the stamp taxes then in force. It must be deemed applicable also to the taxes imposed by the act of 1898.

Upon these grounds we conclude that the United States was entitled to maintain this action, and that the demurrer should have been overruled. The judgment is therefore reversed.

R. J. HOUSE, Plff. in Err.,
v.
JOEL B. MAYES, Marshal of Jackson County, Missouri, and Elliott W. Major, Attorney General.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 270–285.)

Constitutional law — regulating sales — deduction from actual weight — due process of law — police power.

1. Making criminal any deduction by the purchaser from the actual weight of grain, seed, hay, or coal, under a claim of right by reason of any custom or rule of a board of trade, as is done by Mo. act of June 8, 1909, is a valid exercise of the police power of the state, and does not take property without due process of law, nor unconstitutionally interfere with the liberty to contract.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 7; IV. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — police power — freedom to contract — regulating boards of trade.

2. The conduct of its business by a board of trade formed to enforce, as between its members, a high standard of business dealings, may be regulated by such means, not arbitrary or unreasonable in their nature, as may be found by the state necessary or needful to protect the people against unfair practices that are likely to occur, without unconstitutionally interfering with the liberty of contract to which its individual members are entitled.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 7, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 597.]

Argued December 13, 14, 1910. Decided January 9, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri to review a judgment denying relief by habeas corpus to a person convicted of making a deduction from the actual weight of a car load of wheat, under claim of right by reason of a rule of the board of trade. Affirmed.

See same case below, 227 Mo. 617, 127 S. W. 305.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Frank Hagerman argued the cause, and, with Mr. Kimbrough Stone, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Under the 14th Amendment freedom of contract is guaranteed.

Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 589, 41 L. ed. 832, 835, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 390, 42 L. ed. 780, 790, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 53, 49 L. ed. 937, 940, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United

---

NOTE.—As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

For a discussion of police power generally, see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

On the constitutionality of statutes restricting contracts and business—see note to State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

States, 208 U. S. 161, 172, 173, 52 L. ed 436, 441, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277; 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The act in question clearly comes within the principles laid down in the foregoing cases. Freedom of contract must, of course, yield to the police power of the state. But there is a limit to the exercise of that power. In the end the court must decide the question.

Mugler v. Kansas City, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 56, 57, 61, 49 L. ed. 937, 940, 941, 943, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 173, 52 L. ed. 436, 442, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; State v. Julow, 129 Mo. 163, 175, 29 L.R.A. 257, 50 Am. St. Rep. 443, 31 S. W. 781; State v. Missouri Tie & Timber Co. 181 Mo. 536, 559, 65 L.R.A. 588, 103 Am. St. Rep. 614, 80 S. W. 933, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 119; State v. Cantwell, 179 Mo. 263, 78 S. W. 569; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 316, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350.

There must be some reasonable grounds for the legislative interference, or it cannot be justified.

Bonnett v. Vallier, 136 Wis. 203, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 486, 128 Am. St. Rep. 1061, 116 N. W. 888; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 110, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408.

The act in question clearly comes within the principles announced in Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133, and Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The case is much like Harding v. People, 160 Ill. 459, 32 L.R.A. 445, 52 Am. St. Rep. 344, 43 N. E. 624, where there was a custom among mine owners and miners not to weigh the last car of coal mined each day, because that coal was used in the locomotive, the weight being fixed at the average carload weight for the day. The court declared invalid a statute requiring all mine owners, where miners were paid by weight, to weigh all cars at the mine.

Laws similar in principle have been before the courts, and have been almost unanimously condemned in opinions each of which is a forceful argument in favor of the contention here made.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; State v. Julow, 129 Mo. 163, 29 L.R.A. 257, 50 Am. St. Rep. 443, 31 S. W. 781; People v. Marcus, 185 N. Y. 257, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 282, 113 Am. St. Rep. 902, 77 N. E. 1073, 7 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 118; Gillespie v. People, 188 Ill. 176, 52 L.R.A. 283, 80 Am. St. Rep. 176, 58 N. E. 1007; Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Perry, 69 Kan. 297, 66 L.R.A. 185, 76 Pac. 848, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 936; State v. Bateman, 7 Ohio N. P. 487, 10 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 68; State ex rel. Zillmer v. Kreutzberg, 114 Wis. 530, 58 L.R.A. 748, 91 Am. St. Rep. 934, 90 N. W. 1098; Goldfield Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union Co. 159 Fed. 500; Atlanta v. Stein, 111 Ga. 789, 51 L.R.A. 335, 36 S. E. 932; Marshall & B. Co. v. Nashville, 109 Tenn. 495, 71 S. W. 815; Adams v. Brenan, 177 Ill. 194, 42 L.R.A. 718, 69 Am. St. Rep. 222, 52 N. E. 314; Holden v. Alton, 179 Ill. 318, 53 N. E. 556; Fiske v. People, 188 Ill. 206, 52 L.R.A. 291, 58 N. E. 985; State ex rel. Robert Mitchell Furniture Co. v. Toole, 26 Mont. 22, 55 L.R.A. 644, 91 Am. St. Rep. 386, 66 Pac. 496; Lewis v. Board of Education, 139 Mich. 306, 102 N. W. 756; People ex rel. Rodgers v. Coler, 166 N. Y. 1, 52 L.R.A. 814, 82 Am. St. Rep. 605, 59 N. E. 716; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; Street v. Varney Electrical Supply Co. 160 Ind. 338, 61 L.R.A. 154, 98 Am. St. Rep. 325, 66 N. E. 895; State ex rel. Bramley v. Norton, 5 Ohio N. P. 183, 7 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 354; Leep v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 58 Ark. 407, 427, 23 L.R.A. 264, 41 Am. St. Rep. 109, 25 S. W. 75; Braceville Coal Co. v. People, 147 Ill. 66, 22 L.R.A. 340, 37 Am. St. Rep. 206, 35 N. E. 62; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Wilson, 4 Tex. App. Civ. Cas. (Willson) 565, 19 S. W. 910; Republic Iron & Steel Co. v. State, 160 Ind. 379, 62 L.R.A. 136, 66 N. E. 1005; Com. v. Isenberg, 4 Pa. Dist. R. 579; Bauer v. Reynolds, 3 Pa. Dist. R. 502; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 307, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; State v. Goodwill, 33 W. Va. 179, 6 L.R.A. 621, 25 Am. St. Rep. 863, 10 S. E. 285; Godcharles v. Wigeman, 113 Pa. 431, 6 Atl. 354; State v. Haun, 61 Kan. 146, 47 L.R.A. 369, 59 Pac. 340; Jordon v. State, 51 Tex. Crim. Rep. 531, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 603, 103 S. W. 633, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 616; Avent Beattyville Coal Co. v. Com. 96 Ky. 218, 28 L.R.A. 273, 28 S. W. 502; Frorer v. People, 141 Ill. 171, 16 L.R.A. 492, 31 N. E. 395; State v. Fire Creek Coal & Coke Co. 33 W. Va. 188, 6 L.R.A. 359, 25 Am. St. Rep. 891, 10 S. E. 288; Com. v. Perry, 155 Mass. 117, 14 L.R.A. 325, 31 Am. St. Rep. 533, 28 N. E. 1126; Kellyville Coal Co. v. Harrier, 207 Ill. 624, 99 Am. St. Rep. 240, 69 N. E. 927; Wallace v. Georgia C. & N. R. Co. 94 Ga. 732, 22 S. E. 579; New York, C. & St. L. R. Co.

v. Schaffer, 65 Ohio St. 414, 62 L.R.A. 931, 87 Am. St. Rep. 628, 62 N. E. 1036; Low v. Recs Printing Co. 41 Neb. 127, 24 L.R.A. 702, 43 Am. St. Rep. 670, 59 N. W. 362; State v. Redmon, 134 Wis. 110, 14 L.R.A. (N.S.) 229, 126 Am. St. Rep. 1003, 114 N. W. 137, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 408; Montague v. Furness, 145 Cal. 205, 78 Pac. 640; Re Jacobs, 98 N. Y. 98, 50 Am. Rep. 636; Buffalo v. Collins Baking Co. 39 App. Div. 432, 57 N. Y. Supp. 347; Ex parte Hawley, 22 S. D. 23, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 138, 115 N. W. 93; State ex rel. McKell v. Robins, 71 Ohio St. 273, 69 L.R.A. 427, 73 N. E. 470, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 485; Ex parte Sing Lee, 96 Cal. 354, 24 L.R.A. 195, 31 Am. St. Rep. 218, 31 Pac. 245; Laundry Ordinance Case, 7 Sawy. 526, 13 Fed. 229; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 373, 30 L. ed. 227, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; State ex rel. Baldwin v. Moore, 7 Wash. 173, 34 Pac. 461; Chicago v. Netcher, 183 Ill. 104, 48 L.R.A. 261, 75 Am. St. Rep. 93, 55 N. E. 707; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 397, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343; Millett v. People, 117 Ill. 294, 57 Am. Rep. 869, 7 N. E. 631; Re House Bill No. 203, 21 Colo. 27, 39 Pac. 431; Ramsey v. People, 142 Ill. 380, 17 L.R.A. 853, 32 N. E. 364; Re Preston, 63 Ohio St. 428, 52 L.R.A. 523, 81 Am. St. Rep. 642, 59 N. E. 101; Whitebreast Fuel Co. v. People, 175 Ill. 51, 51 N. E. 853; Frank L. Fisher Co. v. Woods, 187 N. Y. 90, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 707, 79 N. E. 836; Ex parte Whitwell, 98 Cal. 73, 19 L.R.A. 727, 35 Am. St. Rep. 152, 32 Pac. 870; People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111.

A board of trade is organized by the voluntary action of brokers, for the purpose of making an arrangement, enforceable as between themselves, of an honorable character, to create a high standard of business dealings.

Tomkins v. Saffery, L. R. 3 App. Cas. 228, 47 L. J. Bankr. N. S. 11, 37 L. T. N. S. 758, 26 Week. Rep. 62, 4 Eng. Rul. Cas. 86; Moffatt v. Board of Trade, — Mo. App. —, 111 S. W. 900; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578; 594, 43 L. ed. 290, 297, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 517, 43 L. ed. 786, 792, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Greer, M. & Co. v. Stoller, 77 Fed. 1; Melsheimer & G. Law & Customs of Stock Exchange, 3d ed. London, 1891, 98; Clarke v. Foss, 7 Biss. 547, Fed. Cas. No. 2,852; Bisbee & S. Board of Trade & Produce Exchange preface VI.; White v. Brownell, 2 Daly, 336; Leech v. Harris, 2 Brewst. (Pa.) 575; Haebler v. New York Produee Exch. 149 N. Y. 428, 44 N. E. 87; American Live Stock Commission Co. v. Chicago Live Stock Exch. 143 Ill. 226, 18 L.R.A. 190, 36 Am. St. Rep. 385, 32 N. E. 274; Dos Passos, Stock Exchange, 15; 23 Am. & Eng Enc. Law, pp. 749–751; Seymour v. Bridge, L. R. 14 Q. B. Div. 465, 54 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 347; Belton v. Hatch, 109 N. Y. 596, 4 Am. St. Rep. 495, 17 N. E. 225; Commercial Telegram Co. v. Smith, 47 Hun, 505; Board of Trade v. Nelson, 162 Ill. 438, 53 Am. St. Rep. 312, 44 N. E. 743; People ex rel. Thacher v. New York Commercial Asso. 18 Abb. Pr. 279; Vaughn v. Herndon, 91 Tenn. 64, 17 S. W. 793; People ex rel. Rice v. Chicago Bd. of Trade, 80 Ill. 136; Metropolitan Grain & Stock Exch. v. Chicago Bd. of Trade, 15 Fed. 847; Evans v. Chamber of Commerce, 86 Minn. 448, 91 N. W. 8.

There is a vast difference between the rights of a member of a voluntary, unincorporated institution, and those of a shareholder of a corporation.

1 Thomp. Corp. § 846; Bacon, Ben. Soc. § 89; Niblack, Ben. Soc. §§ 22, 23, 30, 73; Kehlenbeck v. Logeman, 10 Daly, 447.

Mr. Elliott W. Major, Attorney General of Missouri, argued the cause, and, with Mr. John M. Atkinson, filed a brief for defendants in error:

The legislature has the right to enact laws preventing and abolishing self-imposed rules of boards of trade which have been adopted as to weights and measures. Such legislation is within the police power of the state. The state can abolish any custom or usage among merchants or others as to what shall constitute the unit of weight.

Pittsburg & S. Coal Co. v. Louisiana, 156 U. S. 590, 39 L. ed. 544, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 18, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 550, 53 L. ed. 321, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Tiedeman, Pol. Power, § 89, p. 208.

Making the deduction of any amount from the actual weight of certain commodities by reason of any custom or rule of a board of trade a misdemeanor, as provided in the Missouri statute, is a valid exercise of the police power of the state.

House v. Mayes, 227 Mo. 636, 127 S. W. 305; 30 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. p. 451; People v. Wagner, 86 Mich. 599, 13 L.R.A. 286, 24 Am. St. Rep. 141, 49 N. W. 609; State v. Wilson, 61 Kan. 32, 47 L.R.A. 71, 58 Pac. 981; Pittsburg & S. Coal Co. v. Louisiana, 156 U. S. 590, 39 L. ed. 544, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 18, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Budd v. New York, 143 U. S. 517, 36 L. ed. 247, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 468; Brass v. North Dakota, 153 U. S. 391, 38 L. ed.

757, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 670, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 857; Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. 744; Green v. Moffett, 22 Mo. 529; Evans v. Myers, 25 Pa. 114, 15 Mor. Min. Rep 243; Noble v. Durell, 3 T. R. 271; St. Cross Hospital v. Howard de Walden, 6 T. R. 338; Mays v. Jennings, 4 Humph. 102; Harris v. Rutledge, 19 Iowa, 388, 87 Am. Dec. 441; Tiedeman, Pol. Pow. § 89, pp. 208, 260–263; Freund, Pol. Power, 1 Bishop, New Crim. Law, § 234; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 550, 546, 53 L. ed. 321, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Williams v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 79, 54 L. ed. 673, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 865; New York v. Miln, 11 Pet. 105, 9 L. ed. 649; Thurlow v. Massachusetts, 5 How. 528, 12 L. ed. 266; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 380, 42 L. ed. 787, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 317, 51 L. ed. 502, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 105, 53 L. ed. 929, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; Chicago B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 592, 50 L. ed. 609, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175.

The police power of a state embraces regulations designed to promote the public convenience or the general prosperity, as well as those to promote public health, morals, or safety; it is not confined to the expression of what is offensive, disorderly, or unsanitary, but extends to what is for the greatest welfare of the state.

Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 317, 51 L. ed. 502, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 546, 53 L. ed. 319, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 765; Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 105, 53 L. ed. 929, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 592, 50 L. ed. 609, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; People v. Wagner, 86 Mich. 599, 13 L.R.A. 286, 24 Am. St. Rep. 141, 49 N. W. 609.

Mr. Justice Harlan delivered the opinion of the court:

The plaintiff in error was proceeded against by information filed in the criminal court of Jackson county, Missouri, under a statute of Missouri, which was passed June 8th, 1909, and is entitled, "An Act to Prevent Fraud in the Purchase and Sale of Grain and Other Commodities." The statute reads: "§ 1. Every sale of grain, seed, hay, or coal shall be made on the basis of the actual weight thereof, and any purchaser of grain, seed, hay, or coal, who shall deduct any amount from the actual weight or measure thereof under claim of right to do so by reason of any custom or rule of a board of trade, or any pretense whatsoever, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject to a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100 for each and every offense. § 2. No agent or broker selling any grain, seed, hay, or coal shall have authority, under claim or right to do so by reason of any custom or rule of board of trade, to sell any grain, seed, hay, or coal only on the basis of the actual weight thereof, and any contract of sale of any grain, seed, hay, or coal, made in violation of this act, shall be null and void." Mo. Sess. Acts 1909, p. 519; Mo. Rev. Stat. §§ 11,969, 11,970.

The information charged that the accused, on the 1st day of September, 1909, at the county of Jackson, state of Missouri, purchased from one James Anderson a car load of wheat, by weight, and unlawfully took and deducted *from the[278 actual weight 100 pounds, pretending and claiming the right to make such deduction, and to have and keep the said 100 pounds so deducted free of charge and cost to him, under and by virtue of a rule and custom of the board of trade of Kansas City, Missouri.

Having been arrested on a capias, and being held in custody by the defendant as marshal, the accused presented to the criminal court an application for a writ of habeas corpus, claiming that he was deprived of his liberty in violation of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States. The application was denied, but it was subsequently granted by the supreme court of the state. The latter court, upon final hearing, also denied the application, and ordered that the petitioner be remanded to the custody of the marshal. The case is now here for review, upon assignments of error which question the constitutional validity of the statute under the 14th Amendment.

The case was heard upon an agreed statement of facts, the parties reserving all questions as to the relevancy of any particular fact therein stated. As the case is of some importance, it will be appropriate to set forth the above statement in full, as follows: "Without admission of either party as to the relevancy of any particular fact herein set forth, the following facts are agreed between the parties: There are competitive grain markets at Galveston, Texas; Chicago, Illinois; Omaha, Nebraska; Atchison and Wichita, Kansas; and St. Louis, St. Joseph, and Kansas City, Missouri. That Kansas City is a primary grain market. That a very slight difference in price or condition will influence the market course of grain. That the board of trade of Kansas City, Missouri, is a voluntary organization of buyers and sellers of grain and provisions, supported by dues and assessments, and maintained for the purpose of 279] furnishing a marketing place *where such persons can meet, and, under rules of safety and convenience, transact such business. Its objects are: 'To maintain a board of trade to promote uniformity in the customs and usages of merchants; to inculcate principles of justice and equity in business; to facilitate the speedy adjustment of business disputes; to inspire confidence in the business methods and integrity of the parties hereto; to collect and disseminate valuable commercial and economic information, and generally to secure to its members the benefits of co-operation in the furtherance of their legitimate pursuits, and to promote the general welfare of Kansas City.' Its members are governed by rules and regulations enacted by the members, and which form part of the written contract of association between them. This organization provides for the exclusive use of its members a trading floor, where grain is bought and sold only under and according to said rules. Three of said rules are: '§ 16. The weight supervising committee shall have supervision, through the weight department, of the unloading of all cars unloaded at all elevators, mills, warehouses, transfer and team tracks, within the jurisdiction of this board, and shall cause the same to be thoroughly swept and cleaned when unloaded. Sweeping or cleaning of cars subsequently by any operator or employee of any elevator, mill, warehouse, transfer or team tracks, or by any person or persons under agreement with the same, or the buying or receiving of any such sweepings or cleanings by any member of this association, is prohibited. § 17. Violations of any of the provisions of § 16 of this article shall subject the members so violating to a fine of $50 for the first offense, to a fine of $100 for the second offense, to expulsion and forfeiture of membership for the third offense. § 18. On all grain bought by members of the Kansas City board of trade, and on which Kansas City unloading weights are given, an allowance of 100 lbs. per car shall be 280] *made to the buyer, to cover loss on account of dirt and other foreign matter.' That said board of trade maintains a bureau of weights, which strictly enforces rule 16. That rules 16 and 17 were enacted to secure to the seller full weight of the entire contents of the car, and rule 18 to secure the buyer from loss through dirt and foreign matter in or swept out with the grain, which was unloaded at Kansas City. Before grain is sold, it is graded. One of the considerations in grading is the dirt and foreign matter in the grain. Experience had shown that there is a loss from dirt and foreign matter, varying with different cars, which is not fully taken care of in the grade. That there is no method in use of accurately determining the percentage of such foreign matter and dirt, and the 100-pound quantity was taken as a fair average. The members of said board of trade buy and sell sometimes as commission men for outsiders and sometimes for their own account, and it is impossible to tell without inquiry whether a buyer or seller is acting for himself or for someone else. The buying and selling of grain on the floor of said board of trade is, as in all other markets, based upon the constantly and rapidly fluctuating market prices in that and the other principal grain markets. There is no time nor opportunity to ascertain the capacity (principal or agent) in which a member is acting when he buys or sells, and, if he be in reality acting as agent, no opportunity to investigate the financial standing of the real principal. Because of this condition, and also to secure the prompt and faithful performance of all such contracts of sale, there is a rule of said board of trade forbidding the disclosure of outside principals, and holding the member in all cases as the principal. There are also rules making a member responsible for the faithful performance of such contracts. That the state railroad and warehouse commission has in force a rule requiring cars unloaded at Kansas City to be cleanly swept. That *the method of making the re-[281 duction is to weigh the loaded car; then, after emptying and cleanly sweeping the car, to weigh the car; the difference in these two weights is entered on the account sales as the weight of the car load of grain, the deduction of 100 pounds being also noted on that slip, and settlement made for this balance. That is, the weight of the entire contents of the car is shown, and also the 100 pounds' deduction on the face of the account sales given the seller. That upon the 1st day of September, 1909, your petitioner [House] bought upon the trading floor of said board of trade, and from a member thereof, a car load of wheat on Kansas City unloading weights. In accordance with the above method, and under said rule 18, he deducted 100 pounds and made settlement for the balance. The member selling this grain did not own it, but was acting as a commission man. He, however, dealt with your petitioner as in his own right, and your petitioner had no notice or knowledge that such seller was not the real owner of the grain. Nothing had been said between the member selling and his principal as to the allowance of the 100 pounds. Both your petitioner and the seller understood at the time of sale that it was made subject to this rule."

An extended discussion of the general question of constitutional law raised by the assignments of error is rendered unnecessary by former decisions of this court. There are certain fundamental principles which those cases recognize and which are not open to dispute. In our opinion, they sustain the power of the state to enact the statute in question. Briefly stated, those principles are: That the government created by the Federal Constitution is one of enumerated powers, and cannot, by any of its agencies, exercise an authority not granted by that instrument, either in express words or by necessary implication; that a power may be implied when necessary 282] *to give effect to a power expressly granted; that while the Constitution of the United States and the laws enacted in pursuance thereof, together with any treaties made under the authority of the United States, constitute the supreme law of the land, a state of the Union may exercise all such governmental authority as is consistent with its own Constitution, and not in conflict with the Federal Constitution; that such a power in the state, generally referred to as its police power, is not granted by or derived from the Federal Constitution, but exists independently of it, by reason of its never having been surrendered by the state to the general government; that among the powers of the state, not surrendered,—which power therefore remains with the state,—is the power to so regulate the relative rights and duties of all within its jurisdiction as to guard the public morals, the public safety, and the public health, as well as to promote the public convenience and the common good; and that it is with the state to devise the means to be employed to such ends, taking care always that the means devised do not go beyond the necessities of the case, have some real or substantial relation to the objects to be accomplished, and are not inconsistent with its own Constitution or the Constitution of the United States. The cases which sanction these principles are numerous, are well known to the profession, and need not be here cited.

Applying these principles to the present case, we cannot say that the statute in question is in conflict with the Constitution of the United States. The supreme court of Missouri well observed that the object of the statute was to prevent the enforcement of a rule of a board of trade, under the ordinary operation of which unfair and fraudulent practices occur, or would most probably occur, in the sale of grain and the other commodities named. That court said:

"The provision of the act which petitioner is charged *with having violated is[283 that part thereof which prohibits any purchaser of grain from deducting any amount from the actual weight under any claim of right to do so by reason of any custom or rule of the board of trade; and it is the rule of the Kansas City board of trade at which this act is really aimed. The petitioner claims that this act is unconstitutional because it prohibits him from deducting an arbitrary amount, to wit, 100 pounds, from each and every car of grain, irrespective of the fact whether or not it actually contains any dirt or other foreign substance. While conceding in the agreed statement of facts that there is no method of accurately determining the percentage of such foreign matter and dirt, he assumes that there will be an average of 100 pounds to each car. He admits that in grading wheat, dirt and foreign matter are taken into account in determining the value of the grain, but the Kansas City board of trade has arbitrarily added to this, and deducted 100 pounds from every car; so that if A shipped a car of grain to Kansas City to a member of the board of trade, which was entirely free from dirt or foreign matter, under this rule 100 pounds would be deducted, and he loses the value of this 100 pounds, and receives no compensation therefor, but is told that he must submit to this because some other shipper may ship a car load of grain containing 200 pounds of dirt or foreign matter; thus the grain of A, which contains no dirt, is taken without compensation, and the man who shipped a car load of grain with 200 pounds of dirt suffers a deduction of only 100 pounds. . . . 1 Bishop, New Crim. Law, § 234. . . . It prohibits merely the taking of one man's property by another without compensation. It imposes no unjust burden upon the purchaser, but simply inhibits his deducting from the wheat he purchases, a part thereof which he would take without paying the seller therefor, by virtue, not of any *agreement with the seller, but by[284 virtue of a rule made by an association of which he is a member." [227 Mo. 639, 127 S. W. 309.]

Again, the supreme court of the state: "Petitioner insists that by prohibiting him from making the deduction on 100 pounds, his property is taken without due process of law. We agree with the attorney general that he has reversed the conditions. To strike down this act will be to permit him to continue to take the shipper's property without due process of law, and without any compensation therefor. Without further elaboration, we are of the opinion that this act is a valid one, and it is wisely aimed to prevent unjust and unfair practice, and to repeal and nullify a rule of the board of trade which is unjust and unfair, and contrary to good morals and fair dealings, and the act offends against no provision of the Constitution."

Reference has been made to the fact that the board of trade of Kansas City is a voluntary association of individuals who perform great service to the public, and that its purpose is to enforce, as between its members, a high standard of business dealings. Let all this be granted, and yet it must be held that the board, in the management of its affairs, has such close and constant relations to the general public, that the conduct of its business may be regulated by such means, not arbitrary or unreasonable in their nature, as may be found by the state necessary or needful to protect the people against unfair practices that may likely occur from time to time. Such regulations do not, in any true sense, interfere with that "liberty of contract" which the individual members of the board of trade are undoubtedly entitled, under the Constitution, to enjoy, without unnecessary interference from government; for the liberty of contract which that instrument protects against invasion by the state is subject to such regulations of the character just stated, as the state may establish for the pro-

285] tection of the public *and the promotion of the general welfare. If such state regulations are not unreasonable, that is, not simply arbitrary nor beyond the necessities of the case, they are not forbidden by the Constitution of the United States. We so adjudge on both principle and authority.

The judgment of the Supreme Court of Missouri is affirmed.

Mr. Justice McKenna, concurring:

The CHIEF JUSTICE and myself concur in the judgment solely on the ground that it is competent for the state of Missouri to provide that, in the absence of an express contract to which the owner of the articles sold on the board is a party, the rule of the Kansas City board of trade shall not prevail.

THOMAS J. BROADNAX and Frank E. Essex, Plffs. in Err.,
v.
STATE OF MISSOURI.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 285–296.)

Constitutional law — regulating sales for future delivery — police power — due process of law — freedom to contract.

1. The keeping of a place where corporate stocks and bonds and grains, provisions, and other commodities are bought and sold, but not paid for and delivered at the time, and where no complete record of the transactions, including a minute of the time of delivery, is made in a book kept for the purpose, and no memorandum of the sale, properly stamped, is given the purchaser, may be made a criminal offense, as is done by Mo. act. of March 8, 1907, in the exercise of the police power of the state, without taking property without due process of law, or unconstitutionally interfering with the freedom to contract.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 7, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — classification — taxes — sales for future delivery.

2. Singling out the keeping of a place where corporate stocks and bonds, and grains, provisions, and other commodities are bought and sold, but not paid for or delivered at the time, as a proper business for the imposition of a stamp tax upon such sales, as is done by Mo. act of March 8, 1907, does not make the statute invalid, as denying the equal protection of the laws.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — state regulation — sales for future delivery.

3. Interstate commerce is not unconstitutionally regulated by Mo. act of March 8, 1907, under which the keeping of a place where corporate stocks and bonds, and grains, provisions, and other commodities

---

NOTE.—As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 305; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

For a discussion of police power generally, see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

On the constitutionality of statutes restricting contracts and business—see note to State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

On state regulation of interstate or foreign commerce—see notes to Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Com. 13 L.R.A. 107; McCanna & F. Co. v. Citizens' Trust & Surety Co. 24 C. C. A. 13; and Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158.

On contracts for futures to be executed in other states, as interstate commerce—see note to Ware v. Mobile County, 52 L. ed. U. S. 855.

are bought and sold, but not paid for and delivered at the time, is made criminal unless a complete record of the transaction, including a minute of the time of delivery, is made in a book kept for the purpose, and the purchaser is given a memorandum of the sale, properly stamped, although the grains, provisions, and other commodities sold may be, at the time of sale, in the course of transportation as articles of interstate commerce.

[For other cases, see Commerce, IV. b, 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 598.]

Argued December 14, 1910. Decided January 9, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction in the Criminal Court of Jackson County, in that state, of persons charged with violating a statute of the state regulating sales for future delivery. Affirmed.

See same case below, 228 Mo. 25, 128 S. W. 177.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Frank Hagerman argued the cause, and, with Mr. Kimbrough Stone, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

This act is not limited to the great exchanges, where the use of facilities of great value is obtained, as was the case in Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522, nor even to all sales thereat. Moreover, guilt exists if the commodity be not actually paid for, or if delivery be not made. There was no attempt to reach alone sales upon margins, nor to deal with options for future delivery, which are peculiar transactions, involving dangers and necessities for public protection justifying legislative prohibition or regulation (Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 46 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168). If the tax be sustained because of the facilities furnished, as in Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522, then it should be laid alike upon all who use the same. This would include those selling for cash and credit, with or without delivery.

The 14th Amendment secures to everyone the right to carry on a business and to make all contracts needful for the purpose.

Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 589, 41 L. ed. 832, 835, 836, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 390, 42 L. ed. 780, 790, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 53, 49 L. ed. 937, 940, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 172, 173, 52 L. ed. 436, 441, 442, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The police power of the state cannot be exercised unreasonably nor in an arbitrary manner; and whether it has been or not is also a question solely for the courts.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 56, 57, 49 L. ed. 937, 941, 942, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 172, 173, 52 L. ed. 436, 441, 442, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The act, considered as a police regulation, is discriminatory.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 314, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; State v. Julow, 129 Mo. 177, 29 L.R.A. 257, 50 Am. St. Rep. 443, 31 S. W. 781; State v. Walsh, 136 Mo. 405, 35 L.R.A. 231, 37 S. W. 1112; State v. Miksicek, 225 Mo. 577, 135 Am. St. Rep. 597, 125 S. W. 507.

This particular act, however treated, is subject to the same objections as if considered merely as an exercise of the police power.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

The act does not require a tax to be paid upon all sales made at broker's offices or market places, or even all sales made at exchanges, where special facilities are extended, as in Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; nor all sales made of some particular article or commodity, as in People ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 184 N. Y. 431, 8 L.R.A. (N.S.) 314, 112 Am. St. Rep. 628, 77 N. E. 970, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 515, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; nor does it deal with options in futures, as in Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; nor with sales upon margins, as in Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 46 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168,—where the danger to the public is such as to justify classification and regulation.

Considered solely even as a taxing measure, it is discriminatory.

Gray, Limitations of Taxing Power, § 1435; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 417, 418, 54 L. ed. 536, 541, 542, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 291, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247; People ex rel. Farrington v. Mensching, 187 N. Y. 8, 10 L.R.A. (N.S.) 625, 79 N. E. 884, 10

A. & E. Ann. Cas. 101; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 32, 28 L. ed. 923, 925, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 154, 156, 41 L. ed. 666, 668, 669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Raymond v. Chicago Union Traction Co. 207 U. S. 20, 37, 52 L. ed. 78, 87, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 7, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 757; Tiernan v. Rinker, 102 U. S. 123, 26 L. ed. 103; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 26 L. ed. 565; Walling v. Michigan, 116 U. S. 446, 29 L. ed. 691, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 454; State v. Garbroski, 111 Iowa, 496, 56 L.R.A. 570, 82 Am. St. Rep. 524, 82 N. W. 959; State ex rel. Wyatt v. Ashbrook, 154 Mo. 375, 48 L.R.A. 265, 77 Am. St. Rep. 765, 55 S. W. 627; State v. Bengsch, 170 Mo. 81, 70 S. W. 710; State ex rel. Anheuser-Busch Brewing Asso. v. Eby, 170 Mo. 497, 71 S. W. 52; St. Louis v. Spiegel, 75 Mo. 145, 90 Mo. 587, 2 S. W. 839; Kansas City v. Grush, 151 Mo. 128, 52 S. W. 286; Kansas City v. Whipple, 136 Mo. 479, 35 L.R.A. 747, 58 Am. St. Rep. 657, 38 S. W. 295; O'Keeffe v. Somerville, 190 Mass. 110, 112 Am. St. Rep. 316, 76 N. E. 457, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 684; Juniata Limestone Co. v. Fagley, 187 Pa. 193, 42 L.R.A. 442, 67 Am. St. Rep. 579, 40 Atl. 977; Fraser v. McConway & T. Co. 6 Pa. Dist. R. 555; State ex rel. White House School Dist. No. 7 v. Readington Twp. 36 N. J. L. 66; State ex rel. Mudeking v. Parr, 109 Minn. 147, 134 Am. St. Rep. 759, 123 N. W. 408; State ex rel. Luria v. Wagener, 69 Minn. 206, 38 L.R.A. 677, 65 Am. St. Rep. 565, 72 N. W. 67; Com. v. Snyder, 182 Pa. 630, 38 Atl. 356; State ex rel. Winkler v. Benzenberg, 101 Wis. 172, 76 N. W. 345; State v. Gardner, 58 Ohio St. 599, 41 L.R.A. 689, 65 Am. St. Rep. 785, 51 N. E. 136; Harrodsburg v. Renfro, 22 Ky. L. Rep. 806, 51 L.R.A. 897, 58 S. W. 795; Lassen County v. Cone, 72 Cal. 387, 14 Pac. 100.

This court will look through forms to the substance of things; and if in substance there is any interference with interstate commerce, state legislation so interfering must fall, no matter how general its form, and even though interstate transactions are not specifically mentioned.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190, 197, 198; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 227, 52 L. ed. 1031, 1037, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Pullman Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 56, 54 L. ed. 378, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232; International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 487, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1103.

Whether considered as a police regulation or tax measure, the effect upon interstate commerce is as immediate and direct as in any of the instances mentioned or cases cited by Mr. Justice Harlan in Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190, 197, 198; especially as in Brimmer v. Rebman, 138 U. S. 78, 81, 34 L. ed. 862, 863, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 485, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 213.

If, however, the act be treated as an occupation or license tax, or one for facilities used for each sale, still it is in substance and effect a tribute laid upon property engaged in interstate commerce. So it has been here repeatedly decided in many occupation, license, and privilege tax cases.

Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Robbins v. Taxing Dist. 120 U. S. 489, 30 L. ed. 694, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592; Lyng v. Michigan, 135 U. S. 161, 34 L. ed. 150, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 143, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 725; Asher v. Texas, 128 U. S. 129, 32 L. ed. 368, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 241, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Brennan v. Titusville, 153 U. S. 289, 38 L. ed. 719, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 658, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Stockard v. Morgan, 185 U. S. 27, 46 L. ed. 785, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 163, 47 L. ed. 995, 999, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817; Kehrer v. Stewart, 197 U. S. 60, 65, 49 L. ed. 663, 666, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403.

The location of the property is not material; whether in interstate transit cuts no figure. The act cannot, then, by construction, be restrained to state commerce. It must stand or fall as a whole. If it deals with or reaches interstate commerce, it is void in toto.

United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 222, 23 L. ed. 563, 566; Trade-Mark Cases, 100 U. S. 82, 98, 99, 25 L. ed. 550, 553, 554; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 305, 29 L. ed. 185, 197, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; Illinois C. R. Co. v. McKendree, 203 U. S. 514, 529, 51 L. ed. 298, 304, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 153; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 500, 52 L. ed. 297, 310, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141.

If a state law uses general language broad enough to include interstate commerce, it cannot be sustained even as to strictly state transactions.

Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 643, 32 L. ed. 311, 312, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 738; Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, 35 L. ed. 649, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851; Pickard v. Pullman Southern Car Co. 117 U. S. 34, 29 L. ed. 785, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 635; Western U. Teleg. Co.

v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190.

If the act be treated as a mere police regulation, and not a measure to raise revenue, then it might possibly be upheld as one not affecting interstate commerce, provided the effect thereon was only incidental, and not direct, and the charge made only covered the cost of the service rendered by the state.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. New Hope, 187 U. S. 419, 47 L. ed. 240, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 204; Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. ed. 995, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817.

A tax upon facilities, for the purpose of raising revenue, as decided below, necessarily interferes with such interstate commerce transactions as are reached thereby.

Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. ed. 995, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817.

Mr. Elliott W. Major, Attorney General of Missouri, argued the cause, and, with Mr. John M. Atkinson, filed a brief for defendant in error:

The legislative act does not violate any of the provisions of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

People ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 184 N. Y. 442, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 314, 112 Am. St. Rep. 628, 77 N. E. 970, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 515, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Brown-Forman Co. v. Kentucky, 217 U. S. 572, 54 L. ed. 886, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 546, 53 L. ed. 319, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. May, 194 U. S. 267, 48 L. ed. 971, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; People ex rel. Williams Engineering & Contracting Co. v. Metz, 193 N. Y. 161, 24 L.R.A.(N.S.) 201, 85 N. E. 1070; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 609, 610, 47 L. ed. 327, 328, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168.

Optional sales in grain were entirely prohibited by statute in the state of Illinois.

Booth v. People, 186 Ill. 43, 50 L.R.A. 762, 78 Am. St. Rep. 229, 57 N. E. 798; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425.

We find analogous cases construing the stamp act passed by Congress in 1908, and among the leading cases are the following:

Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 516, 43 L. ed. 792, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; United States v. Thomas, 115 Fed. 209.

Also analogous inheritance tax laws have been held valid by both Federal and state courts.

Re Keeney, 194 N. Y. 285, 87 N. E. 428; Beers v. Glynn, 211 U. S. 477, 53 L. ed. 290, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Powers, 201 U. S. 301, 50 L. ed. 764, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747.

The rule as to classification does not require absolute equality in taxation, even in the same class. Absolute equality in an excise or occupation license tax is a physical impossibility.

Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 300, 301, 42 L. ed. 1044, 1045, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Clark v. Titusville, 184 U. S. 330, 46 L. ed. 572, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 382.

The act does not interfere with interstate commerce, and is not violative of the provisions of § 8 of art. 1 of the Constitution of the United States.

People ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 184 N. Y. 448, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 314, 112 Am. St. Rep. 628, 77 N. E. 970, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 515, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Standard Oil Co. v. Tennessee, 217 U. S. 413, 54 L. ed. 817, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 543; Ware v. Mobile County, 209 U. S. 405, 52 L. ed. 855, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1031, 146 Ala. 163, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1081, 121 Am. St. Rep. 21, 41 So. 153; Pittsburg & S. Coal Co. v. Louisiana, 156 U. S. 590, 39 L. ed. 544, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 18, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Plumley v. Massachusetts, 155 U. S. 473, 39 L. ed. 223, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 590, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154; Alexander v. State, 86 Ga. 246, 10 L.R.A. 859, 12 S. E. 408.

Mr. Justice Harlan delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an indictment in the criminal court of Jackson county, Missouri, against the plaintiffs in error, Broadnax and Essex. It is based on a statute of Missouri, approved March 8th, 1907 (Mo. Sess. Acts 1907, pp. 392, 393; Mo. Rev. Stat. 1909, §§ 10,228–10,230), which declares it to be "unlawful for any corporation, association, copartnership, or person to keep, or cause to be kept, in this state, any office, store, or other place wherein is permitted the buying or selling the shares of stocks or bonds of any corporation, or petroleum, cotton, grain, provisions, or other commodities, either on margins or otherwise, where the same is not at the time actually paid for and delivered, without at the time of the sale the seller shall cause to be made a complete record of the thing sold, the purchaser, and the time of delivery, in a book kept for that purpose; and at the time the seller shall deliver to the purchaser a written or printed memorandum of said sale, on which he shall place, or cause to be placed, a stamp of the value of 25 cents, which the seller shall purchase of the state auditor, and have on hand before making such sale; and it shall be the duty of the state auditor, upon the passage of this act, to have printed or engraved stamps for this purpose, of such design as he may select; and on application and 290] *payment for said stamps, to immediately furnish the same to the applicants applying therefor: Provided, further, and it shall be unlawful for the purchaser to receive the memoranda aforesaid until it bears the stamp above provided for. § 1. The fund arising from the sale of the stamps provided for in § 1 of this act shall, in the hands of the state auditor, constitute a road fund; and it shall be the duty of the said auditor to distribute said fund, annually, to the counties in the state and the city of St. Louis, in the same proportion and in like manner as the state school funds are now distributed by him. § 2. Any person, whether acting individually or as a member, or as an officer, agent, or employee of any corporation, association, or copartnership, who shall be guilty of violating any of the provisions of § 1, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than fifty, nor more than one thousand dollars, and in addition thereto may be imprisoned in the county or city jail for a period of not less than thirty days, nor to exceed one year. § 3."

The indictment charges that the defendants, being officers and agents of the board of trade of Kansas City, Missouri, did, at a time specified, wilfully and unlawfully keep and caused to be kept a place, commonly called the trading floor of the board of trade of Kansas City, wherein was permitted the buying and selling of grain, provisions, and other commodities, on margins and otherwise, and where, at the time of such sales, so permitted, the grain, provisions, and other commodities so sold, were not actually paid for and delivered, and at such time and place the sellers, or any of them, of the grain, provisions, and other commodities, so sold on margins and otherwise, did not then and there cause to be made a complete record of the commodities sold and the time of delivery in a book kept for that purpose, and at said time and place neither the sellers, nor any 291] of them, delivered to the purchasers *a written or printed memoranda of said sales, on which they, the sellers, or any of them, had placed or caused to be placed a stamp of the value of 25 cents, which they had purchased of the state auditor, and had on hand before making such sales; contrary to the statutes, etc.

The defendants demurred to the indictment on the ground, among others, that the statute was in violation of the 14th Amendment, as well as of the commerce provision of the Constitution of the United States. The demurrer was overruled and the defendants excepted. A jury was waived, and the case was tried by the court.

Before the introduction of evidence, the defendants objected to any proof, resting their objection upon these grounds: 1. That the statute was discriminatory, abridged the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States, deprived defendants of their property without due process of law, and denied to them the equal protection of the law, contrary to the provisions of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States. 2. That it was an unwarranted attempt to regulate interstate commerce.

The objection was also made that the statute was in violation of certain alleged provisions of the Constitution of Missouri. But with the latter ground we have, for obvious reasons, no concern on this writ of error from the state court. The above objections to the evidence were overruled, the defendants duly excepting.

For the purpose of the case, and subject to such objections as might be thereafter stated, facts were admitted which brought the case within the provisions of the statute and the averments of the indictment.

The defendants objected to these facts as incompetent and inconsistent with the Constitutions, both of the United States and of Missouri. The objections were overruled and the defendants excepted. To the above statement *of admitted facts[292 this was added: "A substantial part of the sales aforesaid being of grain, provisions, and other commodities which were, at the time of sale, in course of transportation as articles of interstate commerce." The state objected to the facts just stated as incompetent and irrelevant. The objection was overruled, and the state excepted.

The result of the trial was a judgment that the defendants were guilty, and they were fined each $50. Motions for a new trial and for the arrest of judgment having been severally denied, the case was taken by appeal to the supreme court of Missouri, where the judgment of the trial court was affirmed.

The assignments of error present the same questions of constitutional law that were raised by the defendants' demurrer and objections to evidence.

The words of the statute show that the keeping of a place where corporate stocks and bonds, as well as grains, provisions, and other commodities were bought and sold, but not paid for at the time, without a complete record of the transaction (including a minute of the time of delivery) in a book kept for that purpose, and without the purchaser receiving a printed or written memorandum of the sale, needed to be regulated, so as to protect the public against unfair or fraudulent practices that might result to the injury or inconvenience of the general public. We are not prepared to hold that the state in this matter has exceeded the bounds of reason, or has legislated beyond the necessities of the case, or has arbitrarily interfered with the course of ordinary business among its people. While it is the duty of the Federal courts, if their jurisdiction be lawfully invoked, to see to it that the constitutional rights of the citizen are not infringed by the state, or by its authorized agents, they should not strike down an enactment or regulation adopted by the state under its police power, unless it be clear that the declaration 293] *of public policy contained in the statute is plainly in violation of the Federal Constitution. Much may be done by a state under its police power which many may regard as an unwise exertion of governmental authority. But the Federal courts have no power to overthrow such local legislation, simply because they do not approve it, or because they deem it unwise or inexpedient. What we have said in House v. Mayes, 219 U. S. 270, ante, 213, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234, as to the nature and extent of the police power of the state, is applicable to this case, and need not be here repeated.

Suffice it on this point to adjudge, as we now do, that the Federal Constitution does not prevent the enforcement by the state of the provision making it unlawful to keep or cause to be kept in the state an office, store, or place, where things are omitted to be done which the statute requires to be done at the time bonds and stocks and commodities are sold and bought in such place. The defendants were indicted and found guilty of keeping and causing to be kept such a place as the statute forbade to be kept or caused to be kept. We do not perceive that any right secured by the 14th Amendment is or has been thereby violated. We could not adjudge otherwise without declaring that the statute was so unreasonable and so far beyond the necessities of the case as to be deemed a purely arbitrary interference with lawful business transactions. We are unwilling to so adjudge. Much was said at bar about the "liberty of contract." In a large sense every person has that liberty. It is secured by the provision in the Federal Constitution, forbidding a state to deprive any person of liberty or property without due process of law. But the Federal Constitution does not confer a liberty to disregard regulations as to the conduct of business which the state lawfully establishes for all within its jurisdiction.

224

It is contended that the statute is in violation of the 14th Amendment, in that the classification of subjects *within[294 the limits of the authorities levying the stamp tax is not a true classification. Construing the statute, the state court said: "In our opinion, this law clearly embraces every class, whether it be corporation, association, either voluntary or otherwise, partnership, or person which furnishes a place for dealing in sales of stocks, bonds, etc., upon margins or otherwise, where the same are not at the time actually paid for and delivered, and embraces all classes who may deal in such places so furnished. It is clear that the character of business which is treated of by the statute is fully recognized as a separate and distinct business from all other classes. That the statute embraces every class, whether it be corporation, association, partnership, or person who may furnish a place or who may deal in transactions in such places, there can be, in our opinion, no sort of doubt; therefore we conclude that, so far as the class of persons to whom this law is made applicable, whether natural or artificial, this statute embraces the entire class, and is not subject to the objection that it singles out a part of a legal class upon which the license or stamp tax is imposed, and exempts others of the same class. Manifestly, the selection of the business calling and the class pursuing such calling were proper and appropriately selected by the legislature of this state in dealing with that subject." [228 Mo. 42, 128 S. W. 182.] Of course, we take the statute as a local law to mean what the court says it means. Nor is there any force in the objection that the classification, as shown by the statute, is arbitrary and unreasonable. The same methods and means are applied equally to all of the same class. Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 337, 29 L. ed. 414, 419, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 32, 28 L. ed. 923, 925, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357.

Again, it is said that the statute, by its necessary operation, is a regulation of interstate commerce. Not so. It might suffice, in the present case, to say that, under *the facts admitted, there is no reason[295 whatever to invoke the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution. All that the defendants offered to show in this connection was that a substantial part of the sales referred to were of grain, provisions, and other commodities which were, at the time of sale, in course of transportation as articles of interstate commerce. With this state of facts, and no more before it, the supreme court of the state said: "The requirements of the statute now under consideration have no bearing or influence whatever upon property sold. It is addressed to those furnishing the places, as well as those who deal in the transaction in such places. In other words, in sales of property in the manner and at the places pointed out by the statute it is required, where a sale is made in the manner contemplated by that statute, that the seller shall make a memorandum of such sale, and place upon such memorandum a 25 cent stamp. We repeat that transactions of this character have no influence whatever upon commerce between different states, and, as was in substance said by the Supreme Court of the United States [New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736], sales of this character do not contemplate or have anything to do with the transportation of property from one state to another, as in the drummer cases, and the mere fact that the parties to such sale, or either one of them, happens to be a resident of another state, in no way, legally or practically, affects the transaction, and falls far short of subjecting such transaction to condemnation for the reason that it interferes with interstate commerce. Our conclusion upon this proposition is that this statute in no way interferes with interstate commerce, and should not be held invalid for that reason." We add that the indictment deals with the place where sales, such as the statute describes, are made. The offense is complete under the statute, by the keeping of such a place, and that occurs before 296] any question of interstate *commerce could arise, so far as this record discloses.

219 U. S.

We do not perceive that any error of law was committed by the state court, and its judgment is affirmed.

WINSLOW HART REAVES, Second Lieutenant, Artillery Corps, U. S. Army, Plff. in Err.,

v.

FREDERICK C. AINSWORTH, Major General, Military Secretary, U. S. Army, and William H. Taft, Secretary of War.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 296–307.)

Military tribunals — jurisdiction — due process of law.

1. The proceedings before the examining board, convened under the act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 562, chap. 1241, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 849), enacted to provide for the promotion or retirement of Army officers, which resulted in the discharge of an officer with one year's pay, by order of the President, were not had without jurisdiction, and hence without due process of law, because the board had previously made an order that such officer was then physically incapacitated for service from disability contracted in line of duty, but had a reasonable hope of recovery, and that he could not with safety proceed with his examination, since such order was merely provisional, and not a final decision, which, under the law, would have entitled him to be retired with three quarters pay for life.

[For other cases, see War, 62–71; Constitutional Law, 764, 773, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — military law.

2. Military law is due process of law to those in the military or naval service of the United States.

[Due process of law, generally, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Courts — relation to military tribunal.

3. The decision of a military tribunal acting within the scope of its lawful powers cannot be reviewed or set aside by the courts.

[For other cases, see Courts, I. e, 7, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Courts — relation to military tribunal — certiorari.

4. Errors and injustice done in the proceedings before the examining board convened under the authority of the act of October 1, 1890, enacted to provide for the promotion or retirement of Army officers, which resulted in the discharge of an officer with one year's pay, by an order made by the President, in the exercise of his reserved power to review the proceedings and decisions of such board, cannot be corrected by the courts by certiorari.

[For other cases, see Courts, I. e, 7; Certiorari, I. b, 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 14.]

Argued December 2 and 5, 1910. Decided January 9, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Supreme Court of the District, dismissing a petition for certiorari to review the proceedings of a military tribunal and the order made by the President, discharging an Army officer with one year's pay. Affirmed.

See same case below, 28 App. D. C. 157.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

NOTE.—On superintending control of civil courts over court-martial—see note to State ex rel. Poole v. Nuchols, 20 L.R.A.(N.S.) 413.

Mr. Alexander S. Bacon argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Assistant Attorney General Harr argued the cause and filed a brief for defendants in error.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Plaintiff in error filed a petition in the supreme court of the District of Columbia for a writ of certiorari to review the proceedings of a board of examination convened under the authority of the act of Congress of October 1, 1890, entitled, "An Act to Provide for the Examination of Certain Officers of the Army, and to regulate Promotions Therein" (26 Stat. at L. 562, chap. 1241, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 849), and to annul an order made by the President, discharging plaintiff in error from the Army.

The basis of the petition is that, by a prior decision of the board, he became entitled, by virtue of the act of Congress, to be retired with three quarters pay for life.

A writ was issued, directed to General Frederick C. Ainsworth, Military Secretary.

He appeared and moved to quash the writ. The motion was granted and the petition dismissed. The order, however, was subsequently vacated, and, by leave of the court, the petition was amended by making William H. Taft, Secretary of War, one of the respondents.

An amended writ was issued, which the respondents moved to supersede upon the following grounds: The writ was granted improvidently, and upon an ex parte application; its allowance would be unjust and contrary to public policy; the petition does not set up any right of property, title, or interest in the alleged office; Congress has intrusted to the board of examination the 298] decision of *matters properly arising before it, and the court has no jurisdiction by certiorari to examine the proceedings of the board; the allowance of the writ would embarrass the operations of the military service of the United States and the proper administration of the manifold duties of the War Department, hindering the enforcement of its discipline and regulations, and the discharge of the legally ordained functions of that branch of the government; the record sought to be reviewed shows that the petitioner (plaintiff in error) "is not entitled to the issuance of the writ, as it appears by a duly certified and true extract from said record." The record was filed with the motion and will be given hereafter.

The motion to supersede was granted, the order reciting, "it appearing to the court, without considering the question of discretion, that the writ of certiorari" had been "improperly granted." The petition was dismissed at the cost of the petitioner, which ruling was affirmed by the court of appeals.

The court of appeals expressed the opinion that the board of examination was military in character, and having had jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the person, the courts were without jurisdiction to review its decision.

By § 3 of the act of October 1, 1890, the President is authorized to prescribe a system of examination for all officers below the rank of major, to determine their fitness for promotion, and it is provided "that if any officer fails to pass a satisfactory examination and is reported unfit for promotion, the officer next below him in rank, having passed said examination, shall receive the promotion: And provided, That should the officer fail in his physical examination, and be found incapacitated for service by reason of physical disability contracted in line of duty, he shall be retired with the rank to which his seniority entitled him to be promoted; but if he should *fail for any other reason, he shall be[299 suspended from promotion for one year, when he shall be re-examined, and in case of failure of such re-examination he shall be honorably discharged with one year's pay from the Army; . . . and no act . . . shall be so construed as to limit or restrict the retirement of officers as herein provided for."

This statute constitutes the law of the case. The material facts are these: Plaintiff in error was a second lieutenant of artillery on sick leave at Fort Hamilton on account of neurasthenia, resulting from overwork in the Philippine Islands. On August 16, 1904, he was ordered for promotion before a board of examination, constituted of five members, two of whom were surgeons. The surgeons found him physically fit for duty, but he was, on their recommendation, allowed to return to Fort Hamilton. On October 5, 1904, while still on sick leave, he was again ordered to Fort Monroe before the same board and forced to take a mental examination. He broke down completely and was found deficient. On May 22, 1905, he was again ordered before the board for re-examination, and appeared before it on the 23d. On the 24th the board made the following order, which was referred to above in connection with the motion to supersede the writ:

"The board is of opinion that 2d Lieut. Winslow H. Reaves, Art'l Corps, is physically incapacitated for service at the present time, but that there is a reasonable hope of his recovery. Lieut. Reaves's present condition is such that it is not possible for him to proceed with the mental examination without serious interference with his future recovery.

"His disability is due to severe cerebral and cardio-vascular neurasthenia, contracted in line of duty."

Subsequently he was ordered to appear before the same examining board, convened by special order of the President, but changed as to a majority of its members. 300] The *board convened at Fort Monroe August 21, 1905, and he appeared before it pursuant to orders. He was found physically fit for duty. He failed, however, in his mental examination, and, we may assume, although it is not directly averred, that in consequence of the report of the board, the President made the order above set out, honorably discharging the plaintiff in error from the service of the United States. This order he attacks, and urges that of the 24th of May as the foundation of his rights and contentions. He maintains that the surgeons having reported as therein set out, and their report having been confirmed by a full board of five officers, and forwarded to the Secretary of War, it, under the express wording of the statute of October 1, 1890, had the finality of an acquittal of a court-martial, "and that, by the operation of the statute," plaintiff in error "was thereupon retired and entitled to retired pay during life, instead of being dismissed from the service with one year's pay," and that, as such right became absolute by the report of the surgeons and the action of the board thereon, the subsequent proceedings of the board were without jurisdiction and void, and that they and the President's order deprived him of his property without due process of law.

Plaintiff in error misunderstands the order of May 24. It is not a final order, but a provisional one. It was an indulgence to the afflicted officer, giving him a chance for recovery and promotion and assignment to the active list of his profession. And we have no doubt of the power of the board to make it and reserve jurisdiction for further proceedings.

It is next contended that, even if the board had jurisdiction, its proceedings subsequent to the order of May 24, 1905, were arbitrary and illegal, and that the relief prayed does not involve the "question of interference with the discretion of the board; it is a question of the jurisdiction 301]*of the board and of the fact that discretion, if exercised, was abused." On this contention, the averments of the petition have a more pertinent bearing than on the first contention. The petition described with much detail and quite vividly his disability. He alleges that for the last two years he has been suffering from an extremely acute case of cerebral neurasthenia, or nervous exhaustion, for which he has been almost continuously under the care of physicians, some of whom are the most famous in the world as specialists for nervous diseases. And, further, that he is to-day in as bad a condition as at any time during the last two years, and is wholly unable to exercise mental effort; his memory is at times a blank, and it is, and for two years has been, utterly impossible for him "to study, read, or think consecutively, except for a few moments at a time, and 'his' sleep has not averaged more than about two and one-half hours per day." This was his condition, it is alleged, when he was ordered before the first board. The allegations are supported by an affidavit of Dr. Weir Mitchell and Dr. John K. Mitchell. The affidavit, which was submitted to the first board, illustrated his condition and its effects in various ways, and declared that from the experience and knowledge obtained from actual attendance upon him, he was not "competent to undergo a mental examination or to do any military duty."

This condition is further set forth in the petition, and the affidavit which accompanied it, with circumstances of emphasis, and there is an intimation that the final action of the board was contrived. The details we may omit. The important facts which are alleged, and which, as it is contended, give character to the action of the board as illegal and arbitrary, are the following: The board had before it papers from the War Department, and his counsel made a series of motions for permission to examine them and to inspect the other evidence, which included *documents of[302 all kinds, reports of surgeons, and the report of the surgeons made to the board May 23, 1905.

A motion was also made to strike out the report of the surgeons, on the ground that the report of the examining board of May 24, 1905, was final, and plaintiff in error's retirement was mandatory under said report and the act of Congress of October 1, 1890.

The motions were all denied except the request to produce witnesses. At the request of the board, he presented the names of about thirty witnesses who were physicians and had had him under observation for different periods of time, and all of whom could swear to facts, exact symptoms of his malady, and besides could give expert evidence as to his condition while under observation. The names of the witnesses and the facts were given. It was offered to be shown that the reports of the surgeon who had charge of a hospital at Fort McPherson, Georgia, to which plaintiff had been sent, that he was competent to do duty, were not based on facts or the reports of the attendants, "but were prepared negligently, ignorantly, wickedly, and corruptly." And an offer was made to produce the attendants with their official reports.

The board refused to call in witnesses, on the ground that the doctors named had already filed certificates, and that the laymen were not expert witnesses. Plaintiff in error was not allowed to call witnesses, nor to inspect exhibits presented to the board, nor to cross-examine the surgeons on their report. All testimony, documentary or otherwise, was taken in secret.

The board went into executive session and formally reported plaintiff in error to be without physical disqualification, and competent to take the examination, and to do the duty of a first lieutenant of artillery. He was thereupon ordered to take such examination, and attempted to take the same, until prevented by spells of weeping and other marked symptoms of neurasthenia. 303] *Thereupon the post surgeon made a certificate as to his condition and put him on the sick report, and on the following day the surgeons of the board were sent to Fort Monroe and superseded the post surgeon, and plaintiff in error was forced to go through "the farcical form of an examination under the personal supervision of the board surgeons, turning in practically blank examination papers, petitioner's mind being almost a blank."

The prayer is for a writ of certiorari to bring up all of the proceedings which we have detailed, that they may be reviewed, and that the following order discharging him from the Army be annulled. The order is annexed to the petition as an exhibit, and is as follows:

4. By direction of the President, 2d Lieutenant Winslow Hart Reaves, Artillery Corps, is honorably discharged from the services of the United States, under the provision of the act of Congress approved October 1, 1890, to take effect September 14, 1905 (1,052,959, M. S. O.).

By order of the Acting Secretary of War.

J. C. Bates,

Major General, Acting Chief of Staff.

Official: F. C. Ainsworth,

The Military Secretary.

And it is further prayed that petitioner be put upon the retired list under the act of October 1, 1890, and the findings of the board of May 24, 1905, and that the proceedings of the board and of the Acting Secretary of War subsequent to that date be found to be void and without effect. And such further relief is prayed as may be just.

The petition is verified and is accompanied by an affidavit of plaintiff in error's counsel, corroborating with some detail its statements of the mental and physical condition of plaintiff in error.

It will be seen that the report of the board of May 24, 1905, *is made by[304 the petition, and urged in the argument, as the foundation of the rights of plaintiff in error. It is argued that his commission in the Army constituted property of which to be retired from the Army, with pay for life, was a valuable attribute, and of which he could not be deprived without due process of law. Such process, he urges, "consists of two independent parts, both of which must be lawful; one, the proceeding before the board of examination and its report, which conforms in all respects to a 'decision' by a judge, which is the foundation of a judgment; second, the confirmation of that report by the President." These being filed, it is further argued all subsequent proceedings affecting them, if without jurisdictional support, as it is contended they are, are void and may be declared so, and plaintiff in error's right to be promoted and put upon the retired list adjudged. But the contention and argument are without foundation, as we have seen, and the case presented by the petition does not exist. It is not necessary, therefore, to review the able argument of counsel. It is based entirely on the unsound assumption which we have pointed out. Besides, what is due process of law must be determined by circumstances. To those in the military or naval service of the United States the military law is due process. The decision, therefore, of a military tribunal acting within the scope of its lawful powers cannot be reviewed or set aside by the courts. Johnson v. Sayre, 158 U. S. 109, 39 L. ed. 914, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 773. See also Mullan v. United States, 212 U. S. 516, 53 L. ed. 632, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330.

It is contended, however, that the board of examination did not observe the procedure required by law, and that they are bound, as retiring boards are bound under § 1248 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 886), to "inquire into and determine the facts touching the nature and occasion of the disability of any officer, . . . and shall have such powers of a court-martial and of a court of inquiry as may be necessary for that purpose."

*But the act of October 1, 1890, has[305

a different purpose from the retirement of an officer from service. Its purpose is to secure efficiency in those who are to be active in service, and physical capacity, of course, is as necessary as mental capacity, but no fixed procedure is provided by the statute to ascertain either; but by very comprehensive words power is conferred upon the President to "prescribe a system of examination of all officers of the Army, to be conducted at special times anterior to the acquiring of the right of promotion, as may be best for the interests of the service." This power is exercised through special orders creating examining boards, which define their membership and duties. For officers of artillery, the board shall consist of five members, two of whom shall be medical officers, and a recorder, all of whom take an oath to act and report impartially. The medical officers are required to make the necessary physical examination of all officers, reporting their opinion to the board, by which "all questions relating to the physical condition of an officer shall be determined." The orders directed that "if anything should arise during the examination regarding the introduction of evidence, the inquiry shall proceed upon written interrogatories as far as possible, the board determining to whom questions shall be forwarded." If it becomes necessary to take oral testimony, the fact must be reported to the War Department for the necessary orders in regard to witnesses summoned from a distance.

The record, where an officer is found physically disqualified, must be authenticated by all members of the board and the recorder. If the disability be the result of an incident of the service, and the proceedings of the board be approved by the President, the officer "shall be regarded as physically unfit for promotion, within the meaning of § 3 of the act of October 1, 1890, and shall be retired with the rank to which his 306] seniority entitles *him whenever a vacancy occurs that otherwise would result in his promotion on the active list."

If it be disputable whether these provisions guarantee to an officer "the safeguards of a trial in court," it is certain that the decision is not final with the board, but must be reported with the proceedings to the President, and may be approved or disapproved by him. This is the only relief from the errors or the injustice that may be done by the board which is provided. The courts have no power to review. The courts are not the only instrumentalities of government. They cannot command or regulate the Army. To be promoted or to be retired may be the right of an officer, the value to him of his commission, but greater even than that is the welfare of the country, and, it may be, even its safety, through the efficiency of the Army. And this was the motive of the act of October 1, 1890, and naturally its accomplishment was intrusted to the President. He executed the trust by constituting examining boards, defining their duty, and reserving to himself the ultimate review of their proceedings and decision. This is the protection which the act of Congress gives to the rights conferred by it. If it had been the intention of Congress to give to an officer the right to raise issues and controversies with the board upon the elements, physical and mental, of his qualifications for promotion, and carry them over the head of the President to the courts, and to be there litigated, it may be, through a course of years, upon the assertion of error or injustice in the board's rulings or decisions, such intention would have been explicitly declared. The embarrassment of such a right to the service, indeed, the detriment of it, may be imagined.

It is, however, contended, that People ex rel. Smith v. Hoffman, 166 N. Y. 462, 54 L.R.A. 597, 60 N. E. 187, sustains the right of review. The case does not support the contention. The decision was based on the statutes of the state, which made, it was *decided, the military board whose ac-[307 tion was reviewed, a judicial tribunal, and its decision subject to be reviewed by certiorari. And, replying to the argument against the existence of the power of the courts to review the determination of a military tribunal, and the cases from the Federal courts, adduced to support the argument, the court said: "There is a wide difference between the regular Army of the nation and the militia of a state, when not in the service of the nation;" and that "more rigid rules and a higher state of dicipline are required in the one case than in the other."

Judgment affirmed.

GERMAN ALLIANCE INSURANCE COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
FOSTER K. HALE, Junior.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 307-320.)

Constitutional law — due process of law — penalizing insurance company connected with tariff association.

1. Due process of law is not denied to an insurance company connected with a tariff association which fixes rates, by Ala. Code 1896, §§ 2619, 2620, under which the insured or beneficiary in a policy issued by such company may recover, in addition to the actual loss, 25 per cent of the amount of such actual loss or damage, any stipulation in the contract of insurance to the contrary notwithstanding; but such statute is a valid exercise of the police power of the state, to discourage monopolies and to encourage competition in the matter of insurance rates.

NOTE.—As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 475–477, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — penalizing insurance company connected with tariff association.

2. An insurance company connected with a tariff association which fixes rates is not denied the equal protection of the laws by Alabama Code 1896, §§ 2619, 2620, under which the insured or beneficiary in a policy issued by such company may recover, in addition to the actual loss or damage, 25 per cent of the amount of such actual loss or damage, since such statute places upon an equality in every respect all insurers which, at the time of issuing the insurance or subsequently, and before trial, were in anyway connected with any other persons, associations, or corporations which acted together in fixing insurance rates.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 279–284, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — presumption — waiving or abandoning errors below.

3. The issues raised by a plea will be presumed to have been waived or abandoned at the trial, where, after a demurrer to

---

655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

For a discussion of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

As to the validity of class legislation—see notes to State v. Goodwill, 6 L.R.A. 621, and State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

Legality of combinations among underwriters.

Combinations or agreements relating to insurance are ordinarily valid, both at common law and under statutes specifically relating to combinations and monopolies, where the principal purpose thereof is to promote the business welfare and convenience of the parties thereto. They must not, however, be unreasonably in restraint of trade, or for the purpose of regulating and controlling the rate of premium to be charged. Workman v. London & L. F. Ins. Co. 19 Times L. R. 360; Bloom v. Home Ins. Agency, 91 Ark. 367, 121 S. W. 293; Childs ex rel. Smith v. Firemen's Ins. Co. 66 Minn. 393, 35 L.R.A. 99, 69 N. W. 141.

Local insurance agents could sell and transfer to a corporation the entire insurance business of their respective agencies, including expirations and good will, and agree not to solicit insurance in the county for five years except on behalf of such corporation, without violating public policy or the Arkansas anti-trust act of July 23 1905, there being nothing in the sale which affected or regulated the insurance premiums. Bloom v. Home Ins. Agency, 91 Ark. 367, 121 S. W. 293.

A rule of a board of fire underwriters of a city, organized to promote harmony and correct practises in fire underwriting, that no member shall take the agency of a company which is already represented in the city, is not unreasonable, arbitrary, or oppressive, and violates no principle of public policy. Louisville Bd. of Fire Underwriters v. Johnson, 133 Ky. 797, 24 L.R.A. (N.S.) 153, 119 S. W. 153.

A combination of underwriters is not unlawful, the object of which is to compel people carrying insurance to insure through regular agents or brokers. Workman v. London & L. F. Ins. Co. 19 Times L. R. 360.

So, a combination of underwriters is lawful where the purpose is to assist firemen at fires, and especially to look after salvage. Childs ex rel. Smith v. Firemen's Ins. Co. 66 Minn. 393, 35 L.R.A. 99, 69 N. W. 141.

Generally, such a combination is unlawful at common law where the purpose is to regulate and control the rate of premiums to be charged, the effect being to enhance the price. McCarter v. Firemen's Ins. Co. 74 N. J. Eq. 372, 29 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1194, 135 Am. St. Rep. 708, 73 Atl. 80, 144, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1048; People v. Aachen & M. F. Ins. Co. 126 Ill. App. 636.

Thus, a contract in restraint of trade, entered into by a number of fire insurance companies, the necessary effect and actual result of which are to control such business within a certain area, and within such area to fix and regulate prices, and to limit or eliminate competition, to the injury of the public, is contrary to public policy, and may be restrained in equity at the suit of the attorney general. McCarter v. Firemen's Ins. Co. 74 N. J. Eq. 372, 29 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1194, 135 Am. St. Rep. 708, 73 Atl. 80, 144, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1048.

But see Continental Ins. Co. v. Fire Underwriters, 67 Fed. 310, which holds that an association of fire underwriters for the purpose of regulating premium rates, the prevention of rebates, fixing the compensation of agents, and providing for nonintercourse with companies not members, is not an unlawful combination at common law. To same effect is People ex rel. Pinckney v. New York Fire Underwriters, 7 Hun, 248.

such plea had been sustained without exception taken, defendant went to trial upon the merits without objection, and introduced evidence upon other issues, and no evidence was offered or introduced on either side relating to the matters set out in such plea.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. d, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

56.]

Argued and submitted November 29, 1910. Decided January 16, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Alabama to review a judgment in favor of plaintiff in an action on a policy of insurance. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Alexander C. King argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Shelton Sims, J. H. Webb, Pillans, Hanaw, & Pillans, and King & Spalding, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The statute assailed is not made, or sustainable, as a condition to the doing of business.

Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 409, 50 L. ed. 246, 249, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66.

At least, all coinsurers on the same risk should, in litigation about said risk, stand in the same class. Classification between

---

The authorities are not agreed as to whether combinations of agencies or underwriters for the purpose of regulating and controlling rates of premium to be charged are within the terms of anti-trust laws relating to combinations in restraint of trade.

The act of the 22d general assembly of Iowa, chap. 84, § 1 (McClain's Code, 5454), inhibiting any pool, trust, agreement, or combination or confederation to fix the price of oil, lumber, coal, grain, flour, provisions, or any other commodity or article whatever, covers a compact between local insurance agents to fix rates upon all risks of insurance within a certain locality, as insurance is a commodity. Beechley v. Mulville, 102 Iowa, 602, 63 Am. St. Rep. 479, 70 N. W. 107, 71 N. W. 428.

Support for this view may be found in the decision in Re Pinkney, 47 Kan. 89, 27 Pac. 179, where the court held that the provisions of the Kansas statute which prohibit combinations to control insurance rates are embraced within the title, "An Act to Declare Unlawful Trusts and Combinations in Restraint of Trade and Products."

And in Fire Ins. Cos. v. State, 75 Miss. 24, 22 So. 99, the court after sustaining a demurrer to an indictment charging a combination among underwriters to fix insurance premiums, contrary to Miss. Code 1892, § 4437g, which defines a trust and combine as a combination, contract, understanding, or agreement, express or implied, between two or more persons, corporations, or firms, or associations of persons, or between one or more of either with one or more of the others, to place the control, to any extent, of business, or of the products of, or earnings thereof, in the power of trustees, by whatever name called; and declares the same to be inimical to the public welfare, unlawful, and a criminal conspiracy,—held that insurance trusts were within the purview of this section. The court said: "It is insisted that an insurance trust is not within the purview of our statute (§ 4437), and Queen Ins. Co. v. State, 86 Tex. 250, 22 L.R.A. 483, 24 S. W. 397 [see infra], is relied on as showing this. But this decision was a construction of the Texas anti-trust act of 1889. Tex. Stat. 1889, p. 141, § 1. And it is perfectly manifest that that act did not embrace insurance trusts, for, by its plain terms (see § 1) it prohibited only trusts dealing by way of trade or commerce in commodities. Such are its express terms. The word 'business' does not occur in it at all. The decision is therefore not in point, and to meet that very decision the legislature of Texas, in 1895, amended the said act of 1889 (Tex. Rev. Stat. 1895, p. 1090, art. 5313, § 1), and prohibited any trust the object of which was to 'create or carry out restrictions in the full and free pursuit of any business authorized or permitted by the laws' of that state. Such is our statute (§ 4437g)."

It is not settled whether the anti-trust law of Ohio, relating to combinations affecting commerce, commodities, or combinations in restraint of trade, is sufficiently broad to include combinations of insurance underwriters or agencies to regulate and control rates of premium, so as to make such combinations criminal. That such combinations are not within the terms of this statute was held by the common pleas court of Lorain county, in State v. Bovee, 6 Ohio N. P. N. S. 337, 17 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 663; and also by the superior court of Cincinnati in Runck v. Cloud, 8 Ohio N. P. 436, 11 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 444, as to combinations of fire insurance agencies; while the contrary was held by the common pleas court of Ashtabula county in State ex rel. Taylor v. Ross, 4 Ohio N. P. N. S. 377, 16 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 704.

Contracts regulating insurance rates are not within Ky. Stat. § 3915, prohibiting combinations to regulate, control, or fix the price of "any merchandise, manufactured articles, or property of any kind." Ætna Ins. Co. v. Com. 106 Ky. 864, 45 L.R.A. 355, 51 S. W. 624.

A combination of insurance companies to establish uniform rates of insurance and of agents' commissions was not illegal under the Texas anti-trust law of March 30, 1889, prohibiting trusts for restrictions in trade them, for purposes of litigating identical defenses with the same plaintiff, is unreasonable and no classification, but is a denial to a part of the same class of litigants of the equal protection of the laws.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 153, 41 L. ed. 666, 667, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 100, 108, 46 L. ed. 92, 105, 108, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

While classification is allowed, it must not be arbitrary; it must be reasonable with relation to the subject-matter, and such reasonableness is a judicial question.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 153, 155, 159, 165, 41 L. ed. 666–668, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 558, 560, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 690, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

This statute is invalid both under the Constitution of Alabama and the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

South & North Ala. R. Co. v. Morris, 65 Ala. 193; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 85 Ala. 627, 7 L.R.A. 266, 5 So. 311; Randolph v. Builders' & Painters' Supply Co. 106 Ala. 501, 17 So. 721.

If the operation of this statute, as construed by the supreme court of Alabama, creates a discrimination between litigants, without any reasonable foundation therefor, or discrimination between those whom the fundamental law puts in one class, then a mere declaration that the purpose of the statute is otherwise will not control.

Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co. v. Illinois, 118 U. S. 557, 30 L. ed. 244, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 31, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 4.

No distinction can be made under the Alabama Constitution between a corporation and an individual, as a litigant, or as between different persons as litigants.

South & North Ala. R. Co. v. Morris, 65 Ala. 199; Louisville & N. R. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 85 Ala. 627, 7 L.R.A. 266, 5 So.

---

or production, or for the increase or reduction of price or rates of transportation for commodities or articles of commerce, since a contract of insurance is not "trade," nor is it "an article of commerce," nor a "commodity." Queen Ins. Co. v. State, 86 Tex. 250, 22 L.R.A. 483, 24 S. W. 397.

Combinations of agencies or underwriters for the purpose of regulating and controlling premium rates are expressly legislated against in some states. Ætna F. Ins. Co. v. Kennedy, 161 Ala. 600, 135 Am. St. Rep. 160, 50 So. 73; Continental Ins. Co. v. Parkes, 142 Ala. 650, 39 So. 204; Hartford F. Ins. Co. v. State, 76 Ark. 303, 89 S. W. 42; Re Pinkney, 47 Kan. 89, 27 Pac. 179; Hartford F. Ins. v. Raymond, 70 Mich. 485, 38 N. W. 474; State ex rel. Crow v. Firemen's Fund Ins. Co. 152 Mo. 1, 45 L.R.A. 363, 52 S. W. 595; State v. Phipps, 50 Kan. 609, 18 L.R.A. 657, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 299, 34 Am. St. Rep. 152, 31 Pac. 1097.

Such statutes, where the object is to prevent agreements relating to rates of premium, and to keep up competition, are constitutional. Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 50 L. ed. 246, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66 (sustaining constitutionality of Iowa statute); Continental Ins. Co. v. Parkes, 142 Ala. 650, 39 So. 204; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Hellner, 159 Ala. 447, 49 So. 297, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 793; Ætna F. Ins. Co. v. Kennedy, 161 Ala. 600, 135 Am. St. Rep. 160, 50 So. 73 (all sustaining the Alabama statute considered in the principal case).

The Kansas statute does not, as applied to foreign insurance companies doing business in Kansas, amount to a regulation of interstate commerce. State v. Phipps, 50 Kan. 609, 18 L.R.A. 657, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 299, 34 Am. St. Rep. 152, 31 Pac. 1097.

In an action against an insurance company to recover a penalty for violation of the anti-trust law of Arkansas (act 1899, p. 50), where the complaint alleges that the defendant, while enagaged in business in this state, became and was "a member of a pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation, or understanding with the corporations engaged in similar business, to regulate or fix the price or terms for insuring property" (the language quoted being the language of the act),—a demurrer on the ground that the complaint is insufficient in failing to aver that the pool, trust, agreement, etc., was formed for the purpose, or had the effect, of influencing the company's business in the state, will not be sustained. State v. Ætna F. Ins. Co. 66 Ark. 480, 51 S. W. 638.

A foreign insurance company doing business in Arkansas, which enters into an agreement with other insurance companies formed outside the state, for the purpose of fixing the rates of insurance in foreign countries, not intended to affect, and which does not affect, persons, property, or prices of insurance in the state, does not thereby subject itself to the penalty imposed by the act of March 6, 1899, upon any corporation transacting any kind of business in the state, which becomes a party to any pool or combination to fix or limit rates of insurance. State v. Lancashire F. Ins. Co. 66 Ark. 466, 45 L.R.A. 348, 51 S. W. 633.

Previous to the passage of the statute of Missouri providing that any corporation, either domestic or foreign, which should enter into any pool, trust, agreement, confederation, or understanding with any other corporation, person, or association to regu-

311; Randolph v. Builders' & Painters' Supply Co. 106 Ala. 510, 17 So. 721.

The right to make contracts in relation to his business is part of the liberty of the individual, protected by the 14th Amendment of the Federal Constitution.

McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539–547, 53 L. ed. 315–319, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 91, 105, 53 L. ed. 923, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 85 Ala. 629, 7 L.R.A. 266, 5 So. 311.

Mr. Thomas M. Stevens submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. Stevens & Lyons were on the brief:

The statute in question is constitutional.

Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 50 L. ed. 246, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66; Continental Ins. Co. v. Parkes, 142 Ala. 650, 39 So. 204; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Hellner, 159 Ala. 447, 49 So. 297, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 793; Ætna F. Ins. Co. v. Kennedy, 161 Ala. 600, 135 Am. St. Rep. 160, 50 So. 73.

The statute in question is strictly a police regulation, and therefore presents no subject for Federal interference unless clearly arbitrary and unreasonable.

McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 546, 547, 53 L. ed. 319, 320, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633.

Mr. Justice Harlan delivered the opinion of the court:

This action was brought in one of the courts of Alabama by the defendant in error, Hale, on a policy of fire insurance issued by the German Alliance Insurance Company, a New York corporation.

The policy covered "lumber and squared timber while stacked on the banks of Byrne's Mill pond, near Bay Minette, Baldwin county, Alabama, said lot of lumber and timber containing 300,000 feet," etc.

Upon the petition of the defendant, the case was removed into the circuit court of late or fix the price or premium to be paid for insuring property against loss by fire, lightning, or storm, or maintain such price when so fixed, should be deemed and adjudged guilty of a conspiracy to defraud, and liable to a penalty, an association of fire underwriters of the state had existed for the purpose of establishing and maintaining rates at which property in the state would be insured, and had in its employ a person to fix and maintain the rates. After the adoption of the statute, the association dissolved, but the person mentioned published a book, which he sold to the various insurance companies who were defendants in this proceeding, in which the rates were fixed, and a clerk in his office was made the secretary of a club at a city in the state; and the reports of all the agents doing business in that state were required by the rules of the club to be delivered to him, and he forwarded them to the several defendant companies. If he discovered that an agent had insured at a rate less than stated in the book mentioned, he reported it to the club and the general manager of the company represented by that agent, which resulted in the agent being disciplined. In an information in the nature of a quo warranto by the attorney general, the club was held to be a plain, palpable, but bungling, pool, trust, agreement, combination, confederation, and understanding organized to evade the anti-trust laws of Missouri, but wholly insufficient for such a purpose. It was held that what was done was done by the local agents, and all knew it, and their knowledge was the knowledge of their companies, and their acts the acts of their companies, and judgment of ouster was rendered, forbidding the several different insurance companies to do business in the state. State ex rel. Crow v. Firemen's Fund Ins. Co. 152 Mo. 1, 45 L.R.A. 363, 52 S. W. 595, supra.

---

While the unlawfulness of combinations such as those under consideration was recognized in Freed v. American F. Ins. Co. 90 Miss. 72, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 368, 122 Am. St. Rep. 307, 43 So. 947, it was held that such fact would not prevent a member thereof from suing on a claim, where its right to sue was wholly derivative, accruing under the doctrine of subrogation to the right of the insured.

So, a combination between fire insurance agencies, for the simple purpose of controlling the rates of premium to be charged for insurance, and thus restricting competition, is not of such illegality at common law as will per se confer a right of action upon persons injuriously affected by it. Such a combination, however, is void at common law, and so opposed to public policy that no agreements or contracts incident thereto, or arising therefrom and dependent thereon, will be enforced by the courts. Runck v. Cloud, 8 Ohio N. P. 436, 11 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 444.

In Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Clunie, 88 Fed. 160, the fact that an insurance company was a member of such an unlawful combination was held not to bar it from invoking the aid of equity to restrain the insurance commissioner of the state from unlawfully interfering with its business, where the right to interfere was not based on the claim that it was a member of the unlawful combination.

See also note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, on illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws.

the United States for the southern district of Alabama, where a verdict was returned for $5,198.93 in favor of the plaintiff. For that amount judgment was rendered against the company. The circuit court suggested that the verdict was excessive, and that the motion for new trial would be granted, unless the plaintiff reduced the verdict to $4,112. The required reduction was made and the new trial denied. Northern P. R. Co. v. Herbert, 116 U. S. 642, 647, 29 L. ed. 755, 758, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590.

The principal question presented by the 313]assignments of *error arises out of certain provisions of the Code of Alabama, as follows:

"§ 2619. Every contract or policy of insurance hereafter made or issued shall be construed to mean that, in the event of loss or damage thereunder, the assured or beneficiary thereunder may, in addition to the actual loss or damage suffered, recover 25 per cent of the amount of such actual loss, any provision or stipulation in such contract or policy to the contrary notwithstanding. Provided, at the time of the making of such contract or policy of insurance, or subsequently, before the time of trial, the insurer belonged to, or was a member of, or in any way connected with, any tariff association or such like thing, by whatever named called, or who had made any agreement or had any understanding with any other person, corporation, or association engaged in the business of insurance, as agent or otherwise, about any particular rate of premium which should be charged or fixed for any kind or class of insurance risk; and provided further, no stipulation or agreement in such contract or policy of insurance to arbitrate loss or damage, nor to give notice or make proofs of loss or damage, shall in any such case be binding on the assured or beneficiary, but right of action accrues immediately upon loss or damage.

"§ 2620. If it is shown to the reasonable satisfaction of the jury by a preponderance of the weight of the testimony that such insurer, at the time of the making of such agreement or policy of insurance, or subsequently, before the time of trial, belonged to, or was a member of, or in any way connected with, any tariff association or such like thing, by whatever name called, either in or out of this state, or had made any agreement or had any understanding, either in or out of this state, with any other person, corporation, or association engaged in the business of insurance, as agent or otherwise, about any particular rate of premium which should be charged or fixed 314]for any risk of *insurance on any person or property, or on any kind or class of insurance risk, they must, if they find for the assured or beneficiary, in addition to his actual damages, assess and add 25 per cent of the amount of such actual loss, and judgment shall be rendered accordingly, whether claimed in the complaint or not." Ala. Code 1896, §§ 2619, 2620; Id. 1907, §§ 4594, 4595.

At the time of the contract of insurance, the defendant corporation was connected with a tariff association which prescribed the rates of premium to be charged by its constituent members. The verdict and judgment against the company gave effect to that clause of the statute providing that, under every contract or policy of insurance, thereafter made or issued by any such association, the assured or beneficiary may, in addition to the actual loss or damage suffered, recover 25 per cent of the amount of such actual loss, any provision or stipulation in such contract or policy to the contrary notwithstanding.

The assignments of error present a question of practice which is supposed to be raised by those provisions of the policy which contained a covenant and warranty in these words:

"1st. The assured will take a complete itemized inventory of stock on hand at least once in each calendar year, and unless such inventory has been taken within twelve calendar months prior to the date of this policy, one shall be taken in detail within thirty days of issuance of this policy, or this policy shall be null and void from such date, and upon demand of the assured the unearned premium from such date shall be returned. 2d. The assured will keep a set of books, which shall clearly and plainly present a complete record of business transacted, including all purchases, sales, and shipments, both for cash and credit, from date of inventory, as provided for in the first section of this clause, and during the continuance of this policy. 3d. The assured will keep such books and inventory, and *also the last preceding inventory, if[315 such has been taken, securely locked in a fireproof safe at night. In the event of failure to produce such set of books and inventories for the inspection of this company, this policy shall become null and void, and such failure shall constitute a perpetual bar to any recovery thereon. And defendant avers that the assured wholly disregarded the terms, stipulations and conditions of said policy in the following respects, to wit: 1st. He did not keep a set of books, as therein provided; 2d. He did not keep said books securely locked in a fireproof safe at night and at other times, as therein provided; 3d. He failed to produce said books for the inspection of the defendant after said alleged loss, wherefore said policy became and was null and void. And the defendant says by reason of the failure and refusal of said plaintiff to comply with the said covenant and warranty in the said particulars, the said plaintiff is not entitled to recover in this action, nor to have and maintain this action against the defendant."

The principal question arising on this writ of error is whether the above sections of the Alabama Code are consistent with the Constitution of the United States. The contention is that the provision allowing the insured or beneficiary in a named contingency to recover, in addition to the actual loss or damage suffered by him, 25 per cent of the amount of loss or damage so suffered,—any stipulation in the contract of insurance to the contrary notwithstanding,—deprives the company of its property without due process of law, and also denies to it the equal protection of the laws; thus, it is contended, violating the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

In our opinion the statute is not liable to objection on constitutional grounds. The state—as we may infer from the words of the statute alone—regarded the fixing of insurance rates by self-constituted tariff 316]associations or combinations *as an evil against which the public should be guarded by such legislation as the state was competent to enact. This question was before the supreme court of Alabama, and the statute was there assailed as violating both the state and Federal Constitutions. That court held that the object of the legislature of Alabama was to prevent monopoly and to encourage competition in the matter of insurance rates, and that the statute was a legitimate exercise to that end of the police power of the state, not inconsistent with either the state or Federal Constitution. Constitutional Ins. Co. v. Parkes, 142 Ala. 650, 658, 659, 39 So. 204. The same view of the statute was taken by the state court in subsequent cases. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Hellner, 159 Ala. 447, 49 So. 297, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 793; Ætna F. Ins. Co. v. Kennedy, 161 Ala. 600, 50 So. 73. We concur entirely in the opinion expressed by the state court, that the statute does not infringe the Federal Constitution, nor deprive the insurance company of any right granted or secured by that instrument. The business of fire insurance is, as everyone knows, of an extensive and peculiar character, and its management concerns a very large number of people, particularly those who own property and desire to protect themselves by insurance. We can well understand that fire insurance companies, acting together, may have owners of property practically at their mercy in the matter of rates, and may have it in their power to deprive the public generally of the advantages flowing from competition between rival organizations engaged in the business of fire insurance. In order to meet the evils of such combinations or associations, the state is competent to adopt appropriate regulations that will tend to substitute competition in the place of combination or monopoly. Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 411, 50 L. ed. 246, 250, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66. Regulations having a real, substantial relation to that end, and which are not essentially arbitrary, cannot properly be characterized as a deprivation of property without due process of law. They are enacted *under the power[317 with which the states have never parted, of caring for the common good within the limits of constitutional authority. Insurance companies, indeed, all corporations, associations, and individuals, within the jurisdiction of a state, are subject to such regulations, in respect of their relative rights and duties, as the state may, in the exercise of its police power, and in harmony with its own and the Federal Constitution, prescribe for the public convenience and the general good. Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 27, 31, 49 L. ed. 643, 651, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 765; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Ohio, 173 U. S. 285, 297, 43 L. ed. 702, 706, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 465; House v. Mayse, 219 U. S. 270, ante, 213, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234.

Much stress is placed by the insurance company on that clause of the statute allowing the insured to recover, in addition to the actual loss or damage suffered, 25 per cent of the amount of such loss or damage, if the company, before or at the time of trial, belonged to or was connected with a tariff association that fixed rates. We do not think that this provision is in excess of the power of the state. As a means to effect the object of the statute,—the discouragement of monopoly or combination,—and the encouragement of competition in the matter of insurance rates,—the state adopted the regulations here in question. It was for the state, keeping within the limits of its constitutional powers, to say what particular means it would prescribe for the protection of the public in such matters. The court certainly cannot say that the means here adopted are not, in any real or substantial sense, germane to the end sought to be attained by the statute. Those means may not be the best that could have been devised, but the court cannot, for any such reason, declare them illegal or beyond the power of the state to establish. So far as the Federal Constitution is concerned, the state could forbid, under penalty, combinations to be formed within its limits, by persons, associations, or corporations engaged in the business of insurance, for the purpose of fixing rates. But it is not bound 318] to go to that extent in its *legislation. It may, in its discretion, go only so far as to impose upon associations or corporations acting together in fixing rates, a liability to pay to the insured, as part of the recovery, a certain per cent beyond the actual loss or damage suffered, if, before or at the time of suit on the contract of insurance, it is made to appear that the company or corporation sued is part of or connected with a tariff rate association. Such a provision manifestly tends to discourage monopoly or combination and to encourage competition in a business in the conduct of which the general public is largely interested.

Equally without basis on which to rest is the contention that the statute violates the clause of the 14th Amendment, forbidding a state to "deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." We will assume, for the purposes of this case, that this company is within the jurisdiction of the Federal court, so as to entitle it to claim the benefit of that provision of the 14th Amendment. Blake v. McClung, 172 U. S. 239, 260, 43 L. ed. 432, 440, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165. We are yet clearly of the opinion that the statute does not, within the meaning of the Constitution, deny the insurance company the equal protection of the laws. The statute applies only to associations or corporations that unite in fixing the rates of insurance to be charged by each constituent member of the combination. Looking at the evil to be remedied, that was such a classification as the state could legally make. It is neither unreasonable nor arbitrary within the rule that a classification must rest upon some difference indicating "a reasonable and just relation to the act in respect of which the classification is proposed." The legislature naturally directed its enactment against insurance companies or corporations which, before or at the time of trial, were found to be members of an insurance tariff association that fixed rates. No principle or classification required it to include insurance associations that were free 319] to act, in *the matter of rates, upon the merits of each application for insurance, unaffected by any agreement or arrangement with other companies. All insurance companies, persons, or corporations engaged in the business of insurance, as agent or otherwise, with associations, persons, or corporations which acted together in fixing rates, are placed by the statute upon an equality in every respect, and therefore it cannot rightfully be contended that the plaintiff in error is denied the equal protection of the laws. Whatever "liberty of contract" they had must have been exercised in subordination to any valid regulations the state prescribed for the conduct of their business. Statutes that apply equally to all of the same class and under like conditions cannot be held to deny the equal protection of the laws; for, as this court has adjudged, "the equal protection of the laws is a pledge of the protection of equal laws" to all under like circumstances. Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 367, 30 L. ed. 220, 221, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730.

One of the assignments of error for this court, the ninth, is that the circuit court erred in sustaining the plaintiff's demurrer to the plea numbered two, in which reference was made to the above provisions, alleged to be embodied in the policy, and which make it the duty of the assured at stated times to take an inventory of stock on hand, and keep a set of books, to be securely locked in a fireproof safe at night. To that plea the plaintiff demurred upon these separate grounds: 1. It did not appear that the plaintiff was bound by the provision of the policy referred to in the plea. 2. The property insured was of such a character that the policy set up in the plea was not applicable thereto. 3. It did not appear that the property insured was of such a character that the provision of the policy, as set up in the plea, was applicable thereto. 4. It was not made to appear by the plea that there was any purchase, sales, and shipment or other business transacted from the time the *policy was issued[320 until the time of the loss which affected or related to the property insured. The demurrer was sustained, but no exception appears to have been taken to this action of the courts. The defendant did not stand upon his plea, and went to trial upon the merits of the case, without objection, and introduced evidence upon other issues in the case, but at the trial no evidence was offered or introduced on either side relating to the matters set out in the second plea. Under these circumstances, we are not required to consider the questions raised by that plea. On this record we may fairly assume that the defendant at the trial waived or abandoned the issues raised by the plea. Garrard v. Reynolds, 4 How. 123, 126, 11 L. ed. 903, 905; Weed v. Crane, 154 U. S. 570, and 19 L. ed. 712, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1215.

Restricting this decision to the points hereinbefore discussed, the judgment must be affirmed.

Judgment affirmed.

WILLIAM W. BIERCE, Limited, Plff. in Err.,
v.
WILLIAM WATERHOUSE and Albert Waterhouse, Executors under the Will and of the Estate of Henry Waterhouse, Deceased.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 320–338.)

Appeal — scope of review — effect of earlier appeal to lower court.

1. The entire case is open for the consideration of the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of error to a territorial supreme court, to review a judgment of that court, which, on a second writ of error, affirmed a judgment below, entered pursuant to its mandate, issued on the first writ of error.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5649–5651, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — scope of review — errors not considered by intermediate appellate court.

2. Errors assigned in the supreme court of a territory, but passed by it without decision, are open for review in the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error, if that court finds that the former court erred in reversing the judgment of the trial court upon the single error considered.

[Scope of appellate review, generally, see Appeal and Error, VIII., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Judgment — parties and privies — principal and surety.

3. The surety on a redelivery bond in replevin cannot object that his liability was enlarged beyond his undertaking, so as to discharge him from liability, by the allowance of amendments to the declaration in replevin suit, increasing the alleged value of the property, where the issue as to the propriety of such amendments was in issue in the replevin suit, and was decided against the principal in such bond, and the penalty of the bond was not thereby exceeded.

[For other cases, see Judgment, III. k, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — finality of judgment below — effect of rehearing.

4. A judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court did not become final before the enactment of the act of March 3, 1905, and hence not reviewable in the Federal Supreme Court under that act, where, although the opinion was filed prior to that enactment, a petition for rehearing was duly filed and entertained by the court, and was not denied until after the passage of such statute.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. d, 9, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Principal and surety — release of surety — change in remedy or procedure.

5. A redelivery bond in replevin must be regarded as having been entered into subject to such changes in remedy or procedure as do not change the contractual rights of the parties, e. g., the statutory allowance of a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court, to review the final judgment in the replevin suit, where no such review had theretofore been permissible, or subsequent legislation authorizing the issuance of an execution during the pendency of a writ of error to review such judgment if the defendant should be ruled to give a new redelivery bond upon an affidavit of insufficiency.

[For other cases, see Principal and Surety, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Action — prematurity — suit on redelivery bond.

6. An action upon the redelivery bond in replevin is not premature because started during the pendency of a writ of error in the supreme court of Hawaii, to review the judgment in the replevin suit, where, pursuant to Hawaii Laws 1903, chap. 32, §§ 17–19, enacted after the making of the redelivery bond, an execution had been issued and returned unsatisfied, because of the failure to give a new redelivery bond upon an affidavit of insufficiency.

[For other cases, see Action or Suit, I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Trial — question for jury — tender.

7. Whether the evidence in a suit on a redelivery bond in replevin shows a tender of redelivery of the property by the principal obligor after judgment requiring such return is for the jury to determine, upon proper instructions.

[For questions of law and fact, see Trial, VI. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 508.]

Argued December 12, 1910. Decided January 16, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii to review a judgment which affirmed, on a second writ of error, a judgment of the Circuit Court for

---

NOTE.—As to review by the United States Supreme Court of territorial decisions—see note to Miners' Bank v. Iowa, 13 L. ed. U. S. 867.

As to what judgments or decrees are final for purposes of review—see notes to Brush Electric Co. v. Electric Improv. Co. 2 C. C. A. 379; Central Trust Co. v. Madden, 17 C. C. A. 238; Prescott & A. C. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 28 C. C. A. 482; Gibbons v. Ogden, 5 L. ed. U. S. 302; and Schlosser v. Hemphill, 49 L. ed. U. S. 1001.

On release of surety—see notes to Bank of Uniontown v. Mackey, 35 L. ed. U. S. 486, and Griswold v. Hazard, 35 L. ed. U. S. 679.

On premature commencement of actions—see notes to American Bonding & T. Co. v. Gibson County, 76 C. C. A. 159; and Trinidad v. Hokasona, 102 C. C. A. 424.

the First Circuit, in that territory, in favor of defendants non obstante veredicto in an action upon a redelivery bond in replevin. Reversed and remanded, with directions to affirm the judgment of the trial court, entered on the verdict in favor of plaintiff.

See same case below, 19 Haw. 594.

Statement by Mr. Justice Lurton:

This was an action for breach of the condition of a redelivery or return bond executed by the defendant to a certain replevin suit instituted in a circuit court for the territory of Hawaii. The bond was in these words:

Circuit Court, Third Circuit, Territory of Hawaii.

$1 stamp.

William W. Bierce, Limited, a Corporation, Plaintiff,

v.

Clinton J. Hutchins, Trustee.

Replevin.

Return Bond.

Know all men by these presents:

That we, Clinton J. Hutchins, trustee, as principal, and Henry Waterhouse and 322] Arthur B. Wood, as sureties, *are held and firmly bound unto William Bierce Company, Limited, its successor or successors and assigns, in the sum of thirty thousand (30,000) dollars, for the payment of which, well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, our successors herein and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents.

The condition of the foregoing obligation is as follows:

That whereas the said William W. Bierce, Limited, has begun in the circuit court of the third circuit of the territory of Hawaii a replevin suit against Clinton J. Hutchins, trustee, to recover from him certain property specifically set forth in the bill of complaint filed in said suit, and of the value of $15,000, as stated in the affidavit filed therein, and has requested that the said property be taken possession of by the high sheriff of the territory of Hawaii, or his deputies, and turned over to said plaintiff; and whereas said defendant is desirous of having said property returned, and has required the return thereof from said high sheriff and his deputies:

Now, therefore, if the said property and all thereof shall be well and truly delivered to said plaintiff, if such delivery be adjudged, and payment to said plaintiff be well and truly made of such sum as may, for any cause, be recovered against the defendant, then this obligation to be null and void; otherwise to be and remain in full force and effect.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 21st day of July, A. D. 1903.

(Signed) Clinton J. Hutchins, Trustee.
(Signed) Henry Waterhouse, Surety.
(Signed) Arthur B. Wood, Surety.

The foregoing bond is approved as to its sufficiency of sureties.

Dated July 21, 1903.

(Signed) A. M. Brown,
High Sheriff.

*The replevin suit referred to was[323 instituted July 20, 1903, by a corporation styled William W. Bierce, Limited, against Clinton J. Hutchins, trustee, and was for the recovery of certain railway material which had been conditionally sold to the Kona Sugar Company, another corporation. The property of the latter company, including this material, was acquired at a receiver's sale by Hutchins, trustee, with notice that the title had been retained by the Bierce Company, and that the property had not been paid for. The plaintiff's affidavit (Rev. Laws [Hawaii] § 2102) stated the value of the material which it was sought to reclaim at $15,000, and a bond in double that sum was duly executed, with the usual conditions of such replevin bonds. The defendant Hutchins thereupon, in order to retain possession of the material claimed, executed a redelivery or return bond under § 2112, Rev. Laws (Hawaii), being the bond upon which the present action is based.

The replevin suit resulted, on March 19, 1904, in a judgment for the plaintiff and against the defendant Hutchins, trustee, for the return of the property and damages for its detention, or in default of return, that the defendants pay the value of the property, which was adjudged to be $22,000.

Inasmuch as the defense by the surety in the action upon the return bond referred to grows in part out of matters which were litigated in the replevin suit, we must state somewhat fully the proceedings in that action. That case, upon a bill of exceptions, was taken to the supreme court of Hawaii. Certain of the exceptions taken by the defendant Hutchins were sustained in a judgment rendered January 28, 1905, one of which was that the trial court had erred in not rendering judgment for the defendant non obstante veredicto. See William W. Bierce v. Hutchins, 16 Haw. 418. A motion for a rehearing was disposed of in that court April 29, 1905 (see 16 Haw. 717). On May 6, 1905, *a judgment was[324 entered reversing the judgment of the circuit court, and remanding the case, with direction to render a judgment for defendant non obstante verdicto. Thereupon an appeal to this court was allowed, where the judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court was reversed, for the reasons appearing in the opinion reported in 205 U. S. 340, 51 L. ed. 828, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524, and the case remanded to that court. Thereupon the supreme court of Hawaii held that the defendant Hutchins was then entitled to have a hearing upon other exceptions not passed upon at the first hearing. These were therefore heard and overruled. 18 Haw. 374. An appeal from that judgment was taken to this court, and dismissed, as not from a final judgment. 211 U. S. 429, 53 L. ed. 267, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 122.

Pending the review proceedings above referred to, the plaintiff, upon cause shown, obtained a rule on the defendant Hutchins to give a new redelivery bond. Failing in this, an execution issued to recover the property which the defendant had been directed to return, and for the damage for detention and costs. These damages, amounting to $1,050, and the taxed costs, were paid and may be dropped from consideration. The sheriff returned that he was unable to obtain possession of the materials for which the action had been instituted, and therefore returned the execution unsatisfied.

Pending the review proceedings already stated this action was begun against the obligors and the executors of Henry Waterhouse, one of the sureties upon the return bond given by Hutchins, as stated. Wood, the other surety, was sued, but was not found. Hutchins, for reasons immaterial, was dropped out. Upon the issued joined there was a verdict and judgment against the executors of Waterhouse for $22,000, the value of the property which the obligor had failed to return, as required by the judgment in the replevin suit, that being the value adjudged in that action, together 325]with interest and costs of former *actions not paid, the whole aggregating $28,156.74, for which there was judgment.

A bill of exceptions was taken from this judgment to the supreme court of Hawaii, which court, passing over the great majority of exceptions without ruling, sustained one which assigned error in the overruling of the motion of the defendants below for judgment non obstante veredicto.

The case having been remanded for judgment pursuant to the opinion and mandate, there was a judgment notwithstanding the verdict for the defendant. This in turn was affirmed by the supreme court of the territory, and the present writ is sued out to review that judgment.

Mr. Frederic D. McKenney argued the cause, and, with Mr. Henry W. Prouty, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

As a general rule, amendments to the complaint or declaration may be made in actions of replevin, when authorized by statute, and the ad damnum increased, without affecting the liability of the sureties on the replevin bond or redelivery bond, so long as no new cause of action is introduced by the amendment, whereby the liability of the surety would be increased beyond the amount of the penalty named in the bond.

Wood v. Denny, 7 Gray, 540; Townsend Nat. Bank v. Jones, 151 Mass. 454, 24 N. E. 593; Jamieson v. Capron, 95 Pa. 15; Hare v. Marsh, 61 Wis. 435, 50 Am. Rep. 141, 21 N. W. 267; Evers v. Sager, 28 Mich. 52; Merrick v. Greely, 10 Mo. 106; Hanna v. International Petroleum Co. 23 Ohio St. 622; New Haven Bank v. Miles, 5 Conn. 587; Carr v. Sterling, 114 N. Y. 558, 22 N. E. 37.

In an action on a replevin or redelivery bond, the judgment in the replevin suit is conclusive upon the sureties on the bond.

23 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1278; Shepard v. Pebbles, 38 Wis. 378; Cobbey, Replevin, § 1331; Bradford v. Frederick, 101 Pa. 445; Jamieson v. Capron, 95 Pa. 15; Hocker v. Woods, 33 Pa. 466; Tracy v. Maloney, 105 Mass. 90; Cutter v. Evans, 115 Mass. 27; Knight v. Dorr, 19 Pick. 48; Smith v. Mosby, 98 Ind. 445; Schott v. Youree, 142 Ill. 243, 31 N. E. 591; Kennedy v. Brown, 21 Kan. 171; Council v. Averett, 90 N. C. 168; Mason v. Richards, 12 Iowa, 74; Richardson v. People's Nat. Bank, 57 Ohio St. 308, 48 N. E. 1100; Christiansen v. Mendham, 45 App. Div. 554, 61 N. Y. Supp. 326; Waldrop v. Wolff, 114 Ga. 620, 40 S. E. 830; Irwin v. Backus, 25 Cal. 214, 85 Am. Dec. 125; Braiden v. Mercer, 44 Ohio St. 339, 7 N. E. 155; Heard v. Lodge, 20 Pick. 58, 32 Am. Dec. 197; 2 Brandt, Suretyship & Guaranty 3d ed. § 563; Parish v. Smith, 66 S. C. 424, 45 S. E. 16; Stovall v. Banks, 10 Wall. 583, 19 L. ed. 1036.

The case at bar is clearly distinguishable from an action on a replevin bond following a judgment of dismissal of the replevin suit for want of prosecution, where there is no trial on the merits.

Smith v. Mosby, 98 Ind. 448.

Such a case as that at bar has been distinguished in Bridgeport F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 34 N. Y. 280, from a case where the covenant is one of general indemnity, merely, against claims or suits.

Parties to contracts have no vested right to insist that legislatures, during the pendency of said contract, or the continuance of rights and liabilities thereunder, shall refrain from adding to or taking from statutory remedies theretofore provided for the enforcement of or defense against such rights and liabilities, provided always that adequate remedy for such enforcement or the making of defense thereto shall remain.

Brown v. New Jersey, 175 U. S. 172, 44 L. ed. 119, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143.

The statute of limitations commences to run as against a right of action for breach of the condition of a replevin or delivery bond from the date of the judgment for a return of the property, which in this case was March 19, 1904.

Cobbey, Replevin, 2d ed. §§ 1299, 1311, 1313, 1314; Hagan v. Lucas, 10 Pet. 400, 9 L. ed. 470; Lovejoy v. Bright, 8 Blackf. 206; Evans v. King, 7 Mo. 411; Lockwood v. Perry, 9 Met. 444; Burkle v. Luce, 1 N. Y. 163; M'Rae v. M'Lean, 3 Port. (Ala.) 138; Delay v. Yost, 59 Kan. 496, 53 Pac. 482.

Every question of law raised in the lower court, and presented by the record before this court, is open for the consideration of this court, and its judgment in the premises should be accepted as final and conclusive of the entire matter.

Tyler v. Magwire, 17 Wall. 253, 283, 21 L. ed. 576, 583; Stewart v. Salamon, 97 U. S. 361, 24 L. ed. 1044; Illinois v. Illinois C. R. Co. 184 U. S. 77, 91, 46 L. ed. 440, 446, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 300.

Mr. David L. Withington argued the cause, and, with Messrs. William R. Castle, W. A. Greenwell, and Alfred L. Castle, filed a brief for defendants in error:

The bond was given in an ancillary proceeding to secure the possession of property before judgment. The foundation of this ancillary proceeding is an affidavit in which the plaintiff fixes the actual value, and the contract is entered into with reference to the value so fixed.

Ah Leong v. Kee You, 8 Haw. 418; Achi v. Alapai, 9 Haw. 592; 34 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 1429; Smith v. Fisher, 13 R. I. 624; Simpson v. Wilcox, 18 R. I. 40, 25 Atl. 391.

This is a statutory bond, into which all existing provisions of law enter, including that under which the plaintiff fixes the actual value on which the bond is conditioned. The sureties can rely upon this statutory provision, and in order to be bound to an increased value, or by subsequent legislation, the intent of the surety to be bound must appear on the face of the bond.

Lee v. Hastings, 13 Neb. 508, 14 N. W. 476; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 18 L. ed. 403; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 6 How. 507, 12 L. ed. 535; Walker v. Whitehead, 16 Wall. 314, 21 L. ed. 357; Barnitz v. Beverly, 163 U. S. 118, 127, 41 L. ed. 93, 99, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1042; Miller v. Stewart, 9 Wheat. 680, 6 L. ed. 189; United States v. Kirkpatrick, 9 Wheat. 720, 6 L. ed. 199; United States v. Powell, 14 Wall. 493, 20 L. ed. 726; Mix v. Vail, 86 Ill. 40; Berwick v. Oswald, 3 El. & Bl. 678.

The defendants' contract is to be strictly construed, and doubts are resolved in favor of the surety.

Smith v. United States, 2 Wall. 219, 17 L. ed. 788; United States v. Price, 9 How. 84, 91, 13 L. ed. 56, 59; Crane v. Buckley, 203 U. S. 441, 447, 51 L. ed. 260, 263, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 156; United States v. Hough, 103 U. S. 72, 26 L. ed. 305; Magee v. Manhattan L. Ins. Co. 92 U. S. 93, 23 L. ed. 699; Prairie State Nat. Bank v. United States, 164 U. S. 227, 41 L. ed. 412, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; United States v. Boecker, 21 Wall. 652, 22 L. ed. 472; Stull v. Hance, 62 Ill. 55; Holloway v. Richardson, 18 Haw. 525.

The surety has a right to stand upon the exact terms of his contract. The actual value fixed by the affidavit was an exact term of his contract, made so by statute. A variation from this term is fatal to his liability.

Recse v. United States, 9 Wall. 13, 19 L. ed. 541; Bierce v. Waterhouse, 19 Haw. 405; Cross v. Allen, 141 U. S. 528, 35 L. ed. 843, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; United States Fidelity & G. Co. v. United States, 191 U. S. 416, 48 L. ed. 242, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; Prairie State Nat. Bank v. United States, 164 U. S. 227, 41 L. ed. 412, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; Leggett v. Humphreys, 21 How. 66, 76, 16 L. ed. 50, 54; Bauer v. Cabanne, 105 Mo. 118, 16 S. W. 521; State v. Medary, 17 Ohio, 565; Robeson v. Thompson, 9 N. J. L. 97.

The plaintiff is estopped by its affidavit, on the faith of which the surety contracted. It is a solemn admission on its part, which it cannot retract as against these defendants.

1 Greenl. Ev. 16th ed. §§ 22, 27, pp. 117, 122; Parker v. Simonds, 8 Met. 212; Kafer v. Harlow, 5 Allen, 348; Leighton v. Brown, 98 Mass. 515; Huggeford v. Ford, 11 Pick. 223; Swift v. Barnes, 16 Pick 194; Vulcan Iron Works v. Cyclone Steam Snow-Plow Co. 48 Fed. 652; Smith v. Packard, 39 C. C. A. 294, 98 Fed. 793; Weyerhauser v. Foster, 60 Minn. 224, 61 N. W. 1129; Wiseman v. Lynn, 39 Ind. 259; Trimble v. State, 4 Blackf. 437; Capital Lumbering Co. v. Learned, 36 Or. 548, 78 Am. St. Rep. 792, 59 Pac. 454; Butts v. Woods, 4 N. M. 343, 16 Pac. 618; Wells, Replevin, § 453, pp. 251, 252, § 569, pp. 310, 311, § 660, p. 360; Tuck v. Moses, 58

Me. 477; Washington Ice Co. v. Webster, 125 U. S. 426, 31 L. ed. 799, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 947.

The better rule is that any increase in the pecuniary obligation, without assent, discharges the surety.

Sage v. Strong, 40 Wis. 575; Tyler Min. Co. v. Last Chance Min. Co. 32 C. C. A. 498, 61 U. S. App. 193, 90 Fed. 15, 19 Mor. Min. Rep. 525; Langley v. Adams, 40 Me. 125; Morse v. Sleeper, 58 Me. 331; Ruggles v. Berry, 76 Me. 262; Willis v. Crooker, 1 Pick. 205.

The petition for rehearing pending in the supreme court would not have authorized an appeal, although acted on after March 3, 1905.

Harrison v. Magoon, 205 U. S. 501, 51 L. ed. 900, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 577.

Even if the sureties' principal could waive the question of jurisdiction in the Supreme Court of the United States, it could not be waived as to the surety.

Oshkosh Waterworks Co. v. Oshkosh, 106 Wis. 83, 81 N. W. 1040, 187 U. S. 437, 47 L. ed. 249, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234.

If the amendment to the organic act applied, then the granting of the new right of appeal to another jurisdiction extended the liability of the surety, exposed him to the judgment of a court with reference to which he did not contract, and imposed upon him a new pecuniary obligation, viz., the costs of that court.

Lafayette v. James, 92 Ind. 240, 47 Am. Rep. 140; Bryson v. McCreary, 102 Ind. 1, 1 N. E. 55; Pritchard v. Norton, 106 U. S. 124, 27 L. ed. 104, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; Aycock v. Martin, 37 Ga. 124, 92 Am. Dec. 64; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 18 L. ed. 403; Seibert v. Lewis (Seibert v. United States) 122 U. S. 284, 30 L. ed. 1161, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1190; Shapleigh v. San Angelo, 167 U. S. 646, 42 L. ed. 310, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 957; Butz v. Muscatine, 8 Wall. 583, 19 L. ed. 493; Dillingham v. Hook, 32 Kan. 189, 4 Pac. 168; McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 693, 34 L. ed. 314, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972; Christmas v. Russell, 5 Wall. 290, 18 L. ed. 475; Daniels v. Tearney, 102 U. S. 419, 26 L. ed. 187; Barnitz v. Beverly, 163 U. S. 118, 127, 41 L. ed. 93, 99, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1042; Clark v. Reyburn, 8 Wall. 322, 19 L. ed. 356; Brine v. Hartford F. Ins. Co. 96 U. S. 627, 24 L. ed. 858; Planters' Bank v. Sharp, 6 How. 301, 12 L. ed. 447; Phinney v. Phinney, 81 Me. 450, 4 L.R.A. 348, 10 Am. St. Rep. 266, 17 Atl. 405; People v. Jansen, 7 Johns. 332, 5 Am. Dec. 275; McCurdy v. Brown, 8 Mo. 550; Schuster v. Weiss, 114 Mo. 158, 19 L.R.A. 182, 21 S. W. 438; State use of Carroll County v. Roberts, 68 Mo. 234, 30 Am. Rep. 788; Nofsinger v. Hartnett, 84 Mo. 549; Brookshier v. McIlrath, 112 Mo. App. 687, 87 S. W. 607; Mix v. Vail, 86 Ill. 40; Alwood v. Mansfield, 81 Ill. 314; Lapsley v. Brashears, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 47; Haldeman v. Powers, 103 Ky. 525, 45 S. W. 662; Reusch v. Demass, 34 Mich. 95; Stockwell v. Kemp, 4 McLean, 80, Fed. Cas. No. 13,465; Woodson v. Johns, 3 Munf. 230; Blair v. Williams, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 35; Jeter v. Langhorne, 5 Gratt. 193; Bailey v. McCormick, 22 W. Va. 95; Winston v. Rives, 4 Stew. & P. 269.

The action was prematurely brought against the executors, the claim being still in their hands for consideration, not having been rejected.

Ellsworth v. Thayer, 4 Pick. 122; Goff v. Kellogg, 18 Pick. 256; Espy v. Comer, 76 Ala. 501; Hentsch v. Porter, 10 Cal. 555; Keenan v. Saxton, 13 Ohio, 41; Dredla v. Baache, 60 Neb. 655, 83 N. W. 916; Fulton v. Black, 21 Tex. 424; Walters v. Prestidge, 30 Tex. 71; 18 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 503; Hoyt v. Bonnett, 50 N. Y. 543.

Mr. Justice Lurton, after making the above statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

The right to have this judgment reviewed by this court involves the review of the judgment upon which the mandate issued, and necessarily brings here the first as well as *the second bill of exceptions and[332 transcript as one case. As it appears from the first bill of exceptions and the opinion and judgment in that case that the plaintiffs in error in that case, the defendants in error here, had taken many exceptions to the judgment against them which were not passed upon by the supreme court of the territory, it must follow that, if we shall find that that court erred in reversing the judgment upon the single error considered, that the other exceptions and errors not considered are now open for review, inasmuch as the judgment might have been reversible for other errors not considered. The practice adopted by the supreme court of the territory of passing without deciding other errors assigned upon a judgment is not approved, since it is likely to involve further review proceedings and duplicate appeals. Especially is this so in cases which are subject to the appellate jurisdiction of this court. The single ground upon which the supreme court of Hawaii reversed the judgment in favor of the Bierce Company, and against the executors of the surety upon the return bond made by the defendants in the replevin suit, was that, by two amendments made to the declaration in the replevin suit, the value of the property which the plaintiff sought to reclaim was increased from $15,000 to $22,000, whereby, as the court below held, the liability of the sureties was enlarged beyond their undertaking. The effect of this was held to discharge the sureties. In this we think the court erred.

The plaintiff, to make out its case, introduced in evidence, together with other matters, the pleadings, the judgment, the return of the sheriff upon the execution for a return of the property unsatisfied, and the return bond. The judgment, as before stated, was for a return of the property and costs, and $1,045, damages for detention, and, in default of a delivery of the property, that the defendant Hutchins, trustee, pay the value thereof, found to be $22,000, for which there was judgment.

333] *The penalty of the return bond was $30,000. The damages laid in the complaint, as amended, were $28,156.74, and the judgment in the trial court upon the verdict was for the full damages claimed.

At the close of all the evidence, the defendants moved the court to instruct a verdict for the defendants. This motion was based upon several grounds. The principal one was that the transcript of the record in the replevin action showed (a) that the plaintiff in that action had, in the affidavit required by § 2102, Rev. Laws (Hawaii), executed before the issuance of the writ of replevin, stated the value of the property claimed to be $15,000; (b) that the penalty of the replevin bond was in double this value; (c) that the return bond recited that the value of the property claimed had been stated in the complaint in the replevin proceeding to be $15,000; (d) that the complaint had been subsequently amended so as to state the actual value to be $20,000, and a second time amended so as to state the actual value to be $22,000; and that the legal effect of these amendments was to release and discharge the sureties.

The motion for an instructed verdict was overruled and the case submitted to the jury, who found the actual value of the property claimed to be $22,000, and for this there was an alternative judgment, as stated before.

After verdict the defendants moved a judgment non obstante veredicto upon like grounds. This too was denied.

On the appeal of the defendants to the supreme court of Hawaii, the action of the trial court in allowing the amendment of the complaint so as to increase the value of the property in the manner stated was assigned as error. Upon this matter the supreme court said:

"The only exceptions to rulings prior to the judgment on which the defendant relied in argument are (1) to allowing the plaintiff to amend its complaint by changing the averment of the value of the property, first from $15,000 to $20,000, and then to $22,000. . . .

*"The amendments were properly al-[334 lowed under the statute (Rev. Laws, § 1738). Before the property was delivered to the plaintiff, the defendant obtained a return of it to himself upon his statutory bond in double the value of the property as originally stated by the plaintiff. It does not appear that the defendant's rights were affected by the amendment increasing the value." William W. Bierce v. Hutchins, 18 Haw. 511, 522.

This brings us to the proposition as to whether a question thus once litigated and decided in the replevin suit is open for relitigation by the surety when sued upon the return bond. The surety on such a bond, given in the course of a judicial proceeding, is represented in that proceeding by his principal. That the court possessed the power of allowing an amendment which introduced no new cause of action is plain. The surety became such in contemplation of the possible exercise of that power. The penalty of the bond was not exceeded, and an increase in the ad damnum did not introduce a new cause of action. Townsend Nat. Bank v. Jones, 151 Mass. 454, 24 N. E. 593. By the execution of the bond, the surety consented to become responsible to the amount of the penal sum therein named.

The only possible objection lay in the question as to whether the plaintiff was estopped from laying the damages in excess of the value of the property stated in the original complaint or affidavit. There are cases which hold that, in the replevin action, the plaintiff, having himself fixed the value of the property claimed by an affidavit, is estopped thereby from showing that it is of a less value, if he failed in his suit, though the defendant may show, if he can, that it was of a greater value. Washington Ice Co. v. Webster, 125 U. S. 426, 31 L. ed. 799, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 947. But we are not disposed to think that a plaintiff in such a suit may not show, especially when, as here, the defendant upon a return bond was suffered to retain the possession, that he had mistakenly *undervalued[335 the property. We have been cited to no authorities which extend the principle of estoppel to shut out such an amendment of the ad damnum clause of the complaint in a replevin action. However this may be, the questions were directly in issue in the replevin suit, and decided against the defendant therein.

One who becomes a surety for the performance of the judgment of a court in a pending case is represented by his principal, and is bound by the judgment against his principal within the limits of his obligation. Washington Ice Co. v. Webster, 125 U. S. 426, 444, 446, 31 L. ed. 799, 806, 807, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 947; Stovall v. Banks, 10 Wall. 583, 19 L. ed. 1036.

The issue as to whether the value of the property redelivered to the defendants was greater than alleged in the plaintiff's affidavit and claimed in the original complaint, as well as whether the amendment of that complaint was such as to change the cause of action, were issues made and decided against the principal in the bond upon which the sureties were bound, and cannot be relitigated, in the absence of fraud and collusion, by a surety when sued upon the bond. Townsend Nat. Bank v. Jones, 151 Mass. 454, 459, 24 N. E. 593; Greenlaw v. Logan, 2 Lea, 185; Kennedy v. Brown, 21 Kan. 171; Hare v. Marsh, 61 Wis. 435, 50 Am. Rep. 141, 21 N. W. 267; Mason v. Richards, 12 Iowa, 74.

The motion of the executors of Waterhouse in the trial court for a judgment non obstante veredicto was predicated upon several distinct grounds. To the action of the trial court in overruling this motion exceptions were duly taken, and this action was made the subject of distinct assignments of error upon the writ of error to the supreme court of Hawaii. That court, as we have already seen, considered only such of the grounds relied upon as raised the question of the effect of the increase of the plaintiff's ad damnum clause from $15,000 to $22,000. Concluding that the necessary legal effect of that amendment of the 336]complaint *was to relieve the sureties upon the return bond, it reversed the judgment and remanded, with direction to give judgment for the said executors, notwithstanding the verdict against them. See 19 Haw. 398.

The learned counsel for the executors have insisted that if we shall conclude that the action of the supreme court of Hawaii is not to be supported upon the single ground considered by it, that it is then the duty of this court to consider the grounds for the motion not passed upon, and if upon any one of them the judgment of the supreme court of Hawaii may be sustained, its judgment should not be disturbed. Upon this contention each of the several grounds upon which such motion was based has been covered by the briefs filed by the present defendants in error.

Among the grounds for a judgment notwithstanding the verdict, not considered, was, that the judgment of the supreme court of Hawaii, reversing the judgment in favor of William W. Bierce, Limited, against Hutchins, trustee, was final as to the surety upon the return bond, and was not subject, so far, at least, as the surety was concerned, to be reviewed or set aside by any writ of error to this court, and that the judgment of this court (205 U. S. 340, 51 L. ed. 828, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524), reversing the judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court, should not in anywise affect the present defendants in error as representatives of Waterhouse, one of the sureties upon the return bond. But the judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court was not final prior to the act of Congress referred to. It is true that the opinion of the Hawaiian court reversing the judgment of the Hawaiian circuit court was filed on January 28, 1905, a date prior to the act of Congress referred to. But the record shows that thereupon a petition for rehearing was filed, and that a rehearing was denied April 29, 1905 (see William W. Bierce v. Hutchins, 16 Haw. 717), and that the final judgment, which was reversed by this court, was not rendered until May 6, 1905, a date after the law referred to. The effect of the pending petition *for a rehearing, if filed in due[337 time and entertained by the court, as was the case, was to prevent the judgment from becoming final and reviewable until disposed of. Aspen Min. & Smelting Co. v. Billings, 150 U. S. 31, 37 L. ed. 986, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 4; Re McCall, 76 C. C. A. 430, 145 Fed. 898. Since, therefore, there was no final judgment prior to the going into effect of the act of Congress of March 3, 1905 [33 Stat. at L. 1035, chap. 1465], the pending litigation was subject to the power of Congress to allow a review after final judgment, although no such review had theretofore been admissible. No fundamental right was thereby denied and the bond must be regarded as having been entered into subject to such change in remedy or procedure as did not change the contractual rights of the parties.

It is next claimed that this action upon the return bond was premature, because started during the pendency of the defendant's writ of error in the supreme court of Hawaii from the judgment in the replevin case. But that writ did not annul the judgment. The Hawaiian act of 1903, chap. 32, §§ 17, 18, and 19, Rev. Laws of Hawaii, 1905, §§ 1861, 1864, and 1865, provided for the issuance of an execution if the defendant should be ruled to give a new return bond upon an affidavit of insufficiency. This was done and the objection of the defendant overruled. An execution issued, which was duly returned unsatisfied. The contention that this act of 1903 did not go into force until after the execution of the return bond has no merit. Such a bond is always entered into subject to the possibility of changes in the law of procedure which do not change the contract. The defendant refused to give the new bond required, and, under the act referred to, an execution was issued, which was returned unsatisfied. This fact authorized an immediate suit upon the return bond. There was no error in holding that the suit was not premature under the act referred to.

Another group of assignments relate to an alleged tender of redelivery of the property 338]by Hutchins, trustee, after *the judgment requiring a return. The insistence was and is that there should have been a directed verdict for the defendant upon the evidence showing such tender and a rejection by the plaintiff. The letter in evidence making a tender was not an unequivocal tender. There was also evidence tending to show the existence of obstacles to a repossession, which it was the duty of the defendant to have removed; and also evidence of a conveyance by the defendant of record, which clouded the title. There was an absence of evidence tending to show any active exertion to restore the plaintiff's possession, and no evidence that the plaintiff was ever actually put in repossession. The question was one for the jury, who found for the plaintiff. The charge was full and fair.

There were a vast number of errors assigned. We have referred to those which were either pressed in argument or have otherwise been deemed of such importance as to require particular notice. Those not referred to have been considered, with the result that we find none of them well taken.

The conclusion we reach is that the judgment of the Supreme Court for the territory of Hawaii, reversing the judgment of the Circuit Court, and directing a judgment non obstante veredicto, was erroneous. The second judgment, affirming the judgment of the Circuit Court upon its mandate, is also erroneous.

The case must be remanded, with direction to set both judgments aside, and affirm the judgment of the trial court in favor of the plaintiff, William W. Bierce, Limited.

Reversed.

339]*LAWRENCE E. SEXTON, as Trustee in Bankruptcy of Kessler & Company, Appt.,

v.

LEOPOLD LOUIS DREYFUS, Louis Louis Dreyfus, and Charles Louis Dreyfus, Composing the Firm of Louis Dreyfus & Company. (No. 662.)

SAME

v.

LLOYDS BANK, Ltd. (No. 663.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 339–346.)

Bankruptcy — secured creditors — application of proceeds of sale.

1. Secured creditors of a bankrupt, selling their security after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and finding the proceeds insufficient to pay the whole amount of their claims, are not entitled to apply such proceeds first to interest accrued since the filing of the petition, then to the principal debt, and then prove for the balance, although, by the bankrupt act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 544, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3418), § 67d, liens remain unaffected by that statute, and the value of securities is, by § 57h, to be determined by converting them into money, "according to the terms of the agreement."

[Secured creditors in bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy, X. c, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Bankruptcy — secured creditors — application of interest and dividends accruing on security.

2. Interest and dividends accruing upon pledged securities after the filing of a petition in bankruptcy against the pledgeor may be first applied by the pledgees to the after-accruing interest upon the debt.

[Secured creditors in bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy, X. c, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 662 and 663.]

Submitted January 6, 1911. Decided January 23, 1911.

APPEALS from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit to review decrees which affirmed decrees of the District Court for the Northern District of New York, affirming orders of the referee in bankruptcy, permitting secured creditors to apply the proceeds of the sale of the securities first to interest accrued since the filing of the petition, then to the principal debt, and to prove for the balance. Reversed.

See same case below, 180 Fed. 979.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Wallace Macfarlane and George H. Gilman submitted the cause for appellant.

Mr. Frederic R. Coudert submitted the cause for Dreyfus & Company.

Mr. Rufus W. Sprague, Jr., submitted the cause for Lloyds Bank, Ltd.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

In both of these cases, secured creditors, selling their security some time after the filing of the petition in bankruptcy, and finding the proceeds not enough to pay the whole amount of their claims, were allowed by the referee to apply the proceeds first to interest accrued since the filing of the petition, then to principal, and to prove for the balance. The referee certified the question whether the creditors had a right to the interest. The district judge answered the question in the affirmative, giving the matter a very thorough and persuasive discussion, and declining to follow the English rule. Re Kessler, 171 Fed. 751. On appeal, his decision was affirmed by a majority of the circuit court of appeals. 103 C. C. A. 582, 180 Fed. 979.

The argument certainly is strong. A secured creditor could apply his security to interest first when the parties were solvent (Story v. Livingston, 13 Pet. 359, 371, 10 L. ed. 200, 206), the liens are not affected by the statute. § 67d [30 Stat. at L. 564, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3449]. The law is not intended to take away any part of the security that a creditor may have, as it would seem at first sight to do if the course adopted below were not followed. Some further countenance to that course is thought to be found in § 57h, which provides 344]that the value of securities shall *be determined by converting them into money "according to the terms of the agreement," for it is urged that, by construction, the right to apply them to interest is as much part of the agreement as if it had been written in. Nevertheless, it seems to us that, on the whole, the considerations on the other side are stronger and must prevail.

For more than a century and a half the theory of the English bankrupt system has been that everything stops at a certain date. Interest was not computed beyond the date of the commission. Ex parte Bennet, 2 Atk. 527. This rule was applied to mortgages as well as to unsecured debts (Ex parte Wardell, 1787; Ex parte Hercy, 1702, 1 Cooke, Bankrupt Laws, 4th ed. 181 [1st ed. Appx.]); and notwithstanding occasional doubts, it has been so applied with the prevailing assent of the English judges ever since (Ex parte Badger, 4 Ves. Jr. 165; Ex parte Ramsbottom, 2 Mont. & A. 79; Ex parte Penfold, 4 De G. & S. 282; Ex parte Lubbock, 9 Jur. N. S. 854; Re Savin, L. R. 7 Ch. 760, 764; Ex parte Bath, L. R. 22 Ch. Div. 450, 454; Quartermaine's Case [1892] 1 Ch. 639; Re Bonacino, 1 Manson, 59). As appears from Cooke, supra, the rule was laid down not because of the words of the statute, but as a fundamental principle. We take our bankruptcy system from England, and we naturally assume that the fundamental principles upon which it was administered were adopted by us when we copied the system, somewhat as the established construction of a law goes with the words where they are copied by another state. No one doubts that interest on unsecured debts stops. See § 63 (1). Shawnee County v. Hurley, 94 C. C. A. 362, 169 Fed. 92, 94.

The rule is not unreasonable when closely considered. It simply fixes the moment when the affairs of the bankrupt are supposed to be wound up. If, as in a well-known illustration of Chief Justice Shaw's (Parks v. Boston, 15 Pick. 198, 208), the whole matter could be settled in a *day by[345 a pie-powder court, the secured creditor would be called upon to sell or have his security valued on the spot, would receive a dividend upon that footing, would suffer no injustice, and could not complain. If, under § 57 of the present act, the value of the security should be determined by agreement or arbitration, the time for fixing it naturally would be the date of the petition. At that moment the creditors acquire a right in rem against the assets. Chemical Nat. Bank v. Armstrong, 28 L.R.A. 231, 8 C. C. A. 155, 16 U. S. App. 465, 59 Fed. 372, 378, 379; Merrill v. National Bank, 173 U. S. 131, 140, 43 L. ed. 640, 643, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 360. When there is delay in selling because of the hope of getting a higher price, it is more for the advantage of the secured creditor than of anyone else, as he takes the whole advance, and the others only benefit by a percentage, which does not seem a good reason for allowing him to prove for interest by indirection. Whenever the creditor proves, his security may be cut short. That is the necessarily possible result of bankruptcy. The rule under discussion fixes the moment in all cases at the date which the petition is filed; but beyond the fact of being compelled to realize his security and look for a new investment, there is no other invasion of the secured creditor's contract rights, and that invasion is the same in kind whatever moment may be fixed.

It is suggested that the right of a creditor having security for two claims, one provable and the other unprovable, to marshal his security against the unprovable claim (see Hiscock v. Varick Bank, 206 U. S. 28, 37, 51 L. ed. 945, 951, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681), is inconsistent with the rule applied in this case. But that right is not affected by fixing a time for winding up, and the bankruptcy law does not touch securities otherwise than in this unavoidable particular. The provision in § 57h for converting securities into money according to the terms of the agreement has no appreciable bearing on the question. Apart from indicating, in accordance with § 67d, that liens are not to be 346]affected, it would seem rather to be intended to secure the right of the trustees and general creditors in cases where the security may be worth more than the debt. The view that we adopt is well presented in the late Judge Lowell's work on Bankruptcy, § 419; seems to have been entertained in Coder v. Arts, 15 L.R.A. (N.S.) 372, 82 C. C. A. 91, 152 Fed. 943, 950 (affirmed without touching this point, 213 U. S. 223, 53 L. ed. 772, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1008), and is somewhat sustained by analogy in the case of insolvent banks (Merrill v. National Bank, supra; White v. Knox, 111 U. S. 784, 787, 28 L. ed. 603, 604, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 686).

Interest and dividends accrued upon some of the securities after the date of the petition. The English cases allow these to be applied to the after-accruing interest upon the debt. Ex parte Ramsbottom; Ex parte Penfold; and Quartermaine's Case,—supra. There is no more reason for allowing the bankrupt estate to profit by the delay beyond the day of settlement than there is for letting the creditors do so. Therefore to apply these subsequent dividends, etc., to subsequent interest, seems just.

Decrees reversed.

DAVID MUSKRAT and J. Henry Dick, on Their Own Behalf, etc., Appts.,
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 330.)

WILLIAM BROWN and Levi B. Gritts, on Their Own Behalf, and on Behalf of All Other Cherokee Citizens Having Like Interest in the Property Allotted under the Act of July 1, 1902, Appts.,
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 331.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 346–363.)

Federal Supreme Court — jurisdiction — unalterability by Congress.

1. Congress could not, as was attempted by the act of March 1, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1015, chap. 2285), confer jurisdiction upon the court of claims, and, by appeal, upon the Federal Supreme Court, of suits against the United States, to be brought by certain named Cherokee Indians, for themselves and all others similarly situated, to determine the validity of acts of Congress passed since the act of July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. at L. 716, chap. 1375), so far as such acts purport to increase or extend the restrictions upon alienation, encumbrance, or the right to lease the allotments of lands of Cherokee citizens, or to increase the number of persons entitled to share in the final distribution of the Cherokee lands and funds, since this is nothing more than an attempt to provide for a final judicial determination in the Supreme Court of the constitutional validity of congressional legislation, without a "case" or "controversy" to which, under the Federal Constitution, the judicial power alone extends.

[For other cases, see Supreme Court of the United States, I. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Federal Supreme Court — jurisdiction — unalterability by Congress.

2. The pendency in the courts of the District of Columbia of suits to enjoin the Secretary of the Interior from carrying into effect certain congressional legislation when Congress attempted, by the act of March 1, 1907, to confer jurisdiction upon the court of claims, and, by appeal, upon the Federal Supreme Court, of suits against the United States, to be brought by the petitioners in the then pending litigation, to determine the validity of such legislation, does not remove the objection that action not judicial in its nature within the meaning of the Federal Constitution was thereby required of the Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Supreme Court of the United States, I. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — invalid in part.

3. The invalidity, so far as the Federal Supreme Court is concerned, as requiring nonjudicial action, of the provisions of the act of March 1, 1907, attempting to confer jurisdiction upon the court of claims, and, by appeal, upon the Supreme Court, of suits against the United States, to be brought by certain named Cherokee Indians, for themselves and all others similarly situated, to determine the validity of Congressional legislation subsequent to the act of July 1, 1902, in so far as such legislation purports to increase or extend the restrictions upon alienation, encumbrance, or the right to lease the allotments of lands of Cherokee citizens, or to increase the number of persons entitled to share in the final distribution of the Cherokee lands and funds, defeats the jurisdiction of the court of claims as well, since an intention cannot be imputed to Congress to confer jurisdiction on that court separately considered.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 330, 331.]

Argued November 30 and December 1 and 2, 1910. Decided January 23, 1911.

APPEALS from the Court of Claims to review decrees dismissing petitions in suits by Cherokee Indians against the United States, brought solely to determine the validity of certain congressional legislation.

Note.—On statutes part valid and part invalid—see notes to Titusville Iron Works v. Keystone Oil Co. 1 L.R.A. 363, and Fayette County v. People's & D. Bank, 10 L.R.A. 196.

Reversed and remanded, with directions to dismiss for want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, No. 330, 44 Ct. Cl. 137; No. 331, 44 Ct. Cl. 283.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Daniel B. Henderson, John J. Hemphill, and William H. Robeson argued the cause, and, with Mr. Frank J. Boudinot, filed a brief for appellants.

Mr. Wade H. Ellis argued the cause, and, with Mr. Henry E. Colton, filed a brief for appellee.

Mr. William W. Hastings argued the cause and filed a brief for the Cherokee Nation.

Messrs. S. T. Bledsoe and Evans Browne filed a brief as amici curiæ.

Mr. Charles West, Attorney General of Oklahoma, filed a brief in behalf of the state of Oklahoma.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

These cases arises under an act of Congress undertaking to confer jurisdiction upon the court of claims, and upon this court, on appeal, to determine the validity of certain acts of Congress hereinafter referred to.

Case No. 330 was brought by David Muskrat and J. Henry Dick, in their own behalf, and in behalf of others in a like situation, to determine the constitutional validity of the act of Congress of April 26, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 137, chap. 1876), as amended by the act of June 21, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 325, et seq., chap. 3504), and to have the same declared invalid in so far as the same undertook to increase the number of persons entitled to share in the final distribution of lands and funds of the Cherokees beyond those enrolled on September 1, 1902, in accordance with the act of Congress passed July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. at L. 716-720, 349]721, chap. 1375). The *acts subsequent to that of July 1, 1902, have the effect to increase the number of persons entitled to participate in the division of the Cherokee lands and funds, by permitting the enrolment of children who were minors, living on March 4, 1906, whose parents had theretofore been enrolled as members of the Cherokee tribe, or had applications pending for that purpose.

Case No. 331 was brought by Brown and Gritts on their own behalf and on behalf of other Cherokee citizens having a like interest in the property allotted under the act of July 1, 1902 (32 Stat. at L. 716, chap. 1375). Under this act, Brown and Gritts received allotments. The subsequent act of March 11, 1904 (33 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 505, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 638), empowered the Secretary of the Interior to grant rights of way for pipe lines over lands allotted to Indians under certain regulations. Another act, that of April 26, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 137, chap. 1876), purported to extend to a period of twenty-five years the time within which full-blooded Indians of the Cherokee, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Creek, and Seminole tribes were forbidden to alienate, sell, dispose of, or encumber certain of their lands.

The object of the petition of Brown and Gritts was to have the subsequent legislation of 1904 and 1906 declared to be unconstitutional and void, and to have the lands allotted to them under the original act of July 1, 1902, adjudged to be theirs free from restraints upon the rights to sell and convey the same. From this statement it is apparent that the purpose of the proceedings instituted in the court of claims, and now appealed to this court, is to restrain the enforcement of such legislation subsequent to the act of July 1, 1902, upon the ground that the same is unconstitutional and void. The court of claims sustained the validity of the acts and dismissed the petitions. 44 Ct. Cl. 137, 283.

These proceedings were begun under the supposed authority of an act of Congress passed March 1, 1907 (a part *of the[350 Indian appropriation bill). 34 Stat. at L. 1015, 1028, chap. 2285. As that legislation is important in this connection, so much of the act as authorized the beginning of these suits is here inserted in full:

"That William Brown and Levi B. Gritts, on their own behalf and on behalf of all other Cherokee citizens, having like interests in the property allotted under the act of July first, nineteen hundred and two, entitled, 'An Act to Provide for the Allotment of Lands of the Cherokee Nation, for the Disposition of Town Sites Therein, and for Other Purposes,' and David Muskrat and J. Henry Dick, on their own behalf, and on behalf of all Cherokee citizens enrolled as such for allotment as of September first, nineteen hundred and two, be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to institute their suits in the court of claims to determine the validity of any acts of Congress passed since the said act of July first, nineteen hundred and two, in so far as said acts, or any of them, attempt to increase or extend the restrictions upon alienation, encumbrance, or the right to lease the allotments of lands of Cherokee citizens, or to increase the number of persons entitled to share in the final distribution of lands and funds of the Cherokees beyond those enrolled for allotment as of September first, nineteen hundred and two, and provided for in the said act of July first, nineteen hundred and two.

"And jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the court of claims, with the right of appeal, by either party, to the Supreme Court of the United States, to hear, determine, and adjudicate each of said suits.

"The suits brought hereunder shall be brought on or before September first, nineteen hundred and seven, against the United States as a party defendant, and, for the speedy disposition of the questions involved, preference shall be given to the same by said courts, and by the Attorney General, who is hereby charged with the defense of said suits.

351] *"Upon the rendition of final judgment by the court of claims or the Supreme Court of the United States, denying the validity of any portion of the said acts authorized to be brought into question, in either or both of said cases, the court of claims shall determine the amount to be paid the attorneys employed by the above-named parties in the prosecution thereof for services and expenses, and shall render judgment therefor, which shall be paid out of the funds in the United States Treasury belonging to the beneficiaries, under the said act of July first, nineteen hundred and two."

This act is the authority for the maintenance of these two suits.

The first question in these cases, as in others, involves the jurisdiction of this court to entertain the proceeding, and that depends upon whether the jurisdiction conferred is within the power of Congress, having in view the limitations of the judicial power, as established by the Constitution of the United States.

Section 1 of article 3 of the Constitution provides:

"The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish."

Section 2 of the same article provides:

"The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states; between a state and citizens of another state; between citizens of different states; between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens, or subjects."

*It will serve to elucidate the nature[352 and extent of the judicial power thus conferred by the Constitution to note certain instances in which this court has had occasion to examine and define the same. As early as 1792 an act of Congress (1 Stat. at L. 243, chap. 11), was brought to the attention of this court, which undertook to provide for the settlement of claims of widows and orphans, barred by the limitations theretofore established regulating claims to invalid pensions. The act was not construed by this court, but came under consideration before the then chief justice and another justice of this court and the district judge, and their conclusions are given in the margin of the report of Hayburn's Case, 2 Dall. 409, 1 L. ed. 436. The act undertook to devolve upon the circuit court of the United States the duty of examining proofs, of determining what amount of the monthly pay would be equivalent to the disability ascertained, and to certify the same to the Secretary of War, who was to place the names of the applicants on the pension list of the United States in conformity thereto, unless he had cause to suspect imposition or mistake, in which event he might withhold the name of the applicant and report the same to Congress.

In the note to the report of the case in 2 Dall. it appeared that Chief Justice Jay, Mr. Justice Cushing, and District Judge Duane unanimously agreed:

"That by the Constitution of the United States, the government thereof is divided into three distinct and independent branches, and that it is the duty of each to abstain from, and to oppose, encroachments on either.

"That neither the legislative nor the executive branches can constitutionally assign to the judicial any duties but such as are properly judicial, and to be performed in a judicial manner.

"That the duties assigned to the circuit courts by this act are not of that description, and that the act itself does not appear to contemplate them as such; inasmuch as *it subjects the decisions of these[353 courts, made pursuant to those duties, first to the consideration and suspension of the Secretary at War, and then to the revision of the legislature; whereas by the Constitution, neither the Secretary at War, nor any other executive officer, nor even the legislature, are authorized to sit as a court of errors on the judicial acts or opinions of this court."

A further history of the case—and of another brought under the same act, but unreported—will be found in United States

v. Ferreira, 13 How. 40, 14 L. ed. 42, in which the opinion of the court was by the chief justice, and the note by him on page 52 was inserted by order of the court. Concluding that note, it was said:

"In the early days of the government, the right of Congress to give original jurisdiction to the Supreme Court, in cases not enumerated in the Constitution, was maintained by many jurists, and seems to have been entertained by the learned judges who decided Todd's Case. But discussion and more mature examination has settled the question otherwise; and it has long been the established doctrine, and we believe now assented to by all who have examined the subject, that the original jurisdiction of this court is confined to the cases specified in the Constitution, and that Congress cannot enlarge it. In all other cases its power must be appellate."

In the Ferreira Case this court determined the effect of proceedings under an act of Congress, authorizing the district judge of the United States for the northern district of Florida to receive and adjudicate claims for losses for which this government was responsible under the treaty of 1819 between the United States and Spain [8 Stat. at L. 252]; decisions in favor of claimants, together with evidence given in connection therewith, to be reported to the Secretary of the Treasury, who, being satisfied that the same were just and equitable and within the treaty, was to pay the amount thereof. It was held that an award 354]of the district *judge under that act was not the judgment of a court, and did not afford a basis of appeal to this court.

In 1793, by direction of the President, Secretary of State Jefferson addressed to the justices of the Supreme Court a communication soliciting their views upon the question whether their advice to the Executive would be available in the solution of important questions of the construction of treaties, laws of nations and laws of the land, which the Secretary said were often presented under circumstances which "do not give a cognizance of them to the tribunals of the country." The answer to the question was postponed until the subsequent sitting of the Supreme Court, when Chief Justice Jay and his associates answered to President Washington that, in consideration of the lines of separation drawn by the Constitution between the three departments of government, and being judges of a court of last resort, afforded strong arguments against the propriety of extrajudically deciding the questions alluded to, and expressing the view that the power given by the Constitution to the President, of calling on heads of departments for opinions, "seems to have been purposely, as well as expressly, united to the executive departments." Correspondence & Public Papers of John Jay, vol. 3, p. 486.

The subject underwent a complete examination in the case of Gordon v. United States, reported in an appendix to 117 U. S. 697, in which the opinion of Mr. Chief Justice Taney, prepared by him and placed in the hands of the clerk, is published in full. It is said to have been his judicial utterance, and the whole subject of the nature and extent of the judicial power conferred by the Constitution is treated with great learning and fullness. In that case an act of Congress was held invalid which undertook to confer jurisdiction upon the court of claims, and thence by appeal to this court, the judgment, however, not to be paid until an appropriation had been estimated therefor *by the Secretary of[355 the Treasury; and, as was said by the chief justice, the result was that neither court could enforce its judgment by any process, and whether it was to be paid or not depended on the future action of the Secretary of the Treasury and of Congress. "The Supreme Court," says the Chief Justice, "does not owe its existence or its powers to the legislative department of the government. It is created by the Constitution, and represents one of the three great divisions of power in the government of the United States, to each of which the Constitution has assigned its appropriate duties and powers, and made each independent of the other in performing its appropriate functions. The power conferred on this court is exclusively judicial, and it cannot be required or authorized to exercise any other."

Concluding his discussion of the subject, the chief justice said, after treating of the powers of the different branches of the government, and laying emphasis upon the independence of the judicial power as established under our Constitution:

"These cardinal principles of free government had not only been long established in England, but also in the United States from the time of their earliest colonization, and guided the American people in framing and adopting the present Constitution. And it is the duty of this court to maintain it unimpaired as far as it may have the power. And while it executes firmly all the judicial powers intrusted to it, the court will carefully abstain from exercising any power that is not strictly judicial in its character, and which is not clearly confided to it by the Constitution."

At the last term of the court, in the case of Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 215 U. S. 216, 54 L. ed. 164, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 86, this court declined to take jurisdiction of a case which undertook to extend its appellate power to the consideration of a case in which there was no judgment in the court below. In that case 356]former cases were reviewed *by Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, who spoke for the court, and the requirement that this court adhere strictly to the jurisdiction, original and appellate, conferred upon it by the Constitution, was emphasized and enforced. It is therefore apparent that from its earliest history this court has consistently declined to exercise any powers other than those which are strictly judicial in their nature.

It therefore becomes necessary to inquire what is meant by the judicial power thus conferred by the Constitution upon this court, and, with the aid of appropriate legislation, upon the inferior courts of the United States. "Judicial power," says Mr. Justice Miller, in his work on the Constitution, "is the power of a court to decide and pronounce a judgment and carry it into effect between persons and parties who bring a case before it for decision." Miller, Const. 314.

As we have already seen, by the express terms of the Constitution, the exercise of the judicial power is limited to "cases" and "controversies." Beyond this it does not extend, and unless it is asserted in a case or controversy within the meaning of the Constitution, the power to exercise it is nowhere conferred.

What, then, does the Constitution mean in conferring this judicial power with the right to determine "cases" and "controversies." A "case" was defined by Mr. Chief Justice Marshall as early as the leading case of Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137, 2 L. ed. 60, to be a suit instituted according to the regular course of judicial procedure. And what more, if anything, is meant in the use of the term "controversy?" That question was dealt with by Mr. Justice Field, at the circuit, in the case of Re Pacific R. Commission, 32 Fed. 241, 255. Of these terms that learned justice said:

"The judicial article of the Constitution mentions cases and controversies. The term 'controversies,' if distinguishable at all from 'cases,' is so in that it is less comprehen-357]sive *than the latter, and includes only suits of a civil nature. Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. 431, 432, 1 L. ed. 445, 446, 1 Tucker's Bl. Com. App. 420, 421. By cases and controversies are intended the claims of litigants brought before the courts for determination by such regular proceedings as are established by law or custom for the protection or enforcement of rights, or the prevention, redress, or punishment of wrongs. Whenever the claim of a party under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States takes such a form that the judicial power is capable of acting upon it, then it has become a case. The term implies the existence of present or possible adverse parties, whose contentions are submitted to the court for adjudication."

The power being thus limited to require an application of the judicial power to cases and controversies, Is the act which undertook to authorize the present suits to determine the constitutional validity of certain legislation within the constitutional authority of the court? This inquiry in the case before us includes the broader question, When may this court, in the exercise of the judicial power, pass upon the constitutional validity of an act of Congress? That question has been settled from the early history of the court, the leading case on the subject being Marbury v. Madison, supra.

In that case Chief Justice Marshall, who spoke for the court, was careful to point out that the right to declare an act of Congress unconstitutional could only be exercised when a proper case between opposing parties was submitted for judicial determination; that there was no general veto power in the court upon the legislation of Congress; and that the authority to declare an act unconstitutional sprang from the requirement that the court, in administering the law and pronouncing judgment between the parties to a case, and choosing between the requirements of the fundamental law established by the people and embodied in the Constitution and an act of the agents *of the people, acting under authority[358 of the Constitution, should enforce the Constitution as the supreme law of the land The Chief Justice demonstrated, in a manner which has been regarded as settling the question, that with the choice thus given between a constitutional requirement and a conflicting statutory enactment, the plain duty of the court was to follow and enforce the Constitution as the supreme law established by the people. And the court recognized, in Marbury v. Madison and subsequent cases, that the exercise of this great power could only be invoked in cases which came regularly before the courts for determination, for, said the chief justice, in Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 819, 6 L. ed. 223, speaking of the third article of the Constitution, conferring judicial power:

"This clause enables the judicial department to receive jurisdiction to the full extent of the Constitution, laws, and treaties of the United States, when any question respecting them shall assume such a form that the judicial power is capable of acting on it. That power is capable of acting only when the subject is submitted to it by a party who asserts his rights in the form prescribed by law. It then becomes a case, and the Constitution declares that the judicial power shall extend to all cases arising under the Constitution, laws, and treaties of the United States."

Again, in the case of Cohen v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 5 L. ed. 257, Chief Justice Marshall, amplifying and reasserting the doctrine of Marbury v. Madison, recognized the limitations upon the right of this court to declare an act of Congress unconstitutional, and granting that there might be instances of its violation which could not be brought within the jurisdiction of the courts, and referring to a grant by a state of a patent of nobility as a case of that class, and conceding that the court would have no power to annul such a grant, said:

"This may be very true; but by no means justifies the inference drawn from it. The [359 article does not extend the *judicial power to every violation of the Constitution which may possibly take place, but to 'a case in law or equity' in which a right under such law is asserted in a court of justice. If the question cannot be brought into a court, then there is no case in law or equity, and no jurisdiction is given by the words of the article. But if, in any controversy depending in a court, the cause should depend on the validity of such a law, that would be a case arising under the Constitution, to which the judicial power of the United States would extend. The same observation applies to the other instances with which the counsel who opened the cause has illustrated this argument. Although they show that there may be violations of the Constitution of which the courts can take no cognizance, they do not show that an interpretation more restrictive than the words themselves import ought to be given to this article. They do not show that there can be 'a case in law or equity' arising under the Constitution, to which the judicial power does not extend."

See also, in this connection, Chicago & G. T. R. Co. v. Wellman, 143 U. S. 339, 36 L. ed. 176, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 400. On page 345 of the opinion in that case the result of the previous decisions of this court was summarized in these apposite words by Mr. Justice Brewer, who spoke for the court:

"Whenever, in pursuance of an honest and actual antagonistic assertion of rights by one individual against another, there is presented a question involving the validity of any act of any legislature, state or Federal, and the decision necessarily rests on the competency of the legislature to so enact, the court must, in the exercise of its solemn duties, determine whether the act be constitutional or not; but such an exercise of power is the ultimate and supreme function of courts. It is legitimate only in the last resort, and as a necessity in the determination of real, earnest, and vital controversy between individuals. It never was the thought that, by means of a friendly suit, a *party beaten in the legis-[360 lature could transfer to the courts an inquiry as to the constitutionality of the legislative act."

Applying the principles thus long settled by the decisions of this court to the act of Congress undertaking to confer jurisdiction in this case, we find that William Brown and Levi B. Gritts, on their own behalf and on behalf of all other Cherokee citizens having like interest in the property allotted under the act of July 1, 1902, and David Muskrat and J. Henry Dick, for themselves and representatives of all Cherokee citizens enrolled as such for allotment as of September 1, 1902, are authorized and empowered to institute suits in the court of claims to determine the validity of acts of Congress passed since the act of July 1, 1902, in so far as the same attempt to increase or extend the restrictions upon alienation, encumbrance, or the right to lease the allotments of lands of Cherokee citizens, or to increase the number of persons entitled to share in the final distribution of lands and funds of the Cherokees beyond those enrolled for allotment as of September 1, 1902, and provided for in the said act of July 1, 1902.

The jurisdiction was given for that purpose first to the court of claims, and then upon appeal to this court. That is, the object and purpose of the suit is wholly comprised in the determination of the constitutional validity of certain acts of Congress; and furthermore, in the last paragraph of the section, should a judgment be rendered in the court of claims or this court, denying the constitutional validity of such acts, then the amount of compensation to be paid to attorneys employed for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the law is to be paid out of funds in the Treasury of the United States belonging to the beneficiaries, the act having previously provided that the United States should be made a party, and the Attorney General be charged with the defense of the suits.

*It is therefore evident that there is[361 neither more nor less in this procedure than an attempt to provide for a judicial determination, final in this court, of the constitutional validity of an act of Congress. Is such a determination within the judicial power conferred by the Constitution, as the same has been interpreted and defined in the authoritative decisions to which we have referred? We think it is not. That judicial power, as we have seen, is the right to determine actual controversies arising between adverse litigants, duly instituted in courts of proper jurisdiction. The right to declare a law unconstitutional arises because an act of Congress relied upon by one or the other of such parties in determining their rights is in conflict with the fundamental law. The exercise of this, the most important and delicate duty of this court, is not given to it as a body with revisory power over the action of Congress, but because the rights of the litigants in justiciable controversies require the court to choose between the fundamental law and a law purporting to be enacted within constitutional authority, but in fact beyond the power delegated to the legislative branch of the government. This attempt to obtain a judicial declaration of the validity of the act of Congress is not presented in a "case" or "controversy," to which, under the Constitution of the United States, the judicial power alone extends. It is true the United States is made a defendant to this action, but it has no interest adverse to the claimants. The object is not to assert a property right as against the government, or to demand compensation for alleged wrongs because of action upon its part. The whole purpose of the law is to determine the constitutional validity of this class of legislation, in a suit not arising between parties concerning a property right necessarily involved in the decision in question, but in a proceeding against the government in its sovereign capacity, and concerning which the only judgment required is 362]to settle the doubtful character *of the legislation in question. Such judgment will not conclude private parties, when actual litigation brings to the court the question of the constitutionality of such legislation In a legal sense the judgment could not be executed, and amounts in fact to no more than an expression of opinion upon the validity of the acts in question. Confining the jurisdiction of this court within the limitations conferred by the Constitution, which the court has hitherto been careful to observe, and whose boundaries it has refused to transcend, we think the Congress, in the act of March 1, 1907, exceeded the limitations of legislative authority, so far as it required of this court action not judicial in its nature within the meaning of the Constitution.

Nor can it make any difference that the petitioners had brought suits in the supreme court of the District of Columbia to enjoin the Secretary of the Interior from carrying into effect the legislation subsequent to the act of July 1, 1902, which suits were pending when the jurisdictional act here involved was passed. The latter act must depend upon its own terms and be judged by the authority which it undertakes to confer. If such actions as are here attempted, to determine the validity of legislation, are sustained, the result will be that this court, instead of keeping within the limits of judicial power, and deciding cases or controversies arising between opposing parties, as the Constitution intended it should, will be required to give opinions in the nature of advice concerning legislative action,—a function never conferred upon it by the Constitution, and against the exercise of which this court has steadily set its face from the beginning.

The questions involved in this proceeding as to the validity of the legislation may arise in suits between individuals, and when they do and are properly brought before this court for consideration they, of course, must be determined in the exercise of its judicial functions. For *the reasons we[363 have stated, we are constrained to hold that these actions present no justiciable controversy within the authority of the court, acting within the limitations of the Constitution under which it was created. As Congress, in passing this act, as a part of the plan involved, evidently intended to provide a review of the judgment of the court of claims in this court, as the constitutionality of important legislation is concerned, we think the act cannot be held to intend to confer jurisdiction on that court separately considered. Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 565, 46 L. ed. 679, 693, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141.

The judgments will be reversed and the cases remanded to the Court of Claims, with directions to dismiss the petitions for want of jurisdiction.

EX PARTE: IN THE MATTER OF GEORGE F. HARDING, Petitioner.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 363-380.)

Mandamus — to review judicial action — remand of cause to state court.

The refusal of a Federal circuit court to remand a civil cause to the state court

---

NOTE.—As to when mandamus is the proper remedy—see notes to United States ex rel. International Contracting Co. v. Lamont, 39 L. ed. U. S. 160; M'Cluny v.

whence it had been removed as presenting a separable controversy between citizens of different states cannot be reviewed by mandamus, which may not be used to perform the office of an appeal or writ of error.
[For other cases, see Mandamus, 61–66, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. —, Original.]

Submitted December 12, 1910. Decided February 20, 1911.

PETITION for mandamus to compel the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, to remand a civil cause to the state court whence it had been removed as presenting a separable controversy between citizens of different states. Leave to file petition denied.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. George F. Harding and William J. Ammen submitted the cause for petitioner.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

By a motion for leave to file a petition for mandamus, George F. Harding seeks the reversal of the action of the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of Illinois, eastern division, in taking jurisdiction over a cause as the result of a refusal to grant a request of Harding to remand the case to a state court. The facts shown on the face of the motion papers are these:

On October 19, 1907, George F. Harding, the petitioner, alleging himself to be a resident of the state of California, sued in an Illinois state court various corporations alleged to be created by and citizens of the state of New Jersey, and fourteen individuals whose citizenship and residence were not given. The suit was brought by Harding as a stockholder in the Corn Products Company, one of the defendants, and the object of the suit was to annul an alleged [367] *unlawful merger of that company, and for relief in respect of an asserted misappropriation of its assets. On November 6, 1907, the Corn Products Company applied to remove to the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of Illinois, eastern division, on the ground that there was a separable controversy between it and Harding. By separate petitions all the other defendants united in the prayer for removal. The state court, not having acted on the petition for removal, the judge of the United States court, upon the application of the Corn Products Company, ordered the transcript of record from the state court to be filed and the case to be docketed. This being done, the Corn Products Company filed what was styled an amendment and supplement to the petition for removal, stating the residence and citizenship of the individuals named as defendants in the original bill, four of them being averred to be residents of Chicago, Illinois, one of Pekin, Illinois, and the others citizens and residents of states other than Illinois.

In December, 1907, Harding moved to remand to the state court, in substance upon the ground that there was no separable controversy, and that the requisite diversity of citizenship was not shown by the petition for removal, and especially directed attention to the fact that at the time of the commencement of the suit in the state court, he, Harding, was not a resident of the district, and that none of the corporate defendants were such residents.

Prior to the bringing of the Harding suit, a suit had been brought in an Illinois state court by the Chicago Real Estate & Trust Company, an Illinois corporation and a stockholder in the Corn Products Company, upon substantially the same grounds as those subsequently alleged in the Harding suit, against the principal corporations and individuals who were thereafter made defendants in the Harding suit. This cause had been removed by the Corn Products Company into the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of [368] Illinois, eastern division, and on its removal, at the instance of the Corn Products Company, the court had restrained the real estate company, its officers, agents, attorneys, etc., from further prosecuting the cause in the state court. Immediately after the bringing of the Harding suit in the state court, the Corn Products Company applied to the circuit court, in the real estate company suit, to restrain Harding from prosecuting his suit, on the ground that the bringing of the same was a violation of the previous restraining order. The court issued a temporary restraining order. Thereafter, as we have said, the Harding suit was removed on the application of the Corn Products Company to the circuit court of the United States, and the motion to which we have referred was made by Harding to remand. That motion to remand, however, in consequence of the restraining order, which had been made permanent, was not heard until the summer of 1909, after the restraining order above referred to had been dissolved by the circuit court of appeals. 94 C. C. A. 144, 168 Fed. 658. Before the motion to remand, however, was passed upon, the circuit court granted permission to the Corn Products Company to amend its removal petition by alleging that, at the time of the commencement by Harding of his suit, and continuously thereafter, he was a citizen of Illinois and a resident of Chicago, in that state. To this Harding objected on the ground that the court was without power to allow an amendment, and that its jurisdiction was to be tested by the averments of the original removal petition. The permitted amendments having been filed, the motion to remand was denied. Harding thereupon, reiterating his objection to the allowance of the amendment and to the jurisdiction of the court to do other than remand the cause, traversed the averment in the amended removal petition as to his Illinois citizenship and residence, and specially prayed "that there may be a speedy hearing and a decision of such issue of citi-369]zenship *and a remand of this cause to the state court by the order of this court. . . ." The request for hearing was granted. A large amount of evidence was introduced on such hearing, which extended over a period of more than fifteen months, and the taxable costs, it is said, "ran up into several thousands of dollars." Finally, on October 25, 1910, the issue was decided against Harding. 182 Fed. 421. The court, finding from the proof that Harding was, as alleged in the amended petition, a citizen and resident of the state of Illinois, expressly refused the prayer for removal, made by Harding in his answer to the amended petition; in other words, the court reaffirmed and reiterated its previous action in refusing to remand the cause. Whether these facts give such color of right to the contention that we have jurisdiction to review the action of the trial court by the writ of mandamus as to lead us to be of opinion that further argument at bar is necessary, and therefore a rule to show cause should issue, is then the question for decision.

Silliman, 4 L. ed. U. S. 263; Fleming v. Guthrie, 3 L.R.A. 54; Burnsville Turnp. Co. v. State, 3 L.R.A. 265; State ex rel. Charleston, C. & C. R. Co. v. Whitesides, 3 L.R.A. 777; and Ex parte Hurn, 13 L.R.A. 120.

On mandamus to control judicial action —see notes to State ex rel. Bayha v. Kansas City Ct. of Appeals, 3 L.R.A. 476, and Ex parte Morgan, 29 L. ed. U. S. 135.

On superintending control and supervisory jurisdiction of the superior over the inferior or subordinate tribunal—see note to State ex rel. Fourth Nat. Bank v. Johnson, 51 L.R.A. 33.

The doctrine that a court which has general jurisdiction over the subject-matter and the parties to a cause is competent to decide questions arising as to its jurisdiction, and therefore that such decisions are not open to collateral attack, has been so often expounded (see Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U. S. 327, 337, 38 L. ed. 463, 467, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611, and cases cited), and has been so recently applied (United States use of Hine v. Morse, 218 U. S. 493, 54 L. ed. 1123, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 37), that it may be taken as elementary and requiring no further reference to authority Nor is there any substantial foundation for the contention that this elementary doctrine has no application to decisions of courts of the United States, refusing to remand causes to state courts, since there is nothing peculiar in an order refusing to remand which differentiates it from any other order or judgment of a court of the United States concerning its jurisdiction. The importance of the subject which is involved in the contrary assertion, the apparent conflict between certain *decided[370 cases dealing with the right to review by mandamus orders of circuit courts refusing to remand, and a long and settled line of other cases relating to the same subject, the confusion and misapprehension which must result unless the conflict is reconciled or abated, and the duty to remove obscurity, as far as it may be done, concerning the review of questions of jurisdiction, all lead us to give the subject a more extended examination than it would otherwise be entitled to receive.

In Ex parte Hoard, 105 U. S. 578, 26 L. ed. 1176, the court was called upon to consider whether the judgment of a circuit court of the United States, declining to remand a civil cause to a state court from which it had been removed, was reviewable by the extraordinary process of mandamus. In refusing to exert jurisdiction by mandamus, and considering the inherent nature of the powers of a circuit court, it was declared that "jurisdiction has been given to the circuit court to determine whether the cause is one that ought to be remanded," and it was also observed that "no case can be found in which a mandamus has been used to compel a court to remand a cause after it has once refused a motion to that effect." Calling attention to the fact that the act of 1875, in § 5 [18 Stat. at L. 472, chap. 137, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 511], expressly gave an appeal to or a writ of error from this court for the review of orders of circuit courts remanding causes, without regard to the amount involved, the court said: "The same remedy has not been given if the cause is retained. It rests with Congress to determine whether a cause shall be reviewed or not. If no power of review is given, the judgment of the court having jurisdiction to decide is final."

In Re Pollitz, 206 U. S. 323, 51 L. ed. 1081, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 729, the facts were these: Pollitz, a citizen of the state of New York, sued in the supreme court of that state the Wabash Railroad Company, a consolidated corporation existing under the laws of the states of Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, and Missouri, and a citizen of the state of Ohio, and various other defend-371]ants, *chiefly citizens and residents of the state of New York. The Wabash Company removed the cause to the circuit court of the United States, on the ground of a separable controversy. A motion of Pollitz to remand was denied. The controversy was decided by this court on the hearing of a rule, which was granted on the application of Pollitz for a writ of mandamus to direct the remanding of the cause. The court, after stating (p. 331) the general rule that "mandamus cannot be issued to compel the court below to decide a matter before it in a particular way, or to review its judicial action had in the exercise of legitimate jurisdiction, nor can the writ be used to perform the office of an appeal or writ of error," refused to take jurisdiction and review the action of the court below, and therefore declined to issue the writ.

Ex parte Nebraska, 209 U. S. 436, 52 L. ed. 876, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581, presented the following facts: In a suit against a railway company, commenced in a court of the state of Nebraska, the state, its attorney general, the railway commission, and the members of the commission individually, were plaintiffs. The defendant railway removed the cause to the United States court, upon the ground that the state was not a proper or necessary party to the suit, and that the controversy was wholly between citizens of different states. A motion to remand having been denied by the circuit court, this court issued a rule to show cause why a mandamus should not be allowed, ordering the remanding of the cause. Upon the hearing on the return to this rule, the court declined to take jurisdiction and review the action of the trial court. It was said that the circuit court had jurisdiction to pass upon the questions raised by the motion to remand, and if error was committed in the exercise of its judicial discretion, "the remedy is not by writ of mandamus, which cannot be used to perform the office of an appeal or writ of error." After declaring that "the applicable principles have been laid down in in-372]numerable cases," the court cited *Ex parte Bradley, 7 Wall. 364, 19 L. ed. 214; Ex parte Loring, 94 U. S. 418, 24 L. ed. 165; Re Rice, 155 U. S. 396, 39 L. ed. 198, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 149; Re Atlantic City R. Co. 164 U. S. 633, 41 L. ed. 579, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208. The case of Pollitz was also cited and reviewed

In Ex parte Gruetter, 217 U. S. 586, 54 L. ed. 892, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 690, the doctrine of Re Pollitz and Ex parte Nebraska was reaffirmed. The case was this: An action commenced by Gruetter in a state court was removed into a circuit court of the United States, and Gruetter moved to remand. One ground of the motion was that the case was not removable because it was not an action of a civil nature, but was one to recover penalties. It was also urged that the petition and record did not show that the suit was sought to be removed to the circuit court of the United States for the district in which either the plaintiff or the defendant resided. On return to a rule to show cause why a mandamus should not be granted, the court declined to take jurisdiction of the case, saying (p. 588):

"There was no controversy as to there being diversity of citizenship. The defendant was a corporation of Kentucky, and plaintiff was a citizen of Tennessee. Inasmuch as we are of opinion that the circuit court of the United States had jurisdiction to determine the questions presented, we hold that mandamus will not lie. The final order of the circuit court cannot be reviewed on this writ. Re Pollitz, supra.

It is patent from the review of the decided cases just made that the contention that the order of the court below, refusing to remand the cause, is susceptible of being here reviewed by the extraordinary process of a writ of mandamus,—in other words, that that writ may be used to subserve the purpose of a writ of error or an appeal,—is so completely foreclosed as not to be open to contention, unless it be that other cases which are relied upon as sustaining our jurisdiction to issue the writ of mandamus have either overruled the line of cases to which we have referred, or have *so qualified them as to cause them to[373 be here inapplicable. We therefore come to consider the cases upon which petitioner relies, to ascertain whether they sustain either of these views. The cases are Ex parte Wisner, 203 U. S. 449, 51 L. ed. 264, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 150; Re Moore, 209 U. S. 490, 52 L. ed. 904, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585, 706, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1164, and Re Winn, 213 U. S. 458, 53 L. ed. 873, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 515. But to an elucidation of these cases it is necessary that the briefest possible recurrence be had to two leading cases which long preceded them; viz., Virginia v. Rives, 100 U. S. 313, 25 L. ed. 667, 3 Am. Crim. Rep. 524, and Virginia v. Paul, 148 U. S. 107, 37 L. ed. 386, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 536.

In Virginia v. Rives a prosecution of persons accused of murder was removed from a state court to a circuit court of the United States. The latter court, moreover, under a writ of habeas corpus cum causa, took the prisoners from the custody of the state authorities. The case in this court arose upon an application by the commonwealth of Virginia for a rule to show cause why the prisoners should not be returned to the state court for trial. On hearing, this court took jurisdiction over the cause, issued the writ of mandamus, and directed the return of the accused. Speaking of the functions of the writ of mandamus, the court said (p. 323): "It does not lie to control judicial discretion, except when that discretion has been abused; but it is a remedy when the case is outside of the exercise of this discretion, and outside the jurisdiction of the court or officer to which or to whom the writ is addressed." It is obvious from the opinion of the court and the concurring opinion that jurisdiction over the cause was taken because of the extraordinary abuse of discretion disclosed by the power attempted to be exerted, the confusion and disregard of constitutional limitations which the asserted power implied, and because, under the law as it then stood, no power would otherwise have existed to correct the wrongful assumption of jurisdiction by the circuit court.

In Virginia v. Paul, 148 U. S. 107, 37 L. ed. 386, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 536, a person in the custody of the state authorities, charged with murder, was released under a writ of habeas corpus issued by a district 374]*judge. Subsequently the circuit court of the United States took, by way of removal, jurisdiction over the prosecution. The commonwealth of Virginia applied to this court for a mandamus to remand the prosecution and to restore the accused to the custody of the state authorities The court, reaffirming the doctrine of Virginia v. Rives, pointed out that to wrongfully devest the state of its right to prosecute in its own courts for crimes committed against its authority was a gross abuse of discretion, which, if not corrected by mandamus, could not be done in any other form. A mandamus to remand was issued. The court, however, declined to review the order discharging on habeas corpus, on the ground that, on the face of the application for habeas corpus, issue had been presented which the judge had a right to decide, and, if error was committed, there was a remedy by appeal.

In Ex parte Wisner, 203 U. S. 449, 51 L. ed. 264, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 150, mandamus was sought to compel a circuit court of the United States to remand a civil cause to the state court from which it had been removed, and which the circuit court had refused to remand. The case was one where, although there was diversity of citizenship, neither of the parties resided in the particular district to which the suit had been removed. This court took jurisdiction. Reviewing the action of the court below, it was observed that the absence of residence within the district of either of the parties demonstrated the absolute want of authority of the circuit court over the cause, and that even if the objection was susceptible of being waived, a waiver by both parties was essential, and the record did not disclose that there had been such waiver. Considering the right to revise by mandamus the action of the circuit court in refusing to remand, no reference whatever was made to the existence of statutory remedies to correct the error found to have been committed, and no authority was cited, it being simply observed: "Our conclusion is that the case should have been remanded; and, *as the circuit court had no ju-[375 risdiction to proceed, that mandamus is the proper remedy."

Re Moore, supra, was also a case of removal, where there was diversity of citizenship, but neither of the parties resided in the particular district. The circuit court had refused to remand. Taking jurisdiction to review such action, an application for a writ of mandamus, this court held that, as there was diversity of citizenship, there was general jurisdiction in the circuit court, and that the objection that neither party resided within the district was a matter susceptible of being waived by the parties, and that such waiver had taken place. The observations in Ex Parte Wisner to the contrary were expressly disapproved. The action of the circuit court in refusing to remand was consequently approved. No discussion was had or authority referred to upon the question of the right to review by mandamus the action of the circuit court, the right to exert such authority having in effect been assumed as the result of the decision in the Wisner Case.

Re Winn, supra, an action commenced in a state court had been removed into a circuit court of the United States, not upon diversity of citizenship, but upon the ground that the case stated was one arising under the laws of the United States. The circuit court denied a motion to remand. Upon application for mandamus, this court took jurisdiction to review such action, and directed that the case be remanded, upon the ground that the cause of action, when rightly construed, did not arise under any provision of the Constitution, or under any law of the United States. Referring to some of the previous cases, and manifestly noting an apparent conflict between them, it was said that this court had declined to exert jurisdiction by mandamus in Ex parte Nebraska and Re Pollitz, because those cases but exemplified the exercise of judicial discretion by the circuit court as to a matter [376 within *its jurisdiction, while the case in hand presented a question of a want of jurisdiction in the circuit court, clearly apparent on the face of the record, and therefore that court, when it decided that the cause of action alleged arose under a law of the United States, could not possibly have exercised a discretion to decide a matter which was within its jurisdiction. Virginia v. Rives and Virginia v. Paul were approvingly cited, and it was said that, in case of a refusal to remand, "although the aggrieved party may also be entitled to a writ of error or appeal," mandamus may be resorted to. On this subject it was further observed: "Mandamus, it is true, never lies where the party praying for it has another adequate remedy, . . . but where, without any right, a court of the United States has wrested from a state court the control of a suit pending in it, an appeal or writ of error, at the end of long proceedings, which must go for naught, is not an adequate remedy."

Comprehensively considering the two lines of cases, one beginning with Ex parte Hoard, 105 U. S. 578, 26 L. ed. 1176, and ending with Ex parte Gructter, supra, and the other beginning with Virginia v. Rives, supra, and ending with Re Winn, supra, it is to be conceded that they are apparently in conflict, both as to the assertion of power which one line upholds to review by mandamus the action of the United States circuit court in refusing to remand, and the nonexistence of such power which the other line of cases expounds, and also as to much of the reasoning in the opinions in some of the cases. Thus the ruling in Ex parte Hoard, that where, in a civil case, statutory remedies by error or appeal are provided for the ultimate review of errors, committed by a court in determining its jurisdiction, such statutory provisions are, in their nature, exclusive, and therefore deprive of the right to resort to the remedy by mandamus, is directly in conflict with the jurisdiction which was exercised in Ex parte Wisner, Re Moore, and Re Winn, as those cases were civil cases, and the right [377 *to review the error, if any, committed by the circuit court in refusing to remand, was regulated by statute. So, also, the statement, by way of reasoning, in the opinion in Re Winn, to the effect that, in case of a refusal to remand, "the remedy by mandamus is available, although the aggrieved party may also be entitled to a writ of error or appeal," is in direct conflict with the reasoning upon which the decision in Ex parte Hoard was based. The conflict just stated becomes more manifest when the ruling in Virginia v. Paul is considered, since in that case the court declined by mandamus to review the action of the court below in taking one accused of crime by a writ of habeas corpus from the custody of the state authorities, on the ground that prima facie there was jurisdiction to issue the writ of habeas corpus, and a remedy by appeal existed to review the action of the circuit court. Moreover, the decision in Re Pollitz, that there was not power to review the action of the court below in refusing to remand, because the circuit court, in passing upon the question as to whether, on the face of the papers, a separable controversy was alleged, decided a matter within its jurisdiction, and which involved the exercise of judicial discretion, cannot be harmonized with the ruling in Ex parte Wisner and Re Moore, that the action of a circuit court in refusing to remand could be reviewed by mandamus, because the court, in deciding whether the parties had waived the right to be sued in a particular district, had not been called upon to decide a matter within its jurisdiction, involving the exercise of judicial discretion. This conflict becomes more obvious when the ruling in Re Winn and Ex parte Gructter are contrasted, the one deciding that the action of the circuit court in refusing to remand because, from an analysis of the pleadings, it was found that a claim of Federal right was presented, was reviewable by mandamus, since it was plain, as a matter of law, that the court erred, and therefore its decision involved no element of judicial discretion, and *the other decid- [378 ing that the denial by a circuit court of a motion to remand based upon the ground, among others, that, on the face of the papers, the suit was not removable, because it was not of a civil nature, but was for a penalty, was not reviewable by mandamus, because the decision of such a question was within the jurisdiction of the circuit court, and therefore involved the exercise of judicial discretion.

We must, then, either reconcile the cases, or, if this cannot be done, determine which line rests upon the right principle; and having so determined, overrule or qualify the others, and apply and enforce the correct doctrine. This is the case, since to do otherwise would serve only to add to the seeming confusion and increase the uncertainty in the future as to a question which it is our plain duty to make free from uncertainty. Coming to the origin of the two lines of cases, it is manifest that it was not conceived that there was conflict between them, since Virginia v. Rives and Ex parte Hoard were practically contemporaneously decided, and were treated, the one as relating to an exceptional condition, that is, an effort to remove a criminal prosecution, which, if wrong was committed, no power otherwise to redress than by mandamus existed, and the other but involved the application of the well-settled rule as to civil cases, concerning which the right to review by error or appeal was generally regulated by statute. Following down the two lines of cases, it is equally manifest that it was never conceived that they conflicted with each other, because some of the cases were also practically contemporaneously decided without the suggestion that one was in conflict with the other; indeed, the decisions in Re Moore and Ex parte Nebraska were announced on the same day. When the cases are closely analyzed, we think the cause of the conflict between them becomes at once apparent. As we have previously pointed out, no authority was referred to in Ex parte Wisner sustain-379]ing the taking in that case of *jurisdiction to review by mandamus the ruling of the circuit court, although, in the course of the opinion, the statement was made with emphasis that the face of the record disclosed an entire absence of jurisdiction in the court below. In the opinion, however, in Re Pollitz, the Wisner Case was referred to, and in pointing out why it was not apposite and controlling, it was observed that that case (the Wisner) presented a total absence of jurisdiction, involving no element of discretion, and Virginia v. Rives was cited, manifestly as indicating the basic authority on which the jurisdiction to review by mandamus had been exerted in the Wisner Case. Again, in Re Winn it is to be observed that not only was Virginia v. Rives cited, but the cases of Virginia v. Paul and Kentucky v. Powers, 201 U. S. 1, 50 L. ed. 633, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 387, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 692 (the last of which also concerned a criminal prosecution in which the doctrine of Virginia v. Rives had been applied), were also cited, evidently for the purpose of pointing out the source from whence came the doctrine of the right to review by mandamus under the facts presented. Bearing these matters in mind, it plainly results that the conflict presented has arisen, not because of the announcement in any of the cases of any mistaken doctrine as to jurisdiction, or of any wrongful decision of any of the cases on the merits, but has simply been occasioned, beginning with Ex parte Wisner, from applying the exceptional rule announced in Virginia v. Rives to cases not governed by such exceptional rule, but which fell under the general principle laid down in Ex parte Hoard and the line of cases which have followed it. Under these circumstances it becomes our plain duty, while not questioning the general doctrine announced in any of the cases, yet to disapprove and qualify Ex parte Wisner, Re Moore, and Re Winn to the extent that those cases applied the exceptional rule of Virginia v. Rives, and thereby obscured the broad distinction between the general doctrine announced in Ex parte Hoard and the cases which have followed it, and the *exception estab-[380 lished by Virginia v. Rives and the cases which have properly applied the doctrine of that case. Our duty to take this course arises not only because of the misconception which must otherwise continue to exist, but also because it is to be observed that material portions of the act of 1875, which were made the basis of the ruling in Ex parte Hoard, are yet in force, and because the cogency of the considerations arising from this fact are greatly increased by the duty to give effect to the provisions of the judiciary act of 1891 [26 Stat. at L. 826, chap. 517, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 488], concerning the review of final orders and judgments or decrees of the circuit courts of the United States.

As, then, our conclusion is that the case under consideration is not controlled by the ruling in Ex parte Wisner or kindred cases, but is governed by the general rule expressed in Ex parte Hoard, and followed in Re Pollitz and Ex parte Nebraska, and, lastly, applied in Ex parte Gruetter, it clearly results that the application for leave is without merit, and leave to file is denied.

FREDERICK WEYERHAEUSER and John A. Humbird, Appts.,
v.
HERBERT H. HOYT.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 380-424.)

Public lands — railroad land grant — indemnity selections — approval.

1. Lands lawfully embraced in a list of indemnity selections filed by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company with the Land Department, and subsequently approved by the Secretary of the Interior,. were not subject to entry or purchase under the Federal land laws during the interim between the date of filing and the date of such approval.

Note.—As to land grants to railroads—see note to Kansas P. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 28 L. ed. U. S. 794.

As to bona fide purchasers of public lands—see note to United States v. Detroit Timber & Lumber Co. 67 C. C. A. 13.

[For other cases, see Public Lands, 125–131, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — railroad land grants — indemnity lands — basis for selection.

2. A valid basis is afforded for the selection by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company of lands within the second indemnity limits, under the joint resolution of May 31, 1870 (16 Stat. at L. 378), where certain lands did not pass under its land grant of July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 365, 367, chap. 217), because they fell within the indemnity limits of the grant of May 5, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 64, chap. 79), in aid of another railroad, as adjusted to the line of definite location of that road, and were selected by that road after the date of the Northern Pacific land grant, but prior to the definite location of that line of road.
[For other cases, see Public Lands, 243–252, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — railroad land grants — selection of indemnity land.

3. A selection of indemnity lands by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, under the act of July 2, 1864, and the joint resolution of May 31, 1870, is not unlawful because the tract selected was not on the same side of the railroad as the tract lost, and was not the nearest unappropriated land.
[For other cases, see Public Lands, 243–252, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands —— judicial review — approval of indemnity selection.

4. The courts must assume that the facts which, under the joint resolution of May 31, 1870, establishing the second indemnity limits of the land grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, must appear in order to entitle that company to the lands selected as indemnity lands, were shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior, where he has approved the company's selections.
[For other cases, see Public Lands, I. h, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — railroad land grants — rights of purchaser.

5. Lands within the indemnity limits of the land grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company could not be claimed under the provisions of the act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 620, chap. 546), enacted to settle the disputes arising out of conflicting rulings of the Land Department with reference to the eastern terminus of the railroad as affecting its land grant, by a person relying upon an alleged purchase under the timber and stone act, where, prior to January 1, 1898, nothing more had been done than to file application for the land.
[For other cases, see Public Lands, 330–342, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — railroad land grants — rights of purchaser — title of grantor.

6. The failure of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to acquire title to lands lawfully selected by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company as within the second indemnity limits of its land grant will not avail persons claiming such lands by virtue of an alleged purchase under the timber and stone act, who are seeking to charge as trustees the grantees of the railway company.
[For other cases, see Public Lands, 330–341, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 24.]

Argued April 27, 28, 1910. Ordered for reargument December 19, 1910. Reargued January 19, 20, 1911. Decided February 20, 1911.

APPEAL from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a decree which reversed a decree of the Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota, dismissing a bill seeking to charge as trustees persons claiming under a patent issued under a railroad land grant. Decree of Circuit Court of Appeals reversed and that of Circuit Court affirmed.

See same case below, 88 C. C. A. 404, 161 Fed. 324.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Charles W. Bunn argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants.

Mr. F. B. Kellogg also argued the cause for appellants.

Mr. M. H. Stanford argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee.

Mr. H. H. Hoyt also filed a brief for appellee.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

Conflicting claims to 40 acres of land in the state of Minnesota is the controversy which this case involves. Both parties assert title derived from the United States, the appellants in virtue of a patent issued under a land grant made to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and the appellee as the result of an alleged purchase under the timber and stone act. The facts are these:

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company in 1883 filed in the Land Department a list of indemnity selections which embraced the land in question. In 1893 a rearranged list was filed, differing from the previous one, in that it specified the particular tract of land lost in the place limits for which each described selection within the indemnity limits was made. The Land Department having ruled that the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company was not at Ashland, but at Duluth, a point west of Ashland, the selections, so far as they related to lands east of Duluth, among which was the land in controversy, *were[383 canceled by order of the Secretary of the Interior. Following this, in December of that year, Richard B. Jones applied to purchase the land under the timber and stone act. A few months after, on February 28, 1898, the Secretary of the Interior made an order formally withdrawing from entry the selected land east of Duluth in order, as was declared, to preserve the right of the railroad company, if any, resulting from the selections previously filed, pending the decision by this court of cases involving whether the eastern terminus was at Duluth or at Ashland. About nine months after this withdrawal, in December, 1898, Jones made his final proof and paid the purchase money, $100. The receiver of the local land office, however, recited in the receipt issued to Jones that his rights were "subject to any claim the Northern Pacific Railroad Company may have to the lands herein described."

In 1900 (177 U. S. 421, 44 L. ed. 830, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 677; 177 U. S. 435, 44 L. ed. 836, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 706), it was decided that the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific road was at Ashland, and therefore that the Land Department had erred in holding that such terminus was at Duluth. The Secretary of the Interior then formally reinstated the list of selections previously filed by the railroad company, the entry of Jones was canceled, and the selections were approved and patents issued to the Northern Pacific Railway Company as entitled to all rights under the selections. The railway company conveyed the tract in controversy to Weyerhaeuser and Humbird, the present appellants.

This suit was then begun by Hoyt in a court of the state of Minnesota, against Weyerhaeuser and Humbird, to compel a conveyance of the land, and to restrain the cutting or removal of timber during the pendency of the suit, on the ground that the title was held by the defendants in trust for complainant. The right to relief was principally based upon the contention that the 384]purchase by Jones under the *timber and stone act was paramount to the indemnity selection previously made by the railroad company, and hence that the Land Department had fallen into an error of law in patenting the land to the company. In addition there were numerous other grounds upon which the right to relief was predicated, but we do not deem it necessary now to detail them, as we shall come to state and dispose of them after we have passed upon the contention concerning the paramount nature of the timber and stone entry. The case, having been removed into a circuit court of the United States upon the ground that on the face of the bill it involved the construction of acts of Congress, was in that court tried and a decree was entered dismissing the bill. The circuit court of appeals, whose action is now under review, reversed the decree of the circuit court, and remanded the cause, with directions to enter a decree for the complainant, granting the relief prayed. 88 C. C. A. 404, 161 Fed. 324.

The decision of the court was based upon the conclusion that the application to purchase, made by Jones, although subsequent in date to the filing by the railroad company of its list of indemnity selections, was paramount to such selections, even although they had been subsequently approved by the Secretary of the Interior. This was not, however, the result of an interpretation originally considered of the granting act, but was exclusively caused, as shown by the opinion of the court, by what was held to be the authoritative and controlling operation of a decision of this court,—Sjoli v. Dreschel, 199 U. S. 564, 50 L. ed. 311, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154. The soundness of this view lies at the threshold of the case; since, if it be that the rights of the parties are authoritatively concluded by the ruling in the Sjoli Case, it will not be necessary to further consider the subject. Coming at once to analyze the ruling in the Sjoli Case in order to fix its true import, we think it is apparent that the court below was mistaken in holding that the decision was here authoritatively *de-[385 cisive. This is said because we see no escape from that conclusion when the issues in the Sjoli Case are accurately ascertained and are compared with those here presented.

The Sjoli controversy, succinctly stated, thus arose: A homestead settler went in 1884 upon land within the indemnity limits of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. He erected a dwelling house and moved into it with his family and cultivated a portion of the land, all prior to the filing in 1885 of a list of selections by the railroad company, embracing the tract settled upon by Sjoli. Although the settler had thus, prior to the filing of the list of selections, entered upon and improved the land with the intention of perfecting title under the homestead laws, his application to enter, for reasons which need not be here adverted to, was not made until subsequent to the filing by the railroad company of its list of selections. Relying upon this fact, the railroad company opposed the application of Sjoli, and the proceedings which took place in the Land Department simply required the Department to determine whether the railroad company, by the filing of its list of selections, could deprive the settler Sjoli of his rights, despite the fact that his settlement and improvement of the land had occurred prior to the filing by the company of its list of selections. The Land Department decided in favor of the settler, and a patent was issued to him.

The matter decided by this court in the Sjoli Case arose from the bringing of a suit by Dresehel, as assignee of the rights of the railroad company, asserting that Sjoli held the land in trust for him as the grantee of the railway company, because the Land Department had, as a matter of law, erred in deciding that the rights of the settler Sjoli were paramount to the subsequent selection by the railroad company, since, at the time of the filing of such list of selections, no record evidence existed in 386]the Land *Department of the asserted settlement by Sjoli, or of his intention to avail of the benefit of the homestead laws. The action of the Land Department in maintaining the paramount right of the settler was sustained. As it is manifest from the statement we have made that the controversy in this case involves no question whatever concerning the rights of a settler initiated prior to the filing by the railroad company of its list of selections, but simply calls upon us to determine whether the Land Department erred in deciding that a filed list of selections was, after approval, paramount to a subsequent application to purchase, it is at once demonstrated that the question here involved is wholly different from that which was decided in the Sjoli Case. This difference is as wide as that which would exist between a ruling that one who was prior in time was prior in right, and a directly antagonistic decision that one who was subsequent in time was yet prior in right. And the broad distinction which obtains between the matter which was involved and decided in the Sjoli Case and the question presented on this record is made, if need be, more apparent when it is considered that, in the Sjoli Case, the action of the Land Department in issuing the patent to the settler, because he was prior in time, was sustained, while to hold that decision applicable here would reverse the action of the Land Department in issuing a patent to the railway company because it was prior in time. While, in view of this difference between the issues involved in the Sjoli Case and those here arising, we are constrained to the conclusion that the former case cannot be held to be here authoritatively decisive, of course, the due persuasive force of the reasoning of the opinion in the Sjoli Case, if here applicable, remains, and must be considered when we come, as we now do, to pass upon the controversy here arising, enlightened by the true interpretation of the granting act, as elucidated by the applicable decisions of this court.

*It is beyond dispute on the face of[387 the granting act of July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 365, 367, chap. 217), and of the joint resolution of May 31, 1870 (16 Stat. at L. 378), extending the indemnity limits, that it was the purpose of Congress in making the grant to confer a substantial right to land within the indemnity limits in lieu of lands lost within the place limits. It is also beyond dispute that, as the only method provided by the granting act for executing the grant in this respect was a selection of the lieu lands by the railroad company, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, that a construction which would deprive the railroad company of its substantial right to select, and would render nugatory the exertion of power of the Secretary of the Interior to approve lawful selections when made, would destroy the right which it was the purpose of Congress to confer. That the effect of holding that lands lawfully embraced in a list of selections duly filed and awaiting the approval of the Secretary of the Interior could, in the interim, be appropriated at will by others, would be destructive of the right of selection, is not only theoretically apparent from the mere statement of the proposition, but has, moreover, in actual experience, been found to be the practical result of carrying that doctrine into effect. See 25 Ops. Atty. Gen. 632. Considering the language of the granting act from a narrower point of view, a like conclusion is in reason rendered necessary. The right to select within indemnity limits was conferred to replace lands granted in place which were lost to the railroad company because removed from the operation of the grant of lands in place by reason of the existence of the rights of others originating before the definite location of the road. The right to select within indemnity limits excluded lands to which rights of others had attached before the selection, and hence simply required that the selection, when made, should not include lands which, at that time, were subject to the rights of others. The requirement *of approval[388 by the secretary consequently imposed on that official the duty of determining whether selections were lawful at the time they were made, which is inconsistent with the theory that anyone could appropriate the selected land pending action of the Secretary. The scope of the power to approve lists of selections, conferred on the Secretary, was clearly pointed out in Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 511, 33 L. ed. 687, 694, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep.

341, where it was said that the power to approve was judicial in its nature. Possessing that attribute, the authority therefore involved not only the power, but implied the duty, to determine the lawfulness of the selections as of the time when the exertion of the authority was invoked by the lawful filing of the list of selections. This view, while it demonstrates the unsoundness of the interpretation of the granting act which the contrary proposition involves, serves also at once to establish that the obvious purpose of Congress in imposing the duty of selecting and submitting the selections when made to the final action of the Secretary of the Interior was to bring into play the elementary principle of relation, repeatedly sanctioned by this court and uniformly applied by the Land Department from the beginning up to this time, under similar circumstances, in the practical execution of the land laws of the United States. Without attempting to cite the many cases in this court illustrating and applying the doctrine, a few only which are aptly pertinent and here decisive are referred to. Gibson v. Chouteau, 13 Wall. 92, 100, 20 L. ed. 534, 536; Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 23 L. ed. 424; St. Paul & S. C. R. Co. v. Winona & St. P. R. Co. 112 U. S. 720, 733, 28 L. ed. 872, 877, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334; Oregon & C. R. Co. v. United States, 189 U. S. 103, 112, 47 L. ed. 726, 730, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 615; United States v. Detroit Lumber Co. 200 U. S. 321, 334, 50 L. ed. 499, 504, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282, and cases cited.

In Shepley v. Cowan, there was conflict between a pre-emption claim and a selection on behalf of the state of Missouri under an act of Congress conveying to the state a large quantity of land to be se-389]lected by the governor, *the act providing that if the selection should be approved by the Secretary of the Interior, patents were to issue. The court said (p. 337):

"The party who takes the initiatory step in such cases, if followed up to patent, is deemed to have acquired the better right, as against others, to the premises. The patent which is afterwards issued relates back to the date of the initiatory act, and cuts off all intervening claimants. Thus, the patent upon a state selection takes effect as of the time when the selection is made and reported to the land office; and the patent upon a pre-emption settlement takes effect from the time of the settlement, as disclosed in the declaratory statement or proofs of the settler to the register of the local land office."

On page 338, after distinguishing Frisbie v. Whitney, 9 Wall. 187, 19 L. ed. 668, and Yosemite Valley Case (Hutchings v. Low) 15 Wall. 77, 21 L. ed. 82, the court said:

"But whilst, according to these decisions, no vested right as against the United States is acquired until all the prerequisites for the acquisition of the title have been complied with, parties may, as against each other, acquire a right to be preferred in the purchase or other acquisition of the land when the United States have determined to sell or donate the property. In all such cases the first in time in the commencement of proceedings for the acquisition of the title, when the same are regularly followed up, is deemed to be the first in right."

In St. Paul & S. C. R. Co. v. Winona & St. P. R. Co. 112 U. S. 720, 28 L. ed. 872, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334, one of the questions arising for decision was which of two railroad companies was entitled to certain tracts of lieu lands situated within overlapping indemnity limits of certain grants made by an act of Congress to the territory of Minnesota, to aid in the construction of the roads of the contesting companies. The selections were to be made by the governor, and required the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. The Winona Company filed a list of selections. *The[390 St. Paul Company made no selections, but nevertheless, on grounds which need not be stated, the Secretary of the Interior certified the lands to the state for the use of that company. The Winona Company brought suit in the state court to have a declaration of its rights in the land, and to restrain the St. Paul Company and others from receiving a patent or other evidence of title to the lands from the governor of the state. The state court decreed in favor of the Winona Company, and this court affirmed its action. In the course of the opinion it was said (page 731):

"The time when the right to lands becomes vested, which are to be selected within given limits under these land grants, whether the selection is in lieu of lands deficient within the primary limits of the grant or of lands which, for other reasons, are to be selected within certain secondary limits, is different in regard to those that are ascertained within the primary limits by the location of the line of the road."

After referring to prior decisions, the conclusion was reached that, as to the lands to be selected, "priority of selection secures priority of right;" and that, as the Winona Company alone had made selection of the lands, and that selection was lawful, the right to the land as against third parties vested in the Winona Company as of the date of the filing of its lists of selections. In concluding the opinion it was said (p. 733):

"It is no answer to this to say that the Secretary of the Interior certified these lands to the state for the use of the appellant. It is manifest that he did so under a mistake of the law; namely, that appellant, having made the earlier location of its road through these lands, became entitled to satisfy all its demands, either for lieu lands or for the extended grant of 1864, out of any odd sections within 20 miles of that location, without regard to its proximity to the line of the other road. We have already shown that such is not the 391]law, and this erroneous decision *of his cannot deprive the Winona Company of rights which became vested by its selection of those lands. Johnson v. Towsley, 13 Wall. 72, 80, 20 L. ed. 485, 486; Gibson v. Chouteau, 13 Wall. 92, 102, 20 L. ed. 534, 537; Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 340, 23 L. ed. 424, 427; Moore v. Robbins, 96 U. S. 530, 536, 24 L. ed. 848, 851."

So, also, in Oregon & C. R. Co. v. United States, 189 U. S. 103, 47 L. ed. 726, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 615, the court said (p. 112):

"Now, it has long been settled that while a railroad company, after its definite location, acquires an interest in the odd-numbered sections within its place or granted limits,—which interest relates back to the date of the granting act,—the rule is otherwise as to lands within indemnity limits. As to lands of the latter class, the company acquires no interest in any specific sections until a selection is made with the approval of the Land Department; and then its right relates to the date of the selection. And nothing stands in the way of a disposition of indemnity lands, prior to selection, as Congress may choose to make."

The doctrine thus affirmatively established by this court, as we have said, has been the rule applied by the Land Department in the practical execution of land grants from the beginning. Porter v. Landrum, 31 Land Dec. 352; Re Southern P. R. Co. 32 Land Dec. 51; Re Santa Fe P. R. Co. 33 Land Dec. 161; Eaton v. Northern P. R. Co. 33 Land Dec. 426; Santa Fe P. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 37 Land Dec. 669. The well-settled rule of the Land Department on the subject was thus stated by the then assistant attorney general in the department, now Mr. Justice Van Devanter, as follows:

"Under this legislation the company was, by the direction or regulations of the Secretary of the Interior, required to present at the local land office selections of indemnity lands, and these selections, when presented conformably to such direction or regulations, were to be entertained and noted or recognized on the records of the local office. When this was done the selections became lawful filings; *and while, un-[392 til approved and patented, they would remain subject to examination, and to rejection or cancelation where found for any reason to be unauthorized, they, like all other filings, were entitled to recognition and protection so long as they remained undisturbed upon the records.

"There is no question in this case as to the sufficiency of the loss assigned, or as to the formality and regularity of the selection.

"What effect has been given to a pending railroad indemnity selection?

"Prior to 1887 the rights of a railroad company within the indemnity belt of its grant were protected by executive withdrawal; but on August 15, that year, these withdrawals were revoked, and the land restored to settlement and entry; but such orders, although silent upon the subject, were held not to restore lands embraced in pending selections. Dinwiddie v. Florida R. & Nav. Co. 9 Land Dec. 74. In the circular of September 6, 1887 (6 Land Dec. 131), issued immediately after the general revocation of indemnity withdrawals, it was provided that any application thereafter presented for lands embraced in a pending railroad indemnity selection, and not accompanied by a sufficient showing that the land was for some cause not subject to the selection, was not to be accepted, but was to be held subject to the claim of the company under such selection. In fact a railroad indemnity selection, presented in accordance with departmental regulations, and accepted or recognized by the local officers, has been uniformly recognized by the Land Department as having the same segregative effect as a homestead or other entry made under the general land laws." [32 Land Dec. 53.]

Despite the doctrine of this court, as expounded in the cases previously referred to, the unbroken practice of the Land Department from the beginning in the execution of land grants, impliedly sanctioned by Congress during the *many years that ad-[393 ministrative construction has prevailed, and the destructive effect upon rights conferred by land-grant acts which would result from applying the contrary view, it is yet urged that this must be done because of decisions of this court which it is insisted constrain to that conclusion. One of the decisions thus referred to is Sjoli v. Dreschel, to which we have previously referred, and others are cited in the margin.†

What we have already said as to the Sjoli Case would suffice to dispose of the suggestion concerning that case, but we shall recur to it. As to the other cases, it would be adequate to say that not one of them involved the question here under consideration, nor even by way of obiter was an opinion expressed on such question. Indeed, all the cases relied upon may be placed in one of three classes: (a) those involving the nature and character of the right, if any, to indemnity lands prior to selection; (b) whether such lands, after the filing of a list of selections, and before action by the Secretary of the Interior thereon, could be taxed by a state to the railroad company as the owner thereof; and (c) those which were concerned with the nature and character of acts which were adequate to initiate a right to public land which would be paramount to a list of selections when the acts were done before the filing of the list of selections. In none of the cases, moreover, was the well-settled doctrine of this court as to relation, even by remote implication, questioned. Indeed, in most of the cases relied upon, the previous decisions to which we have referred, expounding the doctrine of relation, were approvingly cited or expressly reaffirmed.

394] *The Sjoli Case, from the facts we hav already stated, is clearly here inapplicable, because it falls in the third of the above classes. If it be conceded that general language was used in the opinion in that case which, when separated from its context and disassociated from the issues which the case involves, might be considered as here controlling, that result could not be accomplished without a violation of the fundamental rule announced in Cohen v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 399, 5 L. ed. 290, so often since reiterated and expounded by this court, to the effect that "general expressions in every opinion are to be taken in connection with the case in which those expressions are used. If they go beyond the case, they may be respected, but ought not to control the judgment in a subsequent suit when the very point is presented for decision." The wisdom of the rule finds apt illustration here when it is considered that not even an intimation was conveyed in the Sjoli Case of any intention to overrule the repeated prior decisions of this court concerning the operation and effect of the doctrine of relation upon the approval, by the Secretary of the Interior, of a lawful list of selections. That the general expressions in the Sjoli Case are not persuasive here clearly results from the demonstration which we have previously made, that to apply them would be in effect to destroy the indemnity provisions of the granting act. Moreover, that serious general injurious consequences would arise from treating the expressions relied upon in the Sjoli Case as persuasive is clear (a) because to do so would result in the overthrow of the uniform rule by which the Land Department has administered land grants from the beginning,—a rule continued in force after the decision in the Sjoli Case, because of the administrative conclusion that that case should be confined to a like state of facts, and not be extended to other and different conditions (25 Ops. Atty. Gen. 632); (b) because of the destructive effect upon rights of property and the infinite confusion which would now arise from *extending, un-[395 der the circumstances stated, the observations in the Sjoli Case to the wholly different state of facts presented upon this record.

While the foregoing disposes of the main propositions which the case presents, there are additional contentions which it is necessary to pass upon. Irrespective of any question as to the paramount nature of a list of selections, it is contended on behalf of appellee, contrary to the ruling of the Secretary of the Interior: (a) that the selection by the railroad company of the tract in controversy was void and it could not lawfully be approved; (b) in any event, that he was entitled to the land by virtue of the provisions of an act approved July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 620, chap. 546); and (c) the Northern Pacific Railway Company did not succeed to the rights of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the land, if any right thereto became vested in the latter company.

a. This contention is predicated upon the claim that the selecting company had not sustained a legal loss of the tract in lieu of which the land in controversy was selected and that if it had sustained the loss, the selection was not lawful, because the tract selected was not on the same side of the railroad as the tract lost, and was not the nearest unappropriated land to it. These contentions were considered at much length by the Secretary of the Interior in the opinion, copied in the record, affirming the cancelation of the entry of Jones (34 Land Dec. 105),† and were found not to be meritorious. The reasons advanced by the Secretary in support of his rulings upon the legal propositions involved seem to us convincing, and we therefore hold the contentions untenable. Cognate to the contentions just disposed of is a claim made in argument that the filed list of selections was void for the reason that the joint resolution of May 31, 1870, establishing the second indemnity limits, required certain facts to appear in order to entitle the railway company to the land, and that in selecting the *land those requisites were[396 not complied with. The claim substantially embodies merely criticisms directed to the form or regularity of the selection list, and is not, in any view, of such a character as to render void the filed list. The matter being within the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior, we must assume that the facts necessary to establish the right to approve the selections were shown to his satisfaction.

†Sjoli v. Dreschel, 199 U. S. 564, 50 L. ed. 311, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154; Ryan v. Central P. R. Co. 99 U. S. 382, 25 L. ed. 305; Kansas P. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 112 U. S. 414, 28 L. ed. 794, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Kansas P. R. Co. v. Dunmeyer, 113 U. S. 629, 639, 644, 28 L. ed. 1122, 1125, 1127, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 566; Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 33 U. S. 496, 511, 33 L. ed. 687, 694, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341; United States v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. 141 U. S. 359, 374, 375, 35 L. ed. 766, 771, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; New Orleans P. R. Co. v. Parker, 143 U. S. 42, 57, 6 L. ed. 66, 70, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364; Hewitt v. Schultz, 180 U. S. 139, 45 L. ed. 463, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 309.

b. This contention asserts that complainant is entitled to the land by virtue of certain provisions relating to the Northern Pacific land grant contained in the subdivision entitled, "Surveying the Public Lands," embodied in the sundry civil appropriation

---

†Richard B. Jones,
v.
Northern Pacific Railroad Co.

This is an appeal of Richard B. Jones from your office decision of December 2, 1901, holding for cancelation his cash entry allowed under act of June 3, 1878 (20 Stat. at L. 89, chap. 151), as amended by the act of August 4, 1892 (27 Stat. at L. 348, chap. 375, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1545), for the S. W. ¼ of the S. E. ¼ of Section 7, Township 54 N. R. 14 W., Duluth Land District.

The land in controversy lies within the second indemnity limits of the grant made in aid of the construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad, east of the city of Duluth, provision for which is found in the joint resolution of May 31, 1870 (16 Stat. at L. 378), and was selected by the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. October 17, 1883. This selection remained of record until march 22, 1897, when it was canceled pursuant to departmental decision in the case of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. (23 Land Dec. 204), holding Duluth to be the eastern terminus of the company's grant, but was reinstated by your office letter of May 26, 1900, under the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Doherty v. Northern P. R. Co. 177 U. S. 421, 44 L. ed. 830, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 677, holding the eastern terminus of the grant to be at Ashland, Wisconsin. Between the date of cancelation of the selection and before it had been reinstated, to wit, on December 17, 1897, the said Richard B. Jones applied to purchase the tract under the timber and stone acts, supra, and after due publication and proof made entry thereof, December 10, 1898. At the date of the purchase, but not at the date of the application, the tract in controversy, with others, was withdrawn from entry by virtue of the departmental order of February 28, 1898 (26 Land Dec. 265), but there was a provision in the order permitting the completion of all entries theretofore allowed.

It is contended upon the appeal, in substance:

1. That the Northern Pacific Railway Company has no legal or equitable claim upon the United States to be considered the successor in interest to the land-grant rights of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, and that there is therefore no authority of law for the patenting of lands to the named company.

2. That the company's selection was and is void because no valid basis is assigned.

3. That the selection is irregular and void because the selected land was not, at date of selection, the nearest available public land to the section alleged to have been lost in place.

4. That the timber and stone application of Jones, having been presented at a time when the tract in controversy was unappropriated public domain, his application was the equivalent of an entry, and that he thereafter, in accordance with the terms of the order of suspension of February 28, 1898, supra, had the right to complete the same by making proof and payment thereon.

5. That such application having been presented, and such proof and payment having been made, he had, prior to January 1, 1898, in contemplation of law, and within the meaning of the act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 597, 620, chap. 546, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1503), purchased the land directly from the United States, that he had an entry prior to January 1, 1898, within the meaning of departmental instructions of February 14, 1899 (28 L. D. 103), and that therefore he is entitled to an adjustment of his claim under said act.

The question of the succcssorship of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to the land-grant rights of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company was considered by Attorney General Harmon, February 6, 1897 (21 Ops. Atty. Gen. 486), and referring to certain mortgage foreclosure proceedings this Department was then advised that it should act upon applications for patents by the railway company upon the same considerations which should govern it in case there had been no foreclosure and the applications had been made by the old company.

act of July 1, 1898. The provisions are copied in the opinion in Humbird v. Avery, 195 U. S. beginning at page 485, 49 L. ed. 292, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123, and need not be here repeated. As there said, they "disclose a scheme or plan for the settlement of the disputes arising out of the conflicting rulings in the Land Department in reference to the eastern terminus of the railroad, and its action in reference to the public lands between Duluth and Ashland." It is argued that the Secretary of the Interior erroneously decided that the land could not be claimed under the act of 1898 by Jones or his grantee, because, prior to January 1, 1898, Jones had done nothing more than to file his application for the land, and was consequently not a purchaser entitled to the benefits of the statute. In our opinion no error was committed by the Secretary in so deciding. Because we reach this conclusion we must not be considered as intimating any opinion whatever regarding the soundness of the contention made on behalf of the appellants, to the effect that, in any event, the act of 1898 can have no application to one who purchased land under the timber and stone act.

c. It is contended that the Northen Pacific Railway Company, under its charter, had no power to purchase the tract of land here in controversy, and that for various reasons the legal proceedings under which the railway company *asserted it had[397 acquired the rights of the Northern Pacific

---

It was but recently urged before this Department that said opinion was ill-advised and unsound, both in law and fact. The matter was again submitted to the Attorney General, and April 12, 1905, Attorney General Moody considered the question, concluding as follows:

"It seems to me that the decision of my predecessor was correct, and accordingly have to advise you, the Secretary of the Interior, that, in my opinion, you should continue to be governed by the rule there laid down."

This question is not, therefore, open for further consideration by this Department. Ferguson v. Northern P. R. Co. 33 Land Dec. 364.

Appellant's second contention, that the company's selection herein is void because of invalid basis, rests upon the allegation that the basis assigned lies within the overlapping limits of the grant to the state of Minnesota, to aid in the construction of a railroad from St. Paul to Lake Superior, made by the acts of May 5, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 64, chap. 79), and July 13, 1866 (14 Stat. at L. 93, chap. 178), afterwards conferred by the state upon the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railroad Company, and the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, made by the act of July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 365, chap. 217); that Congress did not make a double grant within these overlapping limits, and the date of the grant to the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railroad Company being prior to the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company's road opposite the tract, and the tract having been approved to the former company prior to the definite location of the last-named company's road, it was not granted to it, and therefore not lost to that company's grant.

This contention is unsound. This base land is not within the limits of the withdrawal of May 26, 1864, made on account of the grant of May 5, 1864, and the case does not, therefore, fall within the ruling of the Department in the case of Northern P. R. Co. v. Rooney, 30 Land Dec. 403. It is true the base land was certified under the grant of May 5, 1864, but it was because of the fact that it fell within the indemnity limits of that grant as adjusted to the line of definite location, and was selected after the date of the Northern Pacific land grant, but prior to the definite location of that line of road. No question arises, therefore, in this case, of the right of the Northern Pacific Company to satisfy its loss from its second indemnity belt where the base land was in law and fact lost prior to the grant of July 2, 1864. In the case of Re Northern P. R. Co. 23 Land Dec. 204, it was held that because of a proviso in the act of July 2, 1864, supra, said company would not be entitled to receive indemnity for any of the losses sustained on account of the grant to the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railroad Company, made by the act of May 5, 1864, between Thomson's junction and Duluth. This decision was fundamentally wrong. It held that, because of an agreement, amounting to a consolidation between the two companies, whereby the Northern Pacific Company was authorized to use the other company's tracks between Thomson's Junction and Duluth, it thereby adopted this as its line of road between these points; that Duluth, being on Lake Superior, the eastern point named in the company's charter, that point was therefore the eastern terminus of its grant, and that it therefore, between these points, being "upon the line of another railroad route, to aid in the construction of which lands" had been therefore granted by the United States, was, because of the proviso above referred to, not entitled to indemnity for lands lost because of the prior grant. This view was declared erroneous by the Supreme Court of the United States in the Doherty Case, supra, which recognized the extension of the road eastward from Thomson's Junction to Ashland, Wisconsin, as part of the land-grant road, and it follows that, as the route of the Northern Pacific Railroad is in no sense upon the same general line as that of the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railroad, the proviso in question is without application, and the contention that the Northern Pacific Company is not entitled to indemnity for this tract must fail.

Railroad Company in the land were ineffective to produce any such result. On this record, however, it is not necessary to pass upon these contentions. As the object of the bill is to seek to charge the defendants as trustees of the land for complainant, plainly, if a valid selection was made, proof that their grantor never acquired title to the land would not establish a right to it in the complainant.

It follows that the decree of the Court of Appeals must be reversed, and that of the Circuit Court affirmed. And it is so ordered.

Mr. Justice Harlan, with whom concurred Mr. Justice Day, dissenting:

This case is of sufficient importance to justify a full statement of the facts, as well as the grounds upon which we feel constrained to dissent from the opinion and judgment of the court.

By the final decree under review, the circuit court of appeals for the eighth circuit unanimously reversed the judgment of the circuit court, with directions to give the plaintiff Hoyt, now appellee, the relief asked in his bill.

The general object of the suit was to have it adjudged that the present defendants, Weyerhaeuser and Humbird, now appellants, should hold the legal title to certain lands in Minnesota in trust for the plaintiff, and be enjoined, during the pendency of the cause, from selling, disposing of, or removing, or from attempting to cre-

---

With regard to the regularity of the indemnity selection of this land there can be no question but that, as originally presented, it was a proper selection under existing departmental regulations, the company at that time being relieved from the specification of a basis for its selections. It is claimed, however, that this selection should not receive departmental approval, because there are, or were, at the time said selection was perfected by the assigning of a basis in 1893, available lands nearer to the loss then specified, and the question is therefore presented, whether, admitting the same to be true, the selection is a proper one under the terms of the granting act.

The third, or granting section of the act of July 2, 1864, supra, grants to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company "every alternate section of public land, not mineral, designated by odd numbers, to the amount of twenty alternate sections per mile, on each side of the said railroad line, as said company may adopt through the territories of the United States, and ten alternate sections of land per mile on each side of said railroad whenever it passes through any state, and whenever on the line thereof the United States have full title, not reserved, sold, granted, or otherwise appropriated, and free from pre-emption or other claims or rights at the time the line of said road is definitely fixed, and a plat thereof filed in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and whenever, prior to said time, any of said sections or parts of sections shall have been granted, sold, reserved, occupied by homestead settlers, or pre-empted or otherwise disposed of, other lands shall be selected by said company in lieu thereof, under the directions of the Secretary of the Interior, in alternate sections, and designated by odd numbers, not more than ten miles beyond the limits of said alternate sections."

December 7, 1887, the question as to whether selections could be made within the first indemnity belt of the Northern Pacific land grant for losses outside of the particular state or territory in which the same occurred was submitted to the Attorney General for opinion, and in consideration thereof, Mr. Attorney General Garland, in his opinion dated January 17, 1888 (8 Land Dec. 14, 17), after referring to the clause of the section above quoted providing for indemnity, says:

"The conditions of this indemnity, set forth in detail, under which the right or privileges of selection rests in the company, are: lands shall have been lost out of the amount granted; selections must be made by the company of other lands in lieu of them; whose selections must be made under the directions of the Secretary of the Interior; selections shall only be of alternate odd-numbered sections, and they must not be more than 10 miles beyond the limits of the granted sections. These are all the limitations or conditions provided for by the act of 1864, subject to which the right to select is granted. Interpretation will not warrant the adding of another limitation, that the lieu lands must be selected in the same state or territory in which the lands were lost. To annex such an additional limitation to the words of the grant would be legislation, and not construction."

It is further provided by said § 3 of the act of 1864:

"That all mineral lands be, and the same are, hereby excluded from the operations of this act, and in lieu thereof a like quantity of unoccupied and unappropriated agricultural lands, in odd-numbered sections nearest to the line of said road, may be selected as above provided."

It will be noted that this provision limits the selection of indemnity for losses to the grant on account of mineral lands, to "odd-numbered sections, nearest to the line of said road," etc.

There could be no good reason for attaching an additional condition upon selections made in lieu lands lost to the grant because mineral in character, and it might therefore be urged that it was intended to enlarge the limits within which such selections could be made. Thus, for general indemnity, selections were to be made from "alternate sections, and designated by odd numbers, not more than 10 miles beyond ate any charge upon the timber standing or lying upon the premises in question.

Many questions have been discussed by counsel. But there is one which seems to require special examination. The facts out of which that question arises may be thus stated:

The land in question is the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 7, 398]township 54, of *range 14 west, principal meridian. It contains 40 acres, and is situated in St. Louis county, Minnesota. It is unfit for cultivation, is valuable chiefly for its timber, has no valuable deposit of gold, silver, cinnabar, copper, or coal upon it, was at the time mentioned in the record uninhabited, and contained no mining or other improvements.

For the purpose of availing himself of the act of Congress relating to the sale of timber land in California, Oregon, Nevada, and Washington territory, approved June 3d, 1878 (20 Stat. at L. 89, chap. 151, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1545),—which act was amended August 4th 1892, and its benefits extended to all the states (27 Stat. at L. 348, chap. 375, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1434),—one Richard B. Jones, a citizen of the United States, and admittedly, in all respects qualified under the laws of the United States to enter land, filed, December 17th, 1897, with the register and receiver in the land office at Duluth, a verified written duplicate statement, in due form, indicating his desire to purchase the land in dispute under the homestead laws of the United States. One of these statements was promptly transmitted by the receiver to the General Land Office at Washington.

The receiver, in conformity with law, at once posted in his office, for the required time, the fact of such application, describing the lands by legal subdivision, and furnishing Jones a copy of such notice. That notice was duly published in the newspaper the limits of said alternate sections," being the granted sections, and for losses on account of mineral lands, to "odd-numbered sections, nearest to the line of said road."

---

Be this as it may, the lands made the basis for the selection in question were not lost to the grant because mineral in character, and the limitation "nearest to the line of said road" differs widely from a requirement that the selection must be nearest the tract lost and made the basis for the selection.

In the case of United States v. Colton Marble & Lime Co. 146 U. S. 615, 618, 36 L. ed. 1104, 1105, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 163, it was said by the court:

"It might well be assumed that very likely the Atlantic & Pacific Company would be called upon to select from the indemnity lands a portion sufficient to make good the deficiency in the granted limits. That right of section was a prospective right, and if it was to be fully exercised, no adverse title could be created to any lands within the indemnity limits. Suppose, for instance, it should turn out that only half of the indemnity lands were necessary to make good the deficiency, and that one half of such lands were well watered and valuable, while the remainder were arid and comparatively valueless; obviously the right of selection would be seriously impaired if it were limited to only the arid and valueless tracts."

In that case the court had under consideration the prospective right of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad Company to odd-numbered sections within the indemnity limits of its grant made by act of July 27, 1866 (14 Stat. at L. 292, chap. 278), which grant has the same indemnity provisions as the Northern Pacific act of 1864, with the exception that indemnity for losses to the grant on account of mineral lands is limited to "odd-numbered sections nearest to the line of said road and within 20 miles thereof." With regard to this latter provision it will be noticed that the selection is limited to odd-numbered sections within the primary limits of the grant, as those limits are 20 miles on each side of the road in territories, thus, in effect, nullifying the provision, because the sections from which selections are to be made were specifically granted in place.

The resolution of May 31, 1870, supra, providing for a second indemnity belt to the Northern Pacific grant, before quoted from, merely limits the place of selection to a belt "10 miles on each side of said road, beyond the limits prescribed in said charter," etc.

The act of 1864 and the resolution of 1870 each, therefore, establish a limit beyond which the company cannot go on making its general indemnity selections, but in neither is there any requirement limiting such selections to the lands nearest the sections in which the losses to the grant occur, and to so limit such selections would attach a condition or limitation upon the right of selection not found in the granting acts.

That the right of selection conferred by these acts cannot be restricted by the Secretary of the Interior seems clear. His duty in the premises is to supervise the administration of the grant, but this authority does not permit him to abridge or enlarge the laws of Congress. We should see that the selection made in satisfaction of the grant are confined to the lands described in the granting act; but, as between different sections, equally within the description contained therein, he cannot say which may or which may not be selected, for in so doing he would be denying the railroad company the right to make the selection. See Willamette Valley & Cascade Mt. Wagon Road Co. v. Bruner, 26 Land Dec. 357.

Attention has been called to the circular nearest to the land. On the 27th day of March, 1898, no adverse claim to the land having been filed in the land office, the applicant, Jones, after furnishing to the local register satisfactory proofs of the preliminary facts required by law, paid to the receiver the full purchase price of the land, together with all fees legally due to those officers. Thereupon he was permitted, December 10th, 1898, to enter, and did enter the land, the receiver executing and delivering to him at the time an official receipt and certificate of purchase. In December, 1898, all the papers and testimony in the 399]matter *of Jones's application, including his certificate of purchase, were transmitted by the register and receiver to the General Land Office at Washington, and by that office were received and filed. On December 19th, 1898, Jones and wife sold and conveyed the land to Minnie Stewart, by deed properly recorded on October 3d, 1902. Stewart and wife conveyed to Hoyt, the present plaintiff, now appellee, and that deed was also duty recorded October 3d, 1902.

On the 2d day of December, 1901,—nearly three years after Jones got his certificate of purchase, and after he had sold the land,—the Commissioner of the General Land Office made a decision, holding for cancelation the entry made by Jones, as above stated, declaring it to be void on the ground that this land (using the words of the Commissioner) "was selected by the Northern Pacific Railroad (now Railway Company) October 17th, 1883, for the second indemnity, per list, rearranged list 15 B, in lieu of land in Section 11, T. 46 R. 16 W., in the primary limits disposed of between date of grant and definite location of the road, which selection has not since been abandoned or the basis otherwise used. The selection was canceled, however, by letter of March 22, 1897, because the land is east of Duluth, the then [supposed] east-of August 4, 1885 (4 Land Dec. 90), relating to railroad indemnity selections, and requiring a designation of a loss as a basis for all indemnity selections, in which circular it is said that "where deficiencies exist, for which indemnity is allowed by law, the lieu selections must be made from vacant, unappropriated land within the proper sections and limits nearest the granted section in which the loss occurred."

---

This circular was issued before the opinion of the Attorney General or the decision of the court referred to. Its main purpose was to require the specification of a loss as a basis for the selection, thereby aiding the adjustment of the grant; for it required the designation of a loss as a basis for all selections previously approved and certified as well as for those then pending or thereafter to be made.

In respect to the portion of the said circular above quoted, in the manner of proximity between loss and selected tract, in view of what has been said, it cannot be considered as a limitation upon the right of selection, but rather as suggesting a manner of designating the losses so as to aid in adjusting the grant. It might also be stated that it is learned upon inquiry at your office that, at least as to lands within the second indemnity belt, a strict adherence thereto has not been enforced.

In the case of Re Hickey, 26 Land Dec. 612, it was held (syllabus):

"Indemnity selections are made under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, and the enforcement of any requirement in the matter of a specification of a loss is only for his information and as a bar to the enlargement of the grant, and may be waived whenever he deems such course advisable."

The conclusions hereinbefore reached answer appellant's fourth contention. The railway company's selection was improperly canceled; the application of Jones initiated no right as against the company, and his purchase no claim which can be recognized by the Land Department, unless it is protected by the provisions of the act of July 1, 1898, supra; and this question involves consideration of the fifth and last specification of error on appeal.

If Jones had purchased this land from the United States prior to January 1, 1898, or if he had, prior to that time made an entry thereof within the meaning of the act of July 1, 1898, he is entitled to an adjustment thereunder. It is believed that he had done neither of these things. While the application to purchase was presented prior to the date named, proof and payment were not made until after that date. There was no purchase prior to January 1, 1898. But it is contended that the application of Jones was the equivalent of an entry. No vested right is acquired by a timber and stone application. While such an application, if presented in accordance with the law and for land subject thereto, reserves the land from other disposition by the Land Department, no right is initiated as against the government, and prior to the submission and acceptance of final proof and the payment of the purchase price, the Secretary of the Interior may suspend the same from disposition and sale under the public land laws. Board of Control, Canal No. 3, State of Colorado v. Torrence, 32 Land Dec. 472.

This is precisely what was done in this case. The tract was withdrawn from entry by the order of February 28, 1898, and the purchase of Jones, allowed in violation of that order, initiated no right falling within the remedial provisions of the act of July 1, 1898. Eaton v. Northern P. R. Co. 33 Land Dec. 426.

The decision appealed from is affirmed.

ern terminal of the grant under departmental ruling; but said cancelation was rescinded and the selection restored by letter of May 26, 1900, under the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court (177 U. S. 435, 44 L. ed. 836, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 706), that the grant extends to Ashland, Wisconsin. December 17, 1897, Richard B. Jones applied to purchase said tract under the timber and stone law, and after due publication and proof made entry thereof December 10, 1898. Cash certificate No. 14,812. Under the decision of the court, the selection of the company is a valid selection, and the claim of Jones not having been perfected prior to January 1, 1898, his claim is not within the act of July 1, 1898 [30 Stat. at L. 597, chap. 546, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1503], (departmental decision of May 400]22, 1900, Salter v. *Company). Said entry is therefore hereby held for cancelation for conflict with the prior valid selection of the company subject to appeal. Notify him hereof; the company will be informed by this office."

It does not appear that Jones, or anyone claiming under him, had any previous notice of this order, or that there was any trial or regular hearing of the matter in the General Land Office.

Upon appeal to the Secretary of the Interior, the above order of December 2d, 1901, was affirmed, and subsequently, but not until October, 1905, a patent was issued to the Northern Pacific Railway Company. 34 Land Dec. 105.

When Jones entered and purchased the land, paying the government price for it, and receiving a certificate of his purchase, —which purchase was made and which certificate was given nearly seven years before a patent was issued to the railroad company,—there was in the Land Office a list of selections alleged to have been filed by the railroad company on October 17th, 1883. But the list did not assign each selection to specific land in the granted limits, which it was asserted had been lost by the company. That list was received at the local land office, and transmitted to the General Land Office. But on the 11th of April, 1893, the railroad company, acting under the direction or suggestion of the Secretary of the Interior, "rearranged" its list so as to specify the particular tract lost in the primary limits. In such list the lands in dispute here were set opposite to particular lands lost in those limits. The lands mentioned in the company's list, whether we take the original or rearranged list, were, it must be remembered, within the indemnity limits of the grant made by Congress in 1864, in aid of the construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad. That is not disputed.

The principal assignment of error is that the entry and purchase by Jones—under whom Hoyt claims—of the lands in question were subordinate to the rights acquired *by the mere filing of the list of se-[401 lections by the railroad company, followed as that was by the approval of the Secretary of the Interior and by a patent, although such approval was not given, nor, as we have seen, the patent issued to the railroad company, until many years after Jones received his certificate of purchase from the government.

Upon final hearing in the circuit court, the bill was dismissed. But upon appeal to the circuit court of appeals, all the judges concurring, that judgment was reversed, and the case sent back with directions to enter a decree for the relief asked in the bill. Rec. 214, 88 C. C. A. 404, 161 Fed. 324. The principles in the latter case were accepted and applied by the supreme court of Minnesota in Northern P. R. Co. v. Wass, 104 Minn. 411, 116 N. W. 937.

Section 3 of the charter of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company of July 2d, 1864 [13 Stat. at L. 369, chap. 217], provided: "And be it further enacted that there be, and hereby is, granted to the 'Northern Pacific Railroad Company,' its successors and assigns, for the purpose of aiding in the construction of said railroad and telegraph line to the Pacific coast, and to secure the safe and speedy transportation of the mails, troops, munitions of war, and public stores, over the route of said line of railway, every alternate section of public land, not mineral, designated by odd numbers, to the amount of twenty alternate sections per mile, on each side of said railroad line, as said company may adopt, through the territories of the United States, and ten alternate sections of land per mile on each side of said railroad whenever it passes through any state, and whenever, on the line thereof, the United States have full title, not reserved, sold, granted, or otherwise appropriated and free from pre-emption or other claims or rights, at the time the line of said road is definitely fixed, and a plat thereof filed in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office; and whenever, prior to said time, any of said sections or *parts[402 of sections shall have been granted, sold, reserved, occupied by homestead settlers, or pre-empted, or otherwise disposed of, other lands shall be selected by said company in lieu thereof, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, in alternate sections, and designated by odd numbers, not more than 10 miles beyond the limits of said alternate section. . . ."

But Congress afterwards broadened or extended the limits into which the railroad company, under the direction of the Secretary, might go in order to supply deficiencies in the granted limits. By the joint resolution of May 31st, 1870 (16 Stat. at L. 378), amending the above act of 1864, "second indemnity limits" were created. The resolution provided: "And in the event of there not being in any state or territory in which said main line or branch may be located, at the time of the final location thereof, the amount of lands per mile granted by Congress to said company, within the limits prescribed by its charter, then said company shall be entitled, under the directions of the Secretary of the Interior, to receive so many sections of land belonging to the United States, and designated by odd numbers, in such state or territory, within 10 miles on each side of said road beyond the limits prescribed in said charter, as will make up such deficiency on said main line or branch, except mineral and other lands, as excepted in the charter of said company of 1864, to the amount of the lands that have been granted, sold, reserved, occupied by homestead settlers, pre-empted, or otherwise disposed of subsequent to the passage of the act of July two, eighteen hundred and sixty-four. . . ."

The fundamental inquiry in the case is whether Jones's entry, occupancy, and purchase of the lands were subject or subordinate to the previous filing of the list of selections by the railroad company, the Secretary of the Interior not having approved such list until after such entry, occupancy, and purchase by Jones. The judgment be-[403]low *proceeded upon two principal grounds: 1. That the railroad company did not acquire any right or interest in the lands selected within indemnity limits by the mere filing of its list of selections. 2. That after such list was filed, and while it was unapproved by the Secretary, the lands remained fully open to entry and purchase by homesteaders and pre-emptors under the laws of the United States; that, in the absence of the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, the mere filing of the lists put no obstacle whatever in the way of homesteaders or pre-emptioners seeking to acquire public lands not already appropriated or sold under the laws of the United States; and that by an entry or purchase in conformity with the homestead or pre-emption laws a right attached to those lands in favor of the entryman which could not be destroyed or overridden by any subsequent approval by the Secretary of the Interior of the original or rearranged list of selections made by the railroad company.

These grounds were sustained by a well-reasoned opinion delivered by Judge Sanborn on behalf of the circuit court of appeals. In view of the elaborate discussion by counsel and by the majority of my brethren, it will be instructive to make a liberal extract from that opinion. After observing that lands within indemnity limits did not cease to be public lands open to settlement under the homestead laws, simply because of their having been embraced in a list of selections filed by the railroad company to supply losses within place limits, the circuit court of appeals (the italics being ours) said: " 'The company's unapproved selections did not, therefore, stand in the way of the lands being occupied and entered under the homestead laws. The mere filing of its lists of selections of indemnity lands did not have the effect to exclude them from occupancy under the pre-emption or homestead laws.' . . . The question here is not the jurisdiction but the legality of the decision of the Land Department, *and especially of the Sec-[404] retary [of the Interior], its head, whereby he awarded this land to the railway company. The facts and the law warranted and required its award and sale to Jones. When he presented his application to purchase it under the timber and stone act, the railway company's selection of it was unapproved by the Secretary, and that company was without equitable right to it. The Land Department had jurisdiction to accept the application of Jones and to sell the land to him, or to approve the selection of the company and to award the land to it. It exercised this jurisdiction, accepted the application of Jones, permitted him to enter the land, to prove up his claim to it, sold it to him, took his $100 in payment for it, and issued to him his receiver's receipt, and it did all this before the selection of the company was approved, and before the company could acquire any right to the land. Jones's equitable title to the tract had then vested, and, while the jurisdiction of the Land Department continued until the patent issued, its power was neither arbitrary, unlimited, nor discretionary, and its action was subject to judicial correction for error of law, fraud, or clear mistake. The jurisdiction and power of disposition which the Land Department has of the lands of the United States, like the power of every other department of the government is subject to the laws of the land, and the Land Department's violation or disregard of them is remediable in the courts. Its power 'cannot be exercised so as to deprive any person of land lawfully entered and paid for. By such entry and payment the purchaser secures a vested interest in the property and a right to a patent therefor, and can no more be deprived of it by order of the Commissioner, than he can be deprived by such order of any other lawfully acquired property. Any attempted deprivation in that way will be corrected whenevere the mater is presented so that the judiciary can act upon it." Cornelius v. Kessel, 128 U. S. 456, 461, 32 L. ed. 482, 483, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 122; Germania Iron Co. v. James, 32 C. C. A. 348, 354, 355, 405]61 U. S. App. 1, 89 *Fed. 811, 818; James v. Germania Iron Co. 46 C. C. A. 476, 481, 107 Fed. 597, 602; Black v. Jackson, 177 U. S. 349, 357, 44 L. ed. 801, 804, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648; Orchard v. Alexander, 157 U. S. 372, 383, 39 L. ed. 737, 741, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 635; Brown v. Hitchcock, 173 U. S. 473, 478, 43 L. ed. 772, 774, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485. . . . Finally counsel involved the familiar rule that the decisions of officers of other departments of the government upon questions within their jurisdiction are cogent and persuasive and should be followed by the courts unless they are clearly erroneous; and he reminds us that the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office have carefully considered the questions in this case, and have decided that Jones was without legal or equitable claim to this land, and that the right of the railway company to it was superior. But Jones was a qualified entryman. The attempted withdrawals and selections of the land by the Secretary prior to his approval of the company's selection were unauthorized by law and without legal effect. The land was open to entry and purchase until he approved the selection. Jones entered, brought, and paid for it before any such approval was made. And the decisions of the Supreme Court which have been cited leave no doubt that the Secretary and the Commissioner fell into a plain error of law when they took the land which Jones had lawfully purchased from him or from his grantees and gave it to the railway company. Erroneous decisions of questions of law by the officers of the Land Department cannot be permitted to deprive the equitable owner of his vested right to lands which he has lawfully purchased from the United States. Johnson v. Towsley, 13 Wall. 72, 80, 20 L. ed. 485, 486; Gibson v. Choteau, 13 Wall. 92, 102, 20 L. ed. 534, 537; Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 340, 23 L. ed. 424, 427; Moore v. Robbins, 96 U. S. 530, 536, 24 L. ed. 848, 851; St. Paul & S. C. R. Co. v. Winona & St. P. R. Co. 112 U. S. 720, 733, 28 L. ed. 872, 877, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334. The conclusion is that by his entry and purchase, Jones acquired the entire beneficial ownership and the equitable right to the land in controversy, and that the railway *company and its successors in in-[406 terest obtained nothing under the patent but the naked legal title, which they held in trust for him and for his successors in interest. This conclusion renders the other questions presented in this case immaterial. The decree must accordingly be reversed, and the case must be remanded to the court below, with directions to enter a decree for the complainant for the relief prayed in the bill; and it is so ordered."

Many cases, among which was the recent case of Sjoli v. Dreschel, 199 U. S. 564, 50 L. ed. 311, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154, were cited by the circuit court of appeals to sustain its conclusion. Attention is specially directed to that case because it was only recently decided, after full consideration. The facts in it differ, in some respects, from those in the case now before us, but the principles announced in the Sjoli Case were clearly the result of previous cases. They directly bear upon the question now under consideration.

It appears from the report of the Sjoli Case that he settled on the land there in dispute in 1884, and his original application was in 1889; whereas, the railroad company filed its list of selections of lands within indemnity limits to supply deficiencies in place limits in 1885, Sjoli then being in the actual occupancy of the land, and having the intention, by a formal application, to perfect his claim under the homestead laws. Dreschel claimed under the railroad company. Sjoli got a patent in 1901, based primarily on his prior occupancy. That was after the company filed its selections. The essential question in the case was as to the rights of the homestead settler as against the railroad company, which had filed its list of selections of the lands after the homesteader settled on the lands with the intention to acquire them, but before he made his formal application for them. Summing up the doctrines previously established, this court declared in the Sjoli Case that, from its previous cases, the following propositions were to be deduced: "That the railroad company *will[407 not acquire a vested interest in particular lands, within or without place limits, merely by filing a map of general route and having the same approved by the Secretary of the Interior, although, upon the definite location of its line of road, and the filing and acceptance of a map thereof in the office of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, the lands within primary or place limits, not theretofore reserved, sold, granted, or otherwise disposed of, and free from pre-emption or other claims or rights, become segregated from the public domain, and no rights in such place lands will attach in favor of a settler or occupant who becomes such after definite location; that no rights to lands within indemnity limits will attach in favor of the railroad company until after selections made by it with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior; that up to the time such approval is given, lands within indemnity limits, although embraced by the company's list of selections, are subject to be disposed of by the United States, or to be settled upon and occupied under the pre-emption and homestead laws of the United States; and that the Secretary of the Interior has no authority to withdraw from sale or settlement lands that are within indemnity limits which have not been previously selected with his approval, to supply deficiencies within the place limits of the company's road." The words in the Sjoli Case, "that up to the time such approval [by the Secretary] is given, lands within indemnity limits, although embraced by the company's list of selections, are subject to be disposed of by the United States, or to be settled upon and occupied under the pre-emption and homestead laws of the United States," —were cited with approval in the very recent case of Osborn v. Froyseth, 216 U. S. 571, 578, 54 L. ed. 619, 623, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 420 and were really the basis of the decision in that case.

But the defendants insist that as Jones's occupancy of an application for the land were made while there was pending in the Land Office an unapproved list of selections 408]*of lands (including the land in question), which the railroad company desired to appropriate in order to supply deficiencies in its primary limits, the subsequent approval by the Secretary of the company's list—although such approval did not in fact occur until 1905—overrode and annulled any right previously acquired by the homesteader Jones, although he applied, paid for, and got his certificate of purchase more than six years prior to the actual approval by the Secretary of the Interior of the original or rearranged selection of these lands. We do not concur in this view. This view cannot be sustained without entirely disregarding the doctrines announced upon full consideration in many other cases, prior to the Sjoli Case.

As counsel have made an earnest and extended argument in support of the contrary view, it may be well to recall a few leading cases on the subject, and see just what has been adjudged.

In Ryan v. Central P. R. Co. 99 U. S. 382, 25 L. ed. 305, the court construed the 2d section of the act of July 25th, 1866 (14 Stat. at L. 239, chap. 242), granting to a company, for the purpose of aiding in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line, alternate odd sections of public land, for 10 miles on each side, subject, however, to the conditions that the railroad company might, under the direction of the Secretary, select alternate odd sections, within 10 miles on each side, nearest the place limits, to supply deficiencies in lands found to have been granted sold, reserved, occupied by homestead settlers, pre-empted or otherwise disposed of. As to lands in the place limits, the court said that the right of the company to the odd sections became fixed and absolute when the road was located and the maps of such location were filed. But, said the court, speaking by Mr. Justice Swayne, "with respect to the 'lieu lands,' as they are called, the right was only a float, and attached to no specific tracts until the selection was actually made[409 in the manner prescribed." In that case the selection made by the company was approved by local land officers and confirmed by the Secretary of the Interior, when there was no claim upon it. The court further said, in reference to the land actually selected under the direction of the Secretary, that "the railroad company had not and could not have any claim to it until specially selected, as it was for that purpose. It was taken to help satisfy the grant to the extent that the odd sections originally given failed to meet its requirements. When so selected there was no Mexican or other claim impending over it." In the same case, referring to the deficiency alleged to exist in the place limits, the court said: "It was within the secondary or indemnity territory where that deficiency was to be supplied. The railroad company had not and could not have any claim to it until specially selected, as it was for that purpose." This language was quoted with approval in Osborn v. Froyseth, 216 U. S. 578, 54 L. ed. 624, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 420. So, in the present case, when Jones entered and purchased there was no claim upon these lands that gave the railroad company any right or interest whatever in them which could be asserted in opposition to the entryman, whose rights had attached before any approval of the selections.

A similar question under another land grant act arose in Kansas P. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 112 U. S. 414, 28 L. ed. 794, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208. The claim in that case was under an act of Congress of 1862 (12 Stat. at L. 489, chap. 120), which made a grant of lands designated by odd numbers on each side of the railroad, "which were not sold, reserved, or otherwise disposed of by the United States, and to which a pre-emption or homestead claim had not attached at the time the line was definitely fixed." This court, speaking by Mr. Justice Field, said: "A right to select them [lands] within certain limits, in case of deficiency within the 10 mile limit, was alone conferred, not a right to any specific land or lands capable of identification by any principles of law or 410]rules of measurement. Neither locality nor quantity is given, from which such lands could be ascertained.*"

In Kansas P. R. Co. v. Dunmeyer, 113 U. S. 629, 639, 641, 644, 28 L. ed. 1122, 1125, 1127, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 566, which involved rights under the act of July 2d, 1864, granting lands to a railroad company (13 Stat. at L. 365, chap. 217), the court, speaking by Mr. Justice Miller, said: "The reasonable purpose of the government undoubtedly is that which it expressed; namely, while we are giving liberally to the railroad company, we do not give any lands we have already sold, or to which, according to our laws, we have permitted a pre-emption or homestead right to attach. No right to such land passes by this grant. No interest in the railroad company attaches to this land or is to be founded on this statute." This case was followed in Hastings & D. R. Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357, 366, 33 L. ed. 363, 367, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 112; Whitney v. Taylor, 158 U. S. 85, 92, 93, 39 L. ed. 906, 908, 909, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 796, and Northern P. R. Co. v. Sanders, 166 U. S. 620, 41 L. ed. 1139, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 671.

In Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 512, 33 L. ed. 687, 694, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, the court speaking by Justice Field, in determining the effect of the mere filing of the list of selections, said: "Until the selections were approved, there were no selections in fact, only preliminary proceedings taken for that purpose; and the indemnity lands remained unaffected in their title. Until then the lands which might be taken as indemnity were incapable of identification; the proposed selections remained the property of the United States. The government was, indeed, under a promise to give the company indemnity lands in lieu of what might be lost by the causes mentioned. But such promise passed no title, and, until it was executed, created no legal interest which could be enforced in the courts."

"The mere filing of lists of selections after the acceptance of the map of definite location of the railroad line between Duluth and Ashland gave the company no such title as could be enforced by the courts in a suit between private parties. It is true, the government was under a promise to give the railroad company lands *in[411 the indemnity limits to supply losses in place limits. But, as adjudged in the above cases, that promise passed no title." Humbird v. Avery, 195 U. S. 480, 507, 49 L. ed. 286, 298, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123, in which it was said that "no title to indemnity lands is vested until a selection be made by which they are definitely ascertained and the selection made approved by the Secretary of the Interior. This principle is firmly established,"—citing Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, and other cases.

In United States v. Missouri K. & T. R. Co. 141 U. S. 359, 374, 375, 35 L. ed. 766, 771, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13, which case related to a railroad land grant, it was observed that certain even numbered sections within the indemnity limits of the particular railroad concerned could, under the statute there in question, have been legally selected as indemnity lands if no rights had attached to them before their selection, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. The court then proceeds: "We say, prior to such selection and approval, because as to lands which may legally be taken for purposes of indemnity, the principle is firmly established that title to them does not vest in the railroad company, for the benefit of which they are contingently granted, but, in the fullest legal sense, remains in the United States, until they are actually selected and set apart, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, specifically for indemnity purposes,"—citing, among other cases, Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. Chicago M. & St. P. R. Co. 117 U. S. 406, 408, 29 L. ed. 928, 929, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 790, in which the court, speaking by Mr. Justice Miller, said: "No title to indemnity lands was vested until a selection was made by which they were pointed out and ascertained, and the selection made approved by the Secretary of the Interior."

In New Orleans P. R. Co. v. Parker, 143 U. S. 42, 57, 36 L. ed. 66, 70, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364, the language of the court was: "As to lands within the indemnity limits, it has always been held that no title is acquired until the specific parcels have been selected by the grantee, and approved by the Secretary of the Interior,"—citing numerous cases.

*A full discussion of the rights of[412 parties in respect of lands in indemnity limits wil be found in Hewitt v. Schultz, 180 U. S. 139, 45 L. ed. 463, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 309, which was determined after great deliberation in 1901. In that case the question arose whether it was competent for the Secretary of the Interior, after receiving from a railroad company its map of the definite location, to at once withhold or withdraw from sale or entry the odd-numbered sections within the indemnity limits, to which the company, with the assent of the Secretary, might be permitted to resort in order to supply deficiencies in place limits. Referring to the opinions of Secretaries Lamar, Vilas, and Smith, and approving their views, the court held such withdrawal to be unauthorized, indeed, forbidden, by the statute in respect to lands within the indemnity limits, left open by Congress for homesteaders or pre-emptioners while the title remained in the United States. The opinions of those Secretaries proceeded upon the ground taken in previous decisions of this court that a right to select lands within indemnity limits "was alone conferred, not a right to any specific land or lands capable of identification by any principle of law or rules of measurement;" but that until selection was made, "the right of selection became a barren right; for, until selection was made, the title remained in the government, subject to its disposal at its pleasure." In the opinion of Secretary Vilas, approved by this court in the Hewitt Case, it was said: "It [the act of Congress] gave to any person entitled under the pre-emption or homestead laws to take any such lands the absolute right to acquire any proper quantity thereof, in accordance therewith; and this right an executive officer could not deprive the settler of."

In Oregon & C. R. Co. v. United States, 189 U. S. 103, 47 L. ed. 726, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 615, the court said: "Having regard to the adjudged cases, it is to be taken as established that, unless otherwise expressly declared by Congress, no right of the railroad company attaches or can attach to 413]specific lands within indemnity *limits until there is a selection under the direction, or with the approval, of the Secretary."

Many other cases to the same effect might be cited.

It is, however, contended that the approval by the Secretary of the Interior of the selection of these lands to supply deficiencies in place limits had relation back to the date when the railroad filed its original list of selections, and had the effect to override any rights acquired by the homesteader after that list was filed, and before such approval. This view, if sustained, would practically destroy the rights given to homesteaders and pre-emptioners by the acts of Congress, as uniformly interpreted by this court. Even after the filing of a list of selection of lands by the beneficiary under the act of Congress, Jones was entitled, of right,—prior to the actual approval by the Secretary of the proposed selections,—to apply for the lands in dispute, pay for them, get a certificate of his purchase, and in that way acquire them. That right attached to the lands when he entered upon and applied for them under the homestead laws, and he could not be arbitrarily prevented from paying the government price, and obtaining a certificate of purchase and perfecting his claim under those laws.

Now, if it it be true, and all the cases so hold, that, after the filing of a list of selections by the railroad company of lands within indemnity limits, such lands nevertheless remained fully open to entry, occupancy, and purchase by homesteaders; if, as held in Hewitt v. Schultz, above cited, the Secretary of the Interior himself could not, immediately upon the filing of a list by the railroad company of selections of indemnity lands, withdraw such lands from entry or sale, and thus prevent their being entered, occupied, and purchased by homesteaders, prior to the Secretary's actual approval of such selections; and if the mere filing of the list did not, in itself, in advance of any approval by the Secretary, give the land-grant beneficiary any right or claim whatever, legal or equitable, in or to any *particular lands specified in the list,[414 —then there is no basis whatever for the contention that the Secretary's approval of the selection of indemnity lands, after the homesteader's claim attached to them, can be referred back to the day on which the railroad company filed its list of lands within indemnity limits, sought to be taken by it,—an act on his part which, all the cases agree, did not give it any enforceable interest in particular lands. That would be using the doctrine of relation, which is a mere fiction of law, to defeat the manifest will of Congress. To state the proposition in another way: If the lands embraced by the company's list of selections were, under the statute, fully open, after the filing of that list, to entry, occupancy, and sale, for the benefit of homesteaders,—and that cannot be disputed,—how is it possible upon any sound principle, or consistently with the policy adopted by the government to encourage settlements, that the right thus given to the homesteader could be annulled by any action of the Secretary occurring after that right accrued and became attached to the lands in behalf of the homesteader? A preference cannot be given in this way to the railroad company over the homesteader if regard be had to the purpose of Congress to keep the unappropriated public domain effectively, fully, and completely open to settlers so long as the legal title remained in the United States, or until some right of the company actually attached to the lands settled upon. A different view cannot be sustained except upon the theory that the mere application of a railroad company to take particular lands to supply loses in place limits had the effect to take those lands out of the public domain and prevent their occupancy by homesteaders until it suited the Land Department—which might postpone its ruling for many years—to take up the application and pass upon it; and this, notwithstanding indemnity lands were fully open to be settled upon by homesteaders so long as the title remained in the United States.

415] *At a very early date in the administration of the public lands this court, speaking by Mr. Justice Campbell, in Clements v. Warner, 24 How. 394, 397, 16 L. ed. 695, 696, said: "The policy of the Federal government in favor of settlers upon public lands has been liberal. It recognizes their superior equity to become the purchasers of a limited extent of land comprehending their improvements, over that of any other person. By the act of 1841 (5 Stat. at L. 453, chap. 16), the pre-emption privilege in favor of actual settlers was extended over all the public lands of the United States that were fitted for agricultural purposes and prepared for market. Later statutes enlarged the privilege, so as to embrace lands not subject to sale or entry, and clearly evince that the actual settler is the most favored of the entire class of purchasers." In the recent case of Ard v. Brandon, 156 U. S. 537, 543, 39 L. ed. 524, 526, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 406, the court, speaking by Mr. Justice Brewer (after referring to Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 338, 23 L. ed. 424, 427), said that "the law deals tenderly with one who, in good faith, goes upon the public lands with a view of making a home thereon. If he does all that the statute prescribes as the condition of acquiring rights, the law protects him in those rights, and does not make their continued existence depend alone upon the question whether or no he takes an appeal from an adverse decision of the officers charged with the duty of acting upon his application." The court, in that case, then referred with approval to the observations above cited from Clements v. Warner, and proceeded: "There can be no question as to the good faith of the defendant. He went upon the land with the view of making it his home. He has occupied it ever since. He did all that was in his power in the first instance to secure the land as his homestead. That he failed was not his fault; it came through the wrongful action of one of the officers of the government." See also Northern P. R. Co. v. Amacker, 175 U. S. 567, 44 L. ed. 275, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 236.

In support of the contrary view much reliance is placed *upon the general rule[416 "that where there are divers acts concurrent to make a conveyance, estate, or other thing, the original act shall be preferred; and to this the other acts shall have relation." (Viner, Abr. title "Relation," 290); or, as stated by Cruise (5 Real Prop. 510, 511), that "all the several parts and ceremonies necessary to complete a conveyance shall be taken together as one act, and operate from the substantial part by relation." This rule may well apply where the inquiry relates to rights asserted in lands expressly granted in the place limits of a road; for such grants are in præsenti. So, perhaps, it might be applied where the contest, under a railroad grant, is between the government and its grantee, who was authorized to make selections of lands within indemnity limits to supply loses in place limits occurring before a specified time. As in United States v. Anderson, 194 U. S. 394, 399, 48 L. ed. 1035, 1038, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 716, where the court said: "But even though it be conceded, arguendo, that the doctrine in question would allow rights to be acquired by third parties to the injury of the applicant after the making of the selections, and pending approval thereof by the government, it does not follow that it controls the controversy here presented. This results because on this record the rights of third parties are not involved, since the controversy concerns only the right of the United States to retain, as against its grantees, the proceeds recovered by it as the result of a trespass upon land after an application for the selection of such land, and pending action thereon by the proper officers of the government. Under these circumstances the case is one for the application of the fiction of relation by which, in the interest of justice, a legal title is held to relate back to the initiatory step for the acquisition of the land." But clearly the rule should not be applied in a land-grant case in which the mere filing by the railroad beneficiary at the outset of a list of selections of indemnity lands does not affect the title of the United States, and has not, in and of itself, any such efficacy as to *become the basis of a[417 right or interest in the particular lands mentioned in such list; especially when, as here, those lands, being within indemnity limits, remain open, according to all the authorities, to entry, occupancy, and even purchase by homesteaders to the same extent they would have been had no list of selections ever been filed. In both a practical and legal sense the filing of such list was nothing more than the expression of a desire or a request that the Secretary of the Interior permit the company to have certain indemnity lands to supply losses in the place limits. The Secretary might unduly delay his decision, might never act on such request, and thereby, for an unreasonable time, delay settlement on the public lands by those who seek homes on them, and are always dealt tenderly with by the United States. Before such request was acted on in this case, rights of the homesteader intervened and became lawfully attached to the lands. If the homesteader acquired a right in these indemnity lands by entry, occupancy, and purchase under the homestead laws, as he undoubtedly did, it is inconceivable that such right could, under any proper application of the doctrine of relation, be affected or overthrown by referring to an antecedent act performed by a different person, but which, at the time it was performed, did not give any right or interest whatever in the lands, and interposed no legal obstacle that would prevent homesteaders from entering, occupying, or purchasing them. In support of the railroad company's position several cases are cited, to some of which we will refer.

The first of these cases, in point of time, is Campbell v. Doe, 13 How. 244, 14 L. ed. 130. But that case has no bearing on the precise point under consideration. That was the case of a contest under an act of Congress giving school lands to townships, the selection to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury. One Hamilton made, as he supposed, a selection of certain lands under that act, in conformity with regulations prescribed by the Secre-
418]tary. But his *selection was made while the lands were legally reserved from sale, and he had prior notice of that fact. The land was consequently not then open to selection, except pursuant to the act of Congress and the regulations of the Secretary. After alluding to some minor views advanced in the case, this court said: "But in whatever light this may be viewed, we are clear that the Secretary of the Treasury had the power, under the act of Congress, to make the selection; and his decision, declaring the entry of Hamilton invalid, was, under the circumstances, conclusive." Referring to the argument that what was done by Hamilton was with approval of the Land Office, through whom the Secretary executed the power conferred upon him, the court said: "Yet where the Secretary has interposed and decided the matter, as in the case under consideration, his decision must be considered as the only one under the law."

The opinion in Campbell v. Doe closes with the suggestion that "under the circumstances no right became vested in him [Hamilton] by reason of his entry of the land, which could be regarded or enforced by a court of equity." The court did not refer, although counsel did, to the rule about the relation of time as between two acts, each of which is, in itself, efficacious to give some substantial right, and was performed by different persons, at different times. It was adjudged in that case—and it was the only point that need have been determined—that the court could not go behind the decision of the Secretary of the Treasury, and that in no view of the case presented could the relief asked be granted by a court of equity; whereas, in the case now before us it must be admitted, in view of the act of Congress and the cases determining its scope and effect, that when Jones occupied and entered, as well as when he purchased the land in dispute, it was part of the public domain, subject to the control of the United States, and open to homesteaders and pre-emptioners, under the *laws of the United States, although[419 there may have been at the time, on file, a list of unapproved selections by the railroad company.

Another case much relied on in this connection by the appellants is Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 337, 23 L. ed. 424, 426. That case arose under the act of Congress of September 4th, 1841, granting lands to certain states, including Missouri, for purposes of internal improvement, saving such as were or might be reserved from sale by any act of Congress or the proclamation of the President. The plaintiffs claimed title under a patent issued to one McPherson by the state, and purporting to be for lands selected by the state under the above act of 1841. The defendants claimed title under a patent issued by the United States to the heirs of one Chartrand, based on an alleged pre-emption right acquired by a settlement of their ancestor. McPherson paid for the lands in dispute, and got a certificate showing such fact. The selections authorized to be made were subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. That officer gave such approval. This court, referring, however, to the facts and to certain acts of Congress, held that the state could not legally select the lands in dispute as part of those granted by act of 1841, because they were "legally reserved from sale," consequently nothing could be claimed under the selection of McPherson. This view was sufficient to dispose of that case. Nevertheless, the court proceeds to consider another view which was held to be fatal to the claim made under the patent issued to McPherson. "If," the court said, "the land outside of the survey as retraced by Brown in 1834 could be deemed public land, open to selection by the state of Missouri from the time the survey was returned to the land office in St. Louis, it was equally open from that date to settlement, and consequent pre-emption by settlers. The same limitation which was imposed by law upon settlement was imposed by law upon the selection of 420]the state. In either *case the land must have been surveyed, and thus offered for sale or settlement. The party who takes the initiatory step in such cases, if followed up to patent, is deemed to have acquired the better right as against others to the premises. The patent which is afterwards issued relates back to the date of the initiatory act, and cuts off all intervening claimants. Thus, the patent upon a state selection takes effect as of the time when the selection is made and reported to the Land Office; and the patent upon a pre-emption settlement takes effect from the time of the settlement, as disclosed in the declaratory statement or proofs of the settler to the register of the local land office. The action of the state and of the settler must, of course, in some way be brought officially to the notice of the officers of the government having in their custody the records and other evidences of title to the property of the United States before their respective claims to priority of right can be recognized. But it was not inteuded by the 8th section of the act of 1841, in authorizing the state to make selections of land, to interfere with the operation of the other provisions of that act, regulating the system of settlement and pre-emption. The two modes of acquiring title to land from the United States were not in conflict with each other. Both were to have full operation, that one controlling in a particular case under which the first initiatory step was had. . . . But whilst, according to these decisions, no vested right as against the United States is acquired until all the prerequisites for the acquisition of the title have been complied with, parties may, as against each other, acquire a right to be preferred in the purchase or other acquisition of the land, when the United States have determined to sell or donate the property. In all such cases, the first in time in the commencement of proceedings for the acquisition of the title, when the same are regularly followed up, is deemed to be the first in right. So in this case, Chartrand, the ancestor, by his *previous settlement in 1835 upon the[421 premises in controversy, and residence with his family, and application to prove his settlement and enter the land, obtained a better right to the premises, under the law then existing than that acquired by McPherson by his subsequent state selection in 1849. His right, thus initiated, could not be prejudiced by the refusal of the local officers to receive his proofs upon the declaration that the land was then reserved, if in point of fact the reservation had then ceased." It thus appears that the general rule determining the rights of parties under two different acts, performed at different times, was referred to and applied in a case where each act was of such a substantial character as in itself to give a right, enforceable by law. In the case referred to, the selection by the state was wholly void, and could not be made the basis of any right acquired in opposition to the rights of the settler, although it was prior to the act performed by the settler. The "initiatory step" referred to in Shepley v. Cowan was necessarily a step which, in itself, gave some interest in the particular land involved. In the present case, the subsequent act of the homesteader was confessedly in accordance with law, gave him a substantial interest in the land, and was not defeated by reason of the prior act of the railroad company in merely filing its list of selections. We say this for the reason that such filing, according to the adjudged cases, could not be made the basis of any right or interest in these particular lands. Within the true meaning of the rule as to the relation of time between two acts of a substantial character, performed at different times, the initiatory step was that taken by Jones when he entered and purchased; for there was no previous step which had, in or of itself, any efficacy whatever to confer a right in the lands or prevent him from acquiring them.

Substantially the same comments may be made about the case of McCreery v. Haskell, 119 U. S. 327, 330, 30 L. ed. 408, 409, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176, which *is also much[422 relied on by the appellants. The dispute in that case was about certain public lands which, from the date of the grants, were equally open to selection by the state and by homesteaders and pre-emptioners under an act of Congress relating to land titles in California. By its selection the state could acquire by the act of Congress a right or interest in the lands; by settlement, the pre-emptioner could also acquire a right in them. That being the case, this court said: "The land lying outside of this survey thus became, in the language of the act, 'subject to the general land laws of the United States.' It was open to settlement with other public lands, and consequent pre-emption by settlers, and to selection by the state in lieu of the school sections within the confirmed Mexican grant. . . . As between the settler and the state, the party which first commenced the proceedings required to obtain the title, if followed up to the final act of the government for its transfer, is considered as being entitled to the property. In such cases, the rule prevails that the first in time is the first in right."

In the present case the railroad company, as we have seen, acquired no interest whatever by merely requesting that it have certain indemnity lands to supply losses in place limits; whereas, in the California case, the prior act to which the subsequent act was referred—the selection by the state—would have given to the state a substantial interest in the lands, provided the lands had been open to selection by it at all. Proceeding on the basis that the selection was valid, the state court held that such selection was a prior, substantial, effective act to which the subsequent act may be referred under the rule stated in former cases as to relation of time.

Further citation of authorities would seem to be unnecessary. In our opinion, the filing by the railroad company of a list of lands within indemnity limits, which it desired to obtain in order to supply defi-423]ciencies in place *limits, gave the company no interest in any particular lands, and Jones had the right, under the homestead laws of the United States, after that list was on file, and before it was approved by the Secretary, to enter upon and occupy the indemnity lands so specified, with the intention to acquire them under the laws of the United States; and by such entry and occupancy, with such intention, acquire a substantial interest or right in them which could not be affected or impaired by the subsequent approval of such list by the Secretary of the Interior; that the mere filing of the list did not and could not, in itself, be made the basis for any claim that would be inconsistent with Jones's legal rights as resulting from his entry and occupancy with the intention stated; consequently, the appellee, claiming under Jones, had the better right. To make the approval by the Secretary of the Interior relate back to a date when the railroad company confessedly did not have and could not have acquired any, even an inchoate, interest in these lands, and thus cut off and destroy the intervening rights acquired by the homesteader before the Secretary's approval, would be to make a new and dangerous application of the doctrine of relation discussed at the bar. A subsequent act cannot properly be used to give legal effect to a prior act, as of a time when such prior act was performed, if the prior act had no efficacy whatever to confer an interest in the lands to which the two acts related. No adjudged case really holds to the contrary. These views do no injury to the railroad company, for if the homesteader is adjudged to have the better right, the company can, under the direction of the Secretary, go into the whole body of indemnity lands and pick out other lands to supply any loss in place limits; whereas, if the homesteader loses the land he has settled upon and occupied, he will lose the benefit of his improvements, and must abandon the place he had fixed upon as his home.

One other matter should be referred to. Across the *certificate of purchase is-[424 sued to Jones these words were written: "This receipt is issued under the order of the Secretary of the Interior, dated February, 28th, 1898, subject to any claim the Northern Pacific Railroad Company may have to the lands herein described." Of course, the Secretary had no authority to do this, and his act had no legal efficacy. If the railroad company had rights superior to those acquired by Jones, those rights could have been protected despite the certificate issued to Jones. If it had none, then the indorsement across the face of the certificate is to be regarded simply as a warning to Jones that he might have in the future a contest with the railroad company. The indorsement that Jones's purchase was subject to any claim the company "may have" neither added nor took away rights that belonged at the time to either the company or to Jones.

In our opinion the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals should be affirmed.

CHARLES D. CAMPBELL, Appt.,
v.
FREDERICK WEYERHAEUSER and John A. Humbird.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 424, 425.)

This case is governed by the decision in Weyerhaeuser v. Hoyt, ante, 258.

[No. 12.]

Argued April 27, 28, 1910. Ordered for reargument December 19, 1910. Reargued January 19, 20, 1911. Decided February 20, 1911.

APPEAL from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota, dismissing a bill in a suit to charge as trustees persons claiming title under a patent issued under a railroad land grant. Affirmed.

See same case below, 88 C. C. A. 412, 161 Fed. 332.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. M. H. Stanford argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant.

Mr. H. H. Hoyt also filed a brief for appellant.

Mr. Frank B. Kellogg argued the cause, and, with Mr. Stiles W. Burr, filed a brief for appellees.

Mr. Charles W. Bunn also argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

This case and the Hoyt Case, just decided [219 U. S. 380, ante, 258, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 300], are of the same general character, and were consolidated and tried below as one case. In this case, however, the application of Campbell to purchase the tract by him claimed was rejected by the Land Department, and Campbell was not permitted to enter the land. The land furnishing the selection basis also lay further west in Minnesota than the lost tract in the Hoyt Case. The court of appeals held that Campbell acquired no equitable interest in the land by his application and the denial thereof, and consequently he could not maintain a bill in equity to charge the title under the patent issued to the railroad company upon a selection of a tract as lieu land, and affirmed the decree of the circuit court, dismissing the bill. As, in any event, the decision rendered in the Hoyt Case is decisive of this, we hold that the bill was rightly dismissed, and the decree of the Circuit Court of Appeals is therefore affirmed.

Mr. Justice Harlan and Mr. Justice Day dissent for the reasons set forth in the dissenting opinion in case of Weyerhaeuser v. Hoyt, No. 24.

*NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY [426 COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
FRED WASS and Pauline Wass, His Wife.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 426–433.)

This case is governed by the decision in Weyerhaeuser v. Hoyt, ante, 258.

[No. 181.]

Argued April 27, 28, 1910. Ordered for reargument December 19, 1910. Reargued January 19, 20, 1911. Decided February 20, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota to review a judgment which, on a second appeal, affirmed a judgment of the District Court of Todd County, in that state, in favor of defendants in an action in ejectment. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 105 Minn. 525, 117 N. W. 1126; on former appeal, 104 Minn. 411, 116 N. W. 937.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Charles W. Bunn argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Patrick B. Gorman argued the cause and filed a brief for defendants in error.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

In brief, the facts of this case are as follows: While a filed selection by the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway Company of land within the indemnity limits of a railroad grant was awaiting the action of the Secretary of *the Interior, Fred [427 Wass, in April, 1899, entered upon the land with the intention of making it a homestead, and continued in possession, making improvements, etc. In December following, Wass presented to the land office an application to enter the tract under the homestead laws. The register and receiver filed his application, but on the same day rejected it, and refused to receive the fees tendered, basing such refusal and rejection upon the ground that the lands filed for were embraced in the then pending selection. On appeal, the action of the local land office was affirmed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and by the Secretary of the Interior, respectively. The selection was subsequently approved and a patent for the lands was issued by the governor of Minnesota, all rights under which became vested in the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the plaintiff in error. That company then commenced this action against Wass and his wife in a court of the state of Minnesota to recover possession of the land and damages for the detention. In the answer, among other things, affirmative relief was prayed against the railway company for the conveyance of the legal title to Wass. A demurrer to the answer was overruled upon the authority of the decision in Sjoli v. Dreschel, 199 U. S. 564, 50 L. ed. 311, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154, and a decree was entered in favor of Wass, granting the relief prayed by him. This decree was affirmed by the supreme court of Minnesota upon the authority of the Sjoli Case as well as the decision of the circuit court of appeals in Hoyt v. Weyerhaeuser, 88 C. C. A. 404, 161 Fed. 324. The opinion just announced, reviewing the action of the circuit court of appeals in the Hoyt Case, and reversing the decree entered in that case, conclusively establishes that error was committed by the court below, and therefore requires a reversal. The judgment of the Supreme Court of Minnesota is therefore reversed, and the case is remanded to that court for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

428] *Mr. Justice Harlan, with whom concurred Mr. Justice Day, dissenting:

This action was instituted in the district court of Todd county, Minnesota, by the Northern Pacific Railway Company, a Wisconsin corporation, to recover the possession and damages for the detention of the southeast quarter of section 13, township 129, north of range 32 west, situated in the above county.

The answer of the defendant Wass states certain facts both by way of defense and as the basis for an affirmative decree against the railway company, declaring that the legal title to the land is held in trust for his use and benefit, and should be conveyed to him. The company demurred to the answer as not stating facts sufficient to constitute either a defense or a counterclaim. The demurrer was overruled, and the case was determined on the facts stated in the answer, as well as on those set forth in a special finding. By the decree it was adjudged that the legal title was held in trust for the defendant, and the plaintiff was ordered to convey the title to him by sufficient deed. On the authority of Sjoli v. Dreschel, 199 U. S. 564, 50 L. ed. 311, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154, and Hoyt v. Weyerhaeuser, 88 C. C. A. 404, 161 Fed. 324, the supreme court of Minnesota affirmed the decree. The case is here for review.

Upon the record before us the following facts must be taken as beyond question:

1. The lands in question were surveyed public lands of the United States within the 20 miles indemnity limits of what are known as the Northern Pacific Railroad land grants made by Congress to the territory of Minnesota by the act of March 3d, 1857 (11 Stat. at L. 195, chap. 99), and by the act of March 3d, 1865 (13 Stat. at L. 526, chap. 105), granting lands to that state, which last act was amended March 3d, 1871 (16 Stat. at L. 588, chap. 144).

*2. By an act of March 1st, 1877,[429 the legislature of Minnesota transferred all its rights in these lands to the Western Railway Company of that state. That company subsequently assigned its rights to the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway Company, the predecessor in interest of the present plaintiff.

3. On the 31st day of December, 1877, the Western Railway Company filed in the proper land office a list purporting to contain a selection of lands under the indemnity provisions of the grants in question; not, however, designating any particular lands within the primary or place limits of either grant as the basis for the selected tracts. But the lands here in question were among those embraced in the above general list of selections.

4. Nearly twelve years after the filing of the list of selections by the Western Railway Company, namely, on December 4th, 1889, the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway Company filed in the local land office an amended list of the selection of indemnity lands, which list included the land now in dispute. And on February 12th, 1892, it filed a rearranged list of indemnity selections, and, then, for the first time, indicated the tract alleged to have been lost in primary limits, which loss it requested to be supplied by a particular tract in indemnity limits. Up to that time the Secretary of the Interior had not acted on that request nor approved any of the selection lists filed.

5. The fact may be here stated, though it is not very important, that the lands above described are also within the indemnity limits of the Northern Pacific grant made by the act of July 2d, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 365, chap. 217), and were included in a withdrawal of indemnity lands made by the Secretary of the Interior on December 26th, 1871. But that withdrawal was revoked by the General Land Office, September 6th, 1887, and no final or approved selection of any of the described tracts was ever made under the provisions of the Northern Pacific grant.

430] *6. In April, 1899,—the Secretary of the Interior not having, even at that date, approved either the original, amended, or rearranged selections of indemnity lands, as shown on the company's lists theretofore filed,—Wass "entered upon and took possession of and made a settlement" on the lands in question, and thereafter maintained such possession and use of the lands as a homestead, residing continuously upon, cultivating, and using them as his only home. He also put improvements on them of the reasonable value of $1,200. All this he did with the bona fide intention of entering the lands under the homestead laws. The lands in their improved state exceeded $2,500 in value. Wass was qualified in all respects to become a claimant under the homestead laws of the United States. No question was made at the hearing below either as to his qualifications as a homestead claimant, or as to the sufficiency of his residence on the land, or of the value of his improvements.

7. On the 4th of December, 1899, Wass filed with the register and receiver of the local land office an application—which was in due and legal form, and was accompanied by proofs of his qualifications and acts as a homestead claimant—to enter the said lands under the homestead laws, and tendered to the receiver the fees and commissions lawfully chargeable upon his application. The register and receiver who received and filed the application rejected it, refusing to take the fees and commissions tendered "upon the sole ground that the lands applied for were embraced in a then pending though unapproved indemnity selection of the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway." This action was approved by the Commissioner of the General Land Office on the 10th of July, 1903, on the ground that defendant's application "conflicted with the prior indemnity selection of the land made by the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway Company." The selection here referred to was manifestly 431]the amended or *the rearranged list of indemnity selections filed by that company on December 4th, 1889. Subsequently, on January 9th, 1904, the Secretary of the Interior affirmed the decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, "on the ground that the indemnity selections of said lands by the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway and its predecessor, the Western Railway Company of Minnesota, were valid and of record prior to the date of the alleged settlement and filing of homestead application" by the defendant Wass. But he made no reference to the entry and settlement of Wass on the land under the homestead laws, prior to the approval of the list of selections by the Secretary of the Interior.

8. On the 16th of February, 1905,—nearly six years after Wass entered and settled upon and improved these lands as his home, —the Secretary of the Interior, for the first time, approved the list of indemnity selections made by the St. Paul & Northern Pacific Railway Company.

9. On the 15th of March, 1905, a patent was issued by the United States to the state for the use and benefit of the railway company, the lands being described as indemnity lands under the above grants of March 3d, 1857, March 3d, 1865, and March 3d, 1871.

These undisputed facts present a question of law which the court may rightfully consider and determine. The doctrine is settled that facts, authoritatively found by the Land Department in the course of its administration of the public domain, cannot be collaterally questioned. But yet when the legal title to lands has passed from the United States to one party, when in equity and good conscience, according to the facts conceded, found, or established, and when, as a matter of law, in view of those facts, it ought to have gone to another, the former may be adjudged to hold the title in trust for the latter, true owner, and compelled to convey to him. Stark v. Starr, 6 Wall. 402, 419, 18 L. ed. 925, 930; Johnson v. Towsley, 13 Wall. 72, 20 L. ed. 485; Moore v. Robbins, 96 *U. S. 530, 24 L. ed. 848; Rector v.[432 Gibbon, 111 U. S. 291, 28 L. ed. 432, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 605; Bernier v. Bernier, 147 U. S. 242, 247, 37 L. ed. 152, 154, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 244; Re Emblen, 161 U. S. 52, 40 L. ed. 613, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 487; Hedrick v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 167 U. S. 673, 42 L. ed. 320, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 922.

The contention is that, under the patent issued by the United States to the state for the use and benefit of the railway company, all the original rights of the state passed to the Northern Pacific Railway Company; whereas, the defendant claims that the land officers and the Secretary of the Interior illegally interfered with his purpose to perfect his lawful claim originating under the homestead laws of the United States, the right to do which, he insists, belonged to him under the provisions of § 2289 and other sections of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1388), as amended by the acts of Congress.

Upon the undisputed facts, we hold that Wass's entry and settlement upon these lands, and his application for them, with the bona fide intention to complete his title under the homestead laws, all occurring before the Secretary's approval of the company's list, gave him an interest and right in the particular lands in question which could not be impaired or defeated by the subsequent approval of the Secretary of the Interior of the list of selected lands filed by the beneficiary of the land grant, although such list was filed prior to Wass's entry, settlement, and application. The pendency of the list in the Land Office was not decisive, for the reason that it had not been approved by the Secretary at the time Wass's claim was made and attached to the lands. The lands in question, being within indemnity limits, were open to entry, settlement, and acquisition by qualified claimants under the homestead laws, after and notwithstanding the mere filing of the list of selected lands; and the rights acquired by the homesteader in the manner stated were not impaired or overridden by the Secretary's subsequent approval of such list.

For the reasons stated in the dissenting 433]opinion in *Weyerhaeuser v. Hoyt, just decided [219 U. S. 380, ante, 258, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 300], the judgment should be affirmed. We dissent from the opinion and judgment of the majority.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY and Oregon & California Railroad Company, Appts.,

v.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 433–452.)

Interstate Commerce Commission — powers — restoring old rates when new rates are reasonable.

1. An order of the Interstate Commerce Commission setting aside new rates on lumber from Willamette valley points to San Francisco and bay points, and restoring substantially the old rates, is void as beyond its powers, where, from the record and the opinion of the Commission, and from the express exclusion of Portland from the benefit of the reduced rate, and the reasons assigned for such exclusion, it is clear that the Commission was not exercising its authority to condemn unjust and unreasonable rates and fix reasonable ones, but was acting upon the assumption that it had the right to protect the lumber interests from the consequences of a change in rates, even if the change was from a rate which had been fixed unreasonably low, for the purpose of encouraging the industry, to a higher rate which is not in itself unjust or unreasonable.

[Matters as to Interstate Commerce Commission, see Interstate Commerce Commission, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — moot case.

2. The lapse of more than two years since an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission setting aside new rates and restoring old ones on the theory of a supposed equitable estoppel became effective does not require that an appeal from a decree of a Federal circuit court, refusing to enjoin the enforcement of such order, be dismissed as presenting a moot controversy,—especially in view of the possible liability for reparation to which the carriers may be subjected if the legality of the order is not determined, and the influence and effect which the existence of the rate fixed for two years, if legal, will have upon the exercise by the carriers of their authority to fix just and reasonable rates in the future.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. i, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 527.]

Argued December 13, 1910. Decided February 20, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of California to review a decree refusing to enjoin the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, setting aside new rates and restoring the old ones. Reversed and remanded for the entry of a decree avoiding the order and granting the relief prayed for.

See same case below, 177 Fed. 963.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Maxwell Evarts argued the cause, and, with Mr. F. C. Dillard, filed a brief for appellants.

Messrs. Wade H. Ellis and Luther M. Walter argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee:

There being no order of the Commission now in force, and nothing upon which the judgment of this court could operate, this appeal presents merely a moot question, and should be dismissed.

Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651, 40 L. ed. 293, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; California v. San Pablo & T. R. Co. 149 U. S. 308, 37 L. ed. 747, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; San Mateo County v. Southern P. R. Co. 116 U. S. 138, 29 L. ed. 589, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 317; Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S. 547, 33 L. ed. 1016, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 620; Flour Inspectors v. Glover, 160 U. S. 170, 40 L. ed. 382, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321; Pennsylvania v. Wheeling & B. Bridge Co. 18 How. 421, 15 L. ed. 435; Dinsmore v. Southern Exp. Co. 183 U. S. 115, 46 L. ed. 111, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Jones v. Montague, 194 U. S. 147, 48 L. ed. 913, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611; Richardson v. McChesney, 218 U. S. 487, 54 L. ed. 1121, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43.

No expressions in the opinion of the Commission can be used to defeat its order if the order is otherwise lawful.

Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 556, 557, 50 L. ed. 585, 594, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330.

It must be remembered that the Interstate Commerce Commission is not a court. It is not governed by technical rules of law with respect to the admission of evidence.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 44, 48 L. ed. 860, 869, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563.

The function of rate-making is legislative in character. When a rate is fixed by the Commission it becomes, as Mr. Justice Miller said in Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 134 U. S. 418, 33 L. ed. 970, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 209, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 702, "the law of the land" with the same force and efficacy as if the very figures in the Commission's order were written into the statute.

The chief function of the court, therefore, is to consider not the method by which the result was reached, but whether or not the rate prescribed is so low as to contravene the constitutional provisions for the protection of property.

San Diego Land & Town Co. v. National City, 174 U. S. 739, 43 L. ed. 1154, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 804; Knoxville v. Knoxville Water Co. 212 U. S. 1, 53 L. ed. 371, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Prentis v. Atlantic Coast Line Co. 211 U. S. 210, 53 L. ed. 150, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Willcox v. Consolidated Gas Co. 212 U. S. 19, 53 L. ed. 382, 29 Sup Ct. Rep. 192, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1034.

The Commission had a right, in determining the reasonableness of rates involved, to consider the effect of the advance by the railroads from $3.10 to $5 per ton upon the transportation of lumber.

Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Commission, 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. ed. 933, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 398.

In determining what was a reasonable rate, the Commission was right in considering, as an item of evidence, the fact that the railroads had voluntarily established and long maintained a rate of $3.10 for the service.

Frye & Bruhn v. Northern P. R. Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 507; Holmes v. Southern R. Co. 8 Inters. Com. Rep. 561, 568; Covington Stock Yards v. Keith, 139 U. S. 128, 35 L. ed. 73, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 469; Interstate Com. Commission v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 186 U. S. 320, 40 L. ed. 1182, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 824.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

Whether the court below was right in refusing to enjoin, at the suit of the railway companies who are appellants, the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is the general subject for consideration on this record.

When that which is superfluous is put out of view, it will come to pass that every substantial controversy which the case presents will be disposed of by determining what was the character of the order made by the Commission; that is to say, what was the power which that body exerted in making the order in question. We state at once the pertinent facts.

The Willamette valley, about 150 miles long, lies in the western part of the state of Oregon, south of the Columbia river, and through it there flows in a northerly direction the Willamette river, which empties into the Columbia river. Portland is on the Willamette river, at or near where that river empties into the Columbia river. From *Cornwallis, on the Willamette river, [438 a point about 97 miles south of Portland, that is, about that distance from where the Willamette empties into the Columbia, the Willamette is navigable, and there is navigation from Portland to the sea by means of the Willamette and the Columbia rivers. The rails of the Oregon & California Railroad from Portland pass through the Willamette valley, paralleling the Willamette river at various distances, and extend to the Oregon and California state line, where that road connects with the Southern Pacific Company. The latter has for a number of years operated the Oregon & California as part of its system.

In November, 1907, a complaint was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission on behalf of the Western Oregon Lumber Manufacturers' Association and others, concerning a rate of $5 per ton, in car-load lots, on "green common rough fir lath and lumber and forest products" from Willamette valley points to San Francisco and bay points, fixed in a tariff filed by the Southern Pacific Company with the Commission, and which became operative in April, 1907. It was charged that the rate complained of was unreasonable in and of itself and discriminatory. It was averred that from about 1898 there had existed a rate of $3.10 for carrying the same character of lumber between the points named; that, upon the faith of this rate, and the belief that it would not be changed, large amounts of capital had been invested in lumber mills in the Willamette valley; that the people in that valley were dependent upon the lumber industry, and that such industry would be destroyed and the population be detrimentally affected if the new rate of $5 per ton was continued to be charged. It was alleged that the $3.10 rate was reasonable in and of itself, and that the rate had been increased without just cause, upon the theory that the lumber interest in the Willamette valley was prosperous, and that hence the traffic could 439]stand the increase. The *railroad companies answered, setting up the reasonableness of the $5 rate. They in effect averred that the $3.10 rate, which had previously prevailed, was unreasonably low, and that it had been fixed solely for the purpose of enabling lumber from the Willamette valley to reach a market in San Francisco and bay points, which it could not have done if a just and reasonable rate had been exacted. This condition, it was alleged, had arisen from the fact that from Portland and other points on the Columbia river and Puget sound there was a highly developed lumber industry accessible to San Francisco and bay points by water at rates so low as to have absolutely excluded the shipping of any lumber from the Willamette valley by rail to such points, unless a very low rate had been fixed by the railroad companies to meet the water-borne lumber traffic, and that there was no market which was commercially available for the Willamette valley lumber other than that of San Francisco and bay points when the $3.10 rate was fixed. The complaint and the answer which we thus state are not in the record, but we have summarized their contents from a statement made concerning the same by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its answer in this suit, filed in the circuit court.

It is certain that for a number of years the $3.10 rate was applied both to shipments of lumber not only from the Willamette valley, but also from Portland. Several years, however, before the going into effect of the $5 rate fixed in the tariff of April, 1907, a tariff fixing that rate had been made applicable to Portland. During the hearing before the Commission the Portland lumber interests intervened and asked that if the $3.10 rate was restored to Willamette valley, it should also be restored to Portland, so as to prevent discrimination against Portland.

After a hearing, the Commission, in June, 1908, filed its report and made an order adverse to the railway companies, Commissioners Knapp and Harlan dissenting. 440]14 *Inters. Com. Rep. 61. It suffices to say that the order entered directed the railroad to cease from charging the $5 rate complained of from Willamette valley points, and fixed as a proper rate from certain points in the valley the sum of $3.40 a ton, and from the remaining points in the valley the sum of $3.65. Although some of the points embraced by the order were within a few miles of Portland, that city was not given the benefit of the reduction, and therefore remained subject to the $5 rate.

The railroad companies, refusing to yield obedience to the order, commenced this suit in equity in the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of California to have the order set aside and to enjoin its enforcement. After a demurrer was sustained, an amended bill was filed. By this bill it was averred that the rate of $5, fixed by the tariff which the Commission had set aside, was a just and reasonable rate per se, and that the rate fixed by the Commission was so unreasonably low as to be unjust and unreasonable. This was alleged to be the case not only in view of the great increase in the cost of the operation of the road since the time when the $3.10 rate was put in force, but also because of the normally excessive cost of maintenance and operation resulting from the mountainous country which the road traversed, subjecting to an unusual expense for repairing damage done by floods and freshets, the high grades requiring the application of increased motive power, and permitting even with such power the movement of only unusually short trains, thereby causing a much greater average expense. Referring to the rate of $3.10 which had previously prevailed, the circumstances connected with its establishment were detailed. It was alleged that the rate was unreasonably low when fixed, and was so fixed by the railroad solely with the object of encouraging the lumber industry in the Willamette valley, and to enable it to reach a market,—a result which otherwise could not have been attained. *The,[441 averments on this subject reiterated the statements made in the answer before the Commission. It was alleged that having maintained the unreasonably low rate for the reasons stated, the railroad companies had finally changed the same, and fixed a just and reasonable rate for the services rendered, because of changes in the situation of the lumber interest in the Willamette valley. Those changes, it was said, arose from the opening of markets for lumber from the Willamette valley by means of new railroad routes via Portland as a gateway to the East, by means of which a large percentage of lumber produced in the Willamette valley was moved to other markets. It was alleged that the Commission, in setting aside the increased tariff rate of $5, and fixing substantially the old rate, had exceeded the powers conferred upon it by law, because it did not act in the exercise of the authority conferred upon it to determine whether a rate was just and reasonable in and of itself with regard to the service rendered, but had proceeded upon the assumption that power was conferred upon it to fix an unreasonable rate because of its belief as to the equities of the situation, or upon the basis of principles of estoppel, or upon its conception of public policy and its right to enforce what was deemed best, under the circumstances, for the interest of shippers.

There was a demurrer to the amended bill, and the court certified the case to this court. The certificate was dismissed. 215 U. S. 226, 54 L. ed. 169, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 89. On the receipt of the mandate, the demurrer was withdrawn and a new demurrer, as also an answer to the bill, were filed. In the answer the lumber conditions in the Willamette valley were recited, as also what were alleged to be the circumstances connected with the establishment of the $3.10 rate, and the proceedings had before the Commission in the controversy referred to were detailed. The regularity of the proceedings before the commission was averred, and the legality and finality of the findings and conclusions of that body were asserted. 442]*It was declared that the rates fixed from the points in the Willamette valley, excluding Portland, were just and reasonable in and of themselves. Traversing the allegations of the complaint, it was averred that the Commission found the $5 rate to be unreasonable and unjust, admitted that it found the $3.10 rate to be a low rate, but denied that it found such rate to be unreasonably low, and denied that the $3.40 and $3.65 rates were substantially the same as the $3.10 rate.

The cause was heard upon the amended bill, the answer, the replication of the plaintiffs, and the evidence introduced before the Commission. The circuit court, as we have said, entered a decree dismissing the bill. This was done upon the theory that, as the Commission found that the rate fixed by it gave some remuneration above the cost of operation, and was not therefore confiscatory, there was no power to interfere. This appeal was then taken.

In the argument at bar, the railroad companies do not question that if a complaint is made to the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning the unreasonableness of a rate, that body has the authority to examine the subject, and, if it finds the rate complained of is, in and of itself, unreasonable, having regard to the service rendered, to order the desisting from charging such rate, ad to fix a new and reasonable rate, to be operative for a period of two years. The companies further do not deny that where the Commission exercises such authority, its finding is not subject to be reviewed by the court. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155. In other words, the argument on behalf of the railroads fully concedes that an order of the Commission is not open to attack in the courts so long as that body has kept within the powers conferred by the statute. Making these concessions, the proposition relied upon to secure reversal is that the court below should have set aside the order of the Commission because that order was in excess of the *power con-[443 ferred upon the Commission; and this, it is insisted, is to be determined by substance, and not mere form. In other words, the contention is, that although the order made by the Commission may have been couched in a form which would cause it, superficially considered, to appear to be but the exercise of an authority to correct an unreasonable rate, yet if it plainly results from the record that the order of the Commission was not the exercise of such an authority, but was based upon the assumption by that body of the possession of a power not conferred by law, the mere form given by the Commission to its action does not relieve the courts from the duty of reviewing and correcting an abuse of power. Applying these propositions, the insistence is that, both in form and in substance, the order of the Commission is void, because it manifests that that body did not merely exert the power conferred by law to correct an unjust and unreasonable rate, but that it made the order which is complained of upon the theory that the power was possessed to set aside a just and reasonable rate lawfully fixed by a railroad whenever the Commission deemed that it would be equitable to shippers in a particular district to put in force a reduced rate. That is to say, the contention is that the order entered by the Commission shows on its face that that body assumed that it had power not merely to prevent the charging of unjust and unreasonable rates, but also to regulate and control the general policy of the owners of railroads as to fixing rates, and consequently that there was authority to substitute for a just and reasonable rate one which, in and of itself, in a legal sense, might be unjust and unreasonable, if the Commission was satisfied that it was a wise policy to do so, or because a railroad had so conducted itself as to be estopped in the future from being entitled to receive a just and reasonable compensation for the service rendered. On the other hand, the Commission, in the argument at bar, does not contend that it possessed the indeed 444]*abnormal and extraordinary power which the railroads thus say was exerted in rendering the order complained of,—a power which, if it obtained, would open a vast field for the exercise of discretion, to the destruction of rights of private property in railroads, and would in effect assert public ownership without any of the responsibilities which ownership would imply. While it is not denied on behalf of the Commission that that body may have considered the prior rate prevailing in the Willamette valley, the period during which it had been in force, and the effect upon the business situation in the valley of a change to a higher charge, all these things, it is insisted, were not made the basis of the power exerted, but were simply taken into consideration as some of the elements proper to be considered in the ultimate exertion of the lawful power to forbid an unjust and unreasonable rate and fix a reasonable one.

It is clear, therefore, as we have said at the outset, that the result of the contentions and concessions of the respective parties is to reduce the controversy to a single issue, which is: What was the nature and character of the order made by the Commission? That is, What, in substance, was the power which the Commission exerted in making the order?

Coming to the consideration of that subject, we are of opinion that the court below erred in not restraining the enforcement of the order complained of, because we see no escape from the conclusion that the order was void because it was made in consequence of the assumption by the Commission that it possessed the extreme powers which the railroad companies insist the order plainly manifests. We proceed very briefly to state the reasons which compel us to this conclusion. In the first place, when the complaint which was made to the Commission and the answer of the railroad companies to that complaint are considered, they give rise to the inference that, 445]in substance, *the subject complained of was not the intrinsic unreasonableness of the new rate which the railroad companies substituted for the former rate, but the injury it was thought would be suffered from not continuing the old rate in force,—an injury arising from circumstances extrinsic to the new rate; that is, a loss which would be suffered by substituting the higher rate, even if that rate was, in and of itself, reasonable and just. That such was the view entertained by the complainants when the hearing began before the Commission is too clear to require anything but statement. Thus, during the opening made on behalf of the complainants by their counsel, Mr. Teal, after he had made statements concerning the origin of the $3.10 rate, the following took place:

Commissioner Cockrell: How much was that, $3.10 a ton?

Mr. Teal: $3.10 a ton; yes, 15½ cents a hundred; and I will state that we do not claim that that is not a low rate. It is a low rate. In fact, I may say that it is one of the lowest rates on lumber in the United States, and it is a rate put in, as I state, maintained for the purposes I state, and the railroad company is entitled to full credit for having done it.

Commissioner Prouty: Let me ask you, Mr. Teal, this question. Suppose that rate had never been lower than 25 cents a hundred pounds, which is $5 a ton, would you claim that this Commission to-day ought to reduce that rate?

Mr. Teal: No; I don't think I would.

Commissioner Prouty: That is to say, you do not claim the rate is unreasonable in itself?

Mr. Teal: No; I do not.

Commissioner Prouty: You put your case entirely on the ground that these people represented to your clients and to other mill men in the Willamette valley that they would establish this lower rate for the purpose of building up the industry in that valley, and that the industry cannot *exist there[446 in compctition with other sections unless that rate is maintained in effect?

Mr. Teal: Yes, sir.

Commissioner Prouty: And therefore the railroad is obliged to maintain it in effect?

Mr. Teal: It has been maintained for eight or nine years. You have my position exactly, Mr. Commissioner.

Commissioner Prouty: That simply shows that it has been maintained and industries have grown up; that the railroad company has, during that period, elected to maintain it, and found it profitable, probably?

Mr. Teal: You have stated my position exactly. I am not here complaining about the rates being high or low, because it is a low rate.

Thereafter, as Mr. Teal concluded his opening statement, the following occurred:

Commissioner Prouty: That seems to be your case, Mr. Teal. If they can, there is no reason from your statement why the rates should be reduced, because you say the rate is low enough, unless those men have been induced to build their mills there, and ought to be protected.

Mr. Teal: That is correct. I want you to understand, Mr. Commissioner, that I do not claim the Commission has a right to compel the railroad, under ordinary circumstances, to meet water rates or any other competition.

It is true that subsequently, when counsel for the railroad companies was about to make his opening statement, Mr. Teal, after reiterating "that the $3.10 rate is a low rate," observed: "I do not say it should necessarily pay a $5 rate. That is, I do not want to be understood as saying that this rate of $5, in and of itself, would be reasonable." Answering the query of one of the commissioners as to whether, if the railroads had maintained in effect for the last ten years "this rate of 25 cents a hundred pounds," it would be claimed "that that was so unreasonable that the Commis-[447]sion ought to reduce it." Mr. *Teal answered: "Yes; I would claim that that would not be a reasonable rate to all these points." These remarks, however, can properly only be regarded as a declaration of an unwillingness to concede more than that the $3.10 rate was a low rate, and the attempt to engraft a qualification or limitation upon the prior declarations of counsel cannot be treated as having any efficacy, since no proof whatever bearing upon an issue as to the reasonableness of the $5 rate for the service to be rendered was introduced by the complainants. In fact, no attempt was even made to cross-examine Mr. Miller, the general traffic manager of the defendant, who testified on that subject. That the complainants intended to confine their evidence to the issue of whether the $3.10 rate should be maintained in order to enable the lumber mills to continue to prosper is evidenced by the following:

Commissioner Prouty: . . . Mr. Teal, there does not seem to be much dispute about the questions in this case. The mills have a rate to the South, and one question is to what extent they are dependent upon that rate for their continued existence. They have a rate to the East. For what reason is not that rate as valuable to them as it is to Portland and other mills, and to what extent is it necessary that this rate should be maintained to San Francisco in order to fairly continue the prosperity of these establishments?

Mr. Teal: That is where I intend to confine my testimony.

The order of the Commission, as we have said, applied the rate which it fixed substantially to the very doors of Portland, but did not make the reduction applicable to that city. While we shall have occasion in a moment to refer to this aspect of the order as conclusively showing on its face that the power exerted in making it was not the power to condemn an unreasonable and fix a reasonable rate, an excerpt from the examination by Mr. Cotton for *the railroad companies and Mr. Abel[448 for the intervenérs, of two witnesses,—J. Poulsen for the Portland interests and Dixon for the Willamette valley interests,—will make perfectly clear how really immaterial the question of the reasonableness of the $5 rate was considered to be.

On cross-examination of Mr. Poulsen the following transpired:

Mr. Cotton: In saying that you think Portland ought to have a lower rate, do you mean they should have a lower rate than a $3.10 rate?

Mr. Poulsen: I mean they should have a lower rate than the inland people, on account of having water competition.

Mr. Cotton: But you do not express your opinion about the reasonableness of the rate?

Mr. Poulsen: No, sir.

Mr. Abel: He was not asked that.

Mr. Cotton: That is what I understood, but I just wanted to make it clear.

Mr. Poulsen: No.

On the examination of Mr. Dixon the following ensued:

Mr. Cotton: It would follow, as a matter of fact, that if the $3.10 rate, or any lower rate than the barge rate, was established, that it ought to be extended all the way up to Portland; would it not?

Mr. Dixon: Personally I have no objection to that; but I do not see that it would necessarily follow.

Mr. Cotton: I am not considering your standpoint. I merely want your best opinion with reference to the industry in western Oregon.

Mr. Dixon: I think, Mr. Cotton, that the arrangement in effect prior to April 18th was, from the standpoint of the lumber shippers, a fair arrangement.

Commissioner Prouty: How can you justify leaving Portland out of the San Francisco rate and taking you into the Eastern rate?

Mr. Dixon: The Portland mills have so much the advantage *of us in almost[449 every other branch of the business that I do not see how it is unfair to them to give us what might appear to be a slight advantage in one particular. In other words, they have a better grade of logs, they have a better market and more markets, they have a place to dispose of their refuse, and, what counts for more than anything else, and is absolutely necessary to the successful conduct of the lumber business, they can get rid of their output, while we cannot, up to date.

Although we find the record replete with statements made during the course of the hearing by counsel for both parties, and certainly by one or more of the commissioners who were present at the hearing, which we think leave no doubt as to the nature and character of the power exerted, we do not pursue the subject further, since we are of opinion that the face of the opinion and the order so additionally serve to make manifest the situation as to render it unnecessary to do more than briefly advert to those subjects. While it is true that the opinion of the Commission may contain some sentences which, when segregated from their context, may give some support to the contention that the order was based upon a consideration merely of the intrinsic unreasonableness of the rate which was condemned, we think when the opinion is considered as a whole, in the light of the condition of the record to which we have referred, it clearly results that it was based upon the belief by the Commission that it had the right, under the law, to protect the lumber interests of the Willamette valley from the consequences which it was deemed would arise from a change of the rate, even if that change was from an unreasonably low rate, which had prevailed for some time, to a just and reasonable charge for the service rendered for the future. Manifestly, this was deemed by the Commission to be the power which was being exerted, since Mr. Commissioner Harlan, joined by the Chairman of the Commission, dissented on the ground that 450]the order *was an exertion of a power not possessed, to give effect to a supposed equitable estoppel, and no language was inserted in the opinion to indicate to the contrary. The obvious impression as to the nature and character of the power exerted, given by the very face of the opinion of the Commission, is shown by the syllabi to the official report of the opinion, which we copy in the margin.†

Finally, the express exclusion of Portland from the benefit of the reduced rate, and the reasons given for the exclusion, indubitably establish the character of the power exerted so as to exclude the possibility of holding that it was merely the exercise of the right to correct an unjust and unreasonable rate. We say this because, if the assumption be indulged in that the order was but the manifestation of the authority to correct an unreasonable rate, the traffic of Portland, in the absence of some lawful reason for excluding it, would be discriminated against by the order excluding Portland from the benefit of the reduced rate. We cannot, therefore, assume that the order was legal because it rests upon the power to correct an unreasonable rate and to substitute a reasonable rate, since to indulge in that assumption would at once beget the inevitable inference that the order was repugnant to the statute because of its discriminatory *character. And the rea-[451 sons given for the exclusion of Portland from the benefit of the reduction which the order made likewise leave no room for the conclusion that the reduction was based merely upon the finding that the tariff rate which was reduced was, considering the service rendered, in and of itself unreasonable. The reasons for not applying the reduced rate to Portland were thus explained in the report of the Commission:

"The considerations which induce us to apply this lower rate to mills in the Willamette valley do not obtain in case of Portland. These manufacturers have the benefit of the water rate, and are not, therefore, dependent at all upon the defendants for reaching the San Francisco market. The low rate was only applied to Portland for a comparatively short time, and has not been in force there for the last four years. It is of no special importance to the manufacturer at that point, and no injustice is done by withdrawing it. The distance from Portland is considerably greater than the average distance from Williamette valley mills, and, on the whole, we think the defendants should be left to their option in meeting or declining to meet water rates at Portland. The claim of the interveners is therefore denied."

Treating the order as having been based

†1. Where a rate has been established and maintained for a considerable period, for the purpose of developing a particular industry, and with full knowledge that the industry could not be developed without it, and where, under the influence of such rate, large amounts of money have been invested in property the value of which must be seriously impaired by an advance of the rate, that fact is an important consideration in passing upon the reasonableness of such advance.

2. The Southern Pacific Company established a rate of $3.10 per ton upon rough green fir lumber and lath from points in the Willamette valley to San Francisco for the upon the assumed possession of the extraordinary power which it is insisted was exercised in making the order, the force of the reasoning thus advanced to sustain the order cannot be successfully gainsaid. But upon the theory that the order was made merely as the result of the exercise of the statutory power to prevent the charging of an unreasonable and unjust rate, having regard to the service rendered, the inconsequence of the reasoning stated becomes at once patent. This must be the case; because Portland had been deprived by the railroads of a just and reasonable rate for a longer time than the Willamette valley points certainly afforded no ground for concluding that Port-452]land was not *entitled to relief, and it is equally certain that the fact that there was competition by water from Portland can in no way justify the permitting the railroads to continue to charge against traffic from Portland a high and unreasonable rate. Indeed, if the order be assumed to have been made merely as the result of the power to correct an unjust and unreasonable rate, then the reasoning by which the order, in so far as it dealt with Portland was concerned, was sustained, comes to this: that the greater the wrong, the lesser the right to redress; and the greater the reason for the low and competitive rate, the stronger the reason for refusing to fix such a rate.

The considerations just stated dispose of the entire controversy except in one particular. It is claimed at bar that the questions arising for decision are moot, since in consequence of the lapse of more than two years since the order of Commission became effective, by operation, of law the order of the Commission has spent its force, and therefore the question for decision is moot. The contention is disposed of by Southern Pacific Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission (this day decided) 219 U. S. 498, post, 310, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279. In addition to the considerations expressed in that case, it is to be observed that clearly the suggestion is without merit, in view of the possible liability for reparation to which the railroads might be subjected if the legality of the order were not determined; and the influence and effect which the exsistence of the rate fixed for two years, if it were legal, would have upon the exercise by the railroads of their authority to fix just and reasonable rates in the future, clearly causes the case to involve not merely a moot controversy.

The decree of the Circuit Court is reversed, and the case remanded to that court, with directions to enter a decree declaring the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission to be void, and otherwise granting the relief prayed in the bill.

---

*CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND, & PA-[453
CIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
STATE OF ARKANSAS.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 453-467.)

Commerce — state regulation — full train crew.

1. Prescribing a minimum of three brakemen for freight trains of more than twenty-five cars, operated in the state, as is done by Ark. Laws 1907, No. 116, does not amount to an unconstitutional regulation of interstate commerce when applied to a foreign railway company engaged in such commerce.

[For other cases, see Commerce, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — requiring full train crew.

2. The exclusion of railroads less than 50 miles in length from the operation of Ark. Laws 1907, No. 116, prescribing a minimum of three brakemen for freight trains of more than twenty-five cars, does not deny purpose of developing the lumber industry in that section, and maintained the rate in effect, with a brief interval, for six years: and on the strength of this rate that industry attained considerable proportions. In April, 1907, this rate was advanced to $5 per ton: Held, That the advance was unreasonable, and that the rate ought not for the future to exceed $3.40 per ton.

---

NOTE.—On state regulation of interstate or foreign commerce—see notes to Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Com. 13 L.R.A. 107; McCanna & F. Co. v. Citizens' Trust & Surety Co. 24 C. C. A. 13, and Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158.

On state regulation between railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce and their employees, see notes to State v. Northern P. R. Co. 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 134, and People v. Erie R. Co. 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 240.

As to the validity of class legislation—see notes to State v. Goodwill, 6 L.R.A. 621, and State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436, and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

to other railroads the equal protection of the laws.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 266–268, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — requiring full train crew.

3. A railway company is not deprived of its property without due process of law by Ark. Laws 1907, No. 116, penalizing the operation of freight trains of more than twenty-five cars with less than three brakemen, regardless of any equipment with automatic couplers and air brakes.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 516, 517, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 50.]

Argued November 11, 1910. Decided February 20, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Arkansas to review a judgment which affirmed judgments of the Pulaski Circuit Court of that state, penalizing the operation of a freight train with less than three brakemen. Affirmed.

See same case below, 86 Ark. 412, 111 S. W. 456.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Thomas S. Buzbee argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Edward B. Peirce and Erasmus C. Lindley, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The full-crew act of Arkansas is unconstitutional because it undertakes to regulate interstate commerce.

Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 102, 23 L. ed. 820; Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 487, 24 L. ed. 547; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Wharton, 207 U. S. 328, 52 L. ed. 230, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 40 L. ed. 940, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 363, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158; Interstate Commerce Commission Reports, 1905, p. 78; Sinnot v. Davenport, 22 How. 227, 16 L. ed. 243; Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 274, 23 L. ed. 549; Inman S. S. Co. v. Tinker, 94 U. S. 238, 24 L. ed. 118; Pound v. Turck, 95 U. S. 463, 24 L. ed. 526; Wisconsin v. Duluth, 96 U. S. 387, 24 L. ed. 671; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Stoutenburgh v. Hennick, 129 U. S. 148, 32 L. ed. 639, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 256; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. 167 U. S. 633, 42 L. ed. 306, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 986; Asbell v. Kansas, 209 U. S. 251, 52 L. ed. 778, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1101; State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 136 Wis. 407, 19 L.R.A.(N.S.) 326, 117 N. W. 686; State v. Missouri P. R. Co. 213 Mo. 658, 111 S. W. 500.

The full-crew act as applied to interstate commerce is arbitrary, unreasonable, and contrary to the commerce and due process clauses of the Constitution of the United States.

St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Taylor, 210 U. S. 281, 52 L. ed. 1061, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 616; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayes, 201 U. S. 321, 50 L. ed. 772, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491; McNeill v. Southern R. Co. 202 U. S. 543, 50 L. ed. 1142, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 722.

The full-crew act is repugnant to the equal protection clause of the Constitution.

Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Mr. Lawrence Maxwell also argued the cause for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Hal L. Norwood, Attorney General of Arkansas, argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The "full-crew act" of Arkansas is in no just sense a regulation of interstate commerce, but is purely a police regulation.

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Walling v. Michigan, 116 U. S. 446, 29 L. ed. 691, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 454; Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 485, 24 L. ed. 547; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 99, 23 L. ed. 819; Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, 35 L. ed. 649, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 96, 32 L. ed. 352, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. ed. 238; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. James, 162 U. S. 656, 40 L. ed. 1107, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 934; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Gladson v. Minnesota, 166 U. S. 427, 41 L. ed. 1064, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 627; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. New York, 165 U. S. 628, 41 L. ed. 853, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418;

Erb v. Morasch, 177 U. S. 584, 44 L. ed. 897, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 819; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Ohio, 173 U. S. 286, 43 L. ed. 702, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 465; Henning-ton v. Georgia, 163 U. S. 299, 41 L. ed. 166, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; Peirce v. Van Dusen, 69 L.R.A. 705, 24 C. C. A. 280, 47 U. S. App. 339, 78 Fed. 693; Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 524, 54 L. ed. 868, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Thorpe v. Rutland & B. R. Co. 27 Vt. 140, 62 Am. Dec. 625; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Sinnot v. Davenport, 22 How. 227, 16 L. ed. 243; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 27, 54 L. ed. 366, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 262, 54 L. ed. 472, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Wisconsin v. Duluth, 96 U. S. 387, 24 L. ed. 671; Asbell v. Kansas, 209 U. S. 251, 52 L. ed. 778, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1101; Reid v. Colorado, 187 U. S. 137, 47 L. ed. 108, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 506; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Haber, 169 U. S. 613, 42 L. ed. 878, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 488; Schlemmer v. Buffalo R. & P. R. Co. 205 U. S. 10, 51 L. ed. 685, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407.

The "full-crew act" as applied to interstate commerce is a rightful exercise of the police power inherent in the state; is neither arbitrary, unreasonable, nor contrary to the commerce or due process clauses of the Constitution of the United States.

Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Commission, 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. ed. 933, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 398; 2 Tiedeman, State & Federal Control of Persons & Property, 987; Norwood v. Baker, 172 U. S. 269, 43 L. ed. 443, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 187; Wisconsin, M. & P. R. Co. v. Jacobson, 179 U. S. 287, 45 L. ed. 194, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 115; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 43 L. ed. 858, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Gill, 156 U. S. 649, 39 L. ed. 567, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 484; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 186 U. S. 257, 46 L. ed. 1151, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 900; Dow v. Beidelman, 125 U. S. 680, 31 L. ed. 841, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 56, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1028; Chicago & G. T. R. Co. v. Wellman, 143 U. S. 339, 36 L. ed. 176, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 400; Covington & L. Turnp. Road Co. v. Sandford, 164 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 560, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 198; Freund, Pol. Power, §§ 63, 549, 550; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayes, 201 U. S. 321, 50 L. ed. 772, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491; Cooley, Const. Lim. 831; License Cases, 5 How. 579, 12 L. ed. 290; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 183 U. S. 518, 46 L. ed. 306, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 95; Austin v. Tennessee, 179 U. S. 349, 45 L. ed. 228, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Fuller, 17 Wall. 560, 21 L. ed. 710; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Ohio, 165 U. S. 365, 41 L. ed. 747, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Illinois C. R Co. v. Illinois, 163 U. S. 142, 41 L. ed. 107, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1096; State v. Indiana & I. S. R. Co. 133 Ind. 69, 18 L.R.A. 502, 32 N. E. 817; Cooley v. Port Wardens, 12 How. 299, 13 L. ed. 996; Cushing v. The John Fraser (The James Gray v. The John Fraser) 21 How. 184, 16 L. ed. 106; Pacific Mail S. S. Co. v. Joliffe, 2 Wall. 450, 17 L. ed. 805; Olsen v. Smith, 195 U. S. 332, 49 L. ed. 224, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52; The William Law, 14 Fed. 792.

The "full-crew act" of Arkansas, as construed by the supreme court of Arkansas, is not repugnant to the equal protection clause of the Constitution of the United States.

Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Mazursky, 216 U. S. 122, 54 L. ed. 411, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 378; Hammond Packing Co. v. Arkansas, 212 U. S. 322, 53 L. ed. 530, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 645; Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 L. ed. 451, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232; Kehrer v. Stewart, 197 U. S. 60, 49 L. ed. 663, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403; Pullman Co. v. Adams, 189 U. S. 420, 47 L. ed. 877, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 494; Osborne v. Florida, 164 U. S. 650, 41 L. ed. 586, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Iowa (Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Cutts) 94 U. S. 155, 24 L. ed. 94; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. May, 194 U. S. 267, 48 L. ed. 971, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Peik v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 94 U. S. 164, 24 L. ed. 97; People v. Smith, 108 Mich. 527, 32 L.R.A. 857, 62 Am. St. Rep. 715, 66 N. W. 382; State v. Gerhardt, 145 Ind. 439, 33 L.R.A. 319, 44 N. E. 469; Interstate Consol. Street R. Co. v. Massachusetts, 207 U. S. 88, 52 L. ed. 116, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 26, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 555; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 385, 42 L. ed. 788, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 561, 43 L. ed. 554, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Western Turf Asso. v. Greenberg, 204 U. S. 362, 51 L. ed. 522, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 384; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 71, 30 L. ed. 580, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350;

Jones v. Brim, 165 U. S. 182, 41 L. ed. 678, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 294, 42 L. ed. 1043, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 354, 52 L. ed. 243, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 91, 53 L. ed. 923, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Consolidated Coal Co. v. Illinois, 185 U. S. 203, 46 L. ed. 872, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 616.

Mr. W. L. Terry also argued the cause for defendant in error.

Mr. Justice Harlan delivered the opinion of the court:

Two actions were instituted by the state of Arkansas in one of its courts against the Chicago, Rock Island, & Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of Illinois engaged in railroad business in several states. The company it was agreed, entered Arkansas for purposes of railroad business, complying with all conditions of the laws of that state authorizing foreign railroad corporations to do such business within its limits.

The complaint alleged that the defendant company on a named day, and in violation of the law of Arkansas, operated and ran in that state a freight train of more than twenty-five cars without having equipped such train with as many as three brakemen; and that the railroad over which the train was operated was more than 50 miles in length. The state asked a judgment in each case against the railway company for $500. The company filed in each case both an answer and a general demurrer.

The suits were based on an Arkansas statute (Ark. Laws 1907, No. 116) prescribing the minimum number of employees to be used in the operation of freight trains, and providing a penalty for violating its provisions.

The statute is in these words: "§ 1. No railroad company or officer of court, owning or operating any line or lines of railroad in this state, and engaged in the transportation of freight over its line or lines, shall equip any of its said freight trains with a crew consisting of less than an engineer, a fireman, a conductor, and three brakemen, regardless of any modern equipment of automatic couplers and air brakes, except as hereinafter provided. 458]§ 2. This *act shall not apply to any railroad company or officer of court whose line or lines are less than 50 miles in length, nor to any railroad in this state, regardless of the length of the said lines, where said freight trains so operated shall consist of less than twenty-five cars, it being the purpose of this act to require all railroads in this state whose line or lines are over 50 miles in length, engaged in hauling a freight train consisting of twenty-five cars or more, to equip the same with a crew consisting of not less than an engineer, a fireman, a conductor, and three brakemen; but nothing in this act shall be construed so as to prevent any railroad company or officer of court from adding to or increasing its crew beyond the number set out in this act. § 3. Any railroad company or officer of court violating any of the provisions of this act shall be fined for each offense not less than $100 nor more than $500, and each freight train so illegally run shall constitute a separate offense. Provided, the penalties of this act shall not apply during strikes of men in train service of lines involved." Ark. Laws 1907, No. 116.

The railway company's answer in each case contained six paragraphs. The court sustained the demurrer to paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6 (the defendant excepting), and thereupon, by stipulation, the two actions were consolidated for the purpose of a trial on paragraph 5, which was as follows: "Defendant states that its said train was equipped with automatic couplers and air brakes, so that the cars thereof could be coupled and uncoupled without the necessity of brakemen going between the cars, and could be stopped by the application of the air brakes by the engineer of said train without the intervention or assistance of the conductor or brakeman, as required by the act of Congress and the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, made thereunder; that it had employed on said train a conductor and two brakemen, and that the employment of another brakeman on said train was unnecessary, *because there were no[459 duties connected with the running and operating of said train to be performed by a third brakeman, and said act, in attempting to require the defendant to employ three brakemen on said train, attempted to require the defendant to expend a large amount of money for a useless and unnecessary purpose, and to deprive the defendant of its property without due process of law, and is therefore in violation of and in conflict with § 1 of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States."

The consolidated causes were, by agreement of the parties, tried by the court. The result in each case was a judgment against the railway company for $100. Upon appeal by the company to the supreme court of Arkansas overruled these trial court was affirmed. 86 Ark. 412, 111 S. W. 456.

In the state court the railway company assailed the act in question as being in conflict with the 14th Amendment, as well as of the commerce clause, of the Constitution of the United States. But the supreme court of Arkansas, the action of the objections, holding that the act was not to be taken as inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States. The case is here for review on the question whether the statute is in violation of the Constitution.

In our judgment, these questions are concluded by former decisions, and no extended discussion of them is now required. Yet, an examination of some of the decisions will be proper in order to show the precise grounds on which this court has determined whether state enactments of a particular kind were regulations of interstate commerce or in violation of the 14th Amendment.

A leading case on the general subject is Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 474, 482, 31 L. ed. 508, 510, 513, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564, which involved the validity under the Constitution of the United States of a statute of Alabama making it a misdemeanor for an 460]engineer to *operate, in that state, a train of cars used for transportation of persons or freight without first undergoing an examination before and obtaining a license from a board appointed by the governor. The statute provided that before issuing a license, the board should inquire into the character and habits of the applicant; that no license should be granted if he was found to be of reckless or intemperate habits; that any license granted should be forfeited if, upon notice, the engineer was found to have been intoxicated within six hours before or during the time he was engaged in running a railroad engine; and that the license should be revoked or canceled if the engineer was ascertained from any cause to be unfit or incompetent. That case related to an engineer whose ordinary run was over the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, between Mobile, Alabama, and Corinth, Mississippi. He never handled the engine of any train between points wholly within Alabama. As an employee of the company he also operated an engine drawing a passenger train between St. Louis and Mobile. It was contended that the statute was repugnant to the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States. This court referred to the decision in Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 99, 102, 23 L. ed. 819, 820, which involved the question whether an Indiana statute authorizing a suit by the personal representative of a deceased person whose death was caused by the wrongful act or omission of another could be applied where the death was the result of a collision between steamboats navigating the Ohio river. And, speaking by Mr. Justice Matthews, it said: "Legislation, in a great variety of ways may affect commerce and persons engaged in it without constituting a regulation of it within the meaning of the Constitution. . . . And it may be said generally, that the legislation of a state, not directed against commerce or any of its regulations, but relating to the rights, duties, and liabilities of citizens, and only indirectly and remotely affecting the operations of *commerce, is of obliga-[461 tory force upon citizens within its territorial jurisdiction, whether on land or water, or engaged in commerce, foreign or interstate, or in any other pursuit." The court proceeded: "In conclusion, we find, therefore, first, that the statute of Alabama, the validity of which is under consideration, is not, considered in its own nature, a regulation of interstate commerce, even when applied as in the case under consideration; secondly, that it is properly an act of the legislation within the scope of the admitted power reserved to the state to regulate the relative rights and duties of persons being and acting within its territorial jurisdiction, intended to operate so as to secure for the public, safety of person and property; and, thirdly, that, so far as it affects transactions of commerce among the states, it does so only indirectly, incidentally, and remotely, and not so as to burden or impede them, and, in the particulars in which it touches those transactions at all, it is not in conflict with any express enactment of Congress on the subject, nor contrary to any intention of Congress, to be presumed from its silence."

In Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 96, 101, 32 L. ed. 352, 354, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28, the question was as to the validity, so far as interstate commerce was concerned, of a statute of Alabama, enacted for the protection of the traveling public against accidents caused by color blindness and defective vision on the part of railroad employees, and which provided for an examination before a state board of any person seeking a position that involved the running or management of a railroad train. In that case the railway company operated its lines through several states, and employed as a train conductor one who had not obtained a certificate of his fitness so far as color blindness and visual powers were concerned. After referring to Smith v. Alabama, above cited as holding that the statute of Alabama, involved in that case, was 462]not displaced by any express *enactment of Congress in the exercise of its power over commerce, and that, until so displaced, it remained "as the law governing carriers in the discharge of their obligations, whether engaged in purely internal commerce of the state, or in commerce among the states," this court, speaking by Mr. Justice Field, said: "The same observations may be made with respect to the provisions of the state law for the examination of parties to be employed on railways, with respect to their powers of vision. Such legislation is not directed against commerce, and only affects it incidentally, and therefore cannot be called, within the meaning of the Constitution, a regulation of commerce."

But the case more nearly analogous to the present one is that of New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. New York, 165 U. S. 628, 631–633, 41 L. ed. 853–855, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418, where the court was required to determine the validity, under the Constitution of the United States, of a statute of New York regulating the heating of steam passenger cars, and directing guards and guard posts to be placed on railroad bridges and trestles and the approaches thereto. The statute provided that no steam railroad doing business in New York after a named day should heat its passenger cars on other than mixed trains by any stove or furnace kept inside of the car or suspended therefrom, except that, in case of accident or other emergency, such stove or furnace, with necessary fuel, could be temporarily used; that where any cars had been equipped with apparatus to heat by steam, hot water, or hot air from the locomotive or from a special car, the stove then in use could be retained and used when the car was standing still; and that the statute should not apply to railroads less than 50 miles in length, nor to the use of stoves of a pattern and kind to be approved by the state railroad commissioners for cooking purposes in dining cars. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, a Connecticut corporation, during 463]a certain *period named, ran trains of passenger cars over its route from the city of New York to Hartford, and from Hartford to New York, and on through trains as well as on its road in New York other than on mixed trains, the company heated its cars by stoves and furnaces kept within the cars. An action was brought against the railway company for violation of the above statute, and there was a verdict in favor of the state for the penalties imposed. That judgment was affirmed by the court of appeals of New York. 142 N. Y. 646, 37 N. E. 568.

It was contended in that case that the New York statute was repugnant both to the commerce clause of the Constitution and to the 14th Amendment. In the opinion of this court, the principle announced in Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 211, 6 L. ed. 23, 73, that the mere grant to Congress of the power to regulate commerce did not, of its own force, and without legislation by Congress, impair the authority of the states to establish reasonable regulations for the protection of the health, the lives, or the safety of their people, was reaffirmed, and it was said: "The statute in question had for its object to protect all persons traveling in the state of New York on passenger cars moved by the agency of steam against the perils attending a particular mode of heating such cars. There may be reason to doubt the efficacy of regulations of that kind. But that was a matter for the state to determine. We know from the face of the statute that it has a real, substantial relation to an object as to which the state is competent to legislate; namely, the personal security of those who are passengers on cars used within its limits. Why may not regulations to that end be made applicable, within a state, to the cars of railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce as well as to cars used wholly within such state? Persons traveling on interstate trains are as much entitled, while within the state, to the protection of that state, as those who travel on domestic trains. The *stat-[464 ute in question is not directed against interstate commerce. Nor is it, within the meaning of the Constitution, a regulation of commerce, although it controls, in some degree, the conduct of those engaged in such commerce. So far as it may affect interstate commerce, it is to be regarded as legislation in aid of commerce, and enacted under the power remaining with the state to regulate the relative rights and duties of all persons and corporations within its limits. Until displaced by such national legislation as Congress may rightfully establish under its power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states, the validity of the statute, so far as the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States is concerned, cannot be questioned."

It was also contended that the statute, if enforced according to its terms, would make rapid transportation difficult, if not impossible, and that to compel an interstate train to conform to its provisions would be a wholly unnecessary burden on interstate passengers. After observing that possible inconveniences could not affect the question of the power in each state to make such regulations for the safety of passengers on interstate trains as, in the the judgment of the state, all things considered, were reasonable, appropriate, or necessary, this court said: "Inconvenience of this character cannot be avoided so long as each state has plenary authority within its territorial limits to provide for the safety of the public, according to its own views of necessity and public policy, and so long as Congress deems it wise not to establish regulations on the subject that would displace any inconsistent regulations of the states, covering the same ground." In reference to the contention that the statute denied the equal protection of the laws, as prescribed by the 14th Amendment, the court said: "This contention is based upon that clause of the statute declaring that it shall not 465]apply to railroads less than 50 *miles in length. No doubt the main object of the statute was to provide for the safety of passengers traveling on what are commonly called trunk or through lines, connecting distant or populous parts of the country, and on which the perils incident to traveling are greater than on short, local lines. But, as suggested in argument, a road only 50 miles in length would seldom have a sleeping car attached to its trains; and passengers traveling on roads of that kind do not have the apprehension ordinarily felt by passengers on trains regularly carrying sleeping cars or having many passenger caches, on account of the burning of cars in case of their derailment or in case of collision. In any event, there is no such discrimination against companies having more than 50 miles of road as to justify the contention that there has been a denial to the companies named in the act of the equal protection of the laws. The statute is uniform in its operation upon all railroad companies doing business in the state of the class to which it is made applicable."

The principles announced in the above cases require an affirmance of the judgment of the supreme court of Arkansas. It is not too much to say that the state was under an obligation to establish such regulations as were necessary or reasonable for the safety of all engaged in business or domiciled within its limits Beyond doubt, passengers on interstate carriers while within Arkansas are as fully entitled to the benefits of valid local laws enacted for the public safety as are citizens of the state. Local statutes directed to such an end have their source in the power of the state, never surrendered, of caring for the public safety of all within its jurisdiction; and the validity under the Constitution of the United States of such statutes is not to be questioned in a Federal court unless they are clearly inconsistent with some power granted to the general government, or with some right secured by that instrument, or unless they are purely arbitrary in their *nature. The statute here involved is[466 not in any proper sense a regulation of interstate commerce, nor does it deny the equal protection of the laws. Upon its face, it must be taken as not directed against interstate commerce, but as having been enacted in aid, not in obstruction, of such commerce, and for the protection of those egaged in such commerce. Under the evidence, there is admittedly some room for controversy as to whether the statute is or was necessary; but it cannot be said that it is so unreasonable as to justify the court in adjudging that it is merely an arbitrary exercise of power, and not germane to the objects which evidently the state legislature had in view. It is a means employed by the state to accomplish an object which it is entitled to accomplish, and such means, even if deemed unwise, are not to be condemned or disregarded by the courts, if they have a real relation to that object. And the statute being applicable alike to all belonging to the same class, there is no basis for the contention that there has been a denial of the equal protection of the laws. Undoubtedly, Congress, in its discretion, may take entire charge of the whole subject of the equipment of interstate cars, and establish such regulations as are necessary and proper for the protection of those engaged in interstate commerce. But it has not done so in respect to the number of employees to whom may be committed the actual management of interstate trains of any kind. It has not established any regulations on that subject, and until it does, the statutes of the state, not in their nature arbitrary, and which really relate to the rights and duties of all within the jurisdiction, must control. This principle has been firmly established, and is a most wholesome one under our systems of government, Federal and state. In addition to the cases above cited, Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. ed. 238; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802;

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. James, 162 U. S. 656, 40 L. ed. 1107, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 934; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 467]289; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. *Kansas, 216 U. S. 27, 54 L. ed. 366, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Reid v. Colorado, 187 U. S. 137, 47 L. ed. 108, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 506; and Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Haber, 169 U. S. 613, 42 L. ed. 878, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 488, may be consulted.

Judgment affirmed.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
ERASMUS L. MOTTLEY and Annie E. Mottley, His Wife.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 467–486.)

Carriers — compensation for transportation.

1. A carrier engaged in interstate commerce cannot lawfully charge, collect, or receive anything but money for transportation on its road since the enactment of the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at. L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1149), § 6, prohibiting any carrier from demanding, collecting, or receiving "a greater or less or different compensation" for the transportation of persons or property, or for any service in connection therewith, than that specified in its published schedule of rates.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — Federal regulation — invalidating contract for free transportation.

2. An interstate carrier cannot make a valid contract to issue annual passes for life in consideration of a release of a claim for damages since the enactment of the act of June 29, 1906, § 6, expressly prohibiting any carrier from demanding, collecting, or receiving "a greater or less or different compensation" for the transportation of persons or property, or for any service in connection therewith, than that specified in its published schedule of rates.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — retrospective effect — invalidating contracts for free transportation.

3. An agreement by an interstate carrier to issue annual passes for life in consideration of a release of a claim for damages, though entered into prior to the act of June 29, 1906, was made unenforceable by the prohibition of § 6 of that act, against demanding, collecting, or receiving "a greater or less or different compensation" for the transportation of persons or property, or for any service in connection therewith, than that specified in the carrier's published schedule of rates.

[For other cases, see Statutes, II. v, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — Federal regulation — invalidating existing contracts for free transportation.

4. Congress, in the exercise of its power over commerce, could enact the provisions of the act of June 26, 1906, § 6, which rendered unenforceable a prior contract, valid when made, by which an interstate carrier agreed to issue annual passes for life in consideration of a release of a claim for damages.

[For other cases, see Commerce, III. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — freedom to contract — Federal regulation of interstate carrier — prohibiting free transportation.

5. The constitutional liberty of the citizen to make contracts was not infringed by the enactment by Congress, in the exercise of its power over commerce, of the provisions of the act of June 29, 1906, § 6, which rendered unenforceable a prior contract, valid when made, by which an interstate carrier agreed to issue annual passes for life in consideration of a release of a claim for damages.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 7, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 246.]

Submitted January 9, 1911. Decided February 20, 1911.

NOTE.—As to whether pass issued as part of consideration for contract is within statute prohibiting free transportation of passengers, or discrimination in passenger rates—see notes to State v. Martyn, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 217, and State v. Union P. R. Co. 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 657.

As to what constitutes an unlawful preference or discrimination by a carrier under interstate commerce regulations—see note to Gamble-Robinson Commission Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 94 C. C. A. 230.

On effect of statutory provisions against rebates upon contracts for transportation at less than the regular rate—see note to Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 52 L. ed. U. S. 681.

On retrospective effect of statutes—see Notes to Otœ County v. Baldwin, 28 L. ed. U. S. 331, and Barnitz v. Beverly, 41 L. ed. U. S. 94.

On the power of Congress to regulate commerce—see notes to State ex rel. Corwin v. Indiana & O. Oil, Gas & Min. Co. 6 L.R.A. 579; Bullard v. Northern P. R. Co. 11 L.R.A. 246; Re Wilson, 12 L.R.A. 624; Gibbons v. Ogden, 6 L. ed. U. S. 23; Brown v. Maryland, 6 L. ed. U. S. 678; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 32 L. ed. U. S. 229; Harmon v. Chicago, 37 L. ed. U. S. 216, and Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 38 L. ed. U. S. 1041.

On the constitutionality of statutes restricting contracts and business—see note to State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the Warren Circuit Court, in that state, for the specific performance of an agreement by an interstate carrier to issue life annual passes. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 133 Ky. 652, 118 S. W. 982.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Henry L. Stone submitted the cause for plaintiff in error:

While Congress may not pass an act for the purpose of impairing the obligation of specific contracts, it may, in the due exercise of the powers expressly conferred upon it, incidentally do so.

Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 550, 551, 20 L. ed. 311, 312; Bullard v. Northern P. R. Co. 10 Mont. 168, 11 L.R.A. 246, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 536, 25 Pac. 120; 8 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 997; Newport News & M. Valley Co. v. McDonald Brick Co. 109 Ky. 408, 59 S. W. 332; Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald & M. Constr. Co. 41 Neb. 374, 59 N. W. 862; Southern Wire Co. v. St. Louis Bridge & Tunnel R. Co. 38 Mo. App. 191; Fitzgerald v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 63 Vt. 169, 13 L.R.A. 70, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 633, 22 Atl. 77; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 102.

The power of Congress to regulate commerce is paramount and is unrestrained, except by the limitations upon its authority by the Constitution. This power is "complete in itself, and acknowledges no limitations other than those prescribed by the Constitution."

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 228, 44 L. ed. 142, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Scranton v. Wheeler, 179 U. S. 162, 45 L. ed. 137, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 48.

Many rights, privileges, and exemptions which usually pertain to ownership under a particular state of the law, and many reasonable expectations, cannot be regarded as vested rights in any legal sense.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. pp. 509, 510.

A contract to do a thing, lawful when made, is avoided by subsequent legislation making it unlawful. Every owner of property holds the same subject to such action as the sovereign power of the state may, in the exercise of its legitimate sovereignty, adopt in relation to it.

Bradford v. Jenkins, 41 Miss. 335.

The court cannot make an exception not plainly suggested by or to be implied from the language actually used in the statute. For the court to go beyond that limitation is not to construe, but to legislate.

Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12 Pet. 692, 9 L. ed. 1247; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 594, 4 L. ed. 648; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; Endlich, Interpretation of Statutes, §§ 4, 8; United States v. Dickson, 15 Pet. 141–163, 10 L. ed. 689–698; United States v. Wells-Fargo Exp. Co. 161 Fed. 606; American Exp. Co. v. United States, 212 U. S. 532, 53 L. ed. 640, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 315.

There can be no lawful departure by a carrier subject to the act to regulate commerce, from its published rates for interstate transportation, on file with the Commission, upon any consideration, or in any sense, or to any extent, without subjecting such carrier to the penalties of the act.

Union P. R. Co. v. Goodridge, 149 U. S. 690, 691, 37 L. ed. 902, 903, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 970; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg, 202 U. S. 242, 50 L. ed. 1011, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 628; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 439, 51 L. ed. 558, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1075; Poor v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 469.

Interstate passenger transportation must be paid for in money.

United States v. Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. 163 Fed. 114; United States v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 163 Fed. 111; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. United States, 95 C. C. A. 446, 170 Fed. 250; State v. Martyn, 82 Neb. 225, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 217, 117 N. W. 719, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 659; M'Neill v. Durham & C. R. Co. 132 N. C. 510, 67 L.R.A. 227, 95 Am. St. Rep. 641, 44 S. E. 34.

Mr. Lewis McQuown submitted the cause for defendants in error. Messrs. Clarence U. McElroy and G. D. Milliken were on the brief:

All laws should receive a sensible construction. General terms should be so limited in their application as not to lead to injustice, oppression, or an absurd consequence. It will also, therefore, be presumed that the legislature intended exceptions to its language, which would avoid results of that character. The reason of the law in such cases should prevail over the letter.

United States v. Kirby, 7 Wall. 486, 487, 19 L. ed. 280.

All general terms in the statutes should be limited in their application, so as not to lead to injustice, oppression, or unconstitutional operation, if that be possible. It will be presumed that the exceptions were intended which would avoid results of that character.

Carlisle v. United States, 16 Wall. 153, 21 L. ed. 429; Chew Heong v. United States, 112 U. S. 555, 28 L. ed. 776, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 36 L. ed. 226, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511; Bate Refrigerating Co. v. Sulzberger, 157 U. S. 37, 39 L. ed. 611, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 508.

It is the undoubted duty of the court to ascertain the meaning of the legislature from the words used in the statute and the subject-matter to which it related, and to restrain its operation within narrower limits than its words import, if the court is satisfied that the literal meaning of the language would extend to cases which the legislature never designed to include in it.

Washington Market Co. v. Hoffman, 101 U. S. 116, 25 L. ed. 783.

No law will be construed to act retrospectively unless its language imperatively requires such a construction.

Auffmordt v. Rasin, 102 U. S. 620-623, 26 L. ed. 262, 263.

Even though the act of 1906 was intended to cover a case like this, it is not enforceable, because repugnant to, and violative of, both the letter and the spirit of the Federal Constitution.

Wilkinson v. Leland, 2 Pet. 657, 7 L. ed. 553; Osborn v. Nicholson, 13 Wall. 654, 20 L. ed. 689; Dubuque & S. C. R. Co. v. Richmond, 19 Wall. 584, 22 L. ed. 173.

Mr. Justice Harlan, delivered the opinion of the court:

As the result of a collision in Kentucky of railroad trains belonging to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, which operated various lines extending through that commonwealth as well as into Tennessee and other states, the plaintiffs Mottley and wife received serious personal injuries. The collision, it is alleged, was caused by the gross carelessness and negligence of the agents and servants of the railroad company.

After the collision, the plaintiffs and the company, on the 2d of October, 1871, entered into a written agreement of which the following is a copy:

"The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, in consideration that E. L. Mott-472]ley and wife, Annie E. Mottley, *have this day released said company from all damages or claims for damages for injuries received by them on the 7th day of September, 1871, in consequence of a collision of trains on the railroad of said company at Randolph's station, Jefferson county, Kentucky, hereby agrees to issue free passes on said railroad and branches now existing or to exist, to said E. L. Mottley and Annie E. Mottley, for the remainder of the present year, and thereafter to renew said passes annually during the lives of said Mottley and wife or either of them."

The railroad company adhered strictly to this agreement for many years, but finally refused further to perform it, on the ground that the act of Congress of June 29th, 1906, amendatory of the act regulating commerce, approved February 4th, 1887, made its enforcement illegal. Thereupon Mottley and wife brought suit in the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Kentucky, to enforce the agreement, and obtained a decree in their favor. 150 Fed. 406. But upon a direct appeal to this court, that decree was reversed, and the case was remanded, with directions to dismiss the suit for want of jurisdiction. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 211 U. S. 149, 53 L. ed. 126, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 42; Metcalf v. Watertown, 128 U. S. 586, 32 L. ed. 543, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 173; Tennessee v. Union Planters' Bank, 152 U. S. 454, 459, 38 L. ed. 511, 513, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 654. The grounds upon which the Federal court was held to be without jurisdiction are not important here.

The present action was brought in the circuit court of Warren county, Kentucky. The relief sought was that the defendant company be required specifically to execute the above agreement by issuing passes to the plaintiffs for the year 1909, and for every year thereafter, so long as the plaintiffs should each live, over all its roads in and out of Kentucky.

The railroad company resists any judgment that would compel it further to perform the agreement sued on. It bases its defense mainly on the commerce act of Congress *of June 29th, 1906, which[473 became effective August 28th, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 838, Res. No. 47, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1169). By that statute, Congress, among other things, provided:

"Sec. 1. . . . No common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall, after January first, ninteen hundred and seven, directly or indirectly, issue or give any interstate free ticket, free pass, or free transportation for passengers," except to certain specified persons, the plaintiffs not being within any of the expected classes.

"Sec. 6. . . . No carrier, unless otherwise provided by this act, shall engage or participate in the transportation of passengers or property, as defined in this act, unless the rates, fares, and charges upon which the same are transported by said carrier have been filed and published in accordance with the provisions of this act; nor shall any carrier charge or demand or collect or receive a greater or less or different compensation for such transportation of passengers or property, or for any service in connection therewith, between the points named in such tariffs, than the rates, fares, and charges which are specified in the tariff filed and in effect at the time; nor shall any carrier refund or remit, in any manner, or by any device, any portion of the rates, fares, and charges so specified, nor extend to any shipper or person any privileges or facilities in the transportation of passengers or property, except such as are specified in such tariffs." 24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154; 34 Stat. at L. 584, 586, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 1149, 1153.

The act of June 29th, 1906, regulating commerce and enlarging the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, made its provisions applicable to "any common carrier or carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property . . . by railroad . . . from one state or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, to any other state or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, etc.;" and in this respect it has not 474]*been amended. It also provides that a common carrier violating the clause forbidding it after January 1st, 1907, directly or indirectly to issue or to give any interstate free ticket, free pass, or free transportation for passengers, should pay to the United States a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $2,000. Any person (other than those of the excepted classes) who used any such interstate free ticket, free pass, or free transportation, became subject to a like penalty. Id. 585, § 1.

The state circuit court, giving the relief asked, by its judgment required the railroad company to issue to the plaintiffs and to each of them a pass over its lines and branches for the year 1909, and thereafter to renew such passes annually during their respective lives.

Upon appeal to the court of appeals of Kentucky, that judgment was affirmed. 133 Ky. 652, 118 S. W. 982.

It may be, as suggested, that a refusal to enforce the agreement of 1871 will operate as a great hardship upon the defendants in error. But that consideration cannot control the determination of this controversy. Our duty is to ascertain the intention of Congress in passing the statute upon which the railroad company relies as prohibitive of the further enforcement of the agreement in suit. That intention is to be gathered from the words of the act, interpreted according to their ordinary acceptation, and, when it becomes necessary to do so, in the light of the circumstances as they existed when the statute was passed. Platt v. Union P. R. Co. 99 U. S. 48, 64, 25 L. ed. 424, 429. The court cannot mold a statute simply to meet its views of justice in a particular case. Having, in the mode indicated, ascertained the will of the legislative department, the statute as enacted must be executed, unless found to be inconsistent with the supreme law of the land.

In our consideration of the case it will be assumed—indeed, the parties themselves assume—that the agreement *of 1871 [475 was not, when made, in conflict with the Constitution or laws of the United States. But we must first inquire whether such an agreement, if made after the passage of the original and amendatory commerce acts, would have been valid under those acts. If those acts forbid agreements of that character, we must then inquire whether the one in suit can be now enforced simply because it was valid when made.

The act of February 4th, 1887, regulating commerce, declared it to be an unjust and unlawful discrimination for any carrier subject to the provisions of that act, directly or indirectly, by any special rate, rebate, drawback, or other device, to charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person or persons "a greater or less compensation" for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of passengers or property than was charged, demanded, collected, or received from any other person or persons for doing him or them a like and contemporaneous service in the transportation of a like kind of traffic under substantially similar circumstances and conditions. 24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, § 2, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154. But the act of June 29th, 1906, made a material addition to the words of the act of 1887; for it expressly prohibited any carrier, unless otherwise provided, to demand, collect, or receive "a greater or less or different compensation" for the transportation of persons or property, or for any service in connection therewith, than the rates, fares, and charges specified in the tariff filed and in effect at the time. We cannot suppose that this change was without a distinct purpose on the part of Congress. The words "or different," looking at the context, cannot be regarded as superfluous or meaningless. We must have regard to all the words used by Congress, and, as far as possible, give effect to them. Washington Market v. Hoffman, 101 U. S. 112, 115, 25 L. ed. 782, 783. The history of the acts relating to commerce shows that Congress, when introducing into the act of 1906 the word "differ-476]ent," had in mind the purpose *of curing a defect in the law, and of suppressing evil practices under it by prohibiting the carrier from charging or receiving compensation except as indicated in its published tariff. 11th Ann. Rep. Interstate Com. Com. 141; 19th Id. 78, 15; 40 Cong. Rec. Pt. 7, p. 6608; Id. 6617; Id. 7428, 7434; Rept. of Confer. Com., 40 Cong. Rec. 9522, 42 Cong. Rec. Pt. 2, p. 1746.

In our opinion, after the passage of the commerce act, the railroad company could not lawfully accept from Mottley and wife any compensation "different" in kind from that mentioned in its published schedule of rates. And it cannot be doubted that the rates or charges specified in such schedule were payable only in money. They could not be paid in any other way, without producing the utmost confusion, and defeating the policy established by the acts regulating commerce. The evident purpose of Congress was to establish uniform rates for transportation, to give all the same opportunity to know what the rates were, as well as to have the equal benefit of them. To that end the carrier was required to print, post, and file its schedules and to keep them open to public inspection. No change could be made in the rates embraced by the schedules except upon notice to the Commission and to the public. But an examination of the schedules would be of no avail and would not ordinarily be of any practical value if the published rates could be disregarded in special or particular cases by the acceptance of property of various kinds, and of such value as the parties immediately concerned chose to put upon it, in place of money for the services performed by the carrier.

That money only was receivable for transportation is the basis upon which the Interstate Commerce Commission has proceeded; for, in one of its Conference Rulings (207) issued in 1909, the Commission held that nothing but money could be lawfully received or accepted in payment for transportation, whether of passengers or 477]*property, for any service connected therewith, "it being the opinion of the commission that the prohibition against the charging or collecting a greater or less or different compensation than the established rates or fares in effect at the time precludes the acceptance of service, property, or other payment in lieu of the amount specified in the published schedules." It is now the established rule that a carrier cannot depart to any extent from its published schedule of rates for interstate transportation on file without incurring the penalties of the statute. Union P. R. Co. v. Goodridge, 149 U. S. 690, 691, 37 L. ed. 902, 903, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 970; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 102, 39 L. ed. 910, 912, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chesapeake O. R. Co. 200 U. S. 361, 391, 50 L. ed. 515, 521, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Texas & P. R. Co v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 439, 51 L. ed. 553, 558, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1075. That rule was established in execution of a public policy which, it seems, Congress deliberately adopted as applicable to the interstate transportation of persons or property. The passenger has no right to buy tickets with services, advertising, releases, or property, nor can the railroad company buy services, advertising, releases, or property with transportation. The statute manifestly means that the purchase of a transportation ticket by a passenger, and its sale by the company, shall be consummated only by the former paying cash and by the latter receiving cash of the amount specified in the published tariffs. In the first of the cases last above cited (the Goodridge Case) the court, referring to the practice of allowing rebates, said: "So opposed is the policy of the act to secret rebates of this description that it requires a printed copy of the classification and schedule of rates to be posted conspicuously in each passenger station for the use of the patrons of the road, that everyone may be apprised not only of what the company will exact of him for a particular service, but what it exacts of everyone else for the same service, so that in fixing his own prices he may know precisely with what he has to compete. To hold a defense thus pleaded to be *valid[478 would open the door to the grossest frauds upon the law, and practically enable the railroad company to avail itself of any consideration for a rebate which it considers sufficient, and to agree with the favored customer upon some fabricated claim for damages which it would be difficult, if not impossible, to disprove. For instance, under the defense made by this company, there is nothing to prevent a customer of the road, who has received a personal injury, from making a claim against the road for any amount he chooses, and in consideration thereof, and of shipping all his goods by that road, receiving a rebate for all goods he may ship over the road for an indefinite time in the future. It is almost needless to say that such a contract could not be supported. There is no doubt of the general proposition that the release of an unliquidated claim for damages is a good consideration for a promise, as between the parties, and if no one else were interested in the transaction, that rule might apply here; but the legislature, upon grounds of public policy, and for the protection of third parties, has made certain requirements with regard to equality of rates, which, in their practical application, would be rendered nugatory if this rule were given full effect." That Congress had the constitutional power to adopt such a policy and to prescribe appropriate means to give it effect, we do not doubt.

It is said, however, that, as the contract of Mottley and wife with the railroad company was originally valid, it cannot be supposed that Congress intended by the act of 1906 to annul or prevent its enforcement. But the purpose of Congress was to cut up by the roots every form of discrimination, favoritism, and inequality, except in the cases of certain excepted classes to which Mottley and his wife did not belong, and which exceptions rested upon peculiar grounds. Manifestly, from the face of the commerce act itself, Congress, before taking final action, considered the question as to 479]what exceptions, if any, should *be made in respect of the prohibition of free tickets, free passes, and free transportation. It solved the question when, without making any exceptions of existing contracts, it forbade by broad, explicit words any carrier to charge, demand, collect, or receive a "greater or less or different compensation" for any services in connection with the transportation of passengers or property than was specified in its published schedules of rates. The court cannot add an exception based on equitable grounds when Congress forbore to make such an exception. Yturbide v. United States, 22 How. 290, 293, 16 L. ed. 342, 343. The words of the act, therefore, must be taken to mean that a carrier engaged in interstate commerce cannot charge, collect, or receive for transportation on its road anything but money. In Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 81, 52 L. ed. 681, 694, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428, this court said: "There is no provision excepting special contracts from the operation of the law. One rate is to be charged, and that the one fixed and published in the manner pointed out in the statute, and subject to change in the only way open by the statute. There is no provision for the filing of contracts with shippers, and no method of making them public defined in the statute. If the rates are subject to secret alteration by special agreement, then the statute will fail of its purpose to establish a rate duly published, known to all, and from which neither shipper nor carrier may depart." So, in Adams Exp. Co. v. United States, 212 U. S. 522, 532, 533, 53 L. ed. 635, 640, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 315: "But the power of Congress over interstate transportation embraces all manner of carriage of that character, whether gratuitous or otherwise; and, in the absence of express exceptions, we think it was the intention of Congress to prevent a departure from the published rates and schedules in any manner whatsoever. If this be not so, a wide door is opened to favoritism in the carriage of property in the instances mentioned, free of charge. If it is lawful, in view of the provisions of the interstate commerce act, to *issue[480 franks of the character under consideration in this case, then this right must be founded upon some exception incorporated in the act."

It is further said that the passes contemplated by the parties were not strictly free passes; for, it is argued, the railroad company would receive a valuable consideration for each one issued by it. This view is more plausible than sound, and does not meet the difficulty. Suffice it to say, in this case, that such passes, when issued, would be illegal under the act of Congress, by reason of their not being paid for in money, according to the company's schedule of rates, but in consideration only of the release by Mottley and wife of their claim for damages on account of the collision in question.

We now come to the question whether, assuming that the agreement of 1871 was valid when made, could Congress, by any statute subsequently enacted, make its enforcement by suit impossible. There are certain propositions at the base of this inquiry which we need not discuss at large, because they have become thoroughly established in our constitutional jurisprudence. One is, that the power granted to Congress to regulate commerce among the states and with foreign nations is complete in itself, and is unrestricted except by the limitations upon its authority to be found in the Constitution. Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 229, 44 L. ed. 136, 143, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Scranton v. Wheeler, 179 U. S. 141, 162, 163, 45 L. ed. 126, 137, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 48; Chicago B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Union Bridge Co. v. United States, 204 U. S. 364, 400, 51 L. ed. 523, 539, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 367; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, 202, ante, 167, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164.

In the Addyston Pipe Case, this court said that, under its power to regulate commerce, Congress "may enact such legislation as shall declare void and prohibit the *performance of any contract between in-481]dividuals or corporations *where the natural and direct effect of such a contract will be, when carried out, to directly, and not as a mere incident to other and innocent purposes, regulate to any substantial extent interstate commerce."

In the Scranton Case, where a riparian owner sought compensation from the government because his access to navigability had been materially obstructed by a pier constructed by the government on the submerged grounds in front of his land, this court said: "The riparian owner acquired the right of access to navigability subject to the contingency that such right might become valueless in consequence of the erection under competent authority of structures on the submerged lands in front of his property, for the purpose of improving navigation. When erecting the pier in question, the government had no object in view except, in the interest of the public, to improve navigation. It was not designed arbitrarily or capriciously to destroy rights belonging to any riparian owner. What was done was manifestly necessary to meet the demands of international and interstate commerce."

In the Union Bridge Co. the question was as to the constitutional authority of the government to require the bridge company to make certain changes or alterations in a bridge across a navigable river of the United States, in Pennsylvania, and which bridge the company owned and constantly used. It was admitted that the bridge had been lawfully erected. But ulimately, in view of the necessities of interstate commerce, it had become an unreasonable obstruction to free, open navigation by vessels and boats then in use, and, for that reason alone, the government, by its constituted authorities, proceeding under an act of Congress, ordered the bridge company, at its own cost, to make certain changes and alterations in the structure. This court held that there was no taking of property for public use in the constitutional sense, and that although the bridge, when erected un-482]der the authority of *Pennsylvania, may have been a lawful structure, and although it may not have been an unreasonable obstruction to commerce, as then carried on, "it must be taken, under the cases cited and upon principle, not only that the company, when exerting the power conferred upon it by the state, did so with knowledge of the paramount authority of Congress to regulate commerce among the states, but that it erected the bridge subject to the possibility that Congress might, at some future time, when the public interest demanded, exert its power by appropriate legislation to protect navigation against unreasonable obstructions."

Long before the above cases were decided it was said in Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 550, 551, 20 L. ed. 311, 312, that "as, in a state of civil society, property of a citizen or subject is ownership, subject to the lawful demands of the sovereign, so contracts must be understood as made in reference to the possible exercise of the rightful authority of the government, and no obligation of a contract can extend to the defeat of legitimate government authority."

These principles control the decision of the present question. The agreement between the railroad company and the Mottleys must necessarily be regarded as having been made subject to the possibility that, at some future time, Congress might so exert its whole constitutional power in regulating interstate commerce as to render that agreement unenforceable, or to impair its value. That the exercise of such power may be hampered or restricted to any extent by contracts previously made between individuals or corporations is inconceivable. The framers of the Constitution never intended any such state of things to exist.

It is said that if Congress intended by the commerce act to embrace such a case as this, then the act is repugnant to the Constitution. Does the act infringe upon the constitutional liberty of the citizen to make contracts? Manifestly not. In the Addyston Pipe Case (p. 228), above cited, the court said: "We do not assent to the *correctness of the proposition that[483 the constitutional guaranty of liberty to the individual to enter into private contracts limits the power of Congress, and prevents it from legislating upon the subject of contracts" relating to interstate commerce. Again: "But it has never been, and in our opinion ought not to be, held that the word [liberty] included the right of an individual to enter into private contracts upon all subjects, no matter what their nature, and wholly irrespective (among other things) of the fact that they would, if performed, result in the regulation of interstate commerce, and in the violation of an act of Congress upon that subject. The provision in the Constitution does not, as we believe, exclude Congress from legislating with regard to contracts of the above nature, while in the exercise of its constitutional right to regulate commerce among the states. . . . Anything which directly obstructs and thus regulates that commerce which is carried on among the states, whether it is state legislation or private contracts between individuals or corporations, should be subject to the power of Congress in the regulation of that commerce."

These authorities and principles condemn the proposition that the defendants in error had the constitutional right, pursuant to or because of the agreement of 1871, and during their respective lives, to accept and use free transportation for themselves, as passengers, on an interstate train, after Congress forbade, under penalty, any interstate carrier to demand, collect, or receive compensation for transportation, or any interstate passenger not within the classes excepted by the act, to use transportation tickets, except upon the basis fixed by the carrier's published schedule of rates. After the commerce act came into effect, no contract that was inconsistent with the regulations established by the act of Congress could be enforced in any court. The rule upon this subject is thoroughly established. 484] *It is not determinative of the present question that the commerce act, as now construed, will render the contract of no value for the purposes for which it was made. In Legal Tender Cases, above cited, the court, referring to the 5th Amendment, which forbids the taking of private property for public use without just compensation or due process of law, said: "That provision has always been understood as referring only to a direct appropriation, and not to consequential injuries resulting from the exercise of lawful power. It has never been supposed to have any bearing upon or to inhibit laws that indirectly work harm and loss to individuals. A new tariff, an embargo, a draft, or a war, may inevitably bring upon individuals great losses; may, indeed, render valuable property almost valueless. They may destroy the worth of contracts."

In Fitzgerald v. Grand Trunk R. Co., which was the case of a contract for the transportation of lumber through several states, the supreme court of Vermont said: "Such commerce is solely regulated by Congress, and when parties make contracts to engage in interstate commerce, they are held to do so upon the basis and with the understanding that changes in the law applicable to their contracts may be made. There can, in the nature of things, be no vested right in an existing law which precludes its change or repeal, nor vested right in the omission to legislate upon a particular subject which exempts a contract from the effect of subsequent legislation upon its subject-matter by competent legislative authority." 63 Vt. 169, 173, 13 L.R.A. 70, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 633, 22 Atl. 76.

In Pomeroy on Contracts, § 280 (Specific Performance), after observing that an illegal contract cannot be made the basis of any judicial proceeding, and that no action in law or equity could be maintained upon it, it was said: "This impossibility of enforcement exists, whether the agreement is illegal in its inception, or whether, being valid when *made, the illegalityf[485 has been created by a subsequent statute." Among the cases cited by the author in support of that view was Atkinson v. Ritchie, 10 East, 530, 534, in which the Chief Justice, Lord Ellenborough, delivering the opinion of the court, said: "That no contract can properly be carried into effect, which was originally made contrary to the provisions of law, or which, being made consistently with the rules of law at the time, has become illegal in virtue of some subsequent law, are propositions which admit of no doubt." In Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 102, 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 630, Judge Cooley said: "But the act to regulate commerce is a general law, and contracts are always liable to be more or less affected by general laws, even when in no way referred to. . . . But this incidental effect of the general law is not understood to make it a law imparing the obligation of contracts. It is a necessary effect of any considerable change in the public laws. If the legislature had no power to alter its police laws when contracts would be affected, then the most important and valuable reforms might be precluded by the simple device of entering into contracts for the purpose. No doctrine to that effect would be even plausible, much less sound and tenable." "If one agrees," said Mr. Parsons, "to do a thing which it is lawful for him to do, and it becomes unlawful by an act of the legislature, the act avoids the promise." Parsons, Contr. 6th ed. 675.

We forbear any further citation of authorities. They are numerous and are all one way. They support the view that, as the contract in question would have been illegal if made after the passage of the commerce act, it cannot now be enforced against the railroad company, even though valid when made. If that principle be not sound, the result would be that individuals and corporations could, by contracts between themselves, in anticipation *of[486 legislation, render of no avail the exercise by Congress, to the full extent authorized by the Constitution, of its power to regulate commerce. No power of Congress can be thus restricted. The mischiefs that would result from a different interpretation of the Constitution will be readily perceived.

In our opinion, the relief asked by the plaintiffs must, upon principle and authority, be denied; that the railroad company rightly refused, after the passage of the commerce act, further to comply with the agreement of 1871; and, that the decree requiring performance of its provisions by issuing annual passes was erroneous.

Whether, without enforcing the contract in suit, the defendants in error may, by some form of proceeding against the railroad company, recover or restore the rights they had when the railroad collision occurred, is a question not before us, and we express no opinion on it.

The judgment is reversed, and the cause is remanded for such further proceedings as may be deemed proper, not inconsistent with the views herein expressed.

Reversed.

CHICAGO, INDIANAPOLIS, & LOUISVILLE RAILWAY COMPANY, Appt.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 486–497.)

Carriers — Federal regulation — accepting advertising in payment of transportation.

1. The acceptance of advertising by a carrier in lieu of money in payment of interstate transportation furnished to the publisher, his employees, and the immediate members of his and their families, violates the provisions of the act to regulate commerce of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154), and the acts amendatory thereof, prohibiting the furnishing of interstate transportation for a less or different compensation than that specified in the carrier's published rates.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — exclusiveness of Federal power — fixing compensation — transportation.

2. A state statute authorizing a railway company incorporated under the laws of the state to issue transportation in payment for printing and advertising must give way, so far as interstate transportation is concerned, before the provisions of the act to regulate commerce of February 4, 1887, and the acts amendatory thereof, under which a carrier can accept nothing but money in exchange for interstate transportation.

[For other cases, see Commerce, 65–67, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 74.]

Submitted December 16, 1910. Decided February 20, 1911.

NOTE.—On state regulation of interstate or foreign commerce—see notes to Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Com. 13 L.R.A. 107; McCanna & F. Co. v. Citizens' Trust & Surety Co. 24 C. C. A. 13; and Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158.

On the power of Congress to regulate commerce—see notes to State ex rel. Corwin v. Indiana & O. Oil, Gas & Min. Co. 6 L.R.A. 579; Bullard v. Northern P. R. Co. 11 L.R.A. 246; Re Wilson, 12 L.R.A. 624; Gibbons v. Ogden, 6 L. ed. U. S. 23; Brown v. Maryland, 6 L. ed. U. S. 678; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 32 L. ed. U. S. 229; Harmon v. Chicago, 37 L. ed. U. S. 216; and Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 38 L. ed. U. S. 1041.

Exchange of transportation for advertising, as within statute prohibiting discrimination in rates.

The cases on this question are few, but in each the contract to pay for transportation with advertising has been condemned.

A contract by a railroad company to furnish to the proprietors of a newspaper, as requested, transportation at the statutory rate, under certain limitations and restrictions not required in ordinary tickets, in payment for advertising to be furnished "at agreed rates," which are not specified in the contract, but are to be settled by the parties themselves by another agreement, violates the provision of the Nebraska railway commission act which prohibits common carriers from charging one person a greater or less compensation than another, and forbids charging "other than the rates fixed and established." State v. Union P. R. Co. 87 Neb. 29, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 657, 126 N. W. 859.

It was urged in this case that the statute does not, as does the Hepburn act, use the word "different" in connection with the words "greater or less compensation," but the court said: "The difference between the meaning of a statute which prohibits a 'different' compensation and one which prohibits a charge 'other than the fixed and established rates' is to the writer imperceptible; and the reasoning applicable to one statute seems to apply with equal force to the provisions of the other."

An annual pass issued in consideration of the insertion of a schedule of a railway company in a newspaper for the current year violates a state statute providing that a common carrier shall not, directly or indirectly, by any special rate, rebate, drawback, or other device, charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person a greater or less compensation for the transportation of passengers than it charges, demands, or receives from other persons for similar services. M'Neill v. Durham & C. R. Co. 132 N. C. 510, 67 L.R.A. 227, 95 Am. St. Rep. 641, 43 S. E. 34, second appeal 135 N. C. 682, 67 L.R.A. 230, 47 S. E. 765.

A contract for the exchange of transportation for advertising, under which the publisher was required to pay four times as much for the transportation used by him as the public generally was called upon to pay, was condemned in Hicks Printing Co. v. Wisconsin C. R. Co. 138 Wis. 584, 120 N.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois to review a decree enjoining a carrier from issuing interstate transportation in exchange for advertising. Affirmed.

See same case below, 163 Fed. 114.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. E. C. Field and H. R. Kurrie submitted the cause for appellant:

The statute indicating what shall be stated in the tariffs, that alone need be; and when it is required that the rate and character of the service to be given shall be stated, it does not follow that either the time when, or the manner in which, payment shall be made, need be given.

Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 50 L. ed. 585, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 26 L.R.A. 192, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 854, 11 C. C. A. 417, 27 U. S. App. 380, 63 Fed. 777.

The interpretation of the original act during a term of nineteen years is of great weight in the decision of the question of whether, before 1906, charges were required by law to be paid in cash.

United States v. Alabama G. S. R. Co. 142 U. S. 615, 619, 35 L. ed. 1134, 1136, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 306; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 148 U. S. 562, 37 L. ed. 560, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 724; United States v. Hill, 120 U. S. 169, 30 L. ed. 627, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510.

When we consider the meaning of the word "different," and those with which it is associated, the legislative intent is made manifest.

James River & K. Co. v. Turner, 9 Leigh, 340; Long v. Harrisburg & P. R. Co. 126 Pa. 143, 19 Atl. 39; Winona & St. P. R. Co. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 280, Gil. 208; Bouvier's Law Dict. "Compensation: In Spanish Law: In Chancery Practice: In Civil Law;" Webster's Dict. "Compensate."

It is generally held to be the law that a consignee may set off against a claim for freight charges any damage to his shipment against which the charges are assessed; and if the claim is equal to, or greater than, the freight charges, delivery may be required without the payment of any part of the charges.

Marsh v. Union P. R. Co. 3 McCrary, 236, 9 Fed. 873; Miami Powder Co. v. Port Royal & W. C. R. Co. 47 S. C. 324, 58 Am. St. Rep. 880, 25 S. E. 153; Gleadell v. Thomson, 56 N. Y. 194; Bearse v. Ropes, 1 Sprague, 331, Fed. Cas. No. 1,192; Snow v. Carruth, 1 Sprague, 324, Fed. Cas. No. 13,144; Bancroft v. Peters, 4 Mich. 619; Relyea v. New Haven Rolling Mill Co. 42 Conn. 579; Boggs v. Martin, 13 B. Mon. 239; Page v. Munro, Holmes, 232, Fed. Cas. No. 10,665; Jones v. Hoyt, 25 Conn. 374; Aldrich v. 246$\frac{5}{20}$ Tons of Egg Coal, 117 Fed. 757; The Success, 7 Blatchf. 551, Fed. Cas. No. 13,586; Woodward v. Illinois C. R. Co. 1 Biss. 403, Fed. Cas. No. 18,006; Elliott, Railroads, 2d ed. 1558; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Peru-Van Zandt Implement Co. 73 Kan. 295, 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1058, 117 Am. St. Rep. 468, 85 Pac. 408, 87 Pac. 80, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 790.

It cannot be that, in litigation, a rule of law will be applied compelling the carrier to accept satisfaction of a claim for damages in payment of charges, while before litigation, the parties are denied the capacity by contract to accomplish the same end.

Furthermore, it is held by the court of appeals of this circuit in the case of United States v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 62 C. C. A. 465, 127 Fed. 785, that the law before amendment did not require cash payment.

Transportation may be paid for in money or "other valuable considerations."

Curry v. Kansas & C. P. R. Co. 58 Kan. 6, 48 Pac. 579.

Transportation may lawfully be paid for "in services."

Dempsey v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 146 N. Y. 290, 40 N. E. 867.

Chicago & A. R. Co. v. United States, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 551, 84 C. C. A. 324, 156 Fed. 558, involved the precise question here presented.

The commerce law does not take away the right to make a contract, because such a contract might be used as a device to give a preference. It only takes away the right to make contracts which are intended to, and do, give a preference.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272.

The court will look to the evils existing and the remedies needed, to ascertain the legislative intent.

Church of the Holy Trinity v. United

W. 512, under a statute making it unlawful for a railway company to charge, demand, collect, or receive a greater or less compensation for the transportation of passengers than that specified in its published tariffs. The court, however, seemed to be of the opinion that as there was no positive prohibition against the exchange of transportation for advertising, a contract to that effect might be made if the transportation was of equal value to the advertising furnished. And this view is not necessarily inconsistent with that adopted in the principal case, and in State v. Union P. R. Co. supra, since the Wisconsin statute neither contains the word "different," nor the phrase which the Nebraska court regarded as equivalent.

States, 143 U. S. 457, 36 L. ed. 226, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511.

It is absolutely no answer to say that these contracts may be used as devices. When they are used as mere devices, the court will assess the penalty prescribed by the act.

Dempsey v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. and Chicago & A. R. Co. v. United States, supra.

The intent by legislation to deny capacity to make a fair contract must be not only within the power, but clearly within the terms of the enactment.

Endlich, Interpretation of Statutes, §§ 340, 341; Shaw v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Shaw v. Merchants' Nat. Bank) 101 U. S. 557, 25 L. ed. 892; Douglass v. Lewis, 131 U. S. 75, 33 L. ed. 53, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 634; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. 167 U. S. 479, 42 L. ed. 243, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 896.

Silence is exclusion.

Bates v. Brown, 5 Wall. 717, 18 L. ed. 539.

The insertion of the word "different" does not change the legal effect of § 6.

Endlich, Interpretation of Statutes, § 378; McDonald v. Hovey, 110 U. S. 619, 28 L. ed. 269, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142.

Absurd consequences would follow from a decision that cash alone may be received. In that event, neither checks, drafts, nor other evidences of credit, could be received.

Wells v. Morrison, 91 Ind. 51; Harrison v. Wright, 100 Ind. 519, 50 Am. Rep. 805; United States Health & Acci. Ins. Co. v. Clark, 41 Ind. App. 345, 83 N. E. 760.

Attorney General Wickersham and Mr. Barton Corneau submitted the cause for appellee:

Every word in a statute is to be given its proper significance.

Washington Market Co. v. Hoffman, 101 U. S. 112, 115, 25 L. ed. 782, 783.

When two words or expressions are coupled together, one of which generically includes the other, it is obvious that the more general term is used in a meaning excluding the specific one.

Endlich, Interpretation of Statutes, § 396.

The rule that when statutes are revised, an intent to change their meaning cannot be presumed, has no application, even in the case of a revision, when a word is inserted in a statute which would become superfluous if the rule were applied.

United States v. Bowen, 100 U. S. 508, 25 L. ed. 631.

A similar phrase in a state statute much less explicit in its language than is § 6 of the interstate commerce law forbids the acceptance of compensation different in kind.

State v. Union P. R. Co. 87 Neb. 29, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 657, 126 N. W. 859.

This court should not depart from a literal interpretation of that section.

Union P. R. Co. v. Goodridge, 149 U. S. 680, 690, 37 L. ed. 896, 902, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 970; United States v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 163 Fed. 113; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 391, 50 L. ed. 515, 521, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272.

The reasonableness or unreasonableness of the departure from the tariff rate cannot be the test of the violation of § 6.

Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; American Exp. Co. v. United States, 212 U. S. 522, 53 L. ed. 635, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 315.

Mr. Justice Harlan delivered the opinion of the court:

By the act of Congress of February 19th, 1903, further regulating commerce with foreign nations and among the states, as amended by the act of June 29th, 1906, it was provided that whenever the Interstate Commerce Commission had reasonable ground to believe that a common carrier was engaged in carrying passengers or freight between *given points at less than the [491 published rates on file, or was committing any discrimination forbidden by law, the facts could be set forth in a petition in equity to the proper circuit court of the United States, whose duty it was made summarily to inquire into the circumstances, without formal pleadings and proceedings applicable to ordinary suits in equity. If the court became satisfied upon investigation that the facts existed as alleged, it was then by proper orders to enforce the observance of the published tariffs, or direct a discontinuance of the alleged discrimination, with such right of appeal as was then provided by law to the parties interested in the traffic or to the carrier. 32 Stat. at L. 847, 848, chap. 708, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1138; 34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1149.

The present suit was brought by the United States under that statute against the Chicago, Indianapolis, & Louisville Railway Company, a corporation of Indiana which operated the lines of railroad known as the Monon Route, and extending from Chicago through Indiana to Cincinnati, and from Michigan City, Indiana, to Louisville, Kentucky. The railway company was engaged in the business of carrying passengers over the above lines.

The petition alleged that on the 24th day of January, 1907, the defendant made a written contract with the Frank A. Munsey Company, publisher, at New York, of Munsey's Magazine, which contained, among other provisions, the following:

"Agreement between the Monon Route (Chicago, Indianapolis, & Louisville Railway Company) and..... Frank A Munsey Company.....publisher. Entered into this.....24 day of January, 1907.

"Whereas, the said publisher issues.... Munsey's Magazine..... a .....publication, published at New York City, New York, Chicago office 423 Marquette Building, and which has a regular circulation of.....643,000.....each issue.

492] *"And whereas, the said Monon Route desires to advertise in said publication, which advertising the said publisher agrees to do upon the following terms and conditions, which are mutually agreed upon:

"1st. The said publisher agrees to publish in said publication an advertisement of the Monon Route as follows:.....One page 'ad' (divided as desired) ..... said advertisement to appear.....Favorably.....and occupy a space of not less than.....one page.....and to be published as desired issues of said publication.

"2d. In full consideration of the foregoing advertising, the Monon Route agrees to issue the following nontransferable transportation based on regular published rate:

.....Trip tickets or mileage..... To the value of.....Five hundred..... Dollars ($500....) for the personal use of the publisher, his employees or immediate members of his or their families, which said transportation shall be limited for use not later than December 31, 1907.

"3d. Under no circumstances must the transportation issued under this contract be sold or transferred to or used by any other than the person to whom issued, as such sale, transfer, or use would be a misdemeanor under the law.

"4th. It is understood and agreed that the transportation issued under this contract shall be read to points on the Monon Route, and not to points on any other road. . . . Further, should said publisher or any person named on said tickets allow any other person to use same, or offer to sell, sell or transfer the same, then said publisher agrees to pay the said Monon Route as a penalty the full rate of fare 493]which would have been paid *for regular tickets. . . . This contract expires December 31, 1907, unless otherwise stipulated."

The petition also alleged that after that contract was entered into, and previous to April 3d, 1907, the defendant railway company, pursuant to the above contract, transported over its railway from points in one state to points in other states, the employees of the Munsey Company upon trip and mileage tickets issued for their benefit.

That such interstate transportation, paid for according to the company's published rates, amounted to $145.10, while the only compensation received by it for transportation previous to May 10th, 1907, was the publication in the March issue of the Munsey Magazine of one fourth of a page advertisement of the Monon Route, which the parties valued at $125;

That while the railroad company was thus transporting the Munsey employees, it contemporaneously transported over its lines between the same points other persons, and exacted and received in money from them, in each instance, the full amount of its published rates and fares, the conditions and circumstances of the transportation being the same in the cases of employees and others;

That in accordance with the contract in question the railway company was, at the date of this suit, still furnishing interstate transportation to the publisher of Munsey's Magazine and the members of his family, and to his employees and the members of their families;

That the railway company had entered into like contracts with other publishers of magazines, newspapers, and similar periodicals to the number of 251, under the terms of which latter contracts the company, at the date this suit was commenced, was furnishing interstate transportation over its lines to such persons as were from time to time designated by the publishers last above mentioned, but not receiving compensation in money in any instance when furnishing transportation *under those con-[494 tracts for the services rendered by it; and

That the above contracts between the railway company and the publishers of magazines and newspapers are in violation of the act of Congress regulating commerce, particularly §§ 2 and 6, and also § 3 of the above act, approved February 19th, 1903, in this: that those contracts require the furnishing of interstate transportation at rates which, in each instance, "are less than and different" from the rates contemporaneously exacted from the general public under substantially similar circumstances and conditions.

The company, in its answer, averred that the money value of the space purchased from the Munsey Company under the contract was $500, as determined and fixed by the rate to the public, and that it was to pay therefor $500 in value of passenger transportation issued and based on regularly published rates, so that the money value of the advertising space purchased and the money value of the transportation furnished was the same; and that its arrangements for advertising space with other publications were based on the "regular published rate." The answer contains this paragraph: "Defendant admits that it has entered into a large number of other contracts for advertising space by written contracts providing substantially the same as the contract with the Munsey Company, as aforesaid, and that in each case, pursuant to the terms and conditions of each of said contracts, the publishers named in said contracts and in each of them sell to this defendant advertising space in the par money value at the usual market rate therefor, and that this defendant issues and pays therefor in transportation 'based on the regular published rates' in money value equal to the money value of said advertising space."

The answer further avers that all the company's corporate powers as a common carrier 495]are derived from an *Indiana statute which prohibits the railway company from giving free tickets, free passes, or free transportation, but which, in express words, authorizes the company to issue transportation in payment for printing and advertising. It denied that the purchase of advertising space by a common carrier constituted any part of interstate commerce, or that Congress has any constitutional power to prohibit it from doing so.

It was admitted at the hearing "that said defendant had, subsequent to the filing of said petition, executed contracts similar in terms to the ones set forth in said petition, expiring December 31, 1908, for the exchange of interstate transportation for advertising, under the same conditions as those set forth in the contracts described in said petition, and that said case should be heard and determined precisely as if it were alleged in the pleading that said defendant had made said contracts expiring December 31, 1908."

The circuit court heard the case upon the pleadings and proofs, and adjudged that the acts of the railway company, as alleged in the petition, were sustained by the evidence (as they undoubtedly were), and were in violation of the commerce act of February 4th, 1887 [24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154], of the act further to regulate commerce approved February 19th, 1903, and of the acts amendatory thereof.

It was further adjudged, in accordance with the petition of the government, "that the defendant, its officers and agents, and any and all persons whomsoever, acting on its behalf, be, and they are hereby, enjoined from further executing each and every one of said contracts now pending for the exchange of transportation for advertising space; and that they be, and they are hereby, enjoined from issuing transportation in exchange for advertising space pursuant to the terms of contracts providing that said transportation shall be paid for by the furnishing of advertising space in newspapers or periodicals, *that[496 they be, and they are hereby, enjoined from accepting advertisements in lieu of money in payment for interstate transportation, pursuant to agreements or contracts providing that said advertising space shall be paid for by issuing transportation; and that they be, and they are hereby, enjoined from committing any of the acts with reference to the exchange of interstate transportation for advertising space, as charged in said petition."

1. The decisive question in this case is whether the contract between the railway company and the Munsey Company is repugnant to the acts of Congress regulating commerce. In other words, could the company, in return for the transportation which it agreed to furnish and did furnish to the Munsey publisher over its interstate lines, and to his employees and to the immediate members of his and their families, accept as compensation for such service anything else than money, the amount to be determined by its published schedule of rates and charges? Upon the authority of Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley (just decided) 219 U. S. 467, ante, 297, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265, and according to the principles announced in the opinion in that case, the answer to the above question must be in the negative. The acceptance by the railway company of advertising, not of money, in payment of the interstate transportation furnished to the publisher of the Munsey magazine, his employees and the immediate members of his and their families, was, for the reasons given in the Mottley Case, in violation of the commerce act. The facts in the present case show how easily, under any other rule, the act can be evaded and the object of Congress entirely defeated. The legislative department intended that all who obtained transportation on interstate lines should be treated alike in the matter of rates, and that all who availed themselves of the services of the railway company (with certain specified exceptions) should be on a plane of equality. Those ends cannot be met otherwise than by requiring transportation to be *paid for in money,[497 which has a certain value, known to all, and not in commodities or services, or otherwise than in money.

2. We need say but little about the Indiana statute upon which the defense is in part based. The transactions in respect of which the government seeks relief, being interstate in their character, the acts of Congress as to such transactions are paramount. No state enactment can be of any avail when the subject of such transactions has been covered by an act of Congress, acting within the limits of its constitutional powers. It has long been settled that when an "act of the legislature of a state prescribes a regulation of the subject repugnant to and inconsistent with the regulation of Congress, the state law must give way, and this without regard to the source of power whence the state legislature derived its enactment." Sinnot v. Davenport, 22 How. 227, 243, 16 L. ed. 243, 247; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Haber, 169 U. S. 613, 626, 42 L. ed. 878, 882, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 488; Reid v. Colorado, 187 U. S. 137, 47 L. ed. 108, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 506. This results, Chief Justice Marshall said in Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat, 1, 6 L. ed. 23, as well from the nature of the government as from the words of the Constitution.

Judgment affirmed.

498]*SOUTHERN PACIFIC TERMINAL COMPANY, Southern Pacific Company, and Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway Company, Appts.,

v.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION and E. H. Young. (No. 459.)

E. H. YOUNG, Appt.,

v.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION et al. (No. 460.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 498–527.)

Appeal — moot case.

1. An appeal from a decree dismissing a suit to enjoin the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring a carrier to desist from granting a shipper an alleged undue preference over his competitors will not be dismissed as presenting merely a moot case because the time during which such order was by its express terms to continue in force has expired.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. i, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Interstate Commerce Commission — jurisdiction — terminal company as carrier — undue preference.

2. A corporation created to carry on, conformably to a municipal ordinance and a confirmatory statute intended to secure public shipping facilities, a wharfage business at a seaport, and to furnish terminal facilities for a railway and steamship system of which it forms a part and by which it is controlled through a holding company, is a common carrier, and as such is subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission acting in the exercise of its authority, under the act to regulate commerce, to prohibit undue preferences.

[Matters as to Interstate Commerce Commission, see Interstate Commerce Commission, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — undue preferences — lease of pier.

3. A lease to a shipper of one of the piers and improvements thereon, belonging to a terminal company, which relieves him from the payment of all wharfage and storage charges other than as the same may be included in the yearly rental, and has enabled him to acquire practically a monopoly of the export of cotton-seed products, constitutes an unlawful or undue preference under the act to regulate commerce, where other shippers are not and cannot be afforded the same facilities on the same conditions.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Interstate Commerce Commission — jurisdiction — undue preference to exporter.

4. An order of the Interstate Commerce Commission forbidding a carrier to give an undue preference in the use of its wharves at a seaport to an exporter of cotton-seed products is not a regulation of purely intrastate or purely foreign commerce, which would be beyond the power of the Commission, where the cotton-seed products purchased by him, whether at points within or without the state, are all destined for export, and the concentration and manufacture of cotton-seed cake into meal on the wharves are but incidents in the transhipment of the products in export trade.

[Matters as to Interstate Commerce Commission, see Interstate Commerce Commission, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 459, 460.]

Argued December 9, 1910. Decided February 20, 1911.

APPEALS from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Texas to review a decree dismissing both bill and cross bill in a suit to enjoin the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring carriers to desist from giving an undue preference to a shipper. Affirmed.

Note.—As to what constitutes an unlawful preference or discrimination by a carrier under interstate regulations—see note to Gamble-Robinson Commission Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 94 C. C. A. 230.

Statement by Mr. Justice McKenna:

This is a bill in equity to enjoin an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring appellants to cease and desist, on or before the 1st day of September, 1908 (subsequently postponed to November 15, 1908), and for a period of not less than two years thereafter, from granting and giving undue preferences and advantages to one E. H. Young, a shipper of cotton seed products at the port of Galveston, Texas, through failure to exact from him payment of wharfage charges for handling cotton seed cake and meal over the wharves, docks, and piers of appellants, while at the same time exacting such charges from other shippers of cotton-seed cake and meal, and from giving and allowing him or any other person whomsoever, for his exclusive use, space on the wharves of appellants at Galveston for use in the storage and handling of cotton-seed cake and meal, while contemporaneously refusing and denying similar privileges to other shippers under substantially similar circumstances and conditions.

Young was not a formal party before the Interstate Commerce Commission. However, he was made a respondent in this suit, and filed an answer and cross bill. The Commission demurred to both bill and cross bill, and, the demurrer being overruled, answered.

On final hearing the case was submitted upon an agreed statement of facts, and both bills were dismissed.

500] *The most important facts we set out below and in the opinion. We refer to the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for further details.

The Republic of Texas conveyed to one Menard the property upon which the wharves of the terminal company are situated. Menard conveyed the property to the president and directors of the Galveston City Company, who conveyed it to Collis P. Huntington, for the sum of $200,000; and it is recited in the deed to him that it "is made upon the further Express Covenant and condition as follows: . . . when through and by means of such acts of Congress, act of the legislature, and ordinance and conveyance from the city of Galveston, if any, as may be required for the purpose, . . . the right has been secured to the said Collis P. Huntington, or his heirs or assigns, to construct piers, as he or they may from time to time determine, . . . then and in that event the said Collis P. Huntington, his heirs or assigns, will within six months thereof commence the construction of terminal facilities upon the property, . . . for the use of what are commonly called the Southern Pacific Railroad & Steamship Systems."

The city of Galveston, on the 4th of February, 1899, passed an ordinance which recited the conditions of Huntington's purchase to be as above stated, and that it was greatly to the interest of the city that the work contemplated by him should be performed, and that for the proper utility of the property no streets should be opened through or across it, and it was ordained that streets, avenues, or alleys, if any, theretofore opened, laid out, or in any manner designated upon the property be perpetually abandoned, discontinued, and closed. And Huntington, his heirs and assigns, were granted the right perpetually to construct and maintain piers as he or they might from time to time determine, "and to maintain upon the property terminal facilities for the use of what are commonly *called the [501 Southern Pacific Railroad & Steamship Systems, their successors or assigns." It was provided that if Huntington should "charge wharfage for the use of such piers and other facilities upon said property, except so far as wharf service" might be covered by the freight rate, all such wharfage should be subject to the regulation of the railroad commission of Texas. And it was recited that it was greatly for the public interest that the property "should be developed for shipping and transportation purposes, and that the shipping facilities of the port of Galveston should be thereby improved and enlarged in order to better accommodate the commerce of the port and State. . . ."

The ordinance was ratified by an act of the legislature approved May 1, 1899. The act set out the ordinance in full, and relinquished to Huntington the title and claim of the state to the property upon the conditions expressed in the ordinance, and, in addition to subjecting the wharfage charges to regulation by the railroad commission, required an annual report to that body. And it was provided "that the system of railroad tracks" which might be constructed by Huntington on the property should connect with the track of any railroad company which might be built to the property, at a place designated; and, further, that there should be no consolidation of the property, or the stock or franchise of any corporation which might own or control the same, with the Galveston Wharf Company, or any other wharf company, by which the "wharf or other terminal charges should be fixed," and that "no charter formed for the use, operation, and management of the property" should be granted without containing the section providing as above.

Huntington performed the conditions expressed in the conveyance and in the ordinance and the act of the legislature.

The Southern Pacific Terminal Company 502]is a Texas *corporation, organized in 1901, to construct and maintain wharves and docks for the accommodation of all kinds of vessels, "and to avail of, use, and enjoy the properties, rights, privileges, and franchises granted and described and referred to in the act of the legislature of the state of Texas of May 1, 1899, ratifying the ordinance of the city of Galveston, and to construct and maintain upon the property terminal facilities for the use of what are commonly called the Southern Pacific Railroad & Steamship Systems."

At the time of the incorporation of the terminal company the following were commonly referred to as the Southern Pacific Railroad & Steamship Systems: The line of steamships owned by the Southern Pacific Company, running from New York to Galveston and New Orleans, and also running from and between the latter city and Havana; Morgan's Louisiana & Texas Railroad and Steamship Company; the Louisiana Western Railroad, which leads from New Orleans to the Sabine river; the Texas & New Orleans Railroad, leading from that river to the city of Houston; the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio Railway; and the railroads in which the Southern Pacific Company owns stock, extending from the connection of the latter in El Paso, at the Rio Grande River, to San Francisco. Each of the railways was incorporated as a separate and distinct railway, and has its own officers and board of directors, but the Southern Pacific Company owns 99 per cent of their stock, and the same per cent of the stock of the terminal company. The two latter companies have the same president, and the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway Company and the terminal company have the same general manager.

Import and export traffic passing through Galveston passes over the wharves of the terminal company, and the only track facilities for such traffic are those owned by the 503]*terminal company on its own lands. And the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio railway is the only railway having physical connection with the tracks of the terminal company, and it does all of the switching to and from the tracks of the terminal company, charging $1.75 per car. The latter company receives a trackage charge of 50 cents per car.

The terminal company owns no cars or locomotives, and issues no bills of lading. It owns no stock in any of the railroads or corporations in which the Southern Pacific owns stock. It carries on a wharfage business and publishes a schedule of charges for such business, which, however, is not filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, its charge being 20 cents per ton on cotton-seed meal and cake passing over its docks, and is shown as wharfage charge in the tariffs of the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway Company and all other railways entering Galveston. Such tariffs do not show that any exception is made as to the docks occupied by E. H. Young, as hereinafter shown, but as a fact the wharfage charge is not imposed by the terminal company on the cotton-seed meal and cake handled over the dock of E. H. Young, other than as the same may be included in the general lease or contract price fixed as hereinafter indicated.

The terminal company was a party to numerous circulars issued by the Southern Pacific Companies, known as the "Sunset Route," so termed, principally for advertising purposes. The circular of May 24, 1907, shows terminal charges (other than storage and switching). At the port of Galveston the circulars show a charge of one cent per 100 pounds on cotton-seed cake and meal.

The terminal company has on its property two piers, known as pier A and pier B, and has erected on them all facilities for handling imported and exported freight, and all freight which may come to or pass over its *wharves, and it has abundant land[504 under water upon which to erect other piers if they should become necessary.

It charges a fixed wharfage for all freight passing over its piers to or from vessels berthed thereat. The Galveston Wharf Company affords similar public wharfage facilities at the port of Galveston, having a number of piers. If the facilities of the Galveston Wharf Company should be destroyed, those of the terminal company would become inadequate for handling the import and export and coastwise business. Ships to and from foreign ports, and coastwise ships other than those of the Southern Pacific Company, berth at piers A and B, and there receive and deliver freight, and at these piers the terminal company carries on its general wharfage business.

In the building of pier B it was necessary to dredge a slip west of it, where ships could berth, and in order that the soil, through the action of storm and wave, should not drift into the slip, a bulkhead was built. To the westward of the slip the lands of the terminal company were lying idle and useless, they not being needed by it; and in pursuance of negotiations with Young the company proceeded to construct a pier, known as pier C, for the use of Young, and to erect thereon a warehouse, shed, and platform for his use, the original construction and subsequent enlargement of which cost the company about $65,000. At this time the pier is 300 feet wide at its widest part, and about 1,400 feet in length.

The negotiations terminated in a lease under which Young is to pay the terminal company a yearly rental of $15,000, payable monthly from the 1st day of November, 1906. And he agrees that he will route all shipments of cotton seed and cotton-seed products purchased or shipped by him "over the lines of said terminal company and its connections, according to the instructions of said terminal company from time to time," and that he will insist upon and enforce such routing, except where the 505]*enforcement will prevent him from purchasing such products or from obtaining shipments which will be ready to move immediately and for which cars cannot be procured for the routing required. It is provided, however, that Young shall not be bound by these provisions if the rates be not equal to or lower than those of other competing lines, or the service be not as adequate, but notice is to be given of such lower rates and service, and an option to meet them.

The business of Young is that of a merchant and manufacturer, engaged in buying, selling, and converting cotton-seed cake and meal for his own account. He took possession of pier C and the improvements erected thereon by the terminal company under his contract with the latter company, paying the price stipulated in the contract, and has placed thereon cake, sacking and grinding machines, representing an investment of $50,000. Young's business consists in buying cotton-seed cake in the interior, shipping it to himself by carloads at pier C, there grinding it into meal, sacking it, and loading it into steamships berthed at pier C for export.

All cotton-seed-meal cake passing over piers A and B pays a wharfage of 20 cents per short ton. Young pays no wharfage or storage charge other than as the same may be included in the rental of $15,000 per year. If any exporter handles cotton-seed meal or cake over pier C, the wharfage of 20 cents per ton is paid by him to Young.

Young has certain advantages by reason of his contract with the terminal company, which are enumerated in the agreed statement of facts, and the result of which is stated as follows: "He makes a sum equal to 30 or 40 cents per ton more than he would receive if he handled his export product under methods in existence before he established his plant on pier C and adopted the method of business he follows. This 30 to 40 cents per ton is in addition to the ordinary buying and selling profit." He *at times pays more for cotton-seed[506 cake than his competitors can afford to pay, and at times he can undersell them in European markets; and since he commenced business some of the exporters who were engaged in business when he commenced have ceased exporting. A comparison of his business with that of all other exporters of cotton-seed cake shows that from September 1, 1906, to September 1, 1907, he exported 105,000 tons of cotton-seed cake and about the same amount of cotton seed-meal; they, 50,000 tons of both products.

"Some of the cotton-seed-cake producers at interior mills in the state complain that Young is able to dominate the Texas market, and that his method of conducting business at Galveston enables him to command the foreign trade, and may become a detriment to the cotton-seed-cake-and-meal industry, in that Young might acquire a monopoly. Others entertain a contrary opinion. They all agree that if there was a general establishment of plants in Galveston, so that a monopoly could not be acquired, it would be of great benefit to the cotton-seed industry.

* * * * * *

"On the present constructed docks of the Galveston Wharf Company and the terminal company, with the structures as now located thereon, there is not space enough to furnish all exporters doing business at Galveston with space for erecting machinery and handling export business in the same manner as is done by Young."

This proceeding was instituted September 11, 1907, by Carl Eichenberg, an exporter of cotton seed and its products from the port of Galveston, by filing his complaint or petition before the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Southern Pacific Company and the terminal company, complaining that the companies, by the arrangement with Young, were violating § 3 of the act to regulate commerce, by giving him an undue and unreasonable *preference and[507 advantage over his competitors.

By order of the Commission the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio Railway Company and other railroad companies entering Galveston were made parties defendant.

Answers were filed and full hearing was had by the Commission, which on June 24, 1908, made its report and order.

No rehearing was asked by defendant before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Young was not made a party to the proceedings before the Commission, but he appeared and testified as a witness for the terminal company, and his counsel was present at the hearing when the testimony was taken, and engaged in the examination of witnesses. Young was also present when the case was argued and submitted.

Messrs. Maxwell Evarts and F. C. Dillard argued the cause, and, with Mr. H. M. Garwood, filed a brief for appellants:

The construction of a wharf on property abutting upon navigable water does not per se affect the wharf constructed with a public use.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. West Coast Naval Stores Co. 198 U. S. 483, 49 L. ed. 1135, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 745.

The right to erect a landing on a navigable stream has its foundation in the ownership of the land; and when erected by an individual or corporation at its own expense, it is private property.

Leverich v. Mobile, 110 Fed. 170; Compton v. Hankins, 90 Ala. 414, 9 L.R.A. 387, 24 Am. St. Rep. 823, 8 So. 75; O'Neill v. Annett, 27 N. J. L. 290, 72 Am. Dec. 364; Woodruff v. Havemeyer, 106 N. Y. 129, 12 N. E. 628; Weems S. B. Co. v. People's S. B. Co. 214 U. S. 345, 53 L. ed. 1024, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 661, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1222.

If the terminal company were a common carrier, and if the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission were unquestioned, it, nevertheless, has the right to sell or convey unused portions of its property which it owns in fee simple.

Calcasieu Lumber Co. v. Harris, 77 Tex. 18, 13 S. W. 453; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 667, 682, 28 L. ed. 291, 297, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 192 U. S. 568, 48 L. ed. 565, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 339; United States ex rel. Northwestern Warehouse Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. 159 Fed. 975.

The ownership of the stock of the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway Company and the Terminal Company does not in any manner whatsoever effect an amalgamation of these companies in any legal sense.

Pullman's Palace Car Co. v. Missouri P. R. Co. 115 U. S. 587, 29 L. ed. 499, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 194; Peterson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 205 U. S. 364, 51 L. ed. 841, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 513; United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 53 L. ed. 836, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; White v. Pecos Land & Water Co. 18 Tex. Civ. App. 634, 45 S. W. 207; Exchange Bank v. Macon Constr. Co. (McTighe v. Macon Constr. Co.) 97 Ga. 1, 33 L.R.A. 800, 25 S. E. 326; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Cochran, 43 Kan. 225, 7 L.R.A. 414, 19 Am. St. Rep. 129, 23 Pac. 151.

A wharf company is not subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Cattle Raisers' Asso. v. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. 7 Inters. Com. Rep. 513; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 L.R.A. 289, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 351, 37 Fed. 567; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock-Yards Co. 82 Fed. 839.

The lease contract held to be unlawful does not, under the facts proven, constitute an unlawful or undue preference under the interstate commerce act.

Butchers' & D. Stock-Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 C. C. A. 290, 31 U. S. App. 252, 67 Fed. 35; Ilwaco R. & Nav. Co. v. Oregon Short Line & U. N. R. Co. 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 627, 6 C. C. A. 495, 15 U. S. App. 173, 57 Fed. 673.

As to the far greater part of this business, the same originating in Texas, and which is shipped from a point wholly within the state of Texas to another point wholly within the state of Texas, it is intrastate business, and cannot be subject to the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Texas, 204 U. S. 403, 51 L. ed. 540, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 360; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. — Tex. Civ. App. —, 121 S. W. 256; Augusta Brokerage Co. v. Central R. Co. 5 Ga. App. 187, 62 S .E. 996.

The intention of Young ultimately to sell in Europe does not make the traffic foreign. When the transit begins at the intrastate point, and when it ends at Galveston, it has not even been sold in Europe. Young, as any other manufacturer or owner, buys his stock in the interior of Texas, warehouses it at his depot on the leased premises, and there manufactures it, changing its form. Up to this time, therefore, it is certainly state commerce, over which the Interstate Commerce Commission has no jurisdiction. It is then delivered by Young from his warehouse into ships-hold for transport direct to Europe. Certainly, over this part of the transit, the Interstate Commerce Commission has no jurisdiction.

Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg-American Packet Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 266.

Mr. Maxwell Evarts also filed a separate brief for appellants:

The expiration of the order of the Commission before the argument of this case does not require the dismissal of this case upon the ground that it has become a moot question.

Kindel v. LeBert, 23 Colo. 385, 58 Am. St. Rep. 234, 48 Pac. 641; Re Cuddeback, 3 App. Div. 108, 39 N. Y. Supp. 388; People ex rel. Borgia v. Doe, 109 App. Div. 671, 96 N. Y. Supp. 389; Re Madden, 148 N. Y. 139, 42 N. E. 534; Re Fairchild, 151 N Y. 361, 45 N. E. 943; Boise City Irrig. & Land Co. v. Clark County, 65 C. C. A. 399, 131 Fed. 415; Flour Inspectors v. Glover, 161 U. S. 101, 40 L. ed. 632, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 492; Click v. Sample, 73 Ark. 194, 83 S. W. 932; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540.

Messrs. Wade H. Ellis and Luther M. Walter argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees:

These appeals should be dismissed because the Commission's order has expired.

Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651, 40 L. ed. 293, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Pennsylvania v. Wheeling & B. Bridge Co. 18 How. 421, 15 L. ed. 435; San Mateo County v. Southern P. R. Co. 116 U. S. 138, 29 L. ed. 589, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 317; Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S. 547, 33 L. ed. 1016, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 620; California v. San Pablo & T. R. Co. 149 U. S. 308, 37 L. ed. 747, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; Flour Inspectors v. Glover, 160 U. S. 170, 40 L. ed. 382, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321; Dinsmore v. Southern Exp. Co. 183 U. S. 115, 46 L. ed. 111, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45.

The Southern Pacific Terminal Company's business was affected with a public interest.

Barrington v. Commercial Dock Co. 15 Wash. 175, 33 L.R.A. 116, 45 Pac. 748; Indian River S. B. Co. v. East Coast Transp. Co. 28 Fla. 387, 29 Am. St. Rep. 258, 10 So. 480.

The terminal company was and is holding itself out to the public as furnishing general terminal facilities in connection with certain railroads, and as such is subject to governmental supervision.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Larabee Flour Mills Co. 211 U. S. 612, 619, 53 L. ed. 352, 359, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 418, 53 L. ed. 836, 853, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 521.

Nor does the fact that the terminal company confines its operations to one state affect the question. It is an agency in interstate commerce.

The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. 557, 19 L. ed. 999; People ex rel. Connecting Terminal R. Co. v. Miller, 178 N. Y. 196, 70 N. E. 472.

It is apparent that the various railroads and steamship lines and the terminal company making up the constituent parts of the Southern Pacific system are practically one consolidated corporation, of which the terminal company is the terminal for the delivery and transfer of freight in Galveston.

Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.

The order of the Commission is a regulation of interstate commerce.

Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Fuller, 17 Wall. 560, 568, 21 L. ed. 710, 714; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 114 U. S. 196, 204, 29 L. ed. 158, 162, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 382, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 136, 54 L. ed. 698, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 802, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 476; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155; United States v. Colorado & N. W. R. Co. 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 167, 85 C. C. A. 27, 157 Fed. 330, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 893; Houston Direct Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. A. 89 Tex. 1, 30 L.R.A. 713, 59 Am. St. Rep. 17, 32 S. W. 889.

The contract with Young constitutes an undue preference.

Hurley v. Big Sandy & C. R. Co. — Ky. —, 125 S. W. 302; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Standard Lumber Co. 98 C. C. A. 81, 174 Fed. 107; Hobart-Lee Tie Co. v. Stone, 135 Mo. App. 438, 117 S. W. 604; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. United States, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 551, 84 C. C. A. 324, 156 Fed. 558; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; Union P. R. Co. v. Goodridge, 149 U. S. 680, 37 L. ed. 896, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 970; Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 42 L. ed. 258, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822.

Mr. Justice McKenna, after stating the facts as above, delivered the opinion of the court:

It will be observed that the order of the Commission required appellants to cease and desist from granting Young the alleged undue preference for a period of not less than two years from September 1, 1908 (subsequently extended to November 15). It is hence contended that the order of the Commission has expired, and that, the case having thereby become moot, the appeal should be dismissed.

This court has said a number of times that it will only decide actual controversies, and if, pending an appeal, something occurs, without any fault of the defendant, which renders it impossible, if our decision should be in favor of the plaintiff, to grant him effectual relief, the appeal will be dismissed. Jones v. Montague, 194 U. S. 147, 48 L. ed. 913, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611, and Richardson v. McChesney, decided November 28 of this term, 218 U. S. 487, 54 L. ed. 1121, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43. But in those cases the acts sought to be enjoined had been 515]completely executed, and *there was nothing that the judgment of the court, if the suits had been entertained, could have affected. The case at bar comes within the rule announced in United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 308, 41 L. ed. 1007, 1016, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540, and Boise City Irrig. & Land Co. v. Clark (C. C. App. 9th C.) 65 C. C. A. 399, 131 Fed. 415.

In the case at bar the order of the Commission may to some extent (the exact extent it is unnecessary to define) be the basis of further proceedings. But there is a broader consideration. The question involved in the orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission are usually continuing (as are manifestly those in the case at bar), and these considerations ought not to be, as they might be, defeated, by short-terms orders, capable of repetition, yet evading review, and at one time the government, and at another time the carriers, have their rights determined by the Commission without a chance of redress.

In United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. supra, the object of the suit was to obtain the judgment of the court on the legality of an agreement between railroads, alleged to be in violation of the Sherman law. In the case at bar the object of the suit is to have declared illegal an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In that case there was an attempt to defeat the purposes of the suit by a voluntary dissolution of the agreement, and of the attempt the court said: "The mere dissolution of the association is not the most important object of this litigation. The judgment of the court is sought upon the question of the legality of the agreement itself for the carrying out of which the association was formed, and if such agreement be declared to be illegal the court is asked not only to dissolve the association named in the bill, but that the defendants should be enjoined for the future. . . . Private parties may settle their controversies at any time, and rights which a plaintiff may have had at the time of the commencement of the 516]action may terminate before *judgment is obtained, or while the case is on appeal, and in any such case the court, being informed of the facts, will proceed no further in the action. Here, however, there has been no extinguishment of the rights (whatever they are) of the public, the enforcement of which the government has endeavored to procure by a judgment of a court under the provisions of the act of Congress above recited. The defendants cannot foreclose those rights, nor prevent the assertion thereof by the government as a substantial trustee for the public under the act of Congress, by any such action as has been taken in this case." And, referring to the agreement as one claimed by the government as illegal, it was further said: "That question the government has the right to bring before the court and obtain its judgment thereof." The interests there passed upon are no more of a public character than those involved in the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case at bar, and there was no greater necessity for continuing a jurisdiction which had properly attached; and that the government is the respondent, not complainant, does not lessen or change the character of the interests involved in the controversy, or terminate its questions.

In Boise City Irrig. & Land Co. v. Clark, supra, the period for which a municipal ordinance fixed a water rate expired pending the litigation as to its legality, and it was contended that the case had become moot. The court replied: "But the courts have entertained and decided such cases heretofore, partly because the rate, once fixed, continues in force until changed as provided by law, and partly because of the necessity or propriety of deciding some question of law presented which might serve to guide the municipal body when again called upon to act in the matter."

The motion to dismiss is denied.

Four errors are assigned in the action of the circuit *court in dismissing the[517 bill of complaint: (1) The Interstate Commerce Commission had no jurisdiction over the terminal company, it not being a common carrier, and therefore not subject to the act to regulate commerce. (2) The Commission had no power or authority to declare the lease to Young illegal. (3) The lease does not constitute an unlawful or undue preference or advantage within the meaning of the act to regulate commerce. (4) The Commission by its order assumed to control intrastate and foreign commerce, not subject to the act to regulate commerce.

Two facts are prominent in the case: That the piers of the terminal company are facilities of import and export traffic at the port of Galveston, and that the arrangement of the terminal company with Young has enabled him to largely and rapidly increase his business until his exports of cotton-seed products are more than twice those of all other competitors, that he derives therefrom 30 to 40 cents per ton over the ordinary buying and selling profit, and that some who were his competitors have ceased to export. A direct advantage to Young is manifest. A direct detriment to other exporters is equally manifest.

The situation challenges attention. Appellants find in it nothing but the natural and legal result of the sagacity which could see an opportunity for profit, and the enterprise which could avail of it. It was the simple matter on the part of Young, it is contended, of bringing his business to the ship's side and cutting out intervening expenses. And it is said that the terminal company had an equally lawful inducement. It had an idle property, it is contended, over which it had absolute control, and which it turned to use and profit by the arrangement with Young. And this, it is insisted, was a simple exercise of ownership. If the elements of the controversy are correctly stated, the justification may be considered as made out.

518] *Appellants make much of their title, and, assuming it to be absolute, assert the right to an unrestrained use of the property. But the assertion overlooks or underestimates the condition expressed in the deed to Huntington, that from his estate to the terminal company, in the ordinance of the city of Galveston, and in the act of the legislature of the state of Texas. The condition expressed in all of them was that terminal facilities should be constructed upon the property for the use of the Southern Pacific Railroad & Steamship Systems. The act of the legislature declared that the property "should be developed for shipping and transportation purposes, and that the shipping facilities at the port of Galveston should be thereby improved and enlarged in order to better accommodate the commerce of the port and of the state." And wharfage charges, except so far as they should be covered by the freight rates, should be subject to regulation by the railroad commission of the state.

It is clear, therefore, that it was the purpose of the ordinance and of the act confirming it to secure shipping facilities for the city, open, to public use; and necessarily so, for the property was to be the terminal of a railroad and steamship system. It may be, as it is contended, that there was no necessity for the ordinance, "except for the purpose of a valid relinquishment of the municipal right, often asserted by it, of opening streets through the bay-front property and constructing wharves thereon." The relinquishment was treated as valuable, and Huntington pledged the property to a public use as a consideration for it. And, as we have said, such use was also a condition expressed in the act of the legislature. It was not discharged by the expenditure of $150,000 and the erection of wharves by Huntington, as seems to be the contention.

The case has no likeness whatever to Louisville & N. R. Co. v. West Coast Naval Stores Co. 198 U. S. 483, 49 L. ed. 1135, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 745. In the latter case there was no discrimination against the West Coast Company *by the railroad company,[519 or a preference given to any person. The West Coast Company had the same privilege of using the wharves of the railroad company as other shippers were given. It asserted other privileges. It asserted the privilege of using the wharf for the purpose of transferring goods into vessels which it might arrange to take them; in other words, not into the vessels of the railroad company or into those with which it had traffic agreements. And we said, through Mr. Justice Peckham: "In brief, the fact seems to be that the only complaint of the plaintiff [West Coast Company] is that the defendant [the railroad company] will not permit competing vessels to make use of its wharf for the purpose of such competition."

It is true that there was a contention that the wharf was a public one, but the contention was based only on the fact that the wharf was built at the foot of a public street by authority from the city of Pensacola and the state of Florida. That fact alone was not considered sufficient to support the contention. And it was said: "The city or state authorities in granting the right to erect such facilities might, of course, have attached such conditions as they thought wise, but in their absence neither the public nor this plaintiff, as the owner of goods, would have the right, on this state of facts, to go to the wharf with vessels for the purpose of continuing transportation of goods in competition with defendant." It is true it was said that the railroad company never became a common carrier as to the wharf, in the sense that it was bound to accord to the public or to the West Coast Company the right to use it upon payment of compensation. But it was added that the railroad company would be bound to carry the West Coast Company's goods on the rails which led to the wharf, for the same purpose and upon the same terms that it did for others, viz., in order that it might itself, or through others it had contracted with, forward *the[520 goods beyond its own line. And it was further said that the West Coast Company demanded more than this; it demanded that the railroad company should carry its goods in order that it might itself forward them by vessels of its own selection, and that the railroad company should surrender possession of enough of its wharf to enable the other company to do so.

Nor is Weems S. B. Co. v. People's S. B. Co. 214 U. S. 344, 53 L. ed. 1024, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 661, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1222, applicable to the pending controversy. The contest there was between two independent lines of steamboats, the one claiming a right to use the wharves of the other, on the ground that the wharves had been dedicated to the public. The fact was found adversely to the contention, and the claim of right to the use of the wharves denied. A review of the reasoning of the court is unnecessary. There is great difference between competing carriers claiming the right to use the facilities of one another, and the patrons of the same carrier contending for equality of treatment. In stating this we assume that the wharves in the pending case are the instruments of a common carrier. This is, however, denied, and it is asserted that the terminal company is purely a wharfage company, and "has no power under its charter to act as a common carrier." The contention is based on a partial view of the condition. The terminal company was incorporated to execute the purposes expressed in the act of the legislature of the state of Texas, that is, to construct terminal facilities for the Southern Pacific Railroad & Steamship Systems, and to accommodate the export and import traffic at Galveston; and, necessarily, as instrumentalities of such traffic, wharves and piers are as essential as steamships and railroads, and are, in fact, as they were intended to be by the charter of their authorization, parts of a system. The only track facilities for movement of cars to or from the ships, from or to the tracks of the Southern Pacific Railway, are on the terminal 521]*company's lands, and are owned by it. To these tracks the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway switches cars for other railroads, charging $1.75 per car, and the terminal company receives a trackage charge of 50 cents per car. It is true that the terminal company does a wharfage business and publishes a schedule of its charges, which, while not filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows a charge of 20 cents a ton on cotton-seed cake and meal, and this appears as a wharfage charge in the tariffs of the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway Company and other railways entering the city of Galveston. And, besides, the terminal company was a party to numerous circulars issued by the Southern Pacific Railway Company, and that effective May 23, 1905, was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. These circulars gave terminal charges at the port of Galveston. The charge on cotton-seed meal and cake was given at 1 cent per 100 pounds. Shipments on through bills of lading include in the freight rate the wharfage charge.

Another and important fact is the control of the properties by the Southern Pacific Company through stock ownership. There is a separation of the companies if we regard only their charters; there is a union of them if we regard their control and operation through the Southern Pacific Company. This control and operation are the important facts to shippers. It is of no consequence that by mere charter declaration the terminal company is a wharfage company, or the Southern Pacific a holding company. Verbal declarations cannot alter the facts. The control and operation of the Southern Pacific Company of the railroads and the terminal company have united them into a system of which all are necessary parts, the terminal company as well as the railroad companies. As said by the Interstate Commerce Commission, "the terminal company was organized to furnish terminal *facilities for the system at the port[522 of Galveston;" and it is further said that "through shipments on the railroad lines from and to points in different states of the Union pass and repass over the docks of the terminal company. It forms a link in this chain of transportation. It is necessary to complete the avenue through which move shipments over these lines owned by a single corporation." And this unity of the railroad's lines and the terminal facilities is recognized in the lease to Young. By it he agrees to route all of his shipments over "the lines of the terminal company and its connections, according to the instructions of said terminal company from time to time." And provision is made against the possibility of other lines bidding for the traffic by lower rates. In such event he must give notice to the terminal company, and give it "the option of meeting such proposed rates," and if the company "elects to do so," then he "shall not divert such shipments, but shall abide by the provisions" of his agreement. And surely a system so constituted and used as an instrument of interstate commerce may not escape regulation as such because one of its constituents is a wharfage company and its dominating power a holding company. As was well said by the Interstate Commerce Commission; "a corporation such as this terminal company, which has 'competing lines,' should not be permitted to defeat the jurisdiction of this Commission by showing that it is not in fact owned by any railroad company. . . . The terminal company is part and parcel of the system engaged in the transportation of commerce, and to the extent that such commerce is interstate the Commission has jurisdiction to supervise and control it within statutory limits. To hold otherwise would in effect permit carriers generally, though the organization of separate corporations, to exempt all of their terminals from our regulating authority."

The reasoning of the Commission is justi-[523]fied by the *statute. It includes in the term "railroad" "all bridges and ferries used or operated in connection with any railroad, and also all the roads in use by any corporation operating a railroad, whether owned or operated under a contract, agreement, or lease, and shall also include all switches, spurs, tracks, and terminal facilities of every kind used or necessary in the transportation of the persons or property designated herein, and also all freight depots, yards, and grounds used or necessary in the transportation or delivery of any of said property."

The property of the terminal company is "necessary in the transportation or delivery" of the interstate and foreign freight transported by the lines of the Southern Pacific system. It is the only terminal for freight moving over the lines of such system, the rails of one of those lines, the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway Company, connecting with tracks upon the docks of the terminal company. That the latter collects a trackage charge from the former, and it a switching charge from the terminal company, are, to quote the Commission, "but incidents of the separate corporations."

In opposition to these views appellants urge the legal individuality of the different railroads and the terminal company, and cite cases which establish, it is contended, that stock ownership simply or through a holding company does not identify them. We are not concerned to combat the proposition. The record does not present a case of stock ownership merely, or of a holding company which was content to hold. It presents a case, as we have already said, of one actively managing and uniting the railroads and the terminal company into an organized system. And it is with the system that the law must deal, not with its elements. Such elements may, indeed, be regarded from some standpoints as legal entities; may have, in a sense, separate corporate operation; but they are directed by the same paramount and combining power [524]and *made single by it. In all transactions it is treated as single. In the ordinance of the city of Galveston, in the act of the legislature of the state of 1899, and in public circulars and in the lease of Young, it is the system which is dealt with, and not its separate links. And, we have seen, the terminal facilities which the terminal company was authorized to maintain were for the system, not for the corporate elements considered separately.

It is next contended that the lease to Young, under the facts proven, does not constitute an unlawful or undue preference under the interstate commerce act.

To a certain extent we have considered this contention. An absolute advantage to Young cannot be denied. A facility that has enabled him to acquire practically all the export of cotton-seed products must have something in it of advantage which other shippers do not receive, and it would seem to proclaim a power working for his benefit which is not working for others. And yet it is urged that there is a contrariety of opinion about it among cotton-seed-cake producers, and as to whether Young is able to dominate the Texas market and to command the foreign trade. The facts, we think, put the matter beyond conjecture or opinion, and demonstrate the potency of his situation. That it is a preference, however, is denied; and it is urged that by the agreed statement of facts all cotton-seed-cake producers "agree that if there was a general establishment of plants in Galveston, so that a monopoly could not be acquired" by Young, "it would be of great benefit to the cotton-seed industry." But it is also agreed that neither the Galveston Wharf Company nor the terminal company has space enough to afford facilities to "all exporters doing business at Galveston," such as Young. And the Commission found that as a practical matter other shippers could not be given the same facilities on the same conditions as those granted to him, nor could such facilities *be se-[525]cured on the bay front. It was further found that the terminal company had indicated that it is not willing to accord shippers generally such facilities, and that the situation of its docks with respect to space was such that it cannot do so even if it should be willing. It may be contended that the patrons of a railroad are not obliged to seek or compete for extraordinary facilities in its terminals. But, be that as it may, all shippers must be treated alike.

Appellants bring forward the same argument to support the contention under consideration which they advance to support their first contention, to wit, the right, as owner of the property, to make a lease of its "unused property," subject only to the limitation that there shall be no interference "with the use of the adjacent navigable waters." It would seem that, if the argument have any force at all, it would extend the rights of ownership to used as well as unused property, and be exercised in any form of preference, even to the exclusion of some shippers from the wharves. However, as appellants do not press the argument so far, we need not dwell upon it, and will only add that the terminal facilities contemplated by the ordinance of the city of Galveston and the act of the legislature of Texas confirming it were public terminal facilities, not those which might be granted or withheld in preferences or discriminations.

The last contention advanced is that "the order of the Commission transcends its jurisdiction, in that it regulates commerce purely state and intrastate, and also purely foreign commerce, neither of which is subject to its authority."

In support of this contention it is insisted that the evidence shows the following facts: The cake and meal purchased by Young are bought by him in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas, but chiefly in Texas, and shipped to him on bills of lad-526]ing and way bills, showing *the point of origin in those states and the destination at Galveston. The purchases are made for export, there being no consumption of the products at Galveston. His sales to foreign countries are sometimes for immediate and sometimes for future delivery, irrespective of whether he has the product on hand at Galveston. At times he has it on hand. At times, therefore, orders must be filled from cake to be purchased in the interior or then in transit to him. When the cake reaches Galveston it is ground into meal and sacked by Young, and for the meal thus ground and such meal as has been brought to his customers he takes out ships" bills of lading made to his order.

This evidence establishes, appellants contend, that the transit of the cake and meal is absolutely ended at the leased premises at Galveston, and that it is "a final point of concentration and manufacture, the cotton-seed cake being there manufactured into meal and sacked for export." But this does not distinguish between the meal and the cake, nor between the meal that is purchased at points outside of Texas and directly exported, from that so purchased and manufactured on the wharves of the terminal company. Nor does it take account of the fact that the wharves were intended for shipping facilities, a means of transition from land carriage to water carriage. It is manifest, as we have said, that to make the wharves manufacturing or concentrating points for one shipper, and not for all, is to give that shipper a preference. And, being a preference, the traffic necessarily comes under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In other words, the manufacture or concentration on the wharves of the terminal company are but incidents, under the circumstances presented by the record, in the transhipment of the products in export trade, and their regulation is within the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission. To hold otherwise *would be to disregard, as the[527 Commission said, the substance of things, and make evasions of the act of Congress quite easy. It makes no difference, therefore, that the shipments of the products were not made on through bills of lading, or whether their initial point was Galveston or some other place in Texas. They were all destined for export, and by their delivery to the Galveston, Harrisburg, & San Antonio Railway they must be considered as having been delivered to a carrier for transportation to their foreign destination, the terminal company being a part of the railway for such purpose. The case, therefore, comes under Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475, where it is said that goods are in interstate, and necessarily as well in foreign, commerce when they have "actually started in the course of transportation to another state or been delivered to a carrier for transportation." In Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Texas, 204 U. S. 403, 51 L. ed. 540, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 360, the facts are different, and the case is not apposite.

Decree affirmed.

MERRIMACK RIVER SAVINGS BANK, Appt.,
v.
CITY OF CLAY CENTER et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 527–537.)

Appeal — continuing injunction pending appeal.

1. The continuance of a temporary injunction pending an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from a decree of a circuit court, dismissing a bill asking injunctive relief, is within the inherent equity powers of the latter court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2775–2786, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Note.—On practice and procedure governing the transfer of causes to the Federal Supreme Court by appeal or writ of error—see note to Wedding v. Meyler, 66 L.R.A. 833.

Effect of appeal upon trial court's jurisdiction to punish contempt in injunction cases.

The trial court's jurisdiction to punish as a contempt after an appeal the violation of an injunction forbidding a labor union to picket the premises of complainants, and to interfere with their business and employees, was considered at length Contempt — disobeying injunction pending appeal.

2. Continuing a temporary injunction pending an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from a decree of a circuit court, dismissing a bill asking injunctive relief, operates to continue in the circuit court such jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the litigation and the parties as to enable it to preserve the status quo pending the appeal, including the power to take cognizance of the violation of the injunction.

[For other cases, see Contempt, 30–34, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Contempt — destruction of subject-matter of litigation pending appeal.

3. The wilful destruction by municipal officers of the poles and wires of a light and power company, pending an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from a decree of a circuit court, dismissing a bill praying, among other things, an injunction to prevent such destruction until the right shall be determined, is, in and of itself, a contempt of the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, although such conduct may also be a violation of the temporary injunction order continued by the court below pending the appeal.

[For other cases, see Contempt, 6–16, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Contempt — excuse — punishment.

4. The honest belief that when an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from a decree of a circuit court, dismissing a bill asking injunctive relief against the removal or destruction by municipal officers of the poles and wires of a light and power company, had been dismissed and an order of dismissal entered, there was no reason in Barnes v. Chicago Typographical Union, No. 16, 232 Ill. 402, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1150, 122 Am. St. Rep. 129, 83 N. E. 932, and the conclusion reached that such power existed. "The question being by what court the contempt can be punished, the natural answer would be," said Cartwright, J., "by the court whose order is disobeyed and whose dignity and authority are defied. And indeed, it does not seem to be disputed that, if the proceeding is in the name of the people, for the purpose of maintaining the dignity and authority of the court, an appeal would present no obstacle to it. Such a proceeding is wholly independent of the appeal or any question to be considered by the appellate tribunal; and we see no substantial distinction between a prosecution for contempt, instituted for the purpose of punishing a person for disobeying an order of the court, on the ground that its authority or dignity is in question, and one which is instituted to enforce the authority of the court in the administration of justice between litigants. . . . When the transcript has been filed in the appellate court, if an act is committed which constitutes a contempt, it is not a contempt of the appellate court, but of the court which entered the decree, and which is conceded by all parties to remain in full force and effect."

---

The perfecting of an appeal with supersedeas from an injunction order does not stay the operation of the injunction, and the court in which the decree was rendered may still punish for contempt a violation of such injunction. State ex rel. Busch v. Dillon, 96 Mo. 56, 8 S. W. 781; Powhatan Coal & Coke Co. v. Ritz, 60 W. Va. 395, 9 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1225, 56 S. E. 257.

Indeed, it has been held that in such case the lower court has exclusive jurisdiction of the contempt proceedings. State ex rel. Bettman v. Harness, 42 W. Va. 414, 26 S. E. 270.

But in Wilkinson v. Dunkley-Williams Co. 141 Mich. 409, 104 N. W. 772, 7 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 40, the supreme court, while not disputing the power of the lower court, nevertheless itself proceeded to punish the contempt.

And in Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Krieger, 91 Ky. 625, 16 S. W. 824, it was held that a violation of a decree perpetuating an injunction after an appeal with supersedeas must be treated as in contempt and defiance of the appellate court, because "the lower court for the time has no power to enforce obedience to its mandate."

So, in Pennsylvania R. Co. v. National Docks & N. J. Junction Connecting R. Co. 54 N. J. Eq. 647, 35 Atl. 433, reversing 54 N. J. Eq. 167, 33 Atl. 936, it was held that after an appeal from a decree restraining interference with the building of a railroad suburban passageway, the decree had, for the time, lost all its force; and that to allow the chancellor to enforce his decree by contempt proceedings would be wholly inconsistent with the paramount cognizance given to the appellate court over the subject.

Where there is dissolution of the injunction, and an appeal with supersedeas, the contempt proceedings must be had in the appellate court. State ex rel. Mason v. Harper's Ferry Bridge Co. 16 W. Va. 864.

Contra, State ex rel. Barthet v. Houston, 37 La. Ann. 852, where, under similar circumstances, the trial court was held to possess jurisdiction to punish for contempt.

But see Turner v. Scott, 5 Rand. (Va.) 332, where the court was in doubt as to whether the proceeding ought to be in the lower or appellate court.

The trial court may punish a contempt consisting in the violation of an injunction which had been granted by that court in the first instance, but upon final hearing had been dissolved and the bill dismissed, when a writ of error had been sued out of the supreme court, upon which the decree of dismissal was reversed and the injunction reinstated and perpetuated. Gates v. McDaniel, 3 Port. (Ala.) 356. The court said: "The effect of the decree of the circuit court, so long as it remained unreversed, absolved all persons from the restraint imposed by the injunction. But so soon as that decree was reversed, the injunction revived and acquired all its original influence; the order of the judge, which had been superseded and temporarily vacated, received strength and became operative. And having thus its efficiency renewed, it stood as it did before its vacation, —an order of the circuit court. It will be recollected that this court did what the circuit court should have done, and nothing more; and had it decreed anything beyond reinstating and continuing the injunction, which it would be a contempt to disregard, such a contempt, it is possible, could only be punished here; for the reason that it would be no offense against any other tribunal. Not so when the injunction itself is set at naught; that having issued from the circuit court, and being approved by this court, disobedience to its restrictions may, with propriety, be punished there."

So, where a statute existed which provided that on appeal with a stay of proceedings, "all proceedings in the court below upon the judgment appealed from are stayed," it was held in Howe v. Searing, 6 Bosw. 686, that the lower court, pending the appeal, could not proceed against the defendant for contempt in disobeying the injunction appealed from, but that the defendant would act at its peril; and that if the judgment should be affirmed, the lower court could then punish the defendant.

See, however, Sixth Ave. R. Co. v. Gilbert Elev. R. Co. 71 N. Y. 430, where the court said that where an appeal with a stay of proceedings had been taken to the general term of the supreme court from an injunction decree rendered by the special term, which, under the New York statute, stayed "all proceedings on the part of the plaintiff in execution of the judgment," the court below should have, and doubtless has, the power, notwithstanding an appeal, to command respect for its judgments and obedience to its mandates until they are reversed.

A violation of a decree of a court of common pleas granting a perpetual injunction after an appeal taken to a circuit court with a view to a trial de novo is to be punished in the latter court, since the case by operation of law passed, upon perfecting the appeal, from the jurisdiction of the common pleas into that of the circuit court, a part of the case which so passed being the perpetual injunction from which the appeal was taken. Thereafter authority to suspend, modify, or enforce the injunction must be deemed to rest exclusively in the circuit court, in view of the provisions of Ohio Rev. Stat. 1906, § 5235, that when such appeal is taken and bond given, the judgment is thereby suspended unless some part of the final judgment appealed from be an injunction, in which case such injunction shall not be suspended except by order of the circuit court or two judges thereof, on reasonable notice to the adverse party. Menuez v. Grimes Candy Co. 77 Ohio St. 386, 83 N. E. 82, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1037.

The trial court—not the supreme court —is the proper forum to which an application should be made for an attachment for contempt in disregarding an injunction which had been granted by the circuit court, and affirmed on appeal by the supreme court. Gates v. McDaniel, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 69.

why such poles and wires should not be removed or destroyed, although not sufficient to acquit of a technical contempt of court where no mandate had issued or could have issued under the rules of the Supreme Court, may reduce the punishment to the payment of the costs of the contempt proceedings.

[For other cases, see Contempt, 24–26, 58–62, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 604.]

Return to rule argued January 26, 1911. Decided February 20, 1911.

IN Re Proceedings for contempt in the removal by municipal officers of the poles and wires of a light and power company after an appeal from a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kansas, dismissing a bill asking injunctive relief against such action, had been dismissed by the Federal Supreme Court, and an order of dismissal entered, but before any mandate had issued or could issue under the rules of the court. Rule discharged upon payment of the costs of the proceeding.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. F. L. Williams argued the cause, and, with Messrs. C. C. Coleman, D. R. Hite, and Mulvane & Gault, filed a brief for appellant:

This court is, of necessity, possessed of the power so to deal with the property as to make its final decision and judgment effectual.

Pennsylvania R. Co. v. National Docks & N. J. Junction Connecting R. Co. 54 N. J. Eq. 654, 35 Atl. 433.

Judgments and final decrees rendered by circuit courts cannot be attacked collaterally in such cases as the one at bar.

M'Cormick v. Sullivant, 10 Wheat. 192–199, 6 L. ed. 300–302; Evers v. Watson, 156 U. S. 527, 39 L. ed. 520, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 430; Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet. 193, 7 L. ed. 650; Kennedy v. Bank of Georgia, 8 How. 586, 12 L. ed. 1209; Des Moines Nav. & R. Co. v. Iowa Homestead Co. 123 U. S. 552, 31 L. ed. 202, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 217;

Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U. S. 327, 38 L. ed. 463, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611.

Authorities showing the practice and sustaining the power of the appellate courts to punish contemptuous conduct in violating the orders of the trial court are abundant.

People ex rel. Stidger v. Horan, 34 Colo. 304, 338, 114 Am. St. Rep. 163, 86 Pac. 252, 263; 9 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 32; Wilkinson v. Dunkley-Williams Co. 141 Mich. 409, 104 N. W. 772, 7 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 40; Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Krieger, 91 Ky. 625, 16 S. W. 824; State ex rel. Mason v. Harper's Ferry Bridge Co. 16 W. Va. 874; Lytle v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. 41 Tex. Civ. App. 112, 90 S. W. 316; State ex rel. Carroll v. Campbell, 25 Mo. App. 640; San Antonio Street R. Co. v. State, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 38 S. W. 59; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. National Docks & N. J. Junction Connecting R. Co. 54 N. J. Eq. 654, 35 Atl. 433; State v. Johnson, 13 Fla. 33.

Even if the case is one in which the court in which it is pending eventually determines that there is want of jurisdiction, the injunctional orders of the court are not therefore void.

Williamson's Case, 26 Pa. 21, 67 Am. Dec. 374; Ex parte Wimberly, 57 Miss. 437; Franklin Union No. 4 v. People, 220 Ill. 355, 4 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1001, 110 Am. St. Rep. 255, 77 N. E. 176; Posthlewaite v. Ghiselin, 97 Mo. 424, 10 S. W. 482; State ex rel. Union Depot R. Co. v. Southern R. Co. 100 Mo. 61, 13 S. W. 398; Dowdy v. Wamble, 110 Mo. 284, 19 S. W. 489; State ex rel. Egan v. Wolever, 127 Ind. 306, 26 N. E. 762; United States v. Shipp, 203 U. S. 563, 573, 51 L. ed. 319, 323, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 265.

It is contempt of the court in whch an action is pending for a litigant to destroy, remove, or conceal the subject of the litigation, or do any other act in respect to the subject of the litigation which may render nugatory the decision of the court.

Re Debs, 158 U. S. 564, 598, 39 L. ed. 1092, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 900; 9 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 8; Wartman v. Wartman, Taney, 362, Fed. Cas. No. 17,210; Richard v. Van Meter, 3 Cranch, C. C. 214, Fed. Cas. No. 11,763; State ex rel. Morse v. District Ct. 29 Mont. 230, 74 Pac. 412; Ex parte Kellogg, 64 Cal. 344, 30 Pac. 1030; Cottier v. People, 61 Ill. App. 30; People ex rel. Brooklyn Industrial School v. Kearney, 21 How. Pr. 77; State ex rel. Coleman v. Pittsburg, 80 Kan. 712, 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 226, 133 Am. St. Rep. 227, 104 Pac. 847; United States v. Shipp, 203 U. S. 563, 575, 51 L. ed. 319, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 265.

A disclaimer or denial of an intention to be in contempt of court, or to violate the court's orders, does not purge the accused parties of the contempt.

Hughes v. People, 5 Colo. 453; Wilcox Silver Plate Co. v. Schimmel, 59 Mich. 524, 26 N. W. 692; Dodge v. State, 140 Ind. 284, 39 N. E. 745; 7 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, p. 76; State v. Simmons, 1 Ark. 265; Watson v. Citizens' Sav. Bank, 5 S. C. 159.

The power of the Supreme Court to punish for contempt is not limited or restricted by statutory provisions.

Thomas, Constructive Contempt, pp. 210–212; State ex rel. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Bland, 189 Mo. 197, 88 S. W. 28, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1044; Smith v. Speed, 11 Okla. 95, 55 L.R.A. 402, 66 Pac. 511.

Mr. F. B. Dawes argued the cause, and, with Mr. R. C. Miller, filed a brief for respondents:

An appeal from the decision of the trial court in a case in which an injunction has been granted does not suspend the force or binding character of the injunction during the appeal, save only where the injunction is mandatory and commands some affirmative act to be performed. The trial court in which the original papers remain retains the sole jurisdiction to punish for the violation of its order which occurs during the pendency of the appeal.

Slaughter-house Cases, 10 Wall. 273, 19 L. ed. 915; State ex rel. Barthet v. Houston, 37 La. Ann. 852; Gates v. McDaniel, 3 Port. (Ala.) 356; 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 69; State ex rel. Matthews v. Chase, 41 Ind. 358; Central U. Teleph. Co. v. State, 110 Ind. 203, 10 N. E. 922, 12 N. E. 136; Dewey v. Superior Ct. 81 Cal. 64, 22 Pac. 333; Balkum v. Harper, 50 Ala. 372; State ex rel. Busch v. Dillon, 96 Mo. 56, 8 S. W. 781; State ex rel. Bettman v. Harness, 42 W. Va. 414, 26 S. E. 270; Bullion, B. & C. Min. Co. v. Eureka Hill Min. Co. 5 Utah, 151, 13 Pac. 174, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 449; Ex parte Whitmore, 9 Utah, 441, 35 Pac. 524; Sixth Ave. R. Co. v. Gilbert Elev. R. Co. 71 N. Y. 430; Fitzsimmons v. Board of Canvassers, 119 Mich. 147, 77 N. W. 632; Lindsay v. Clayton Dist. Ct. 75 Iowa, 509, 39 N. W. 817; Powhatan Coal & Coke Co. v. Ritz, 60 W. Va. 395, 9 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1225, 56 S. E. 257; Barnes v. Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, 232 Ill. 402, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1150, 122 Am. St. Rep. 129, 83 N. E. 932; State ex rel. Edwards v. Davis, 2 N. D. 461, 51 N. W. 942; 2 High, Inj. 4th ed. §§ 1431, 1698A, 1699; Beach, Inj. § 283; 1 Joyce, Inj. § 277; Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Norrie, 118 Fed. 923; Voorhees v. Albright, 2 N. J. L. J. 57, Fed. Cas. No. 16,999; Kirk v. Milwaukee Dust Collector Mfg. Co. 20 Fed. 501.

When, from the face of the bill, the court has no jurisdiction to pass upon and render a final judgment upon the subject-matter contained in the bill, it has no authority to issue a temporary injunction therein. If a temporary injunction has been issued and violated, and afterwards the court holds and finds on a demurrer that from the face of the bill it had no jurisdiction to proceed and render a final judgment, granting the relief prayed for, it cannot punish for the violation of the temporary injunction which it had no jurisdiction to issue.

Cooper v. Reynolds, 10 Wall. 308, 19 L. ed. 931; Hope v. Blair, 105 Mo. 85, 24 Am. St. Rep. 366, 16 S. W. 595; United States ex rel. McIntosh v. Crawford, 47 Fed. 561; Rapalje & Lawrence's Dict. Jurisdiction; Bouvier's Law Dict. "Jurisdiction;" 22 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 100; Joyce, Inj. § 246; Beach, Inj. § 246; High, Inj. § 1425; Rapalje, Contempts, § 16; McHenry v. State, 91 Miss. 562, 16 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1063, 44 So. 831; Ex parte Gardner, 22 Nev. 280, 39 Pac. 570; State ex rel. Evans v. Winder, 14 Wash. 114, 44 Pac. 125; State ex rel. News Pub. Co. v. Milligan, 3 Wash. 144, 28 Pac. 369; People ex rel. Brewer v. Kidd, 23 Mich. 440; Call v. Pike, 66 Me. 350; Dickey v. Reed, 78 Ill. 261; Morgan v. County Ct. 53 W. Va. 372, 44 S. E. 182; State ex rel. New Orleans v. Theard, 48 La. Ann. 1448, 21 So. 28; State ex rel. Register v. McGahey, 97 N. W. 865, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 650, 14 Am. Crim. Rep. 283; Freeman, Judgm. §§ 116, 119; State ex rel. Trudgeon v. Blair, 39 W. Va. 704, 20 S. E. 658; Re Turner, 119 Fed. 231; Ex parte Perkins, 29 Fed. 908; Evans v. Pack, 2 Flipp. 267, Fed. Cas. No. 4,566; Ex parte Fisk, 113 U. S. 713, 718, 28 L. ed. 1117, 1119, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 724; Re Sawyer, 124 U. S. 200, 221, 31 L. ed. 402, 409, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 482; American Lighting Co. v. Public Service Corp. 134 Fed. 130; United States v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 142 Fed. 176.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

The Merrimack River Savings Bank filed a bill in equity in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Kansas, claiming to be a creditor of the light and power company by bonds secured by mortgage upon its plant, property, and franchises, against the city of Clay Center, the Clay Center Light & Power Company, and certain individuals, officials of said city. The bill averred that the Clay Center Light & Power Company was a corporation owning and conducting a light and power plant at Clay Center under a perpetual franchise, authorizing it to place and maintain a line of poles and wires upon the streets of that city; that the city, claiming that its franchise had expired, had, through its council, *of which the individual defend-[533 ants were members, required said company to remove its poles and wires from the public streets, and that the officials named as defendants were threatening to cut down its poles and destroy its wires thereon, and thus destroy all possibility of operating its plant, to the irreparable ruin of the security to which the complainant must look for the payment of its bonds. A temporary injunction was issued to prevent the destruction of the lines of poles and wires as threatened. A demurrer to the bill for want of jurisdiction in the circuit court as a court of the United States was sustained and the bill dismissed. An appeal to this court was allowed and the injunction continued pending the appeal. Upon a hearing in this court, the appeal was dismissed without opinion. [218 U. S. 665, 54 L. ed. 1201, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 222.]

The present petition alleges that after this court had made an order dismissing said appeal, but before any mandate had issued or could issue under the rules of this court, and pending the right of petitioners to file an application for a rehearing, since filed and now pending, certain of the defendants to said appeal, namely, George W. Hanna, O. L. Slade, W. D. Vincent, S. D. Tripp, and G. P. Randall, had, by force and violence, cut down many of the poles and destroyed much of the cable and wires stretched thereon, and had put the light and power company out of business and disabled it so that it could not exercise its franchise or carry on its operations. It is averred that the said defendants did thus destroy the subject-matter of the suit, knowing that this appeal was pending and that this court had not lost control over the controversy, and that no mandate had issued and could not issue under the rules. The petition concludes by praying that the individual defendants named be cited and required to appear before this court and "show cause, if any they have, why they should not be proceeded against as for contempt of this court." Such a *rule was made, and the defendants[534 have appeared and made defense.

The respondents have moved to discharge the rule, because the petition fails to show that they have in any way violated any injunction, rule, order, or mandate of this court. This is bottomed, first, upon the claim that the injunction, which was continued pending the appeal to this court, is the injunction of the circuit court, and that any violation is cognizable only in the circuit court; and second, upon the claim that if that be so, that the petition fails to show any facts which constitute a contempt of this court.

The plain purpose of the order continuing the injunction pending this appeal was to preserve the subject-matter of the litigation until the rights of the complaint could be heard and decided. It is well settled that the force and effect of a decree dismissing a bill and discharging an injunction is neither suspended nor annulled as a mere consequence of an appeal to this court, even if a supersedeas is allowed. Slaughter-house Cases, 10 Wall. 273, 297, 19 L. ed. 915, 922; Hovey v. McDonald, 109 U. S. 150, 161, 27 L. ed. 888, 891, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Leonard v. Ozark Land Co. 115 U. S. 465, 29 L. ed. 445, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 127; Knox County v. Harshman, 132 U. S. 14, 33 L. ed. 249, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 8. That the circuit court, to the end that the status quo might be preserved pending such appeal, had the power to continue an injunction in force by virtue of its inherent equity power, is not doubtful. In Hovey v. McDonald, cited above, Mr. Justice Bradley, for the court, referring to what had been said in the Slaughter-house Cases as to the effect of an appeal, said:

"It was not decided that the court below had no power, if the purposes of justice required it, to order a continuance of the status quo until a decision should be made by the appellate court, or until that court should order the contrary. This power undoubtedly exists, and should always be exercised when any irremedial injury 535]*may result from the effect of the decree as rendered; but it is a discretionary power, and its exercise or nonexercise is not an appealable matter. In recognition of this power, and for the purpose of facilitating its proper exercise in certain cases, on appeals from the circuit courts, this court, by an additional rule of practice in equity, adopted in October term, 1878, declared that 'when an appeal from a final decree in an equity suit, granting or dissolving an injunction, is allowed by a justice or judge who took part in the decision of the cause, he may, in his discretion, at the time of such allowance, make an order suspending or modifying the injunction during the pendency of the appeal upon such terms as to bond or otherwise as he may consider proper for the security of the rights of the opposite party.' Rule 93."

Obviously, this may include a continuance of an injunction which would be otherwise vacated.

Plainly, the effect of continuing the injunction operated to continue in the circuit court such jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the litigation and of the parties as to enable it to preserve the status quo pending the appeal, including power to take cognizance of a violation of its injunction.

It does not necessarily follow that disobedience of such an injunction, intended only to preserve the status quo pending an appeal, may not be regarded as a contempt of the appellate jurisdiction of this court, which might be rendered nugatory by conduct calculated to remove the subject-matter of the appeal beyond its control, or by its destruction. This we need not decide, since, irrespective of any such injunction actually issued, the wilful removal beyond the reach of the court of the subject-matter of the litigation, or its destruction pending an appeal from a decree praying, among other things, an injunction to prevent such removal or destruction until the right shall be determined, is, in and of itself, a contempt *of the appellate jurisdiction of[536 this court. That such conduct may be a violation of the injunction below affords no reason why it is not also a contempt of this court. Unless this be so, a reversal of the decree would be but a barren victory, since the very result would have been brought about by the lawless act of the defendants which it was the object of the suit to prevent. See United States v. Shipp, 203 U. S. 563, 51 L. ed. 319, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 265; Richard v. Van Meter, 3 Cranch, C. C. 214, Fed. Cas. No. 11,763; Wartman v. Wartman, Taney, 362, Fed. Cas. No. 17,210; State ex rel. Morse v. District Ct. 29 Mont. 230, 74 Pac. 412; Ex parte Kellogg, 64 Cal. 343, 344, 30 Pac. 1030; State ex rel. Coleman v. Pittsburg, 80 Kan. 710, 712, 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 226, 133 Am. St. Rep. 227, 104 Pac. 847.

In Wartman v. Wartman, cited above, a case heard by Chief Justice Taney on the circuit, the question was whether a defendant who had parted with an alleged trust fund in his custody pending an application for an order requiring him to pay the money into court was thereby in contempt. His act was held to be in contempt of the authority of the court, as a final decree would be idle and nugatory if, pending the litigation, he should be held at liberty to put the fund beyond the reach of the process of the court.

The defendants have severally answered, and have denied under oath that they meant any contempt of this court. They say that when they were advised that the decree of the court dismissing the bill of complaint had been affirmed and an order of affirmance entered, that they honestly believed the case to be finally concluded, and that there was no reason why the order of the city council requiring the removal of the lines of poles and wires should not be carried out. This is an excuse, but does not acquit them of a technical contempt, since the appeal must be regarded as pending and undisposed of until a mandate issues. In view, however, of the good faith of the de-537]fendants, it is enough for the *vindication of the court under the circumstances of this case that the rule be discharged upon the payment of the costs of the proceeding.

T. L. ROUGHTON, Plff. in Err.,
v.
HARRY L. KNIGHT.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 537–548.)

Public lands — exchange of lands in forest reserve — power of Land Department.

1. The Land Department had the power to adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the administration of the act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. at L. 36, chap. 2, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1541), authorizing the selection of public lands in lieu of lands relinquished in a forest reserve.

[For other cases, see Public Lands, 813–815, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — exchange of lands in forest reserve — selection — repeal of statute.

2. An owner of patented land in a forest reserve whose deed to the United States, made in contemplation of an exchange under the act of June 4, 1897, was returned because not accompanied by a selection of lieu lands, as required by the regulations and practice of the Land Department, had no vested right to the exchange which would be saved by the exception in the repealing act of March 3, 1905 (33 Stat. at L. 1264, chap. 1495, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 581), in favor of selections theretofore made, and of existing contracts with the Secretary of the Interior.

[For other cases, see Public Lands, 813–815, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 711.]

Submitted January 6, 1911. Decided February 20, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of California to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the Superior Court of Kern County, in that State, dismissing the bill in a suit to have a patentee of public lands decreed to hold the legal title in trust for the complainant, claiming a vested right to an exchange under the forest reserve act. Affirmed.

See same case below, 156 Cal. 123, 103 Pac. 844.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. E. D. F. Brady and W. P. Fennell submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

Mr. E. O. Miller also submitted the cause for plaintiff in error. Mr. W. H. Morrissey was on the brief.

Messrs. S. D. Luckett and Charles R. Pierce submitted the cause for defendant in error.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

The question in this case is whether the complainant below, and plaintiff in error here, has acquired a vested right to an exchange of a 160-acre tract of land owned by him, and situated inside the exterior boundary of a forest reserve, for a tract of public land of similar area, by reason of acts done in compliance with the terms of that provision of the forest law act of June 4, 1897, [30 Stat. at L. 36, chap. 2, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1541], providing for such exchanges. The supreme court of California sustained a demurrer and dismissed his *bill. 156 Cal. 123, 103 Pac. 844.[544 A writ of error to that court brings the case here for review as to the Federal question.

That the complainant came within the terms of the act of June 4, 1897, there can be no doubt. He owned 160 acres of patented land within the exterior lines of a public forest reservation, and was entitled to relinquish title to the United States, and receive a patent for 160 acres of public land outside the reservation, to be selected by himself. The provision of that act conferring this privilege is set out in the margin, being found in the act of 1897, (30 Stat. at L. 36,† chap. 2, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1541).

The contention is that he lost his right because he neglected to make a selection and thereby complete any exchange until the act extending the privilege was repealed by the act of March 3, 1905, (33 Stat. at L. 1264, chap. 1495, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 581). The repealing act is set out in the margin.††

†"That in cases in which a tract covered by an unperfected bona fide claim or by a patent is included within the limits of a public forest reservation, the settler or owner thereof may, if he desires to do so, relinquish the tract to the government, and may select in lieu thereof a tract of vacant land open to settlement, not exceeding in area the tract covered by his claim or patent; and no charge shall be made in such cases for making the entry of record, or issuing the patent to cover the tract selected: Provided, further, that in cases of unperfected claims, the requirements of the laws respecting settlement, residence, improvements, and so forth, are complied with on the new claims, credit being allowed for the time spent on the relinquished claims."

545] *Before the repeal of the act, the plaintiff in error, in pursuance of the provisions thereof and of the regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, did these things:

He executed a deed of relinquishment to the United States, and caused the same to be duly recorded in June, 1899. He deposited this deed, together with an abstract of title, in the land office of the United States for the proper district at Visalia, California. This was in June, 1899. It is then averred that the deed and the abstract were forwarded to the Commissioner of the Land Office at Washington, and reached there about June 25, 1899, and were there retained until January 3, 1905, when they were returned to the Visalia, land office for delivery to the complainant, and were delivered to him January 9, 1905, and that no objection as to either form or sufficiency of the relinquishment was made by the Commissioner or any other official of the United States. Thus the matter stood from January 9, 1905, until March 3, when the repealing act was passed.

On March 14, 1905, eleven days after the repealing act, the plaintiff in error undertook to make a selection, and for that purpose filed his application to select the 160 acres subsequently patented to the defendant, with notice of the prior selection so made by complainant. Upon these facts he demanded that a patent should issue to him for the land so selected, but the Commissioner and the Secretary of the Interior denied power to issue any such patent, the law having been repealed before the selection was made.

The issue is a sharp one. The complainant insists that when he made and delivered his deed, with an abstract showing a clear title 546]to 160 acres *within a forest reservation, he became entitled to make a selection of 160 acres in lieu thereof at any time, and that the repeal of the act did not deprive him of the right to a patent for the land selected on March 14, 1905. The plaintiff in error does not bring himself within any of the exceptions to the repealing act. No selection actually made before the repeal has proven invalid, and there was no contract with the Secretary of the Interior to be saved from impairment, unless the acts referred to constitute, in and of themselves, such part performance as to constitute a contract with the Secretary of the Interior. That there was no such contract is evident from a consideration of the character of the exchange provision and the regulations adopted by the Secretary of the Interior, prescribing the method of carrying out the act. Upon its face the act is neither more nor less than a proposal by the government for an exchange of claims to land unperfected, or lands held under patents, situated within the exterior lines of a forest reservation, for an equal area of public land subject to entry elsewhere. The reasons for the provision are found in the disadvantages which result to such a settler or owner who had acquired his right before the creation of a reservation in the public lands surrounding him. He was thereby isolated from neighborhood association, and deprived of the advantage of schools, churches, and of increasing value to his own land from occupation by others of the lands thus devoted to reservation purposes. But the act did not prescribe the method by which one so situated might avail himself of the proposal. It was therefore competent for the Land Department to adopt rules and regulations for the administration of the act in this particular, and this was done, and those rules are found in 24 Land Dec. 592, 593.

In Cosmos Exploration Co. v. Gray Eagle Oil Co. 190 U. S. 301, 309, 47 L. ed. 1064, 1070, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 692, these regulations are referred to as reasonable and valid rules, *"entitled to respect and obe-[547 dience." The regulations which have a bearing here are rules 14, 15, and 16.

To take advantage of the proposal contained in this act, the applicant must select the land he wishes to receive in lieu, and file a sufficient relinquishment of land within a forest reserve. Manifestly there must be an acceptance of the relinquishment by someone authorized to decide upon its sufficiency, and an assent to the particular selection made in lieu.

††"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the acts of June fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, June sixth, nineteen hundred, and March third, nineteen hundred and one, are hereby repealed so far as they provide for the relinquishment, selection, and patenting of lands in lieu of tracts covered by an unperfected bona fide claim or patent within a forest reserve, but the validity of contracts entered into by the Secretary of the Interior prior to the passage of this act shall not be impaired: Provided, that selections heretofore made in lieu of lands relinquished to the United States may be perfected and patents issued therefor the same as though this act had not been passed; and if for any reason not the fault of the party making the same, any pending selection is held invalid, another selection for a like quantity of land may be made in lieu thereof."

It was not unreasonable that, in the administration of this act, the Land Department should limit the authority of any official to accept a relinquishment. As far back as April 14, 1899, the Secretary of the Interior construed the act and made the regulation before mentioned. In Hyde's Case, 28 Land Dec. 284, he instructed the Commissioner of the General Land Office that "the officers of the Land Department are not authorized to accept, consider, or pass upon a relinquishment of the tract within the limits of a forest reservation, except in connection with a proffered or tendered selection of other lands in lieu thereof."

In the case of Re Tevis, February 28, 1900, 29 Land Dec. 575, 576, the Secretary instructed the Commissioner in the same terms, saying: "Paragraphs 15 and 16 of the rules and regulations issued June 30, 1897, under said act (24 Land Dec. 589, 592), clearly require that in all cases of exchange of lands under said act, whether the land relinquished be 'a tract covered by an unperfected bona fide claim or by a patent,' an application to select lieu lands must accompany the relinquishment of the lands within the limits of a forest reservation."

In a ruling made February 24, 1900, Re Moses Land Scrip & Realty Co. 34 Land Dec. 458, in connection with the application for an exchange, the facts were nearly identical with those in the present case. The applicant filed his deed of relinquishment with abstract of title on January 12, 1905. He made no selection until March 30, 1905, a date subsequent to the repeal [548]of the *act. The proposal was rejected. Upon a review by the Secretary, the rejection was sustained, upon the ground that "no contract arises until a selection is made and the conveyance of the base tract filed in the Land Department. . . . Under the act of June 4, 1897, it is the filing of the deed in the local land office and the selection of land in lieu of that relinquished which initiates the exchange. Until that time the exchange is not initiated and is merely a purpose in the private owner's mind."

The regulation and practice of the Land Department in requiring that a deed of relinquishment shall be accompanied by a selection was not unreasonable. The return to this complainant of his deed of relinquishment several months before the repeal of the act was obviously due to his delay in presenting a case for the consideration of the Department.

That a proposal for an exchange of land within a forest reservation for lands outside may be withdrawn before acceptance is an obvious proposition. There having been no contract in force between this appellant and the Secretary of the Interior at the date of the repeal, he had no right to save under the exceptions in the repealing act.

There was no error in the judgment of the California Supreme Court, and it is therefore affirmed.

---

*CHICAGO, BURLINGTON, & QUINCY RAILROAD COMPANY and Chicago, Burlington, & Quincy Railway Company, Plffs. in Err., [549

v.

CHARLES L. McGUIRE.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 549–575.)

Constitutional law — freedom to contract — police power — railway relief fund — acceptance of benefits.

1. The freedom of contract is not unconstitutionally infringed by amending the provisions of Iowa Code, § 2071, which define the liability of railway corporations for injuries resulting from negligence and mismanagement in the use and operation of their railways, so that a railway company, when sued on such liability, is precluded from making the defense that a recovery is barred by the acceptance of benefits under a contract of membership in its relief department.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 891–894, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — classification of railway employees — railway relief.

2. An unconstitutional discrimination is not made by amending Iowa Code, § 2071, which defined the liability of railway corporations for injuries resulting from negligence or mismanagement in the use and operation of their railways, so that a railway company, when sued on such liability, may not raise the defense that a recovery is barred by the acceptance of benefits under a contract of membership in its relief

---

Note.—On the constitutionality of statutes restricting contracts and business—see note to State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

For a discussion of police power generally—see notes to State v. Marshall, 1 L.R.A. 51; Electric Improv. Co. v. San Francisco, 13 L.R.A. 131; State v. Schlemmer, 10 L.R.A. 135; and Barbier v. Connolly, 28 L. ed. U. S. 923.

As to the validity of class legislation—see notes to State v. Goodwill, 6 L.R.A. 621, and State v. Loomis, supra.

On constitutionality of statute forbidding deduction in damage suit because of insurance branch—see note to McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 33 L.R.A. (N.S.) 706.

department, although this provision of the amendatory act applies only to those employees who were embraced within the provisions of the original statute, and to the enforcement of the particular liabilities which that statute defined, and the benefits of such statute were confined to those engaged in the hazardous business of operating railroads.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 286–291, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 62.]

Argued and submitted December 5, 6, 1910. Decided February 20, 1911.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Iowa to review a judgment which, on a second appeal, affirmed a judgment of the District Court of Appanoose County, in that state, in favor of plaintiff in an action by a railway employee to recover damages for injuries received through negligence imputable to the company. Affirmed.

See same case below, 131 Iowa, 340, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 108 N. W. 902; on second appeal, 138 Iowa, 664, 116 N. W. 801.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. John J. Herrick argued the cause, and, with Mr. Chester M. Dawes, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

The duty rests upon all courts, Federal and state, when their jurisdiction is properly invoked, to declare unconstitutional and void any act of the legislature which impairs or destroys any right secured by the Constitution.

Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 107, 46 L. ed. 92, 107, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30.

Corporations are persons within the meaning of the 14th Amendment, and for that reason cannot be deprived by an act of the legislature of any right guaranteed by it, any more than natural persons.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 154, 41 L. ed. 667, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

Freedom of contract is one of the inalienable rights which is protected by the provision of the 14th Amendment, that no state shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; and for that reason any statute of the state which prohibits its exercise should be declared void by the court, unless the act can be sustained as a valid exercise of the police power.

Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

The contract of accord and satisfaction, resulting from the acceptance of benefits under the contract of membership, was a contract based on mutual considerations, and valid and enforceable as lawfully made by the parties, in the exercise of their power to contract.

Donald v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 93 Iowa, 284, 33 L.R.A. 492, 61 N. W. 971; Maine v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 109 Iowa, 260, 70 N. W. 630, 80 N. W. 315; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Moore, 152 Ind. 345, 44 L.R.A. 638, 53 N. E. 290; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Cox, 55 Ohio St. 497, 35 L.R.A. 507, 45 N. E. 641; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Bell, 44 Neb. 44, 62 N. W. 314; Beck v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 63 N. J. L. 232, 76 Am. St. Rep. 211, 43 Atl. 908; Johnson v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 163 Pa. 127, 29 Atl. 854; Ringle v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 164 Pa. 529, 44 Am. St. Rep. 628, 30 Atl. 492; Otis v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 137; Hamilton v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co. 118 Fed. 94; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Dunning, 94 C. C. A. 128, 166 Fed. 850; Day v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 102 C. C. A. 654, 179 Fed. 26; Owens v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 1 L.R.A. 75, 35 Fed. 715; Maryland use of Black v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 36 Fed. 655; Martin v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 41 Fed. 125; Vickers v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 71 Fed. 139; Shaver v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 931; State ex rel. Sheets v. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 68 Ohio St. 9, 64 L.R.A. 405, 96 Am. St. Rep. 635, 67 N. E. 93; Cox v. Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 1 Ohio N. P. 213, 2 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 594; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Hosea, 152 Ind. 412, 53 N. E. 419; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Gipe, 160 Ind. 360, 65 N. E. 1034; Lease v. Pennsylvania Co. 10 Ind. App. 47, 37 N. E. 423; Clinton v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 60 Neb. 692, 84 N. W. 90; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Curtis, 51 Neb. 442, 66 Am. St. Rep. 456, 71 N. W. 42; Oyster v. Burlington Relief Dept. 65 Neb. 789, 59 L.R.A. 291, 91 N. W. 699; Eckman v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 169 Ill. 312, 38 L.R.A. 750, 48 N. E. 496; Fivey v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 67 N. J. L. 627, 91 Am. St. Rep. 445, 52 Atl. 472; Fuller v. Baltimore & O. Employes' Relief Asso. 67 Md. 433, 10 Atl. 237; Petty v. Brunswick & W. R. Co. 109 Ga. 666, 35 S. E. 82; Carter v. Brunswick & W. R. Co. 115 Ga. 853, 42 S. E. 239; Harrison v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 144 Ala. 246, 40 So. 394, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 804.

The police power of the state is limited to such enactments as have some reasonable tendency to promote the public health, safety, morals, or welfare. In order to establish the validity of a law enacted under the police power, it must appear to the court, 1st, that the end in view is the promotion of some or all of these objects; and, 2d, that the law is appropriate and reasonably necessary to the end.

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 137, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 689, 699, 43 L. ed. 858, 861, 864, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

The statute only authorizes a recovery in suits brought (1) against railway corporations; (2) by a limited class of the employees of such corporations,—those whose ordinary duties are connected with the operation of the railroad; and (3) for damages for injury or death resulting from negligence connected with the operation of the railroad,—the movement of trains, etc., over the tracks of the company.

Deppe v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 36 Iowa, 52; Malone v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 65 Iowa, 417, 54 Am. Rep. 11, 21 N. W. 756; Akeson v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 106 Iowa, 54, 75 N. W. 676; Reddington v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 108 Iowa, 96, 78 N. W. 800; Hughes v. Iowa C. R. Co. 128 Iowa, 207, 103 N. W. 339; Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 130 Iowa, 580, 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 452, 107 N. W. 616, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 226.

It follows that in all that class of cases not within the provisions of the particular statute, in which there was a common-law liability for negligence,—the large class of cases in which the fellow-servant rule did not apply,—there could be a recovery at common law.

Baldwin v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co. 75 Iowa 297, 9 Am. St. Rep. 479, 39 N. W. 507; McQueeny v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 120 Iowa, 524, 94 N. W. 1124; Beresford v. American Coal Co. 124 Iowa, 34 70 L.R.A. 256, 98 N. W. 902; Klaffke v. Bettendorf Axle Co. 125 Iowa, 223, 100 N. W. 1116; Scott v. Iowa Teleph. Co. 126 Iowa, 527, 102 N. W. 432.

Even if it is assumed that the "end in view" was to promote the public safety, the prohibition was not appropriate and reasonably necessary for that purpose.

Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Cox, 55 Ohio St. 513, 35 L.R.A. 507, 45 N. E. 641.

Neither the rule of the defendant's relief department, nor the contract of membership, nor the contract of release, which, under the decisions, results from the acceptance of the benefits after the cause of action has accrued, limits in any way the company's liability for negligence.

Donald v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 93 Iowa, 284, 33 L.R.A. 492, 61 N. W. 971; Maine v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 109 Iowa, 260, 70 N. W. 630, 80 N. W. 315; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Moore, 152 Ind. 345, 44 L.R.A. 638, 53 N. E. 290; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Cox, 55 Ohio St. 497, 35 L.R.A. 507, 45 N. E. 641; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Bell, 44 Neb. 44, 62 N. W. 314; Beck v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 63 N. J. L. 232, 76 Am. St. Rep. 211, 43 Atl. 908; Johnson v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 163 Pa. 127, 29 Atl. 854; Ringle v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 164 Pa. 529, 44 Am. St. Rep. 628, 30 Atl. 492; Otis v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 137; Hamilton v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co. 118 Fed. 94; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Dunning, 94 C. C. A. 128, 166 Fed. 850; Day v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 102 C. C. A. 654, 179 Fed. 26.

There is nothing in the rule of the defendant's relief department, or the contract of release, that, under the decision, results from the acceptance of the benefits on the terms of the membership contract, which is detrimental to the public welfare.

Donald v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 93 Iowa, 284, 33 L.R.A. 492, 61 N. W. 971; Maine v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 109 Iowa, 260, 70 N. W. 630, 80 N. W. 315; Owens v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 1 L.R.A. 75, 35 Fed. 715; Maryland use of Black v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 36 Fed. 655; Martin v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 41 Fed. 125; Otis v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 136; Vickers v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 71 Fed. 139; Shaver v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 931; Hamilton v. St. Louis, K. & N. W. R. Co. 118 Fed. 92; Atlantic Coast Line Co. v. Dunning, 94 C. C. A. 128, 166 Fed. 850; Day v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 102 C. C. A. 654, 179 Fed. 26; Johnson v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 163 Pa. 127, 29 Atl. 854; Ringle v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 164 Pa. 529, 44 Am. St. Rep. 628, 30 Atl. 492; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Cox, 55 Ohio St. 497, 35 L.R.A. 507, 45 N. E. 641; State ex rel. Sheets v. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 68 Ohio St. 9, 64 L.R.A. 405, 96 Am. St. Rep. 635, 67 N. E. 93; Cox v. Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 1 Ohio N. P. 213, 2 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 594; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Moore, 152 Ind. 345, 44 L.R.A. 638, 53 N. E. 290; Pittsburgh,

C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Hosea, 152 Ind. 412, 53 N. E. 419; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Gipe, 160 Ind. 360, 65 N. E. 1034; Lease v. Pennsylvania Co. 10 Ind. App. 47, 37 N. E. 423; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Bell, 44 Neb. 44, 62 N. W. 314; Clinton v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 60 Neb. 692, 84 N. W. 90; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Curtis, 51 Neb. 442, 66 Am. St. Rep. 456, 71 N. W. 42; Oyster v. Burlington Relief Dept. 65 Neb. 789, 59 L.R.A. 291, 91 N. W. 699; Eckman v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 169 Ill. 312, 38 L.R.A. 750, 48 N. E. 496; Beck v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 63 N. J. L. 232, 76 Am. St. Rep. 211, 43 Atl. 908; Fivey v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 67 N. J. L. 627, 91 Am. St. Rep. 445, 52 Atl. 472; Fuller v. Baltimore & O. Employes' Relief Asso. 67 Md. 433, 10 Atl. 237; Petty v. Brunswick & W. R. Co. 109 Ga. 666, 35 S. E. 82; Carter v. Brunswick & W. R. Co. 115 Ga. 853, 42 S. E. 239; Harrison v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 144 Ala. 246, 40 So. 394, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 804.

The act is an unauthorized interference with the freedom of contract guaranteed by the 14th Amendment, and for that reason void.

Cox v. Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 1 Ohio N. P. 213, 2 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 594; Farrow v. Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 7 Ohio N. P. 606, 5 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 582; Shaver v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 931; Sturgiss v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 80 S. C. 167, 60 S. E. 939, 61 S. E. 261; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Dunning, 94 C. C. A. 128, 166 Fed. 850; Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Cox, 55 Ohio St. 497, 35 L.R.A. 507, 45 N. E. 641; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Moore, 152 Ind. 345, 44 L.R.A. 638, 53 N. E. 290.

A classification for the purpose of legislation cannot be made arbitrarily, but must always rest upon some difference which bears a reasonable and just relation to the act in respect to which the classification is made.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 155, 41 L. ed. 666, 668, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 746, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Fidelity Mut. Life Asso. v. Mettler, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. ed. 922, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 662; Duncan v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 377, 382, 38 L. ed. 485, 487, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Smith, 173 U. S. 684, 696, 43 L. ed. 858, 863, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 369, 30 L. ed. 220, 226, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064.

Mr. A. J. Baker submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. C. F. Howell and C. H. Elgin were on the brief:

While it is an imperative duty, from which no court will shrink, to declare void any statute the unconstitutionality of which is made apparent, due regard to the boundary between the legislative and judicial departments of our government requires that this prerogative be exercised with the greatest caution, and only after every reasonable presumption has been indulged in favor of the validity of the act.

McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 131 Iowa, 340, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 706, 108 N. W. 902; Sioux City Street R. Co. v. Sioux City, 78 Iowa, 371, 43 N. W. 224, 138 U. S. 98, 34 L. ed. 898, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 226; Sherman v. Smith, 1 Black, 587, 17 L. ed. 163; Miller v. New York, 15 Wall. 478, 21 L. ed. 98; Merchants' Union Barb Wire Co. v. Brown, 64 Iowa, 275, 20 N. W. 434; Holyoke Water-Power Co. v. Lyman, 15 Wall. 500, 21 L. ed. 133; Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 727, 25 L. ed. 496, 504; Oliver Lee & Co's Bank v. Talcott, 19 N. Y. 146; Stewart v. Polk County, 30 Iowa, 9, 1 Am. Rep. 238; Flint & F. Pl. Road Co. v. Woodhull, 25 Mich. 99, 12 Am. Rep. 233; Minnesota Iron Co. v. Kline, 199 U. S. 593, 50 L. ed. 322, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 159; Evans v. Job, 8 Nev. 322; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 746, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Duncombe v. Prindle, 12 Iowa, 1; Leep v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 58 Ark. 407, 23 L.R.A. 264, 41 Am. St. Rep. 109, 25 S. W. 75; Ex parte Davis, 21 Fed. 396; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. ed. 552, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dey, 82 Iowa, 344, 12 L.R.A. 436, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 584, 31 Am. St. Rep. 477, 48 N. W. 98; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathews, 165 U. S. 1, 41 L. ed. 611, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 13, 46 L. ed. 55, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Castle, 97 C. C. A. 124, 172 Fed. 841; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Herrick, 127 U. S. 210, 32 L. ed. 109, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176.

The Supreme Court of the United States may not consider evils which it is supposed will arise from the execution of the law, whether they be real or imaginary, in passing on the constitutionality of any given law; nor is it its province to pass upon the policy, wisdom, or justice of the statute, or the expediency of its enactment.

Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 492, 52 L. ed. 306, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 29 L. ed. 463, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; State v. Evans, 130 Wis. 381, 110 N. W. 241; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Kiley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 138 Wis. 215, 119 N. W. 309, 120 N. W. 756.

Liberty of contract is not a universal right, and may be abridged when required for the public good.

McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; People v. Erie R. Co. 198 N. Y. 369, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 240, 91 N. E. 849, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 811; Welsh v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 53 Iowa, 632, 6 N. W. 13; Jones v. Galena & C. Union R. Co. 16 Iowa, 6; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 649; Brush v. Sabula, A. & D. R. Co. 43 Iowa, 554; Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 112 Iowa, 594, 84 N. W. 673; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 86, 53 L. ed. 417, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 220; McCune v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 52 Iowa, 602, 3 N. W. 615; Rose v. Des Moines Valley R. Co. 39 Iowa, 246; Solan v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 95 Iowa, 260, 28 L.R.A. 718, 58 Am. St. Rep. 430, 63 N. W. 692, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 96, 32 L. ed. 352, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. New York, 165 U. S. 628, 41 L. ed. 853, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. James, 162 U. S. 650, 40 L. ed. 1105, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 934; Hennington v. Georgia, 163 U. S. 299, 41 L. ed. 166, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; Gladson v. Minnesota, 166 U. S. 427, 41 L. ed. 1064, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 627; Central Trust Co. v. Sloan, 65 Iowa, 656, 22 N. W. 916; Davis v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 83 Iowa, 744, 49 N. W. 77.

Analogous statutory provisions, even more drastic, have been upheld.

St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathews, 165 U. S. 1, 42 L. ed. 611, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Rodemacher v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. Co. 41 Iowa, 297, 20 Am. Rep. 592; Small v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 50 Iowa, 338; Garrett v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 83 Iowa, 257, 49 N. W. 88; Lewis v. Burlington Ins. Co. 71 Iowa, 97, 32 N. W. 190; Boyd v. Cedar Rapids Ins. Co. 70 Iowa, 325, 30 N. W. 585; Ross v. Hawkeye Ins. Co. 83 Iowa, 586, 50 N. W. 47; Holbrook Bros. v. Mill Owners' Mut. Ins. Co. 86 Iowa, 255, 53 N. W. 229; State v. Chovin, 7 Iowa, 204; Hoffbauer v. Davenport & N. W. R. Co. 52 Iowa, 342, 35 Am. Rep. 278, 3 N. W. 121; Everett v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 69 Iowa, 15, 58 Am. Rep. 207, 28 N. W. 410; Curl v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 63 Iowa, 417, 16 N. W. 69, 19 N. W. 308; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Hancock v. Yaden, 121 Ind. 366, 6 L.R.A. 576, 16 Am. St. Rep. 396, 23 N. E. 253; Reilly v. Franklin Ins. Co. 43 Wis. 449, 28 Am. Rep. 552; White v. Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. 4 Dill. 177, Fed. Cas. No. 17,545; Emery v. Piscataqua F. & M. Ins. Co. 52 Me. 322; Chamberlain v. New Hampshire F. Ins. Co. 55 N. H. 249; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Clements (Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Pettus) 140 U. S. 226, 35 L. ed. 497, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 158 Fed. 659; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Queen Ins. Co. v. Leslie, 47 Ohio St. 409, 9 L.R.A. 45, 24 N. E. 1072.

The legislature has a discretion vested in it ordinarily to determine when an act is necessary in the exercise of the reserve and police power. The legislature is conclusively presumed to have made a thorough investigation as to the necessity of each statutory amendment.

Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 457, 20 L. ed. 287; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Kiley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 138 Wis. 215, 119 N. W. 309, 120 N. W. 756; Watson v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 169 Fed. 947; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; People v. Budd, 117 N. Y. 7, 5 L.R.A. 559, 15 Am. St. Rep. 460, 22 N. E. 670; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. 605, 9 L. ed. 847; Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. De Bolt, 16 How. 428, 14 L. ed. 1002; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. ed. 989; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 104, 43 L. ed. 912, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Duncan v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 377, 38 L. ed. 485, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Marchant v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 153 U. S. 380, 38 L. ed. 751, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 894; Chicago, K. & W. R. Co. v. Pontius, 157 U. S. 209, 39 L. ed. 675, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Lowe v. Kansas, 163 U. S. 81, 41 L. ed. 78, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1031; Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U. S. 537, 41 L. ed. 256, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1138; Covington & L. Turnp. Road Co. v. Sandford, 164 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 560, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 198; Jones v. Brim, 165 U. S. 180, 41 L. ed. 677, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Indiana, 165 U. S. 304, 41 L. ed. 725, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 345; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226, 41 L. ed. 979, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Savings & L. Soc. v. Multnomah County, 169 U. S. 421, 42 L. ed. 803, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 392; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Tinsley v. Anderson, 171 U. S. 101, 43 L. ed. 91, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 805; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 29 L. ed. 463, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Skinner v. Garnett Gold Min. Co. 96 Fed. 735; Daniels v. Hilgard, 77 Ill. 640, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 280; Com. v. Hamilton Mfg. Co. 120 Mass. 383; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; State v. Wilson, 7 Kan. App. 428, 53 Pac. 371; Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 17, 46 L. ed. 57, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1.

All powers not delegated to United States by the terms of the Federal Constitution and its Amendments, or prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states. Subject to the authority thus expressly or by necessary inference delegated to the Federal government, the state has sovereign legislative power over all subjects, except such as are withheld from it by the Constitution of the state itself.

McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 131 Iowa, 349, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 706, 108 N. W. 902; Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. French, 109 Iowa, 588, 80 N. W. 660; New York v. Miln, 11 Pet. 102, 9 L. ed. 648; Watson v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 169 Fed. 947; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Castle, 97 C. C. A. 124, 172 Fed. 841; Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dey, 82 Iowa, 312, 12 L.R.A. 436, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 584, 31 Am. St. Rep. 477, 48 N. W. 98; Re Meador, 1 Abb. (U. S.) 317, Fed. Cas. No. 9,375; Wadleigh v. Develling, 1 Ill. App. 596; Moor v. Veazie, 32 Me. 343, 52 Am. Rep. 655; Beyman v. Black, 47 Tex. 558; Boyd v. Ellis, 11 Iowa, 97; Stewart v. Polk County, 30 Iowa, 9, 1 Am. Rep. 238; Purczell v. Smidt, 21 Iowa, 540; Morrison v. Springer, 15 Iowa, 324; Boyer v. Kinnick, 90 Iowa, 74, 57 N. W. 691.

If, under any possible state of facts, the act would be constitutional and valid, the court is bound to presume that such condition existed.

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; State v. Peckham, 3 R. I. 289; Re Ten Hour Law, 24 R. I. 603, 61 L.R.A. 612, 54 Atl. 602; McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 131 Iowa, 350, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 706, 108 N. W. 902.

The mere fact that legislation is special, and made to apply to certain persons, and not to others, does not affect its validity, if it be so made that all persons subject to its terms are treated alike under like circumstances and conditions.

Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Com v. Interstate Consol. Street R. Co. 187 Mass. 436, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 973, 73 N. E. 530, 2 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 419; State v. Nelson, 52 Ohio St. 88, 26 L.R.A. 317, 39 N. E. 22; People v. Smith, 108 Mich. 527, 32 L.R.A. 853, 62 Am. St. Rep. 715, 66 N. W. 382; People v. Walbridge, 6 Cow. 512; Dugger v. Mechanics' & T. Ins. Co. 95 Tenn. 245, 28 L.R.A. 796, 32 S. W. 5; Walston v. Nevin, 128 U. S. 578, 32 L. ed. 544, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192; Kane v. Erie R. Co. 68 L.R.A. 788, 67 C. C. A. 653, 133 Fed. 681; Duncan v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 377, 38 L. ed. 485, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Herrick v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. 31 Minn. 11, 47 Am. Rep. 771, 16 N. W. 413, 127 U. S. 210, 32 L. ed. 109, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176; Broadfoot v. Fayetteville, 121 N. C. 422, 39 L.R.A. 245, 61 Am. St. Rep. 668, 28 S. E. 515; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Montgomery, 152 Ind. 1, 69 L.R.A. 875, 71 Am. St. Rep. 301, 49 N. E. 582; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 746, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; State v. Tower, 185 Mo. 79, 68 L.R.A. 402, 84 S. W. 10; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; State v. Brown & S. Mfg. Co. 18 R. I. 16, 17 L.R.A. 856, 25 Atl. 246; People v. Bellet, 99 Mich. 151, 22 L.R.A. 696, 41 Am. St. Rep. 589, 57 N. W. 1094; McAunich v. Mississippi & M. R. Co. 20 Iowa, 338; Kilpatrick v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 74 Vt. 288, 93 Am. St. Rep. 887, 52 Atl. 531; Patterson v. The Eudora, 190 U. S. 169, 47 L. ed. 1002, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 821; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Hancock v. Yaden, 121 Ind. 366, 6 L.R.A. 576, 16 Am. St. Rep. 396, 23 N. E. 253; Shaffer v. Union Min. Co. 55 Md. 74, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 59; Kiley v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 138 Wis. 215, 119 N. W. 309, 120 N. W. 756; Tullis v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. 175 U. S. 348, 44 L. ed. 192, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; People v. Havnor, 149 N. Y. 205, 31 L.R.A. 689, 52 Am. St. Rep. 707, 43 N. E. 541; Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. ed. 989; Peirce v. Van Dusen, 69 L.R.A. 705, 24 C. C. A. 280, 47 U. S. App. 339, 78 Fed. 693; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 37 L. ed. 599, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Crider, 91 Tenn. 501, 19 S. W. 618; Butte v. Paltrovich, 30 Mont. 18, 104 Am. St. Rep. 698, 75 Pac. 521; Gano v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. 114 Iowa, 719, 55 L.R.A. 263, 89 Am. St. Rep. 393, 87 N. W. 714; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 29 L. ed. 463, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 154 U. S. 421, 38 L. ed. 1031, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 746, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Gutierrez, 215 U. S. 87, 54 L. ed. 106, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 104, 43 L. ed. 912, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609.

The Temple amendment under consideration was properly enacted in the exercise of the police power residing in the state of Iowa at the time it was exercised.

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Barron v. Baltimore, 7 Pet. 243, 8 L. ed. 672; Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 21 L. ed. 394; Shelley v. St. Charles County, 5 McCrary, 474, 17 Fed. 909; Farmers' Loan & T. Co. v. Stone, 20 Fed. 273; Sarony v. Burrow-Giles Lithographic Co. 17 Fed. 591; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dey, 82 Iowa, 344, 12 L.R.A. 436, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 584, 31 Am. St. Rep. 477, 48 N. W. 98; Ex parte Davis, 21 Fed. 396; McAunich v. Mississippi & M. R. Co. 20 Iowa, 343; Deppe v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 36 Iowa, 52; Iowa Electric Medical College Asso. v. Schrader, 87 Iowa, 668, 20 L.R.A. 355, 55 N. W. 24; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Herrick, 127 U. S. 210, 32 L. ed. 109, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 29 L. ed. 463, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Miller v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 65 Fed. 305; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Jones v. Galena & C. Union R. Co. 16 Iowa, 6; Welsh v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 53 Iowa, 632, 6 N. W. 13; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Brush v. Sabula, A. & D. R. Co. 43 Iowa, 554; Davis v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 83 Iowa, 744, 49 N. W. 77; Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. W. R. Co. 112 Iowa, 594, 84 N. W. 673; McCune v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 52 Iowa, 602, 3 N. W. 615; Rose v. Des Moines Valley R. Co. 39 Iowa, 246; Solan v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 95 Iowa, 260, 28 L.R.A. 718, 58 Am. St. Rep. 430, 63 N. W. 692; Central Trust Co. v. Sloan, 65 Iowa, 656, 22 N. W. 916; Rodemacher v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. Co. 41 Iowa, 297, 20 Am. Rep. 592; Small v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 50 Iowa, 338; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathews, 165 U. S. 1, 41 L. ed. 611, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Dayton Coal & I. Co. v. Barton, 183 U. S. 23, 46 L. ed. 61, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 5; Barron v. Burnside, 121 U. S. 186, 30 L. ed. 915, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 295, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 931; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Litcheld Coal Co. v. Taylor, 81 Ill. 590, 10 Mor. Min. Rep. 684; Com. v. Alger, 7 Cush. 53; Com. v. Hamilton Mfg. Co. 120 Mass. 383; Avent Beattyville Coal Co. v. Com. 96 Ky. 218, 28 L.R.A. 273, 28 S. W. 502; Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 13, 46 L. ed. 55, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. May, 194 U. S. 267, 48 L. ed. 971, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Farmers' & M. Ins. Co. v. Dobney, 189 U. S. 301, 47 L. ed. 821, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; 6 Words & Phrases, pp. 5, 424; People v. Budd, 117 N. Y. 1, 5 L.R.A. 559, 15 Am. St. Rep. 460, 22 N. E. 670; State v. Harrington, 68 Vt. 622, 34 L.R.A. 100, 35 Atl. 515; State v. Reynolds, 77 Conn. 131, 58 Atl. 755; Mill, Liberty, chap. 4; Powell v. Com. 114 Pa. 265, 60 Am. Rep. 350, 7 Atl. 913, 7 Am. Crim. Rep. 32, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Oil City v. Oil City Trust Co. 151 Pa. 454, 31 Am. St. Rep. 770, 25 Atl. 124; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 89, 34 L. ed. 621, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; Jamieson v. Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Co. 128 Ind. 566, 12 L.R.A. 652, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 613, 28 N. E. 76; Garrett v. Aby, 47 La. Ann. 630, 17 So. 238; Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U. S. 814, 25 L. ed. 1079; State v. Tower, 185 Mo. 79, 68 L.R.A. 402, 84 S. W. 10; Cooley, Const. Lim. chap. 7; Winter v. Jones, 10 Ga. 190, 54 Am. Dec. 379; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 436, 34 L. ed. 519, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930; Re Converse, 137 U. S. 624, 34 L. ed. 796, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 191; Mikkelson v. Truesdale, 63 Minn. 137, 65 N. W. 260; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Spangler, 44 Ohio St. 471, 58 Am. Rep. 833, 8 N. E. 467; Kane v. Erie R. Co. 68 L.R.A. 788, 67 C. C. A. 653, 133 Fed. 681; Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 39 L. ed. 657, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 586.

The opportunities of the employer and employed are not equal,—they are not on the same footing.

Kilpatrick v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 74 Vt. 288, 93 Am. St. Rep. 887, 52 Atl. 531; Freund, Pol. Power, 500–503; Archer v. James, 2 Best & S. 73, 31 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 153, 8 Jur. N. S. 166, 6 L. T. N. S. 167, 10 Week. Rep. 489; Hancock v. Yaden, 121 Ind. 366, 6 L.R.A. 576, 16 Am. St. Rep. 396, 23 N. E. 255.

The right of the state to regulate liberty of contract is peculiarly applicable to corporations.

New York & N. E. R. Co. v. Bristol, 151 U. S. 556, 38 L. ed. 269, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 437; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 746, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419, 64 Ark. 83, 37 L.R.A. 504, 62 Am. St. Rep. 154, 40 S. W. 705; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648, 39 L. ed. 297, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. ed. 552, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Dayton Coal & I. Co. v. Barton, 183 U. S. 23, 46 L. ed. 61, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 5; Chicago L. Ins. Co. v. Needles, 113 U. S. 574, 28 L. ed. 1084, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 25 L. ed. 496; Herrick v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. 31 Minn. 11, 47 Am. Rep. 771, 16 N. W. 413; State v. Brown & S. Mfg. Co. 18 R. I. 16, 17 L.R.A. 856, 25 Atl. 246; Pittsburgh, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Lyon, 123 Pa. 140, 2 L.R.A. 489, 10 Am. St. Rep. 517, 16 Atl. 607; State v. Peel Splint Coal Co. 36 W. Va. 802, 17 L.R.A. 385, 15 S. E. 1000; Tullis v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. 175 U. S. 348, 44 L. ed. 192, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Skinner v. Garnett Gold Min. Co. 96 Fed. 735; Union P. R. Co. v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. 64 C. C. A. 348, 128 Fed. 238; Com. v. New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. 129 Pa. 463, 15 Am. St. Rep. 724, 18 Atl. 412; Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 13, 46 L. ed. 55, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Sioux City Street R. Co. v. Sioux City, 78 Iowa, 746, 39 N. W. 498.

Special legislation affecting the rights and liabilities of railroad companies, or a distinct class or kind of corporations, does not constitute a denial of the equal protection of the laws, simply because the same regulation or restriction is not extended over other corporations or other kinds of business.

St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathews, 165 U. S. 1, 41 L. ed. 611, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Tullis v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. 175 U. S. 348, 44 L. ed. 192, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Chicago, K. & W. R. Co. v. Pontius, 157 U. S. 209, 39 L. ed. 675, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 746, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. ed. 552, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Fidelity Mut. Life Asso. v. Mettler, 185 U. S. 308, 46 L. ed. 922, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 662; Duncan v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 377, 38 L. ed. 485, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 154 U. S. 421, 38 L. ed. 1031, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Herrick, 127 U. S. 210, 32 L. ed. 109, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Peoria, D. & E. R. Co. v. Duggan, 109 Ill. 537, 50 Am. Rep. 619; Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dey, 82 Iowa, 312, 12 L.R.A. 436, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 584, 31 Am. St. Rep. 477, 48 N. W. 98; Gano v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. 114 Iowa, 719, 55 L.R.A. 263, 89 Am. St. Rep. 393, 87 N. W. 714; Cameron v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 63 Minn. 384, 31 L.R.A. 553, 65 N. W. 652; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Simonson, 64 Kan. 802, 57 L.R.A. 765, 91 Am. St. Rep. 248, 68 Pac. 653; Farmers & M. Ins. Co. v. Dobney, 189 U. S. 301, 47 L. ed. 821, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 565; Campbell v. Missouri P. R. Co. 121 Mo. 340, 25 L.R.A. 175, 42 Am. St. Rep. 530, 25 S. W. 936; State v. Nelson, 52 Ohio, 88, 26 L.R.A. 317, 39 N. E. 22; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. May, 194 U. S. 267, 48 L. ed. 971, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Cincinnati Street R. Co. v. Snell, 193 U. S. 30, 48 L. ed. 604, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 319; Iowa L. Ins. Co. v. Lewis, 187 U. S. 335, 47 L. ed. 204, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 126.

Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

Charles L. McGuire, the defendant in error, while acting as a brakeman in the service of the Chicago, Burlington, & Quincy Railroad Company, in Iowa, in the year 1900, received injuries through negligence imputable to the company, and recovered judgment in the district court of that state for the sum of $2,000. By stipulation, the Chicago, Burlington, & Quincy Railway Company *was joined[560 in the judgment. It was affirmed by the supreme court of the state of Iowa, and the companies bring this writ of error.

The question presented is with respect to the validity of § 2071 of the Code of Iowa, as amended in the year 1898, which was held to preclude the railroad company from making the defense that recovery was barred by the acceptance of benefits under a contract of membership in its relief department.

The section in its original form was as follows:

"Every corporation operating a railway shall be liable for all damages sustained by any person, including employees of such corporation, in consequence of the neglect of the agents, or by any mismanagement of the engineers or other employees thereof, and in consequence of the wilful wrongs, whether of commission or omission, of such agents, engineers, or other employees, when such wrongs are in any manner connected with the use and operation of any railway on or about which they shall be employed, and no contract which restricts such liability shall be legal or binding."

The amendment of 1898 added the following provision:

"Nor shall any contract of insurance relief, benefit or indemnity in case of injury or death, entered into prior to the injury, between the person so injured and such corporation, or any other person or association acting for such corporation, nor shall the acceptance of any such insurance relief, benefit or indemnity by the person injured, his widow, heirs, or legal representatives, after the injury, from such corporation, person, or association, constitute any bar or defense to any cause of action brought under the provisions of this section; but nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent or invalidate any settlement for damages between the parties subsequent to injuries received."

The question arose upon demurrer to the 561]defense in the *answer of the railroad company, which asserted the bar denied by the statute. This defense, in substance, alleged that in November, 1900, and prior to his injury, the defendant in error had voluntarily become a member of the relief department of the railroad company, and thereupon had agreed that the acceptance of benefits payable to him in accordance with the regulations of the department should discharge the company from all liability for damages; that after he had sustained the injuries alleged in his petition, he had received benefits from the relief fund of the department, amounting to $822; and that the payment and acceptance of these benefits constituted, under the agreement, full satisfaction of the claim in suit.

The facts with regard to the organization, purpose, and management of the relief department, and the regulations governing it, were fully averred. The department was organized in 1889, as a part of the service of the railroad company, with the object of creating a fund out of which definite amounts of money should be paid to contributing employees in the event of disability from sickness or accident, or, in case of death, for their proper burial and the relief of their families. The various companies forming the Burlington, system organized similar departments, and by agreement these were associated in joint administration.

The regulations of the relief department provided that membership in the department should be voluntary, and defined the amount of contributions to be paid monthly, the members being classified for this purpose according to their monthly wages. The amount of benefits according to these classes was also specified. The relief fund consisted of the contributions of members, income from investments, interest paid by the railroad company on monthly balances, and appropriations made by the company when necessary to cover deficiencies. From the time of organization to December 31, 1900, there was paid *in benefits out[562 of the fund so constituted the sum of $2,671,510.54, of which $1,294,790.50 was paid by reason of sickness, and $1,376,720.04 for injuries and death.

The railroad company had general charge of the relief department, and guaranteed the fulfilment of its obligations. It was responsible for the safe-keeping of the moneys of the relief fund, paid into the fund interest at the rate of 4 per centum per annum on monthly balances, supplied without expense to the fund the necessary facilities for the business of the department, and defrayed from the moneys of the company the operating expenses. It was alleged that for these expenses the company had paid to December, 1900, $621,572.44. This sum did not include office rent for the department or of medical examiners or various sundry expenses; nor did it embrace the service of officers and of clerks who were not wholly concerned with the work of the department, and this service and incidental expenses were alleged to be worth approximately $50,000 a year. In addition, during the period mentioned, the railroad company paid to make up deficits in the fund the sum of $42,532.94, for which it had no right to reimbursement.

Among the regulations by which the members of the relief department agreed to be bound was the following:

"64. In case of injury to a member, he may elect to accept the benefits in pursuance of these regulations, or to prosecute such claims as he may have at law against the company or any company associated therewith in the administration of their relief departments.

"The acceptance by the member of benefits for injury shall operate as a release and satisfaction of all claims against the company and all other companies associated therewith, as aforesaid, for damages arising from or growing out of such injury; and further, in the event of the death of a member, no part of the death benefit or un paid disability benefit shall be due or pay 563]able unless and until *good and sufficient releases shall be delivered to the superintendent, of all claims against the relief department, as well as against the company and all other companies associated therewith, as aforesaid, arising from or growing out of the death of the member, said releases having been duly executed by all who might legally assert such claims; and further, if any suit shall be brought against the company or any other company associated therewith, as aforesaid, for damages arising from or growing out of injury or death occurring to a member, the benefits otherwise payable and all obligations of the relief department and of the company, created by the membership of such member in the relief fund, shall thereupon be forfeited without any declaration or other act by the relief department or the company; but the superintendent may, in his discretion, waive such forfeiture upon condition that all pending suits shall first be dismissed.

"The payment by the company, or any company associated therewith, as aforesaid, of any amount in compromise of a claim for damages arising from or growing out of an injury to, or the death of, a member, shall preclude any and all claims for benefits from the relief fund, arising from or growing out of such injury or death."

In support of the defense based upon this regulation, the railroad company further asserted that the amended statute above quoted did not deprive it of the right to plead the contract with the defendant in error, and its satisfaction, as a discharge, for the reason that the statute was repugnant to the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, (1) as an unwarranted interference with liberty to make contracts, and (2) as a denial of the equal protection of the laws.

The district court overruled the demurrer, but its judgment was reversed by the supreme court of the state, which held the statute to be valid, and, in consequence, that the demurrer should have been sus- 564]tained. *McGuire v. Chicago B. & Q. R. Co. 131 Iowa, 340, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 786, 108 N. W. 902. This ruling was adhered to when the question was again raised on the appeal to that court from the final judgment. 138 Iowa, 664, 116 N. W. 801. And to review this decision as to the constitutionality of the statute, the case has been brought here.

We pass without comment the criticisms which are made of certain details of the relief plan, for neither the suggested excellence nor the alleged defects of a particular scheme may be permitted to determine the validity of the statute, which is general in its application. The question with which we are concerned is not whether the regulations set forth in the answer are just or unjust, but whether the amended statute transcends the limits of power as defined by the Federal Constitution.

The first ground of attack is that the statute violates the 14th Amendment by reason of the restraint it lays upon liberty of contract. This section of the Code of Iowa (§ 2071), as originally enacted, imposed liability upon railroad corporations for injuries to employees, although caused by the negligence or mismanagement of fellow servants. And it was held by this court that it was clearly within the competency of the legislature to prescribe this measure of responsibility. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Herrick, 127 U. S. 210, 32 L. ed. 109, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176, following Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161. The statute in its original form also provided that "no contract which restricts such liability shall be legal or binding."

Subsequent to this enactment, the railroad company established its relief department, and the question was raised in the state court as to the legality of the provision then incorporated in the contract of membership, by which, in case of suit for damages, the payment of benefits was to be suspended until the suit should be discontinued, *and the acceptance of 565 benefits was to operate as a full discharge. The two principal contentions against it were, first, that it was against public policy, and second, that it was in violation of the statute. Both were overruled, and with reference to the statute, it was held that the contract of membership did not fall within the prohibition, for the reason that it did not restrict liability, but put the employee to his election. Donald v. Chicago B. & Q. R. Co. 93 Iowa, 284, 32 L.R.A. 492, 61 N. W. 971; Maine v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 109 Iowa, 260, 70 N. W. 630, 80 N. W. 315. The legislature then amended the section by providing expressly that a contract of this sort and the acceptance of benefits should not defeat the enforcement of the liability which the statute defined.

Manifestly, the decision that the existing statute was not broad enough to embrace the inhibition did not prevent the legislature from enlarging its scope so that it should be included. Nor was the holding of the court final upon the point of public policy, so far as the power of the legislature is concerned. The legislature, provided it acts within its constitutional authority, is the arbiter of the public policy of the state. While the court, unaided by legislative declaration, and applying the principles of the common law, may uphold or condemn contracts in the light of what is conceived to be public policy, its determination as a rule for future action must yield to the legislative will when expressed in accordance with the organic law. If the legislature had the power to incorporate a similar provision in the statute when it was passed originally, it had the same power with regard to future transactions to enact the amendment.

It may also be observed that the statute, as amended, does not affect contracts of settlement or compromise, made after the injury, and the question of the extent of the legislative power with respect to such contracts is not presented. The amendment provides: "But nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent or in-[566]validate *any settlement for damages between the parties subsequent to injuries received." As was said by the state court in construing the act (131 Iowa, p. 377): "The legislature does not in this act forbid or place any obstacle in the way of such insurance, nor does it forbid or prevent any settlement of the matter of damages with an injured employee, fairly made after the injury is received. On the contrary, the right to make such settlement is expressly provided for in the amendment to Code, § 2071. The one thing which that amendment was intended to prevent was the use of this insurance or relief for which the employee has himself paid in whole or in part, as a bar to the right which the statute has given him to recover damages from the corporation." It is urged, however, that the amendatory act prohibits the making of a contract for settlement "by acts done after the liability had become fixed." The acceptance of benefits is, of course, an act done after the injury, but the legal consequences sought to be attached to that act are derived from the provision in the contract of membership. The stipulation which the statute nullifies is one made in advance of the injury, that the subsequent acceptance of benefits shall constitute full satisfaction of the claim for damages. It is in this aspect that the question arises as to the restriction of liberty of contract.

It has been held that the right to make contracts is embraced in the conception of liberty as guaranteed by the Constitution. Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764. In Allgeyer v. Louisiana, supra, the court, in referring to the 14th Amendment, said (p. 589): "The liberty mentioned in that Amendment means not only the right of the citizen to be free from the mere physical restraint of his person, as by incarceration, but the term is deemed to embrace the right of the citizen to be free in the enjoyment of all his faculties; to be free to use *them[567 in all lawful ways; to live and work where he will; to earn his livelihood by any lawful calling; to pursue any livelihood or avocation, and for that purpose to enter into all contracts which may be proper, necessary, and essential to his carrying out to a successful conclusion the purposes above mentioned." But it was recognized in the cases cited, as in many others, that freedom of contract is a qualified, and not an absolute, right. There is no absolute freedom to do as one wills or to contract as one chooses. The guaranty of liberty does not withdraw from legislative supervision that wide department of activity which consists of the making of contracts, or deny to government the power to provide restrictive safeguards. Liberty implies the absence of arbitrary restraint, not immunity from reasonable regulations and prohibitions imposed in the interests of the community. Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 89, 34 L. ed. 621, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 765. "It is within the undoubted power of government to restrain some individuals from all contracts, as well as all individuals from some contracts. It may deny to all the right to contract for the purchase or sale of lottery tickets; to the minor the right to assume any obligations, except for the necessaries of existence; to the common carrier the power to make any contract releasing himself from negligence; and, indeed, may restrain all engaged in any employment from any contract in the course of that employment which is against public policy. The possession of this power by government in no manner conflicts with the proposition that, generally speaking, every citizen has a right freely to contract for the price of his labor, services, or property." Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 165, 166, 39 L. ed. 658, 659, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 586.

The right to make contracts is subject to the exercise of the powers granted to Congress for the suitable conduct of matters of national concern; as, for example, the regulation of commerce with foreign nation and among the *several states.[568

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 228-231, 44 L. ed. 142-144, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Patterson v. The Eudora, 190 U. S. 174-176, 47 L. ed. 1006, 1007, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 821; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, ante, 167, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley (decided this day) 219 U. S. 467, ante, 297, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

It is subject, also, in the field of state action, to the essential authority of government to maintain peace and security, and to enact laws for the promotion of the health, safety, morals, and welfare of those subject to its jurisdiction. This limitation has had abundant illustration in a variety of circumstances. Thus, in addition to upholding the power of the state to require reasonable maximum charges for public service (Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Iowa (Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Cutts) 94 U. S. 155, 24 L. ed. 94; Railroad Commission Cases, 116 U. S. 307, 29 L. ed. 636, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334, 388, 1191; Willcox v. Consolidated Gas Co. 212 U. S. 19, 53 L. ed. 382, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1034), and to prescribe the hours of labor for those employed by the state or its municipalities (Atkin v. Kansas, 191 U. S. 207, 48 L. ed. 148, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124), this court has sustained the validity of state legislation in prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors within the state (Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Crowley v. Christensen, supra); in limiting employment in underground mines or workings, and in smelters and other institutions for the reduction or refining of ores or metals, to eight hours a day, except in cases of emergency (Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383); in prohibiting the sale of cigarettes without license (Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633); in requiring the redemption in cash of store orders or other evidences of indebtedness issued in payment of wages (Knoxville Iron Co. v. Harbison, 183 U. S. 13, 46 L. ed. 55, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1); in prohibiting contracts for options to sell or buy grain or other commodity at a future time (Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425); in prohibiting the employment of women in laundries more than ten hours a day (Muller v. Oregon, 208 U. S. 412, 52 L. ed. 551, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 324, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 957); and in making it unlawful to contract to pay miners employed at quantity rates upon the basis of screened coal, in[569] stead of the weight *of the coal as originally produced in the mine (McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206).

The principle involved in these decisions is that where the legislative action is arbitrary and has no reasonable relation to a purpose which it is competent for government to effect, the legislature transcends the limits of its power in interfering with liberty of contract; but where there is reasonable relation to an object within the governmental authority, the exercise of the legislative discretion is not subject to judicial review. The scope of judicial inquiry in deciding the question of power is not to be confused with the scope of legislative considerations in dealing with the matter of policy. Whether the enactment is wise or unwise, whether it is based on sound economic theory, whether it is the best means to achieve the desired result, whether, in short, the legislative discretion within its prescribed limits should be exercised in a particular manner, are matters for the judgment of the legislature, and the earnest conflict of serious opinion does not suffice to bring them within the range of judicial cognizance.

The principle was thus stated in McLean v. Arkansas, supra, pp. 547, 548: "The legislature, being familiar with local conditions, is, primarily, the judge of the necessity of such enactments. The mere fact that a court may differ with the legislature in its views of public policy, or that judges may hold views inconsistent with the propriety of the legislation in question, affords no ground for judicial interference, unless the act in question is unmistakably and palpably in excess of legislative power [Cases cited.] . . . If there existed a condition of affairs concerning which the legislature of the state, exercising its conceded right to enact laws for the protection of the health, safety, or welfare of the people, might pass the law, it must be sustained; if such action was arbitrary interference with the right to contract or carry on business, and having no just relation to the protection of the public *within the scope of legislative power,[570] the act must fail."

In dealing with the relation of employer and employed, the legislature has necessarily a wide field of discretion in order that there may be suitable protection of health and safety, and that peace and good order may be promoted through regulations designed to insure wholesome conditions of work and freedom from oppression. What differences, as to the extent of this power, may exist with respect to particular employments, and how far that which may be authorized as to one department of activity may appear to be arbitrary in another, must be determined as cases are presented for decision. But it is well established that, so far as its regulations are valid, not being arbitrary or unrelated to a proper purpose, the legislature undoubtedly may prevent them from being nullified by prohibiting contracts which, by modification or waiver, would alter or impair the obligation imposed. If the legislature may require the use of safety devices, it may prohibit agreements to dispense with them. If it may restrict employment in mines and smelters to eight hours a day, it may make contracts for longer service unlawful. In such case the interference with the right to contract is incidental to the main object of the regulation, and if the power exists to accomplish the latter, the interference is justified as an aid to its exercise. As was pointed out in Holden v. Hardy, supra, on page 397: "The legislature has also recognized the fact, which the experience of legislators in many states has corroborated, that the proprietors of these establishments and their operatives do not stand upon an equality, and that their interests are, to a certain extent, conflicting. The former naturally desire to obtain as much labor as possible from their employees, while the latter are often induced by the fear of discharge to conform to regulations which their judgment, fairly exercised, would pronounce to be detri-571]mental to their health or *strength. In other words, the proprietors lay down the rules and the laborers are practically constrained to obey them. In such cases self-interest is often an unsafe guide, and the legislature may properly interpose its authority. . . . But the fact that both parties are of full age and competent to contract does not necessarily deprive the state of the power to interfere where the parties do not stand upon an equality, or where the public health demands that one party to the contract shall be protected against himself. 'The state still retains an interest in his welfare, however reckless he may be. The whole is no greater than the sum of all the parts, and when the individual health, safety, and welfare are sacrificed or neglected, the state must suffer.'"

Here there is no question as to the validity of the regulation or as to the power of the state to impose the liability which the statute prescribes. The statute relates to that phase of the relation of master and servant which is presented by the case of railroad corporations. It defined the liability of such corporations for injuries resulting from negligence and mismanagement in the use and operation of their railways. In the cases within its purview it extended the liability of the common law by abolishing the fellow-servant rule. Having authority to establish this regulation, it is manifest that the legislature was also entitled to insure its efficacy by prohibiting contracts in derogation of its provisions. In the exercise of this power, the legislature was not limited with respect either to the form of the contract, or the nature of the consideration, or the absolute or conditional character of the engagement. It was as competent to prohibit contracts which, on a specified event, or in a given contingency, should operate to relieve the corporation from the statutory liability which would otherwise exist, as it was to deny validity to agreements of absolute waiver.

The policy of the amendatory act was the same as that *of the original stat-[572 ute. Its provision that contracts of insurance relief, benefit or indemnity, and the acceptance of such benefits, should not defeat recovery under the statute, was incidental to the regulation it was intended to enforce. Assuming the right of enforcement, the authority to enact this inhibition cannot be denied. If the legislature had the power to prohibit contracts limiting the liability imposed, it certainly could include in the prohibition stipulations of that sort in contracts of insurance relief, benefit or indemnity, as well as in other agreements. But if the legislature could specifically provide that no contract for insurance relief should limit the liability for damages, upon what ground can it be said that it was beyond the legislative authority to deny that effect to the payment of benefits, or the acceptance of such payment, under the contract?

The asserted distinction is sought to be based upon the fact that under the contract of membership, the employee has an election after the injury. But this circumstance, however appropriate it may be for legislative consideration, cannot be regarded as defining a limitation of legislative power. The power to prohibit contracts, in any case where it exists, necessarily implies legislative control over the transaction, despite the action of the parties. Whether this control may be exercised in a particular case depends upon the relation of the transaction to the execution of a policy which the state is competent to establish. It does not aid the argument to describe the defense as one of accord and satisfaction. The payment of benefits is the performance of the promise to pay, contained in the contract of membership. If the legislature may prohibit the acceptance of the promise as a substitution for the statutory liability, it should also be able to prevent the like substitution of its performance.

For the reasons we have stated, the considerations which properly bear upon the 573] wisdom of the legislation *need not be discussed. On the one hand it is said that the relief department is in the control of the corporation; that by reason of their exigency the employees may readily be constrained to become members; that the relief fund consists in larger part of contributions made from wages; that the acceptance of benefits takes place at a time when the employee is suffering from the consequences of his injury, and, being seriously in need of aid, he may easily be induced to accept payment from the fund in which, by reason of his contributions, he feels that he is entitled to share; and that such a plan, if it were permitted, through the payment of benefits, to result in a discharge of the liability for negligence, would operate to transfer from the corporation to its employees a burden which, in the interest of their protection and the safety of the public, the corporation should be compelled to bear. On the other hand, it is urged that the relief plan is a beneficent scheme, avoiding the waste of litigation, securing prompt relief in case of need due to sickness or injury, making equitable provision for deserving cases, and hence tends in an important way to promote the good of the service and the security of the employment. Even a partial statement of these various considerations shows clearly that they are of a character to invoke the judgment of the legislature in deciding, within the limits of its power, upon the policy of the state. And whether the policy declared by the statute in question is approved or disapproved, it cannot be said that the legislative power has been exceeded, either in defining the liability or in the means taken to prevent the legislative will, with respect to it, from being thwarted.

The second ground upon which the statute, as amended, is assailed, is that it constitutes a denial of the equal protection of the laws.

It is urged that the prohibition of the amendatory act applies only to those employees of railroad corporations who were embraced within the provision of the origi-574] nal *statute, and to the enforcement of the particular liabilities which that statute defined. The limitation to a particular class of employees of railroad corporations is based upon the decisions of the state court that the benefits of the original statute were confined to those who were engaged in the hazardous business of operating railroads. Deppe v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 36 Iowa, 52; Malone v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 65 Iowa, 417, 54 Am. Rep. 11, 21 N. W. 756; Akeson v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 106 Iowa, 54, 75 N. W. 676. It is said that all employees of the plaintiffs in error may become members of the relief department, and that the limited application of the amendment, as to the effect of the acceptance of benefits under the membership contract, is an invalid discrimination.

It was, however, entirely competent for the legislature, in enacting the prohibition, for the purpose of securing the enforcement of the liability it had defined, to limit it to those cases in which the liability arose. As the purpose of the amendment was to supplement the original statute, the classification was properly the same. And with respect to subsequent transactions, the amendment must be regarded as having the same validity as it would have had if it had formed a part of the earlier enactment. No criticism on the ground of discrimination can successfully be addressed to the amendatory act which would not likewise impeach the statute in its earlier form.

But the propriety of the classification of the original statute was considered and upheld by this court. And the validity of legislation abrogating the fellow-servant rule, both with respect to the class of cases embraced in the statute, and also where it is abolished as to railway employees generally, has been sustained. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Herriek, 127 U. S. 210, 32 L. ed. 109, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Melton, 218 U. S. 36, 54 L. ed. 921, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed, 219 U. S. 35, ante, 78, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136. In view of the full discussion of this subject in the recent decisions *above cited, nothing[575 further need be said upon this point.

We find none of the objections which have been made to the validity of the amendatory act to be well taken, and the judgment is therefore affirmed.

NOBLE STATE BANK, Plff. in Err.,
v.
C. N. HASKELL et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 575–580.)

Eminent domain — public use — creating bank guaranty fund.

The levy and collection, under a state statute, from every bank existing under the state laws, of an assessment based upon average daily deposits, for the purpose of creating a depositors' guaranty fund to secure the full repayment of deposits in case any such bank becomes insolvent, is for a public use, although, judged from the proximate effect of the taking, the use seems to be a private one.

[For other cases, see Eminent Domain, I. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 71.]

Petition for rehearing presented January 27, 1911. Amended opinion filed February 20, 1911.

ON MOTION for leave to file petition for rehearing of a writ of error to the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court of Logan County, in that state, dismissing the petition in a suit to enjoin the levy and collection from a state bank of an assessment for the purpose of creating a depositors' guaranty fund. Original opinion amended.

See ante, 112.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr C. B. Ames in support of the motion:

Private property cannot be taken for private use, and, if taken for public use, there must be compensation.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 417, 41 L. ed. 489, 495, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Wilkinson v. Leland, 2 Pet. 627. 658, 7 L. ed. 542, 553; Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 635, 29 L. ed. 746, 752, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 137, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499, 501; Cole v. La Grange, 113 U. S. 1, 28 L. ed. 896, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416, 418; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 558, 46 L. ed. 679, 689, 22 Sup Ct. Rep. 431, 438; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226, 41 L. ed. 979, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581, 586; Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co. 197 U. S. 544, 49 L. ed. 872, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522, 527; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 350, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; 8 Rose's Notes (U. S.) 362; Garland v. Montgomery County, 87 Ala. 227, 6 So. 403; McClelland v. State, 138 Ind. 332, 37 N. E. 1092; State ex rel. Griffith v. Osawkee Twp. 14 Kan. 428, 19 Am. Rep. 100; Blain v. Riley County Agri. Soc. 21 Kan. 560; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Atchison, 47 Kan. 714, 28 Pac. 1001; Geneseo v. Geneseo Natural Gas, Coal, Oil, Salt & Mineral Co. 55 Kan. 362, 40 Pac. 656; Lancaster v. Clayton, 86 Ky. 380, 5 S. W. 864; Baltimore & E. S. R. Co. v. Spring, 80 Md. 517, 27 L.R.A. 74, 31 Atl. 210; Kingman v. Brockton, 153 Mass. 259, 11 L.R.A. 125, 26 N. E. 999; Opinion of Justices, 155 Mass. 601, 15 L.R.A. 810, 30 N. E. 1144; Deal v. Mississippi County, 107 Mo. 469, 14 L.R.A. 623, 18 S. W. 25; State ex rel. Garth v. Switzler, 143 Mo. 314, 40 L.R.A. 285, 65 Am. St. Rep. 658, 45 S. W. 248; Manning v. Klippel, 9 Or. 370; Feldman v. Charleston, 23 S. C. 63, 55 Am. Rep. 9; Mauldin v. Greenville, 53 S. C. 293, 43 L.R.A. 104, 69 Am. St. Rep. 860, 31 S. E. 254; Williams v. Davidson, 43 Tex. 37; Brooke Academy v. George, 14 W. Va. 420, 35 Am. Rep. 762; Pittsburg, W. & K. R. Co. v. Benwood Iron Works, 31 W. Va. 734, 2 L.R.A. 690, 8 S. E. 466; Wisconsin Keeley Institute v. Milwaukee County, 95 Wis. 161, 36 L.R.A. 59, 60 Am. St. Rep. 110, 70 N. W. 71; Hope v. Board of Liquidation, 43 La. Ann. 780, 9 So. 769; State ex rel. Rosenblatt v. Sargent, 12 Mo. App. 241; 2 Kent, Com. 329; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 85 Ala. 619, 7 L.R.A. 266, 5 So. 311; Sadler v. Langham, 34 Ala. 330; Billings v. Hall, 7 Cal. 10; Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. Co. 17 Conn. 40, 42 Am. Dec. 716; Wilder v. Lumpkin, 4 Ga. 215; Great Western Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Hawkins, 30 Ind. App. 566, 66 N. E. 765; Blackman v. Halves, 72 Ind. 515; Bankhead v. Brown, 25 Iowa, 540; Harding v. Funk, 8 Kan. 323; Bank of Louisville v. Public Schools, — Ky. —, 5 S. W. 737; Allen v. Jay, 60 Me. 124, 11 Am. Rep. 197; University of Maryland v. Williams, 9 Gill & J. 365, 31 Am. Dec. 79; Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 56; Michigan Sugar Co. v. Auditor General, 124 Mich. 674, 56 L.R.A. 329, 83 Am. St. Rep. 357, 83 N. W. 625; Coates v. Campbell, 37 Minn. 498, 35 N. W. 366; State ex rel. Wheeler v. Foley, 30 Minn. 350, 15 N. W. 379; Moody v. Hoskins, 64 Miss. 468, 1 So. 623; Newby v. Platte County, 25 Mo. 261; Dickey v. Tennison, 27 Mo. 373; Atchison & N. R. Co. v. Baty, 6 Neb. 37, 29 Am. Rep. 362; Ten Eyck v. Delaware & R. Canal Co. 18 N. J. L. 200, 37 Am. Dec. 233; Coster v. Tide Water Co. 18 N. J. Eq. 63; Taylor v. Porter, 4 Hill, 140, 40 Am. Dec. 274; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H.

Note.—As to what constitutes a taking of private property for public use—see notes to Memphis & C. R. Co. v. Birmingham, S. & T. River R. Co. 18 L.R.A. 166; D. M. Osborne & Co. v. Missouri P. R. Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 156; Sweet v. Rechel, 40 L. ed. U. S. 188; A. Backus, Jr. & Sons v. Fort Street Union Depot Co. 42 L. ed. U. S. 853; and High Bridge Lumber Co. v. United States, 16 C. C. A. 468.

On combination of public and private uses—see note to Wisconsin River Improv. Co. v. Pier, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 538.

As to what uses are public—see note to Sweet v. Rechel, 40 L. ed. U. S. 188.

River R. Co. 18 Wend. 9, 31 Am. Dec. 316; Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 515, 53 Am. Dec. 325; Reeves v. Wood County, 8 Ohio St. 347; Lamb v. Lane, 4 Ohio St. 178; Lucas County v. State (Davies v. State) 75 Ohio St. 114, 7 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1196, 78 N. E. 955; Witham v. Osbourn, 4 Or. 318, 18 Am. Rep. 290; Sharpless v. Philadelphia, 21 Pa. 169, 59 Am. Dec. 759; Harding v. Goodlett, 3 Yerg. 43, 24 Am. Dec. 546; Clack v. White, 2 Swan, 549; Dilworth v. State, 36 Tex. Crim. Rep. 189, 36 S. W. 274; State ex rel. Garrett v. Froehlich, 118 Wis. 129, 61 L.R.A. 345, 99 Am. St. Rep. 985, 94 N. W. 50; United States v. Douglas-Willan Sartoris Co. 3 Wyo. 287, 22 Pac. 96.

580] *Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

Leave to file an application for rehearing is asked in this case. We see no reason to grant it, but, as the judgment delivered seems to have conveyed a wrong impression of the opinion of the court in some details, we add a few words to what was said when the case was decided. We fully understand the practical importance of the question, and the very powerful argument that can be made against the wisdom of the legislation, but on that point we have nothing to say, as it is not our concern. Clark v. Nash, 198 U. S. 361, 49 L. ed. 1085, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1171; Strickley v. Highland Boy Gold Min. Co. 200 U. S. 527, 50 L. ed. 581, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1174, were cited to establish, not that property might be taken for a private use, but that, among the public uses for which it might be taken, were some which, if looked at only in their immediate aspect, according to the proximate effect of the taking, might seem to be private. This case, in our opinion, is of that sort. The analysis of the police power, whether correct or not, was intended to indicate an interpretation of what has taken place in the past, not to give a new or wider scope to the power. The propositions with regard to it, however, in any form, are rather in the nature of preliminaries. For in this case there is no out-and-out unconditional taking at all. The payment can be avoided by going out of the banking business, and is required only as a condition for keeping on, from corporations created by the state. We have given what we deem sufficient reasons for holding that such a condition may be imposed.

MEMORANDA

OF

CASES DISPOSED OF WITHOUT OPINIONS.

581]*BUCK'S STOVE & RANGE COMPANY, Appellant, v. AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR et al. [No. 190]; AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR et al., Appellants, v. BUCK'S STOVE & RANGE COMPANY [No. 394.]

Appeal—dismissal—moot case

Cross Appeals from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a decree which modified, and, as so modified, affirmed a decree of the Supreme Court of the District enjoining defendants from interfering with complainant's business

See same case below, 33 App. D. C. 83, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 748.

Messrs. Daniel Davenport and J. J. Darlington for Buck's Stove & Range Company.

Messrs. Alton B. Parker, Jackson H. Ralston, F. L. Siddons, and W. E. Richardson for American Federation of Labor et al.

February 20, 1911. Per Curiam: When these cases were reached for hearing, and after the argument had materially progressed, it developed from statements made by counsel for both parties that the cases had become purely moot because of the settlement between the parties of every material controversy which the record presented. On the disclosure of this situation, further argument was dispensed with; and for the reason which led to that action, that is, as we have said, that the controversies between the parties had become in all respects moot, the appeals must be dismissed. Richardson v. McChesney, 218 U. S. 487, 492, 54 L. ed. 1121, 1122, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43, and cases cited. Appeals dismissed without costs to either party.

582]*STATE OF MINNESOTA EX REL. JALMER M. LARSEN, Plaintiff in Error, v. HUGH R. SCOTT, as Auditor of the County of Hennepin. [No. 586.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota.

See same case below, 110 Minn. 461, 126 N. W. 70.

Mr. Carl Strover for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Milton D. Purdy for defendant in error.

December 19, 1910. Per Curiam: Dismissed with costs.

SAMUEL LOEB, Plaintiff in Error, v. HENRY JENNINGS, Chief of Police of the City of Atlanta. [No. 497.]

Error to state court—frivolousness of Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Georgia to review a decision adverse to the accused on questions certified from the Court of Appeals of that state involving the validity of a sentence to work on municipal streets and public places.

See same case below, 133 Ga. 796, 67 S. E. 101, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 376.

Mr. Thomas B. Felder for plaintiff in error.

Mr. William A. Wimbish for defendant in error.

January 3, 1911. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed on the authority of Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 112, 118, 53 L. ed. 430, 434, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 227; Goodrich v. Ferris, 214 U. S. 79, 53 L. ed. 917, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580; Griffith v. Connecticut, 218 U. S. 563, 54 L. ed. 1151, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132.

G. WASH HUNTER, Plaintiff in Error, v. STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA. [No. 192.]

Error to state court—Federal question—criminal matters.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of South Carolina to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction of manslaughter had in the Circuit Court for Greenwood County in that state.

See same case below, 82 S. C. 153, 63 S. E. 685.

Messrs. John G. Capers, Joseph D. Wright, Coleman L. Blease, William R. Andrews, John M. Thurston, and Robert B. Brown for plaintiff in error.

Mr. J. Fraser Lyon for defendant in error.

January 16, 1911. Per Curiam: Writ of error dismissed for the want of jurisdiction. Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 100, 50 L. ed. 107, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 112, 53 L. ed. 430, 29 Sup. 583]Ct. Rep. 220; *King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Griffith v. Connecticut, 218 U. S. 563, 54 L. ed. 1151, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132.

CLARENCE H. VENNER et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. DENVER UNION WATER COMPANY et al. [No. 216.]

Error to state court—frivolousness of Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Colorado to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court of Arapahoe County in that state in favor of defendants in a suit to set aside certain foreclosure decrees for want of jurisdiction, fraud, and certain irregularities in the proceedings.

See same case below, 40 Colo. 212, 122 Am. St. Rep. 1036, 90 Pac. 623.

Messrs. Elijah N. Zoline and Caldwell Yeaman for plaintiffs in error.

Messrs. Joel F. Vaile, Gerald Hughes, Arthur H. Van Brunt, and Frederick B. Van Vorst for defendants in error.

February 20, 1911. Per Curiam: Writ of error dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 100, 50 L. ed. 107, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 112, 53 L. ed. 431, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 227; King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 54 L. ed. 396, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Griffith v. Connecticut, 218 U. S. 563, 54 L. ed. 1151, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132.

GEORGE GODFREY MOORE et al., etc., Petitioners, v. SECURITY TRUST & LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. [No. 477.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 93 C. C. A. 652, 168 Fed. 496.

Messrs. James A. Troutman, Robert Stone, and D. R. Hite for petitioners.

Messrs. Joseph D. Wright and John G. Capers for respondent.

December 19, 1910. Denied.

PABST BREWING COMPANY, Petitioner, v. CHARLES THORLEY. [No. 805.]

Petition for a *Writ of Certiorari[584 to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 102 C. C. A. 522, 179 Fed. 338.

Messrs. A. S. Gilbert and J. M. Mayer for petitioner.

Mr. Harold Nathan for respondent.

December 19, 1910. Denied.

MURRAY CORRINGTON et al., Petitioners, v. WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE COMPANY. [No. 816.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 103 C. C. A. 479, 178 Fed. 711.

Mr. William G. Choate for petitioners.

Messrs. Thomas B. Kerr, J. Snowden Bell, and E. A. Wright for respondent.

December 19, 1910. Denied.

LIZZIE M. TROXELL, Petitioner, v. DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA & WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY. [No. 823.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 373.

Mr. George Demming for petitioner.

Mr. James F. Campbell for respondent.

January 3, 1911. Denied.

C. H. REXFORD, Petitioner, v. BRUNSWICK-BALKE-COLLENDER COMPANY. [No. 826.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

Mr. Julius C. Martin for petitioner.

Mr. James H. Merrimon for respondent.

January 3, 1911. Granted.

A. F. MILLAN, Petitioner, v. EXCHANGE BANK OF MANNINGTON et al. [No. 820.]

Petition *for a Writ of Certiorari[585 to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 753.

Mr. John W. Davis for petitioner.

Mr. E. M. Showalter for respondents.

January 9, 1911. Denied.

CITY OF NEW ORLEANS et al., Petitioners, v. WAKEFIELD SHEET PILING COMPANY. [No. 833.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

See same case below, 101 C. C. A. 384, 177 Fed. 214.

Messrs. Edgar H. Farrar and Omer Villere for petitioners.

No appearance for respondent.

January 9, 1911. Denied.

DEWITT C. HILLEGAS, Petitioner, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 824.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 199.

Mr. Wilton J. Lambert for petitioner.

The Attorney General and Assistant Attorney General Fowler for respondent.

January 16, 1911. Denied.

FRANK HORN et al., Petitioners, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 835.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 182 Fed. 721.

Messrs. Frank Hagerman, Wash. Adams, and J. S. Botsford for petitioners.

The Attorney General, the Solicitor General, and Assistant Attorney General Harr for respondent.

January 16, 1911. Denied.

LA COMPAGNIE GÉNÉRALE TRANSATLANTIQUE, OWNER, etc., Petitioner, v. BALTI-
586] MORE & OHIO *RAILROAD COMPANY. [No. 845.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 102 C. C. A. 651, 179 Fed. 286.

Messrs. Joseph P. Nolan and John M. Nolan for petitioner.

Mr. Frederick M. Brown for respondent.

January 16, 1911. Denied.

WILLIAM H. GRAY, Petitioner, v. ALLEN W. FIELD et al. [No. 848.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

See same case below, 103 C. C. A. 77, 179 Fed. 673.

Mr. Horace G. Stone for petitioner.

Messrs. S. S. Gregory, Jacob Newman, S. O. Levinson, B. V. Becker, and C. H. Poppenhusen for respondents.

January 16, 1911. Denied.

EDWARD J. SCHURMEIER et al., as Executors, etc., Petitioners, v. CONNECTICUT MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. [No. 550.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 96 C. C. A. 107, 171 Fed. 1.

Mr. Harris Richardson for petitioners.

Messrs. James E. Markham, John B. Sanborn, and George W. Markham for respondent.

January 16, 1911. Dismissed for want of prosecution.

COMPTOGRAPH COMPANY, Petitioner, v. BURROUGHS ADDING MACHINE COMPANY, [Nos. 843 and 844.]

Petitions for Writs of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

See same case below, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 183 Fed. 321.

Mr. John W. Munday for petitioner.

Messrs. Robert H. Parkinson and Edward Rector for respondent.

January 23, 1911. Denied.

---

*NAPOLEON v. SMITH et al., Petition- [587 ers, v. NELLIE MAE MOORE. [No. 839.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

See same case below, 182 Fed. 540.

Messrs. R. Lee Word, William Wallace, and A. B. Browne for petitioners.

Messrs. William Scallon, T. J. Walsh, and Cornelius B. Nolan for respondent.

January 30, 1911. Denied.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, Petitioner, v. ARTHUR LOVELL, Trustee, etc. [No. 847.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 988, 102 C. C. A. 505, 179 Fed. 321.

Mr. Edmund Wilson for petitioner.

Mr. Howard H. Williams for respondent.

January 30, 1911. Denied.

M. B. SHELTON, as Trustee, etc., Petitioner, v. CHARLES H. PRICE. [No. 852.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

See same case below, 104 C. C. A. 669, 182 Fed. 1023.

Mr. Lawrence Cooper for petitioner.

Mr. Richard W. Walker for respondent.

Mr. J. T. Kirk for creditors.

January 30, 1911. Denied.

EDMUND S. NASH et al., Petitioners, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 842.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Messrs. John C. Spooner and Samuel B. Adams for petitioners.

The Attorney General, the Solicitor General, Assistant to the Attorney General Kenyon, and Mr. E. P. Grosvenor for respondent.

February 20, 1911. Granted.

588]*DOWAGIAC MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Petitioner, v. MINNESOTA MOLINE PLOW COMPANY et al. [No. 875]; DOWAGIAC MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Petitioner, v. ERNEST F. SMITH et al. [No. 876.]

Petition for Writs of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

Mr. Fred L. Chappell for petitioner.

Mr. Thomas A. Banning for respondents.

February 20, 1911. Granted.

SANITARY STREET FLUSHING MACHINE COMPANY, Petitioner, v. ST. LOUIS STREET FLUSHING MACHINE COMPANY et al. [No. 856.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 103 C. C. A. 565, 178 Fed. 923.

Mr. James L. Hopkins for petitioner.

No appearance for respondents.

February 20, 1911. Denied.

WHITNEY ELEVATOR & WAREHOUSE COMPANY, Petitioner, v. BELLE N. WHITNEY. [No. 867.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 678.

Mr. Joseph McLean for petitioner.

Mr. William G. Tracy for respondent.

February 20, 1911. Denied.

SCHMERTZ WIRE GLASS CO. et al., Petitioners, v. HIGHLAND GLASS COMPANY. [No. 870.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 102 C. C. A. 316, 178 Fed. 944.

Messrs. John W. Griggs, Arthur J. Baldwin, Thomas B. Kerr, and Drury W. Cooper for petitioners.

Messrs. Charles Neave and William G. McKnight for respondent.

February 20, 1911. Denied.

*FRANK L. NEAL, astrustee, Petitioner, [589 v. MARYLAND DREDGING & CONTRACTING COMPANY et al. [No. 873.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 731.

Mr. William S. Montgomery for petitioner.

Mr. Frederick M. Brown for respondents.

February 20, 1911. Denied.

E. G. COFFIN et al., Petitioners, v. CHARLES R. FLINT. [No. 874.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

See same case below, 100 C. C. A. 342, 176 Fed. 872.

Messrs. D. T. Watson, John M. Freeman, and R. W. Sutton for petitioners.

Messrs. J. Frank Snyder and James H. Merrimon for respondent.

February 20, 1911. Denied.

EMPIRE TIMBER COMPANY, Petitioner, v. WOODBINE TIMBER COMPANY. [No. 877.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 214.

Mr. Philip Walker for petitioner.

No appearance for respondent.

February 20, 1911. Denied.

GOVERNMENT OF HIS MAJESTY, THE KING OF ITALY, through A. Raybaudi Massiglia, its Consul General at New York, Appellant, v. GIROLAMO ASARO, alias Vincenzo Fudera. [No. 78.]

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District *of New York. [590

See same case below, 162 Fed. 590.

Messrs. Walter V. R. Berry, Gino C. Speranza, Benjamin S. Minor, and Hugh B. Rowland for appellant.

Mr. John J. Hamilton for respondent.

January 11, 1911. Dismissed with costs on motion of counsel for the appellant.

HEIRS OF LOPEZ et al., Appellants, v. RUBERT HERMANOS. [No. 863.]

Appeal from the Supreme Court of Porto Rico.

Mr. Frederick S. Tyler for appellees.

January 18, 1911. Docketed and dismissed with costs on motion of Mr. Frederick S. Tyler for the appellees.

MARIA DEL ENCARNACIÓN PRADO, Widow of Suro, Appellant, v. SUCCESSION OF ALONZO DEL RIO, etc. [No. 864.]

Appeal from the Supreme Court of Porto Rico.

Mr. Frederick S. Tyler for appellee.

January 18, 1911. Docketed and dismissed with costs on motion of Mr. Frederick S. Tyler for appellee.

CHOCTAW, OKLAHOMA, & GULF RAILROAD COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. MRS. MYRA BURGESS and W. N. BURGESS. [No. 76.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma.

See same case below, 21 Okla. 653, 97 Pac. 271.

Mr. Ernest E. Blake for plaintiff in error.

Mr. A. C. Cruce for defendants in error.

January 26, 1911. Dismissed with costs, per stipulation.

PHILADELPHIA & READING RAILWAY COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 93.]

In Error to the District Court of the 591]United States for the *Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

See same case below, 162 Fed. 403.

Messrs. J. D. Campbell and James F. Campbell for plaintiff in error.

The Attorney General for defendant in error.

January 27, 1911. Dismissed on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

JUSTO PUENTE Y ARMSTERDAM et al., Appellants, v. FELIX PUENTE et al. [No. 912.]

Appeal from the Supreme Court of Porto Rico.

Mr. Frederic D. McKenney for appellees.

February 20, 1911. Docketed and dismissed with costs, on motion of Mr. Frederic D. McKenney for the appellees.

TEXAS & PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. MRS. MARY A. STEVENSON et al. [No. 178.]

In Error to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Messrs. John F. Dillon, Rush Taggart, and W. L. Hall for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. Colin Johnson and James M. Edwards for defendants in error.

February 20, 1911. Dismissed per stipulation.

CASES

ARGUED AND DECIDED

IN THE

SUPREME COURT

OF THE

UNITED STATES

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1910.

Vol. 220.

55 L. ed. 351

REFERENCE TABLE

OF SUCH CASES

DECIDED IN U. S. SUPREME COURT,

OCTOBER TERM, 1910.

AND REPORTED HEREIN,

VOLUME 220,

AS ALSO APPEAR IN

OFFICIAL REPORTER'S EDITION.

Off. Rep. 220 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
1	Virginia v. West Virginia	353
22–24	" "	356
24–27	" "	357
27–30	" "	358
30–32	" "	359
32–35	" "	360
35–36	" "	361
37	United States v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co.	361
42–45	" "	363
45	" "	364
45	Hipolite Egg Co. v. United States	364
49–51	" "	365
51–54	" "	366
54–56	" "	367
56–59	" "	368
59–60	" "	369
61	Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co.	369
62–64	" "	370
64	" "	371
72–74	" "	375
74–76	" "	376
76–79	" "	377
79–81	" "	378
81–83	" "	379
83	Matter of Eastern Cherokees	379
84–87	" "	380
87–89	" "	381
89	" "	382
90	Taylor v. Liesnitzer	382
90–91	" "	383
91–93	" "	384
94	Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. United States	384
94–96	" "	385
96–97	" "	386
103	" "	387
103–106	" "	388
106	" "	389
107	Flint v. Stone Tracy Co.	389
142–144	" "	410
144–147	" "	411
147–149	" "	412
149–152	" "	413
152–154	Flint v. Stone Tracy Co.	414
154–157	" "	415
157–159	" "	416
160–162	" "	417
162–164	" "	418
164–167	" "	419
167–169	" "	420
169–172	" "	421
172–174	" "	422
175–177	" "	423
177	" "	424
178	Eliot v. Freeman	424
183–185	" "	427
185–187	" "	428
187	Zonne v. Minneapolis Syndicate	428
189–191	" "	430
191–199	Ex parte Oklahoma	431
199–201	" "	432
201–204	" "	433
204–206	" "	434
206–209	" "	435
209–210	" "	436
210–211	Ex parte Oklahoma	436
211–214	" "	437
214	Martinez v. International Bkg. Corp.	438
216	" "	440
216–219	" "	441
219–221	" "	442
221–224	" "	443
224	Perez y Fernandez v. Fernandez y Perez	443
225–226	" "	444
226–229	" "	445
229–231	" "	446
231–232	" "	447
233–234	Blanco y Blanco v. Hubbard	447
234	" "	448
235	Interstate Commerce Com. v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co.	448
240–241	" "	452
241–244	" "	453
244–247	" "	454
247–249	" "	455

Off. Rep. 220 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
249–252	Interstate Commerce Com. v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co.	456
252–254	" "	457
254–256	" "	458
257	United States v. Lehigh Valley R. Co.	458
263–265	" "	460
265–268	" "	461
268–271	" "	462
271–273	" "	463
273–274	" "	464
275	United States v. Erie R. Co.	464
275–276	" "	465
277	Oklahoma v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co.	465
282–283	" "	466
283–285	" "	467
285–288	" "	468
288–289	" "	469
290	Oklahoma ex rel. West v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co.	469
291–292	" "	470
292–295	" "	471
295–298	" "	472
298–300	" "	473
300–301	" "	474
302–303	Oklahoma ex rel. West v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co.	474
303–306	" "	475
306	" "	476
307–308	Enriquez v. Go-Tiongco	476
308–310	" "	477
311	Arnett v. Reade	477
318	" "	480
319–320	" "	481
321	United States v. O'Brien	481
324–325	" "	483
325–328	" "	484
328	" "	485
329–330	Hills & Co. v. Hoover	485
330–332	" "	486
332–335	" "	487
335–337	" "	488
337–338	" "	489
338–341	Gavieres v. United States	489
341–344	" "	490
344–345	" "	491
345	Vilas v. Manila	491
351	" "	493
351–354	" "	494
354–357	" "	495
357–359	" "	496
359–362	" "	497
362–363	" "	498
364	Western Union Teleg. Co. v. Cravo	498
366	" "	499
366–368	" "	500
368–371	" "	501
371–372	" "	502
373–374	Dr. Miles Med. Co. v. John D. Park & S. Co.	502
374–377	" "	503
377–380	" "	504
380–382	" "	505
382–383	" "	506
394–395	" "	513
395–397	" "	514
397–400	Dr. Miles Med. Co. v. John D. Park & S. Co.	515
400–402	" "	516
402–405	" "	517
405–408	" "	518
408–410	" "	519
410–413	" "	520
413	" "	521
413	Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard	521
416	" "	522
416–419	" "	523
419–421	" "	524
421–424	" "	525
424–426	" "	526
426–427	" "	527
428	Diamond Rubber Co. v. Consolidated R. T. Co.	527
429–430	" "	529
430–434	" "	530
434–435	" "	531
435–437	" "	532
437–439	" "	533
439–442	" "	534
442–444	" "	535
444–445	" "	536
446	Standard Paint Co. v. Trinidad A. Mfg. Co.	536
451–454	" "	540
454–457	" "	551
457–459	" "	542
459–462	" "	543
462–464	Shawnee S. & D. Co. v. Stearns	544
464–467	" "	545
467–469	" "	546
469–472	" "	547
472–473	J. W. Perry Co. v. Norfolk	548
473–474	" "	549
477	" "	550
477–480	" "	551
480	" "	552
481	Sac & F. Indians v. Sac & F. Indians	552
482–483	" "	553
483–486	" "	554
486–488	" "	555
488–491	" "	556
491	" "	557
491–493	Ripley v. United States	557
494–496	" "	558
496–497	" "	559
497	Sena v. American Turquoise Co.	559
498–500	" "	560
500–501	" "	561
502	Sperry & H. Co. v. Rhodes	561
504–505	" "	562
505	" "	563
506–507	United States v. Grimaud	563
507–510	" "	564
510	" "	565
514	" "	566
514–517	" "	567
517–519	" "	568
519–522	" "	569
522–523	" "	570
523–524	Light v. United States	570
524–527	" "	571
534–535	" "	573

Off. Rep. 220 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
535–537	Light v. United States	574
537–538	" "	575
539	Ex parte Metropolitan Water Co.	575
540–542	" "	576
542–545	" "	577
545–546	" "	578
547	United States v. Rimer	578
547–548	" "	579
549–550	Wise v. Mills	579
550–554	" "	580
554–556	" "	581
556	Wise v. Henkel	581
557–558	" "	582
559	Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. United States	582
567–568	" "	585
568–571	" "	586
571–573	" "	587

Off. Rep. 220 U. S.	Title.	Here in.
573–576	Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. United States	588
576–578	" "	589
578–579	" "	590
580	Delk v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co.	590
581–583	" "	593
583–585	" "	594
585–588	" "	595
588–589	" "	596
590	Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co.	596
591–593	" "	598
593–595	" "	599
595–598	" "	600
598–599	" "	601
601–631	Memorandum Decisions	603
		616

THE DECISIONS

OF THE

Supreme Court of the United States

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1910.

1]*COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
v.
STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 1–36.)

Supreme Court — original jurisdiction suits between states.

1. A suit between the commonwealth of Virginia and the state of West Virginia, to determine the amount due to the former by the latter as the equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia, which was assumed by West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state, is to be considered by the Federal Supreme Court in the untechnical spirit proper for dealing with a quasi international controversy.

[For other cases, see Supreme Court of the United States, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Supreme Court — original jurisdiction — suits between states.

2. Objections as to multifariousness, laches, and the like, except so far as they affect the merits, will not be considered by the Federal Supreme Court in a suit by the commonwealth of Virginia against the state of West Virginia, to determine the amount due to the former by the latter as the equitable proportion of the public debt of Virginia which was assumed by West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state.

[For other cases, see Supreme Court of the United States, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

States — compacts between — adjustment of public debt between Virginia and West Virginia.

3. A contract between the states of Virginia and West Virginia, under which the latter assumed the payment of her just and equitable share of the debt of the original state of Virginia at the time of the creation of West Virginia as a state, whoever might be the persons to whom ultimately the payment was to be made, was established by the provisions of W. Va. Const. art. 8, § 8, for the assumption of an equitable proportion of the Virginia public debt existing prior to January 1, 1861, and of Va. act of May 13, 1862, consenting to the formation of the new state on those terms, and of the sanctioning act of Congress of December 31, 1862 (12 Stat. at L. 633, chap. 6), and the contract so established was not modified or affected in any practical way by the preliminary suggestions as to the special mode of ascertaining a just proportion of the debt, contained in the Wheeling ordinance of August 20, 1861, for the formation of the new state, which is not mentioned in any of the other enactments.

[For other cases, see States, VII. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

States — compacts between — adjustment of public debt between Virginia and West Virginia.

4. The public debt of the original state of Virginia, an equitable proportion of which was assumed by West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state, need not, because incurred for local improvements, be divided according to the territory in which the money was expended, since in form the debt was an investment which generally took the shape of a subscription for stock in a corporation, making it an adventure on behalf of the whole state, all the expenditures having the ultimate good of the whole state in view.

[For other cases, see States, VII. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Supreme Court — original jurisdiction — suit between states.

5. The determination of the just and equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia which was assumed by West Virgina at the time of its creation as a state is within the original jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court, although, by W. Va. Const. art. 8, § 8, it is provided that the legislature shall ascertain the proportion as soon as may be practicable.

[For other cases, see Supreme Court of the United States, I. c, 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

States — compacts between — adjustment of public debt between Virginia and West Virginia.

6. The liability of the state of West Virginia, assumed at the time of its creation as a state, for an equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia, was not discharged by changes in the form of the debt, nor split up by the unilateral attempts of Virginia to apportion specific parts to the two states.

[For other cases, see States, VII. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Supreme Court — original jurisdiction — suits between states — interest in suit.

7. The commonwealth of Virginia has a sufficient interest to enable it to maintain a suit in the Federal Supreme Court against the state of West Virginia, to determine the amount due the former state by the latter as the equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia, which was assumed by West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state, although, by reason of certain transactions with her creditors, Virginia may have been discharged from all liability as to West Virginia's share, other than to turn over the proceeds of the suit.

[For other cases, see Supreme Court of the United States, 106-111, 120, 121, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

States — compacts between — adjustment of public debt between Virginia and West Virginia.

8. The valuation of the real and personal property of the two states of Virginia and West Virginia on the date of their separation, excluding slaves, is the proper basis for determining the equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia which was assumed by the state of West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state, subject to the qualification that the difference between Virginia's share on this ratio and the amount which her creditors were content to accept from her should be deducted from the sum to be apportioned.

[For other cases, see States, VII. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 3, Original.]

Argued January 20, 23, 24, 25, and 26, 1911.
Decided March 6, 1911.

ORIGINAL BILL in equity, filed by the commonwealth of Virginia against the state of West Virginia, which seeks an adjudication of the amount due to the former as the equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia, which was assumed by the state of West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state. Ratio determined according to valuation of the real and personal property of the two states on the date of their separation, excluding slaves.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Holmes Conrad argued the cause and filed a brief for the bondholders:

Both on the ground of public or international law and on the express provision of the Constitution of the state, under which Congress admitted it into the Union, the liability of West Virginia for an equitable proportion of the public debt of Virginia appears to be unavoidable.

Hartman v. Greenhow, 102 U. S. 672, 26 L. ed. 271; Puffendorf, Nature & Nations, Bk. 8, chap. 12, § 5; Phillimore, International Law, pt. 2, chap. 137; Wheaton, International Law, Dana's ed. § 30; 1 Moore, International Law Dig. p. 334; Wharton, International Law Dig. § 5, p. 19; 1 Oppenheim, International Law, p. 122; 5 Moore, International Arbitration, pp. 4618, 4619; Taylor, International Pub. Law, § 168.

No compact was ever entered into between Virginia and West Virginia by which the latter state was released from such liability.

Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Columbia Rolling Mill, 119 U. S. 149, 30 L. ed. 376, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; La Compañia Bilbaina v. Spanish-American Light & P. Co. 146 U. S. 497, 36 L. ed. 1058, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; Virginia Hot Springs Co. v. Harrison, 93 Va. 569, 25 S. E. 888; 1 Chitty, Contr. 11th Am. ed. 15; Anson, Contr. 2d Am. ed. 22.

If, as insisted now by West Virginia, the framers of her Constitution intended that her legislature should ascertain such proportion by the method proposed by the ordinance, and that method appears on its face and without the aid of external evidence to have been impracticable and impossible, and leading inevitably to absurd and monstrous consequences, should any construction be given to the Constitution that must involve such result?

Cooley, Const. Lim. p. 73.

A change in phraseology creates a presumption of a change in intent.

Crawford v. Burke, 195 U. S. 190, 49 L. ed. 152, 252, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 9.

Mr. Samuel W. Williams, Attorney General of Virginia, and Messrs. William A. Anderson and Randolph Harrison, argued the cause, and, with Mr. John B. Moon, filed a brief for complainant:

On the 20th day of June, 1863, when West Virginia became one of the states of the American Union, the public debt of Virginia, then existing, constituted, independently of any stipulation between Virginia and the new state, an equitable and a moral claim against the people and the property, both of West Virginia and Virginia; and both states, and the people of both states, were bound for the payment of those obligations.

Higginbotham v. Com. 25 Gratt. 627; Greenhow v. Vashon, 81 Va. 336; Hartman v. Greenhow, 102 U. S. 672, 26 L. ed. 271.

Independently of any convention between the two states, according to recognized authorities the debt should have been ratably apportioned between the two states.

1 Moore, International Law Dig. p. 334; Abdy's Kent, Com. p. 96; Lawrence's Wheaton, International Law, 52 (n) 20.

The statement that Virginia has no interest in this suit in her own right is founded on a singular misapprehension of the facts.

Greenhow v. Vashon, 81 Va. 342.

Messrs. Charles E. Hogg, George W. McClintic, and John C. Spooner argued the cause, and, with Mr. William G. Conley, Attorney General of West Virginia, and Messrs. W. Mollohan, W. G. Mathews, and William M. O. Dawson, filed a brief for defendant:

A party without interest cannot maintain an action.

Bissell v. Spencer, 9 Conn. 267, 23 Am. Dec. 336; Gilmore v. Pope, 5 Mass. 491; Gunn v. Cantine, 10 Johns. 387; State v. New London, 22 Conn. 170; Townsend v. Hoyle, 20 Conn. 6; People v. Ingersoll, 58 N. Y. 1, 17 Am. Rep. 178; Morris Canal & Bkg. Co. v. State, 14 N. J. L. 411; People v. Booth, 32 N. Y. 397; State ex rel. Wilson v. Shively, 10 Or. 267; State v. Braddish, 34 Vt. 420; Lynch v. United States, 13 Okla. 142, 73 Pac. 1095; United States v. San Jacinto Tin Co. 125 U. S. 273, 31 L. ed. 747, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 850; State v. Warner Valley Stock Co. 48 Or. 378, 86 Pac. 780, 87 Pac. 534; Atchison v. State, 34 Kan. 379, 8 Pac. 367; People ex rel. Pixley v. Stratton, 25 Cal. 242; Kansas v. United States, 204 U. S. 331, 51 L. ed. 510, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 388; Smith v. Brittenham, 109 Ill. 549; Ashby v. Ashby 39 La. Ann. 105, 1 So. 282; Oakey v. Bend, 3 Edw. Ch. 482.

Virginia, being without interest in the unfunded debt held by third parties, cannot constitute herself a trustee, and thus create a controversy between herself as trustee and the state of West Virginia, and thereby maintain this suit as to such unfunded part of said debt.

Malin v. Malin, 2 Johns. Ch. 238; Gorham v. Gorham, 3 Barb. Ch. 24; Collins v. Lofftuss, 10 Leigh, 5, 34 Am. Dec. 722; Nichols v. Williams, 22 N. J. Eq. 63; Elmer v. Loper, 25 N. J. Eq. 475; Field v. Maghee, 5 Paige, 539; Dunn v. Seymour, 11 N. J. Eq. 220; Willink v. Morris Canal & Bkg. Co. 4 N. J. Eq. 390; Blake v. Allman, 58 N. C. (5 Jones, Eq.) 407; Ebell v. Bursinger, 70 Tex. 120, 8 S. W. 77; State ex rel. Rife v. Hawes, 177 Mo. 360, 76 S. W. 653; Story, Eq. Pl. 9th ed. § 207; Fish v. Howland, 1 Paige, 20; Reed v. Reed, 16 N. J. Eq. 248; Monday v. Vance, 11 Tex. Civ. App. 374, 32 S. W. 559.

The principles of law governing suits between private persons are applied to controversies between states.

State v. Cloudt — Tex. Civ. App. —, 84 S. W. 415; State ex rel. Taylor v. Lord, 28 Or. 498, 31 L.R.A. 473, 43 Pac. 471; State ex rel. Smyth v. Kennedy, 60 Neb. 300, 83 N. W. 87; Green v. State 73 Cal. 29, 11 Pac. 602, 14 Pac. 610; Harris v. State, 9 S. D. 453, 69 N. W. 825; State v. Paxson, 119 Ga. 730, 46 S. E. 873.

This suit discloses no controversy between the two states as to the unfunded debt represented by certificates owned by individuals.

New Hampshire v. Louisiana, 108 U. S. 76, 27 L. ed. 656, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; Re Ayers, 123 U. S. 443, 31 L. ed. 216, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; New York v. Connecticut, 4 Dall. 3, 1 L. ed. 715.

Every case that has ever come before this court involving a controversy between states has been one affecting boundaries and jurisdiction over lands, or cases directly affecting the property rights and interest of a state.

Missouri v. Illinois, 180 U. S. 208, 45 L. ed. 497, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 331; South Dakota v. North Carolina, 192 U. S. 286, 48 L. ed. 448, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269; New Jersey v. New York, 5 Pet. 285, 8 L. ed. 127; Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12 Pet. 657, 9 L. ed. 1233; Florida v. Georgia, 11 How. 293, 13 L. ed. 702; Virginia v. West Virginia, 11 Wall. 39, 20 L. ed. 67; Missouri v. Iowa, 7 How. 660, 12 L. ed. 861; Florida v. Georgia, 17 How. 478, 15 L. ed. 181; Alabama v. Georgia, 23 How. 505, 16 L. ed. 556; Louisiana v. Mississippi, 202 U. S. 1, 50 L. ed. 913, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 408, 571; Missouri v. Kentucky, 11 Wall. 395, 20 L. ed. 116; Maryland v. West Virginia, 217 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 645, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268; Pennsylvania v. Wheeling & B. Bridge Co. 13 How. 518, 14 L. ed. 249; New Hampshire v. Louisiana, 108 U. S. 76, 27 L. ed. 656, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176.

In case of the division of a state, general debts are apportioned on the basis of taxable value; local debts are assumed by the state for the exclusive benefit of whose territory they were incurred.

Hall, International Law, pp. 78, 80; Oppenheim, International Law, § 84; Glenn, International Law, p. 36; Taylor, International Pub. Law, § 166; 1 Fodere, Traite de Droit International Public, 1885, §§

156, 157; Bluntschli, § 59; Bonfils, Manuel de Droit International Public, 3d ed. 1901, §§ 223–226; Liszt, Das Volkerrecht, 2d ed. 1902, § 23, p. 175; Piedelievre, Precis de Droit International Public, 1894, §§ 154, 156; 1 Rivier, Principes du Droit des Gens, 1826, p. 213 (art. 40 V.); Fiore, Il. Diritto Internazionale Codificato, § 132; Fiore, Nouveau Droit International, 1885, § 360; Huber, Staaten Succession 1898, p. 90, § 34, p. 96, §§ 136, 272; Appleton, Des Effets des Annexions de Territoires sur Les Dettes de L'Etat Demembré ou Annexé, 1895, chap. 4, § 2, § 65.

The rule of public law does not govern this case, because the Wheeling ordinance and the Constitution of West Virginia constitute a special agreement as to the proporton of the old Virginia debt to be assumed by West Virginia.

Virginia v. West Virginia, 11 Wall. 39, 20 L. ed. 67.

This court has declared that the ordinance and the Constitution do not conflict, and are to be read in pari materia.

Virginia v. West Virginia, 206 U. S. 290, 319, 51 L. ed. 1068, 1080, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 732.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a bill brought by the commonwealth of Virginia [*23] to have the state of West Virginia's proportion of the public debt of Virginia, as it stood before 1861, ascertained and satisfied. The bill was set forth when the case was before this court on demurrer. 206 U. S. 290, 51 L. ed. 1068, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 732. Nothing turns on the form or contents of it. The object has been stated. The bill alleges the existence of a debt contracted between 1820 and 1861 in connection with internal improvements intended to develop the whole state, but with especial view to West Virginia, and carried through by the votes of the representatives of the West Virginia counties. It then sets forth the proceedings for the formation of a separate state, and the material provisions of the ordinance adopted for that purpose at Wheeling on August 20, 1861, the passage of an act of Congress for the admission of the new state under a Constitution that had been adopted, and the admission of West Virginia into the Union, all of which we shall show more fully a little further on. Then follows an averment of the transfer in 1863 to West Virginia of the property within her boundaries belonging to West Virginia, to be accounted for in the settlement thereafter to be made with the last-named state. As West Virginia gets the benefit of this property without an accounting, on the principles of this decision, it needs not to be mentioned in more detail. A further appropriation to West Virginia is alleged of $150,000, together with unappropriated balances, subject to accounting for the surplus on hand received from counties outside of the new state. Then follows an argumentative averment of a contract in the Constitution of West Virginia to assume an equitable proportion of the above-mentioned public debt, as hereafter will be explained. Attempts between 1865 and 1872 to ascertain the two states' proportion of the debt and their failure are averred, and the subsequent legislation and action of Virginia in arranging with the bondholders, that will be explained hereafter so far as needs. Substantially all the bonds outstanding in 1861 [*24] have been taken up. It is stated that both in area of territory and in population West Virginia was equal to about one third of Virginia, that being the proportion that Virginia asserts to be the proper one for the division of the debt, and this claim is based upon the division of the state, upon the above-mentioned Wheeling ordinance and the Constitution of the new state, upon the recognition of the liability by statute and resolution, and upon the receipt of property, as has been stated above. After stating further efforts to bring about an adjustment, and their failure, the bill prays for an accounting to ascertain the balance due to Virginia in her own right and as trustee for bondholders, and an adjudication in accord with this result.

The answer admits a debt of about $33,000,000, but avers that the main object of the internal improvements in connection with which it was contracted was to afford outlets to the Ohio river on the west and to the seaboard on the east for the products of the eastern part of the state, and to develop the resources of that part, not those of what is now West Virginia. In aid of this conclusion it goes into some elaboration of details. It admits the proceedings for the separation of the state, and refers to an act of May, 1862, consenting to the same, to which we also shall refer. It denies that it received property of more than a little value from Virginia, or that West Virginia received more than belonged to her in the way of surplus revenue on hand when she was admitted to the Union, and denies that any liability for these items was assumed by her Constitution. It sets forth in detail the proceedings looking to a settlement, but, as they have no bearing upon our decision, we do not dwell upon them. It admits the transactions of Virginia with the bondholders, and sets up that they discharged the commonwealth from one third of its debt, and that what may have been done as to two-thirds does not concern the defendant, 25]*since Virginia admits that her share was not less than that. If the bonds outstanding in 1861 have been taken up, it is only by the issue of new bonds for two thirds and certificates to be paid by West Virginia alone for the other third. Liability for any payments by Virginia is denied, and accountability, if any, is averred to be only on the principle of § 9 of the Wheeling ordinance, to be stated. It is set up further that under the Constitution of West Virginia her equitable proportion can be established by her legislature alone; that the liquidation can be only in the way provided by that instrument; and hence that this suit cannot be maintained. The settlement by Virginia with her creditors also is pleaded as a bar, and that she brings this suit solely as trustee for them.

The grounds of the claim are matters of public history. After the Virginia ordinance of secession, citizens of the state who dissented from that ordinance organized a government that was recognized as the state of Virginia by the government of the United States. Forthwith a convention of the restored state, as it was called, held at Wheeling, proceeded to carry out a long-entertained wish of many West Virginians by adopting an ordinance for the formation of a new state out of the western portion of the old commonwealth. A part of § 9 of the ordinance was as follows: "The new state shall take upon itself a just proportion of the public debt of the commonwealth of Virginia prior to the 1st day of January, 1861, to be ascertained by charging to it all state expenditures within the limits thereof, and a just proportion of the ordinary expenses of the state government since any part of said debt was contracted; and deducting therefrom the moneys paid into the treasury of the commonwealth from the counties included within the said new state during the same period." Having previously provided for a popular vote, a constitutional convention, etc., the ordinance in § 10 ordained that when the general assembly 26]should give *its consent to the formation of such new state, it should forward to the Congress of the United States such consent, together with an official copy of such Constitution, with the request that the new state might be admitted into the union of states.

A Constitution was framed for the new state by a constitutional convention, as provided in the ordinance, on November 26, 1861, and was adopted. By article 8, § 8, "An equitable proportion of the public debt of the commonwealth of Virginia, prior to the first day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one shall be assumed by this state; and the legislature shall ascertain the same as soon as may be practicable, and provide for the liquidation thereof by a sinking fund sufficient to pay the accruing interest, and redeem the principal within thirty-four years." An act of the legislature of the restored state of Virginia, passed May 13, 1862, gave the consent of that legislature to the erection of the new state "under the provisions set forth in the Constitution for the said state of West Virginia." Finally Congress gave its sanction by an act of December 31, 1862, chap. 6, 12 Stat. at L. 633, which recited the framing and adoption of the West Virginia Constitution and the consent given by the legislature of Virginia through the last-mentioned act, as well as the request of the West Virginia convention and of the Virginia legislature, as the grounds for its consent. There was a provision for the adoption of an emancipation clause before the act of Congress should take effect, and for a proclamation by the President, stating the fact, when the desired amendment was made. Accordingly, after the amendment and a proclamation by President Lincoln, West Virginia became a state on June 20, 1863.

It was held in 1870 that the foregoing constituted an agreement between the old state and the new (Virginia v. West Virginia, 11 Wall. 39, 20 L. ed. 67), and so much may be taken *practically to have[27 been decided again upon the demurrer in this case, although the demurrer was overruled without prejudice to any question. Indeed, so much is almost if not quite admitted in the answer. After the answer had been filed the cause was referred to a master by a decree made on May 4, 1908 (209 U. S. 514, 534, 52 L. ed. 914, 915, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 614), which provided for the ascertainment of the facts made the basis of apportionment by the original Wheeling ordinance, and also of other facts that would furnish an alternative method if that prescribed in the Wheeling ordinance should not be followed; this again without prejudice to any question in the cause. The master has reported, the case has been heard upon the merits, and now is submitted to the decision of the court.

The case is to be considered in the untechnical spirit proper for dealing with a quasi international controversy, remembering that there is no municipal code governing the matter, and that this court may be called on to adjust differences that cannot be dealt with by Congress or disposed of by the legislature of either state alone. Missouri v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 496, 519, 520, 50 L. ed. 572, 578, 579, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 82-84, 51 L.

ed. 956, 968, 969, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 655. Therefore we shall spend no time on objections as to multifariousness, laches, and the like, except so far as they affect the merits, with which we proceed to deal. See Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 14 Pet. 210, 257, 10 L. ed. 423, 445; United States v. Beebe, 127 U. S. 338, 32 L. ed. 121, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1083.

The amount of the debt January 1, 1861, that we have to apportion, no longer is in dispute. The master's finding was accepted by West Virginia, and at the argument we understood Virginia not to press her exception that it should be enlarged by a disputed item. It was $33,897,073.82, the sum being represented mainly by interest-bearing bonds. The first thing to be decided is what the final agreement was that was made between the two states. Here again we are not to be bound by technical 28]*form. A state is superior to the forms that it may require of its citizens. But there would be no technical difficulty in making a contract by a constitutive ordinance if followed by the creation of the contemplated state. Wedding v. Meyler, 192 U. S. 573, 583, 48 L. ed. 570, 574, 66 L.R.A. 833, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 322. And, on the other hand, there is equally little difficulty in making a contract by the Constitution of the new state if it be apparent that the instrument is not addressed solely to those who are to be subject to its provisions, but is intended to be understood by the parent state and by Congress as embodying a just term which conditions the parent's consent. There can be no question that such was the case with West Virginia. As has been shown, the consent of the legislature of the restored state was a consent to the admission of West Virginia under the provisions set forth in the Constitution for the would-be state, and Congress gave its sanction only on the footing of the same Constitution and the consent of Virginia in the last-mentioned act. These three documents would establish a contract, without more. We may add, with reference to an argument to which we attach little weight, that they establish a contract of West Virginia with Virginia. There is no reference to the form of the debt or to its holders, and it is obvious that Virginia had an interest that it was most important that she should be able to protect. Therefore West Virginia must be taken to have promised to Virginia to pay her share, whoever might be the persons to whom ultimately the payment was to be made.

We are of opinion that the contract established as we have said is not modified or affected in any practical way by the preliminary suggestions of the Wheeling ordinance. Neither the ordinance nor the special mode of ascertaining a just proportion of the debt that it puts forward is mentioned in the Constitution of West Virginia, or in the act of Virginia giving her consent, or in the act of Congress by which West Virginia became a state. The ordinance *re-[29 quired that a copy of the new Constitution should be laid before Congress, but said nothing about the ordinance itself. It is enough to refer to the circumstances in which the separation took place to show that Virginia is entitled to the benefit of any doubt so far as the construction of the contract is concerned. See opinion of Attorney General Bates to President Lincoln, 10 Ops. Atty. Gen. 426. The mode of the Wheeling ordinance would not throw on West Virginia a proportion of the debt that would be just, as the ordinance requires, or equitable, according to the promise of the Constitution, unless upon the assumption that interest on the public debt should be considered as part of the ordinary expenses referred to in its terms. That, we believe, would put upon West Virginia a larger obligation than the mode that we adopt, but we are of opinion that her share should be ascertained in a different way. All the modes, however, consistent with the plain contract of West Virginia, whether under the Wheeling ordinance or the Constitution of that state, come out with surprisingly similar results.

It was argued, to be sure, that the debt of Virginia was incurred for local improvements, and that in such a case, even apart from the ordinance, it should be divided according to the territory in which the money was expended. We see no sufficient reason for the application of such a principle to this case. In form the aid was an investment. It generally took the shape of a subscription for stock in a corporation. To make the investment a safe one, the precaution was taken to require as a condition precedent that two or three fifths of the stock should have been subscribed for by solvent persons, fully able to pay, and that one fourth of the subscriptions should have been paid up into the hands of the treasurer. From this point of view the venture was on behalf of the whole state. The parties interested in the investment were the same, wherever the sphere of corporate action might be. The whole state *would[30 have got the gain, and the whole state must bear the loss, as it does not appear that there are any stocks of value on hand. If we should attempt to look farther, many of the corporations concerned were engaged in improvements that had West Virginia for their objective point, and we should be lost in futile detail if we should try to unravel in each instance the ultimate scope of the scheme. It would be unjust, however, to stop with the place where the first steps were taken, and not to consider the purpose with which the enterprise was begun. All the expenditures had the ultimate good of the whole state in view. Therefore we adhere to our conclusion that West Virginia's share of the debt must be ascertained in a different way. In coming to it we do but apply against West Virginia the argument pressed on her behalf to exclude her liability under the Wheeling ordinance in like cases. By the ordinance, West Virginia was to be charged with all state expenditures within the limits thereof. But she vigorously protested against being charged with any sum expended in the form of a purchase of stocks.

But again, it was argued that if this contract should be found to be what we have said, then the determination of a just proportion was left by the Constitution to the legislature of West Virginia, and that, irrespectively of the words of the instrument, it was only by legislation that a just proportion could be fixed. These arguments do not impress us. The provision in the Constitution of the state of West Virginia that the legislature shall ascertain the proportion as soon as may be practicable was not intended to undo the contract in the preceding words by making the representative and mouthpiece of one of the parties the sole tribunal for its enforcement. It was simply an exhortation and command from supreme to subordinate authority to perform the promise as soon as might be, and an indication of the way. Apart from the 31]*language used, what is just and equitable is a judicial question similar to many that arise in private litigation, and in nowise beyond the competence of a tribunal to decide.

The ground now is clear, so far as the original contract between the two states is concerned. The effect of that is that West Virginia must bear her just and equitable proportion of the public debt, as it was intimated in Hartman v. Greenhow, 102 U. S. 672, 26 L. ed. 271, so long ago as 1880, that she should. It remains for us to consider such subsequent acts as may have affected the original liability, or as may bear on the determination of the amount to be paid. On March 30, 1871, Virginia, assuming that the equitable share of West Virginia was about one third, passed an act authorizing an exchange of the outstanding bonds, etc., and providing for the funding of two thirds of the debt, with interest accrued to July 1, 1871, by the issue of new bonds, bearing the same rate of interest as the old,—6 per cent. There were to be issued at the same time, for the other one third, certificates of same date, setting forth the amount of the old bond that was not funded, that payment thereof with interest at the rate prescribed in the old bond would be provided for in accordance with such settlement as should be had between Virginia and West Virginia in regard to the public debt, and that Virginia held the old bonds in trust for the holder or his assignees. There were further details that need not be mentioned. The coupons of the new bonds were receivable for all taxes and demands due to the state. Hartman v. Greenhow, supra; McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662, 34 L. ed. 304, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972. The certificates issued to the public under this statute, and outstanding, amount to $12,703,451.79.

The burden under the statute of 1871 still being greater than Virginia felt able to bear, a new refunding act was passed on March 28, 1879, reducing the interest, and providing that Virginia would negotiate or aid in negotiating *with West Virginia[32 for the settlement of the claims of certificate holders, and that the acceptance of certificates "for West Virginia's one third" under this act should be an absolute release of Virgina from all liability on account of the same. Few of these certificates were accepted. On February 14, 1882, another attempt was made, but without sufficient success to make it necessary to set forth the contents of the statute. The certificates for balances not represented by bonds, "constituting West Virginia's share of the old debt," stated that the balance was "to be accounted for by the state of West Virginia without recourse upon this commonwealth."

On February 20, 1892, a statute was passed which led to a settlement, described in the bill as final and satisfactory. This provided for the issue of bonds for $19,000,000 in exchange for $28,000,000 outstanding, not funded, the new bonds bearing interest at 2 per cent for the first ten years and 3 per cent for ninety years; and certificates in form similar to that just stated in the act of 1882. On March 6, 1894, a joint resolution of the senate and house of delegates was passed, reciting the passage of the four above-mentioned statutes, the provisions for certificates, and the satisfactory adjustment of the liabilities assumed by Virginia on account of two thirds of the debt, and appointing a committee to negotiate with West Virginia when satisfied that a majority of the certificate holders desired it, and would accept the amount to be paid by West Virginia in full settlement of the one third that Virginia had not assumed. The state was to be subjected to no expense. Finally an act of March 6, 1900, authorized the commission to receive and take on deposit the certificates, upon a contract that the certificate holders would accept the amount realized from West Virginia in full settlement of all their claims under the same. It also authorized a suit if certain proportions of the certificates should 33]be so deposited, *as since then they have been,—the state, as before, to be subjected to no expense.

On January 9, 1906, the commission reported that, apart from certificates held by the state, and not entering into this account, there were outstanding of the certificates of 1871 in the hands of the public, $12,703,451.79, as we have said, of which the commission held $10,851,294.09, and of other certificates there were in the hands of the public $2,778,239.80, of which the commission held $2,322,141.32.

On the foregoing facts a technical argument is pressed that Virginia has discharged herself of all liability as to one third of the debt; that therefore she is without interest in this suit, and cannot maintain it on her own behalf; that she cannot maintain it as trustee for the certificate holders (New Hampshire v. Louisiana, 108 U. S. 76, 27 L. ed. 656, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176); and that the bill is multifarious in attempting to unite claims made by the plaintiff as such trustee with some others set up under the Wheeling ordinance, etc., which, in the view we take, it has not been necessary to mention or discuss. We shall assume it to be true for the purposes of our decision, although it may be open to debate (Greenhow v. Vashon, 81 Va. 336, 342, 343), that the certificate holders who have turned in their certificates, being much the greater number, as has been seen, by doing so, if not before, surrendered all claims under the original bonds or otherwise against Virginia to the extent of one third of the debt. But even on that concession the argument seems to us unsound.

The liability of West Virginia is a deep-seated equity, not discharged by changes in the form of the debt, nor split up by the unilateral attempt of Virginia to apportion specific parts to the two states. If one third of the debt were discharged in fact, to all intents, we perceive no reason, in what has happened, why West Virginia should not contribute her proportion of the remaining 34]*two thirds. But we are of opinion that no part of the debt is extinguished, and further, that nothing has happened to bring the rule of New Hampshire v. Louisiana into play. For even if Virginia is not liable, she has the contract of West Virginia to bear an equitable share of the whole debt,—a contract in the performance of which the honor and credit of Virginia is concerned, and which she does not lose her right to insist upon by her creditors accepting from necessity the performance of her estimated duty as confining their claims for the residue to the party equitably bound. Her creditors never could have sued her if the supposed discharge had not been granted, and the discharge does not diminish her interest and right to have the whole debt paid by the help of the defendant. The suit is in Virginia's own interest, none the less that she is to turn over the proceeds. See United States v. Beebe, 127 U. S. 338, 342, 32 L. ed. 121, 123, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1083; United States v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 118 U. S. 120, 125, 126, 30 L. ed. 81, 83, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1006. Moreover, even in private litigation it has been held that a trustee may recover to the extent of the interest of his cestui que trust. Lloyd's v. Harper, L. R. 16 Ch. Div. 290, 309, 315, 1 Eng. Rul. Cas. 686; Lamb v. Vice, 6 Mees. & W. 467, 472. We may add that in all its aspects it is a suit on the contract, and it is most proper that the whole matter should be disposed of at once.

It remains true, then, notwithstanding all the transactions between the old commonwealth and her bondholders, that West Virginia must bear her equitable proportion of the whole debt. With a qualification which we shall mention in a moment, we are of opinion that the nearest aproach to justice that we can make is to adopt a ratio determined by the master's estimated valuation of the real and personal property of the two states on the date of the separation, June 20, 1863. A ratio determined by population or land area would throw a larger share on West Virginia, but the relative resources of the *debtor populations[35 are generally recognized, we think, as affording a proper measure. It seems to us plain that slaves should be excluded from the valuation. The master's figures without them are, for Virginia, $300,887,367.74, and for West Virginia, $92,416,021.65. These figures are criticized by Virginia, but we see no sufficient reason for going behind them, or ground for thinking that we can get nearer to justice in any other way. It seems to us that Virginia cannot complain of the result. They would give the proportion in which the $33,897,073.82 was to be divided, but for a correction which Virginia has made necessary. Virginia, with the consent of her creditors, has cut down her liability to not more than two thirds of the debt, whereas, at the ratio shown by the figures, her share, subject to mathematical correction, is about .7651. If our figures are correct, the difference between Virginia's share, say $25,931,261.47, and the amount that the creditors were content to accept from her, say $22,598,049.21, is $3,333,212.26; subtracting the last sum from the debt leaves $30,563,861.56 as the sum to be apportioned. Taking .235 as representing the proportion of West Virginia, we have $7,182,507.46 as her share of the principal debt.

We have given our decision with respect to the basis of liability and the share of the principal of the debt of Virginia that West Virginia assumed. In any event, before we could put our judgment in the form of a final decree, there would be figures to be agreed upon or to be ascertained by reference to a master. Among other things there still remains the question of interest. Whether any interest is due, and if due, from what time it should be allowed, and at what rate it should be computed, are matters as to which there is a serious controversy in the record, and concerning which there is room for a wide divergence of opinion. There are many elements to be taken into account on the one side and on the other. The circumstances of the asserted default 36]and *the conditions surrounding the failure earlier to procure a determination of the principal sum payable, including the question of laches as to either party, would require to be considered. A long time has elapsed. Wherever the responsibility for the delay might ultimately be placed, or however it might be shared, it would be a severe result to capitalize charges for half a century,—such a thing hardly could happen in a private case analogous to this. Statutes of limitation, if nothing else, would be likely to interpose a bar. As this is no ordinary commercial suit, but, as we have said, a quasi international difference, referred to this court in reliance upon the honor and constitutional obligations of the states concerned rather than upon ordinary remedies, we think it best at this stage to go no farther, but to await the effect of a conference between the parties, which, whatever the outcome, must take place. If the cause should be pressed contentiously to the end, it would be referred to a master to go over the figures that we have given provisionally, and to make such calculations as might become necessary. But this case is one that calls for forbearance upon both sides. Great states have a temper superior to that of private litigants, and it is to be hoped that enough has been decided for patriotism, the fraternity of the Union, and mutual consideration to bring it to an end.

*UNITED STATES Petitioner, [37
v.
ATCHISON, TOPEKA, & SANTA FE RAILWAY COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 37-45.)

Master and servant — hours of telegraph operators — Federal regulation.

Requiring a railway telegraph operator to work five and one half hours, and then, after an interval, three and one half more hours in the same twenty-four, is not made unlawful by the provisions of the act of March 4, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1415, 1416, chap. 2939, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 1170, 1171), §§ 2, 3, forbidding common carriers to permit such employees to be on duty for a longer period than nine hours in any twenty-four-hour period in a place continuously operated night and day.

[For other cases, see Master and Servant, I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 504.]

Argued February 28, 1911. Decided March 13, 1911.

ON WRIT of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, to review a judgment which reversed a judgment of the District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in favor of the government in an action to recover the penalty provided for a violation by a common carrier of the Federal statute prescribing the hours of labor for telegraph operators. Affirmed.

See same case below, 100 C. C. A. 534, 177 Fed. 114.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Assistant to the Attorney General Kenyon argued the cause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham and Special Assistant United States Attorney Doherty, filed a brief for petitioner:

Courts have said that an injury is "continuous" if it recurs at repeated intervals (Wood v. Sutcliffe, 8 Eng. L. & Eq. 220, 2 Sim. N. S. 163, 21 L. J. Ch. N. S. 253, 16 Jur. 75); and that a ride is continuous if it is not interrupted for any considerable length of time (Garrison v. United R. & Electric Co. 97 Md. 347, 99 Am. St. Rep. 452, 55 Atl. 371).

The word "continuously" may be read in the sense of "regularly" or "habitually" or "customarily."

NOTE.—On legislative limitation of hours of labor—see notes to People v. Orange County Road Constr. Co. 65 L.R.A. 33; Ex parte Martin, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 242; People v. Williams, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1130; and Atkin v. Kansas, 48 L. ed. U. S. 148.

United States Steel Corp. v. Hodge, 64 N. J. Eq. 807, 60 L.R.A. 742, 54 Atl. 1.

The word "period" carries with it the idea of a cycle, a term.

Sampson v. Peaslee, 20 How. 571, 15 L. ed. 1022; 22 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, p. 678; Webster's Dict. "Period;" Standard Dict. Crabb's Eng. Synonyms, p. 799; People ex rel. Healy v. Leask, 67 N. Y. 521; State v. Strauss, 49 Md. 288; Re Becker, 39 Misc. 756, 80 N. Y. Supp. 1115.

A statute is to be construed with reference to its manifest object; and if the language is susceptible of two constructions, one of which will carry out and the other defeat the manifest object, it should receive the former construction.

Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. §§ 369, 370.

Granting, for the sake of argument, that it is a penal statute, it does not follow that the forced and technical construction contended for by respondent should be given.

Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 357, 48 L. ed. 708, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. Wiltberger, 5 Wheat. 76, 5 L. ed. 37; United States v. Morris, 14 Pet. 464, 10 L. ed. 543; People v. Bartow, 6 Cow. 290; Heydon's Case, 3 Coke, 7; Endlich, Interpretation of Statutes, p. 135, § 103; Potter's Dwarr. Stat. Constr. p. 194, note.

The act is remedial; and therefore, despite its penal provisions, it is to be reasonably construed, so as to accomplish the purpose of its enactment.

Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 17, 49 L. ed. 363, 369, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158; Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co. 205 U. S. 1, 10, 51 L. ed. 681, 685, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 391, 50 L. ed. 515, 521, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272.

Mr. Robert Dunlap argued the cause, and, with Mr. Gardiner Lathrop, filed a brief for respondent:

The office in which the operators in question worked was not one "continuously operated night and day."

Standard Dict. "Continuously," 9 Enc. L. & P. 212; State v. Vanderbilt, 37 Ohio St. 598; Black v. Delaware & R. Canal Co. 22 N. J. Eq. 402; Garrison v. United R. & Electric Co. 97 Md. 347, 99 Am. St. Rep. 452, 55 Atl. 372; People v. Sullivan, 9 Utah, 195, 33 Pac. 701.

Provisos or exceptions are strictly construed in taking cases out of general provisions.

United States v. Dickson, 15 Pet. 158, 165, 10 L. ed. 696, 698; Dollar Sav. Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 228, 22 L. ed. 80.

Courts cannot suppose that omissions were not intentional, and undertake to supply the same.

United States v. Colorado & N. W. R. Co. 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 167, 85 C. C. A. 27, 157 Fed. 321, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 893; State v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 157 Ind. 288, 61 N. E. 670; Re Hering, 133 App. Div. 293, 117 N. Y. Supp. 747; Sutherland Stat. Constr. § 328; Hobbs v. McLean, 117 U. S. 579, 580, 29 L. ed. 945, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 870; United States v. Illinois C. R. Co. 95 C. C. A. 628, 170 Fed. 549; Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 166 Fed. 498, affirmed in 216 U. S. 531, 54 L. ed. 605, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415; Konda v. United States, 22 L.R.A.(N.S.) 304, 92 C. C. A. 75, 166 Fed. 91.

The statute should be construed strictly.

Robinson v. Harmon, 157 Mich. 266, 278, 117 N. W. 661, 664, 122 N. W. 106; People v. Weinstock, 193 N. Y. 481, 86 N. E. 548; Nance v. Southern R. Co. 149 N. C. 366, 63 S. E. 116; United States v. Harris, 177 U. S. 305, 309, 44 L. ed. 780, 781, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Bolles v. Outing Co. 175 U. S. 265, 268, 44 L. ed. 157, 158, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 94; Lau Ow Bew v. United States, 144 U. S. 59, 36 L. ed. 344, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 517; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Dey, 1 L.R.A. 744, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 325, 35 Fed. 876; Tozer v. United States, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 245, 52 Fed. 917.

Penalties are not to be extended by construction.

Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. People, 227 Ill. 278, 81 N. E. 342; State v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 157 Ind. 288, 61 N. E. 669.

For Congress to undertake to say that the hours of work can only be consecutive, and may not, by agreement of the parties, be distributed within the period of a day, would exceed the limit of police power, and seriously impinge upon the liberty of contract.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1133; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

It is the "hours of service" which are sought to be limited.

22 Ops. Atty. Gen. p. 62; United States v. Langston, 29 C. C. A. 379, 52 U. S. App. 504, 85 Fed. 613; United States v. McCrory, 56 C. C. A. 373, 119 Fed. 862.

A sensible construction should be adopted.

East v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co. 195

N. Y. 409, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 513, 88 N. E. 751; Opinion of Justices, — N. H. —, 72 Atl. 754; Washington Market Co. v. Hoffman, 101 U. S. 116, 25 L. ed. 783; United States v. Kirby, 7 Wall. 486, 19 L. ed. 280; Darlington Lumber Co. v. Missouri P. R. Co. 216 Mo. 658, 116 S. W. 530; Thompson v. State, 20 Ala. 62.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action to recover penalties for violation of the "Act to Promote the Safety of Employees and Travelers upon Railroads by Limiting the Hours of Service of Employees Thereon." March 4, 1907, chap. 2939, §§ 2, 3, 34 Stat. at L. 1415, 1416, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 1170, 1171. The government had a verdict in the district court, subject to exceptions, and the judgment was reversed by the circuit court of appeals. 100 C. C. A. 534, 177 Fed. 114.

The case is this: By § 2 it is made unlawful for common carriers subject to the act to permit any employee subject to the act to be on duty "for a longer period than sixteen consecutive hours," or, after that period, to go on duty again until he has had 43] at least ten consecutive hours off *duty, or eight hours after sixteen hours' work in the aggregate: Provided that no telegraph operator and the like shall be permitted to be "on duty for a longer period than nine hours in any twenty-four hour period in all towers, offices, places, and stations continuously operated night and day, nor for a longer period than thirteen hours in all towers, offices, places, and stations operated only during the daytime," with immaterial exceptions. By § 3 there is a penalty of not exceeding $500 for each violation of § 2. The defendant was subject to the act. It had a station and telegraph office at Corwith, in the outer limits of Chicago, which was shut from 12 to 3 by day and by night, but open the rest of the time. The government contends that this was a place "continuously operated night and day." At this station the same telegraph operator was employed from half-past 6 o'clock in the morning until 12, and again from 3 P. M. to half-past 6, or nine hours, in all, of actual work. The government contends that when nine hours have passed from the moment of beginning work, the statute allows no more labor within twenty-four hours from the same time, even though the nine hours have not all of them been spent in work. According to the government's argument, the operator's nine hours expired at half-past 3 in the afternoon. These questions on the construction of the statute are the only ones that we have to decide.

We are of opinion that the government's argument cannot be sustained, even if it be conceded that Corwith was a place continuously operated night and day, as there are strong reasons for admitting. The antithesis is between places continuously operated night and day and places operated only during the daytime. We think that the government is right in saying that the proviso is meant to deal with all offices, and if so, we should go farther than otherwise we might in holding offices not *operated only during the daytime as[44 falling under the other head. A trifling interruption would not be considered, and it is possible that even three hours by night and three hours by day would not exclude the office from all operation of the law, and to that extent defeat what we believe was its intent.

But if we concede the government's first proposition, it is impossible to extract the requirement of fifteen hours' continuous leisure from the words of the statute by grammatical construction alone. The proviso does not say nine "consecutive" hours, as was said in the earlier part of the section, and if it had said so, or even "for a longer period than a period of nine consecutive hours," still the defendant's conduct would not have contravened the literal meaning of the words. A man employed for six hours and then, after an interval, for three, in the same twenty-four, is not employed for a longer period than nine consecutive hours. Indeed, the word "consecutive" was struck out when the bill was under discussion, on the suggestion that otherwise a man might be worked for a second nine hours after an interval of half an hour. In order to bring about the effect contended for it would have been necessary to add, as the section does add in the earlier part, a provision for the required number of consecutive hours off duty. The presence of such a provision in the one part and its absence in the other is an argument against reading it as implied. The government suggests that if it is not implied, a man might be set to work for two hours on and two hours off, alternately. This hardly is a practical suggestion. We see no reason to suppose that Congress meant more than it said. On the contrary, the reason for striking out the word "consecutive" in the proviso given, as we have mentioned, when the bill was under discussion, and the alternative reference in § 2 to "sixteen consecutive hours" and "sixteen hours in the aggregate," show that the obvious possibility of two periods of service *in the same twenty-four hours[45 was before the mind of Congress, and that there was no oversight in the choice of words.

Judgment of Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed.

HIPOLITE EGG COMPANY, Claimant of Fifty Cans, More or Less, of Preserved Eggs, Plff. in Err. and Appt.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 45–60.)

Pure food law — remedy in rem — shipment for use as raw material.

1. The remedy in rem in the Federal courts provided by the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 768, chap. 3915, § 10, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1193), where any article of food that is adulterated is being transported from one state to another for sale, or, having been transported, remains unloaded, unsold, or in original unbroken packages, may be invoked where adulterated eggs have been shipped into the state, not for sale, but intended solely for use by the consignee in the bakery business.

[Adulterated Foods, see Food, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — adulterated foods — confiscation in original packages.

2. Congress could lawfully enact the provisions of the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906, § 10, under which adulterated articles of food, the subjects of interstate commerce, may be confiscated by a proceeding in rem in the Federal courts after they have reached their destination, and there remain in the hands of the consignee in the original unbroken packages.

[Original Package Doctrine, see Commerce, IV, b, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Costs — in proceeding to confiscate adulterated food.

3. Costs in personam may be assessed against the claimant in the proceeding in rem under the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906, § 10, to confiscate adulterated articles of food, the subject of interstate commerce, even if the principles of the admiralty law are made applicable by the provision of that section that the proceedings shall conform as near as may be to the proceedings in admiralty.

[Matters as to Costs, see Costs and Fees, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 519.]

Submitted January 5, 1911. Decided March 13, 1911.

IN ERROR to, and APPEAL from, the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of Illinois, to review a decree confiscating adulterated eggs under the food and drugs act. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Thomas E. Lannen and Edward T. Fenwick submitted the cause for plaintiff in error and appellant:

Section 10 of the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906, does not apply to an article of food which has not been shipped for sale, but which has been shipped solely for use as raw material in the manufacture of some other food product.

United States v. Sixty Five Casks Liquid Extracts, 170 Fed. 449; United States v. Knowlton Danderine Co. 99 C. C. A. 667, 175 Fed. 1022; United States v. Forty-Six Packages & Bags of Sugar, 183 Fed. 642.

When goods shipped into a state have been so acted upon by the party in the state receiving them that they become mixed with the general property in the state, and the goods become incorporated with the mass of state property, they are no longer in interstate commerce.

Waring v. Mobile, 8 Wall. 110, 19 L. ed. 342; Low v. Austin, 13 Wall. 29, 20 L. ed. 517; Cook v. Pennsylvania, 97 U. S. 566, 24 L. ed. 1015.

In a proceeding in rem, the court has no jurisdiction to assess the costs in personam against a claimant who simply files an answer, but who does not enter into a stipulation to pay the costs of the proceeding.

The Monte A, 12 Fed. 331.

Where the law provides only for a proceeding in rem, a proceeding in rem and a proceeding in personam cannot be joined in the same libel.

The Alida, 12 Fed. 343.

Assistant Attorney General Fowler submitted the cause for defendant in error and appellee:

The cans of eggs in question had not lost their identity as articles of interstate commerce.

Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U. S. 100, 34 L. ed. 128, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 36, 10

Note.—On validity of statute or ordinance for the destruction of food products below the prescribed standard, or unfit for use—see note to Nelson v. Minneapolis, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 260.

On the power of Congress to regulate commerce—see notes to State ex rel. Corwin v. Indiana & O. Oil, Gas & Min. Co. 6 L.R.A. 579; Bullard v. Northern P. R. Co. 11 L.R.A. 246; Re Wilson, 12 L.R.A. 624; Gibbons v. Ogden, 6 L. ed. U. S. 23; Brown v. Maryland, 6 L. ed. U. S. 678; Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 29 L. ed. U. S. 158; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 32 L. ed. U. S. 229; Harmon v. Chicago, 37 L. ed. U. S. 216; and Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 38 L. ed. U. S. 1041.

Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Schollenberger v. Pennsylvania (Paul v. Pennsylvania) 171 U. S. 1, 43 L. ed. 49, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757; McGregor v. Cone, 104 Iowa, 471, 39 L.R.A. 484, 65 Am. St. Rep. 522, 73 N. W. 1041.

The food and drugs act is a remedial statute, and § 10 thereof prescribes one of the methods of suppressing the frauds aimed at by the act, and such section should therefore be liberally construed.

Taylor v. United States, 3 How. 197, 210, 11 L. ed. 559, 564; Rankin v. Hoyt, 4 How. 327, 332, 11 L. ed. 996, 998; United States v. Stowell, 133 U. S. 1, 12, 33 L. ed. 555, 558, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 244; Anglo-California Bank v. Secretary of Treasury, 22 C. C. A. 527, 48 U. S. App. 27, 76 Fed. 742; Re Coy, 31 Fed. 794; Farmers' & M. Nat. Bank v. Dearing, 91 U. S. 29, 35, 23 L. ed. 196, 199; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 391, 50 L. ed. 515, 521, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Endlich, Interpretation of Statutes, §§ 110, 333; Gray v. Bennett, 3 Met. 529; Reed v. Northfield, 13 Pick. 101, 23 Am. Dec. 662; Ellis v. Whitlock, 10 Mo. 781; Sickles v. Sharp, 13 Johns. 497; United States v. Freeman, 3 How. 556, 565, 11 L. ed. 724, 728.

The court did not err in adjudging the costs of the cause against plaintiff in error.

Jordan v. Agawam Woolen Co. 3 Cliff. 239, Fed. Cas. No. 7,516; The Mary H. Brockway, 49 Fed. 161; Aiken v. Smith, 6 C. C. A. 414, 13 U. S. App. 394, 57 Fed. 423; The Ethel, 13 C. C. A. 504, 30 U. S. App. 214, 66 Fed. 340; Du Bois v. Kirk, 158 U. S. 58, 67, 39 L. ed. 895, 899, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 729.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

The case is here on a question of jurisdiction certified by the district court.

On March 11, 1909, the United States instituted libel proceedings under § 10 of the act of Congress of June 30, 1906 (34 [50]Stat. at L. 768, *chap. 3915, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1193), against fifty cans of preserved whole eggs, which had been prepared by the Hipolite Egg Company of St. Louis, Missouri.

The eggs, before the shipment alleged in the libel, were stored in a warehouse in St. Louis for about five months, during which time they were the property of Thomas & Clark, an Illinois corporation engaged in the bakery business at Peoria, Illinois.

Thomas & Clark procured the shipment of the eggs to themselves at Peoria, and, upon the receipt of them, placed the shipment in their storeroom in their bakery factory along with other bakery supplies. The eggs were intended for baking purposes, and were not intended for sale in the original unbroken packages or otherwise, and were not so sold. The Hipolite Egg Company appeared as claimant of the eggs, intervened, filed an answer, and defended the case, but did not enter into a stipulation to pay costs.

Upon the close of libellant's evidence, and again at the close of the case, counsel for the egg company moved the court to dismiss the libel on the ground that it appeared from the evidence that the court, as a Federal court, had no jurisdiction to proceed against or confiscate the eggs, because they were not shipped in interstate commerce for sale, within the meaning of § 10 of the food and drugs act, and for the further reason that the evidence showed that the shipment had passed out of interstate commerce before the seizure of the eggs, because it appeared that they had been delivered to Thomas & Clark, and were not intended to be sold by them in the original packages or otherwise.

The motions were overruled and the court proceeded to hear and determine the cause, and entered a decree finding the eggs adulterated, and confiscating them. Costs were assessed against the egg company.

The decree was excepted to on the ground that the *court was without jurisdic-[51 tion in rem over the subject-matter, and on the further ground that the court was without jurisdiction to enter judgment in personam against the egg company for costs.

The jurisdiction of the district court being challenged, the case comes here directly.

Section 2 of the food and drugs act prohibits the introduction into any state or territory from any other state or territory, of any article of food or drugs which is adulterated, and makes it a misdemeanor for any person to ship or deliver for shipment such adulterated article, or who shall receive such shipment, or having received it, shall deliver it in original unbroken packages for pay or otherwise.

In giving a remedy, § 10 provides that if "any article of food . . . that is adulterated . . . and is being transported from one state . . . to another, for sale, or having been transported, remains unloaded, unsold, or in original unbroken packages, . . . shall be liable to be proceeded against in any district court of the United States within the district where the same is found, and seized for confiscation by a process of libel for condemnation. . . . The proceedings of such libel cases shall conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in admiralty . . . and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the United States."

The shipment to Thomas & Clark consisted of 130 separate cans, each can corked and sealed with wax. The eggs were intended to be used for baking purposes. The only can sold was that sold to the inspector for the purpose of having the eggs analyzed. They contained approximately two per cent of boric acid, which the court found was a deleterious ingredient, and adjudged that they were adulterated within the meaning of the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 771, chap. 3915, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1187).

The egg company, whilst not contending 52]that the *shipment of the eggs was not a violation of § 2 of the act, and a misdemeanor within its terms, and not denying the power of Congress to enact it, presents three contentions: (1) Section 10 of the food and drugs act does not apply to an article of food which has not been shipped for sale, but which has been shipped solely for use as raw material in the manufacture of some other product. (2) A United States district court has no jurisdiction to proceed in rem under § 10 against goods that have passed out of interstate commerce before the proceeding in rem was commenced. (3) The court had no jurisdiction to enter a personal judgment against the egg company for costs.

It may be said at the outset of these contentions that they insist that the remedies provided by the statute are not coextensive with its prohibitions, and hence that it has virtually defined the wrong, and provided no adequate means of punishing the wrong when committed. Premising this much, we proceed to their consideration in the order in which they have been presented. The following cases are cited to sustain the first contention: United States v. Sixty-five Casks of Liquid Extracts, 170 Fed. 449, affirmed by the circuit court of appeals in United States v. Knowlton Danderine Co. 99 C. C. A. 667, 175 Fed. 1022, and United States v. Forty-six Packages & Bags of Sugar, in the district court for the Southern district of Ohio, 183 Fed. 642.

The articles involved in the first case were charged with having been misbranded, and consisted of drugs in casks, which were shipped from Detroit, Michigan, to Wheeling, West Virginia, there to be received by the Knowlton Danderine Company in bulk in car-load lots, and manufactured into danderine, of which no sale was to be made until the casks should be emptied and the contents placed in properly marked bottles.

It was contended that the articles, not having been shipped in the casks for the 53]purpose of sale thus in bulk, *but shipped to the owner from one state to another, for the purpose of being bottled into small packages suitable for sale, and when so bottled to be labeled in compliance with the requirements of the act, were not transported for sale, and were therefore not subject to libel under § 10 of the act.

The contention submitted to the court the construction of the statute. The court, however, based its decision upon the want of power in Congress to prohibit one from manufacturing a product in a state and removing it to another state "for the purpose of personal use, and not sale, or for use in connection with the manufacture of other articles, to be legally branded when so manufactured;" and concluded independently, or as construing the statute, that the danderine company, being the owner of the property, shipped it to itself, and did not come within any of the prohibitions of the statute. The case was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals (99 C. C. A. 667, 175 Fed. 1022). The court, however, expressed no opinion as to the power of Congress. It decided that the facts did not exhibit a case within the purpose of the statute, saying: "No attempt to evade the law, either directly, indirectly, or by subterfuge, has been shown, it appearing that the manufacturer had simply transferred from one point to another the product he was manufacturing, for the purpose of completing the preparation of the same for the market. Under the circumstances disclosed in this case, having in mind the object of the Congress in enacting the law involved, we do not think the liquid extracts proceeded against should be forfeited. Reaching this conclusion, we do not find it necessary to consider other questions discussed by counsel and referred to in the opinion of the court below."

In United States v. Forty-six Packages & Bags of Sugar, the court construed the statute as applying only to transportation for the purpose of sale. To explain its view the court said: "Following the words having been *'transported' is an ellipse[54 —an omission of words necessary to the complete construction of the sentence. Those words are found in the preceding part of the section, and, when supplied, the clause under which this libel is filed reads and means, 'any article of food, drug, or liquor that is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act, having been transported from one state . . . to another for sale [italics ours], remains unloaded, unsold, or in original, unbroken packages, . . . shall be liable,'" etc. And the court was of opinion that this view was in accord with the other two cases which we have cited. This may be disputed. It may well be considered that there is no analogy between an article in the hands of its owner, or moved from one place to another by him, to be used in the manufacture of articles subject to the statute, and to be branded in compliance with it, and an adulterated article itself the subject of sale, and intended to be used as adulterated, in contravention of the purpose of the statute.

A legal analogy might be insisted upon if cakes and cookies, which are the compounds of eggs and flour which the record presents, could be branded to apprise of their ingredients like compounds of alcohol. The object of the law is to keep adulterated articles out of the channels of interstate commerce, or, if they enter such commerce, to condemn them while being transported or when they have reached their destination, provided they remain unloaded, unsold, or in original unbroken packages. The situations are clearly separate, and we cannot unite or qualify them by the purpose of the owner to be a sale. It, indeed, may be asked, in what manner a sale? The question suggests that we might accept the condition, and yet the instances of this record be within the statute. All articles, compound or single, not intended for consumption by the producer, are designed for sale, and, because they are, it is the concern of the law to have them pure.

It is, however, insisted that "the pro-
55]ceeding in personam *authorized by the law was intended to, and no doubt is, capable of giving full force and effect to the law;" and, further, that a producer in a state is not interested in an article shipped from another state, which is not intended to be sold or offered for consumption until it is manufactured into something else. The argument is peculiar. It is certainly to the interest of a producer or consumer that the article which he receives, no matter whence it comes, shall be pure, and the law seeks to secure that interest, not only through personal penalties, but through the condemnation of the article if impure. There is nothing inconsistent in the remedies, nor are they dependent. The Three Friends, 166 U. S. 1, 49, 41 L. ed. 897, 913, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495.

The first contention of the egg company is therefore untenable.

2. Under this contention it is said that "the jurisdiction of the food and drugs act in question can go no farther than the power given to Congress under which it was enacted," and that the district court, therefore, "had no jurisdiction in rem, because at the time of the seizure the eggs had passed into the general mass of property in the state, and out of the field covered by interstate commerce."

To support the contention, Waring v. Mobile, 8 Wall. 110, 19 L. ed. 342, is cited. That case involved the legality of a tax imposed by an ordinance of the city of Mobile upon merchants and traders of the city, equal to ½ of 1 per cent on the gross amount of their sales, whether the merchandise was sold at public or private sale. Waring was fined for nonpayment of the tax, and he brought suit to restrain the collection of the fine, alleging that he was exempt from the tax on the ground that the sales made by him were of merchandise in the original packages, as imported from a foreign country, and which was purchased by him, in entire cargoes, of the consignees of the importing vessels before their arrival, or while the vessels were *in the[56 lower harbor of the port. He obtained a decree in the trial court which was reversed by the supreme court of the state of Alabama. A writ of error was sued out from this court and the decree was affirmed, on the ground that Waring was not the shipper or consignee of the imported merchandise, nor the first vendor of it, and it was the settled law of the court "that merchandise in the original packages, once sold by the importer, is taxable as other property,"—citing Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 443, 6 L. ed. 687; Almy v. California, 24 How. 173, 16 L. ed. 645; Pervear v. Massachusetts, 5 Wall. 479, 18 L. ed. 609. This also was said:

"When the importer sells the imported articles, or otherwise mixes them with the general property of the state by breaking up the packages, the state of things changes, as was said by this court in the leading case, as the tax then finds the articles already incorporated with the mass of property by the act of the importer. Importers selling the imported articles in the original packages are shielded from any such state tax, but the privilege of exemption is not extended to the purchaser, as the merchandise, by the sale and delivery, loses its distinctive character as an import."

This case is clear as far as it goes, but the facts are not the same as those in the case at bar.

In the case at bar there was no sale of the articles after they were committed to interstate commerce, nor were the original packages broken. Indeed, it might be insisted that we need go no farther than that case for the rule of decision in this. It affirms the doctrine of original packages which was expressed and illustrated in previous cases and has been expressed and illustrated in subsequent ones. It is too firmly fixed to need or even to justify further discussion, and we shall not stop to affirm or deny its application to the special contention of the egg company.

We prefer to decide the case on another ground which is sustained by well-known principles.

57] *The statute declares that it is one "for preventing . . . the transportation of adulterated . . . foods . . . and for regulating traffic therein;" and, as we have seen, § 2 makes the shipper of them criminal, and § 10 subjects them to confiscation, and, in some cases, to destruction, so careful is the statute to prevent a defeat of its purpose. In other words, transportation in interstate commerce is forbidden to them, and, in a sense, they are made culpable as well as their shipper. It is clearly the purpose of the statute that they shall not be stealthily put into interstate commerce and be stealthily taken out again upon arriving at their destination, and be given asylum in the mass of property of the state. Certainly not, when they are yet in the condition in which they were transported to the state, or, to use the words of the statute, while they remain "in the original, unbroken packages." In that condition they carry their own identification as contraband of law. Whether they might be pursued beyond the original package we are not called upon to say. That far the statute pursues them, and, we think, legally pursues them, and to demonstrate this but little discussion is necessary.

The statute rests, of course, upon the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce; and, defining that power, we have said that no trade can be carried on between the states to which it does not extend, and have further said that it is complete in itself, subject to no limitations except those found in the Constitution. We are dealing, it must be remembered, with illicit articles,—articles which the law seeks to keep out of commerce because they are debased by adulteration, and which punishes them (if we may so express ourselves) and the shipper of them. There is no denial that such is the purpose of the law, and the only limitation of the power to execute such purpose which is urged is that the articles must be apprehended in transit, 58]or before they have become a part *of the general mass of property of the state. In other words, the contention attempts to apply to articles of illegitimate commerce the rule which marks the line between the exercise of Federal power and state power over articles of legitimate commerce. The contention misses the question in the case. There is here no conflict of national and state jurisdictions over property legally articles of trade. The question here is whether articles which are outlaws of commerce may be seized wherever found; and it certainly will not be contended that they are outside of the jurisdiction of the national government when they are within the borders of a state. The question in the case, therefore, is, What power has Congress over such articles? Can they escape the consequences of their illegal transportation by being mingled at the place of destination with other property? To give them such immunity would defeat, in many cases, the provision for their confiscation, and their confiscation or destruction is the especial concern of the law. The power to do so is certainly appropriate to the right to bar them from interstate commerce, and completes its purpose, which is not to prevent merely the physical movement of adulterated articles, but the use of them, or rather to prevent trade in them between the states by denying to them the facilities of interstate commerce. And appropriate means to that end, which we have seen is legitimate, are the seizure and condemnation of the articles at their point of destination in the original, unbroken packages. The selection of such means is certainly within that breadth of discretion which we have said Congress possesses in the execution of the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution. M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 355, 47 L. ed. 492, 500, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561.

3. Had the court jurisdiction to adjudge costs against the egg company? This is contended, and in support of the contention the claimant assimilates this proceeding *to one in admiralty. In consequence,[59 it may be supposed of the provisions of § 10 of the food and drugs act that the proceedings "shall conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in admiralty," and The Monte A, 12 Fed. 331, and The Alida, 12 Fed. 343, are cited as deciding that in a proceeding in rem the court has no jurisdiction to assess the costs in personam, against the claimant, who simply files an answer, but who does not enter into a stipulation to pay the costs of the proceeding. Too broad a deduction is made from these cases. They undoubtedly decide that a process in rem and in personam cannot be joined in admiralty in the same libel, but it was not held that this was because of a want of jurisdictional power in the court. Such view was disclaimed in The Monte A, and to show that the framing of a libel against the owner in personam and against the vessel in rem was not jurisdictional, the court said that a breach of a contract of affreightment could have been so framed "long before the adoption of the Supreme Court rules in admiralty."

It is stated in Benedict's Admiralty, § 204, that "the distinction between proceedings in rem and in personam has no proper relation to the question of jurisdiction." It may be, as stated in § 359 of the same work, that "in a suit in rem, unless someone intervenes, the power and process of the court is confined to the thing itself, and does not reach either the person or property of the owner." If, however, the owner comes in, or an intervener does, his appearance is voluntary. He becomes an actor and subjects himself to costs, and this even if his ownership be averred in the libel. Waples, Proceedings in Rem, p. 100, § 73; United States v. 422 Casks of Wine, 1 Pet. 547, 7 L. ed. 257.

And such seems to be the necessary effect of admiralty rules 26 and 34. It is provided 60] (rule 34) that if a third *person intervene, for his own interest, he is required to give a stipulation with sureties to abide the final decree rendered in the original or appellate court. It is in effect conceded that if such a stipulation be given, a judgment for costs can be rendered. But, upon what theory? The concession confounds the relation between the stipulation and the judgment, and makes the security for the payment of the judgment the source of jurisdiction to render it,—jurisdiction, according to the contention, which the court does not have as a Federal court.

Even, therefore, upon the supposition that the principles of the admiralty law are to apply to the proceedings under § 10, we think the court had jurisdiction to render a judgment for costs against the egg company.

So far our discussion has been in deference to the contention of the egg company; but it is disputable if the certificate presents a question of jurisdiction as to costs. The district court gets its jurisdiction of the cause from § 10 of the food and drugs act; and whether the libel may be in rem and in personam, or whether a personal judgment for costs can be rendered, may be said to be simply a question of the construction of the section, and not one which involves the jurisdiction of the court. In other words, the rulings of the court may be error only, not in excess of its power. It certainly had jurisdiction of the person of the egg company.

Decree affirmed.

*STUART LINDSLEY, Appt., [61
v.
NATURAL CARBONIC GAS COMPANY, William S. Jackson, Attorney General of the State of New York, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 61-83.)

Federal courts — following decisions of state courts — construction of statute.

1. The construction placed by the highest court of the state upon N. Y. Laws 1908, chap. 429, enacted to safeguard natural mineral springs against waste and impairment, must be accepted by the Federal courts in determining the validity of such statute under the Federal Constitution.

[For other cases, see Courts, 1744-1823, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — prohibiting waste of mineral waters.

2. A landowner engaged in collecting and vending as a separate commodity the carbonic acid gas contained in natural mineral waters existing in a common underground reservoir is not deprived of his property without due process of law, contrary to U. S. Const., 14th Amend., by the provisions of N. Y. Laws 1908, chap. 429, which, as construed by the state courts, forbid him from pumping or otherwise artificially drawing, by means of wells on his property, unnatural quantities of such waters from the common source of supply, and wasting them to the injury or impairment of the rights of other proprietors.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 500-522, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

NOTE.—As to state decisions and laws as rules of decision in Federal courts—see notes to Wilson v. Perrin, 11 C. C. A. 71; Hill v. Hite, 29 C. C. A. 553; Griffin v. Overman Wheel Co. 9 C. C. A. 548; Elmendorf v. Taylor, 6 L. ed. U. S. 290; Jackson ex dem. St. John v. Chew, 6 L. ed. U. S. 583; United States ex rel. Butz v. Muscatine, 19 L. ed. U. S. 490; Clark v. Graham, 5 L. ed. U. S. 334; Forepaugh v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 5 L.R.A. 508; and Mitchell v. Burlington, 18 L. ed. U. S. 351.

On constitutionality of statutes to prevent waste of subterranean waters, natural gas, or oil—see note to Hathorn v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 436.

As to what constitutes due process of law—see notes to People v. O'Brien, 2 L.R.A. 255; Kuntz v. Sumption, 2 L.R.A. 655; Re Gannon, 5 L.R.A. 359; Ulman v. Baltimore, 11 L.R.A. 224; Gilman v. Tucker, 13 L.R.A. 304; Pearson v. Yewdall, 24 L. ed. U. S. 436; and Wilson v. North Carolina, 42 L. ed. U. S. 865.

As to the validity of class legislation—see notes to State v. Goodwill, 6 L.R.A. 621, and State v. Loomis, 21 L.R.A. 789.

As to constitutional equality of privileges, immunities, and protection—see note to Louisville Safety Vault & T. Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 14 L.R.A. 579.

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — classification — prohibiting waste of mineral waters.

3. The substantial difference in point of harmful result, which, so far as the case as made shows, may exist, affords a reasonable basis, under the equal-protection-of-the-laws clause of the Federal Constitution, for the exemption of pumping from wells not penetrating the rock, and such pumping as is done for other purposes than collecting and vending, as a separate commodity, the carbonic acid gas contained in mineral waters, from the operation of the provisions of N. Y. Laws 1908, chap. 429, prohibiting the pumping or artificially drawing of unnatural quantities of mineral waters from a common underground source of supply, and wasting them to the injury and impairment of other proprietors.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 175–212, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — equal protection of the laws — statutory presumption.

4. Making the engaging in pumping mineral waters from wells bored or drilled into the rock for the purpose of collecting and vending as a separate commodity the carbonic acid gas contained therein prima facie evidence of the common underground source of supply and of injury to other proprietors, as is done by N. Y. Laws 1908, chap. 429, forbidding the pumping of the waters under such conditions, does not render the statute invalid, as infringing upon the guaranties in the Federal Constitution of due process of law and the equal protection of the laws.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 774–778, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 260.]

Argued January 3 and 4, 1911. Decided March 13, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a decree sustaining demurrers to and dismissing a bill which seeks to enjoin the enforcement of a state statute enacted to safeguard natural mineral springs against waste and impairment. Affirmed.

See same case below, 170 Fed. 1023.

Statement by Mr. Justice Van Devanter:

By a bill in equity exhibited in the circuit court, the appellant, as owner and holder of capital stock and bonds of the Natural Carbonic Gas Company, sought a decree enjoining that company from obeying, and the other defendants from enforcing, a statute of the state of New York, approved May 20, 1908, entitled, "An Act for the Protection of the Natural Mineral Springs of the State, and to Prevent Waste and Impairment of Its Natural Mineral Waters," and containing, among others, this provision: "Pumping, or otherwise drawing by artificial appliance, from any well made by boring or drilling into the rock, that class of mineral waters holding in solution natural mineral salts and an excess of carbonic acid gas, or pumping, or by any artificial contrivance whatsoever in any manner producing, an unnatural flow of carbonic acid gas issuing from or contained in any well made by boring or drilling into the rock, for the purpose of extracting, *collecting, compressing, liqui-[63 fying, or vending such gas as a commodity otherwise than in connection with the mineral water and the other mineral ingredients with which it was associated, is hereby declared to be unlawful." Laws 1908, vol. 2, chap. 429, p. 1221.

In addition to what properly may be passed without special mention, the bill alleges that the gas company owns 21 acres of lands in Saratoga Springs, New York, which contain mineral waters of the class specified in the statute; that these waters are percolating waters, not naturally flowing to or upon the surface, and can be reached and lifted to the surface only by means of pumps or other artificial appliances; that the gas company is engaged in collecting natural carbonic acid gas from these waters, and in compressing and selling the gas as a separate commodity; that this business has come to be both large and lucrative, and as a necessary incident to its successful prosecution the gas company has sunk upon its land wells of great depth, made by boring or drilling into the underlying rock, and has fitted these wells with tubing, seals, and pumps, whereby it lifts the waters and the gas contained therein to the surface; that these pumps do not exercise any force of compulsion upon waters in or under adjoining lands, but lift to the surface only such waters as flow by reason of the laws of nature into the wells; that when the waters are lifted to the surface, the excess of carbonic acid gas therein naturally escapes and is caught and compressed preparatory to its sale, none thereof being wasted, and no process being employed to increase the natural separation of the excess of gas from the waters; and that many other landowners in Saratoga Springs have like wells, which are operated in a like way, with a like purpose.

It also is alleged that the gas company bottles and sells for drinking purposes and for use by invalids and others all of the mineral waters pumped from its wells "for *which there is any market or demand," [64 but there is no allegation of the extent of this market or demand, and it was conceded in argument that a large proportion of the waters pumped from the company's wells is not used, but is suffered to run to waste.

In terms the bill predicates the right to the relief sought upon the claim that the state statute deprives the appellant and others of property without due process of law, and denies to them the equal protection of the laws, and therefore is violative of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

In the circuit court the defendants other than the gas company demurred to the bill. the demurrers were sustained (170 Fed. 1023), and a decree dismissing the bill was entered, whereupon this appeal was prayed and allowed.

Mr. Guthrie B. Plante argued the cause, and with Mr. Robert C. Morris, filed a brief for appellant:

The taking of percolating water by a landowner is in the exercise of a legal right which is without restriction or limitation, except where he uses his lands solely to obtain water from adjoining premises for purposes of transportation and sale.

Acton v. Blundell, 12 Mees. & W. 324, 13 L. J. Exch. N. S. 289, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 168; Chasemore v. Richards, 7 H. L. Cas. 349, 29 L. J. Exch. N. S. 81, 5 Jur. N. S. 873, 7 Week. Rep. 685; Chatfield v. Wilson, 28 Vt. 49; Roath v. Driscoll, 20 Conn. 533, 52 Am. Dec. 352; Pixley v. Clark, 35 N. Y. 520, 91 Am. Dec. 72; Delhi v. Youmans, 45 N. Y. 362, 6 Am. Rep. 100; Bloodgood v. Ayers, 108 N. Y. 400, 2 Am. St. Rep. 443, 15 N. E. 433; Huber v. Merkel, 117 Wis. 368, 62 L.R.A. 589, 98 Am. St. Rep. 933, 94 N. W. 354; United States v. Alexander, 148 U. S. 186, 37 L. ed. 415, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529; Smith v. Brooklyn, 18 App. Div. 340, 46 N. Y. Supp. 141, 32 App. Div. 257, 52 N. Y. Supp. 983, affirmed in 160 N. Y. 357, 45 L.R.A. 664, 54 N. E. 787; Merrick Water Co. v. Brooklyn, 32 App. Div. 454, 53 N. Y. Supp. 10, affirmed without opinion in 160 N. Y. 657, 55 N. E. 1097; Forbell v. New York, 47 App. Div. 371, 61 N. Y. Supp. 1005, affirmed in 164 N. Y. 522, 51 L.R.A. 695, 79 Am. St. Rep. 666, 58 N. E. 644; Stillwater Water Co. v. Farmer, 89 Minn. 67, 60 L.R.A. 875, 99 Am. St. Rep. 541, 93 N. W. 907; Frazier v. Brown, 12 Ohio St. 294; Greenleaf v. Francis, 18 Pick. 117; Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Asso. v. Asbury Park, 40 N. J. Eq. 447, 3 Atl. 168; Southern P. R. Co. v. Dufour, 95 Cal. 615, 19 L.R.A. 92, 30 Pac. 783; Haldeman v. Bruckhart, 45 Pa. 514, 84 Am. Dec. 511, 5 Mor. Min. Rep. 108; Wheatley v. Baugh, 25 Pa. 528, 64 Am. Dec. 721, 13 Mor. Min. Rep. 374; Davis v. Spaulding, 157 Mass. 431, 19 L.R.A. 102, 32 N. E. 650; Brown v. Spilman, 155 U. S. 665, 669, 670, 39 L. ed. 304–306, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 245; Kansas Natural Gas Co. v. Haskell, 172 Fed. 545; Westmoreland & C. Natural Gas Co. v. DeWitt, 130 Pa. 250, 5 L.R.A. 731, 18 Atl. 724; People's Gas Co. v. Tyner, 131 Ind. 277, 16 L.R.A. 443, 31 Am. St. Rep. 433, 31 N. E. 59, 17 Mor. Min. Rep. 481; Simpson v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. 28 Ind. App. 352. 62 N. E. 753; Acme Oil & Min. Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 681, 74 Pac. 296; Com. v. Trent, 117 Ky. 46, 77 S. W. 390, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 209; Brown & Bros. v. Illius, 27 Conn. 84, 71 Am. Dec. 49; Goodale v. Tuttle, 29 N. Y. 459; Phelps v. Nowlen, 72 N. Y. 40, 28 Am. Rep. 93; Van Wyeklen v. Brooklyn, 118 N. Y. 424, 24 N. E. 179; Ellis v. Dunean, 21 Barb. 230.

The same rule has been held to apply to petroleum, oil, and natural gas.

Preston v. White, 57 W. Va. 284, 50 S. E. 236; Lanyon Zinc Co. v. Freeman, 68 Kan. 696, 75 Pac. 995, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 403; Federal Oil Co. v. Western Oil Co. 57 C. C. A. 428, 121 Fed. 675, 22 Mor. Min. Rep. 429; Brewster v. Lanyon Zinc Co. 72 C. C. A. 213, 140 Fed. 809; Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 190, 208, 44 L. ed. 729, 738, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 466.

Decisions relating to oil and illuminating gas, and the statutes passed with respect thereto, form no absolute criterion for decision in this case, although such decisions, in many of the states, in regard to oil and illuminating gas, are particularly interesting and instructive, for they indicate clearly that even under the doctrines there applicable this statute would be absolutely and completely condemned.

Calor Oil & Gas Co. v. Franzell, 128 Ky. 715, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 109 S. W. 328; People's Gas Co. v. Tyner, 131 Ind. 277, 16 L.R.A. 443, 31 Am. St. Rep. 433, 31 N. E. 59, 17 Mor. Min. Rep. 481; Acme Oil & Min. Co. v. Williams, 140 Cal. 684, 74 Pac. 296; Com. v. Trent, 117 Ky. 46, 77 S. W. 390, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 209; Richmond Natural Gas Co. v. Enterprise Natural Gas Co. 31 Ind. App. 231, 66 N. E. 782; Jones v. Forest Oil Co. 194 Pa. 382, 48 L.R.A. 748, 44 Atl. 1074, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 350; Townsend v. State, 147 Ind. 624. 37 L.R.A. 294, 62 Am. St. Rep. 477, 47 N. E. 19; Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 190, 44 L. ed. 729, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 466.

Every act must be judged not by what is being done under it, but by what may be done under its terms.

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133–137, 38 L. ed. 385–388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Yick

Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 373, 374, 30 L. ed. 220, 227, 228, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Stuart v. Palmer, 74 N. Y. 188, 30 Am. Rep. 289; Gilman v. Tucker, 128 N. Y. 200, 13 L.R.A. 304, 26 Am. St. Rep. 464, 28 N. E. 1040; Coxe v. State, 144 N. Y. 408, 39 N. E. 400; Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 194, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 302; Kansas Natural Gas Co. v. Haskell, 172 Fed. 557.

The act here challenged does not itself furnish such due process of law as satisfies the constitutional limitation.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226, 241, 41 L. ed. 979, 986, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 78, 100, 101, 53 L. ed. 97, 106, 107, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 519, 29 L. ed. 463, 465, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110; Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 28 L. ed. 232, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34, 46, 50, 38 L. ed. 896, 901, 903, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466–526, 42 L. ed. 819–842, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418.

It is not simply physical property which is intended by the inhibition of the Constitution, and which may not be taken away without compensation or due process of law. Property does not consist alone in something that is tangible, but the right to use is as much property as the land itself.

Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 589, 41 L. ed. 832, 835, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 134 U. S. 418, 458, 38 L. ed. 970, 981, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 209, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 462, 702; Muhlker v. New York & H. R. Co. 197 U. S. 544, 49 L. ed. 872, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Westervelt v. Gregg, 12 N. Y. 209, 62 Am. Dec. 160; Forster v. Scott, 136 N. Y. 584, 18 L.R.A. 543, 32 N. E. 976.

Unless it is absolutely neeessary to the welfare, or health, or safety, or morals of the public in general that the pumping of waters containing carbonic acid gas should be stopped, the police power of the state cannot be exercised to prevent the doing of these acts, legal in themselves, which are not a cause of injury to any persons or to the state, and which are but the exercise of a lawful right of ownership of property.

Colon v. Lisk, 153 N. Y. 188, 60 Am. St. Rep. 609, 47 N. E. 302; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 399, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343; Wright v. Hart, 182 N. Y. 344, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 338, 75 N. E. 404, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 263; Huber v. Merkel, 117 Wis. 355, 62 L.R.A. 589, 98 Am. St. Rep 933, 94 N. W. 354.

One of the first requirements of legislation defended under this power is that it must be reasonable, must be moderate, and have proportion in its means to the end sought to be reached.

Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U. S. 537, 550, 41 L. ed. 256, 260, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1138.

The power must be exercised subject to the provisions of both the Federal and state Constitutions, and the laws passed in the exercise of such power must tend, in a degree that is perceptible and clear, toward the lines of health or morals or the welfare of the community, as those words have been construed and used in many cases.

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 137, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Wright v. Hart, 182 N. Y. 341, 2 L.R.A. (N.S.) 338, 75 N. E. 404, 3 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 263; Frank L. Fisher Co. v. Woods, 187 N. Y. 94, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 707, 79 N. E. 836; Health Dept. v. Trinity Church, 145 N. Y. 39, 27 L.R.A. 710, 45 Am. St. Rep. 579, 39 N. E. 833.

The act in question is unreasonable.

Freund, Pol. Power, p. 61.

The placing of the burden of proof upon one, and not upon his neighbor similarly situated, is forbidden by the 14th Amendment.

San Mateo County v. Southern P. R. Co. 8 Sawy. 238, 13 Fed. 733; Wynehamer v. People, 13 N. Y. 446; People v. Lyon, 27 Hun, 180; Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, 24 L. ed. 527.

The act denies the equal protection of the laws in that it prohibits pumping for the purpose of vending the gas, while permitting the same for any other purpose or use, and prohibits pumping of wells that go into the rock, and permits pumping of wells that do not go into the rock.

Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. ed. 989; Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362, 399, 38 L. ed. 1014, 1024, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 924, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 155, 41 L. ed. 666, 668, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 314, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; Vanzant v. Waddel, 2 Yerg. 270; Stratton Claimants v. Morris Claimants (Dibrell v. Lanier) 89 Tenn. 497, 12 L.R.A. 70, 15 S. W. 87; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; People ex rel. McPike v. Van De Carr, 91 App. Div. 20, 86 N. Y. Supp. 644, affirmed in 178 N. Y. 425, 66 L.R.A. 189, 102

Am. St. Rep. 516, 70 N. E. 965; People ex rel. Wineburgh Advertising Co. v. Murphy, 195 N. Y. 126, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 735, 88 N. E. 17; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 162 Fed. 960.

The statute violates § 1 of article 14 of the Constitution of the United States, in that it takes private property for private purposes.

Re Albany Street, 11 Wend. 151, 25 Am. Dec. 618; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. River R. Co. 18 Wend. 9, 31 Am. Dec. 313; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 403, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Gilmer v. Lime Point, 18 Cal. 229, 79 Am. Dec. 174; Tyler v. Beacher, 44 Vt. 656, 8 Am. Rep. 398; Cole v. La Grange, 113 U. S. 1, 28 L. ed. 896, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416; Great Western Natural Gas & Oil Co. v. Hawkins, 30 Ind. App. 566, 66 N. E. 765; Huber v. Merkel, 117 Wis. 355, 62 L.R.A. 589, 98 Am. St. Rep. 933, 94 N. W. 354; Sedgw. Damages, 2d ed. p. 450.

Mr. Edgar T. Brackett also argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The laws must bear equally upon all.

Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S. 223, 49 L. ed. 169, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; Butchers' Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. v. Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. 111 U. S. 746, 28 L. ed. 585, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 652; Fraser v. McConway & T. Co. 82 Fed. 257; Chy Lung v. Freeman, 92 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 550; Railroad & Teleph. Cos. v. Board of Equalizers, 85 Fed. 317; Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. ed. 989.

Classification, to be sustained, must always bear a reasonable relation to the object sought to be attained by the law.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 155, 41 L. ed. 666, 668, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 314, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; Vanzant v. Waddel, 2 Yerg. 270; Stratton Claimants v. Morris Claimants (Dibrell v. Lanier) 89 Tenn. 497, 12 L.R.A. 70, 15 S. W. 87; People ex rel. McPike v. Van De Carr, 91 App. Div. 29, 86 N. Y. Supp. 644; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 105, 92 ... Y. Supp. 497; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 924. 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Re Pell, 171 N. Y. 57, 57 L.R.A. 540, 89 Am. St. Rep. 791, 63 N. E. 789; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 102, 46 L. ed. 92, 106, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 367, 30 L. ed. 220, 225, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 70, 30 L. ed. 578, 579, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 105, 29 L.R.A. 79, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 40 N. E. 454; Millett v. People, 117 Ill. 294, 57 Am. Rep. 869, 7 N. E. 631; Frorer v. People, 141 Ill. 171, 16 L.R.A. 492, 31 N. E. 395; Ramsey v. People, 142 Ill. 380, 17 L.R.A. 853, 32 N. E. 364.

Messrs. Nash Rockwood and Charles C. Lester argued the cause, and, with Mr. Edward R. O'Malley, Attorney General of New York, filed a brief for appellees:

This court will accept and follow the interpretation of the statute as given by the state tribunals; and the judgment of the state courts construing the meaning and scope of the act is conclusive here.

Palmer v. Texas, 212 U. S. 118–131, 53 L. ed. 435–440, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 230; United States v. Mason, 213 U. S. 115, 53 L. ed. 725, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 480; Stutsman County v. Wallace, 142 U. S. 293, 35 L. ed. 1018, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 227; Moores v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 104 U. S. 625, 26 L. ed. 870; Bauserman v. Blunt, 147 U. S. 647, 37 L. ed. 316, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 466; Fairfield v. Gallatin County, 100 U. S. 47, 25 L. ed. 544.

Construed, then, as it must be, as in no wise an invasion of property rights, the statute in question cannot be said to be violative of the fundamental law.

People v. New York Carbonic Acid Gas Co. 196 N. Y. 421, 90 N. E. 441; Hathorn v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 194 N. Y. 326, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 436, 128 Am. St. Rep. 555, 87 N. E. 504, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989; Forbell v. New York, 164 N. Y. 522, 51 L.R.A. 695, 79 Am. St. Rep. 666, 58 N. E. 644; People ex rel. New York Electric Lines Co. v. Squire, 107 N. Y. 593, 1 Am. St. Rep. 893, 14 N. E. 820; Smith v. Brooklyn, 18 App. Div. 340, 46 N. Y. Supp. 141; Hathorn v. Dr. Strong's Saratoga Springs Sanitarium, 55 Misc. 445, 106 N. Y. Supp. 553.

The doctrine enunciated by the court of appeals in the cases arising under the present statute is not a new doctrine, but has been stated in successive decisions, and recognized as the law of the state of New York.

Forbell v. New York, 164 N. Y. 526, 51 L.R.A. 695, 79 Am. St. Rep. 666, 58 N. E. 644; Smith v. Brooklyn, 18 App. Div. 344, 46 N. Y. Supp. 141; Phelps v. Nowlen, 72 N. Y. 40, 28 Am. Rep. 93; Merrick Water Co. v. Brooklyn, 32 App. Div. 454, 53 N. Y. Supp. 10.

The foundation of this rule of common ownership of percolating waters is recognized by high authority as applicable to this state.

Westphal v. New York, 75 App. Div. 252, 78 N. Y. Supp. 56, affirmed in 177 N. Y.

140, 69 N. E. 369; State v. Ohio Oil Co. 150 Ind. 21, 47 L.R.A. 632, 49 N. E. 809; Westmoreland & C. Natural Gas Co. v. DeWitt, 130 Pa. 235, 5 L.R.A. 731, 18 Atl. 724; Jones v. Forest Oil Co. 194 Pa. 379, 48 L.R.A. 748, 44 Atl. 1074, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 350; Brown v. Vandergrift, 80 Pa. 142; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 51 L. ed. 956, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 655; American Exp. Co. v. People, 133 Ill. 649, 9 L.R.A. 139, 23 Am. St. Rep. 641, 24 N. E. 758; Phelps v. Racey, 60 N. Y. 10, 19 Am. Rep. 140; Magner v. People, 97 Ill. 333; Com. v. Chapin, 5 Pick. 199, 16 Am. Dec. 386; McCready v. Virginia, 94 U. S. 391, 24 L. ed. 248; Vinton v. Welsh, 9 Pick. 87; Com. v. Essex Co. 13 Gray, 239; Smith v. Levinus, 8 N. Y. 472; Holyoke Water-Power Co. v. Lyman, 15 Wall. 500, 21 L. ed. 133; Gentile v. State, 29 Ind. 409; Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 190, 44 L. ed. 729, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 466.

The act creates no class of persons deprived of the equal protection of the laws.

State v. Hogan, 63 Ohio St. 202, 52 L.R.A. 863, 81 Am. St. Rep. 626, 58 N. E. 572; Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U. S. 114, 32 L. ed. 623, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 231; Jones v. Brim, 165 U. S. 184, 41 L. ed. 679, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 29, 32 L. ed. 586, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 705, 28 L. ed. 1146, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; State v. Sehlemmer, 42 La. Ann. 1166, 10 L.R.A. 135, 8 So. 307; Sutton v. State, 96 Tenn. 696, 33 L.R.A. 589, 36 S. W. 697; People v. Havnor, 149 N. Y. 195, 31 L.R.A. 689, 52 Am. St. Rep. 707, 43 N. E. 541; Mssouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22–30, 25 L. ed. 989–992; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; People ex rel. Armstrong v. Warden, 183 N. Y. 223, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 859, 76 N. E. 11, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 325; Des Moines v. Keller, 116 Iowa, 648, 57 L.R.A. 243, 93 Am. St. Rep. 268, 88 N. W. 827.

But if the statute creates classes, its classification is reasonable, and neither unnecessary nor arbitrary.

Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 91, 53 L. ed. 923, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; Hayes v Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161; Walston v. Nevin, 128 U. S. 578, 32 L. ed. 544, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Pacific Exp. Co. v. Seibert, 142 U. S. 339, 35 L. ed. 1035, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 810, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 250; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 37 L. ed. 599, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; Columbus Southern R. Co. v. Wright, 151 U. S. 470, 38 L. ed. 238, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; Marchant v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 153 U. S. 380, 38 L. ed. 751, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 894; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathews, 165 U. S. 1, 41 L. ed. 611, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 316, 51 L. ed. 501, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289.

The act is a valid exercise of the police power vested in the legislature of the state of New York. Its purpose and effect are to prevent the waste and destruction of the natural resources of the state.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 572; People ex rel. New York Electric Lines Co. v. Squire, 107 N. Y. 593, 1 Am. St. Rep. 893, 14 N. E. 820; Com. v. Alger, 7 Cush. 85; Meffert v. State Bd. of Medical Registration (Meffert v. Packer) 66 Kan. 710, 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 811, 72 Pac. 247, 195 U. S. 625, 49 L. ed. 350, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 790; People v. King, 110 N. Y. 418, 1 L.R.A. 293, 6 Am. St. Rep. 389, 18 N. E. 245; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 31, 28 L. ed. 924, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Chicago B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 592, 50 L. ed. 609, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; Thorpe v. Rutland & B. R. Co. 27 Vt. 140, 62 Am. Dec. 625; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623–660, 31 L. ed. 205–210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425–429, 46 L. ed. 623–626, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Welch v. Swasey, 214, U. S. 91–105, 53 L. ed. 923–929, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Hunter v. Pittsburgh, 207 U. S. 161–176, 52 L. ed. 151–158, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Forsyth v. Hammond, 166 U. S. 506–518, 41 L. ed. 1095–1100, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 665; Williams v. Eggleston, 170 U. S. 304, 42 L. ed. 1047, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; Kelly v. Pittsburgh, 104 U. S. 78–81, 26 L. ed. 658, 659; Wilson v. North Carolina, 169 U. S. 586–593, 42 L. ed. 865–870, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 435; Claiborne County v. Brooks, 111 U. S. 400–410, 28 L. ed. 470–474, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 489; Pleasant v. Beekwith, 100 U. S. 514, 25 L. ed. 699; Laramie County v. Albany County, 92 U. S. 307, 23 L. ed. 552; Covington v. Kentueky, 173 U. S. 231, 43 L. ed. 679, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383.

And in the exercise of this power, there is no taking of property in the sense in which the Constitution requires compensation to be made therefor.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226–255, 41 L. ed. 979–991, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561–583, 50 L. ed. 596–605, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1175; West Chicago Street R. Co.

v. Illinois, 201 U. S. 506–526, 50 L. ed. 845–853, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 518.

Nor is property taken without due process of law.

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1–15, 32 L. ed. 346–348, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6.

The public have such an interest in the mineral waters of Saratoga as justifies the interposition of the legislature for their protection.

Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 190, 44 L. ed. 729, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 466; Hudson County Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349–355, 52 L. ed. 828–831, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 560; Hathorn v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 194 N. Y. 349, 23 L.R.A. (N.S.) 436, 128 Am. St. Rep. 555, 87 N. E. 504, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989; Geer v. Connecticut, 161 U. S. 519, 40 L. ed. 793, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 600; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. ed. 385, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; License Cases, 5 How. 504, 12 L. ed. 256; Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 346, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 86, 34 L. ed. 620, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; People ex rel. Hill v. Hesterberg, 184 N. Y. 135, 3 L.R.A.(N.S.) 163, 128 Am. St. Rep. 528, 76 N. E. 1032, 6 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 353; People ex rel. New York Electric Lines Co. v. Squire, 107 N. Y. 593, 1 Am. St. Rep. 893, 14 N. E. 820, affirmed in 145 U. S. 175, 36 L. ed. 666, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 880; Smith v. Maryland, 18 How. 71, 15 L. ed. 269.

The act of 1908 is a reasonable enactment for the accomplishment of the object sought.

Hathorn v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 194 N. Y. 343, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 436, 128 Am. St. Rep. 555, 87 N. E. 504, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989.

Mr. Justice Van Devanter, having made the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

The statute against whose enforcement the suit is directed contains several restrictive provisions more or less directly connected with the purpose suggested by its title, but we are concerned with only the one before set forth, because the court of appeals of the state has pronounced 73]*the others invalid, and counsel have treated them as thereby eliminated from the statute and from present consideration.

Coming to the provision in question, it is necessary to inquire what construction has been put upon it by the highest court of the state, for that construction must be accepted by the courts of the United States, and be regarded by them as a part of the provision when they are called upon to determine whether it violates any right secured by the Federal Constitution. Weightman v. Clark, 103 U. S. 256, 260, 26 L. ed. 392, 393; Morley v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 146 U. S. 162, 166, 36 L. ed. 925, 928, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54; Olsen v. Smith, 195 U. S. 333, 342, 49 L. ed. 224, 229, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 52. The court of appeals of the state had the statute before it in Hathorn v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 194 N. Y. 326, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 436, 128 Am. St. Rep. 555, 87 N. E. 504, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 989, and again in People v. New York Carbonic Acid Gas Co. 196 N. Y. 421, 90 N. E. 441, and the elaborate opinions then rendered disclose that the court, having regard to the title of the act and to the doctrine of correlative rights in percolating waters which prevails in that state, as recognized in Forbell v. New York, 164 N. Y. 522, 51 L.R.A. 695, 79 Am. St. Rep. 666, 58 N. E. 644, construed this provision, not as prohibiting the specified acts absolutely or unqualifiedly, but only when the mineral waters are drawn from a source of supply not confined to the lands of the actor, but extending into or through the lands of others, and then only when the draft made upon that source of supply is unreasonable or wasteful, considering that there is a coequal right in all the surface owners to draw upon it. In other words, the court, by processes of interpretation having its approval, read into the provision an exception or qualification making it inapplicable where the waters are not drawn from a common source of supply, and also where, if they be drawn from such a source, no injury is done thereby to others having a like right to resort to it.

As so interpreted, the statute presupposes (1) the existence, in porous rock beneath the lands of several proprietors, *of a[74 supply of mineral waters of the class specified; (2) a right in each proprietor to penetrate the underlying rock or natural reservoir and to draw upon the supply therein; and (3) a practice or tendency on the part of proprietors who exercise this right in the manner and for the purpose specified, that is, by boring or drilling wells into the rock and pumping or artifically drawing the waters for the purpose of collecting and vending the gas as a separate commodity, to make excessive or wasteful drafts upon the common supply, to the injury and impairment of the rights of other proprietors. And what is thus presupposed is treated in several decisions of the courts of the state and in other public papers as having actual existence and as being widely recognized. It is to prevent or avoid the injury and waste suggested that the statute was adopted. It is not the first of its type. One in principle quite like it was considered by this court in Ohio Oil Co. v. Indiana, 177 U. S. 190, 44 L. ed. 729, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576, 20 Mor. Min. Rep. 466. There oil and gas in a commingled form were contained in a stratum of porous rock underlying the lands of many owners, and because these fluids were inclined to shift about in the common reservoir in obedience to natural laws, one surface owner could not excessively or wastefully exercise his right of tapping the reservoir and drawing from its contents without injuriously affecting the like right of each of the others. The oil and gas were both of value, but as the greater value attached to the oil, some surface owners whose wells tapped the common reservoir and brought to the surface both oil and gas, collected and used only the oil, and suffered the gas to disperse in the air. This and kindred practices resulted in the adoption of a statute declaring them unlawful, and the validity of the statute was called in question. The objections urged against it were much the same as those now pressed upon our attention, but upon full consideration all were overruled. After commenting upon the peculiar attributes of oil and gas 75]*which cause them to be excepted from the principles generally applied to minerals having a fixed situs, and also upon the prevailing rule that each surface owner in an oil and gas area has the exclusive right on his own land to seek the oil and gas in the reservoir beneath, but has no fixed or certain ownership of them until he reduces them to actual possession, this court said:

"They [meaning the surface owners] could not be absolutely deprived of this right which belongs to them without a taking of private property. But there is a coequal right in them all to take from a common source of supply the two substances, which, in the nature of things, are united, though separate. It follows, from the essence of their right and from the situation of the things as to which it can be exerted, that the use by one of his power to seek to convert a part of the common fund to actual possession may result in an undue proportion being attributed to one of the possessors of the right, to the detriment of the others, or by waste by one or more, to the annihilation of the rights of the remainder. Hence it is that the legislative power, from the peculiar nature of the right and the objects upon which it is to be exerted, can be manifested for the purpose of protecting all the collective owners by securing a just distribution to arise from the enjoyment by them of their privilege to reduce to possession, and to reach the like end by preventing waste. . . . Viewed, then, as a statute to protect or to prevent the waste of the common property of the surface owners, the law . . . which is here attacked because it is asserted that it devested private property without due compensation, in substance is a statute protecting private property, and preventing it from being taken by one of the common owners without regard to the enjoyment of the others."

And, taking up subordinate contentions advanced in support of the principal one, the court also said:

"First. It is argued that as the gas, before being allowed *to disperse in the[76 air, serves the purpose of forcing up the oil, therefore it is not wasted, hence is not subject to regulation. Second. That the answer averred that the defendant was so situated as not to be able to use or dispose of the gas which comes to the surface with the oil; from which it follows that the gas must either be stored or dispersed in the air. Now, the answer further asserted that when the gas is stored and not used, the back pressure on the best-known pump would, if not arresting its movement, at least greatly diminish its capacity. Hence, it is said, the law, by making it unlawful to allow the gas to escape, made it practically impossible to profitably extract the oil. That is, as the oil could not be taken at a profit by one who made no use of the gas, therefore he must be allowed to waste the gas into the atmosphere, and thus destroy the interest of the other common owners in the reservoir of gas. These contentions but state in a different form the matters already disposed of. They really go not to the power to make the regulations, but to their wisdom. But with the lawful discretion of the legislature of the state we may not interfere."

If the statute there assailed did not work a deprivation of property without due process of law, it is difficult to perceive that there is any such deprivation in the present case. The mineral waters and carbonic acid gas exist in a commingled state in the underlying rock, and neither can be drawn out without the other. They are of value in their commingled form and also when separated, but the greater demand is for the gas alone. Influenced by this demand, some surface owners, having wells bored or drilled into the rock, engage in extensive pumping operations for the purpose of collecting the gas and vending it as a separate commodity. Uusually where this is done an undue proportion of the commingled waters and gas is taken from the common supply, and a large, if not the larger, portion of the waters from which the gas is collected 77]*is permitted to run to waste. Thus these pumping operations generally result in an unreasonable and wasteful depletion of the common supply and in a corresponding injury to others equally entitled to resort to it. It is to correct this evil that the statute was adopted, and the remedy which it applies is an enforced discontinuance of the excessive and wasteful features of the pumping. It does not take from any surface owner the right to tap the underlying rock and to draw from the common supply, but, consistently with the continued existence of that right, so regulates its exercise as reasonably to conserve the interests of all who possess it. That the state, consistently with due process of law, may do this, is a necessary conclusion from the decision in the case cited. But were the question an open one, we still should solve it in the same way.

We do not overlook the statement in appellant's brief that the mineral waters reached by the gas company's wells do not exist in any underground reservoir, and do not come from any common source, but we cannot give it any effect. It is contrary to what the courts of the state apparently regard as the real situation at Saratoga Springs, and is without support in the present record. While the bill alleges that the waters are percolating waters, not naturally flowing to or upon the surface, that description of them is not inconsistent with their existence in a natural reservoir of porous rock underlying the lands of several owners. Besides, if we accepted it as true that they do not constitute a common source of supply, that is, one to which other surface owners have an equal right to resort, it then would have to be held that the gas company's acts are not within the prohibition of the statute, as construed by the court of appeals of the state, and therefore that the appellant, as owner and holder of capital stock and bonds of the company, is not harmed by the statute, and is not entitled to draw in question or test its 78]validity. *Clark v. Kansas City, 176 U. S. 114, 118, 44 L. ed. 392, 396, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284; Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 45 L. ed. 252, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Turpin v. Lemon, 187 U. S. 51, 60, 47 L. ed. 70, 74, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 20; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 160, 51 L. ed. 415, 422, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736.

Neither do we overlook the allegation in the bill that the gas company's pumps do not exert any force upon waters in or under adjoining lands, but lift to the surface only such waters "as flow by reason of the laws of nature into the wells;" but we regard it as of little importance, because if the wells reach a common source of supply, excessive or wasteful pumping from them may affect injuriously the rights of other surface owners, although the force exerted by the pumps does not reach their lands.

Because the statute is directed against pumping from wells bored or drilled into the rock, but not against pumping from wells not penetrating the rock, and because it is directed against pumping for the purpose of collecting the gas and vending it apart from the waters, but not against pumping for other purposes, the contention is made that it is arbitrary in its classification, and consequently denies the equal protection of the laws to those whom it affects.

The rules by which this contention must be tested, as is shown by repeated decisions of this court, are these: 1. The equal-protection clause of the 14th Amendment does not take from the state the power to classify in the adoption of police laws, but admits of the exercise of a wide scope of discretion in that regard, and avoids what is done only when it is without any reasonable basis, and therefore is purely arbitrary. 2. A classification having some reasonable basis does not offend against that clause merely because it is not made with mathematical nicety, or because in practice it results in some inequality. 3. When the classification in such a law is called in question, if any state of facts reasonably can be conceived that would sustain it, the existence of that state of facts at the time the law was enacted must be assumed. 4. One *who assails the classification in[79 such a law must carry the burden of showing that it does not rest upon any reasonable basis, but is essentially arbitrary. Bachtel v. Wilson, 204 U. S. 36, 41, 51 L. ed. 357, 359, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Melton, 218 U. S. 36, 54 L. ed. 921, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Ozan Lumber Co. v. Union County Nat. Bank, 207 U. S. 251, 256, 52 L. ed. 195, 197; 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 89; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 132, 24 L. ed. 77, 86; Henderson Bridge Co. v. Henderson, 173 U. S. 592, 615, 43 L. ed. 823, 831, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 553.

Unfortunately, the allegations of the bill shed but little light upon the classification in question. They do not indicate that pumping from wells not penetrating the rock appreciably affects the common supply therein, or is calculated to result in injury to the rights of others, and neither do they indicate that such pumping as is done for purposes other than collecting and vending the gas apart from the waters is excessive or wasteful, or otherwise operates to impair the rights of others. In other words, for aught that appears in the bill, the classification may rest upon some substantial difference between pumping from wells penetrating the rock and pumping from those not penetrating it, and between pumping for the purpose of collecting and vending the gas apart from the waters and pumping for other purposes, and this difference may afford a reasonable basis for the classification.

In thus criticizing the bill, we do not mean that its allegations are alone to be considered, for due regard also must be had for what is within the range of common knowledge and what is otherwise plainly subject to judicial notice. Brown v. Piper, 91 U. S. 37, 43, 23 L. ed. 200, 202; Brown v. Spilman, 155 U. S. 665, 670, 39 L. ed. 304, 305, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 245; New Mexico ex rel. McLean v. Denver & R. G. R. Co. 203 U. S. 38, 51, 51 L. ed. 78, 86, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Illinois ex rel. McNichols v. Pease, 207 U. S. 100, 111, 52 L. ed. 121, 126, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58. But we rest our criticism upon the fact that the bill is silent in respect of some matters which, although essential to the success of the present contention, are neither within the range of common knowledge nor otherwise plainly subject to judicial notice. So, applying the rule that one who assails the classification 80]in such a law must carry the *burden of showing that it is arbitrary, we properly might dismiss the contention without saying more. But it may be well to mention other considerations which make for the same result.

From statements made in the briefs of counsel and in oral argument, we infer that wells not penetrating the rock reach such waters only as escape naturally therefrom through breaks or fissures; and if this be so, it well may be doubted that pumping from such wells has anything like the same effect—if, indeed, it has any—upon the common supply or upon the rights of others, as does pumping from wells which take the waters from within the rock, where they exist under great hydrostatic pressure.

As respects the discrimination made between pumping for the purpose of collecting and vending the gas apart from the waters, and pumping for other purposes, this is to be said: The greater demand for the gas alone, and the value which attaches to it in consequence of this demand, furnish a greater incentive for exercising the common right excessively and wastefully when the pumping is for the purpose prescribed than when it is for other purposes; and this suggestion becomes stronger when it is reflected that the proportion of gas in the commingled fluids as they exist in the rock is so small that to obtain a given quantity of gas involves the taking of an enormously greater quantity of water, and to satisfy appreciably the demand for the gas alone involves a great waste of the water from which it is collected. Thus, it well may be that in actual practice the pumping is not excessive or wasteful save when it is done for the purpose prescribed.

These considerations point with more or less persuasive force to a substantial difference, in point of harmful results, between pumping from wells penetrating the rock, and pumping from those not penetrating it, and between pumping for the purpose of collecting and vending the gas apart from the waters, and pumping for other purposes. *If there be such a difference, it justi-[81 fies the classification, for plainly a police law may be confined to the occasion for its existence. As is said in Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 411, 50 L. ed. 246, 250, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66: "If an evil is specially experienced in a particular branch of business, the Constitution embodies no prohibition of laws confined to the evil, or doctrinaire requirement that they should be couched in all-embracing terms."

In conclusion upon this point, it suffices to say that the case as presented, instead of plainly disclosing that the classification is arbitrary, tends to produce the belief that it rests upon a reasonable basis.

Another objection urged against the statute arises out of a ruling of the court of appeals of the state, to the effect that, in proceedings for enforcement of the statute, one who, for the purpose of collecting and vending the gas as a separate commodity, engages in pumping such waters from wells bored or drilled into the rock, is prima facie within the prohibition of the statute, and must take the burden of showing that he comes within the exception or qualification before mentioned, whereby the statute is made inapplicable where the waters are not drawn from a common source of supply, and also where, if they be drawn from such a source, no injury is done thereby to others having a right to resort to it. Because of this ruling, which is treated as if read into the statute, it is insisted that the latter impinges upon the guaranties of due process of law and equal protection of the laws. But we think the insistence is untenable, and for these reasons:

Each state possesses the general power to prescribe the evidence which shall be received and the effect which shall be given to it in her own courts, and may exert this power by providing that proof of a particular fact, or of several taken collectively, shall be prima facie evidence of another fact. Many such exertions of this power 82]are *shown in the legislation of the several states, and their validity, as against the present objection, has been uniformly recognized save where they have been found to be merely arbitrary mandates, or to discriminate invidiously between different persons in substantially the same situation. Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U. S. 219, 238, ante, 191, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 145; Board of Excise v. Merchant, 103 N. Y. 143, 148, 57 Am. Rep. 705, 8 N. E. 484. The validity of such a statute was brought in question in the recent case of Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed, 219 U. S. 35, 43, ante, 78, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136, and it was there said by this court:

"That a legislative presumption of one fact from evidence of another may not constitute a denial of due process of law or a denial of the equal protection of the law, it is only essential that there shall be some rational connection between the fact proved and the ultimate fact presumed, and that the inference of one fact from proof of another shall not be so unreasonable as to be a purely arbitrary mandate. So, also, it must not, under guise of regulating the presentation of evidence, operate to preclude the party from the right to present his defense to the main fact thus presumed. If a legislative provision, not unreasonable in itself, prescribing a rule of evidence, in either criminal or civil cases, does not shut out from the party affected a reasonable opportunity to submit to the jury in his defense all of the facts bearing upon the issue, there is no ground for holding that due process of law has been denied him."

The statute now before us, as affected by the ruling mentioned, makes proof of certain designated facts prima facie, but not conclusive, evidence of the common source of the waters and of the injurious effect of the pumping; that is to say, it establishes a rebuttable presumption, but neither prevents the presentation of other evidence to overcome it nor cuts off the right to make a full defense. As respects the source of the waters, the presumption appropriately may be regarded as prompted by the 83]*fact, now well recognized, that the pervious rock in which the waters exist usually is of such extent as to reach much beyond the lands of a single proprietor and to constitute a common source of supply; and, as respects the effect of the pumping, the presumption appropriately may be regarded as prompted by the fact, before stated, that pumping from a common supply in the rock for the purpose of collecting and vending the gas as a separate commodity usually is carried on in a manner which is calculated to affect injuriously, and does so affect, the rights of others to take from that supply. Regarding the presumption as prompted by these considerations, as we think should be done, it cannot be said that there is not a rational connection between the designated facts which must be proved and the facts which are to be presumed therefrom until the contrary is shown. What we have said upon the subject of classification sufficiently answers the suggestion or claim that, by reason of the presumption, the statute discriminates invidiously between different persons in substantially the same situation.

For these reasons none of the objections urged against the statute can be sustained, and so the decree dismissing the bill is affirmed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE EASTERN CHEROKEES, Petitioners.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 83-89.)

Appeal — enforcing compliance with mandate — laches.

A delay of more than three years after the court of claims decreed, with all the parties before it, that the mandate of the Federal Supreme Court modifying a prior decree of the court of claims, awarding the Cherokee Indians the amounts due from the United States under treaty stipulations, required a distribution per capita, is such laches as bars mandamus to require the court of claims to conform to such mandate, which, it is contended, directed a per stirpes distribution, and such delay is not excused on the theory that the remedy by mandamus was only available when the roll of those Indians entitled to share in the award, prepared in accordance with the order of the court of claims, was approved, because until that time there was uncertainty as to what the court might do.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5584-5598, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 15, Original.]

Argued February 20, 1911. Decided March 20, 1911.

PETITION for a Writ of Mandamus to the Court of Claims to require it to conform to a decree of the Federal Supreme Court, modifying a decree of the Court of Claims, making an award to the Cherokee Indians of the amounts due from the United States under treaty stipulations. Rule discharged and petition dismissed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

NOTE.—On enforcement of decree of appellate court by mandamus—see note to Ex parte Chicago Title & T. Co. 77 C. C. A. 409.

Mr. John B. Daish argued the cause, and, with Mr. Joseph D. Sullivan, filed a brief for petitioners.

Mr. George M. Anderson argued the cause, and, with Mr. John Q. Thompson, filed a brief for respondent.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Petition for mandamus to the court of claims to require it to conform to a decree of this court modifying a decree of that court in the case of the United States v. Cherokee Indians, 202 U. S. 101, 50 L. ed. 949, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 588.

A rule to show cause was issued, to which a response has been made by the court of claims.

A recitation of the facts of the litigation between the Eastern Cherokees and the United States need not be made. They are set out in 202 U. S. 101. We are only concerned with the decree and what took place in accordance with it in the court of claims. It is enough to say that the Eastern Cherokees, under the authority of acts of Congress, brought suit against the United States for certain sums alleged to be due under treaties with the United States, and the court of claims decreed May 18, 1905, 85]*that, after deducting counsel fees, costs, and expenses, the sum of $1,111,284.70, among other sums, with interest, should be paid to the Secretary of the Interior, to be by him received and held for the use and purpose of paying costs and expenses as stated, and the remainder to be distributed "directly to the Eastern and Western Cherokees, who were parties to the treaty of New Echota, as proclaimed May 23, 1836 [7 Stat. at L. 478], or to the treaty of Washington of August 6, 1846 [9 Stat. at L. 871], as individuals, whether east or west of the Mississippi river, or to the legal representatives of such individuals."

We held that the decree, "in directing that the distribution be made to 'the Eastern and Western Cherokees,'" was "perhaps liable to misconstruction," though limited by a reference to the treaties, and decided that the decree should be modified "so as to direct the distribution to be made to the Eastern Cherokees as individuals, whether east or west of the Mississippi, parties to the treaties of 1835–36 and 1846, exclusive of the Old Settlers." As modified, the decree was affirmed.

We also decided that the amount of the decree "should be paid to the Secretary of the Interior, to be distributed directly to the parties entitled to it."

Upon the going down of the mandate, the court of claims modified its decree, as directed, by explicitly excluding the Old Settlers in terms from its operation, and distributing the fund "to the Eastern Cherokees as individuals," omitting the words "or to the legal representatives of such individuals." And the court directed the Secretary of the Interior to prepare or have prepared a roll of the Cherokees entitled to share in the amount of the decree, and to "accept as a basis for the distribution of said fund the rolls of 1851, upon which the per capita payment to the Eastern Cherokees was made, and make such distribution in pursuance of article 9 of the treaty of 1846."

*It is stated in the response of the[86 court of claims to the rule to show cause that the special agent appointed by the Secretary encountered difficulties in making up the roll "upon a per capita basis and otherwise," and that the Secretary of the Interior called the attention of the court to the difficulties and asked the following questions: "First. Shall the rolls of 1851 be used as the exclusive basis for the present distribution? Second. Shall the distribution be per stirpes or per capita? Third. If per capita, what disposition shall be made of those portions for which there have been no applications?"

The court, considering that its decree, as modified by our mandate, directed a per capita distribution, ordered the commissioner named for the purpose to "enroll as entitled to share in the fund arising from said decree of May 28, 1906, all such individual Eastern Cherokee Indians by blood, living on May 28, 1906, as shall establish the fact that they were members of the Eastern Cherokee tribe of Indians at the date of the treaties of 1835–36 and 1846, or are descendants of such persons, and who shall further establish the fact that they have not been affiliated with any tribe of Indians other than the Eastern Cherokees or the Cherokee Nation."

The court subsequently (as appears from its response to the rule to show cause), "at the written request of the Secretary of the Interior and sundry other persons who petitioned therefor, as well as at the request of counsel engaged in said cause," vacated the order which directed the Secretary of the Interior to prepare the roll, and employed Guion Miller, who had theretofore been employed by the Secretary, to prepare the roll under its supervision. The roll was prepared as directed, to which exceptions were filed, most of which were overruled, and on March 7, 1910, it was approved.

Miller was also designated as a special commissioner to receive from the Treasury Department all the warrants *for the[87 persons enrolled, and to visit the various localities where the Indians resided, as he had done in preparing the roll, and to deliver the warrants, which he did prior to the filing of the petition herein for mandamus, the response of the court stating as follows:

"The money arising from said judgment was long prior to October 17, 1910, the date of the filing of said petition for said mandate to show cause, distributed and paid to practically all of those on said roll, so that of the 30,827 enrolled, only 313 remained unpaid, as we are advised by said commissioner, who was also intrusted, under the order of the court, with the delivery of the warrants issued by the Treasury Department to the parties so enrolled, respectively. Since which time 44 additional payments have been made, leaving 269 unpaid on October 28, 1910."

The court further states that on the authority of the special report of Miller, made for its information, persons of the same name as those signing the power of attorney authorizing the filing of the petition for mandamus were enrolled, as were those whom they claimed to represent, and have been paid their respective shares for which they receipted in full.

It is contended by petitioners that the treaties of 1835–36 and 1846 required the court of claims to make a distribution per stirpes, and that in its original decree of May 18, 1905, it was so provided. And it is further contended that the mandate of this court so required, and that such interpretation was put upon it by the court of claims and the commissioner appointed by the Secretary of the Interior. It is insisted that, in consequence of the error of the court, the roll prepared in accordance with its orders contains the names of numerous persons not entitled under the mandate of this court to participate in the fund.

The respondent opposes these contentions 88]and makes *the counter one that petitioners have been guilty of laches, which, if it be justified, makes a notice of other contentions unnecessary. A summary of the proceedings shows that the contention is justified. The first decree of the court, as we have seen, distributed the fund to the Eastern and Western Cherokees as individuals, or to the legal representatives of such individuals. The decree, as modified by this court, limited the distribution to the Eastern Cherokees, and omitted the words "or to the legal representatives of such individuals." A question arose as to whether the mandate of this court directed a per capita or per stirpes distribution, and, on March 5, 1907, the court of claims gave notice that it would hear the parties on the question.

The matter came on for hearing April 8, 1907, all parties being represented, and a per capita distribution of the judgment was ordered, and a commissioner appointed to prepare the roll of those entitled to share under the decree.

This was done, and a report made to the court, to which exceptions were filed, which "in the main" were overruled. On March 10, 1910, the report as corrected was approved, and the amount of the decree distributed, as we have seen, to the persons entitled thereto.

This summary demonstrates the laches of petitioners. If it be conceded that the mandate of this court and the decree of the court of claims as modified in accordance with it were ambiguous, the court of claims decided, as early as April 28, 1907, that it required a per capita distribution. The petitioners took no action against the decision nor the order of distribution based on it. They permitted the distribution to be made. And they might have taken action. Re Sanford Fork & Tool Co. 160 U. S. 247, 259, 40 L. ed. 414, 417, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 291. Mandamus was available then, as now, and the circumstances condemn the delay. The amount of the judgment was to be distributed among *many thousands[89 of persons. Such persons were to be ascertained, their names enrolled, and payment made to them. Every step involved expense, and the fund, once disbursed, could not be recovered, and the United States might be required to pay a second time.

In explanation of these circumstances, which, on their face, make a clear demonstration of negligence on the part of petitioners, they urge that after the modification on April 28, 1907, of the final decree, there were other proceedings, instancing as such the ruling, on March 7, 1910, on exceptions to the roll, and urge that "within eighty-five days thereafter" they "secured counsel and invoked the jurisdiction of this court for the protection of their rights." They further urge that "until the roll had been approved there was uncertainty what the court of claims might do," and that "when the final order had been taken the petitioners were then only at liberty to institute the present proceeding."

This overlooks that they attack the principle upon which distribution was decreed by the court of claims; in other words, their contention is that a per capita instead of a per stirpes distribution of the fund was directed by the decree of April 28, 1907, the consequence of which was that "numerous persons not entitled under the mandate of this court" were made participants in the fund, and their (petitioners') shares thereby "much lessened." Petitioners are mistaken, therefore, when they say that they were "only at liberty to institute the present proceeding" when the roll was approved. The decree constituted their grievance, if they had any, and if it did not execute the mandate of this court, the action of the court of claims in rendering it could have been reviewed and corrected by appeal or mandamus. Re Sanford Fork & Tool Co. supra.

Rule discharged and petition dismissed.

90]*MARGARET E. TAYLOR, in her Own Right and as Executrix of Thomas Taylor, Deceased, Appt.,
v.
MARY J. LEESNITZER, Elizabeth E. Padgett, and Franklin C. Padgett.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 90–93.)

Appeal — dismissal — defect of parties.

The omission of one of the adverse parties from the supersedeas bond does not justify the court of appeals of the District of Columbia in dismissing on motion an appeal to that court, where such motion was not made within the time prescribed by a court rule for moving to dismiss for want of a bond, and then was not based upon the defect in the bond, but upon a defect of parties to the appeal, which the bond is supposed to disclose, but which could not in fact exist, because the appeal was taken in open court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2929-2934; 3012-3021, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 45.]

Argued March 8, 1911. Decided March 20, 1911.

APPEAL from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a decree which dismissed an appeal from a decree of the Supreme Court of the District. Reversed.

See same case below, 31 App. D. C. 92.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. J. J. Darlington argued the cause, and, with Mr. J. Nota McGill, filed a brief for appellant:

The appeal was taken in open court, and its allowance noted in the very decree appealed from, which circumstance obviates the necessity of citation (Milner v. Meek, 95 U. S. 252, 24 L. ed. 444; Chicago & P. R. Co. v. Blair, 100 U. S. 661, 25 L. ed. 587; Dodge v. Knowles, 114 U. S. 430, 29 L. ed. 144, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108, 1197; Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 644, 645, 33 L. ed. 713, 714, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 438; Leonard v. Rodda, 5 App. D. C. 263), and of summons or severance (McNulta v. West Chicago Park, 39 C. C. A. 545, 99 Fed. 328; James H. Rice Co. v. Libbey, 45 C. C. A. 78, 105 Fed. 825; 3 Foster, Fed. Pr. 4th ed. 2056).

A clerical error of this description in no way affects the appeal.

Leonard v. Rodda, 5 App. D. C. 262.

The dismissal was fatally erroneous because founded on grounds wholly outside the record.

Norment v. Edwards, 6 App. D. C. 107; Ogden City v. Weaver, 47 C. C. A. 485, 108 Fed. 566; Keeley v. Ophir Hill Consol. Min. Co. 95 C. C. A. 96, 169 Fed. 600; York v. Washburn, 64 C. C. A. 132, 129 Fed. 566; Townsend v. Beatrice Cemetery Asso. 70 C. C. A. 521, 138 Fed. 381; Pacific Sheet Metal Works v. Californian Canneries Co. 91 C. C. A. 108, 164 Fed. 980; Williams v. Norris, 12 Wheat. 117, 6 L. ed. 571; Rector v. Ashley, 6 Wall. 143, 18 L. ed. 733; Kentucky Life & Acci. Ins. Co. v. Hamilton, 11 C. C. A. 42, 22 U. S. App. 386, 548, 63 Fed. 94; New Orleans, M. & C. R. Co. v. New Orleans, 14 Fed. 376; State v. Ramsburg, 43 Md. 332; Woods v. Fuller, 61 Md. 460; Martin v. Evans, 85 Md. 9, 36 L.R.A. 218, 60 Am. St. Rep. 292, 36 Atl. 258; Buckingham's Appeal, 60 Conn. 160, 22 Atl. 509; 15 Enc. Pl. & Pr. p. 309; England v. Gebhardt, 112 U. S. 502, 28 L. ed. 811, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287.

An appeal bond approved by the court inures to the protection of all the appellees, although the names of some of them are omitted from it.

Scruggs v. Memphis & C. R. Co. 131 U. S. ccix. Appx. and 26 L. ed. 741.

The court's denial of its discretionary power to permit amendment of the bond was error.

Seymour v. Freer, 5 Wall. 822, 18 L ed. 564; Brobst v. Brobst, 2 Wall. 96, 17 L. ed. 905; Metropolitan R. Co. v. Moore, 121 U. S. 558, 574, 575, 30 L. ed. 1022, 1027, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1334; Slater v. Hamacher, 15 App. D. C. 294; Knickerbocker L. Ins. Co. v. Pendleton, 115 U. S. 339, 29 L. ed. 432, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 74; Shepherd v. Pepper, 133 U. S. 626, 644, 645, 33 L. ed. 706, 713, 714, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 438; Inland & Seaboard Coasting Co. v. Tolson, 136 U. S. 572, 34 L. ed. 539, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1063.

No appeal bond at all was essential to the validity of the appeal.

Peugh v. Davis, 110 U. S. 227, 228, 28 L. ed. 127, 128, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 17; Edmonson v. Bloomshire, 7 Wall. 306, 19 L. ed. 91.

Mr. Edmund Burke argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees:

Each court is the best judge of the rules which it has adopted, and an appellate court will regard the construction placed upon its own rules by an inferior court as conclusive, and will not interfere except in case of gross and palpable abuse.

18 Enc. Pl. & Pr. pp. 1262, 1263, note 1; Duncan v. United States, 7 Pet. 435, 451, 452, 8 L. ed. 739, 745.

The action of the court of appeals was plainly right in the premises.

United States use of Davis v. Draper, 8 Mackey, 88; Young v. Russell, 60 Tex. 684; Hall Music Co. v. Hall, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 120 S. W. 904; Senter v. De Bernal, 38 Cal. 637; Thompson v. Ellsworth, 1 Barb. Ch. 624; Brown v. Levins, 6 Port. (Ala.) 414; McCrindell's Succession, 13 La. Ann. 231; Kennedy's Succession, 20 La. Ann. 292; Weigel's Succession, 21 La. Ann. 149.

The appeal bond must be in favor of all the persons in interest which the appeal is intended to bring before the court; otherwise there can be no decree for or against them; and where the appeal bond was in favor of one only of several appellees, there was no authority in the court to allow the appellant to amend, where the effect would be to bring new parties before the court. In such case there was no sufficient bond to bring the parties before the court to act upon them for any purpose, and the appeal was dismissed.

The City of Lincoln, 19 Fed. 460.

Decisions resting upon the discretionary power of this court under provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States (§§ 1000, 1005, 1007, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 712, 714), which are in the nature of statutes of jeofails allowing amendments, have no applicability to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

United States ex rel. Mulvihill v. Clabaugh, 21 App. D. C. 440; Darlington v. Turner, 24 App. D. C. 573.

The motion to dismiss the appeal was not made too late.

Grigsby v. Purcell, 99 U. S. 506, 25 L. ed. 354.

In the following cases this court dismissed the appeals sua sponte for failure to comply with the rules and requirements respecting appeals to this court:

The S. S. Osborne (Winslow v. Wilcox) 105 U. S. 447, 451, 26 L. ed. 1065, 1066; Hilton v. Dickinson, 108 U. S. 165, 168, 27 L. ed. 688, 689, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; Estis v. Trabue, 128 U. S. 225, 230, 32 L. ed. 437, 438, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Dolan v. Jennings, 139 U. S. 385, 35 L. ed. 217, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 584.

The action of the court of appeals in dismissing the appeal for failure to perfect it in not giving the required bond is sustained by the following cases in this court:

Veitch v. Farmers' Bank, 6 Pet. 777, 8 L. ed. 578; Boyce v. Grundy, 6 Pet. 777, 8 L. ed. 579; Bank of Alexandria v. Swann, 9 Pet. 33, 9 L. ed. 40; The S. S. Osborne (Winslow v. Wilcox) 105 U. S. 447, 451, 26 L. ed. 1065, 1066; Hilton v. Dickinson, 108 U. S. 165, 166, 168, 27 L. ed. 688, 689, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; Dolan v. Jennings, 139 U. S. 385–388, 35 L. ed. 217, 218, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 584.

In Green v. Elbert, 137 U. S. 621, 34 L. ed. 795, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, this court dismissed the appeal because of the failure of the appellant to make the deposit of the fees of the clerk within the time required by the rule of this court, although the fees were subsequently paid and the cause docketed.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an appeal from a decree of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, dismissing an appeal from a *degree[91 of the supreme court. The bill was brought by the appellee Leesnitzer, as one of the heirs of Thomas Taylor, for a partition between herself and the other heirs of lands acquired by Taylor after the execution of his last will. By the will, Taylor left all his estate, both real and personal, to his widow, the appellant. See Bradford v. Matthews, 9 App. D. C. 438; Crenshaw v. McCormick, 19 App. D. C. 494; D. C. Code § 1628 [31 Stat. at L. 1433, chap. 854]; Hardenbergh v. Ray, 151 U. S. 112, 38 L. ed. 93, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305. The bill, of course, was adverse to the appellant's right under the will, and also prayed that she might be declared barred of her dower. See Clark v. Roller, 199 U. S. 541, 545, 50 L. ed. 300, 302, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141. After a trial there was a decree for the plaintiff "unless the defendant, Margaret E. Taylor, shall perfect her appeal from this decree, which is prayed by her in open court and allowed, by giving a supersedeas bond in the penal sum of $1,000." The decree was filed on May 28, 1907. On June 3, 1907, an appeal bond was filed, but, in accordance with the rules, under ordinary conditions, was not printed in the transcript of the record sent to the court of appeals. The record was filed in that court on July 17, 1907. On February 12, 1908, the plaintiff Leesnitzer filed a motion that the appeal be dismissed, because (1) Elizabeth E. Padgett, an heir and one of the defendants, "has not been joined either as an appellee or appellant or as a party hereto. (2) That there has been no summons and severance, or service of notification of appeal upon said Elizabeth E. Padgett. Edmund Burke, solicitor for appellee." This motion was granted, on the ground that Mrs. Padgett was not made a party to the appeal.

Thereupon the appellant moved to modify the decree by allowing the appellant to correct her appeal by citing the omitted parties, and for such further proceedings as might be necessary to a decision of the cause upon its merits. The court held that as Mrs. Padgett had admitted the allegations of the bill, and had arrayed herself 92]*on the plaintiff's side, and as she had got all that she could expect by the decree, the appellant did not need to obtain a severance, but that the appeal should have been taken against her as well as against the plaintiff, and that the supersedeas bond should have run to both, which "an inspection of the bond in office of the clerk below" showed not to have been the case. It was objected that the court could not look beyond the record before it, which, as we have indicated, contained only a memorandum that a bond had been filed. But the record was entitled, "Margaret E. Taylor, etc. v. Mary J. Leesnitzer," until within a few days before the case was called for hearing, when the appellant ex parte caused the cover of the printed record to be changed so as to name also Elizabeth E. Padgett and Franklin Padgett as appellees. It was said that if the court should confine itself to the record, the presumption was that the title of the appeal followed the obligation of the bond. On this ground the court, with expressions of regret, considered itself not at liberty to entertain a motion for leave to file an additional bond.

We generally are slow to overrule the decisions of courts other than courts of the United States upon matters of local practice. But as the court of appeals unwillingly yielded a consideration of the merits to what, in the circumstances, probably was little more than form, we feel less hesitation than otherwise we might in acting upon our opinion that it took too strict a view of its own powers. The first decision went on the ground that Mrs. Padgett was not made a party to the appeal, and, if we correctly understand the second, it also seems to have stood on the same notion, deduced as a conclusion from the form of the bond, as disclosed by inspection or presumed. No other was open under the motion except one discarded by the court, as we have shown, and no other was or was likely to be taken by the court of appeals. But this ground 93]cannot be taken on the record, *because the decree in the supreme court states that an appeal was prayed in open court.

When an appeal is taken in open court, it does not need the formalities of ancient law to indicate that it is taken against all adverse interests. All parties are present in fact or in law, and they have notice then and there. No citation is required. Chicago & P. R. Co. v. Blair, 100 U. S. 661, 25 L. ed. 587; Brockett v. Brockett, 2 How. 238, 11 L. ed. 251. The requirement of a bond by a rule of the court of appeals does not go to the essence of the appeal, as is shown by the condition in the rule that the motion to dismiss for want of one must be "made within the first twenty days next after the receipt of the transcript in this court." Rule X. As the parties in this case had notice of the appeal, they were put upon inquiry as to the scope of the bond, and if, as the court of appeals says, there is a presumption that the title of the transcript follows the obligation of the bond, they had actual notice of its form. But the bond cannot create a retrospective presumption as to the effect of the words spoken in open court on the scope of the appeal. That was settled when the appeal was claimed. It follows that no excuse is shown for not objecting to the form of the bond within twenty days. The motion to dismiss was not made until more than six months after the receipt of the transcript, and then was not based on the defect of the bond, but on supposed defects in the appeal. It was not made on behalf of the party aggrieved by the omission from the bond. The time has gone by when the appellant can be turned out of court because Mrs. Padgett was not joined as obligee, but if, as we have tried to show, the proper parties were all before the higher court, no doubt leave would be given to file an additional bond if an amendment were desired.

Decree reversed.

---

*BALTIMORE & OHIO SOUTHWEST-[94
ERN RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 94–106.)

Carriers — requiring unloading of live stock during transit — number of penalties.

1. The number of the penalties recoverable under the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 607, chap. 3594, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1178), making twenty-eight hours the limit of confinement of live stock in transit without unloading, and prescribing a penalty for every failure of the carrier to comply with this provision, is not measured by the number of shipments on the same train, nor is the train the unit of offense, but where the same train contains live stock loaded at different periods, one penalty accrues when the period of lawful confinement for the cattle first loaded expires, and other separate and distinct penalties accrue as the time for the lawful confinement of the cattle loaded at later periods successively expires.

Note.—On statutory duties of carrier of live stock with reference to care of stock during transportation—see note to Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. American Exch. Bank, 44 L.R.A. 449.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — requiring unloading of live stock during transit — number of penalties.

2. But one penalty may be recovered against a carrier violating the provisions of the act of June 29, 1906, making twenty-eight hours the limit of confinement of live stock in transit without unloading, unless extended by request of the owner to thirty-six hours, and prescribing a penalty for every failure of the carrier to comply with this provision, where the time for the required unloading of two shipments loaded at different times coincides, because one shipment was forwarded under the thirty-six-hour rule, and the other was made eight hours later, under the twenty-eight-hour rule, from a different station.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — jurisdictional amount — consolidated suit.

3. The aggregate sum of the possible penalties sued for in several actions brought by the United States against a carrier under the act of June 29, 1906, requiring the unloading of live stock during transit, and consolidated, is the amount in dispute for the purpose of sustaining the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. f, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Action — for penalty — consolidation.

4. A Federal circuit court may properly consolidate, under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 921, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 685, several actions brought by the United States against a carrier to recover the penalty prescribed by the act of June 29, 1906, for violations of its requirement as to unloading live stock during transit.

[For other cases, see Action or Suit, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 7, 8.]

Argued March 4, 1910. Affirmed by divided court, March 14, 1910. Rehearing granted April 4, 1910. Reargued January 5 and 6, 1911. Decided Mareh 20, 1911.

IN ERROR to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit to review a judgment which, reversing the judgment of the District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, held that the shipment was the unit of offense in actions by the United States to recover a statutory penalty for failing to unload live stock during transit. Modified by holding that the times of loading determine the number of offenses, and as so modified, affirmed.

See same case below, 86 C. C. A. 223, 159 Fed. 33.

Statement by Mr. Justice Lamar:

"The act to prevent cruelty to animals while in transit," approved June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 607, chap. 3594, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1178), provides:

"Sec. 1. That no railroad . . . whose road forms *any part of a line of[95 road over which cattle . . . or other animals shall be conveyed . . . [in interstate commerce] . . . shall confine the same in cars, boats, or vessels of any description for a period longer than twenty-eight consecutive hours without unloading the same in a humane manner, into properly equipped pens, for rest, water, and feeding, for a period of at least five consecutive hours, unless prevented by . . . unavoidable causes . . . Provided, That upon the written request of the owner or person in custody of that particular shipment, which written request shall be separate and apart from any printed bill of lading, or other railroad form, the time of confinement may be extended to thirty-six hours. In estimating such confinement, the time consumed in loading and unloading shall not be considered, but the time during which the animals have been confined without such rest or food or water on connecting roads shall be included, it being the intent of this act to prohibit their continuous confinement beyond the period of twenty-eight hours, except upon the contingencies hereinbefore stated. . . .

"Sec. 2. That animals so unloaded shall be properly fed and watered during such rest. . . .

"Sec. 3. That any railroad . . . who knowingly and wilfully fails to comply with the provisions of the two preceding sections shall, for every such failure, be liable for and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars. . . .

"Sec. 4. That the penalty created by the preceding section shall be recovered by civil action in the name of the United States. . . ."

Under this act eleven actions were instituted in the southern district of Ohio against the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company.

The complaint in each case gave the name of the station in Illinois from which the animals were shipped to *Cincinnati,[96 the marks of the cars in which they were shipped, the hour on February 2, 1907, when they were loaded, and the various periods of confinement, which varied from thirty-seven to forty-five hours. The separate shipments consisted of one, two, three, and four car-load lots, aggregating twenty-one cars, containing several hundred cattle and hogs. Most of the shipments were loaded at different times; but because one (1872) was forwarded under the thirty-six hour rule, the time for its unloading was the same as that of another shipment (1871), made eight hours later under the twenty-eight hour rule, from a different station. At another station there were three shipments of one car load each of cattle belonging to different owners, loaded at the same time, but two (1869, 1873) of the cars were forwarded under the twenty-eight hour rule, and the other (1874) under the thirty-six hour rule.

The railroad company filed a separate plea in each case, admitting the allegations of the complaint, but setting up that "the shipment therein was forwarded to Cincinnati on its train No. 98, on which there were also loaded and forwarded other cattle, referred to in each of the other suits, and in the said several causes the said plaintiff is entitled to recover but one penalty, not to exceed $500, which it is ready and willing to pay, and it pleads the said separate suits in bar to the recovery of more than $500 for all of the same."

The district attorney's motions for separate judgments on the admission in the several pleas were overruled. The court sustained the company's motion to consolidate the causes, entered judgment for a single penalty, and ordered "that the within order in case 1866 shall apply to, operate upon, and be conclusive of, all the rights of the plaintiff in each of the several causes, to wit, 1867–1874, 1880 and 1884." The government sued out a writ of error in case 1866, and, apparently out of abundant cau-97]tion, *another in 1867, later entering into a stipulation in the circuit court of appeals that the result in these two cases should control all the others.

The circuit court of appeals for the sixth circuit (86 C. C. A. 223, 159 Fed. 33) held that the order of consolidation was proper, but reversed the judgment on the ground that the United States were entitled to recover eleven penalties, or one for each of the eleven shipments.

Mr. Edward Colston argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Judson Harmon, A. W. Goldsmith, and George Hoadly, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Congress knew when enacting this law that the old law had been interpreted to mean that the penalty did not multiply by either the number of cattle, or by the number of cars, or by the number of shipments.

United States v. Boston & A. R. Co. 15 Fed. 209; United States v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 107 Fed. 870.

It must be presumed that Congress intended that the construction placed upon the penalty clause should remain, and that there should not be as many penalties as there were head of cattle, or cars of cattle, or shipments of cattle.

Mason v. Fearson, 9 How. 258, 13 L. ed. 129; United States v. G. Falk & Bro. 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. ed. 411, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 191; United States v. Cereeedo Hermanos y Compañia, 209 U. S. 339, 52 L. ed. 821, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 401, 50 L. ed. 525, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272.

The rule for the interpretation of penal statutes is against the conclusion reached by the court of appeals.

United States v. Corbett, 215 U. S. 233, 54 L. ed. 173, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 81; United States v. Sheldon, 2 Wheat. 119, 4 L. ed. 199; United States v. Wiltberger, 5 Wheat. 95, 5 L. ed. 42; Elliott v. East Pennsylvania R. Co. 99 U. S. 576, 25 L. ed. 293; France v. United States, 164 U. S. 682, 683, 41 L. ed. 597, 598, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 219; Bolles v. Outing Co. 175 U. S. 262, 265, 44 L. ed. 156, 157, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 94; United States v. Harris, 177 U. S. 305, 44 L. ed. 780, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Werckmeister v. American Tobacco Co. 207 U. S. 381, 52 L. ed. 256, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124.

One offense cannot be split into many, and penalties thereby multiplied.

1 Bishop, New Crim. Law, p. 479, §§ 793, 1061; Nichols v. Com. 78 Ky. 180; State v. Fayetteville, 6 N. C. (2 Murph.) 371; Crepps v. Durden, Cowp. pt. 2, p. 640; State v. Stevens, 81 Vt. 454, 70 Atl. 1060; Bishop, Statutory Crimes, 2d ed. chap. 61, § 1121; Fontaine v. State, 6 Baxt. 514; Woodford v. People, 62 N. Y. 117, 20 Am. Rep. 464; United States v. Patty, 9 Biss. 429, 2 Fed. 664; Com. v. O'Brien, 107 Mass. 208; State v. Batson, 108 La. 479, 32 So. 478; Ward v. State, 90 Miss. 249, 43 So. 466; 12 Cyc. Law & Proc. p 289; 22 Cyc. Law & Proc. p 383; 25 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 61; Friedeborn v. Com. 113 Pa. 244, 57 Am. Rep. 464, 6 Atl. 160; Com. v. Robinson, 126 Mass. 260, 30 Am. Rep. 674, 3 Am. Crim. Rep. 143; Hurst v. State, 86 Ala. 604, 11 Am. St. Rep. 79, 6 So. 120; Hoiles v. United States, 3 MacArth. 371, 36 Am. Rep. 106; State v. Hennessey, 23

Ohio St. 347, 13 Am. Rep. 253; Smith v. State, 59 Ohio St. 357, 52 N. E. 826.

The effect of the consolidation of all the eleven cases into one case makes the amount in controversy $5,500.

Beadles v. Smyser, 209 U. S. 393, 52 L. ed. 849, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

Mr. Edward Colston also filed a separate brief for plaintiff in error:

The penalty incurred was a single penalty.

Sturgis v. Spofford, 45 N. Y. 446; Fisher v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 46 N. Y. 644; Parks v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 13 Lea, 1, 49 Am. Rep. 655; Westfall v. State, 4 Ga. App. 834, 62 S. E. 558; Hill v. Williams, 14 Serg. & R. 287; Central R. Co. v. Green, 86 Pa. 431, 27 Am. Rep. 718; Com. v. Borden, 61 Pa. 277; State ex rel. McClurg v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 8 Ohio C. C. 604, 4 Ohio C. D. 372.

Solicitor General Bowers argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error.

Assistant Attorney General Denison argued the cause on reargument, and filed a brief for defendant in error:

Four theories as to the unit of offense have been suggested from time to time. They are: The individual animal, the carload, the trainload, and the shipment. The individual animal theory appears to have no support in the language of the act, and it was early rejected.

United States v. Boston & A. R. Co. 15 Fed. 209.

The carload theory was also rejected.

United States v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 107 Fed. 870.

The trainload theory has had no substantial support in the lower courts.

The shipment theory has been upheld by all the courts in which it has been involved, excepting the district court below.

United States v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. R. Co. 86 C. C. A. 223, 159 Fed. 33; United States v. New York, C. & St. L. R. Co. 94 C. C. A. 76, 168 Fed. 699; Southern P. Co. v. United States, 96 C. C. A. 252, 171 Fed. 360, 162 Fed. 412; New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. United States, 91 C. C. A. 519, 165 Fed. 833; United States v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. 163 Fed. 642; United States v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 166 Fed. 160.

The cases at bar are therefore very different from the "continuing offense" line of cases.

Re Snow, 120 U. S. 274, 30 L. ed. 658, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 556; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428.

If each item of an illegal doing of business is made a separate offense, penalties may be recovered for each.

State v. Broeder, 90 Mo. App. 169; State v. Heard, 107 La. 60, 31 So. 384; State v. Shafer, 20 Kan. 226; Benson v. State, — Tex. Crim. Rep. —, 44 S. W. 168; United States v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 184 Fed. 28; People v. New York C. R. Co. 13 N. Y. 78; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. People, 82 Ill. App. 679; Southern R. Co. v. State, 165 Ind. 613, 75 N. E. 272.

A single act or omission denounced by the statute, occurring at a single time and place, constitutes only one offense, no matter how many items it may affect, unless, perhaps, as in larceny cases, they belong to different owners. But if there are different (or even similar) acts or omissions at different times and different places, then there are different offenses.

Nichols v. Com. 78 Ky. 180; United States v. Patty, 9 Biss. 429, 2 Fed. 664; Flemister v. United States, 207 U. S. 373, 52 L. ed. 253, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129; State v. Temple, 194 Mo. 228, 92 S. W. 494; Augustine v. State, 41 Tex. Crim. Rep. 59, 96 Am. St. Rep. 765, 52 S. W. 77; Kelly v. State, 42 Tex. Crim. Rep. 40, 62 S. W. 915; People v. Ochotski, 115 Mich. 601, 73 N. W. 889; Baker v. Com. 20 Ky. L. Rep. 879, 47 S. W. 864; 12 Cyc. Law & Proc. p. 289; Sadberry v. State, 39 Tex. Crim. Rep. 466, 46 S. W. 639; Bliss v. United States, 44 C. C. A. 324, 105 Fed. 508; United States v. Randenbush, 8 Pet. 288, 8 L. ed. 948; United States v. Miner, 11 Blatchf. 511, Fed. Cas. No. 15,780; Miller v. State, — Tex. Crim. Rep. —, 72 S. W. 856; Collins v. State, 39 Tex. Crim. Rep. 30, 44 S. W. 846; Stevens v. State, — Tex. Crim. Rep. —, 58 S. W. 96; State v. Burlingame, 146 Mo. 207, 48 S. W. 72; Com. v. Hazlett, 10 Pa. Super. Ct. 534; Com. v. Rockafellow, 3 Pa. Super. Ct. 588.

An incidental policy of the act is to protect the interests of the owners of the cattle.

United States v. Pere Marquette R. Co. 171 Fed. 586; United States v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. 163 Fed. 640; United States v. Sioux City Stock Yards Co. 162 Fed. 556; United States v. Lousville & N. R. Co. 18 Fed. 480.

Mr. Justice Lamar, after making the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

The consolidated record of the eleven cases shows that several hundred cattle and hogs of eleven different owners, shipped in twenty-one cars, loaded at different stations at various hours on February 2, 1907, were in one train at the time of the expiration of the successive periods for the unloading required by the act of 1906, "to prevent cruelty to animals in transit." The question is as to the number of penalties for which, in such a case, the carrier is liable.

Under the nearly identical act of 1873 (Rev. Stat. 4386, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2996), it was held that the penalties were not to be measured by the number of cattle in the shipment, nor the number of cars in which they were transported. United States v. Boston & A. R. Co. 15 Fed. 209; United States v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 107 Fed. 870. And the company contends that, as the cattle here were in one train, the failure to unload was one offense, punishable by one penalty. In support of its position it relies, among others, on authorities which hold that in larceny, if the goods stolen at one time belong to several persons, the offense is single; and that, on conviction for working on Sunday, there is only one breach of the statute, the penalty for which cannot be multiplied by the number of items of work done on the day of rest.

104] *But this does not mean that if the thief should, at a different time, steal property from the same place, he could not be punished for the new transaction, nor that because a man had been convicted for working on one Sunday, he could not be convicted and punished for subsequently working on a different Sunday. For every penal statute must have relation to time and place, and corporations whose operations are conducted over a large territory, by many agents, may commit offenses at the same time in different places, or at the same place at different times.

Here the twenty-one cars, loaded at different periods, had been gathered into one train. As the period of lawful confinement of the cattle first loaded expired, there was a failure to unload. For that failure the statute imposed a penalty. But there was then no offense whatever as to the animals in the other twenty cars of the same train, which, up to that time, had not been confined for twenty-eight hours.

When, however, later in the day, at the same or a different place, the time for the lawful confinement of the animals in the other twenty cars successively expired, there were similar but distinct and separate failures then and there to unload. They were separately punishable, since the provision that "for every such failure" the company shall be liable to a penalty prevented a merger. If the period of lawful confinement of several car loads of cattle expires at the same time and place, and the company fails to unload them, as required by the statute, and if these cattle all belong to one owner, it is conceded that there is only one offense. It is not different if the same cattle, at the same time and place, had belonged to various owners, or had been shipped under different consignments.

Several expressions in the statute, and particularly the provision that, in estimating the period of lawful confinement, "the time consumed in loading and unloading shall not be considered," recognize that the proper loading *or unloading of a[105 number of animals may be treated as a single act, and there is nothing to indicate that it is to be treated as more than one act because the animals happen to belong to different persons. The loading of numerous cars might proceed concurrently; or, if not discontinuous or unduly prolonged, several cars of cattle of the same consignor might be loaded at the same time, within the meaning of the act, in which event the period of their lawful confinement on the same train would end at the same time and place. There would in this latter case be coincidence between the one shipment and the one offense.

But, in determining whether the number of penalties is always to be measured by the number of shipments on the same train, even when the animals were loaded at different times, it is to be remembered that the statute is general. It applies to the transportation of a train load of cattle belonging to one owner; to the more usual case where animals belonging to one or more owners are loaded into different cars at different times; and also to those instances where one or a few horses or other animals are shipped, and at a different time or farther on during the journey other animals are loaded into the same car. These differences in shipments do not affect the duty of the carrier to the animals, but only the time when the duty to unload is to be performed. The number of consignors, the consent of the owner or agent in charge of the particular shipment that the cattle might be confined for thirty-six hours, the number of bills of lading, and the particulars of the shipment, are immaterial, except as they serve to fix the limit of lawful confinement.

To illustrate: It appears in this record that several hundred animals belonging to one owner and consigned to one dealer were loaded into four cars at the same time. The twenty-eight hours of their lawful confinement necessarily expired at the same time. The simultaneous failure to unload these four cars was single, and punishable as a single *offense. But the duty and of-[106 fense in this transaction would not have been quadrupled if the company had issued to the owner four bills of lading instead of one. Nor would there have been an increase of duty if these same cattle had been received from four consignors instead of one.

The statute was not primarily intended for the benefit of the owners. Indeed, it is restrictive of their rights. The penalty does not go to the consignor, but to the United States for each failure to unload cattle, regardless of who may own them, and even if the owner consented to their confinement beyond a period of thirty-six hours. The title of the act is "to prevent cruelty to animals in transit," its declared "intent being to prohibit their continuous confinement beyond a period of twenty-eight hours, except upon the contingencies hereinbefore stated." Regardless of the number of shipments, at any time and place where they are wilfully and knowingly confined beyond the lawful period, there is a violation of the statute as to the animal or animals then and there in custody for transit in interstate commerce.

The point is made in the brief that this court has no jurisdiction, because the amount involved in the cases embraced in these writs of error was only $1,000. The court, we think properly, consolidated all the cases (Rev. Stat. § 921, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 685), and, as consolidated, the amount of the possible penalties sued for in the eleven actions was fifty-five hundred dollars. The company is liable for nine penalties, because nine times it failed to unload as required by the statute. One penalty should be imposed as to animals referred to in cases numbered 1871 and 1872, and one as to those in 1869 and 1873, where the time for the required unloading respectively coincided. In other respects the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals, reversing the judgment of the District Court, is affirmed.

107]*STELLA P. FLINT, as General Guardian of the Property of Samuel N. Stone, Junior, a Minor, Appt.,

v.

STONE TRACY COMPANY et al. (No. 407.)

WYCKOFF VAN DERHOEFF, Appt.,

v.

CONEY ISLAND & BROOKLYN RAILROAD COMPANY et al. (No. 409.)

FRANCIS L. HINE, Appt.,

v.

HOME LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY et al. (No. 410.)

FRED W. SMITH, Appt.,

v.

NORTHERN TRUST COMPANY, A. C. Bartlett, William A. Fuller, et al. (No. 411.)

WILLIAM H. MINER, Appt.,

v.

CORN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO, Charles H. Wacker, Martin A. Ryerson, et al. (No. 412.)

CEDAR STREET COMPANY, Appt.,

v.

PARK REALTY COMPANY. (No. 415.)

LEWIS W. JARED, Appt.,

v.

AMERICAN MULTIGRAPH COMPANY et al. (No. 420.)

JOSEPH E. GAY, Appt.,

v.

BALTIC MINING COMPANY et al. (No. 425.)

PERCY BRUNDAGE, Appt.,

v.

BROADWAY REALTY COMPANY et al. (No. 431.)

PAUL LACROIX, Appt.,

v.

MOTOR TAXIMETER CAB COMPANY et al. (No. 432.)

ARTHUR LYMAN and Arthur T. Lyman, as Trustees under the Last Will and Testament of George Baty Blake, Deceased, Appts.,

v.

INTERBOROUGH RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY et al. (No. 442.)

GEORGE WENDELL PHILLIPS, Appt.,

v.

FIFTY ASSOCIATES et al. (No. 443.)

OSCAR MITCHELL, Appt.,

v.

CLARK IRON COMPANY. (No. 446.)

WILLIAM H. FLUHRER, Albert W. Durand, and Howard H. Williams, Appts.

v.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. (No. 456.)

KATHERINE CARY COOK, Harriet Huntington Cook, and Ellenor Richardson Cook, by Anna H. R. Cook, Their Guardian and Next Friend, Appts.,

v.

BOSTON WHARF COMPANY et al. (No. 457.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 107–177.)

Statutes — origin of revenue bills — amendment by Senate.

1. The substitution in the Senate of a tax

NOTE.—As to what are acts for raising revenue which must originate in the lower branch of the legislature—see note to Northern Counties Invest. Trust v. Sears, 35 L.R.A. 188.

on corporations in lieu of the plan of inheritance taxation contained in a general bill for the collection of revenue as it came from the House of Representatives, where the bill originated, was not forbidden by the provisions of U. S. Const. art. 1, § 7, that all bills for the raising of revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — Federal corporation tax — excise or direct tax.

2. An excise upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity is what was imposed by the act of August 5, 1909 (36 Stat. at. L. 11, 112–117, chap. 6. U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 659, 844–849), § 38, providing that insurance companies and all corporations, joint stock companies, or associations organized for profit, and having a capital stock represented by shares, shall be subject annually to a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business, equivalent to 1 per centum upon the entire net income over and above $5,000 received from all sources during the year, with certain allowances and deductions.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, I. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — validity of Federal corporation tax — apportionment.

3. The tax measured by net annual income, imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the carrying on or doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, being an excise, and not a direct tax, is not invalid because not apportioned among the several states according to population.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, 18–36, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — Federal taxation of state agencies — excise on corporation.

4. The excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, is not invalid because the business taxed is done in pursuance of the authority granted by a state, in the creation of private corporations.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III.; States, IV. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporation — uniformity.

5. Taxing a business when carried on by a corporation, and exempting a similar business when carried on by a partnership or by a private individual, as is done by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, imposing an excise upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, does not invalidate the tax, since the only limitation upon the power of Congress is uniformity in laying the tax, and this is a geographical uniformity, which does not require the equal application of the tax to all persons or corporations who may come within its operation.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, 13–15, 37–42, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — discrimination — taxation of corporations.

6. There is such a substantial difference between the carrying on of business by corporations and the same business when conducted by a private firm or individual as would justify—even were the principles of the 14th Amendment to the Federal Constitution applicable—the excise imposed by the act of August, 5 1909, § 38, upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 299–312, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — measure of tax.

7. Measuring the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the carrying on or the doing of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity by the entire net income from all sources does not invalidate the tax, although a part of such income may be derived from property in itself not taxable.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — measure of tax.

8. The measurement by the net corporate income from all sources of the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the doing or carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, is not so arbitrary and baseless as to fall outside of the authority of the taxing power.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — Federal excise on corporations.

9. Property is not taken without due process of law by the imposition, under the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, of an excise, measured by the net corporate income, upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 523–553, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — possible results as affecting validity.

10. The possibility that the rights of the several states to create corporations may practically be destroyed by the exercise of the power assumed by Congress in the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, to impose an ex-

---

On the constitutionality of an income tax —see note to Alderman v. Wells, 27 L.R.A. (N.S.) 864.

On constitutional equality in the United States in relation to corporate taxation—see note to Bacon v. State Tax Comrs. 60 L.R.A. 321.

On due process of law in revenue proceedings—see note to Read v. Dingess, 8 C. C. A. 398.

On limitations on taxing power from mutual independence of Federal and state governments—see note to Grether v. Wright, 23 C. C. A. 515.

cise upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, furnishes no ground for judicial interference with the tax.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — doing business — real estate companies.

11. Corporations organized for and actually engaged in such activities as leasing property, collecting rents, managing office buildings, making investments of profits, or leasing ore lands and collecting royalties, managing wharves, dividing profits, and in some cases investing the surplus, are engaged in business within the meaning of the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, imposing an excise upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — doing business — taximeter company.

12. A corporation owning and leasing taxicabs and collecting rents therefrom is engaged in business within the meaning of the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, imposing an excise upon the doing or carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — Federal taxation of state agencies — excise on public-service corporations.

13. Public-service corporations, such as street railway companies created under state laws, may constitutionally be subjected to the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the doing or carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III.; States, IV. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — exemptions.

14. Exempting corporations whose net annual incomes are under $5,000 from the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, does not invalidate the tax.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — exemptions.

15. Labor, agricultural, and horticultural organizations, fraternal and benevolent societies, and organizations for religious, charitable or educational purposes, could be excepted from the operation of the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, without invalidating the tax.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — validity of deductions.

16. The excise measured by net annual income, imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, is not invalid because a deduction of interest payments is permitted only in case of interest paid by banks and trust companies on deposits, and interest actually paid within the year on bonded or other indebtedness to an amount not exceeding the paid-up capital stock.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — inequality of application.

17. Inequality of application, owing to different local conditions, does not invalidate the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, 37–42, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Internal revenue — Federal tax on state agencies — excise on corporations.

18. Corporations acting as trustees, guardians, etc., under the authority of the laws or courts of a state, are not the agents of the state government in such a sense as to be exempt from the imposition, under the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, of an excise measured by net income upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III.; States, IV. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Searches and seizures — excise on corporation — making tax returns public.

19. Making the returns for the assessment of the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909, § 38, on the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity, public documents and open to inspection as such, under certain restrictions, as is done by subsec. G of that act, as amended by the act of June 17, 1910 (36 Stat. at L. 494, chap. 297), does not do violence to the constitutional protection against unreasonable searches and seizures.

[For other cases, see Searches and Seizures, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — when validity may be assailed.

20. No objections to the validity of a statute will be considered which do not properly arise in the case before the court.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 407, 409, 410, 411, 412, 415, 420, 425, 431, 432, 442, 443, 446, 456 and 457.]

Argued March 17 and 18, 1910. Ordered for reargument before full bench May 31, 1910. Reargued January 17, 18 and 19, 1911. Decided March 13, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Vermont to review a decree sustaining a demurrer to and dismissing a bill which sought to restrain the directors of a corporation from complying with the Federal corporation tax. Affirmed. Also SEVEN APPEALS from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York; THREE APPEALS from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts; TWO APPEALS from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois; AN APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio; and AN APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota, —all bringing up similar decrees for review. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Maxwell Evarts argued the cause, and, with Mr. John G. Sargent, Attorney General of Vermont, and Mr. Henry S. Wardner, filed a brief for appellant in No. 407:

A state cannot tax an instrumentality of the Federal government.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; Dobbins v. Erie County, 16 Pet. 435, 10 L. ed. 1022; New York ex rel. Bank of Commerce v. Tax Comrs. 2 Black, 620, 17 L. ed. 451.

For the same reason, and because a state is as independent a sovereignty within its sphere as the national government, Congress cannot pass any law taxing an instrumentality of a state.

Day v. Buffinton, 3 Cliff. 376, Fed. Cas. No. 3,675, s. c. 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673.

The Federal courts have assumed, and the highest state courts have decided, that a state cannot tax patents granted by the general government (M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Patterson v. Kentucky, 97 U. S. 501, 24 L. ed. 1115; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 26 L. ed. 565; Allen v. Riley, 203 U. S. 347, 51 L. ed. 216, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 95, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 137; Re Sheffield, 64 Fed. 833; Com. v. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. 151 Pa. 265, 24 Atl. 1107, 1111; People ex rel. Edison Electric Illuminating Co. v. Board of Assessors, 156 N. Y. 417, 42 L.R.A. 290, 51 N. E. 269). A patent is a franchise (Bloomer v. McQuewan, 14 How. 539, 14 L. ed. 532) that can be granted concurrently by both the state and the United States (Livingston v. Van Ingen, 9 Johns. 507; 1 Robinson, Patents, § 45), and is clearly not an instrumentality of either state or Federal government.

This court has held that a state cannot tax the franchise granted to a Federal corporation, and the decision is placed not upon the ground that the corporation is an instrumentality of the government, but because the franchise emanates from, and is a portion of, the power of the government that confers it. To tax it is not only derogatory to the dignity, but subversive of the powers, of the government, and repugnant to its paramount sovereignty.

California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 41, 32 L. ed. 150, 157, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073.

Inasmuch as the principle of the decision that a state cannot tax a Federal instrumentality was held to apply when the question was reversed, and Congress undertook to tax a state instrumentality, it would seem to follow that the reasons and principles for the decision that a state cannot tax a Federal corporate franchise would also apply to an attempt by the general government to tax a corporate franchise granted by a state.

If we run through the cases decided by this court, we find expressions—not decisions, it is true, but expressions—indicating that, in American jurisprudence, the power to tax a corporate franchise rests only with the state which creates it.

West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 6 How. 548, 12 L. ed. 552; State Tax on R. Gross Receipts, 15 Wall. 296, 21 L. ed. 169; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Maryland, 21 Wall. 473, 22 L. ed. 684; Re Greene, 52 Fed. 112; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 86, 50 L. ed. 652, 670, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370.

The law puts the burden on the power of the state to create corporations. The mere phraseology used in the statute—"special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business"—counts for little as against the substance and effect when the constitutionality of the law is attacked.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 580, 581, 39 L. ed. 759, 818, 819, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 81, 44 L. ed. 969, 985, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 411, 48 L. ed. 496, 501, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Craig v. Missouri, 4 Pet. 410, 433, 7 L. ed. 903, 911.

Classifying corporations by Congress for the imposition of Federal taxes and other special burdens takes their property without due process of law and without just compensation.

Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 389, 42 L. ed. 780, 790, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383;

Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 468, 35 L. ed. 225, 227, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579; Bank of Columbia v. Okely, 4 Wheat. 235, 244, 4 L. ed. 559, 561; Twining v. New Jersey, 211 U. S. 78, 101, 102, 53 L. ed. 97, 107, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 14; Den ex dem. Murray v. Hoboken Land & Improv. Co. 18 How. 272, 276, 15 L. ed. 372, 374; Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 718, 25 L. ed. 496, 501; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 599, 39 L. ed. 759, 825, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Ballard v. Hunter, 204 U. S. 241, 51 L. ed. 461, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank 170 U. S. 283, 301, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1045, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594.

The denial of the equal protection of the laws and the taking of property without due process of law are, so far as this case is concerned, the same thing, because the injury complained of lies in the enforcement of a statute which is unequal and arbitrary.

Duncan v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 377, 38 L. ed. 485, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 226, 241, 41 L. ed. 979, 986, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Even in tax statutes the Federal Constitution cannot be utterly disregarded.

Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 92, 45 L. ed. 102, 103, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Billings v. Illinois, 188 U. S. 97, 101, 47 L. ed. 400, 402, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247.

The corporation tax is a direct tax on the franchise, and therefore unconstitutional, because not apportioned.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 520, 43 L. ed. 786, 793, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 41, 42, 32 L. ed. 150, 157, 158, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Beale, Foreign Corp. § 508, p. 665; Lumberville Delaware Bridge Co. v. State Assessors, 55 N. J. L. 537, 25 L.R.A. 134, 26 Atl. 711.

The joint stock companies stand on the same basis as the corporations as far as the corporation tax is concerned.

Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Massachusetts (Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Oliver) 10 Wall. 566, 19 L. ed. 1029; Atty. Gen. v. Mercantile M. Ins. Co. 121 Mass. 524; People ex rel. Platt v. Wemple, 117 N. Y. 136, 6 L.R.A. 303, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 735, 22 N. E. 1046.

Mr. Richard V. Lindabury argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Charles W. Pierson and Robert Lynn Cox, filed a brief for appellants in Nos. 409 and 410:

The tax is not an excise tax upon business or occupation, but is either (a) a corporate franchise tax, or (b) an income tax.

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Maine v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 142 U. S. 217, 227, 35 L. ed. 994, 995, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 807, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, 163; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Fairbank v. United States, 181 U. S. 283, 293, 45 L. ed. 862, 866, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 135; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; State Tax on Foreign-held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300, 319, 21 L. ed. 179, 186; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 580–583, 39 L. ed. 818–820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210, U. S. 217, 227, 52 L. ed. 1031, 1037, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638.

If the tax be construed as a franchise tax, it constitutes, so far as state corporations are concerned, an interference with sovereign powers and functions of the states not surrendered to the general government, and expressly reserved to the states by the 10th Amendment.

Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 600, 601, 33 L. ed. 1025, 1029, 1030, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593, Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907; Maine v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 142 U. S. 217, 35 L. ed. 994, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 807, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, 163; Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305, 313, 36 L. ed. 164, 167, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 57, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403; People ex rel. United States Aluminium Printing Plate Co. v. Knight, 174 N. Y. 475, 63 L.R.A. 87, 67 N. E. 65; Briscoe v. Bank of the Commonwealth, 11 Pet. 257, 317, 9 L. ed. 709, 732; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 30, 21 L. ed. 787, 791; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. New York, 121 U. S. 138, 162, 30 L. ed. 895, 904, 7 Sup.

Ct. Rep. 826; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. p. 684; Fifield v. Close, 15 Mich. 509; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 Dall. 419, 1 L. ed. 440; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 467, 7 L. ed. 481, 487; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. New York, 121 U. S. 138, 162, 30 L. ed. 895, 904, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; Dobbins v. Erie County, 16 Pet. 435, 10 L. ed. 1022; Van Brocklin v. Tennessee (Van Brocklin v. Anderson) 117 U. S. 151, 29 L. ed. 845, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 670; People ex rel. Edison Electric Illuminating Co. v. Board of Assessors, 156 N. Y. 417, 42 L.R.A. 290, 51 N. E. 269; People ex rel. A. J. Johnson Co. v. Roberts, 159 N. Y. 70, 45 L.R.A. 126, 53 N. E. 685; Re Sheffield, 64 Fed. 833; Com. v. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. 151 Pa. 265, 24 Atl. 1107, 1111; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 26 L. ed. 565; Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 504, 33 L. ed. 687, 690, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341.

The fact that a tax is on property does not render it constitutional if it nevertheless involves an interference with sovereign powers or instrumentalities of a state.

The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597.

If the tax is on franchises as property, it is a tax imposed on real or personal property, and is void under art. 1, §§ 2 and 9 of the Constitution, as being a direct tax not apportioned according to population.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673, rehearing 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912.

The tax ordained by the act in question is nonuniform, arbitrary, and unequal; and, if imposed and enforced, would deprive the corporations and joint stock associations against which it is levied of their property without due process of law, contrary to the provisions of the 5th Amendment of the Constitution.

Cooley, Tax. p. 259; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 598, 39 L. ed. 825, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; People ex rel. Farrington v. Mensching, 187 N. Y. 8, 10 L.R.A.(N.S.) 625, 79 N. E. 884, 10 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 101; 1 Hamilton's Works, 1885, ed. 270; Dill. Mun. Corp. §§ 736, 737; Desty, Tax. § 10; People ex rel. Detroit & H. R. Co. v. Salem, 20 Mich. 452, 4 Am. Rep. 400; State ex rel. White House School Dist. No. 7 v. Readington Twp. 36 N. J. L. 70; State, Agens, Prosecutor, v. Newark, 37 N. J. L. 421, 18 Am. Rep. 729; Durach's Appeal, 62 Pa. 494; Santa Clara R. Tax Case, 9 Sawy. 170, 18 Fed. 388; Citizens Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 29 Wall. 655, 663, 22 L. ed. 455, 461; Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 517, 534, 28 L. ed. 232, 238, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 292; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 924, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 436, 448, 34 L. ed. 519, 524, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 930; Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 468, 35 L. ed. 225, 227, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 662, 37 L. ed. 599, 601, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; Duncan v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 377, 38 L. ed. 485, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 151, 154, 159, 41 L. ed. 667–669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

Mr. Edward Osgood Brown argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Orville Peckham, George Packard, and Vincent J. Walsh, filed a brief for appellants in Nos. 411 and 412:

Despite the attempt of its framers by mere phraseology to negative the idea that the tax is an income tax, it remains so because of its essential character and substance.

Stockard v. Morgan, 185 U. S. 27, 46 L. ed. 785, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Asbell v. Kansas, 209 U. S. 251, 52 L. ed. 778, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1101; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 52 L. ed. 1031, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638.

While a tax in certain cases may be laid on an intangible right or privilege in proportion to the value of some other property without being a tax on that property (as held in Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector [Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack] 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 44 L. ed. 998, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Delaware Railroad Tax, 18 Wall. 206, 21 L. ed. 888; New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658, 43 L. ed. 323, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58), this is only true (1) where the value of the property by which the tax is gauged is a reasonable measure of the value of the intangible right or privilege, or (2) where the intangible right might be altogether taken away by the taxing government, and may therefore be conceded only on such conditions as that government pleases.

The selection of the persons to be taxed for the privilege of existence or of doing business is so "arbitrary and confiscatory" that it transcends the limitations arising from those fundamental conceptions of free government which underlie all constitutional systems. Therefore this court should interfere.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747.

The corporations created by the states are to the United States in the same relation as natural persons who are citizens of those states, and cannot be arbitrarily selected for taxation on the privilege of existing or doing business.

Louisville, C. & C. R. Co. v. Letson, 2 How. 497, 11 L. ed. 353; Marshall v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 16 How. 314, 14 L. ed. 953; Ohio & M. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 1 Black, 286, 17 L. ed. 130; Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. 519, 10 L. ed. 274; St. Louis v. Wiggins Ferry Co. 11 Wall. 423, 20 L. ed. 192; San Bernardino County v. Southern P. R. Co. 118 U. S. 417, 30 L. ed. 125, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1144; Pembina Consol. Silver Min. & Mill. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 125 U. S. 181, 31 L. ed. 650, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 24, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 737; Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 142 U. S. 386, 35 L. ed. 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

As the right or privilege of existing as a corporation or as a joint stock company or as an insurance company, and the right or privilege of doing business as any one of them, are very different things in one state from what they are in another, because of the differing laws of the states (for example, freedom of a corporation stockholder from individual liability exists in New Jersey, but not in California), and as this court takes judicial notice on this appeal of the laws of all the states (Hanley v. Donoghue, 116 U. S. 1, 29 L. ed. 535, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 242; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 30 L. ed. 825, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757; Case v. Kelly, 133 U. S. 21, 33 L. ed. 513, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 216; Mills v. Green, 159 U. S. 651, 40 L. ed. 293, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132), the corporation tax is, within the judicial knowledge of the court, unequal and wanting in uniformity between the states.

The corporation tax is unconstitutional, whether direct or indirect, and whether uniform or not, because it is an attempted interference with the instrumentalities of the states.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316 4 L. ed. 579; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day), 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699.

Power to grant acts of incorporation is practically unlimited in the states, and incident to the sovereignty.

Briscoe v. Bank of the Commonwealth, 11 Pet. 257, 9 L. ed. 709.

Congress has not the power to tax and thus destroy the right of existence of a corporation. Such a power would be tantamount to a power to tax the right to create such an existence.

California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; Van Brocklin v. Tennessee (Van Brocklin v. Anderson) 117 U. S. 151–178, 29 L. ed. 845–854, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 670.

Whatever may be said of other corporations, public-service corporations in private hands, furnishing transportation, water, light, or performing other public or semipublic functions, are instrumentalities of the state in the strictest sense, and for that reason are given the power of eminent domain; the functions of many of them are indeed governmental; e. g., the functions of water companies.

Rogers Park Water Co. v. Fergus, 180 U. S. 624, 45 L. ed. 702, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490; Freeport Water Co. v. Freeport, 180 U. S. 587, 45 L. ed. 679, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Danville Water Co. v. Danville City, 180 U. S. 619, 45 L. ed. 696, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 505.

The income of municipal bonds to a very large amount is included in the income on which the Northern Trust Company threatens to pay 1 per centum as a tax; such income from instrumentalities of state governments has been explicitly declared by this court untaxable by Congress, directly or indirectly, for any purpose whatever (Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 584, 39 L. ed. 820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673, et seq.), and this threatened action should be enjoined independently of all other considerations.

Mr. Julien T. Davis argued the cause, and, with Mr. Frederic D. McKenney, filed a brief for appellant in No. 415:

The fact that the tax is denominated a "special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business" is not controlling.

Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 259, 23 L. ed. 543; Collins v. New Hampshire, 171 U. S. 30, 43 L. ed. 60, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 768; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678;

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 581, 39 L. ed. 819, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673.

The natural and reasonable effect of the corporation tax law is to tax net income.

Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 259, 23 L. ed. 543; Collins v. New Hampshire, 171 U. S. 30, 43 L. ed. 60, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 768; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673.

The Federal government and the government of the states are, within their respective spheres of action, mutually independent, and, because of such independence, the taxing power of each is limited, in that neither may tax the agencies of the other.

The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; Dobbins v. Erie County, 16 Pet. 435, 10 L. ed. 1022; New York ex rel. Bank of Commerce v. Tax Comrs. 2 Black, 620, 17 L. ed. 451; The Banks v. New York (New York ex rel. Bank of N. Y. Nat. Bkg. Asso. v. Connelly) 7 Wall. 17, 19 L. ed. 57; Bank of New York v. New York County, 7 Wall. 26, 19 L. ed. 60; Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 725, 19 L. ed. 237; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. p. 683; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699; Jones v. Keep, 19 Wis. 390; Swift v. Cornes, 20 Wis. 398; Sayles v. Davis, 22 Wis. 227; Fifield v. Close, 15 Mich. 505; State ex rel. Lakey v. Garton, 32 Ind. 1, 2 Am. Rep. 315.

The franchise to be a corporation is a means employed by the state government in the exercise of its powers and functions.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 410, 4 L. ed. 602; Angell & A. Priv. Corp. 10th ed. p. 23; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; California v. Southern P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073.

The corporation tax law, if the tax falls upon "carrying on or doing business," must fail for want of equality and uniformity in the tax thereby imposed.

State, Agens, Prosecutor, v. Newark, 37 N. J. L. 415, 18 Am. Rep. 729; Re Washington Ave. 69 Pa. 352, 8 Am. Rep. 255; Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321, 29 L. ed. 414, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Powers, 201 U. S. 245, 50 L. ed. 744, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Adams v. Kuykendall, 83 Miss. 571, 35 So. 830; State v. Ide, 35 Wash. 576, 67 L.R.A. 280, 102 Am. St. Rep. 914, 77 Pac. 961, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 634.

The corporation tax law is unequal in its operation, in that it taxes corporations, joint stock companies and associations, and exempts individuals and co-partnerships carrying on the same business and deriving net income from the same sources as in the case of such bodies.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 109, 44 L. ed. 996, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; State v. Ide, 35 Wash. 576, 67 L.R.A. 280, 102 Am. St. Rep. 914, 77 Pac. 961, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 634.

Requiring a corporation to make a return under penalty for failure to do so constitutes a search within the meaning of the 4th Amendment.

Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. ed. 746, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Clinton v. Phillips, 58 Ill. 102, 11 Am. Rep. 52.

To engage in interstate commerce is a constitutional right, and not a privilege; therefore Congress cannot prohibit the exercise of such right.

Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, 35 L. ed. 649, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851; Reid v. Colorado, 187 U. S. 137, 47 L. ed. 108, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 506; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 19 L. ed. 357; Pullman Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 56, 54 L. ed. 378, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232.

The power to regulate does not include the power to prohibit.

Miller v. Jones, 80 Ala. 89; Bronson v. Oberlin, 41 Ohio St. 476, 52 Am. Rep. 90; Ex parte Patterson, 42 Tex. Crim. Rep. 256, 51 L.R.A. 654, 58 S. W. 1011; Duckwall v. New Albany, 25 Ind. 283; McConvill v. Jersey City, 39 N. J. L. 38; People v. Gadway, 61 Mich. 285, 1 Am. St. Rep. 578, 28 N. W. 101; Mernaugh v. Orlando, 41 Fla. 433, 27 So. 34; Re Hauck, 70 Mich. 396, 38 N. W. 275; State v. DeBar, 58 Mo. 395; Sweet v. Wabash, 41 Ind. 7; Andrews v. State, 3 Heisk. 165, 8 Am. Rep. 8; Ex parte Byrd, 84 Ala. 17, 5 Am. St. Rep. 328, 4 So. 397; State, Mühlenbrinck, Prosecutor, v. Long Branch, 42 N. J. L. 364.

If Congress cannot tax the business of interstate commerce or interstate commerce itself, it is hard to conceive how it can tax the privilege of doing such business.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190.

Mr. J. B. Foraker argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant in No. 420:

The measure of the tax must have some natural, legal, appropriate relation to the thing taxed; otherwise there may result inequality and injustice. This, of itself, is sufficient reason for refusing so to construe this law as to lay the tax on the corporation, or its franchise, or its facility, the result of which would, of necessity, be the grossest inequality.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 76, 44 L. ed. 983, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747.

If the law be construed to lay the tax on the corporation, its franchise, or its facility to transact business, we cannot possibly have uniformity of operation.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 159, 41 L. ed. 669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

If the law be construed to lay the tax on the franchise to be a corporation, then at once arises the question whether it is not unconstitutional because of an infringement upon the sovereign right of the state to grant franchises to be corporations.

California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 547, 19 L. ed. 487.

Corporations and their franchises, created by the states, to act as agencies or instrumentalities of state governments, cannot be made the subject of Federal taxation, either directly or indirectly.

The Binghamton Bridge (Chenango Bridge Co. v. Binghamton Bridge Co.) 3 Wall. 51, 18 L. ed. 137; New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Louisiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 663, 29 L. ed. 521, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252.

To say that a business shall be taxed, as an occupation, when found in the hands of a corporation, and that it shall go exempt from taxation when found next door, in the hands of a copartnership or an individual, is purely arbitrary and manifestly unreasonable and unjust.

American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 92, 45 L. ed. 103, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Billings v. Illinois, 188 U. S. 102, 47 L. ed. 403, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 155, 41 L. ed. 668, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

Mere words and names will not be allowed to change the legal effect of a plain statutory provision, or alter the familiar rules of construction.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 580, 39 L. ed. 818, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 52 L. ed. 1031, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638.

The search and seizure provided for in this corporation tax measure are unreasonable.

Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. ed. 746, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Entick v. Carrington, 19 How. St. Tr. 1029; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 44, 50 L. ed. 652, 653, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Re Pacific R. Commission, 32 Fed. 250; Re Comingore, 96 Fed. 557, affirmed in 177 U. S. 470, 44 L. ed. 850, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 701.

Messrs. Alton C. Dustin, George B. Siddall, Aruthur F. Odlin, and Richard Inglis also filed a brief for appellant in No. 420:

The name whereby a tax is called is not controlling.

Nichol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 47 L. ed. 1035, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Home Sav. Bank v. Des Moines, 205 U. S. 503, 51 L. ed. 901, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 571; Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 198 U. S. 341, 49 L. ed. 1077, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 669; Fairbank v. United States, 181 U. S. 283, 45 L. ed. 862, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 135; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Powers v. Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. 201 U. S. 543, 50 L. ed. 860, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 556; Robbins v. Taxing Dist. 120 U. S. 489, 30 L. ed. 694, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592; Philadelphia & S. Mail S. S. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 122 U. S. 326, 30 L. ed. 1200, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 308, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1118; Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 32 L. ed. 311, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380; Cook v. Pennsylvania, 97 U. S. 566, 24 L. ed. 1015; Almy v. California, 24 How. 169, 16 L. ed. 644; Dobbins v. Erie County, 16 Pet. 435, 10 L. ed. 1022; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678.

The tax is an income tax.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 519, 520, 43 L. ed. 786, 793, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Knowlton v. Moore, 175 U. S. 41, 52, 53, 79–83, 44 L. ed. 969, 974, 975, 984–986, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Fairbank v. United States, 181 U. S. 283, 296, 45 L. ed. 862, 868, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 135; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 618, 46 L. ed. 713, 718, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep.

493; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 370, 48 L. ed. 481, 483, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Hafemann v. Gross, 199 U. S. 342, 350, 50 L. ed. 220, 225, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80.

It is necessary to recognize that the Pollock Case repudiated the principle upon which Hylton v. United States, 3 Dall. 171, 1 L. ed. 556, and also Springer v. United States, 102 U. S. 586, 26 L. ed. 253, were decided.

With these two cases out of the way, the remaining decisions fall naturally into two classes and the constitutional classification becomes fairly clear.

Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482; Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. United States, 101 U. S. 1, 25 L. ed. 979; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Treat v. White, 181 U. S. 264, 45 L. ed. 853, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Cornell v. Coyne, 192 U. S. 418, 48 L. ed. 504, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561.

The distinction between all of the above taxes and the present tax is that each of the above taxes was laid with respect to some particular thing. They were specific, while this is general. They were imposed because of the exercise of some particular right or privilege, while this tax is upon income generally, imposed solely by reason of ownership.

Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 370, 48 L. ed. 481, 483, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305.

The states cannot interfere with the full and free exercise of the powers delegated to the national government.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; New York ex rel. Bank of Commerce v. Tax Comrs. 2 Black, 620, 17 L. ed. 451; Bank Tax Case (New York ex rel. Bank of Commonwealth v. Tax & A. Comrs.) 2 Wall. 200, 17 L. ed. 793; The Banks v. New York (New York ex rel. Bank of N. Y. Nat. Bkg. Asso. v. Connelly) 7 Wall. 16, 19 L. ed. 57; Dobbins v. Erie County, 16 Pet. 435, 10 L. ed. 1022; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 29–31, 21 L. ed. 787, 791, 792.

The national government cannot interfere with the full and free exercise of the powers reserved to the states.

The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 584, 39 L. ed. 759, 820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699; Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725, 19 L. ed. 227, 237; Briscoe v. Bank of the Commonwealth 11 Pet. 317, 9 L. ed. 732.

The powers of the separate states within their own spheres are as complete as are the sovereignty and independence of the general government within its sphere.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. p. 64; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 327, 21 L. ed. 597, 599; License Tax Cases, 5 Wall. 462, 471, 18 L. ed. 497, 500.

If classification of subjects for taxation is not founded upon reason, but is wholly arbitrary, it takes the property of the citizen without due process of law, contrary to the 5th Amendment.

Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 236, 33 L. ed. 892, 894, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 151, 160, 41 L. ed. 667, 670, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 293, 295, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1042, 1043, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 520, 43 L. ed. 786, 793, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

Mr. John G. Johnson argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Frederic Jesup Stimson, Lawrence M. Stockton, and Harris Livermore, filed a brief for appellants in Nos. 425 and 457:

Both the 5th and 14th Amendments to the Federal Constitution presuppose equality before the law.

Harding v. People, 160 Ill. 459, 32 L.R.A. 447, 52 Am. St. Rep. 344, 43 N. E. 624; Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 410, 50 L. ed. 246, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66; Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Tennessee, 153 U. S. 486, 506, 38 L. ed. 793, 800, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 968; Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. pp. 479–483, 490.

The states cannot, directly or indirectly, burden the exercise by Congress of the powers committed to it by the Constitution, nor may Congress burden the agencies or instrumentalities employed by the states in the exercise of their powers.

The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113–124, 20 L. ed. 122–126; Fifield v. Close, 15 Mich. 505; Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. p. 592.

A state may not tax the corporate franchise of a Federal corporation (M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 41, 32 L. ed. 157, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073), nor may it tax its business if it be a Federal function, such, for instance, as interstate commerce; nor can a state impose a franchise tax even on the stock of corporations incorporated in other states and doing business in the state imposing the tax, if it do not tax its own corporations in the same manner.

Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190.

The creation of a corporation appertains to sovereignty.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 410, 4 L. ed. 602.

Mr. Frederic Jesup Stimson also argued the cause on reargument, and with Messrs. John G. Johnson, Lawrence M. Stockton, Harris Livermore, and J. Grant Forbes, filed a brief for appellants, in Nos. 425 and 457:

The states are not subordinate, not "a part" of the Federal government in the sense of being a part of a homogeneity, but are sovereignties of equal dignity, indestructible, equally important, and in their own demesne equally supreme.

Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725, 19 L. ed. 227, 237; Lane County v. Oregon, 7 Wall. 71, 76, 19 L. ed. 101, 104; New York ex rel. Bank of Commerce v. Tax Comrs. 2 Black, 620, 623, 17 L. ed. 451, 452; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 583, 584, 39 L. ed. 759, 820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122.

The United States have no power under the Constitution to tax either the instrumentalities or the property of a state.

Van Brocklin v. Tennessee (Van Brocklin v. Anderson) 117 U. S. 151, 155, 29 L. ed. 845, 846, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 670; Cooley, Const. Law, 3d ed. p. 61.

Is there anything in the reasoning of Mr. Justice Bradley in California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 40, 41, 32 L. ed. 150, 157, 158, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073, which indicates that it is to be applied to the state government taxing a Federal corporate franchise, and not to the converse proposition?

A tax on the income or traffic made under the franchise is not different from a tax on the franchise.

Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593.

Unless the Federal government is given wider and other powers of taxation by the Constitution, despite the 5th Amendment, than are given to the commonwealth by the practically unlimited provisions for taxation in the Constitution of Massachusetts, the decisions of the supreme court of Massachusetts are decisive of the point that the "commodity" of having a capital stock represented by assignable shares is not taxable.

Gleason v. McKay, 134 Mass. 419; O'Keeffe v. Somerville, 190 Mass. 110, 112 Am. St. Rep. 316, 76 N. E. 457, 5 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 684; Minot v. Winthrop, 162 Mass. 113, 26 L.R.A. 259, 38 N. E. 512; Opinions of Justices, 196 Mass. 603, 85 N. E. 545.

Mr. Frederic R. Coudert filed a brief for appellants in Nos. 431 and 432:

The tax is one upon the franchise or right to be a corporation, granted by the state.

Mercantile Nat. Bank v. New York, 121 U. S. 138, 160, 30 L. ed. 895, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907.

Neither the state courts nor the legislatures, by giving the tax a particular name, or by the use of some form of words, can take away our duty to consider its nature and effect.

Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 227, 52 L. ed. 1037, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638.

To characterize the tax as an occupation or business excise is to pervert history. Such taxes are a special class, common in England and the United States.

Dowell, History of Taxation; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Chesebrough v. United States, 192 U. S. 253, 48 L. ed. 432, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 262; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305.

Where the Federal government has an exclusive right of control or regulation, that right cannot be taxed by a state.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316,

435, 4 L. ed. 579, 608; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; New York ex rel. Bank of Commerce v. Tax Comrs. 2 Black, 620, 17 L. ed. 451; The Banks v. New York (New York ex rel. Bank of N. Y. Nat. Bkg. Asso. v. Connelly) 7 Wall. 16, 19 L. ed. 57; Moran v. New Orleans, 112 U. S. 69, 28 L. ed. 653, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 38; Harman v. Chicago, 147 U. S. 396, 37 L. ed. 216, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 306; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Dobbins v. Erie County, 16 Pet. 435, 10 L. ed. 1022; People ex rel. Edison Electric Light Co. v. Campbell, 138 N. Y. 543, 20 L.R.A. 453, 34 N. E. 370; Com. v. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. 151 Pa. 265, 24 Atl. 1107, 1111.

The cases in which this court has applied the same principle to the protection of the state governments against the Federal government are:

The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. New York, 121 U. S. 138, 162, 30 L. ed. 895, 904, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 449, 468, 50 L. ed. 264, 272, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

See also, as to other inherent limitations upon Federal legislation:

United States v. Dewitt, 9 Wall. 41, 19 L. ed. 593; Keller v. United States, 213 U. S. 138, 53 L. ed. 737, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 470, 16 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1066.

If the precise case here has not before arisen, its exact converse has, and if it be admitted, as it always has been, and still must be, that this principle of immunity is reciprocal, then indeed it must be conceded that this court has adjudicated the very question here involved.

California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073.

Even as a tax on franchises it is a tax on property, and hence direct. It is the settled law of this court that a corporate franchise is personal property.

Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Hewes, 183 U. S. 66, 46 L. ed. 86, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 26; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Adams, 155 U. S. 696, 39 L. ed. 315, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 1, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268, 360; Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. ed. 995, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817.

Mr. Richard Reid Rogers argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants in No. 442:

A grant of a corporate franchise is the exercise of a sovereign faculty.

California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 40, 32 L. ed. 150, 157, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073.

And this power was not alienated by the several states to the national government.

Briscoe v. Bank of the Commonwealth, 11 Pet. 257, 9 L. ed. 709.

The states cannot even indirectly tax a corporate franchise granted by the national government.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 768, 6 L. ed. 211; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; New York ex rel. Bank of Commerce v. Tax Comrs. 2 Black, 628, 17 L. ed. 454; Bank Tax Case (New York ex rel. Bank of Commonwealth v. Tax & A. Comrs.) 2 Wall. 200, 17 L. ed. 793; Owensboro Nat. Bank v. Owensboro, 173 U. S. 664, 43 L. ed. 850, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 537; First Nat. Bank v. Stone, 174 U. S. 438, 43 L. ed. 1038, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 41, 32 L. ed. 157, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Van Allen v. Assessors (Churchill v. Utica) 3 Wall. 573, 591, 18 L. ed. 229, 237.

In the respect stated, the state and Federal governments are upon an equal footing.

The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 128, 20 L. ed. 122, 127; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 30, 21 L. ed. 787, 791; Van Brocklin v. Tennessee (Van Brocklin v. Anderson) 117 U. S. 151, 162, 29 L. ed. 845, 849, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 670; Income Tax Cases (Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co.) 157 U. S. 584, 39 L. ed. 820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 59, 44 L. ed. 969, 977, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 117, 44 L. ed. 998, 999, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 7, 47 L. ed. 49, 52, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

The act of Congress is unconstitutional in so far as it attempts to impose a tax upon the franchises of foreign corporations, or, at least, upon their right to carry on a purely intrastate business,—a matter over which the Federal government has no control.

License Tax Cases, 5 Wall. 462, 471, 18 L. ed. 497, 500; Covington & C. Bridge

Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 204, 210, 38 L. ed. 962, 965, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 649, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1087.

The tax is so unequal that, by definition, it is not a tax within the delegated power of Congress to impose.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 159, 41 L. ed. 666, 669, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 417, 54 L. ed. 536, 541, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247.

Messrs. Charles H. Tyler, Owen D. Young, Burton E. Eames, and Randolph Frothingham filed a brief for appellant in No. 443:

The care and management of real estate investments by a corporation do not constitute the carrying on or doing business.

People ex rel. Parker Mills v. Tax Comrs. 23 N. Y. 242; Re Alabama & C. R. Co. 9 Blatchf. 390, Fed. Cas. No. 124.

The act is invalid as laying a burden upon an instrumentality of the state.

California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; Fifield v. Close, 15 Mich. 505; Smith v. Short, 40 Ala. 385; Warren v. Paul, 22 Ind. 276; Jones v. Keep, 19 Wis. 369; Union Bank v. Hill, 3 Coldw. 325; Moore v. Quirk, 105 Mass. 49, 7 Am. Rep. 499; United States v. Owens, 100 Fed. 70.

The act is invalid because of lack of equality.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Messrs. Jed L. Washburn, William D. Bailey, and Oscar Mitchell filed a brief for appellant in No. 446:

As an excise tax, the same is invalid, not only as not being uniform throughout the United States, whether we say intrinsically or geographically, but because it is so fraught with discriminations, inequalities, and arbitrary exemptions as to be without the taxing power, and is obnoxious to the fundamental principles of our government.

Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95.

The tax that will fall upon the defendant, the Clark Iron Company, and operate to deplete the revenues distributable to its stockholders, falls upon its income by way of rentals and royalties from the use and occupation of its lands, and is therefore, within the decisions of this court, a tax upon the land itself,—a direct tax, unconstitutional and void.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; State v. Evans, 99 Minn. 223, 108 N. W. 958, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 520; Bainbridge, Mines & Minerals, Am. ed. p. 197; United States v. Gratiot, 14 Pet. 526, 10 L. ed. 573; 2 Snyder, Mines, chap. 2, p. 932; Offerman v. Starr, 2 Pa. St. 394, 44 Am. Dec. 211, 10 Mor. Min. Rep. 614; Moore v. Miller, 8 Pa. 273; Hyatt v. Vincennes Nat. Bank, 113 U. S. 408, 28 L. ed. 1009, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 573; Lehigh Zinc & I. Co. v. Bamford, 150 U. S. 665, 37 L. ed. 1215, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 219; Tennessee Oil, Gas & Mineral Co. v. Brown, 65 C. C. A. 524, 131 Fed. 696; Raynolds v. Hanna, 55 Fed. 783; Co. Litt. 53–b; Clegg v. Rowland, L. R. 2 Eq. 160, 35 L. J. Ch. N. S. 396, 14 L. T. N. S. 217, 14 Week. Rep. 530, 17 Eng. Rul. Cas. 725, 8 Mor. Min. Rep. 520.

As a tax laid only when the income is received by corporations, it is also subject to the charge that it is, in effect, an attempt to levy a tax upon the corporate franchises of such corporations, and, as such, it cannot be sustained.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; Weston v. Charleston, 2 Pet. 449, 7 L. ed. 481; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 33 L. ed. 687, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 6 How. 507, 12 L. ed. 535; San Bernardino County v. Southern P. R. Co. 118 U. S. 417, 30 L. ed. 125, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1144; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 584, 39 L. ed. 820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673.

The law not only denies equal protection, but operates to deprive parties of their property without due process of law, and ignores the provision that excessive fines shall not be imposed.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. p. 434; Harding v. People, 160 Ill. 459, 32 L.R.A. 445, 52 Am. St. Rep. 344, 43 N. E. 624; Bank of Columbia v. Okely, 4 Wheat. 244, 4 L. ed. 561; San Bernardino County v. Southern P. R. Co. 118 U. S. 423, 30 L. ed. 127, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1144; Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. ed. 714, 13 L.R.A.(N.S.) 932, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441, 14 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 764.

Mr. Charles Howard Williams argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants in No. 456:

The tax imposed is an income tax, pure and simple; for, although the name is changed, the court will regard the substanee rather than the name. The tax is therefore invalid.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 27, 54 L. ed. 355, 366, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Home Sav. Bank v. Des Moines, 205 U. S. 510, 51 L. ed. 906, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 571; Ineome Tax Cases (Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co.) 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Polloek v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912.

Considered as an exeise, the tax is not uniform. It does not apply to all of a class alike, neither is it imposed on all of a elass throughout the United States. It is therefore invalid.

Polloek v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 121, 21 L. ed. 49, 51; Head Money Cases (Edye v. Robertson) 112 U. S. 580, 594, 28 L. ed. 798, 802, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Cooley, Taxn. p. 215; M'Culloeh v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 435, 4 L. ed. 579, 608.

The tax is not equal on all members of the elasses it seeks to reaeh, exempting without basis some and taxing others. It is therefore invalid.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Cooley, Const. Lim. pp. 598, 607, 615; People ex rel. Detroit & H. R. Co. v. Salem, 20 Mich. 473, 4 Am. Rep. 400; Albany City Nat. Bank v. Maher, 20 Blatchf. 341, 9 Fed. 884; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 524, 529, 29 L. ed. 715, 717, 719, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 709, 28 L. ed. 1145, 1147, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 560, 46 L. ed. 679, 690, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 274, 49 L. ed. 476, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Seegers, 207 U. S. 76, 52 L. ed. 109, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28.

In the same way the tax offends the due-process clause of the Constitution. It in effect assesses certain eorporations for the benefit of others which are exempted. It is therefore invalid.

Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 15 Am. Rep. 39; Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 535, 28 L. ed. 232, 238, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111, 202; Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 468, 35 L. ed. 225, 227, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 662, 37 L. ed. 599, 601, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; Caldwell v. Texas, 137 U. S. 692, 697, 34 L. ed. 816, 818, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 224; Bank of Columbia v. Okely, 4 Wheat. 235, 244, 4 L. ed. 559, 561; Madisonville Traction Co. v. St. Bernard Min. Co. 196 U. S. 239, 49 L. ed. 462, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 251.

The effect of the tax under the provisions of the present law is to ereate favored elasses, eontrary to the provisions of the Constitution.

Citizens' Sav. & L. Asso. v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655, 22 L. ed. 455; Leeper v. Texas, 139 U. S. 462, 468, 35 L. ed. 225, 227, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579.

The present tax cannot stand as an excise on the privilege to exist, for that right eomes from the state, and is not taxable by the Federal government.

Ambrosini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699; Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 19 L. ed. 227; The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 127, 20 L. ed. 122, 126; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 584, 39 L. ed. 820, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 453, 50 L. ed. 266, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

The administrative features of the aet are invalid beeause they offend the provisions of artieles 4 and 5 of the Amendment to the Constitution.

Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 627, 29 L. ed. 749, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; People ex rel. Ferguson v. Reardon, 197 N. Y. 244, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 141, 134 Am. St. Rep. 871, 90 N. E. 829; Robson v. Doyle, 191 Ill. 566, 61 N. E. 435; Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U. S. 562, 35 L. ed. 1113, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 816, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 195; People ex rel. Taylor v. Forbes, 143 N. Y. 219, 38 N. E. 303; People ex rel. Lewisohn v. O'Brien, 176 N. Y. 253, 68 N. E. 353, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 97; Emery's Case, 107 Mass. 172, 9 Am. Rep. 22.

Mr. Howard H. Williams also filed a brief for appellants in No. 456.

Solicitor General Bowers argued the eause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham, filed a brief (by special leave) for the United States:

Numerous decisions of this eourt show that this tax is an excise upon the conduct or transaction of business. They may be put for eonvenienee into five groups:

(1) A case identical with the present, holding that a tax declared in the statute to be laid on business in an amount "equivalent to" a certain percentage of ineome is an excise on the transaction of the business.

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

(2) Cases even stronger than the Spreckels Case, in that they hold that a tax laid in terms on the income of a business—instead of being laid in terms upon the business in an amount equal or equivalent to a percentage of the income—is still an excise upon the business.

Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; United States v. Erie R. Co. 106 U. S. 327, 27 L. ed. 151, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 223; Springer v. United States, 102 U. S. 586, 26 L. ed. 253.

(3) Cases holding various taxes to be excises on business, though they are laid in terms upon property engaged in the business.

Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907; Hamilton Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 632, 18 L. ed. 904; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482; United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 21 L. ed. 49; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. United States, 101 U. S. 1, 25 L. ed. 979.

(4) A case exhibiting an excise on business under a statute which, instead of laying the tax in terms on property engaged in the business, required the tax to be equal to a certain percentage of property so engaged.

Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897.

(5) Cases which, while not relating to business, classify as excises various taxes imposed by Congress upon special transactions concerning property, or upon the enjoyment or exercise of particular privileges or advantages connected with property.

Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 44 L. ed. 998, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Murdock v. Ward, 178 U. S. 139, 44 L. ed. 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 775; United States v. Perkins, 163 U. S. 625, 41 L. ed. 287, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 47 L. ed. 1035, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

The established rule that the states may tax property used in interstate commerce, though they may not tax the business of interstate commerce or income from that business, shows that a tax upon the business is different from a tax upon the property employed in that business, and so is not direct.

Philadelphia & S. Mail S. S. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 122 U. S. 326, 30 L. ed. 1200, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 308, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1118; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 52 L. ed. 1031, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Pullman's Palace Car Co. v. Pennsylvania, 141 U. S. 18, 35 L. ed. 613, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 595, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; Adams Exp. Co. v. Ohio State Auditor, 166 U. S. 185, 41 L. ed. 965, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 604; Fargo v. Hart, 193 U. S. 490, 48 L. ed. 761, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 498.

A tax on the business of the company is not, in legal view, a tax on the shares of the company's stock or on the income from those shares.

Logan County v. United States, 169 U. S. 255, 42 L. ed. 737, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 361; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 44 L. ed. 998, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Murdock v. Ward, 178 U. S. 139, 44 L. ed. 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 775; United States v. Perkins, 163 U. S. 625, 41 L. ed. 287, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 47 L. ed. 1035, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803.

Even a tax laid directly on corporate property is not a tax on the separate shares of the corporation's stock.

Owensboro Nat. Bank v. Owensboro, 173 U. S. 664, 43 L. ed. 850, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 537; New Orleans v. Citizens' Bank, 167 U. S. 371, 42 L. ed. 202, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 905; Home Sav. Bank v. Des Moines, 205 U. S. 503, 51 L. ed. 901, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 571.

The converse proposition, that a tax on shares is not a tax on the property of the company, is also settled.

Van Allen v. Assessors (Churchill v. Utica), 3 Wall. 573, 18 L. ed. 229; New York v. Tax & A. Comrs. 4 Wall. 244, 18 L. ed. 344; Bradley v. Illinois, 4 Wall. 459, 18 L. ed. 433; First Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 9 Wall. 353, 19 L. ed. 701; Cleveland Trust Co. v. Lander, 184 U. S. 111, 46 L. ed. 456, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 394.

The tax does not become direct in the special case of a company engaged mainly, or even solely, in the business of handling or dealing in real estate.

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Com. v. Hamilton Mfg. Co. 12 Allen, 298; Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305.

The tax is not an infraction of the general power of the states to authorize the formation of corporations and joint stock companies.

Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; United States v. Erie R. Co. 106 U. S. 327, 27 L. ed. 151, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 223; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 547, 19 L. ed. 482, 487; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 59–61, 44 L. ed. 969, 977, 978, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

The adjudications of this court concerning state taxation of the business or franchises of a corporate agent of the United States are irrelevant to the question of the power of the United States to tax the business or franchises of miscellaneous corporations formed under state laws.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Thomson v. Union P. R. Co. 9 Wall. 579, 19 L. ed. 792; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067.

Even if a state should actually assume the operation of a railroad, whether directly or indirectly, through a special corporate agency, or should assume to do any other kind of business, the operations of the state in the business would be taxable by the United States.

South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

If the business of a public-service company, incorporated by a state, could be deemed an activity of the state itself, and even if such activity of the state could be held to be beyond the taxing power of the United States unless the state should assent to the tax, still such assent by the state to taxation of the business by the United States would be inferred, in the absence of legislative declaration to the contrary by the state.

Reagan v. Mercantile Trust Co. 154 U. S. 413, 38 L. ed. 1028, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 575, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1060.

The tax is not imposed upon state or municipal bonds, or upon the income of such bonds, forming part of the business assets of the company whose business is taxed; and the company's income from such bonds is to be included in the computation of its net income.

. Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907; Hamilton Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 632, 18 L. ed. 904; Merchants' Nat. Bank v. United States, 101 U. S. 1, 25 L. ed. 979; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Murdock v. Ward, 178 U. S. 139, 44 L. ed. 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 775; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 44 L. ed. 998, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Van Allen v. Assessors (Churchill v. Utica) 3 Wall. 573, 18 L. ed. 229; New York v. Tax & A. Comrs. 4 Wall. 244, 18 L. ed. 344; Bradley v. Illinois, 4 Wall. 459, 18 L. ed. 433; First Nat. Bank v. Kentucky, 9 Wall. 353, 19 L. ed. 701; Cleveland Trust Co. v. Lander, 184 U. S. 111, 46 L. ed. 456, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 394; Ficklen v. Taxing Dist. 145 U. S. 1, 36 L. ed. 601, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 79, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 810; Tiernan v. Rinker, 102 U. S. 127, 26 L. ed. 104.

The constitutional requirement of uniformity in "all duties, imposts, and excises" imposed by Congress (clause 1 of § 8 of art. 1, of the Constitution) calls for no more than geographical uniformity.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747.

The propriety of classifying corporations and joint stock companies together, for like taxation, is illustrated, and indeed concluded, by Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Massachusetts (Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Oliver) 10 Wall. 566, 19 L. ed. 1029.

An excise is least amenable, of all taxes, to the rule of uniformity; and in the enactment of excises the greatest freedom of classification has been immemorially exercised both by Congress and by other legislatures.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Murdock v. Ward, 178 U. S. 139, 44 L. ed. 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 775; United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 21 L. ed. 49; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Cornell v. Coyne, 192 U. S. 418, 48 L. ed. 504, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Massachusetts (Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Oliver)

10 Wall. 566, 19 L. ed. 1029; Beers v. Glynn, 211 U. S. 477, 53 L. ed. 290, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 L. ed. 451, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232; New York ex rel. Metropolitan Street R. Co. v. New York State Tax Comrs. 199 U. S. 1, 50 L. ed. 65, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 381; Savannah, T. & I. of H. R. Co. v. Savannah, 198 U. S. 392, 49 L. ed. 1097, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 690; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Pacific Exp. Co. v. Seibert, 142 U. S. 339, 35 L. ed. 1035, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 810, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 250; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561.

None of the special rules prescribed by the taxing statute concerning exemptions or concerning application or computation of the tax produces any lack of necessary uniformity.

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. New York, 121 U. S. 138, 30 L. ed. 895, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Petersburg v. Petersburg Benev. Mechanics' Asso. 78 Va. 431; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. Hubbard, 98 Fed. 465; First Nat. Bank v. Chapman, 173 U. S. 205, 43 L. ed. 669, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407; United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 21 L. ed. 49; Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897; Hamilton Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 632, 18 L. ed. 904; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907; District of Columbia v. Brooke, 214 U. S. 138, 53 L. ed. 941, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 560; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; New York ex rel. Metropolitan Street R. Co. v. New York State Tax Comrs. 199 U. S. 1, 50 L. ed. 65, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 381.

The company required to pay the tax is not subject to any unreasonable search or seizure by any of the administrative provisions of the statute.

Re Chapman, 166 U. S. 661, 41 L. ed. 1154, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 677; Adams v. New York, 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372.

Mr. William D. Guthrie argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Victor Norawetz and Howard Van Sinderen, filed a brief for appellees in No. 410:

A tax upon income derived from the carrying on or doing business is an excise, and not a direct tax, within the meaning of the Constitution.

Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 443, 19 L. ed. 95, 98; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 598, 25 L. ed. 647, 648; Springer v. United States, 102 U. S. 586, 598, 26 L. ed. 253, 257; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 411, 48 L. ed. 496, 501, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 454, 50 L. ed. 261, 266, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

The provision of the 5th Amendment, that no person shall be deprived of property without due process of law, is sufficient to prevent any such impairment or destruction of contract rights.

Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 718, 25 L. ed. 496, 501; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 160 U. S. 1, 33, 40 L. ed. 319, 330, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190.

The question now presented is whether or not income can nevertheless be indirectly taxed by means of a so-called special excise tax upon the carrying on or doing business by corporations; in other words, by merely changing the name of the tax.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 654, 39 L. ed. 759, 844, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673.

Undoubtedly, public utilities, when owned by the state itself, and not conducted by it as a private business for profit, ought not to be taxable by Congress. But it is well established that such public utilities, when owned and operated by private corporations, or by individuals for purposes of profit, are proper subjects of taxation (Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 31, 21 L. ed. 787, 791), and that, if owned and operated by the state as a business for profit, they become subject to taxation by Congress within the principle of South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737.

A special franchise from the state of New York is entirely distinct from the so-called franchise to be a corporation.

New York v. Bryan, 196 N. Y. 163, 89 N. E. 467; People v. O'Brien, 111 N. Y. 47, 2 L.R.A. 255, 7 Am. St. Rep. 684, 18 N. E. 692.

A Federal tax on the franchise to condemn property and to operate the railroad in the state of New York might come within the ruling of the court in the case of California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; but that ruling certainly would not apply to a tax upon the business of the railroad corporation. This case did not overrule or qualify Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787.

A tax upon the mere carrying on of business, levied impartially and uniformly upon all corporations, is essentially different from a tax on so-called special franchises, and from a tax on the franchise to be a corporation, or to carry on business in a corporate form.

There is a serious question as to whether Congress may select state corporations as a separate class, and impose upon them an excise tax "with respect to the carrying on or doing business by such corporation," while exempting or not similarly taxing individuals and copartnerships engaged in carrying on or doing identically the same business, under substantially like conditions.

Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247.

If a state, aside from its power to create, regulate, or exclude corporations, could not discriminate against corporations and in favor of individuals or partnerships without violating the 14th Amendment, then any attempt by Congress so to discriminate may likewise be unconstitutional under the 5th Amendment.

Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 410, 50 L. ed. 246, 250, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66.

The classification of corporations as a separate class by the states has been sustained on grounds which are, at least partly, unavailable in support of an act of Congress.

Delaware Railroad Tax, 18 Wall. 206, 21 L. ed. 888; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 237, 33 L. ed. 892, 895, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 606, 33 L. ed. 1025, 1031, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658, 665, 43 L. ed. 323, 326, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Florida C. R. Co. v. Reynolds, 183 U. S. 471, 477, 46 L. ed. 283, 286, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; Berea College v. Kentucky, 211 U. S. 45, 54, 53 L. ed. 81, 85, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33.

Congress cannot constitutionally impose an excise tax measured by nontaxable income.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 635, 39 L. ed. 1125, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912.

If the argument now advanced on behalf of the United States be sound, many of the decisions of the court sustaining excise taxes on corporations have proceeded on entirely erroneous reasoning.

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 410, 417, 48 L. ed. 496, 500, 503, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 52 L. ed. 1031, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 416, 54 L. ed. 536, 541, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247; Home Sav. Bank v. Des Moines, 205 U. S. 503, 519, 51 L. ed. 901, 910, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 571; Louisville & J. Ferry Co. v. Kentucky, 188 U. S. 385, 396, 398, 47 L. ed. 513, 518, 519, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 463; State Tonnage Tax Cases (Cox v. Lott) 12 Wall. 204, 217, 20 L. ed. 370, 374.

The underlying principle of these decisions is that a license or occupation tax cannot be imposed by a state upon foreign corporations, measured by the amount of nontaxable property or the amount of nontaxable interstate business of the corporations, and that any such attempt would establish an unconstitutional basis of classification for purposes of taxation; in other words, that a tax cannot be measured by nontaxable property or income. If we apply the same principle to the case at bar, it must follow that Congress cannot, directly or indirectly, measure an excise tax on corporations or individuals by property or income which is not taxable at all, or only taxable by a direct and apportioned tax.

The act of August 5, 1909, should be construed as imposing an excise tax only upon income derived from the carrying on or doing business.

United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 407, 53 L. ed. 836, 848, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; Kepner v. United States, 195 U. S. 100, 125, 49 L. ed. 114, 122, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 797, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 655; United States v. Nix, 189 U. S. 199, 205, 47 L. ed. 775, 777, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 417, 48 L. ed. 496, 503, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

Congress presumably deemed it unjust to compel a holding company to pay a tax upon income derived from dividends of other companies which had already paid the tax, although if a corporation has been organized for the purpose of carrying on the business of holding securities, there is, perhaps, no reason why it cannot be subjected to taxation upon net income or profits derived from that occupation or business.

People ex rel. Vandervoort Realty Co. v. Glynn, 194 N. Y. 389, 87 N. E. 434.

The exception or exclusion of dividends from stocks of other corporations does not signify that the general clause "from all sources" must be given any broader interpretation than if no such exception had been made.

Baggaley v. Pittsburg & L. S. Iron Co. 33 C. C. A. 202, 62 U. S. App. 683, 90 Fed. 638; Mullins v. Surrey County, L. R. 5 Q. B. Div. 173; West Derby Union v. Metropolitan L. Assur. Soc. [1897] A. C. 652, 66 L. J. Ch. N. S. 726, 77 L. T. N. S. 284, 61 J. P. 820; Georgia R. & Bkg. Co. v Smith, 128 U. S. 174, 181, 32 L. ed. 377, 380, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 47; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 36, 37, 48 L. ed. 860, 865, 866, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563; American Exp. Co. v. United States, 212 U. S. 522, 534, 53 L. ed. 635, 640, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 315.

Under state laws imposing taxes upon the capital of corporations employed in business, or receipts derived from business, it is quite often necessary to make similar inquiry into the character and use of their property and the conduct of their businesses.

People ex rel. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Wemple, 150 N. Y. 46, 44 N. E. 787; People ex rel. Chicago Junction R. & Union Stockyards Co. v. Roberts, 154 N. Y. 1, 47 N. E. 974; People ex rel. Niagara River Hydraulic Co. v. Roberts, 30 App. Div. 180, 51 N. Y. Supp. 771, affirmed in 157 N. Y. 676, 51 N. E. 1093; People ex rel. Ft. George Realty Co. v. Miller, 179 N. Y. 49, 71 N. E. 463; People ex rel. Interborough Rapid Transit Co. v. Williams, 200 N. Y. 103, 93 N. E. 505; Com. v. Standard Oil Co. 101 Pa. 119; Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727, 28 L. ed. 1137, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 739; Re Alabama & C. R. Co. 9 Blatchf. 390; Fed. Cas. No. 124; Gilchrist v. Helena, H. S. & S. R. Co. 47 Fed. 593; Oakland Sugar Mill Co. v. Fred W. Wolf Co. 55 C. C. A. 93, 118 Fed. 239; New York & S. Constr. Co. v. Winton, 208 Pa. 471, 57 Atl. 955; Colonial Trust Co. v. Montello Brick Works, 97 C. C. A. 144, 172 Fed. 311; General Conference v. Berkey, 156 Cal. 466, 105 Pac. 411; Missouri Coal & Min. Co. v. Ladd, 160 Mo. 435, 61 S. W. 191.

Messrs. William N. Dykman and Arthur E. Goddard filed a brief for appellees in No. 409:

The tax in question does not involve an unconstitutional interference with the sovereign powers and functions of the states.

South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 454, 459, 50 L. ed. 261, 266, 268, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737; License Tax Cases, 5 Wall. 462, 475, 18 L. ed. 497, 502; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 137, 44 L. ed. 998, 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 47 L. ed. 1035, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803.

A distinction exists between the governmental and quasi private functions and instrumentalities of the state.

Re Rapid Transit Comrs. 197 N. Y. 81, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 90 N. E. 456, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 366.

If, as is claimed, Congress cannot tax corporations chartered by the states, and if this is one of the subjects of taxation over which Congress has no power, such as exports, then it must follow (Fairbank v. United States, 181 U. S. 283, 45 L. ed. 862, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 135) that the result cannot be accomplished in any manner, directly or indirectly, and whether or not individuals as well as corporations are included in the tax. That this is not the case is shown by the following, among other cases:

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95.

In every case in which it has been held, directly or indirectly, that a state may not tax a corporate franchise granted by Congress, it will be found that the real reason for this is not that the mere franchise, as such, is a part and parcel of the sovereign governmental instrumentalities of the Federal government, but that the functions, duties, and operations of such corporations fall within the protection of the powers delegated to Congress, and therefore are not subject to interference by the states.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Reagan v. Mercantile Trust Co. 154 U. S. 413, 38 L. ed. 1028, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 575, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1060.

A Federal tax upon the income of corporations is not a direct tax, because it is rather an excise upon the artificial rights of corporations who hold property and receive income therefrom, than a direct tax upon the property.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 59, 44 L. ed. 969, 977, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 137, 44 L. ed. 998, 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 521, 43 L. ed. 786, 793, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

The tax is a tax upon the doing of business by corporations and joint stock companies. Their right of doing business, apart from their right to exist and hold property, considered above, is distinct from the natural right of individuals in general to engage in business, just as the right to buy and sell property at an exchange is distinct from the general natural right to buy and sell property anywhere. A tax on the former is an excise tax on a privilege, while a tax on the latter may be held to be a direct tax on property.

Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

The Federal government in the past has imposed taxes falling only upon corporations engaged in certain businesses, without the slightest suggestion or objection that the taxes were improper because not excise taxes on business.

Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597.

Measuring excise or privilege taxes by gross receipts or net income from all sources, whether or not directly derived from the privilege in question, is an extremely common method, and has frequently been upheld by this court.

Maine v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 142 U. S. 217, 35 L. ed. 994, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 807, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, 163; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907; Hamilton Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 632, 18 L. ed. 904; Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95; State R. Tax Cases, 92 U. S. 575, 23 L. ed. 663; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Atty. Gen. 125 U. S. 530, 31 L. ed. 790, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Pullman's Palace Car Co. v. Pennsylvania, 141 U. S. 18, 35 L. ed. 613, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 595, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Adams, 155 U. S. 688, 39 L. ed. 311, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 1, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268, 360; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; McHenry v. Alford, 168 U. S. 651, 42 L. ed. 614, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 242.

The tax imposed by the act is "uniform."

Head Money Cases (Edye v. Robertson) 112 U. S. 580, 28 L. ed. 798, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 50, 49 L. ed. 78, 93, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561.

A tax upon the franchises or business of state railroads or public-service corporations is not an interference with governmental functions or instrumentalities of the state, and is valid.

South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737; Re Rapid Transit Comrs. 197 N. Y. 81, — L.R.A. (N.S.) —, 90 N. E. 456, 18 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 366; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647.

Messrs. Charles A. Snow and Joseph H. Knight filed a brief for appellees in No 425:

The taxing power conferred by the Constitution knows no limits except those expressly stated in that instrument.

Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 446, 19 L. ed. 95, 99; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 59, 49 L. ed. 78, 97, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561.

Under the rule of stare decisis the corporation tax must be held to be an "excise." Otherwise, numerous decisions holding identical or analogous taxes to be "excises" must be overruled.

Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; United States v. Erie R. Co. 106 U. S. 327, 27 L. ed. 151, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 223; Western Union R. Co. v. United States, 101 U. S. 543, 550, 25 L. ed. 1068, 1070; Bailey v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 106 U. S. 109, 115, 27 L. ed. 81, 83, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 62; Memphis & C. R. Co. v. United States, 108 U. S. 228, 234, 27 L. ed. 711, 713, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 482; Little Miami & C. & X. R. Co. v. United States, 108 U. S. 277, 279, 27 L. ed. 724, 725, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 627; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482;

Hamilton Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 632, 638, 18 L. ed. 904, 906; Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907; Portland Bank v. Apthorp, 12 Mass. 256; Van Allen v. Assessors (Churchill v. Utica) 3 Wall. 573, 18 L. ed. 229; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Pullman's Palace Car Co. v. Pennsylvania, 141 U. S. 18, 35 L. ed. 613, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 595, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; State Tax on R. Gross Receipts, 15 Wall. 284, 293, 21 L. ed. 164, 167; Springer v. United States, 102 U. S. 586, 26 L. ed. 253; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 413, 48 L. ed. 496, 501, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 44 L. ed. 998, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Treat v. White, 181 U. S. 264, 45 L. ed. 853, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561; New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658, 43 L. ed. 323, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 253, 47 L. ed. 1035, 1037, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803.

Being "excises," their validity is not questionable by reason of the fact that United States tax-exempt securities, or state or municipal bonds, or other instrumentalities of state governments, are included within the estate or capital thus subjected to an excise tax.

Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Plummer v. Coler, 178 U. S. 115, 44 L. ed. 998, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Murdock v. Ward, 178 U. S. 139, 44 L. ed. 1009, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 775; Mager v. Grima, 8 How. 490, 12 L. ed. 1168; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 47 L. ed. 1035, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803; United States v. Perkins, 163 U. S. 625, 41 L. ed. 287, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658, 43 L. ed. 323, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Orr v. Gilman, 183 U. S. 278, 46 L. ed. 196, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 213; Billings v. Illinois, 188 U. S. 97, 47 L. ed. 400, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Blackstone v. Miller, 188 U. S. 189, 47 L. ed. 439, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277; Campbell v. California, 200 U. S. 87, 50 L. ed. 382, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182; Cahen v. Brewster, 203 U. S. 543, 51 L. ed. 310, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 215; Chanler v. Kelsey, 205 U. S. 466, 51 L. ed. 882, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550; Buck v. Beach, 206 U. S. 392, 408, 51 L. ed. 1106, 1114, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 712, 11 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 732.

As an excise tax, the corporation tax is uniform and otherwise fully complies with all constitutional requirements.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 622, 623, 46 L. ed. 713, 720, 721, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

Corporate franchises are properly subject to Federal excise taxes, notwithstanding the fact that the corporation may not be engaged in interstate commerce, and so is not subject in any way to Federal regulation or control.

Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 252, 47 L. ed. 1035, 1036, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803; Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99.

The classification of corporations and noncorporations presents such obvious distinctions that it is unnecessary to argue that there is a reasonable basis for such classification.

McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561; Board of Education v. Illinois, 203 U. S. 553, 51 L. ed. 314, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171, 8 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 157.

The decisions of this court give no countenance to the theory that the selection by Congress of one class as a proper subject for excise taxation, rather than another class, presents any reason for judicial interference, upon the ground that any provision of the Constitution has been contravened.

Spencer v. Merchant, 125 U. S. 345, 355, 31 L. ed. 763, 767, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 921; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 61 49 L. ed. 78, 97, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561; Treat v. White, 181 U. S. 264, 269, 45 L. ed. 853, 855, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 623, 46 L. ed. 713, 720, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

An excise tax cannot be attacked upon the ground that it directly taxes or interferes with the instrumentalities of the state or Federal governments, for it is not a tax on property, and the kind of property taxed indirectly is a matter of no consequence.

Van Allen v. Assessors (Churchill v. Utica) 3 Wall. 573, 18 L. ed. 229; Snyder v. Bettman, 190 U. S. 249, 47 L. ed. 1035, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 803; Home Ins. Co. v.

New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747.

The Senate has the power to amend a revenue bill. This power to amend is not confined to the elimination of provisions contained in the original act, but embraces as well the addition of such provisions thereto as may render the original act satisfactory to the body which is called upon to support it. It has, in fact, been held that the substitution of an entirely new measure for the one originally proposed can be supported as a valid amendment.

Brake v. Collison, 122 Fed. 722.

Mr. James L. Quackenbush filed a statement for appellees in No. 442.

Solicitor General Lehmann (by special leave) argued the cause for the United States on reargument.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

These cases involve the constitutional validity of § 38 of the act of Congress approved August 5, 1909, known as "the corporation tax" law. 36 Stat. at L. 11, 112–117, chap. 6, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 659, 844–849.

It is contended in the first place that this section of the act is unconstitutional, because it is a revenue measure, and originated in the Senate in violation of § 7 of article 1 of the Constitution, providing that "all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with the amendments, as on other bills." The 143]history of the act *is contained in the government's brief, and is accepted as correct, no objection being made to its accuracy.

This statement shows that the tariff bill of which the section under consideration is a part, originated in the House of Representatives, and was there a general bill for the collection of revenue. As originally introduced, it contained a plan of inheritance taxation. In the Senate the proposed tax was removed from the bill, and the corporation tax, in a measure, substituted therefor. The bill having properly originated in the House, we perceive no reason in the constitutional provision relied upon why it may not be amended in the Senate in the manner which it was in this case. The amendment was germane to the subject-matter of the bill, and not beyond the power of the Senate to propose.

In thus deciding we do not wish to be regarded as holding that the journals of the House and Senate may be examined to invalidate an act which has been passed and signed by the presiding officers of the House and Senate, and approved by the President, and duly deposited with the State Department. Marshall Field & Co. v. Clark, 143 U. S. 649, 36 L. ed. 294, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495; Harwood v. Wentworth, 162 U. S. 547, 40 L. ed. 1069, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 890; Twin City Bank v. Nebeker, 167 U. S. 196, 42 L. ed. 134, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 766.

In order to have in mind some of the more salient features of the statute, with a view to its interpretation, a part of the first paragraph is here set out, as follows:

"Sec. 38. That every corporation, joint stock company, or association organized for profit and having a capital stock represented by shares, and every insurance company now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States or of any state or territory of the United States, or under the acts of Congress applicable to Alaska or the District of Columbia, or now or hereafter organized under the laws of any foreign country, and engaged in business in any state or territory of the United States or in Alaska or in the District of Columbia, shall be subject *to[144 pay annually a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business by such corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company equivalent to one per centum upon the entire net income over and above five thousand dollars, received by it from all sources during such year, exclusive of amounts received by it as dividends upon stock of other corporations, joint stock companies or associations, or insurance companies subject to the tax hereby imposed; or, if organized under the laws of any foreign country, upon the amount of net income over and above five thousand dollars received by it from business transacted and capital invested within the United States and its territories, Alaska and the District of Columbia, during such year, exclusive of amounts so received by it as dividends upon stock of other corporations, joint stock companies or associations, or insurance companies subject to the tax hereby imposed."

A reading of this portion of the statute shows the purpose and design of Congress in its enactment and the subject-matter of its operation. It is at once apparent that its terms embrace corporations and joint stock companies or associations which are organized for profit, and have a capital stock represented by shares. Such joint stock companies, while differing somewhat from corporations, have many of their attributes and enjoy many of their privileges. To these are added insurance companies, and they, as corporations, joint stock companies, or associations, must be such as are now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States or of any state or territory of the United States, or under the acts of Congress applicable to Alaska and the District of Columbia. Each and all of these, the statute declares, shall be subject to pay annually a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on and doing business by such corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company. The tax is to be equivalent to 1 per [145] cent of the entire net *income over and above $5,000 received by such corporation or company from all sources during the year, excluding, however, amounts received by them as dividends upon stock of other corporations, joint stock companies or associations, or insurance companies, subject to the tax imposed by the statute. Similar companies organized under the laws of any foreign country, and engaged in business in any state or territory of the United States, or in Alaska or the District of Columbia, are required to pay the tax upon the net income over and above $5,000 received by them from business transacted and capital invested within the United States, the territories, Alaska, and the District of Columbia, during each year, with the like exclusion as to amounts received by them as dividends upon stock of other corporations, joint stock companies or associations, or insurance companies, subject to the tax imposed.

While the mere declaration contained in a statute that it shall be regarded as a tax of a particular character does not make it such if it is apparent that it cannot be so designated consistently with the meaning and effect of the act, nevertheless the declaration of the lawmaking power is entitled to much weight, and in this statute the intention is expressly declared to impose a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business by such corporation, joint stock company or association, or insurance company. It is therefore apparent, giving all the words of the statute effect, that the tax is imposed not upon the franchises of the corporation, irrespective of their use in business, nor upon the property of the corporation, but upon the doing of corporate or insurance business, and with respect to the carrying on thereof, in a sum equivalent to 1 per centum upon the entire net income over and above $5,000 received from all sources during the year; that is, when imposed in this manner it is a tax upon the doing of business, with the advantages which inhere in the peculiarities *of corporate or joint[146] stock organization of the character described. As the latter organizations share many benefits of corporate organization, it may be described generally as a tax upon the doing of business in a corporate capacity. In the case of the insurance companies, the tax is imposed upon the transaction of such business by companies organized under the laws of the United States or any state or territory, as heretofore stated.

This tax, it is expressly stated, is to be equivalent to 1 per centum of the entire net income over and above $5,000 received from all sources during the year,—this is the measure of the tax explicitly adopted by the statute. The income is not limited to such as is received from property used in the business, strictly speaking, but is expressly declared to be upon the entire net income above $5,000 from all sources, excluding the amounts received as dividends on stock in other corporations, joint stock companies or associations, or insurance companies also subject to the tax. In other words, the tax is imposed upon the doing of business of the character described, and the measure of the tax is to be the income, with the deduction stated, received not only from property used in business, but from every source. This view of the measure of the tax is strengthened when we note that as to organizations under the laws of foreign countries, the amount of net income over and above $5,000 includes that received from business transacted and capital invested in the United States, the territories, Alaska, and the District of Columbia.

It is further strengthened when the subsequent sections are considered as to deductions in ascertaining net income and requiring returns from those subject to the act. Under the second paragraph the net income is to be ascertained by certain deductions from the gross amount of income received within the year "from all sources;" and the return to be made to the collector of internal revenue *under the third[147] section is required to show the gross amount of the income received during the year "from all sources." The evident purpose is to secure a return of the entire income, with certain allowances and deductions which do not suggest a restriction to income derived from property actively engaged in the business. This interpretation of the act, as resting upon the doing of business, is sustained by the reasoning in Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376, in which a special tax measured by the gross receipts of the business of refining oil and sugar was sustained as an excise in respect to the carrying on or doing of such business.

Having thus interpreted the statute in conformity, as we believe, with the intention of Congress in passing it, we proceed to consider whether, as thus construed, the statute is constitutional.

It is contended that it is not; certainly so far as the tax is measured by the income of bonds nontaxable under Federal statutes, and of municipal and state bonds beyond the Federal power of taxation. And so of real and personal estates, because as to such estates the tax is direct, and required to be apportioned according to population among the states. It is insisted that such must be the holding unless this court is prepared to reverse the income tax cases decided under the act of 1894. [28 Stat. at L. 509, chap. 349.] Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673, s. c. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912.

The applicable provisions of the Constitution of the United States in this connection are found in article 1, § 8, clause 1, and in article 1, § 2, clause 3, and article 1, § 9, clause 4. They are respectively:

"The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States."

148] *"Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within the Union, according to their respective numbers."

"No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken."

It was under the latter requirement as to apportionment of direct taxes according to population that this court in the Pollock Case held the statute of 1894 to be unconstitutional. Upon the rehearing of the case Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, who spoke for the court, summarizing the effect of the decision, said:

"We have considered the act only in respect of the tax on income derived from real estate, and from invested personal property, and have not commented on so much of it as bears on gains or profits from business, privileges, or employments, in view of the instances in which taxation on business, privileges, or employments has assumed the guise of an excise tax and been sustained as such." 158 U. S. 635.

And as to excise taxes, the chief justice said:

"We do not mean to say that an act laying by apportionment a direct tax on all real estate and personal property, or the income thereof, might not also lay excise taxes on business, privileges, employments, and vocations." (P. 637.)

The Pollock Case was before this court in Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747. In that case this court sustained an excise tax upon the transmission of property by inheritance. It was contended there, as here, that the case was ruled by the Pollock case, and of that case this court, speaking by the present chief justice, said:

"The issue presented in the Pollock Case was whether an income tax was direct within the meaning of the Constitution. The contentions which the case involved were thus presented. On the one hand, it was argued that only *capitation taxes[149 and taxes on land as such were direct, within the meaning of the Constitution, considered as a matter of first impression, and that previous adjudications had construed the Constitution as having that import. On the other hand, it was asserted that, in principle, direct taxes, in the constitutional sense, embraced not only taxes on land and capitation taxes, but all burdens laid on real or personal property because of its ownership, which were equivalent to a direct tax on such property, and it was affirmed that the previous adjudications of this court had settled nothing to the contrary.

. . . . . .

"Undoubtedly, in the course of the opinion in the Pollock Case, it was said that if a tax was direct within the constitutional sense, the mere erroneous qualification of it as an excise or duty would not take it out of the constitutional requirement as to apportionment. But this language related to the subject-matter under consideration, and was but a statement that a tax which was in itself direct, because imposed upon property solely by reason of its ownership, could not be changed by affixing to it the qualification of excise or duty. Here we are asked to decide that a tax is a direct tax on property which has at all times been considered as the antithesis of such a tax; that is, that it has ever been treated as a duty or excise, because of the particular occasion which gives rise to its levy.

. . . . . .

"Considering that the constitutional rule of apportionment had its origin in the purpose to prevent taxes on persons solely be- cause of their general ownership of property from being levied by any other rule than that of apportionment, two things were decided by the court: First, that no sound distinction existed between a tax levied on a person solely because of his general ownership of real property, and the same tax imposed solely because of his general ownership of personal property. Secondly, that 150]the *tax on the income derived from such property, real or personal, was the legal equivalent of a direct tax on the property from which said income was derived, and hence must be apportioned. These conclusions, however, lend no support to the contention that it was decided that duties, imposts, and excises, which are not the essential equivalent of a tax on property generally, real or personal, solely because of its ownership, must be converted into direct taxes, because it is conceived that it would be demonstrated by a close analysis that they could not be shifted from the person upon whom they first fall."

The same view was taken of the Pollock Case in the subsequent case of Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, supra.

The act now under consideration does not impose direct taxation upon property solely because of its ownership, but the tax is within the class which Congress is authorized to lay and collect under article 1, § 8, clause 1 of the Constitution, and described generally as taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, upon which the limitation is that they shall be uniform throughout the United States.

Within the category of indirect taxation, as we shall have further occasion to show, is embraced a tax upon business done in a corporate capacity, which is the subject-matter of the tax imposed in the act under consideration. The Pollock Case construed the tax there levied as direct, because it was imposed upon property simply because of its ownership. In the present case the tax is not payable unless there be a carrying on or doing of business in the designated capacity, and this is made the occasion for the tax, measured by the standard prescribed. The difference between the acts is not merely nominal, but rests upon substantial differences between the mere ownership of property and the actual doing of business in a certain way.

It is unnecessary to enter upon an extended consideration of the technical mean-151]ing of the term "excise." It has *been the subject-matter of considerable discussion,—the terms duties, imposts, and excises are generally treated as embracing the indirect forms of taxation contemplated by the Constitution. As Mr. Chief Justice Fuller said in the Pollock Case, supra:

"Although there have been from time to time intimations that there might be some tax which was not a direct tax nor included under the words 'duties, imposts, and excises,' such a tax for more than one hundred years of national existence has as yet remained undiscovered, notwithstanding the stress of particular circumstances has invited thorough investigation into sources of revenue." [157 U. S. 557.]

And in the same connection the chief justice, delivering the opinion of the court in Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305, in speaking of the words "duties," "imposts," and "excises," said:

"We think that they were used comprehensively, to cover customs and excise duties imposed on importation, consumption, manufacture, and sale of certain commodities, privileges, particular business transactions, vocations, occupations, and the like."

Duties and imposts are terms commonly applied to levies made by governments on the importation or exportation of commodities. Excises are "taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale, or consumption of commodities within the country, upon licenses to pursue certain occupations, and upon corporate privileges." Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. 680.

The tax under consideration, as we have construed the statute, may be described as an excise upon the particular privilege of doing business in a corporate capacity, i. e., with the advantages which arise from corporate or quasi corporate organization; or, when applied to insurance companies, for doing the business of such companies. As was said in the Thomas Case, 192 U. S. supra, the requirement to pay such taxes 152]involves the exercise of *privileges, and the element of absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking. If business is not done in the manner described in the statute, no tax is payable.

If we are correct in holding that this is an excise tax, there is nothing in the Constitution requiring such taxes to be apportioned according to population. Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95; Springer v. United States, 102 U. S. 586, 26 L. ed. 253; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

It is next contended that the attempted taxation is void because it levies a tax upon the exclusive right of a state to grant corporate franchises, because it taxes franchises which are the creation of the state in its sovereign right and authority. This proposition is rested upon the implied limitation upon the powers of national and state governments to take action which encroaches upon or cripples the exercise of the exclusive power of sovereignty in the other. It has been held in a number of cases that the state cannot tax franchises created by the United States or the agencies or corporations which are created for the purpose of carrying out governmental functions of the United States. M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150. 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073.

An examination of these cases will show that in each case where the tax was held invalid, the decision rested upon the proposition that the corporation was created to carry into effect powers conferred upon the Federal government in its sovereign capacity, and the attempted taxation was an interference with the effectual exercise of such powers.

In Osborn v. Bank of United States, supra, a leading case upon the subject, whilst it was held that the bank of the United States was not a private corporation, but a public one, created for national purposes, and 153]therefore beyond the *taxing power of the state, Chief Justice Marshall, in delivering the opinion of the court, conceded that if the corporation had been originated for the management of an individual concern, with private trade and profit for its great end and principal object, it might be taxed by the state. Said the chief justice:

"If these premises [that the corporation was one of private character] were true, the conclusion drawn from them would be inevitable. This mere private corporation, engaged in its own business, with its own views, would certainly be subject to the taxing power of the state, as any individual would be; and the casual circumstance of its being employed by the government in the transaction of its fiscal affairs would no more exempt its private business from the operation of that power than it would exempt the private business of any individual employed in the same manner."

The inquiry in this connection is: How far do the implied limitations upon the taxing power of the United States over objects which would otherwise be legitimate subjects of Federal taxation, withdraw them from the reach of the Federal government in raising revenue, because they are pursued under franchises which are the creation of the states?

In approaching this subject we must remember that enactments levying taxes, as other laws of the federal government when acting within constitutional authority, are the supreme law of the land. The Constitution contains only two limitations on the right of Congress to levy excise taxes: they must be levied for the public welfare, and are required to be uniform throughout the United States. As Mr. Chief Justice Chase said, speaking for the court in License Tax Cases, 5 Wall. 462, 471, 18 L. ed. 497, 500: "Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every *subject and may be exercised[154 at discretion." The limitations to which the chief justice refers were the only ones imposed in the Constitution upon the taxing power.

In McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561, this court sustained a Federal tax on oleomargarine, artificially colored, and held that while the 5th and 10th Amendments qualify, so far as applicable, all the provisions of the Constitution, nothing in those amendents operates to take away the power to tax conferred by the Constitution on the Congress. In that case it was contended that the subject taxed was within the exclusive domain of the states, and that the real purpose of Congress was not to raise revenue, but to tax out of existence a substance not harmful of itself and one which might be lawfully manufactured and sold; but the only constitutional limitation which this court conceded, in addition to the requirement of uniformity, and that for the sake of argument only so far as concerned the case then under consideration, was that Congress is restrained from arbitrary impositions or from exceeding its powers in seeking to effect unwarranted ends. The limitation of uniformity was deemed sufficient by those who framed and adopted the Constitution. The courts may not add others. Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 622, 46 L. ed. 713, 720, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493. And see United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 121, 21 L. ed. 49, 51; Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 515, 43 L. ed. 786, 791, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

We must therefore enter upon the inquiry as to implied limitations upon the exercise of the Federal authority to tax because of the sovereignty of the states over matters within their exclusive jurisdiction, having in view the nature and extent of the power specifically conferred upon Congress by the Constitution of the United States. We must remember, too, that the revenues of the United States must be obtained in the same territory, from the same people, and excise taxes must be collected from the same activities, as are also reached by the states in order to support their local government.

155] *While the tax in this case, as we have construed the statute, is imposed upon the exercise of the privilege of doing business in a corporate capacity, as such business is done under authority of state franchises, it becomes necessary to consider in this connection the right of the Federal government to tax the activities of private corporations which arise from the exercise of franchises granted by the state in creating and conferring powers upon such corporations. We think it is the result of the cases heretofore decided in this court, that such business activities, though exercised because of state- created franchises, are not beyond the taxing power of the United States. Taxes upon rights exercised under grants of state franchises were sustained by this court in Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647; United States v. Erie R. Co. 106 U. S. 327, 27 L. ed. 151, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 223; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

It is true that in those cases the question does not seem to have been directly made, but, in sustaining such taxation, the right of the Federal government to reach such agencies was necessarily involved. The question was raised and decided in the case of Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482. In that well-known case a tax upon the notes of a state bank issued for circulation was sustained. Mr. Chief Justice Chase, in the course of the opinion, said:

"Is it, then, a tax on a franchise granted by a state, which Congress, upon any principle exempting the reserved powers of the states from impairment by taxation, must be held to have no authority to lay and collect?

"We do not say that there may not be such a tax. It may be admitted that the reserved rights of the states, such as the right to pass laws, to give effect to laws through executive action, to administer justice through the courts, and to employ all necessary agencies for legitimate purposes of state government, are not proper subjects of the taxing power of Congress. But 156]it cannot be admitted that *franchises granted by a state are necessarily exempt from taxation; for franchises are property, often very valuable and productive property; and when not conferred for the purpose of giving effect to some reserved power of a state, seem to be as properly objects of taxation as any other property.

"But in the case before us the object of taxation is not the franchise of the bank, but property created, or contracts made and issued under the franchise, or power to issue bank bills. A railroad company, in the exercise of its corporate franchises, issues freight receipts, bills of lading, and passenger tickets; and it cannot be doubted that the organization of railroads is quite as important to the state as the organization of banks. But it will hardly be questioned that these contracts of the company are objects of taxation within the powers of Congress, and not exempted by any relation to the state which granted the charter of the railroad. And it seems difficult to distinguish the taxation of notes issued for circulation from the taxation of these railroad contracts. Both descriptions of contracts are means of profit to the corporations which issue them; and both, as we think, may properly be made contributory to the public revenue." (Pp. 547, 548.)

It is true that the decision in the Veazie Bank Case was also placed, in a measure, upon the authority of the United States to control the circulating medium of the country, but the force of the reasoning which we have quoted has not been denied or departed from.

In Thomas v. United States, 192 U. S. 363, 48 L. ed. 481, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305, a Federal tax on the transfer of corporate shares in state corporations was upheld as a tax upon business transacted in the exercise of privileges afforded by the state laws in respect to corporations.

In Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522, a Federal tax was sustained upon the enjoyment of privileges afforded by a board of trade incorporated by the state of Illinois.

*When the Constitution was framed,[157 the right to lay excise taxes was broadly conferred upon the Congress. At that time very few corporations existed. If the mere fact of state incorporation, extending now to nearly all branches of trade and industry, could withdraw the legitimate objects of Federal taxation from the exercise of the power conferred, the result would be to exclude the national government from many objects upon which indirect taxes could be constitutionally imposed. Let it be supposed that a group of individuals, as partners, were carrying on a business upon which Congress concluded to lay an excise tax. If it be true that the forming of a state corporation would defeat this purpose, by taking the necessary steps required by the state law to create a corporation and carrying on the business under rights granted by a state statute, the Federal tax would become invalid and that source of national revenue be destroyed, except as to the business in the hands of individuals or partnerships. It cannot be supposed that it was intended that it should be within the power of individuals acting under state authority to thus impair and limit the exertion of authority which may be essential to national existence.

In this connection South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737, is important. In that case it was held that the agents of the state government, carrying on the business of selling liquor under state authority, were liable to pay the internal revenue tax imposed by the Federal government. In the opinion previous cases in this court were reviewed, and the rule to be deduced therefrom stated to be that the exemption of state agencies and instrumentalities from national taxation was limited to those of a strictly governmental character, and did not extend to those used by the state in carrying on business of a private character. 199 U. S. 461.

The cases unite in exempting from Federal taxation the means and instrumentalities 158]employed in carrying on the *governmental operations of the state. The exercise of such rights as the establishment of a judiciary, the employment of officers to administer and execute the laws, and similar governmental functions, cannot be taxed by the Federal government. The Collector v. Day (Buffington v. Day) 11 Wall. 113, 20 L. ed. 122; United States v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 17 Wall. 322, 21 L. ed. 597; Ambrisini v. United States, 187 U. S. 1, 47 L. ed. 49, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 699.

But this limitation has never been extended to the exclusion of the activities of a merely private business from the Federal taxing power, although the power to exercise them is derived from an act of incorporation by one of the states. We therefore reach the conclusion that the mere fact that the business taxed is done in pursuance of authority granted by a state in the creation of private corporations does not exempt it from the exercise of Federal authority to levy excise taxes upon such privileges.

But, it is insisted, this taxation is so unequal and arbitrary in the fact that it taxes a business when carried on by a corporation, and exempts a similar business when carried on by a partnership or private individual, as to place it beyond the authority conferred upon Congress. As we have seen, the only limitation upon the authority conferred is uniformity in laying the tax, and uniformity does not require the equal application of the tax to all persons or corporations who may come within its operation, but is limited to geographical uniformity throughout the United States. This subject was fully discussed and set at rest in Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. ed. 969, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747, and we can add nothing to the discussion contained in that case.

In levying excise taxes the most ample authority has been recognized from the beginning to select some and omit other possible subjects of taxation, to select one calling and omit another, to tax one class of property and to forbear to tax another. For examples of such taxation see *cases[159 in the margin, decided in this court, upholding the power.†

Many instances might be given where this court has sustained the right of a state to select subjects of taxation, although as to them the 14th Amendment imposes a limitation upon state legislatures, requiring

†Hylton v. United States, 3 Dall. 171, 1 L. ed. 556 (a tax on carriages which the owner kept for private use); Nicol v. Ames, supra (a tax upon sales or exchanges of boards of trade); Knowlton v. Moore, supra (a tax on the transmission of property from the dead to the living); Treat v. White, 181 U. S. 264, 45 L. ed. 853, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611 (a tax on agreements to sell shares of stock, denominated "calls" by stockbrokers); Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493 (a tax on tobacco manufactured for consumption, and imposed at a period intermediate the commencement of manufacture and the final consumption of the article); Cornell v. Coyne, 192 U. S. 418, 48 L. ed. 504, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383 (a tax on "filled cheese" manufactured expressly for export); McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561 (a tax on oleomargarine not artificially colored, a higher tax on oleomargarine artificially colored, and no tax on butter artificially colored); Thomas v. United States, supra (a tax on sales of shares of stock in corporations); Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95 (a tax upon the amounts insured, renewed, or continued by insurance companies, upon the gross amounts of premiums received and assessments made by them, and also upon dividends, undistributed sums, and incomes); Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482 (a tax of 10 per centum on the amount of the notes paid out of any state bank, or state banking association); Scholey v. Rew, 23 Wall. 331, 23 L. ed. 99 (a tax on devolutions of title to real estate); Spreckels v. Sugar Ref. Co. 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. ed. 496, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376

160]that no person *shall be denied the equal protection of the laws. See some of them noted in the margin.‡

In Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533, dealing with the 14th Amendment, which in this respect imposes limitations only on state authority, this court said:

"The provision in the 14th Amendment, that no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, was not intended to prevent a state from adjusting its system of taxation in all proper and reasonable ways. It may, if it chooses, exempt certain classes of property from any taxation at all, such as churches, libraries, and the property of charitable institutions. It may impose different specific taxes upon different trades and professions, and may vary the rates of excise upon various products; it may tax real estate and personal property in a different manner; it may tax visible property only, and not tax securities for payment of money; it may allow de-161]ductions for indebtedness, or not *allow them. All such regulations, and those of like character, so long as they proceed within reasonable limits and general usage, are within the discretion of the state legislature, or the people of the state in framing their Constitution."

It is insisted in some of the briefs assailing the validity of this tax that these cases have been modified by Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247. In that case a corporation organized in a state other than Alabama came into that state in compliance with its laws, paid the license tax and property tax imposed upon other corporations doing business in the state, and acquired, under direct sanction of the laws of the state, a large amount of property therein, and when it was attempted to subject it to a further tax, on the ground that it was for the privilege of doing business as a foreign corporation, when the same tax was not imposed upon state corporations doing precisely the same business, in the same way, it was held that the attempted taxation was merely arbitrary classification, and void under the 14th Amendment. In that case the foreign corporation was doing business under the sanction of the state laws no less than the local corporation; it had acquired its property under sanction of those laws; it had paid all direct and indirect taxes levied against it, and there was no practical distinction between it and a state corporation doing the same business in the same way.

In the case at bar we have already discussed the limitations which the Constitution imposes upon the right to levy excise taxes, and it could not be said, even if the principles of the 14th Amendment were applicable to the present case, that there is no substantial difference between the carrying on of business by the corporations taxed, and the same business when conducted by a private firm or individual. The thing taxed is not the mere dealing in merchandise, in which the actual transactions may be the same, whether conducted by individuals or corporations, *but the tax[162 is laid upon the privileges which exist in conducting business with the advantages which inhere in the corporate capacity of those taxed, and which are not enjoyed by private firms or individuals. These advantages are obvious, and have led to the formation of such companies in nearly all branches of trade. The continuity of the business, without interruption by death or dissolution, the transfer of property interests by the disposition of shares of stock, the advantages of business controlled and managed by corporate directors, the general absence of individual liability, these and other things inhere in the advantages of business thus conducted, which do not exist when the same business is conducted by private individuals or partnerships. It is this distinctive privilege which is the subject of taxation, not the mere buying or selling or handling of goods, which may be the same, whether done by corporations or individuals.

(a tax on the gross receipts of corporations and companies, in excess of $250,000, engaged in refining sugar or oil); Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647 (a tax laid in terms upon the amounts paid by certain public-service corporations as interest on their funded debt, or as dividends to their stockholders, and also on "all profits, incomes, or gains of such company, and all profits of such company carried to the account of any fund, or used for construction." Held to be a tax upon the company's earnings, and therefore essentially an excise upon the business of the corporations); Springer v. United States, 102 U. S. 586, 26 L. ed. 253 (a duty provided by the internal revenue acts to be assessed, collected, and paid upon gains, profits, and incomes, held to be an excise or duty, and not a direct tax).

‡Beers v. Glynn, 211 U. S. 477, 53 L. ed. 290, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186 (a state tax on personalty of nonresident decedents who owned realty in the state); New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 736 (a state tax on the transfers of stock made within the state); Armour Packing Co. v. Lacy, 200 U. S. 226, 50 L. ed. 451, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232 (a state license tax on meat-packing houses. A foreign corporation selling its products in the state, but whose packing establishments are not situated in the state, is not exempt from such license tax); Savannah, T. & I. of H. R. Co. v. Savannah, 198 U. S. 392, 49 L. ed. 1097, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 690 (a classification which distinguishes between an ordinary street railway and a steam railroad, making an extra charge for local deliveries of freight brought over its road from outside the city, held not to be such a classification as to make the tax void under the 14th Amendment); Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233 (a state tax on cigarette dealers); Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594 (upholding the graded inheritance tax law of Illinois); Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533 (state tax upon the nominal face value of bonds, instead of their actual value, held a valid part of the state system of taxation).

It is further contended that some of the corporations, notably insurance companies, have large investments in municipal bonds and other nontaxable securities, and in real estate and personal property not used in the business; that therefore the selection of the measure of the income from all sources is void, because it reaches property which is not the subject of taxation,—upon the authority of the Pollock Case, supra, But this argument confuses the measure of the tax upon the privilege with direct taxation of the state or thing taxed. In the Pollock Case, as we have seen, the tax was held unconstitutional because it was in effect a direct tax on the property solely because of its ownership.

Nor does the adoption of this measure of the amount of the tax do violence to the rule laid down in Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 52 L. ed. 1031, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638, nor the Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190. In the Galveston Case it was held that a tax imposed by the state of Texas, equal to 1 per cent upon 163]the gross *receipts "from every source whatever" of lines of railroad lying wholly within the state, was invalid as an attempt to tax gross receipts derived from the carriage of passengers and freight in interstate commerce, which in some instances was much the larger part of the gross receipts taxed. This court held that this act was an attempt to burden commerce among the states, and the fact that it was declared to be "equal to" 1 per cent made no difference, as it was merely an effort to reach gross receipts by a tax not even disguised as an occupation tax, and in nowise helped by the words "equal to." In other words, the tax was held void, as its substance and manifest intent was to tax interstate commerce as such.

In the Western Union Telegraph Cases the state undertook to levy a graded charter fee upon the entire capital stock of one hundred millions of dollars of the Western Union Telegraph Company, a foreign corporation, and engaged in commerce among the states, as a condition of doing local business within the state of Kansas. This court held, looking through forms and reaching the substance of the thing, that the tax thus imposed was in reality a tax upon the right to do interstate commerce within the state, and an undertaking to tax property beyond the limits of the state; that whatever the declared purpose, when reasonably interpreted, the necessary operaction and effect of the act in question was to burden interstate commerce and to tax property beyond the jurisdiction of the state, and it was therefore invalid.

There is nothing in these cases contrary, as we shall have occasion to see, to the former rulings of this court which hold that where a tax is lawfully imposed upon the exercise of privileges within the taxing power of the state or nation, the measure of such tax may be the income from the property of the corporation, although a part of such income is derived from property in itself nontaxable. The distinction lies between the attempt to tax the property *as such and to measure a legiti-[164 mate tax upon the privileges involved in the use of such property.

In Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593, a tax was sustained upon the right or privilege of the Home Insurance Company to be a corporation, and to do business within the state in a corporate capacity, the tax being measured by the extent of the dividends of the corporation in the current year upon the capital stock. Although a very large amount, nearly two of three millions of capital stock, was invested in bonds of the United States, expressly exempted from taxation by a statute of the United States, the tax was sustained as a mode of measurement of a privilege tax which it was within the lawful authority of the state to impose. Mr. Justice Field, who delivered the opinion of the court, reviewed the previous cases in this court, holding that the state could not tax or burden the operation of the Constitution and of laws enacted by the Congress to carry into execution the powers vested in the general government. Yielding full assent to those cases, Mr. Justice Field said of the tax then under consideration: "It is not a tax in terms upon the capital stock of the company, nor upon any bonds of the United States composing a part of that stock. The statute designates it a tax upon the 'corporate franchise or business' of the company, and reference is only made to its capital stock and dividends for the purpose of determining the amount of the tax to be exacted each year." In that case, in the course of the opinion, previous cases of this court were cited, with approval. Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. 594, 18 L. ed. 897; Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 611, 18 L. ed. 907.

In the Coite Case a privilege tax upon the total amount of deposits in a savings bank was sustained, although $500,000 of the deposits had been invested in securities of the United States, and declared by act of Congress to be exempt from taxation by state authority. In that case the court said: "Nothing can be more certain in 165]legal *decision than that the privileges and franchises of a private corporation, and all trades and avocations by which the citizens acquire a livelihood, may be taxed by a state for the support of the state government. Authority to that effect resides in the state independent of the Federal government, and is wholly unaffected by the fact that the corporation or individual has or has not made investment in Federal securities." In Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, supra, a like tax was sustained.

It is therefore well settled by the decisions of this court that when the sovereign authority has exercised the right to tax a legitimate subject of taxation as an exercise of a franchise or privilege, it is no objection that the measure of taxation is found in the income produced in part from property which of itself considered is nontaxable. Applying that doctrine to this case, the measure of taxation being the income of the corporation from all sources, as that is but the measure of a privilege tax within the lawful authority of Congress to impose, it is no valid objection that this measure includes, in part, at least, property which, as such, could not be directly taxed. See, in this connection, Maine v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 142 U. S. 217, 35 L. ed. 994, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 807, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, 163, as interpreted in Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Texas, 210 U. S. 217, 226, 52 L. ed. 1031, 1037, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638.

It is contended that measurement of the tax by the net income of the corporation or company received by it from all sources is not only unequal, but so arbitrary and baseless as to fall outside of the authority of the taxing power. But is this so? Conceding the power of Congress to tax the business activities of private corporations, including, as in this case, the privilege of carrying on business in a corporate capacity, the tax must be measured by some standard, and none can be chosen which will operate with absolute justice and equality upon all corporations. Some corporations do a large business upon a small amount of capital; others with a small business may have a large *capital. A tax upon the[166 amount of business done might operate as unequally as a measure of excise as it is alleged the measure of income from all sources does. Nor can it be justly said that investments have no real relation to the business transacted by a corporation. The possession of large assets is a business advantage of great value; it may give credit which will result in more economical business methods; it may give a standing which shall facilitate purchases; it may enable the corporation to enlarge the field of its activities and in many ways give it business standing and prestige.

It is true that in the Spreckels Case, 192 U. S. supra, the excise tax, for the privilege of doing business, was based upon the business assets in use by the company, but this was because of the express terms of the statute which thus limited the measure of the excise. The statute now under consideration bears internal evidence that its draftsman had in mind language used in the opinion in the Spreckels Case, and the measure of taxation, the income from all sources, was doubtless inserted to prevent the limitation of the measurement of the tax to the income from business assets alone. There is no rule which permits a court to say that the measure of a tax for the privilege of doing business, where income from property is the basis, must be limited to that derived from property which may be strictly said to be actively used in the business. Departures from that rule, sustained in this court, are not wanting. In United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 21 L. ed. 49, an excise tax was sustained upon the liquor business, which was fixed by the payment of an amount not less than 80 per cent of the total capacity of the distillery. Whether such capacity was used in the business was a matter of indifference, and this court said of such a measure:

"Everyone is advised in advance of the amount he will be required to pay if he enters into the business of distilling spirits, and every distiller must know the producing *capacity of his distillery. If he[167 fail under these circumstances to produce the amount for which, by the law, he will in any event be taxed if he undertakes to distill at all, he is not entitled to much consideration."

In Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wall. supra, and Provident Inst. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. supra, as we have seen, the amount of excise was measured by the amount of bank deposits. It made no difference that the deposits were not used actively in the business.

In Hamilton Mfg. Co. v. Massachusetts, 6 Wall. 632, 18 L. ed. 904, the tax was measured by the excess of the market value of the corporation's capital stock above the value of its real estate and machinery, and in this connection see Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. supra, where the excise was computed upon the entire capital stock, measured by the extent of the dividends thereon.

We must not forget that the right to select the measure and objects of taxation devolves upon the Congress, and not upon the courts, and such selections are valid unless constitutional limitations are overstepped. "It is no part of the function of a court to inquire into the reasonableness of the excise, either as respects the amount or the property upon which it is imposed." Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 58, 49 L. ed. 78, 96, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561, and previous cases in this court there cited.

Nor is that line of cases applicable, such as Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678, holding that a tax on the sales of an importer is a tax on the import, and Cook v. Pennsylvania, 97 U. S. 566, 24 L. ed. 1015, holding a tax on auctioneers' sales of goods in original packages a tax on imports. In these cases the tax was held invalid, as the state thereby taxed subjects of taxation within the exclusive power of Congress.

What we have said as to the power of Congress to lay this excise tax disposes of the contention that the act is void, as lacking in due process of law.

168] *It is urged that this power can be so exercised by Congress as to practically destroy the right of the states to create corporations, and for that reason it ought not to be sustained, and reference is made to the declaration of Chief Justice Marshall in M'Culloch v. Maryland, that the power to tax involves the power to destroy. This argument has not been infrequently addressed to this court with respect to the exercise of the powers of Congress. Of such contention this court said in Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 60, 44 L. ed. 977, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755:

"This principle is pertinent only when there is no power to tax a particular subject, and has no relation to a case where such right exists. In other words, the power to destroy, which may be the consequence of taxation, is a reason why the right to tax should be confined to subjects which may be lawfully embraced therein, even although it happens that in some particular instance no great harm may be caused by the exercise of the taxing authority as to a subject which is beyond its scope. But this reasoning has no application to a lawful tax, for if it had, there would be an end of all taxation; that is to say, if a lawful tax can be defeated because the power which is manifested by its imposition may, when further exercised, be destructive, it would follow that every lawful tax would become unlawful, and therefore no taxation whatever could be levied."

In Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482, supra, speaking for the court, the chief justice said:

"It is insisted, however, that the tax in the case before us is excessive, and so excessive as to indicate a purpose on the part of Congress to destroy the franchise of the bank, and is therefore beyond the constitutional power of Congress.

"The first answer to this is that the judicial cannot prescribe to the legislative departments of the government limitations upon the exercise of its acknowledged powers. The power to tax may be exercised oppressively upon persons, *but the re-[169 sponsibility of the legislature is not to the courts, but to the people by whom its members are elected. So, if a particular tax bears heavily upon a corporation, or a class of corporations, it cannot, for that reason only, be pronounced contrary to the Constitution."

So the same effect; McCray v. United States, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. ed. 78, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 769, 1 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 561. In the latter case it was said:

"No instance is afforded from the foundation of the government where an act which was within a power conferred was declared to be repugnant to the Constitution because it appeared to the judicial mind that the particular exertion of constitutional power was either unwise or unjust."

And in the same case this court said, after reviewing the previous cases in this court:

"Since, as pointed out in all the decisions referred to, the taxing power conferred by the Constitution knows no limits except those expressly stated in that instrument, it must follow, if a tax be within the lawful power, the exertion of that power may not be judicially restrained because of the results to arise from its exercise."

The argument, at last, comes to this: That because of possible results, a power lawfully exercised may work disastrously, therefore the courts must interfere to prevent its exercise, because of the consequences feared. No such authority has ever been invested in any court. The remedy for such wrongs, if such in fact exist, is in the ability of the people to choose their own representatives, and not in the exertion of unwarranted powers by courts of justice.

It is especially objected that certain of the corporations whose stockholders challenge the validity of the tax are so-called real estate companies, whose business is principally the holding and management of real estate. These cases are No. 415, Cedar Street Company v. Park Realty Company; No. 431, Percy H. Brundage v. Broadway 170]Realty *Company; No. 443, Phillips v. Fifty Associates et al.; No. 446, Mitchell v. Clark Iron Company; No. 412, William H. Miner v. Corn Exchange Bank et al.; and No. 457, Cook et al. v. Boston Wharf Company.

In No. 412, Miner v. Corn Exchange Bank et al., the bank occupies a building in part and rents a large part to tenants.

Of the realty companies, the Park Realty Company was organized to "work, develop, sell, convey, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of real estate; to lease, exchange, hire, or otherwise acquire property; to erect, alter, or improve buildings; to conduct, operate, manage, or lease hotels, apartment houses, etc.; to make and carry out contracts in the manner specified concerning buildings . . . and generally to deal in, sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise deal with lands, buildings, and other property, real or personal," etc.

At the time the bill was filed the business of the company related to the Hotel Leonori, and the bill averred that it was engaged in no other business except the management and leasing of that hotel.

The Broadway Realty Company was formed for the purpose of owning, holding, and managing real estate. It owns an office building and certain securities. The office building is let to tenants, to whom light and heat are furnished, and for whom janitor and similar service are performed.

The Fifty Associates are operating under a charter to own real estate, with power to build, improve, alter, pull down, and rebuild, and to manage, exchange and dispose of the same.

The Clark Iron Company was organized under the laws of Minnesota, owns and leases ore lands for the purpose of carrying on mining operations, and receives a royalty depending upon the quantity of ore mined.

The Boston Wharf Company is operating under a *charter authorizing it to ac-[171 quire lands and flats, with their privileges and appurtenances, and to lease, manage, and improve its property in whatever manner shall be deemed expedient by it, and to receive dockage and wharfage for vessels laid at its wharfs.

What we have said as to the character of the corporation tax as an excise disposes of the contention that it is direct, and therefore requiring apportionment by the Constitution. It remains to consider whether these corporations are engaged in business. "Business" is a very comprehensive term and embraces everything about which a person can be employed. Black's Law Dict. 158, citing People ex rel. Hoyt v. Tax Comrs. 23 N. Y. 242, 244. "That which occupies the time, attention, and labor of men for the purpose of a livelihood or profit." 1 Bouvier's Law Dict. p. 273.

We think it is clear that corporations organized for the purpose of doing business, and actually engaged in such activities as leasing property, collecting rents, managing office buildings, making investments of profits, or leasing ore lands and collecting royalties, managing wharves, dividing profits, and in some cases investing the surplus, are engaged in business within the meaning of this statute, and in the capacity necessary to make such organizations subject to the law.

Of the Motor Taximeter Cab Company Case, No. 432, the company owns and leases taxicabs, and collects rents therefrom. We think it is also doing business within the meaning of the statute.

What we have already said disposes of the objections made in certain cases of life insurance and trust companies, and banks, as to income derived from United States, state, municipal, or other nontaxable bonds.

We come to the question, Is a so-called public-service corporation, such as the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company, in case No. 409, and the Interborough *Rapid Transit Company. No. 442,[172 exempted from the operation of this statute? In the case of South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. ed. 261, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 737, this court held that when a state, acting within its lawful authority, undertook to carry on the liquor business, it did not withdraw the agencies of the state, carrying on the traffic, from the operation of the internal revenue laws of the United States. If a state may not thus withdraw from the operation of a Federal taxing law a subject-matter of such taxation, it is difficult to see how the incorporation of companies whose service, though of a public nature, is, nevertheless, with a view to private profit, can have the effect of denying the Federal right to reach such properties and activities for the purposes of revenue.

It is no part of the essential governmental functions of a state to provide means of transportation, supply artificial light, water, and the like. These objects are often accomplished through the medium of private corporations, and though the public may derive a benefit from such operations, the companies carrying on such enterprises are nevertheless private companies, whose business is prosecuted for private emolument and advantage. For the purpose of taxation they stand upon the same footing as other private corporations upon which special franchises have been conferred.

The true distinction is between the attempted taxation of those operations of the states essential to the execution of its governmental functions, and which the state can only do itself, and those activities which are of a private character. The former, the United States may not interfere with by taxing the agencies of the state in carrying out its purposes; the latter, although regulated by the state, and exercising delegated authority, such as the right of eminent domain, are not removed from the field of legitimate Federal taxation.

Applying this principle, we are of opin-
173]ion that the so-called *public-service corporations represented in the cases at bar are not exempt from the tax in question. Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 33, 21 L. ed. 787, 792.

It is again objected that incomes under $5,000 are exempted from the tax. It is only necessary, in this connection, to refer to Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. supra, in which a tax upon inheritances in excess of $10,000 was sustained. In Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 293, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1042, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594, a graded inheritance tax was sustained.

As to the objections that certain organizations,—labor, agricultural, and horticultural,—fraternal and benevolent societies, loan and building associations, and those for religious, charitable, or educational purposes, are excepted from the operation of the law, we find nothing in them to invalidate the tax. As we have had frequent occasion to say, the decisions of this court from an early date to the present time have emphasized the right of Congress to select the objects of excise taxation, and within this power to tax some and leave others untaxed must be included the right to make exemptions such as are found in this act.

Again, it is urged that Congress exceeded its power in permitting a deduction to be made of interest payments only in case of interest paid by banks and trust companies on deposits, and interest actually paid within the year on its bonded or other indebtedness to an amount of such bonded and other indebtedness not exceeding the paid-up capital stock of the corporation or company. This provision may have been inserted with a view to prevent corporations from issuing a large amount of bonds in excess of the paid-up capital stock, and thereby distributing profits so as to avoid the tax. In any event, we see no reason why this method of ascertaining the deductions allowed should invalidate the act. Such details are not wholly arbitrary, and were deemed essential to practical operation. Courts cannot substitute their judgment *for[174 that of the legislature. In such matters a wide range of discretion is allowed.

The argument that different corporations are so differently circumstanced in different states, and the operation of the law so unequal as to destroy it, is so fully met in the opinion in Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. supra, that it is only necessary to make reference thereto. For this purpose the law operates uniformly, geographically considered, throughout the United States, and in the same way wherever the subject-matter is found. A liquor tax is not rendered unlawful as a revenue measure because it may yield nothing in those states which have prohibited the liquor traffic. No more is the present law unconstitutional because of inequality of operation owing to different local conditions.

Nor is the special objection tenable, made in some of the cases, that the corporations act as trustees, guardians, etc., under the authority of the laws or courts of the state. Such trustees are not the agents of the state government in a sense which exempts them from taxation because executing the necessary governmental powers of the state. The trustees receive their compensation from the interests served, and not from the public revenues of the state.

It is urged in a number of the cases that in a certain feature of the statute there is a violation of the 4th Amendment of the Constitution, protecting against unreasonable searches and seizures. This amendment was adopted to protect against abuses in judicial procedure under the guise of law, which invade the privacy of persons in their homes, papers, and effects, and applies to criminal prosecutions and suits for penalties and forfeitures under the revenue laws. Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S.

632, 29 L. ed. 751, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524. It does not prevent the issue of search warrants for the seizure of gambling paraphernalia and other illegal matter. Adams v. New York, 192 U. S. 585, 48 L. ed. 575, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 372. It does not prevent the issuing of process to require attend-175]ance *and testimony of witnesses, the production of books and papers, etc. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Brimson, 154 U. S. 447, 38 L. ed. 1047, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 545, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1125; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 48 L. ed. 860, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563. Certainly the amendment was not intended to prevent the ordinary procedure in use in many, perhaps most, of the states, of requiring tax returns to be made, often under oath. The objection in this connection applies, when the substance of the argument is reached, to the 6th subsection of § 38 of the act, which provides:

"Sixth. When the assessment shall be made, as provided in this section, the returns, together with any corrections thereof which may have been made by the commissioner, shall be filed in the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and shall constitute public records, and be open to inspection as such." [36 Stat. at L. 116, chap. 6, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 849.]

An amendment was made June 17, 1910, which reads as follows:

"For classifying, indexing, exhibiting, and properly caring for the returns of all corporations, required by section thirty-eight of an act entitled, 'An Act to Provide Revenue, Equalize Duties, Encourage the Industries of the United States, and for Other Purposes,' approved August fifth, nineteen hundred and nine, including the employment in the District of Columbia of such clerical and other personal services and for rent of such quarters as may be necessary, twenty-five thousand dollars: Provided, That any and all such returns shall be open to inspection only upon the order of the President, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury and approved by the President." [36 Stat. at L. 494, chap. 297.]

The contention is that the above section as originally framed and as now amended could have no legitimate connection with the collection of the tax, and in substance amounts to no more than an unlawful attempt to exhibit the private affairs of corporations to public or private inspection, without any substantial connection with or 176]*legitimate purpose to be subserved in the collection of the tax under the act now under consideration. But we cannot agree to this contention. The taxation being, as we have held, within the legitimate powers of Congress, it is for that body to determine what means are appropriate and adapted to the purposes of making the law effectual. In this connection the often-quoted declaration of Chief Justice Marshall in M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 421, 4 L. ed. 579, 605, is appropriate: "Let the end be legitimate, let it be within the scope of the Constitution, and all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adapted to that end, which are not prohibited, but consist with the letter and spirit of the Constitution, are constitutional."

Congress may have deemed the public inspection of such returns a means of more properly securing the fullness and accuracy thereof. In many of the states laws are to be found making tax returns public documents, and open to inspection.†

*We cannot say that this feature of[177 the law does violence to the constitutional protection of the 4th Amendment, and, this is equally true of the 5th Amendment, protecting persons against compulsory self-incriminating testimony. No question under the latter Amendment properly arises in these cases, and when circumstances are presented which invoke the protection of that Amendment, and raise questions involving rights thereby secured, it will be time enough to decide them. And so of the argument that the penalties for the nonpayment of the taxes are so high as to violate the Constitution. No case is presented involving that question, and, moreover, the penalties are clearly a separate part of the act, and whether collectible or not may be determined in a case involving an attempt to enforce them. Willcox v. Consolidated Gas Co. 212 U. S. 19, 53, 53 L. ed. 382, 400, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1034.

†In Connecticut, the requirement is that the tax lists of the assessors shall be abstracted and lodged in the town clerk's office "for public inspection." Rev. Stat. (Conn.) § 2310. In New York, notices of the completion of the assessment rolls must be conspicuously posted in three or more public places, and a copy left in a specified place, "where it may be seen and examined by any person until the third Tuesday of August next following." Consol. Laws of N. Y. vol. 5, p. 5859; N. Y. Laws 1909, chap. 62, § 36. In Maryland, a record of property assessed is required to be kept, and the valuation thereof, with alphabetical list of owners, recorded in a book, "which any person may inspect without fee or reward." Pub. Laws (Md.) vol. 2, p. 1804, § 23. In Pennsylvania, it is provided that from the time of publishing the assessor's returns until the day appointed for finally determining whether the assessor's valuations are too low, "any taxable inhabitant of the county shall have the right to examine the said return in the commissioner's office." Pepper & L. Dig. Laws (Pa.) vol. 2, p. 4591, § 357. In New Hampshire, the list of taxes assessed are required to be kept in a book, and also left with the town clerk, and such records "shall be open to the inspection of all persons." Pub. Stat. (N. H.) 1901, p. 214, § 5.

It has been suggested that there is a lack of power to tax foreign corporations, doing local business in a state, in the manner proposed in this act, and that the tax upon such corporations, being unconstitutional, works such inequality against domestic corporations as to invalidate the law. It is sufficient to say of this that no such case is presented in the record. Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 525, 54 L. ed. 868, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594. This is equally true as to the alleged invalidity of the act as a tax on exports, which is beyond the power of Congress. No such case is presented in those now before the court.

We have noticed such objections as are made to the constitutionality of this law as it is deemed necessary to consider. Finding the statute to be within the constitutional power of the Congress, it follows that the judgments in the several cases must be affirmed.

Affirmed.

AMORY ELIOT, Appt.,
v.
178] *JAMES G. FREEMAN, Robert A. Boit, Nathanael Thayer, and Robert H. Gardner. (No. 448.)

MAINE BAPTIST MISSIONARY CONVENTION, Appt.,
v.
CHARLES E. COTTING and Charles F. Adams, 2d, Trustees, etc. (No. 496.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 178–187.)

Internal revenue — Federal corporation tax — applicability to real estate trusts.

Real estate trusts created by deed for the purchasing, improving, holding, or selling lands and buildings for the benefit of the shareholders, which do not derive any benefit from, and are not organized under, any statute of the state, and which, by their terms, end with lives in being and twenty years thereafter, are not subject to the excise imposed by the act of August 5, 1909 (36 Stat. at L. 11, 112–117, chap. 6, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 659, 844–849), § 38, upon the doing of business by corporations, joint stock companies, or associations "now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States or of any state or territory."

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 448 and 496.]

Argued January 19, 1911. Decided March 13, 1911.

TWO APPEALS from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts to review decrees sustaining demurrers to and dismissing bills filed by cestuis que trust to enjoin the trustees from compliance with the Federal corporation tax. Reversed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Moorfield Storey argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Richard W. Hale and Frank W. Grinnell, filed a brief for appellant in No. 448:

The respondents are not carrying on or doing business.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; Smith v. Anderson, L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 276, 50 L. J. Ch. N. S. 39, 43 L. T. N. S. 329, 29 Week. Rep. 21.

There is no joint stock company or association.

Smith v. Anderson, supra.

The trust was not organized for profit. Reg. v. Whitmarsh, 15 Q. B. 618; Bear v. Bromley, 18 Q. B. 276, 21 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 354, 16 Jur. 450, 7 Eng. R. & C. Cas. 507; Moore v. Rawlins, 6 C. B. N. S. 315, 28 L. J. C. P. N. S. 247, 5 Jur. N. S. 941; Smith v. Anderson, L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 273, 50 L. J. Ch. N. S. 39, 43 L. T. N. S. 329, 29 Week. Rep. 21.

The defendants have not a capital stock represented by shares within the meaning of the act.

28 Ops. Atty. Gen. p. 194, Feb. 14th 1910; Mayo v. Moritz, 151 Mass. 481, 24 N. E. 1083; Howe v. Morse, 174 Mass. 502, 55 N. E. 213; Phillips v. Blatchford, 137 Mass. 510; Gleason v. McKay, 134 Mass. 419; Opinion of Justices, 196 Mass. 603, 85 N. E. 545.

The defendants are not organized under the laws of Massachusetts. The unwritten law is never correctly spoken of in the plural.

Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. 1, 18, 10 L. ed. 865, 871; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baugh, 149 U. S. 369, 371, 37 L. ed. 772, 774, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 914.

The expression, "organized under the laws of," plainly refers to an organization under some statute law authorizing such organization. There have been such statutes in New York and other places, as appears in Taft v. Ward, 106 Mass. 522, and the act undoubtedly refers to companies organized under laws of that kind.

Edwards v. Warren Linoline & Gasoline Works, 168 Mass. 564, 38 L.R.A. 791, 47 N. E. 502; Oliver v. Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. 100 Mass. 531, 10 Wall. 566, 19 L. ed. 1029; People ex rel. Platt v. Wemple, 117 N. Y. 136, 6 L.R.A. 303, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 735, 22 N. E. 1046; Gregg v. Sanford, 12 C. C. A. 525, 28 U. S. App. 313, 65 Fed. 151.

Where the construction of a tax is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.

Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 51 C. C. A. 201, 113 Fed. 247, 192 U. S. 397, 416, 48 L. ed. 496, 503, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

A statute will not be construed so as to violate the Constitution, unless its language imperatively demands it.

Knights Templars' & M. Life Indemnity Co. v. Jarman, 187 U. S. 197, 205, 47 L. ed. 139, 145, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108; United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 407, 53 L. ed. 836, 848, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527.

This court has decided that a tax on the income is a tax on the land, and therefore a direct tax, which must be levied according to the rule of apportionment.

Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. ed. 759, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 601, 39 L. ed. 1108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912; Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U. S. 82, 44 L. ed. 986, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747.

But even if the tax is treated as an excise tax, it cannot be sustained.

United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 121, 21 L. ed. 49, 51; Roup's Case, 81 *Pa. 211; Cooley, Const. Lim. pp. 695, 697; People ex rel. Detroit & H. R. Co. v. Salem, 20 Mich. 473, 4 Am. Rep. 400; Portland Bank v. Apthorp, 12 Mass. 258; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 417, 54 L. ed. 536, 541, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1247; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 155, 165, 41 L. ed. 666, 668, 671, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Westby, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 102 C. C. A. 65, 178 Fed. 624.

Mr. Burton E. Eames argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Charles H. Tyler, Owen D. Young, and Clement F. Robinson, filed a brief for appellant in No. 496:

All tax laws should be construed strictly.

Sutherland Stat. Const. 2d ed. §§ 536, 537; Cooley, Taxn. pp. 453 et seq.; United States v. Wigglesworth, 2 Story, 369, Fed. Cas. No. 16,690; Benziger v. United States, 192 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 331, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 189; Sewall v. Jones, 9 Pick. 412; Spreckles Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain, 192 U. S. 397, 416, 48 L. ed. 496, 503, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

The department store trust is not "organized under the laws." The word "laws" should be held to include only statute laws, and not the general body of the common law.

Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 99 N. Y. 185, 1 N. E. 663; State ex rel. Clapp v. Sioux City & N. R. Co. 43 Minn. 17, 44 N. W. 1032.

The natural meaning of the word "organized" connotes an idea of creating an entity, if it does not connote actual incorporation.

Dodge v. Williams, 46 Wis. 70, 1 N. W. 92, 50 N. W. 1103.

It seems to be an unusual use of a term, to call the department store trust "organized." A corporation is "organized." A trust is "made," "declared," "created," or "entered into," but hardly "organized."

Hinds v. Marmolejo, 60 Cal. 231; Daggs v. Phœnix Nat. Bank, 5 Ariz. 409, 53 Pac. 201; Lindsay & P. Co. v. Mullen, 176 U. S. 126, 44 L. ed. 400, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 325.

If we take the expression "joint stock company or association organized under the laws" to mean a joint stock company or association organized under and by virtue of certain statutes and deriving certain special privileges therefrom, we describe a form of organization which has a real existence in this country, and is radically different from the department store trust.

Lyon v. Denison, 80 Mich. 371, 8 L.R.A. 358, 45 N. W. 358; Hussey v. Arnold, 185 Mass. 202, 70 N. E. 87; Atty. Gen. v. Mercantile M. Ins. Co. 121 Mass. 524; Cook, Corp. § 505; Andrews Bros. Co. v. Youngstown Coke Co. 30 C. C. A. 293, 58 U. S. App. 444, 86 Fed. 585.

There is no intermediate form in Massachusetts between a corporation and a partnership, although a joint stock company may exist under the common law of that state solely as a partnership.

Phillips v. Blatchford, 137 Mass. 510; Ricker v. American Loan & T. Co. 140 Mass. 346, 5 N. E. 284.

In court proceedings these organizations are generally treated as corporations in so far that, by virtue of the statutes, actions may be brought by or against them in their association names.

Oak Ridge Coal Co. v. Rogers, 108 Pa. 147; Westcott v. Fargo, 61 N. Y. 542, 19

Am. Rep. 300; Saltsman v. Shults, 14 Hun, 256; Van Aernam v. Bleistein, 102 N. Y. 355, 7 N. E. 537; Hibbs v. Brown, 112 App. Div. 214, 98 N. Y. Supp. 353, 190 N. Y. 167, 82 N. E. 1108; Platt v. Colvin, 50 Ohio St. 703, 36 N. E. 735; Adams Exp. Co. v. State, 55 Ohio St. 69, 44 N. E. 506; Edgeworth v. Wood, 58 N. J. L. 463, 33 Atl. 940; Boatner v. American Exp. Co. 122 Fed. 714; Adams Exp. Co. v. Schofield, 111 Ky. 832, 64 S. W. 903.

In the Federal courts formerly these organizations were treated jurisdictionally as corporations (Andrews Bros. Co. v. Youngstown Coke Co. 30 C. C. A. 293, 58 U. S. App. 444, 86 Fed. 585); but since the case of Great Southern Fire Proof Hotel Co. v. Jones, 177 U. S. 449, 44 L. ed. 842, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 690, the contrary has been held.

See also Saunders v. Adams Exp. Co. 136 Fed. 494; Fred Macey Co. v. Macey, 68 C. C. A. 363, 135 Fed. 725; Taylor v. Weir, 96 C. C. A. 438, 171 Fed. 636; Chapman v. Barney, 129 U. S. 677, 32 L. ed. 800, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 426.

In Massachusetts the courts have never allowed the joint stock companies of other states to be treated as entities in court proceedings.

Taft v. Ward, 106 Mass. 518; Bodwell v. Eastman, 106 Mass. 525; Gott v. Dinsmore, 111 Mass. 45; Boston & A. R. Co. v. Pearson, 128 Mass. 445; Edwards v. Warren Linoline & Gasoline Works, 168 Mass. 564, 38 L.R.A. 791, 47 N. E. 502.

In the case of statutory joint stock companies, the law sometimes permits title to be taken in the name of the association, which may even have a seal for use on deeds of the property.

Eliot v. Himrod, 108 Pa. 569; Briar Hill Coal & I. Co. v. Atlas Works, 146 Pa. 290, 23 Atl. 326; Kountz's Appeal, 204 Pa. 432, 54 Atl. 316.

A member of a Pennsylvania joint stock company (like the stockholder of a corporation) would not be liable individually for the torts of the managers of the association, unless he should personally participate.

Whitney v. Backus, 149 Pa. 29, 24 Atl. 51; Hill v. Stetler, 127 Pa. 162, 13 Atl. 306, 17 Atl. 887.

An express company organized under the laws of New York as a joint stock company is sufficiently a corporation to sustain an indictment for the embezzlement of its funds as of the funds of a "corporation."

Kossakowski v. People, 177 Ill. 563, 53 N. E. 115.

Under the decisions of New York and Pennsylvania, in order to include these statutory joint stock companies and associations with corporations in a tax act, they must be mentioned in terms.

Hoey v. Coleman, 46 Fed. 221; People ex rel. Winchester v. Coleman, 133 N. Y. 279, 16 L.R.A. 183, 31 N. E. 96; People ex rel. Platt v. Wemple, 117 N. Y. 136, 6 L.R.A. 303, 2 Interns. Com. Rep. 735, 22 N. E. 1046; Sanford v. Gregg, 58 Fed. 620, 12 C. C. A. 525, 28 U. S. App. 313, 65 Fed. 151.

No tax is laid upon these trusts in Massachusetts, except the ordinary tax upon the property. This property is taxed to the trustees, like the property of any other trust. The beneficiaries have a purely equitable interest in the property, and no tax is laid upon their interest.

Hussey v. Arnold, 185 Mass. 202, 70 N. E. 87; Kinney v. Treasurer & Receiver General, 207 Mass. 368, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 93 N. E. 586.

It is to be noted, however, that, in one case originating in Massachusetts, statutory joint stock companies were treated as corporations for the purpose of taxation.

Oliver v. Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. 100 Mass. 531, 10 Wall. 566, 19 L. ed. 1029.

Perhaps the most important statutory privilege given in certain states to the statutory joint stock company is the privilege of limited liability.

Oak Ridge Coal Co. v. Rogers, 108 Pa. 147; Stevens v. Philadelphia Ball Club, 142 Pa. 52, 11 L.R.A. 860, 21 Atl. 797; Staver & A. Mfg. Co. v. Blake, 111 Mich. 282, 38 L.R.A. 798, 69 N. W. 508.

Statutory joint stock companies possess other privileges which are unlike anything of which the department store trust can avail itself.

Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Vaughan, 115 Mich. 156, 73 N. W. 143; Rhoades v. Malta Vita Pure Food Co. 149 Mich. 236, 112 N. W. 940; Pittsburg Melting Co. v. Reese, 118 Pa. 355, 12 Atl. 362; Walker v. Keystone Brewing Co. 131 Pa. 546, 20 Atl. 309; Mercantile Nat. Bank v. Lauth, 143 Pa. 53, 21 Atl. 1017; Andrews Bros. Co. v. Youngstown Coke Co. 39 Fed. 353; Dickinson v. Matheson Motor Car Co. 161 Fed. 874; Park Bro. & Co. v. Harwi, 2 Kan. App. 629, 42 Pac. 939.

This trust has no capital stock represented by shares.

Hussey v. Arnold, 185 Mass. 202, 70 N. E. 87; Linnell v. Leon, 206 Mass. 71, 91 N. E. 895; Kinney v. Treasurer & Receiver General, 207 Mass. 368, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 93 N. E. 586.

This trust is not carrying on or doing business.

People ex rel. Parker Mills v. Tax Comrs.

23 N. Y. 242; Re Alabama & C. R. Co. 9 Blatchf. 390, Fed. Cas. No. 124.

Solicitor General Lehman argued the cause, and, with Mr. Henry E. Colton, filed a brief for the United States:

The common law is, just as much as the statutes, a part of the laws of a state; and the statutes are often nothing more than declarations of the common law.

Van Ness v. Hyatt, 13 Pet. 294, 298, 10 L. ed. 168, 170; Morsell v. First Nat. Bank, 91 U. S. 357, 359, 23 L. ed. 436, 437; Bucher v. Cheshire R. Co. 125 U. S. 555, 583, 584, 31 L. ed. 795, 798, 799, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 974; Phelps v. The City of Panama, 1 Wash. Terr. 523; Lycoming F. Ins. Co. v. Wright, 60 Vt. 517, 12 Atl. 103.

The Cushing Real Estate Trust and the department store trust are common-law joint stock companies.

Kossakowski v. People, 177 Ill. 568, 53 N. E. 115; 1 Bates, Partn. § 72, pp. 88, 89; Taber v. Breck, 192 Mass. 361, 78 N. E. 472; Howe v. Morse, 174 Mass. 499, 55 N. E. 213; 2 Cook, Corp. 6th ed. § 504, p. 1357.

Joint stock companies are frequently, if not usually, formed under deeds of settlement and declarations of trust.

Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Massachusetts (Liverpool & L. Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Oliver) 10 Wall. 566, 568, 19 L. ed. 1029, 1030; Taber v. Breck, 192 Mass. 361, 78 N. E. 472.

The claim that these companies have no capital stock is absolutely without merit.

Howe v. Morris, 174 Mass. 496, 55 N. E. 213.

The property of a company organized for the purpose of pursuing many activities may not improperly be said to be devoted to those activities, though from time to time some of those activities are not pursued.

People ex rel. Wall & H. Street Realty Co. v. Miller, 181 N. Y. 334, 73 N. E. 1102.

The maintenance and operation of an office building is the carrying on of a business.

People ex rel. Wall & H. Street Realty Co. v. Miller, 181 N. Y. 336, 73 N. E. 1102.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

These cases present facts differing from 184]those involved *in the consideration of the corporation tax cases, just decided. Flint v. Stone Tracy Co. [220 U. S. 107, ante, 389, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 342.]

In No. 448, the question is raised as to the right to lay a tax under this statute upon a certain trust formed for the purpose of purchasing, improving, holding, and selling lands and buildings in Boston, known as the Cushing Real Estate Trust. By the terms of the trust, the property was conveyed to certain trustees, who executed a trust agreement whereby the management of the property was vested in the trustees, who had absolute control and authority over the same, with right to sell for cash or credit, at public or private sale, and with full power to manage the property as they deemed best for the interest of the shareholders. The shareholders are to be paid dividends from time to time from the net income or net proceeds of the property, and twenty years after the termination of lives in being, the property to be sold, and the proceeds of the sale to be divided among the parties interested. The trustees were to issue 4,800 shares to the owners of the property, at $100 each, the owners to receive a number of shares equal to the value of the interest conveyed to the trustees. The shares were transferable on the books of the trustees, and on surrender of the certificate, and the transfer thereof in writing, a new certificate is to issue to the transferee. No shareholder had any legal title or interest in the property, and no right to call for the partition thereof during the continuance of the trust. The legal representatives of a shareholder are to succeed to the interest of a shareholder, the interest passing by operation of law. Provision is made for the termination of the trust by an instrument or instruments in writing, signed by not less than three fourths of the value of stock held by shareholders. Meetings of the shareholders are held at their discretion, or whenever requested in writing by five shareholders, or by shareholders owning not less than one tenth of the shares in value.

*The trust has a building, leasing it[185 to a single tenant. It also maintains and operates an office building with elevator service, janitor service, etc.

Case No. 496 involves what is known as a department store trust. It was created by deed, and formed for the purpose of purchasing and holding certain parcels of land in the city of Boston, and erecting a building thereon suitable for a department store. The land and buildings are leased to one tenant for a period of thirty years. The trust had transferable certificates issued to shareholders at the par value of $100 each. The trustees conduct the affairs of the trust, manage the property, and pay dividends when declared. The shareholders meet annually, and a majority of them have the power to elect and depose trustees, and to alter and amend the terms of the trust agreement. This trust also continues for certain lives in being and for twenty years thereafter. Each of the trusts involved in these cases is in receipt of a net income exceeding $5,000.

Under the terms of the corporation tax act, corporations and joint stock associations must be such as are "now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory of the United States, or under the acts of Congress applicable to Alaska or the District of Columbia."

The pertinent question in this connection is: Are these trusts organized under the laws of the state? As we have construed the corporation tax act in the previous cases (Flint v. Stone Tracy Co. ante, 389), the tax is imposed upon doing business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity; that is, with the facility or advantage of corporate organization.

It was the purpose of the act to treat corporations and joint stock companies, similarly organized, in the same way, and assess them upon the facility in doing business which is substantially the same in 186]both forms of organization. *Joint stock organizations are not infrequently organized under the statute laws of a state, deriving therefrom, in a large measure, the characteristics of a corporation.

The language of the act ". . . now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States," etc., imports an organization deriving power from statutory enactment. The statute does not say under the law of the United States, or a state, or lawful in the United States or in any state, but is made applicable to such as are organized under the laws of the United States, etc. The description of the corporation or joint stock association as one organized under the laws of a state at once suggests that they are such as are the creation of statutory law, from which they derive their powers and are qualified to carry on their operations.

A trust of the character of those here involved can hardly be said to be organized, within the ordinary meaning of that term; it certainly is not organized under statutory laws as corporations are. The difference between joint stock associations at common law and those organized under statutes is well recognized (2 Cook, Corp. § 505):

"There is an essential difference between a joint stock company as it exists at common law and a joint stock company having extensive statutory powers conferred upon it by the state within which it is organized. The latter kind of joint stock companies is found in England and in the state of New York. To such an extent have these statutory powers been conferred on joint stock companies that the only substantial difference between them and corporations is that the members are not exempt from liability as partners for the debts of the company."

The two cases now under consideration embrace trusts which do not derive any benefit from and are not organized *under[187 the statutory laws of Massachusetts. Joint Stock companies of the statutory character are not known to the laws of that commonwealth. Ricker v. American Loan & T. Co. 140 Mass. 346, 5 N. E. 284. These trusts do not have perpetual succession, but end with lives in being and twenty years thereafter.

Entertaining the view that it was the intention of Congress to embrace within the corporation tax statute only such corporations and joint stock associations as are organized under some statute, or derive from that source some quality, or benefit not existing at the common law, we are of opinion that the real estate trusts involved in these two cases are not within the terms of the act. In that view the decrees in both cases will be reversed and the same remanded to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts, with directions to overrule the demurrers, and for further proceedings consistent with this opinion.

Reversed.

ARY E. ZONNE, Appt.,
v.
MINNEAPOLIS SYNDICATE, John De Laittre, Treasurer, and J. Frank Conklin, Assistant Treasurer.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 187–191.)

Internal revenue — excise on corporations — doing business.

A corporation organized for the purpose of owning and renting an office building, but which has wholly parted with the control and management of the property, and by the terms of a reorganization has disqualified itself from any activity in respect to it, its sole authority being to hold the title subject to a lease for 130 years, and to receive and distribute the rentals which may accrue under the terms of the lease, or the proceeds of any sale of the land, if it shall be sold, is not doing business within the meaning of the act of August 5, 1909 (36 Stat. at L. 11, 112–117, chap. 6, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, pp. 659, 844–849), § 38, imposing an excise upon the doing or the carrying on of business in a corporate or quasi corporate capacity.

[For other cases, see Internal Revenue, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 627.]

Submitted January 19, 1911. Decided March 13, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota to review a decree sustaining a demurrer to and dismissing a bill filed by a stockholder to restrain the corporation and its officers from complying with the Federal corporation tax. Reversed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. John R. Van Derlip submitted the cause for appellant. Mr. Burt F. Lum was on the brief:

The grant to the incorporators of being and acting as a corporation differs from the privilege or franchise vested in the corporation, in that the power to do business as a corporation is the right and privilege—or franchise—of the incorporators.

Memphis & L. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Comrs. (Memphis & L. R. R. Co. v. Berry) 112 U. S. 609, 619, 28 L. ed. 837, 841, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 299; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Ashley v. Ryan, 153 U. S. 436, 38 L. ed. 773, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 664, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 865; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 181, 19 L. ed. 360; Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305 312, 36 L. ed. 164, 167, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 57, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403; Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co. 86 Tex. 143, 22 L.R.A. 802, 24 S. W. 16.

Since franchises are property, and taxable as such (Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 8 Wall. 533, 19 L. ed. 482; Central P. R. Co. v. California, 162 U. S. 91, 126, 40 L. ed. 903, 915, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 766; Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305, 313, 36 L. ed. 164, 167, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 57, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403); since it must be admitted that a franchise has no value save that which arises from the use and enjoyment of it; and since it is impossible to force a distinction between that which gives value to the property and the property itself (Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 158 U. S. 625, 626, 628, 39 L. ed. 1121, 1122, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 912),—the conclusion is inevitable that a tax upon the use of a franchise is a tax upon the franchise itself, and, unapportioned, is invalid.

See also Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 786, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

When the liability of a corporation to pay a tax is made wholly dependent upon its earning a net income, and when the amount of the tax to be paid is wholly dependent upon the amount of such net income, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that, whatever it may be called, or under whatever law it may be imposed, the tax is an income tax, pure and simple.

Nicol v. Ames, 173 U. S. 515, 43 L. ed. 791, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522.

The practical nature of the tax itself, its natural and reasonable effect, the criterion adopted to determine what corporations fall within the law, the measure of the burden in each case, all demonstrate to a certainty that the tax is in its character, and in the purpose of its authors an income tax, regardless of the language in which the statute is framed.

Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 259, 23 L. ed. 543; State Freight Tax Case, 15 Wall. 232, 272, 21 L. ed. 146, 160; Cook v. Pennsylvania, 97 U. S. 566, 24 L. ed. 1015.

While an excise law must operate with uniformity throughout the United States, such uniformity demands not alone that it shall apply to the specified subjects of taxation wherever found, but equally that it shall lay its burden with just and uniform proportion upon each subject within its embrace.

Head Money Cases (Edye v. Robertson) 112 U. S. 580, 28 L. ed. 798, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Patton v. Brady, 184 U. S. 608, 46 L. ed. 713, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; United States v. Singer, 15 Wall. 111, 21 L. ed. 49; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 607, 33 L. ed. 1025, 1032, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593.

The Minneapolis Syndicate is not, and since January 1, 1907, has not been, a corporaton organized for profit.

Mundy v. Van Hoose, 104 Ga. 292, 30 S. E. 783; Gray v. Darlington, 15 Wall. 63, 21 L. ed. 45; Bennett v. Austin, 81 N. Y. 319; People ex rel. McMaster v. Niagara County, 4 Hill, 20.

It is not, and since January 1, 1907, it has not been, carrying on or doing business of any kind.

Roberts v. State, 26 Fla. 362, 7 So. 861; State v. Boston Club, 45 La. Ann. 585, 20 L.R.A. 185, 12 So. 895; Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co. 86 Tex. 153, 22 L.R.A. 802, 24 S. W. 16; Graham v. Hendricks, 22 La. Ann. 524; Harris v. State, 50 Ala. 127; Re Alabama & C. R. Co. 9 Blatchf. 390, Fed. Cas. No. 124; Holmes v. Holmes, 40 Conn. 117; 21 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. p. 811, notes 6, 8; People v. Horn Silver Min. Co. 105 N. Y. 83, 11 N. E. 155; State v. Barnes, 126 N. C. 1063, 35 S. E. 605; State v. Anniston Rolling Mills, 125 Ala. 121, 27 So. 921; Goddard v. Chaffee, 2 Allen, 395, 79 Am. Dec. 796; Hickey v. Thompson, 52 Ark. 237, 12 S. W. 475; Shryock v. Latimer, 57 Tex. 677; Braeutigam v. Edwards, 38 N. J. Eq. 545.

Mr. John R. Van Derlip also filed a separate brief for appellant:

The carrying on or doing of business connotes something more than a single isolated act; it implies continuity of activity along some given line.

Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727, 28 L. ed. 1137, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 739; General Conference v. Berkey, 156 Cal. 466, 105 Pac. 411; Atlantic Postal Teleg.-Cable Co. v. Savannah, 133 Ga. 66, 65 S. E. 184; Smith v. Anderson, L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 247, 50 L. J. Ch. N. S. 39, 43 L. T. N. S. 329, 29 Week. Rep. 21.

The corporation must be organized for profit.

Smith v. Anderson, L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 247, 50 L. J. Ch. N. S. 39, 43 L. T. N. S. 329, 29 Week. Rep. 21.

Solicitor General Lehman submitted the cause for the United States:

The tax is an excise to which a corporation is subjected with respect to the business done by it, measured by its income from all sources, as it was in Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule, 7 Wall. 433, 19 L. ed. 95, and Michigan C. R. Co. v. Collector (Michigan C. R. Co. v. Slack) 100 U. S. 595, 25 L. ed. 647, and this, in no event nor to any extent, makes the tax one upon property, for a corporation is organized to do something, and not simply to exist, and it holds its property not in mortmain, but as a means of, or an aid to, the accomplishment of that which it was organized to do. The activity of the company is not made the measure of the tax, except as that may manifest itself in the income; and, on the other hand, that sloth is not made a reason for deduction from the measure cannot be a valid objection to the propriety of that measure.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

This case involves the validity of the corporation tax act just passed upon in No. 407, Flint v. Stone Tracy Co. [220 U. S. 107, ante, 389, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 342.]

The case presents a peculiarity of corporate organization and purpose not involved in the cases just decided. The Minneapolis Syndicate, as the allegations of the bill, 190]*admitted by the demurrer, show, was originally organized for and engaged in the business of letting stores and offices in a building owned by it, and collecting and receiving rents therefor. On the 27th of December, 1906, the corporation demised and let all of the tracts, lots, and parcels of land belonging to it, being the westerly half of block 87 in the city of Minneapolis, to Richard M. Bradley, Arthur Lyman, and Russell Tyson, as tustees, for the term of 130 years from January 1, 1907, at an annual rental of $61,000, to be paid by said lessees to said corporation. At that time the corporation caused its articles of incorporation, which had theretofore been those of a corporation organized for profit, to be so amended as to read:

"The sole purpose of the corporation shall be to hold the title to the westerly one half of block 87 of the town of Minneapolis, now vested in the corporation, subject to a lease thereof for a term of 130 years from January 1, 1907, and, for the convenience of its stockholders, to receive, and to distribute among them, from time to time, the rentals that accrue under said lease, and the proceeds of any disposition of said land."

As we have construed the corporation tax law (Flint v. Stone Tracy Co. supra), it provides for an excise upon the carrying on or doing of business in a corporate capacity. We have held in the preceding cases that corporations organized for profit under the laws of the state, authorized to manage and rent real estate, and being so engaged, are doing business within the meaning of the law, and are therefore liable to the tax imposed.

The corporation involved in the present case, as originally organized and owning and renting an office building, was doing business with the meaning of the statute as we have construed it. Upon the record now presented we are of opinion that the Minneapolis Syndicate, after the demise of the property and reorganization of the corporation, *was not engaged in doing busi-[191 ness within the meaning of the act. It had wholly parted with control and management of the property; its sole authority was to hold the title subject to the lease for 130 years, to receive and distribute the rentals which might accrue under the terms of the lease, or the proceeds of any sale of the land, if it should be sold. The corporation had practically gone out of business in connection with the property, and had disqualified itself by the terms of reorganization from any activity in respect to it. We are of opinion that the corporation was not doing business in such wise as to make it subject to the tax imposed by the act of 1909 [36 Stat. at L. 112, chap. 6, § 38, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 844]. Holding this view, we think the court below erred in sustaining the demurrer to the bill. The decree of the court below is therefore reversed and the cause remanded to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota, with directions to overrule the demurrer, and for further proceedings consistent with this opinion.

Reversed.

EX PARTE: IN THE MATTER OF THE STATE OF OKLAHOMA, by Charles N. Haskell, Governor, etc., Petitioner.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed 191–210.)

Prohibition — adequacy of other remedies.

Prohibition against proceedings in the Federal circuit court to enjoin the prosecution of search-and-seizure proceedings instituted in the state courts, under Okla. Sess. Laws 1907–08, chap. 69, against intoxicating liquors shipped into the state, will not be granted by the Federal Supreme Court, since adequate relief is afforded by the full right of review in the latter court and in the proper circuit court of appeals by appeal or certiorari.

[For other cases see Prohibition, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 9, Original.]

Argued April 4 and 5, 1910. Ordered for argument before a full bench May 31, 1910. Reargued February 23, 1911. Decided April 3, 1911.

PETITION for Prohibition against proceedings in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Oklahoma to enjoin the prosecution of search-and-seizure proceedings instituted in the state courts against intoxicating liquors shipped into the state. Rule discharged and prohibition denied.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Fred S. Caldwell and Joseph W. Bailey argued the cause and filed a brief for petitioner:

The cases at bar are proper ones for the issuance of writs of prohibition.

Mayo v. James, 12 Gratt. 23; People ex rel. Hudson v. Superior Ct. Judge, — Mich. —, 2 N. W. 919; State ex rel. Townsend v. Ward, 70 Minn. 58, 72 N. W. 825; Planters' Ins. Co. v. Cramer, 47 Miss. 202; Johnston v. Hunter, 50 W. Va. 53, 40 S. E. 448; State v. Road Comrs. 1 Mill, Const. 57, 12 Am. Dec. 596; Washburn v. Phillips, 2 Met. 298; Maurer v. Mitchell, 53 Cal. 291; People ex rel. Taylor v. Election Comrs. 54 Cal. 404, 406; Camron v. Kenfield, 57 Cal. 553; State ex rel. Hahn v. Young, 29 Minn. 523, 9 N. W. 738; People ex rel. Patrick v. Fitzgerald, 73 App. Div. 339, 76 N. Y. Supp. 868; State ex rel. De Puy v. Evans, 88 Wis. 255, 60 N. W. 435.

Mr. Joseph S. Graydon argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Lawrence Maxwell and E. G. McAdams, filed a brief as amici curiæ:

The writ will not issue unless it clearly appears that the inferior court is about to exceed its jurisdiction.

Re Fassett, 142 U. S. 479, 486, 35 L. ed. 1087, 1089, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 295; Re Engles, 146 U. S. 357, 36 L. ed. 1004, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Re Morrison, 147 U. S. 14, 37 L. ed. 60, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246; Re Rice, 155 U. S. 396, 39 L. ed. 198, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 149; Re New York & P. R. S. S. Co. 155 U. S. 523, 39 L. ed. 246, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 183; Smith v. Whitney, 116 U. S. 167, 176, 29 L. ed. 601, 603, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570.

Want of jurisdiction must not appear from facts dehors the record.

Ex parte Easton, 95 U. S. 68, 77, 24 L. ed. 373, 376; Re Cooper, 143 U. S. 472, 36 L. ed. 232, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 453; Re Fassett, 142 U. S. 479, 484, 35 L. ed. 1087, 1088, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 295; Re Huguley Mfg. Co. 184 U. S. 297, 46 L. ed. 549, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 455; Taylor, Jurisdiction, §§ 334, 335.

Mr. S. T. Bledsoe argued the cause for respondent. Messrs. Joseph M. Bryson, Clifford L. Jackson, William R. Allen, A. B. Browne, and James Hagerman filed a brief for respondent.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

On March 24, 1908, the legislature of Oklahoma enacted a statute, known as the Billups bill, providing for a state agency for the dispensing of liquors under certain circumstances, but not for use as a beverage, and prohibiting generally the manufacture, sale, bartering, giving away, or otherwise furnishing liquor within the state. Session Laws Oklahoma, 1907–1908, chap. 69, p. 605; Comp. Laws of 1909, §§ 4180 et seq. Sections 5 and 6 of article 3 of the statute, §§ 4184 and 4185, Comp. Laws of 1909, provide in substance that any judge of a district or county court or justice of the peace, upon a showing of probable cause, may issue search-and-seizure warrants directed to any officer of the county, to seize liquors under the circumstances therein mentioned, and provide for a hearing as to whether such liquors are being unlawfully held, etc. The statute also makes provision for the forfeiture of liquors and other personal property employed in unlawfully trafficking in liquors.

*The state of Oklahoma, through [199 its governor, is here complaining that "the circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of Oklahoma and Ralph E. Campbell, the district judge of said district, sitting as judge of said circuit court, have, in direct violation of the 11th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and contrary to and in direct violation of § 720 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 581), assumed jurisdiction" in nine suits in equity, brought in said court, and the number of each case and the parties thereto are stated. The particular proceedings had in each case are not set out, but it is, in substance, alleged that in each the relief sought was the enjoining of the prosecution of search-and-seizure proceedings instituted under the statute above referred to in the courts of Oklahoma, and the enjoining of the state "from prosecuting any action in its said courts, under and pursuant to said §§ 4184 and 4185, supra, of petitioner's said laws, against any intoxicating liquors, in all cases where it may become necessary to try and determine any one or more" of the issues set out in the margin.†

200] *It is averred that the relief sought in the said equity suits has been granted, and the state and its officials are wrongfully prevented from enforcing the statute, "and that the state of Oklahoma has suffered and is suffering great and irreparable injury, from which said petitioner has no adequate remedy at law," and "that said acts of said respondents constitute and are an unlawful and unwarranted interference with petitioner, the state of Oklahoma, in the exercise of its governmental functions and sovereign powers in connection with the enforcement of petitioner's said prohibition laws.

In substance, it was prayed in the petition that the further prosecution of the suits and the enforcement of the various restraining orders and temporary injunctions entered therein should be prohibited, as well as any further interference with the prosecution in the state courts of search-and-seizure process under the law in question.

As a return to a rule to show cause, respondent judge has filed an answer, containing copies of the file papers in the equity suits referred to in the petition. The following facts are taken from the showing thus made:

Prior to the fall of 1908, under the assumed authority of search warrants issued for alleged violations of the foregoing statute, numerous consignments from other states than Oklahoma to residents of Oklahoma of liquor had been taken from the cars or depots at stations within the state of Oklahoma of the Missouri, Kansas, & Texas Railway Company, while such property was in the custody of the company, before the completion of the interstate transportation by delivery to the consignees. Alleging diversity of citizenship, and a continuous violation of *rights protect-[201 ed by the Constitution of the United States, the unlawfulness of these seizures and the irreparable character of the injury done and likely to be occasioned by further threatened seizures, the railway company commenced, on September 9, 1908, the first of the equity suits referred to in the petition. Twelve persons were made defendants, as having been concerned either in the obtaining of the various search warrants and their service, or because in possession of property seized, or on account of advising and encouraging the commission of the alleged trespasses. A decree for the restoration of eighteen specified consignments, alleged to have been unlawfully seized, was prayed, as also an injunction against future seizures. A temporary restraining order was granted; and, ultimately, a stipulation was entered into for the return of the property seized, and for its redelivery to the defendants, or the payment to them of its value in the event the litigation should terminate adversely to the railway company. On September 16, 1908, the temporary restraining order was, by agreement of the parties, continued in force until a time to be fixed by consent for the hearing of an application for a temporary injunction. No further proceedings were had in the case.

Four of the equity suits referred to in the petition—three filed December 17, 1909,

†(a) The issue as to whether or not the particular intoxicating liquor in question was, at the time of its seizure, a bona fide shipment made to a person within petitioner's borders from a place outside of petitioner's borders, which said shipment had not been delivered by the interstate carrier under the contract of interstate shipment to the consignee at the place of destination.

(b) The issue as to whether or not the particular intoxicating liquor in question had been shipped from a point outside of petitioner's borders to a place within petitioner's borders, in violation of § 3449 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2277).

(c) The issue as to whether or not the particular intoxicating liquor in question had been shipped from a place outside of petitioner's borders to a place within petitioner's borders, in violation of any one or more of §§ 238, 239, and 240 of the act of Congress of March 4, 1909 (35 Stat. at L. 1136, 1137, chap. 321, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1464).

(d) The issue as to whether or not the particular intoxicating liquor in question, although shipped from a place outside of petitioner's borders to a place within petitioner's borders, and in the possession of the interstate carrier, undelivered under the contract of interstate shipment at the time the seizure was made, is "adulterated" or "misbranded" within the meaning of the act of congress of June 30, 1906, chapter 3915, 34 Stat. at L. 768, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1187, commonly known as the pure food and drug act.

and one on January 18, 1910—were afterwards commenced in the same court by the railway company. The defendants were several individuals alleged to have actively participated in the seizure at various stations on the line of the company's road, like in character to the seizure complained of in the prior suit. Such seizures were averred to have been made under the assumed authority of the prohibition statute heretofore referred to. In one of the suits so commenced on December 17, 1909, a stipulation was filed to the effect that the seizures complained of had been made by the defendants acting as constables and un-[202 der the authority of a *search warrant, a copy of which was attached. In each of the four cases, after hearing counsel for the respective parties, a temporary restraining order was granted, prohibiting future interference with interstate shipments before delivery to consignees, and ordering the restoration of the property alleged to have been seized, except that in one case, a portion of the seized property was ordered to be safely and securely kept by the defendants until the further order of the court. In each of the cases, following the allowance of a temporary injunction, a demurrer to the bill was filed, alleging in substance that the court was without jurisdiction to hear and determine the controversy, "and that the relief prayed for is sought in direct violation of the 7th and 11th Amendments of the Constitution of the United States, and in direct violation of § 720 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 581);" and that the bill of complaint "is wholly without equity." These demurrers have not been passed upon.

In the interval between the commencement of the first and the last of the suits just referred to, four dealers in liquors and consignors of shipments which had been taken from the custody of the railway company while in course of interstate transportation to consignees in Oklahoma, under the assumed authority of the statute in question, also commenced the other suits in equity referred to in the petition. The defendants in these suits, designated by their official titles, were the state dispensary agent and the sheriff, constables, or other officials who had participated in the seizures complained of in the various bills of complaint, as also the person who held possession of the property. The prayer of each bill was for the allowance of temporary and perpetual injunctions restraining future seizures of liquors shipped by the complainant and consigned to bona fide consignees in Oklahoma by railroad until the interstate transportation had terminated by delivery of the property to the consignees. A temporary *restraining order was issued in[203 each case. Thereafter, in all of these cases, a demurrer was filed to each bill upon the grounds which were made the basis of the demurrers filed in the cases commenced by the railway company, and upon the following additional ground: "That it appears from said complainants' bill of complaint that their business operations, which they seek to have protected by decree of this honorable court, are carried on and conducted in direct violation of the penal laws of the United States of America; to wit, in violation of §§ 238, 239, and 240 of an act of Congress of March 4, 1909. 35 Stat. at L. 1136, 1137, chap. 321, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1464."

The temporary injunctions issued in the suits brought by the railway company were substantially alike, and restrained the defendants and each of them, their agents and employees, "from entering the cars, depots, or other premises of the complainant, Missouri, Kansas, & Texas Railway Company, and from taking therefrom intoxicating liquors shipped from points outside of the state of Oklahoma to points and consigned to persons within the eastern district of the state of Oklahoma, and that said defendants, and each of them, their agents and employees, be restrained from in anywise interfering with complainant in its handling and delivery of such interstate shipments of intoxicating liquors, and from inciting, aiding, abetting, or advising other persons so to do." The defendants were also enjoined from taking any steps looking to the forfeiture of the seized property.

The temporary injunctions issued in the suits brought by the foreign liquor houses were also substantially alike, and in each the defendants, their agents, etc., were "enjoined and restrained until further order of this court, from seizing or causing to be seized, either directly or indirectly, or ordering or directing any person to seize, any intoxicating liquors shipped by the complainant Thixton from the state of Kentucky to actual bona fide consignees within *the eastern district of the state of Ok-[204 lahoma, while the same is in the possession of the common carrier, and before the same have been delivered, either actually or constructively, to such consignees." In two of the cases commenced by shippers, however, the following proviso was inserted in the injunction order:

"Provided, however, that this order shall not apply to any liquors shipped in violation of § 3449 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2277), or to liquors shipped in violation of §§ 238, 239, and 240, of the act of Congress of March 4, 1909 (35 Stat. at L. 1136, 1137, chap. 321, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1464), or to any such liquors which are adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the act of Congress of June 30, 1906 (chap. 3915, 34 Stat. at L. 768, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 1187), commonly known as the pure food and drug act, or to any such liquors shipped in violation of any other act of Congress."

In one of the shippers' cases the injunction order also contained a provision prohibiting action by the defendants looking to the forfeiture of any of the liquors referred to in the complaint as having been seized by such defendants.

This application for a writ of prohibition was made practically cotemporaneous with the filing of the various demurrers above referred to. In substance, the reasons which caused the respondent judge to assume jurisdiction over the causes and to award the relief against the defendants therein, of which the state now complains, are not only stated in the return, but are expounded in an opinion delivered in one of the cases which is made a part of the return. These reasons are, in substance, made manifest by two excerpts,—one from the opinion referred to, and the other from the return itself, as follows:

"Under the facts as stipulated in this case, the shipments seized were still in the hands of the carrier, were interstate commerce, and had not become subject to the laws of the state. If it be contended that, 205]in enacting the *search-and-seizure laws referred to, the legislature intended that they should apply to such interstate commerce, then the answer is that, to that extent, the law is invalid, because it is made to apply to a subject within the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress. If, on the other hand, it is contended that such was not the intention of the legislature, then the state courts are exceeding the law in issuing such search-and-seizure warrants. They are, in my judgment, no protection to the officer who seeks by them to justify his acts thereunder, and to enjoin him from executing them is not a violation of § 720 of the Revised Statutes. The authority of the state does not attach to shipments of the character involved in this case until the delivery to the consignee.

. . . . . .

"If these seizures are permitted, complainants will either have to abandon their property so seized, or defend a multiplicity of suits, the number of which will be determined only by the zeal of the enforcement officers in their interference with interstate commerce. As the record now stands, the complainants, of course, must eventually win in such suits, for upon a showing to the state court that the property seized was still interstate commerce, undelivered to the consignee, it would have to be ordered returned to the complainants. It is not conceived, however, that such a course presents that adequate legal remedy which precludes the action of a court of equity. Nor is it conceived that in granting the temporary injunctions complained of, respondent is violating the 11th amendment to the Constitution, or § 720 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, because the injunction may prevent one or more of the defendants from thereafter causing such warrants of search and seizure to issue, or from executing such warrants after issuance."

It is elaborately argued by counsel for the state, first, *that the in-[206 junction suits complained of were, in effect, directed against the state, and therefore were barred by the 11th Amendment; second, that the proceedings prosecuted under §§ 4184 and 4185 of the 1909 Compiled Laws of Oklahoma are actions in rem, brought under a valid state law, in courts of competent jurisdiction, and therefore the injunctions restraining the enforcement of the search warrants were, in substance and effect, injunctions staying proceedings in the courts of the state, in violation of § 720 of the Revised Statutes. And, as supporting this last contention, it is argued, "the effect of the injunctions here complained of is to prevent and prohibit the 'judicial power' of the state of Oklahoma being invoked, even by the state itself, for the purpose of judicially determining the status of any particular quantity of intoxicating liquor found within its borders, in so far as questions touching its status as interstate commerce are concerned."

Counsel who oppose the allowance of the writ urge numerous reasons why the application should be denied, in part as follows: Relief, it is claimed, should be refused because it is sought to review in one action the proceedings in different causes involving different parties and issues. Attention is called to the fact that, in the first of the suits commenced by the railway company, no jurisdictional objection was raised. It is argued that the bills of complaint filed in the various suits commenced by the railway company do not show on their face that the suits were against state officers, or that injunctions were sought to stay proceedings in the state courts; and that, in any event, the primary purpose of the bills was to restrain future seizures of interstate shipments before delivery to the consignees. As to the suits brought by the four liquor houses, it is urged that § 720 of the Revised Statutes was not violated, as the relief granted was only against future seizures, and the suits were against state officials to 207]prevent *them from enforcing against the plaintiffs a state statute which, whether valid or not on its face, was invalid as to plaintiffs under the state of facts set forth in the bills on which the circuit court acted. It is additionally urged that the granting of the writ would enable local officers to interfere with the operation of the revenue laws and other laws of the United States, as the state of Oklahoma claims the right, upon any hearing which may be had in respect to the validity of seizures of the character of those under consideration, to determine whether the particular shipments were made in violation of any statute of the United States; and although for such violations the property would be subject to be forfeited to the United States, yet if it is found by the state court that the property had been shipped in violation of a law of the United States, the goods would be adjudged not to have been legitimate subjects of interstate commerce, and would be forfeited to the state. Further, it is urged that continuous seizures of liquors in transit by state authorities for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are or may be obnoxious to the police laws of the state is in itself an unconstitutional burden placed upon interstate commerce, and decisions of this court are cited as supporting the proposition. In addition, it is insisted that the law in question has been construed by the supreme court of Oklahoma not to be applicable to interstate shipments of intoxicating liquors until their arrival at destination and delivery to the consignees; and because of such construction, it is urged, it clearly results that "any officer or person seeking to seize or cause to be seized intoxicating liquors under the provisions of said act, before their arrival at destination and delivery to consignee, acts entirely outside of and beyond the scope of said law, and is a naked trespasser, and may be enjoined."

But we do not think we are called upon to test the accuracy of these as well as oth-208]er, conflicting contentions, *because we are of the opinion that, consistently with the orderly course of judicial proceeding, we may not pass upon them, since we cannot do so without disregarding the plain statutory provisions providing means for reviewing the action of the court which is complained of, and which, if availed of, would afford complete and adequate remedy.

The principle under which the power to issue the extraordinary writ of prohibition may be exerted was thus stated in Re Huguley Mfg. Co. 184 U. S. 301, 46 L. ed. 551, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 455:

"It is firmly established that where it appears that a court whose action is sought to be prohibited has clearly no jurisdiction of the cause originally, a party who has objected to the jurisdiction at the outset, and has no other remedy, is entitled to a writ of prohibition as a matter of right. But where there is another legal remedy, by appeal or otherwise, or where the question of the jurisdiction of the court is doubtful, or depends on facts which are not made matter of record, the granting or refusal of the writ is discretionary. Re Rice, 155 U. S. 396, 39 L. ed. 198, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 149. And that the writ of mandamus cannot be used to perform the office of an appeal or writ of error, and is only granted as a general rule where there is no other adequate remedy. Re Atlantic City R. Co. 164 U. S. 633, 41 L. ed. 579, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208."

It will become apparent from even a merely superficial analysis that, consistently with the doctrine just referred to, the facts which we have stated afford no basis for the allowance of the writ of prohibition as prayed. This is obvious because, first, an adequate remedy was provided by law in each case, even before final judgment, for reviewing and correcting in the circuit court of appeals any error committed by the court below in awarding interloeutory relief by injunction; second, because after final decree, if the cases so ultimated, adequate remedy existed at the election of the defendants to come directly to this court upon the question alone of the jurisdiction of the *court below as Federal court over the[209 respective causes; third, because even if these remedies were not resorted to, and the cases had gone to final decrees against the defendants, and they had chosen to appeal the whole case to the circuit court of appeals, and that court had decided against them, there would be either a right in this court to review by appeal, or discretionary power, if it was deemed that the questions involved warranted such action, to bring the whole case up for review by the writ of certiorari. Bearing these considerations in mind, it results that relief by the extraordinary remedy of prohibition, if here granted, could not possibly rest upon the ground that there was otherwise no adequate means of relief, but would have to be placed upon the assumption that there was a right to the writ, even although the party invoking it had declined to avail himself of the otherwise complete and adequate measures of relief which would have been afforded by following the orderly and regular course of judicial proceeding.

In view of the identity of the principles which govern the right to invoke the extraordinary remedy of mandamus to correct an unlawful assumption of jurisdiction, and those which control the power to issue the writ of prohibition for the same purpose, it was perhaps unnecessary to consider the subject from an original point of view, since the matter is settled by authority. Quite recently in Re Harding, 219 U. S. 363, ante, 252, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 324, the whole subject was reviewed, and it was held that discretion to issue the writ of mandamus would not be exerted to review a question of jurisdiction where there was otherwise adequate remedy provided by statute for the review of errors in that respect, asserted to have been committed by a trial court. Besides, a previous decision which was reviewed and reaffirmed in the Harding Case so completely controls the issue here presented as to leave no room for contention on the subject. The case is Ex parte Nebraska, 210]209 *U. S. 436, 52 L. ed. 876, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581. That case was this: The state of Nebraska was one of the plaintiffs in a cause removed from a state court into a circuit court of the United States on the ground that there was a separable controversy between the other plaintiffs in the cause and the defendant. The circuit court having denied a motion to remand, the state of Nebraska applied to this court for a writ of mandamus to compel the remanding of the cause, averring that it was plain from the record that it was the real, and, in substance, the only, party plaintiff in the removed cause. The application for the writ, however, was denied upon the ground that the order overruling the motion to remand was subject after final judgment to be reviewed by appeal, and therefore was not properly reviewable by the writ of mandamus.

Rule discharged and prohibition denied.

EX PARTE: IN THE MATTER OF THE STATE OF OKLAHOMA, by Charles N. Haskell, Governor, etc., Petitioner.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 210-214.)

This case is governed by the decision in Ex parte Oklahoma, ante, 431.

[No. 10, Original.]

Argued April 4 and 5, 1910. Ordered for argument before a full bench, May 31, 1910. Reargued February 23, 1911. Decided April 3, 1911.

PETITION for Prohibition against proceedings in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Oklahoma to enjoin the prosecution of search-and-seizure proceedings instituted in the state courts against intoxicating liquors shipped into the state. Rule discharged and prohibition denied.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Fred S. Caldwell and Joseph W. Bailey argued the cause and filed a brief for petitioner. For their contentions, see their brief as reported in Ex parte homa, ante, 431.

Mr. Joseph S. Graydon argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Lawrence Maxwell and E. G. McAdams, filed a brief as amici curiæ. For their contentions, see their brief as reported in Ex parte Oklahoma, ante, 431.

Mr. S. T. Bledsoe argued the cause, and, with Messrs. J. R. Cottingham, Aldis B. Browne, Alexander Britton, and Evans Browne, filed a brief for respondent:

An adequate remedy exists by appeal, and the extraordinary relief sought by prohibition should, for that reason, be denied.

Re Rice, 155 U. S. 402, 39 L. ed. 200, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 149; Re New York & P. R. S. S. Co. 155 U. S. 531, 39 L. ed. 249, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 183; Re Huguley Mfg. Co. 184 U. S. 297, 46 L. ed. 549, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 455.

Messrs. Joseph M. Bryson, Clifford L. Jackson, William R. Allen, A. B. Browne, and James Hagerman also filed a brief for respondent.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

In this case it is asked that a writ of prohibition be issued, restraining District Judge Cotteral, sitting as judge of the circuit court for the western district of Oklahoma, from further proceeding in seven separate actions commenced in said court,—two brought by railroad companies and five by shippers,—like in character to the cases which formed the basis of the application made in No. 9, Original. The grounds upon which the right to the writ in this case is based are also substantially the same as in the other.

Of the seven suits referred to, the first was commenced by the Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe Railway Company in August 1908; the second by the Missouri, Kansas, & Texas Railway Company in October, 1908; and the remaining cases were commenced in October and November, 1909.

The bill of the Atchison road, among other things, alleged the taking possession by the defendants of more than forty-three separate interstate shipments of intoxicating liquors while in the custody of the railway company, and before delivery to the consignee, and the threatened confiscation of the property. In both of the suits commenced by the railway companies no jurisdictional objection was raised at any time in the circuit court. Not only was this so, but in a cross complaint incorporated with answers filed in each case, one of the defendants, counsel to the governor of Oklahoma, prayed relief against the railway companies, upon the theory that, by the delivery of interstate shipments to persons who intended to use the [212]*same in violation of the state prohibition law, the "complainant thereby creates a public nuisance in said state." In the five suits commenced by foreign liquor dealers, however, demurrers "for lack of jurisdiction and equity" were filed, and in all but one lengthy answers were filed. In two of the cases numerous affidavits were filed and temporary orders were refused, whereupon temporary bills were filed and temporary injunctions were granted. Proceedings in contempt were also instituted in several of the cases for alleged violations of the injunctions. Moreover, in several of the cases the demurrers were heard and overruled, while in the others no action was taken subsequent to the filing of the answers or demurrers. In certain of the cases, also, affidavits were filed to the effect that goods which had been ordered returned by a justice of the peace upon the ground that they were exempt from seizure because the interstate transportation had not ended were again seized upon search warrants issued by another justice.

In his return to the rule to show cause, the district judge, among other things, said:

"The jurisdiction of the circuit court in these cases is supported in general by the averments in the pleadings of the complainants that the opposing parties are citizens of different states, and that the respective amounts in dispute exceed $2,000; and furthermore, that the cases arise under the Constitution of the United States by involving acts of alleged interference with transactions in interstate commerce and the question of the right to protection of the same. The equity jurisdiction of the court is invoked by the complainants on the ground of the necessity of relief to prevent irreparable injury and avoid a multiplicity of suits.

"The pleadings disclose that the complainants allege transactions by way of shipment of intoxicating liquors from other states to points in Oklahoma, and assert the *right to the transportation and deliv-[213 ery of the same to consignees in the state, as commodities of interstate commerce, and charge actual and threatened seizures thereof by the defendants before delivery within the state, not remediable at law. Wherefore, the amount in dispute being found sufficient, the jurisdiction of the court was held to arise for the purpose of hearing and investigating the grievances complained of and any defense which might be interposed, and to grant or deny relief as the facts and the law might warrant. Although the defendants sought to justify their conduct upon the ground that they were state officers, and represented the state in discharging their duties, the court was of the opinion that jurisdiction existed to proceed, consistently with the 11th Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

. . . . . .

"The question made upon the jurisdiction of the court was regarded as one pertaining to the merits rather than to original jurisdiction, and as instituting the inquiry whether, in the exercise of jurisdiction the defendants might be relieved of the suits on the ground that they represented the state. But it was believed that before the defendants could succeed with that defense, it was encumbent on them to justify their conduct under a valid law of the state, and that this they could not do, if the liquors they were seeking to seize and confiscate were undelivered commodities of interstate commerce.

. . . . . .

"With respect to the objection founded on § 720 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 581), it appears that the orders by their terms do not stay proceedings or direct the restoration of property, but restrain seizures. It was the opinion of the circuit court that the statute does not limit the Federal judicial power so as to forbid injunctions against future proceedings. But aside from this, if the orders were not erroneous, they do not affect *the seizure[214 of property subject to the police power of the state.

It is manifest that the reasons which led to the refusal to issue the writ in No. 9, Original, just decided [220 U. S. 191, ante, 431, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 426] are applicable to and control this case, and the order therefore will be—rule discharged and prohibition denied.

MARIANO MARTINEZ, Administrator of Francisco Martinez, Deceased, Appt.,
v.
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CORPORATION. (No. 79.)

MARIANO MARTINEZ, Administrator of Francisco Martinez, Deceased, Appt.,
v.
INTERNATIONAL BANKING CORPORATION. (No. 80.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 214-224.)

Appeal — amount in dispute — counterclaim.

1. The value of a mortgaged vessel and the profits from its use, demanded in a dismissed counterclaim in a suit to foreclose the mortgage, cannot be added to the amount of the mortgage debt in determining the value of the matter in controversy, for the purpose of an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from the supreme court of the Philippine Islands.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 402-412, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — amount in dispute — consolidated suits.

2. Two suits separately commenced, but tried together for convenience, will not be treated as consolidated, for the purpose of increasing the amount in dispute so as to sustain an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, where the understanding of court and counsel below was that there was in fact no consolidation.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. f, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Note.—On the jurisdiction of Federal courts as affected by the amount in dispute —see notes to Rich v. Gray, 2 L.R.A. 225; Auer v. Lombard, 19 C. C. A. 75; Tennent-Stribling Shoe Co. v. Roper, 36 C. C. A. 459; and O. J. Lewis Mercantile Co. v. Klepner, 100 C. C. A. 288.

As to what judgments or decrees are final for purposes of review—see notes to Brush Electric Co. v. Electric Improv. Co. 2 C. C. A. 379; Central Trust Co. v. Madden, 17 C. C. A. 238; Prescott & A. C. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 28 C. C. A. 482; Gibbons v. Ogden, 5 L. ed. U. S. 302; and Schlosser v. Hemphill, 49 L. ed. U. S. 1001.

Appellate jurisdiction of Federal Supreme Court over supreme court of Philippine Islands.

This jurisdiction, under the act of July 1, 1902, § 10, extends to a revision, by appeal or writ of error, in cases in which the Constitution or any statute, treaty, right, or privilege of the United States is involved, or in which the value in controversy exceeds $25,000, or in which the title or possession of real estate exceeding in value that amount, to be ascertained by the oath of either party or of other competent witnesses, is involved or brought in question; the procedure to be the same as that governing the review of judgments or decrees of the circuit courts. This provision is carried forward in the New Judicial Code as § 248, in which the only changes are the substitution, in the conformity clause, of "district courts," instead of "circuit courts," which are abolished by that Code, and by inserting in the same clause the words "within the same time."

Mode of review.

Appeal, and not writ of error, is the proper method of obtaining a review in the Supreme Court of the United States of a final order of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands in a habeas corpus case, under the act of July 1, 1902, § 10, providing that judgments and decrees of the latter court can only be reviewed "in the same manner, under the same regulations, and by the same procedure, as far as applicable, as the final judgments and decrees of the circuit courts." Fisher v. Baker, 203 U. S. 174, 51 L. ed. 142, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 135, 7 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1018.

Writ of error is the proper mode of bringing up to the Federal Supreme Court for review a judgment of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands in proceedings for the registration of land. Cariño v. Philippine Islands, 212 U. S. 449, 53 L. ed. 594, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334; Tiglao v. Philippine Islands, 215 U. S. 410, 54 L. ed. 257, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129; Jover y Costas v. Philippine Islands, 221 U. S. 623, post, 884, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664.

The court said in Cariño v. Philippine Islands supra: "The proceeding for registration is likened to bills in equity to quiet title, but it is different in principle. It is a proceeding in rem under a statute of the type of the Torrens act, such as was discussed in Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 175 Mass. 71, 51 L.R.A. 433, 55 N. E. 812. It is nearer to law than to equity, and is an assertion of legal title; but we think it unnecessary to put it into either pigeonhole. A writ of error is the general method of bringing cases to this court, an appeal the exception; confined to equity in the main. There is no reason for not applying the general rule to this case."

Jurisdictional amount.

The general rule that the Federal courts have no jurisdiction of the subjects of divorce or alimony does not preclude an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from the supreme court of the Philippine Islands to review a decree of that court reversing a degree of the court of first instance granting a divorce to the wife, and awarding her a sum in excess of $25,000 as alimony pendente lite and as her share of the conjugal property. De la Rama v. De la Rama, 201 U. S. 303, 50 L. ed. 765, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485.

The judgment in an action to recover real property, in which plaintiff, although claim-

Appeal—final judgment.

3. A judgment of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands which directs the entry of judgment for the plaintiff below, in accordance with its decision, but leaves to the lower court the judicial determination of the exact amount for which the judgment shall be entered, is not final for the purpose of an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. d, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 79 and 80.]

Argued March 3 and 6, 1911. Decided April 3, 1911.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands to review a decree which, reversing a decree of the Court of First Instance of the City of Manila, directed the entry of a decree in favor of plaintiff in a suit to foreclose a mortgage. Dismissed for lack of the jurisdictional amount.

Also an APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands to review a decree which, reversing a decree of the Court of First Instance of the City of Manila in a suit for the foreclosure of an alleged mortgage, directed the entry of a decree in favor of the plaintiff, leaving to the court below a judicial determination of the exact amount for which judgment should be entering under a single title all the land occupied separately by the various defendants, does not allege joint ownership or joint possession or joint action of any kind, the controversy with each defendant relating to a separate and distinct parcel,—does not show an amount in dispute sufficient to sustain a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court, where such judgment, while apparently rendered jointly, so far as the damages are concerned, against all the defendants, runs separately against each defendant for recovery of possession of that part of the land of which he was alleged and found to be in possession, and the whole amount of the damages, added to the value of the land in controversy with any of the defendants, does not equal the jurisdictional amount. Tupiño v. La Compañia General De Tabacos, 214 U. S. 268, 53 L. ed. 992, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 610.

Federal question.

Judgments of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands denying any liability of the present city of Manila upon municipal obligations incurred prior to the cession of the Philippine Islands to the United States by the treaty of December 10, 1898, are rendered in cases in which a treaty of the United States is involved, within the meaning of the act of July 1, 1902, § 10, governing the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court, although no distinct claim under that treaty was made in the pleadings. Vilas v. Manila, 220 U. S. 345, post, 491, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 416.

A suit to restrain the defendant from setting up title to certain gold mines in the Philippine Islands, or interfering with the same, and to obtain an accounting, in which the meaning and effect of the provisions of the act of July 1, 1902, § 45, concerning mining titles, are in question, is one in which a statute of the United States is "involved," so as to support an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from a decree of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands in such suit. Reavis v. Fianza, 215 U. S. 16, 54 L. ed. 72, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1.

A conviction of falsification of documents under P. I. Penal Code, art. 300, clauses 4, 7, is not reviewable in the Federal Supreme Court as involving the denial of the protection afforded by the Philippine Bill of Rights, where the most that can be gathered from the record is that the accused contended that the complaint was bad by the rules of criminal pleading. Paraiso v. United States, 207 U. S. 368, 52 L. ed. 249, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 127.

The denial of a motion for rehearing by the supreme court of the Philipine Islands cannot serve to bring Federal questions into the record, so as to sustain a writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States. Ibid.

Scope of review.

The distinction between an appeal and a writ of error with reference to the scope of review obtains here conformably to the usual practice in the Federal courts.

Hence, only questions of law are brought up for review by a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands. Santos v. Holy Roman Catholic & Apostolic Church, 212 U. S. 463, 53 L. ed. 599, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 338.

And for this reason, assignments of error which challenge the sufficiency of the evidence to warrant a conviction cannot be considered by the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of error to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands to review a judgment affirming such conviction, where it is not contended that there was no evidence of guilt. Ling Su Fan v. United States, 218 U. S. 302, 54 L. ed. 1049, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1176, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21.

And, whether the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, acting under the authority of P. I. Code of Procedure, § 497, subd. 3, erred in setting aside the conclusion of the court of first instance as being plainly and manifestly against the weight of evidence, is a question which is not open on a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court. Behn v. Campbell, 205 U. S. 403, 51 L. ed. 857, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502.

tered. Dismissed for want of final judgment.

See same case below, No. 79, 10 Philippine, 242; No. 80, 10 Philippine, 252.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Frederic R. Coudert and Howard Thayer Kingsbury argued the cause and with Mr. Paul Fuller filed a brief for appellant.

Mr. Henry E. Davis argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee.

Mr. Chief. Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

These are two suits commenced in the court of first instance of the city of Manila on the same day, February 25, 1905, and numbered in that court as cases Nos. 3363 and 3365, respectively. In each suit the International Banking Company was plaintiff and Francisco Martinez and another person as the guardian of Martinez were defendants. After the present appeals were taken Martinez died and his administrator has been substituted in his stead.

We shall separately summarize the proceedings below in the two cases to the extent it is necessary to do so to understand the proper disposition to be made of the appeals.

Case No. 79 was a suit of an equitable nature brought by the bank against Martinez to foreclose a mortgage upon the steamer Germana, sell the steamer, and collect an alleged debt of 30,000 pesos, claimed to

---

No intention to change this rule can fairly be inferred from the statement by Mr. Justice Peckham in Strong v. Repide, 213 U. S. 419, 53 L. ed. 853, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 521, that the facts, when the courts below differ, will be reviewed by the Federal Supreme Court, on appeal from or writ of error to the judgments of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, since in this case the parties, besides suing out the writ of error, had also taken an apeal, and the solitary case cited in support of the proposition is De la Rama v. De la Rama, infra, where the case went up on appeal, and a different rule therefore obtains.

The sufficiency of the evidence on which a divorce to the wife was refused is open for review in the Supreme Court of the United States on an appeal from the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, where the correctness of the denial of alimony pendente lite and of a separation of the conjugal property cannot be determined without passing upon the weight of such evidence, and the appeal was taken from the whole decree. De la Rama v. De la Rama, 201 U. S. 303, 50 L. ed. 765, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485.

But concurrent findings of fact by the two lower courts in support of a claim of certain natives of the Philippine Islands to have held possession of certain mines and to have worked them to the exclusion of all others down to the bringing of suit will not be disturbed by the Supreme Court of the United States on appeal from the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, if there is some evidence of the facts found. Reavis v. Fianza, 215 U. S. 16, 54 L. ed. 72, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1.

Errors not assigned will not ordinarily be considered by the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands. Paraiso v. United States, 207 U. S. 368, 52 L. ed. 249, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 127.

But questions not raised below, respecting the denial of rights which find expression and sanction in the Federal Constitution and the Philippine Bill of Rights, may be considered by the Federal Supreme Court on error to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, in the exercise of its discretion, under Supreme Court rule 35, to notice a plain error not assigned. Weems v. United States, 217 U. S. 349, 54 L. ed. 793, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 544, 19 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 705.

The error, if any, committed by the court of first instance, when determining the guilt or innocence of accused, in considering the latter's failure to testify in his own behalf, is not available on a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, where the latter court, in denying a motion for new trial after its decision reducing the sentence on the accused's appeal, stated that it did not, as the trial court did, take the accused's failure to testify into consideration. Pendleton v. United States, 216 U. S. 305, 54 L. ed. 491, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 315.

The right to registration of a land title in the Philippine Islands on the ground of established possession when a composition deed from the Spanish authorities was issued will not be considered by the Federal Supreme Court, when reviewing a judgment of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands which affirmed a judgment of the trial court refusing registration on the opposition of the insular government, where the case, as made by the pleadings, is rested solely upon the right to register resulting from the composition deed, without the slightest averment of possession prior to the time such deed was issued, except as it may be considered that such possession was alleged as a necessary result of the averments as to the deed, and no evidence whatever was offered concerning the possession prior to, or at the time of, the composition deed, irrespective of the administration proceedings leading up to the issue of such deed and following upon its annulment, the validity of the deed, as depending upon the competency of the administrative officers to avoid it and to annul the composition proceedings, being the one issue which, as understood by the court below and by the parties, arose upon the opposition of the government. Roura v. Philippine Islands, 218 U. S. 386, 54 L. ed. 1080, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 75.

be secured thereby. By the answer and cross bill it was asserted that, at the time of executing the mortgage, Martinez was mentally incapacitated, and hence legally incompetent; that the whole transaction was void for fraud, duress, and conspiracy; that the alleged indebtedness was a part of the subject-matter of the instrument sued on in the other case, the effect of which instrument was to supersede the mortgage sued on in this, and that plaintiff had wrongfully taken and held possession of the steamer and refused to account for its profits. As affirmative relief the setting aside of the whole transaction was demanded, as also the return of the steamer and an accounting of its profits.

The court of first instance in substance sustained these defenses, dismissed the plaintiff's suit, and directed a return of the steamer.

217]*It was decided in the judgment: "This case was tried together with case No. 3365, it being agreed that the evidence taken on the trial pertinent to either or both cases should be considered by the court in the respective cases." On appeal, the supreme court of the Philippine Islands reversed this judgment, held that the transaction was valid, and entered the following judgment:

"It is ordered that the judgment appealed from the court of first instance of the city of Manila, dated March 29, 1906, be, and the same is hereby, reversed, and the record remanded to the court from which it came, with directions to that court to enter judgment in favor of the plaintiff, and against the defendants, Francisco Martinez and his guardian, Vicente Ilustre, for the sum of P. 28,599.13, and interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from the 1st day of January, 1904, with costs, and that the steamship Germana, if said judgment is not paid, be sold in accordance with law to pay and satisfy the amount of said judgment. No costs will be allowed to either party in this court."

Case No. 80.—This case was brought to recover a judgment for 159,607.81 pesos, with interest, and, in default of payment, for the foreclosure of an instrument alleged to be a mortgage, the sale of certain real estate described in the mortgage, execution in the event of a deficiency, and for general relief. By answer and cross bill the same general defenses were set up as in the other suit. It was further averred that the alleged consideration for the instrument sued on was "padded and fictitious," contained duplications of the same item, and included the item of 30,000 pesos which was the subject of the other case; also that the instrument sued on was not in law a mortgage, but was an agreement for the transfer of property with right of repurchase (pacto de retro), and that the defendant had never refused to perform such contract, but that the plaintiff had failed to perform its own obligations thereunder; *also that the plaintiff had wrong-[218 fully taken possession of the property in question and received its rents and profits. The defendant demanded that the entire transaction be set aside, that plaintiff's suit be dismissed, and that plaintiff account for the rents and profits it had received.

The court of first instance found against the plaintiff, and rendered judgment in favor of the defendant guardian for the gross amount of the rents adjudged to have been unlawfully collected by the plaintiff. The case was appealed to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, and was there docketed as case No. 3,472. The appellate court held "that the evidence is not sufficient to establish any of the defenses or counterclaims," and "that the defendant Martinez, at the time the action was commenced, was indebted to the plaintiff in at least the sum of P. 159,807.81, was fully established by the evidence." The court, however, decided that the instrument claimed to be a mortgage was not such, but was "a promise to sell real estate upon certain terms, and contemplates a subsequent contract of sale which should contain the terms stated in this document," and that sufficient facts were stated in the complaint "to constitute a good cause of action for the specific performance of the contract." After referring to the fact that plaintiff had been in possession of certain of the real property described in the complaint, and collected rentals therefrom, the court concluded its opinion as follows:

"The net amount collected should be applied in reduction of the sum of 159,607.81 pesos, which, according to the evidence, the defendants owe to the plaintiff. When the case is remanded, the defendant should have an opportunity to question the expenses claimed to have been met by the plaintiff in connection with its possession of these buildings, which it has deducted from the gross amount received.

*"After a consideration of the whole[219 case, we hold that the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment in the court below, with costs, declaring that Francisco Martinez is justly indebted to it in the sum of 159,607.81 pesos, less such sum as that court may decide should be credited to Martinez for the net receipts from the real estate in question in this case, with interest on the balance from February 25th, 1905, at 8 per cent per annum; and ordering that Francisco Martinez and Vicente Ilustre, as guardian of Francisco Martinez, execute and deliver to the plaintiff, within a time to be fixed by the court, such a contract as is contemplated by the contract of June 15th, 1903, which should be substantially in the form of the instrument above referred to of date February 12th, 1904, omitting therefrom, however, the steamer Germana. The judgment should contain a provision that whatever may be realized from the sale of the Germana under the judgment in case No. 3471 shall be considered as a partial payment when realized upon the amount found due in this action.

"The judgment of the court below is reversed, and the case is remanded with instructions to that court to enter judgment for the plaintiff in acordance with the views hereinbefore expressed. No costs will be allowed to either party in this court." [10 Philippine, 257.]

The following judgment was subsequently entered:

"It is hereby ordered that the judgment of the court of first instance of the city of Manila, appealed from and dated March 29, 1906, be reversed and the case remanded to the court from which it came, with directions to the judge to enter judgment in favor of the plaintiff in accordance with the decision of this court, without special provision as to the costs of this appeal."

The present separate appeals from the aforementioned judgments of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands were then taken. The petition for the allowance of the appeal in the first case (No. 79 here; 220] No. 3471 in the supreme *court of the Philippine Islands) expressly recited that the amount in controversy therein "is 30,000 pesos, equivalent to $15,000 U. S. currency." It was, however, asserted that the cause was "an incident and part of the same transaction and controversy involved in cause No. 3472," and that the two cases "were . . . consolidated and tried together in the court of first instance." The appeal was allowed by one of the associate justices of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands. In doing so he declared "that . . . there was not a strict consolidation of the two cases . . . between the same parties by virtue of an express order of the court, and in accordance with the procedural law, and . . . the amount in litigation in the first of the said cases does not exceed $15,000 United States currency." However, substantially upon the ground of the "connection and intimate relation" between the cases, "the doubt produced by reasons advanced as to whether or not the appeal interposed in case No. 3471 is admissible, notwithstanding the fact that the amount involved does not reach the sum of $25,000 United States currency," was left to be determined by this court. The appeal in the second case was allowed by the same justice, it being recited that it appeared "that the amount involved exceeds $25,000 United States currency."

In the argument at bar, counsel for appellee moved that the two appeals be dismissed for want of jurisdiction in this court. We, therefore, first proceed to consider this question.

The claim of want of jurisdiction in No. 79 is based upon the contention that the questions presented in the case could only be reviewed provided the value of the matter in controversy exceeds $25.000 (§ 10, act July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. at L. 691, 695, chap. 1369, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1909, p. 226), and that the value is less than that sum. We are of opinion that the objection is well taken. True, it is contended for the the appellant that the *amount award-[221 ed to the plaintiff by the supreme court of the Philippine Islands was 28,599.13 pesos and interest, and that the defendant's counterclaim for the vessel and the receipts from the use of the same amounted to 38,000.00 pesos, and that the two amounts should be aggregated in determining the value of the matter in controversy. The case of Harten v. Löffler, 212 U. S. 397, 53 L. ed. 568, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 351, is cited as authority. But conceding that cases may arise where the amount of a judgment in favor of a plaintiff may be combined with the sum demanded in a dismissed counterclaim of a defendant, to determine whether the jurisdictional value exists, manifestly this is not a case for the application of the doctrine. The value of the matter in dispute in this court is the test of our jurisdiction. Hilton v. Dickinson, 108 U. S. 165, 27 L. ed. 688, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424. What, therefore, is that matter, is the question to be considered. Plainly, it is whether Martinez was indebted to the bank, as adjudged below; since, if the indebtedness existed, the amount thereof is the extent of the loss which the estate of Martinez can sustain; because, irrespective of what might be the proceeds of sale of the vessel or of other property of the estate of Martinez, if realized upon, no more of such proceeds could be taken than would be sufficient to satisfy the judgment. The jurisdictional value, however, plainly would not exist even if the vessel and its profits were treated as the matter in dispute, since, as we have seen, the appellant only asserts that the value of the vessel and the profits aggregated 38.000 pesos, less than $25.000. See, in this connection, the case of Peyton v. Robertson, 9 Wheat. 527, 6 L. ed. 151, approvingly cited in the Hilton Case, supra.

We are unable to assent to the view that the case should be treated as having been consolidated with No. 80; in other words, that the two cases are in realty but one. The suits were separately commenced, and although tried together, this was done for convenience, and the cases were tried not upon the theory that they were consolidat-
222]ed, but *as being separate and distinct suits. Thus, it is recited in the record that, at the commencement of the trial, on February 28, 1906, it was stipulated "that these two cases, Nos. 3363 and 3365, may be tried together, and that the defendants may amend their answer in 3365 as soon as they have opportunity, as of this date." Again, in the course of the examination of one Taylor, a witness for the plaintiff, counsel for the defendant objected to a question, whereupon the following colloquy ensued:

"Mr. Odlin: We are trying both cases together, but I can take him off the stand and put him back.

"Mr. Gibbs: If this question is asked with reference to 3365, I desire to make the further objection to the introduction of the evidence, for the reason that the complaint in that case does not state a cause of action."

The understanding of the trial judge that there was in fact no consolidation of the two cases is evidenced by the judgment which was entered by him, and that the supreme court of the Philippine Islands entertained the same view is shown by the judgment which it entered.

As to No. 80.—The objection is that the judgment of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands is not a final one. This objection must prevail for the reason that, although involving a decision upon the merits of the case, the judgment of the supreme court contemplates and requires further proceedings in the lower court, not inconsistent with its opinion. Clark v. Roller, 199 U. S. 541, 50 L. ed. 300, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141. The supreme court of the Philippine Islands did not, in its judgment, as was done in the judgment entered in case No. 79, fix and determine the precise amount for which the trial court should enter judgment. On the contrary, its direction was that judgment be entered "in favor of the plaintiff, in accordance with the decision of this court." On referring to the opinion, it is seen that the supreme court deemed that the plaintiff was entitled to a judicial determination of the amount of 223]the indebtedness of Martinez *to it. It is patent that the court found that the exact amount could not be determined without further proceedings, since it in effect left the case open in the trial court for a hearing upon the question of the amount of expenses incurred by the bank in and about the real property of Martinez of which it had taken possession. Thus, in the opinion of the appellate court, it was said:

"The net amount collected should be applied in reduction of the sum of 159,607.81 pesos, which, according to the evidence, the defendants owe to the plaintiff. When the case is remanded, the defendant should have an opportunity to question the expenses claimed to have been met by the plaintiff in connection with its possession of these buildings, which it has deducted from the gross amount received."

It follows that although the appellate court fixed the rights and liabilities of the parties, it in effect referred a question in the case to the subordinate court for further judicial action; hence its judgment was not final for the purpose of an appeal or writ of error. Drake v. Kochersperger, 170 U. S. 303, 42 L. ed. 1046, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 942; Clark v. Kansas City, 172 U. S. 334, 43 L. ed. 467, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207. Until, therefore, the trial court by its judgment ascertains and fixes the actual indebtedness of the plaintiff, and complies with the other directions contained in the mandate, it cannot be said that a final decree has been entered in the cause. Indeed, on the very face of the decree of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands, it is manifest that this court, if it took jurisdiction, could not finally dispose of the case in the event it affirmed the judgment below, since all it could do would be to consider the matters determined by the supreme court, and do as that court did, remand the cause for further proceedings in order that the rights of the parties might be thereafter finally passed upon. But the foundation upon which rests the doctrine which, as a general rule, limits the appellate jurisdiction of this court to final judgments, is that *cases should not be[224 brought here by piecemeal through the medium of successive appeals.

The motion to dismiss the appeal in each of the cases must be granted.

Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

JOSE PEREZ Y FERNANDEZ and Victor Ochoa, Appts.,
v.
JOSE ANTONIO FERNANDEZ Y PEREZ.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 224–232.)

Judgment — opening — letting in absent defendants.

1. An absolute right to appear in and defend within a year after final judgment a suit to enforce a lien or to remove a cloud on title to property within the district was given to absent defendants whenever the jurisdiction of the Federal circuit court over them rested upon publication, even though they may in fact have had knowledge of the suit, by the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. at L. 472, chap. 137, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 513), § 8, conferring such right upon all such defendants who have not been "actually personally notified as above provided," the previous provisions of the section calling for service on the party outside of the district of an order of the court directed to him, and requiring him to appear and defend within a time stated, or, if not practicable, for notice by publication.

[For other cases, see Judgment, XII. f, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Judgment — opening to let in absent defendants — terms.

2. No other terms than the payment of costs can be imposed by the court in opening a decree to permit absent defendants served only by publication to appear in and defend a suit to enforce a lien or remove a cloud on the title to property within the district, pursuant to the act of March 3, 1875, § 8, providing that in such cases the court shall make an order setting aside the judgment, and permitting such defendants to plead therein on payment of such costs as the court deems just.

[For other cases, see Judgment, XII. f, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 110.]

Argued and submitted March 17, 1911. Decided April 3, 1911.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a decree refusing to open a decree to permit certain absent defendants served by publication to appear in and defend the suit. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 4 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 201.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Frederic D. McKenney argued the cause, and, with Messrs. John Spalding Flannery, William Hitz, and T. D. Mott, Jr., filed a brief for appellants.

Messrs. N. B. K. Pettingill and F. L. Cornwell submitted the cause for appellee.

Note.—On lack of actual notice in case of constructive service as ground for relief under a statute permitting opening of judgment for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect—see note to Kingsley v. Steiger, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1068.

On relief from judgment rendered on publication of procees—see note to Dunlap v. Steere, 16 L.R.A. 361.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

José Antonio Fernandez, a judgment creditor of José Perez, in October, 1906, commenced in the court below this suit to unmask alleged fraudulent and simulated mortgages and sales of certain described real property of Perez, the judgment debtor, to the end that such property might be made available to pay the unsatisfied judgment debt. The defendants were José Perez, Victor Ochoa, and his wife, all three alleged to be citizens and residents of Spain, and ten persons alleged to be citizens and residents of Porto Rico, who were averred to be and were sued as the heirs at law of one Maristany. It was alleged that in the years 1899, 1900, and 1902 Perez, who was the registered owner of certain enumerated real estate, had executed and recorded deeds purporting to mortgage the same in favor of Ochoa and Maristany. These deeds, it was alleged, were simulations executed by Perez with the sole purpose of defrauding his creditors and preventing them from collecting their debts. It was additionally charged that to carry out the wrongful purpose which had caused the acts of mortgage to be drawn and recorded, and in consequence of a conspiracy between Perez and Ochoa, the latter had in May, 1906, sued in the court below to foreclose the apparent mortgages, and had procured an order of sale and a sale thereunder to be made by the marshal of the court, and at such sale had seemingly bought in the property and received a deed therefor. Ochoa, the alleged plaintiff, was charged to have been but *an interposed person, acting, not for[226 himself, but for Perez, the ostensible defendant. Finally, it was charged that the property standing in the name of Ochoa, the alleged purchaser, had, despite the sale, continuously remained under the dominion and beneficial control of Perez. The prayer of the bill was for a decree recognizing the fraudulent and simulated character of the alleged mortgages and sale, that they be declared to be mere shadows cast upon the title of Perez, and that the decree further direct that the property belonging to Perez be ordered to be sold to pay the judgment debt.

The ten persons who were made defendants as heirs or representatives of Maristany having been personally summoned and having failed to appear, the bill was, in December, 1906, taken for confessed against them. On the 3d day of June, 1907, the counsel for the complainant moved for an order to summons by publication José Perez, Victor Ochoa, and his wife. The motion for this order was supported by a return of the marshal showing that the sub-pœnas issued to the parties named had not been served, because the marshal, after diligent inquiry, had been unable to find them in the district, and by an affidavit of counsel declaring that affiant "is unable to learn of the present whereabouts of said defendants, José Percz y Fernandez, Victor Ochoa y Perez, and his wife, Dolores Olavarricia, after duly inquiring, and that, therefore, personal service upon them is not practicable." The order was granted, directing that the defendants named be summoned by publication to appear on or before the 3d day of August, 1907, the publication to be made "in a newspaper of general circulation in Porto Rico, to wit, 'La Bandera Americana,' once a week for six consecutive weeks." On September 13 following, the defendants named not having appeared, and proof of publication having been made, the bill was taken for confessed against them. On February 1, 1908, a formal decree was 227]entered *against all the defendants, holding the mortgages and sale to be void as mere simulations, and directing their erasure from the records. The decree recognized the right of complainant to collect his unsatisfied judgment by a sale of the property, and in fact directed the marshal to proceed under an execution which was in his hands to levy upon and sell the property.

Within two months after the entry of this decree, and before the marshal had executed it by sale of the property, appearance was entered for José Perez, one of the defendants, and shortly after for Ochoa, and application was made in the name of both to vacate the decree and allow them to defend the suit, on the ground that they were entitled to do so because they had not been personally notified. At the same time, in the same court, a Mrs. Perfecta Blanco, alleging herself to be a resident of Spain, filed her bill against the marshal as well as against José Ferandez and his attorneys of record, alleging that the complainant had in July, 1906, bought from Ochoa the real estate described in the Fernandez suit, and that she was entitled to hold the property free from liability under the execution in the Fernandez Case. The prayer was for an injunction pending the suit, restraining the marshal from selling the property to pay the Ferandez judgment, and for a final decree perpetuating the injunction. The application made by Perez and Ochoa to set aside the decree and allow them to appear and defend, and that of Mrs. Blanco for a preliminary injunction, were considered by the court at one and the same time. The court stayed, for a brief period, the sale of the property under the execution issued in the case of Fernandez v. Perez, and the enforcement of the decree in the equity cause. In a memorandum opinion the court declared that this had been done for the following reasons:

First, to enable Perez and Ochoa "to make a first-class showing establishing that neither of them had, before the *decree[228 in the equity cause, any actual personal notice or knowledge of its pendency," and that they or either of them never received any notice or knowledge of the pendency of the same through any of the other respondents in the same mentioned, or through any of their apoderados, agents, tenants, or others, either in Porto Rico or in Spain, before said time, and that they, or either of them, did not personally receive a copy of or hear of or know of the publication of the notice of the pendency of said suit (the equity cause) in La Bandera Americana . . . and that they or either of them never in fact, previous to the entry of the decree, received any copy of said newspaper containing such notice through the mails from José Antonio Fernandez, or any other person, or see or hear of such copy being received by any other person in their vicinity in Spain." Second. In order to enable Perez and Ochoa to make "a first-class showing under oath that they in truth and in fact have a meritorious defense to the bill," and to give both Perez and Ochoa an opportunity to swear that the "mortgage to Ochoa in 1899 was in good faith and for a valuable consideration, and that the foreclosure of the same was not collusive," and that Ochoa must also state that his alleged sale to Mrs. Blanco of the property was made in good faith and for valuable consideration, as in the deed stated, and if not for that amount, then for how much; and that the said deed was made by said Ochoa without the knowledge of the decree in said equity cause, and "if possible he must furnish the affidavit of Mrs. Blanco," stating that her purchase was an honest one and how much he paid for the property.

The stay granted by the court was extended from time to time. There were hearings, and, it may be, some evidence tending to show the existence of the facts referred to by the court in the conditions upon which it granted the stay, and there was evidence to the contrary. Finally the court disposed of the matter by refusing to set aside the *decree in the equity cause, and hence,[229 declining to allow Perez and Ochoa to defend, and refusing to grant the application for a preliminary injunction on the bill of Mrs. Blanco.

From a final decree rejecting their application to set aside the equity decree and allow them to defend, Perez and Ochoa appeal.

The defendants Perez and Ochoa being citizens of Spain, the court had general jurisdiction. Act March 2, 1901, chap. 812, § 3, 31 Stat. at L. 953. Power to award relief because of the situation of the property within the court's jurisdiction and the character of the rights asserted in and to the property even although Perez and Ochoa were nonresidents of the district and could not be found therein depended, as recognized by the court below and by the parties, upon the act of March 3, 1875, chap. 137, § 8, 18 Stat. at L. 472, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 513. The right of the absent parties defendant to have the suit reopened and the duty of the court to permit them to make defense depended upon the proviso to the section in question. That proviso reads as follows:

"Provided, however, that any defendant or defendants not actually personally notified as above provided may, at any time within one year after final judgment in any suit mentioned in this section, enter his appearance in said suit in said circuit court, and thereupon the said court shall make an order setting aside the judgment therein, and permitting said defendant or defendants to plead therein on payment by him or them of such costs as the court shall deem just; and thereupon said suit shall be proceeded with to final judgment according to law."

As the appearance of Perez and Ochoa was within the year, their right to have the decree set aside depended upon whether they had been "actually personally notified" (in the case wherein the judgment was rendered), "as above provided." Treating the words "actually personally notified" as signifying information conveyed to them in 230]any *form of the existence of the suit, and concluding from the facts before it that it was established that both Perez and Ochoa had been notified, either by information conveyed to them by persons in Porto Rico, or by the receipt of a copy of the newspaper containing the publication of notice which the court had directed to be made, the right to appear and defend was denied. But we think the construction of the statute which the court must necessarily have adopted in order to enable it to reach such conclusion was a mistaken one. The right to appear and defend within the year is given by the proviso to all defendants who have not been "actually personally notified as above provided." To determine, therefore, whether a defendant who appears and asks to be allowed to defend has been actually personally notified in such a manner as to exclude him from the enjoyment of the right involves ascertaining not whether he had been notified in any possible manner, but whether he had been "actually personally notified as above provided;" that is, as required by the previous provisions of the section. Now, the previous provisions are these:

"That when in any suit commenced in any circuit court of the United States, to enforce any legal or equitable lien upon, or claim to, or to remove any encumbrance or lien or cloud upon the title to real or personal property within the district where such suit is brought, one or more of the defendants therein shall not be an inhabitant of, or found within, the said district, or shall not voluntarily appear thereto, it shall be lawful for the court to make an order directing such absent defendant or defendants to appear, plead, answer, or demur, by a day certain to be designated, which order shall be served on such absent defendant or defendants if practicable, wherever found, and also upon the person or persons in possession or charge of said property, if any there be."

After thus giving authority to the court to authorize the *actual personal serv-[231 ice of a notice outside of the district, the statute then, in case where such personal notice is impossible, provides for publication as follows: "Or where such personal service upon such absent defendant or defendants is not practicable, such order shall be published in such manner as the court may direct, not less than once a week for six consecutive weeks." Plainly, therefore, the previous provision to which the proviso applies exacts an actual personal notice resulting from the service on the party outside of the district of an order of the court directed to him, and requiring him to appear and defend within a time stated, the whole conformably to the express terms of the statute. In other words, where the property is situated in the district where the suit is brought, as provided in the statute, the right of the court to exert its authority is made to depend upon two forms of notice, which are distinct one from the other. First, an actual notice calling upon the person to appear, and which, in virtue of an express authority of the court, may be served upon the party outside of the district where the suit is pending. Second, a notice by publication, calling upon the party to appear and defend within the statutory time; this latter notice, however, being only necessary where the former method cannot be employed. Considering the two distinct subjects, the proviso of the statute ordains that where the actual personal notice has not been made as provided, and publication has therefore been resorted to, that within a year the party has a right to appear and the case must be reopened to permit him to make his defense. That is to say, the statute, without ambiguity, confers the right to have the case reopened whereever the jurisdiction of the court has rested upon publication, and denies such right where the requirements of the statute as to actual personal notice have been complied with. It follows that in a case where the method for giving the actual notice pointed out by the statute has not been resorted to, and, 232]*on the contrary, publication of notice was the basis of the jurisdiction of the court, an inquiry as to information conveyed by letter or by other means of knowledge of the pendency of the suit to a defendant, for the purpose of determining whether such defendant has a right to appear within the year and have the case opened to enable him to defend, is wholly immaterial. We say this because, from the text of the statute as above elucidated, it clearly results that the right which it confers to have a case reopened is rested upon the criterion afforded by the record upon which the judgment was obtained, and is not caused to depend upon the uncertainty which might result from a resort to matters extraneous to the record. As the misconstruction by the court of the statute in respect just stated requires a reversal, it is not essential that we should go further. In order, however, that misconception may be avoided, we think it well to observe that in the cases to which the statute applies the right to appear and have a cause reopened is not dependent upon terms to be fixed by the court, except to the extent that the statute provides for terms as to costs. This, we think, is clear, since, after providing for the entry in the circuit court of his appearance by a defendant embraced within the statute, it is said: "And thereupon the said court shall make an order setting aside the judgment therein, and permitting said defendant or defendants to plead therein on payment by him or them of such costs as the court shall deem just."

Reversed and remanded with directions for further proceedings in conformity with this opinion.

233]*PERFECTO BLANCO Y BLANCO, Appt.,

v.

HARRY S. HUBBARD, U. S. Marshal for Porto Rico, José A. Fernandez y Perez, Frederick Cornwell, and Benjamin Horton.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 233, 234.)

This case is governed by the decision in Perez y Fernandez v. Fernandez y Perez, ante, 443.

[No. 111.]

Argued and submitted March 17, 1911. Decided April 3, 1911.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a decree refusing to stay by injunction the execution of a decree in a suit to set aside conveyances as in fraud of creditors, which latter decree it had refused to open to permit absent defendants served by publication to appear in and defend the suit. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 4 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 201.

Mr. Frederic D. McKenney argued the cause, and with Messrs. John Spalding Flannery, William Hitz, and D. T. Mott, Jr., filed a brief for appellants.

Messrs. N. B. K. Pettingill and F. L. Cornwell submitted the cause for appellee.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

This record involves the bill filed by Perfecto Blanco in the lower court to enjoin the sale of the property under execution in the case of Fernandez and Perez. It concerns, therefore, the proceedings in the equity cause and the right to reopen the decree entered in the same, which we have just disposed of. As stated in that case, the application for injunction pendente lite in this case was considered by the court along with the request to be allowed *to[234 appear and defend in the equity cause, made by Perez and Ochoa. When the court temporarily stayed the execution of the judgment, a suggestion was made to counsel by the court that in this case a demurrer be filed to the bill pending the delay which must transpire in considering the subject of the right to enjoin along with, or in connection with, the right of Perez and Ochoa to appear and defend. When it was concluded that the two latter persons had no such right, and the right to an injunction pendente lite in this case was refused, the reason which controlled the court in refusing to reopen and allow a defense in the equity cause were filed as its reasons for sustaining the demurrer and finally dismissing the bill in this case. As those reasons, however, did not at all concern themselves with the grounds of demurrer separately stated, but solely related to the right to stay, by the process of injunction, the execution of the unsatisfied judgment and the enforcement of the equity decree, we think it plainly results that the decree rendered in this case must be reversed, because the two cases in the mind of the court were so inseparably united that the error which led the court below to refuse in the other case the right to reopen the cause controlled its action in this.

The decree is therefore reversed and the cause remanded for furthur proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

235]*INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION, the American Forwarding Company, et al., Appts.,
v.
DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA, & WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 235–256.)

Interstate Commerce Commission — judicial review — facts.

1. Findings of fact made by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a proceeding for redress for unlawful discrimination in railway rates are not open to review in the courts.

[For other cases, see Interstate Commerce Commission, 8–14, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — discrimination in rates — ownership of shipment.

2. A carrier may not, under the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154), make the ownership of goods tendered to it for carriage the criterion by which its charge for such carriage is to be measured.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.[

Carriers — rates — dissimilar conditions — ownership of shipment.

3. The ownership or nonownership by the shipper of the goods tendered for carriage is not a dissimilar circumstance and condition, within the meaning of the act of February 4, 1887, § 2, prohibiting inequality and discrimination in rates.

[For other cases, see Carriers, 275–283, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — construction — adopted statute.

4. The settled construction of the equality clause of the English railway elauses consolidation act of 1845, as forbidding the charging of a higher rate for the carriage of goods for an intercepting or forwarding agent than for others, applies in construing the provisions of the act of February 4, 1887, § 2, which were substantially taken from the English statute.

[For other cases, see Statutes, 492–512, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — discrimination in rates — forwarding agents.

5. A forwarding agent is a person within the meaning of the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887, § 2, forbidding preferences and discrimination in rates.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.[

Carriers — carload rates — discrimination.

6. A carrier may not forbid the aggregation of the shipments of various owners for the purpose of carload rating in Official Classification territory, or the combination of such shipments by forwarding agents for that purpose, where preferences and discriminations forbidden by the act of February 4, 1887, § 2, will result from the carrier's action.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.[

[No. 325.]

Argued February 25 and 28, 1911. Decided April 3, 1911.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a decree enjoining the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, forbidding a carrier from enforcing a rule which prohibits the aggregation of shipments of various owners for the purpose of carload rating in Official Classification territory, and the combination of such shipments by forwarding agents for that purpose. Reversed and remanded with directions to dismiss the bill.

See same case below, 166 Fed. 499.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Mazzini Slusser argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants:

A forwarding agent which for a consideration receives goods into its possession, with directions from the owner thereof to ship the same, is a bailee for hire, and has a special property in the goods, investing it with the same authority and right of shipment as possessed by such owner.

Great Western R. Co. v. McComas, 33 Ill. 186; Edgerton v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 40 Ill. 311, 88 N. E. 808; Story, Bailm. 9th ed. ¶ 444; Bush v. Miller, 13 Barb. 481; Freeman v. Birch, 1 Nev. & M. 420, 3 Q. B. 483.

Any such forwarding agent having the right to ship goods, and tendering the same for shipment to a common carrier, is a "shipper" in contemplation of law, whom the carrier is bound to serve, and a "person" within the meaning of § 2 of the act to regulate commerce.

Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 667, 683, 28 L. ed. 291, 297, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Shelbyville R. Co. v. Louisville, C. & L. R. Co. 82 Ky. 545; Hedding v. Gallagher, 72 N. H. 382, 64 L.R.A. 811, 57 Atl. 225; Parker v. Great

NOTE.—As to what constitutes an unlawful preference or discrimination by a carrier under interstate commerce regulations —see note to Gamble-Robinson Commission Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 94 C. C. A. 230.

Western R. Co. 7 Mann. & G. 291, 7 Scott, N. R. 835, 3 Eng. Ry. & C. Cas. 563, 13 L. J. C. P. N. S. 105; Great Western R. Co. v. Sutton, L. R. 4 H. L. 226, 38 L. J. Exch. N. S. 177, 22 L. T. N. S. 43, 18 Week. Rep. 92.

Section 2 of the act to regulate commerce is modeled on § 90 of the English consolidated railways clauses act.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 192, 43 Fed. 53, affirmed in 145 U. S. 263, 284, 36 L. ed. 699, 706, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 92, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 844; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 222, 40 L. ed. 940, 948, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Re Party Rate Tickets, 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 96; Buckeye Buggy Co. v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 9 Inters. Com. Rep. 625.

It is a settled rule of construction that when a statute of one state is adopted by another state, and such statute has been construed by the courts of such former state, the construction so put upon such statute is considered by the courts of the adopting state as enacted with it, and is received with all the weight of authority.

McDonald v. Hovey, 110 U. S. 619, 628, 28 L. ed. 269, 271, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; Henrietta Min. & Mill. Co. v. Gardner, 173 U. S. 123, 130, 43 L. ed. 637, 640, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 327.

The question whether goods are offered for shipment under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, within the meaning of § 2 of the act to regulate commerce, is one of fact.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 170, 42 L. ed. 414, 424, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 184, 194, 40 L. ed. 935, 938, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 391, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 700; Piddington v. Southeastern R. Co. 5 C. B. N. S. 111, 27 L. J. C. P. N. S. 295, 4 Jur. N. S. 953; Crouch v. Great Northern R. Co. 11 Exch. 750, 25 L. J. Exch. N. S. 137; Baxendale v. Great Western R. Co. 16 C. B. N. S. 137, 33 L. J. C. P. N. S. 197, 10 Jur. N. S. 496, 9 L. T. N. S. 814, 12 Week. Rep. 602; Great Western R. Co. v. Sutton, L. R. 4 H. L. 226, 38 L. J. Exch. N. S. 177, 22 L. T. N. S. 43, 18 Week. Rep. 92.

The phrase, "under substantially similar circumstances and conditions," as found in § 2 of the act to regulate commerce, has reference solely to the matter of the physical carriage of the goods.

Parker v. Great Western R. Co. 7 Mann. & G. 291, 7 Scott, N. R. 835, 3 Eng. Ry. & C. Cas. 563, 13 L. J. C. P. N. S. 105; Couch v. Great Northern R. Co. 11 Exch. 751, 25 L. J. Exch. N. S. 137; Piddington v. Southeastern R. Co. 5 C. B. N. S. 111, 27 L. J. C. P. N. S. 295, 4 Jur. N. S. 953; Edwards v. Great Western R. Co. 11 C. B. 588, 21 L. J. C. P. N. S. 72; London & N. W. R. Co. v. Evershed, L. R. 3 App. Cas. 1029, 48 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 22, 39 L. T. N. S. 306, 26 Week. Rep. 863, 5 Eng. Rul. Cas. 351; Great Western R. Co. v. Sutton, L. R. 4 H. L. 226, 38 L. J. Exch. N. S. 177, 22 L. T. N. S. 43, 18 Week. Rep. 92; Denaby Main Colliery Co. v. Manchester, S. & L. R. Co. L. R. 11 App. Cas. 120, 6 Eng. Ry. & C. Traffic Cas. 133, 55 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 181, 54 L. T. N. S. 1, 50 J. P. 340; Bigbee & W. River Packet Co. v. Mobile & O. R. Co. 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 829, 60 Fed. 545; Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 42 L. ed. 258, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; United States v. Wells-Fargo Exp. Co. 161 Fed. 606; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 166, 42 L. ed. 414, 423, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Buckeye Buggy Co. v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 9 Inters. Com. Rep. 620; Re Party Rate Tickets, 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 96.

Section 2 of the act to regulate commerce prescribes a rigid rule of action. If the circumstances and conditions attending the carriage of goods are substantially similar, the charge must be the same.

London & N. W. R. Co. v. Evershed, L. R. 3 App. Cas. 1029, 48 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 22, 39 L. T. N. S. 306, 26 Week. Rep. 863, 5 Eng. Rul. Cas. 351; Denaby Main Colliery Co. v. Manchester, S. & L. R. Co. L. R. 11 App. Cas. 97, 6 Eng. Ry. & C. Traffic Cas. 133, 55 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 181, 54 L. T. N. S. 1, 50 J. P. 340; United States ex rel. Morris v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 617, 40 Fed. 103; Re Party Rate Tickets, 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 96.

The forwarding agent, as bailee of the goods, having a special property therein, may itself bring an action in tort for loss or damage.

Great Western R. Co. v. McComas, 33 Ill. 186; Edgerton v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 240 Ill. 311, 88 N. E. 808; Spence v. Norfolk & W. R. Co. 92 Va. 102, 29 L.R.A. 578, 22 S. E. 815; Hooper v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 27 Wis. 81, 9 Am. Rep. 439; Finn v. Western R. Co. 112 Mass. 524, 17 Am. Rep. 128; National Surety Co. v. United States, 63 C. C. A. 512, 129 Fed. 70; The Beaconsfield, 158 U. S. 303, 39 L. ed. 993, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 860.

The forwarding agent, as consignor and maker of the contract of carriage, may maintain an action in contract.

Ohio & M. R. Co. v. Emrich, 24 Ill. App. 245; Northern Line Packet Co. v. Shearer, 61 Ill. 263; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Schwartz, 11 Ill. App. 482; Buckeye Buggy Co. v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 9 Inters. Com. Rep. 620.

Assistant to the Attorney General Ellis also argued the cause, and, with Messrs. P. J. Farrell and Edwin P. Grosvenor, Special Assistants to the Attorney General, filed a brief for appellants:

The order of the Commission is within the scope of the delegated authority under which it purports to have been made.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155. See also Honolulu Rapid Transit & Land Co. v. Hawaii, 211 U. S. 282, 53 L. ed. 186, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 55; Knoxville v. Knoxville Water Co. 212 U. S. 1, 8, 18, 53 L. ed. 371, 378, 382, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Prentis v. Atlantic Coast Line Co. 211 U. S. 210, 53 L. ed. 150, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Willcox v. Consolidated Gas Co. 212 U. S. 19, 41, 53 L. ed. 382, 395, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192, 15 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 1034; San Diego Land & Town Co. v. National City, 174 U. S. 739, 43 L. ed. 1154, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 804; Reagan v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 154 U. S. 362, 397, 38 L. ed. 1014, 1023, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 560, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1047.

The ownership of property tendered for shipment cannot be made a test as to the applicability of a carrier's rates.

California Commercial Asso. v. Wells, F. & Co. 14 Inters. Com. Rep. 422.

The Commission committed no error in holding that the words, "similar circumstances and conditions," refer to matters of carriage, and that "person," used in the same section, has reference to the shipper, and not to the owner of the property.

Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 518, 42 L. ed. 258, 259, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 166, 42 L. ed. 414, 423, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45.

This court will presume that the Congress, in adopting the language of the English act, had in mind the construction given to that language by the English courts, and intended to incorporate it into the American act.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 40 L. ed. 940, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 145 U. S. 263, 36 L. ed. 699, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 92, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 844; McDonald v. Hovey, 110 U. S. 619, 28 L. ed. 269, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142.

As used in the English acts, the words "same description" and "like description" exhaust themselves upon the traffic, and the words "like circumstances" exhaust themselves upon the route, expense, and risk of carriage; and none of those phrases can be extended to the personal qualities of the party who makes the shipment.

Great Western R. Co. v. Sutton, L. R. 4 H. L. 226, 38 L. J. Exch. N. S. 177, 22 L. T. N. S. 43, 18 Week. Rep. 92; London & N. W. R. Co. v. Evershed, L. R. 3 App. Cas. 1029, 48 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 22, 39 L. T. N. S. 306, 26 Week. Rep. 863, 5 Eng. Rul. Cas. 351; Denaby Main Colliery Co. v. Manchester, S. & L. R. Co. L. R. 11 App. Cas. 97, 6 Eng. Ry. & C. Traffic Cas. 133, 55 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 181, 54 L. T. N. S. 1, 50 J. P. 340.

In construing § 2 of the American act, this court has made a similar ruling.

Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 42 L. ed. 258, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 42 L. ed. 414, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45.

A party who is rightfully in possession of personal property, and clothed by the beneficial owners thereof with authority to ship it in his own name, is a person within the meaning of § 2 of the act to regulate commerce.

United States v. Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Co. 145 Fed. 1007.

Whether treated as a matter of law or fact, the transportation services are alike and contemporaneous, and performed by the carrier under substantially similar circumstances and conditions.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 238, 40 L. ed. 940, 954, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Great Western R. Co. v. Sutton, L. R. 4 H. L. 242, 38 L. J. Exch. N. S. 177, 22 L. T. N. S. 43, 18 Week. Rep. 92.

Messrs. William S. Jenney and Walker D. Hines argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees:

The attitude of a railroad company toward a forwarding agent is strictly analogous to the attitude of the railroad company toward numerous agencies which the railroad company may, or may not, permit to perform some function of the transportation service which the railroad company itself has a right to perform or control.

(a) A railroad company, in the performance of its obligation to carry passengers, may make an exclusive contract with a company to supply and operate special cars, such as sleeping cars.

Chicago, St. L. & N. O. R. Co. v. Pullman Southern Car Co. 139 U. S. 79, 35 L. ed. 97, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490.

(b) A railroad company, in the performance of its obligation to load, unload, and care for live stock, may make an exclusive contract with a stock-yard company.

Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 63 L.R.A. 213, 55 C. C. A. 63, 118 Fed. 113.

The right to make such exclusive contracts implies, or rather grows out of, the fundamental right of the railroad company to perform such phases of the transportation service itself, to the exclusion of all persons seeking to intervene for that purpose. The same principle justifies the railroad companies in excluding forwarding agents who seek to intervene in phases of the railroad business.

Cases similar in spirit to the cases just cited are the following:

(a) A railroad company cannot be compelled to make with connecting railroads the same terms as to through rates, through cars, etc.

Oregon Short Line & U. N. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 718, 9 C. C. A. 409, 15 U. S. App. 479, 61 Fed. 158; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 26 L.R.A. 192, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 854, 11 C. C. A. 417, 27 U. S. App. 380, 63 Fed. 775; St. Louis Drayage Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 137, 65 Fed. 39; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Miami S. S. Co. 30 C. C. A. 142, 52 U. S. App. 732, 86 Fed. 407.

(b) A railroad company owning a wharf may make an exclusive contract with a connection, whether railroad or steamship company, as to the use of the wharf, even though thereby all its traffic is diverted to one connecting transportation company.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. West Coast Naval Stores Co. 198 U. S. 483, 49 L. ed. 1135, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 745.

(c) A railroad company may give to a baggage and transfer company the exclusive right to solicit business on its cars and premises.

Donovan v. Pennsylvania Co. 199 U. S. 279, 50 L. ed. 192, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91.

In this country, railroad companies are not common carriers of other common carriers, and, a fortiori, are not common carriers of forwarding agents.

Express Cases, 117 U. S. 1, 29 L. ed. 791, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 542, 628.

The English doctrine that railroad companies must carry forwarding agents has no bearing, because in conflict with the common-law doctrine in this country.

Detroit, G. H. & M. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 21 C. C. A. 103, 43 U. S. App. 308, 74 Fed. 803; Hutchinson, Carr. 3d ed. §§ 514–517.

The act to regulate commerce has not changed the common-law doctrine in this respect.

Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. Voigt, 176 U. S. 498, 509, 44 L. ed. 560, 566, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 385.

The specific judicial declarations, both in this country and Canada, support the view that railroad companies are not bound to apply their rates so as to enable forwarding agents to do business.

Lundquist v. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. 121 Fed. 915; Johnson v. Dominion Exp. Co. 28 Ont. Rep. 203.

Section 2 seeks to secure equality between shippers in the ordinary sense. The forwarding agent is not a shipper in that sense.

Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 518, 42 L. ed. 258, 259, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 219, 40 L. ed. 940, 947, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Brownell v. Columbus & C. Midland R. Co. 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 292.

The very cases relied upon by the Commission show clearly that from the outset § 2 of our statute has been given a far broader and more liberal construction than the much narrower language of the English statute has received or could receive.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 192, 43 Fed. 53; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 219, 40 L. ed. 940, 947, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666.

The English cases have never been approved or followed by this court.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 145 U. S. 282, 36 L. ed. 705, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 92, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 844; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 40 L. ed. 940, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 42 L. ed. 258, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 42 L. ed. 414, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45.

Since the Wight Case and Alabama Midland Case the doctrine of the Party Rate Case and the Import Rate Case as to § 2 has been followed by the circuit court of appeals in an opinion wholly at variance with the Commission's theories.

United States v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 62 C. C. A. 465, 127 Fed. 785.

The Commission's theory of § 2 is at variance not only with all the decisions of this court as to that section, but with the repeated declarations of this court as to the scope and purpose of the act to regulate commerce.

Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 184, 197, 40 L. ed. 935, 939, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 391, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 700; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 172, 42 L. ed. 414, 425, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 554, 50 L. ed. 585, 593, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 119, 52 L. ed. 705, 712, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

Rates to promote manufacturing have been sustained by the state courts on reasoning in line with the decisions of this court, but inconsistent with the position of the Commission.

Hoover v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 156 Pa. 222, 22 L.R.A. 263, 36 Am. St. Rep. 43, 27 Atl. 282; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com. 108 Ky. 628, 57 S. W. 508.

Liability to a multiplicity of actions was a sufficient differentiating circumstance.

Lundquist v. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. 121 Fed. 915.

The business of the forwarding agents is subversive of the spirit and purpose of the act to regulate commerce, and would tend to nullify its most important provisions.

Lundquist v. Grand Trunk Western R. Co. 121 Fed. 917.

The Commission and the Federal authorities have uniformly contended that it is the duty of the carrier and the duty of the Commission and courts to look through the devices, schemes, agencies, and means by which the real nature of transactions between shippers and carriers is sought to be hidden, to strike them down, and expose the real nature of the transactions, and hold the parties to strict accountability therefor.

United States v. Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Co. 142 Fed. 247.

In the recent decision of the Supreme Court in Bitterman v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 207 U. S. 205, 52 L. ed. 171, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91, 12 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 693, this court registered its condemnation of discriminations and transportation at less than tariff rates, obtained by passengers dealing not with the carrier direct, but through the intervention of third parties.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

Was the court below wrong in permanently enjoining the enforcement of an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission directed to the railroad companies who are appellees is the subject which this cause requires us to consider. As a preliminary to stating the proceedings before the Commission and the court, we refer to practices under the act to regulate commerce which gave rise to and developed the controversy with which the order of the Commission was concerned. To do this will not only abbreviate the statement of the case, but will serve to broadly define the one question essential to be decided, and point to the principles applicable to its correct solution.

Before the act to regulate commerce it was usual, first, to give reduced rates to persons who shipped quantities of merchandise; and, second, to charge a proportionately less rate for a carload than was asked for a shipment in less than a carload. After the act, lower rates to wholesale shippers were abandoned, it having been declared that to continue them was contrary to the act. Providence Coal Case, 1 I. C. C. Rep. 107, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 363. The giving, however, a lesser proportional rate for a carload than for a less than carload continued, the Commission having at an early date announced that such a practice was not prohibited. Thurber v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 3 I. C. C. Rep. 473, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 742. Without detailing the theory upon which this conception was based, it suffices broadly to say that it embodied the assumption that a carload was the unit of shipment, and rested upon the difference which existed between the cost of service in the case of a carload shipment *by one consignor to[241 one consignee, and that occasioned by a shipment in one car of many packages by various consignors to various consignees. Leaving aside possible qualifications arising from exceptional conditions, it is true to say that the Commission, however, recognized that the fixing of a lesser rate for a carload was not imperative, but was merely optional. Conformably to these administrative conceptions it came universally to pass that wherever a lesser charge for a carload than for a less-than-carload shipment was established, such charge was only applicable to shipments made at one time by one consignor of merchandise consigned to one consignee at a single destination. While there was this uniformity, there was, however, much divergence between carriers as to the character of traffic which was given the benefit of the lesser rate for carload shipments and the circumstances under which, when such rate was established, it would be applied. This becomes at once manifest when the rules are considered which prevail in the three geographical divisions into which the United States came to be divided by carriers in order that a similar classification might, in a general sense, obtain under like conditions. The divisions in question are the Southern, the Western, and the Official Classification territory, the first including practically all points east of the Mississippi river and south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers; the second embracing that part of the country west of the Mississippi river and the Great Lakes and an imaginary line extending from St. Louis to Chicago; and the last all of the United States not covered by the two other divisions. In the Southern and Western Classification territory the rules established by carriers allowed the lesser rate for a carload shipment only on a small percentage of the classified articles, and in both these territories restrictions were imposed prohibiting the intermingling of differently classified articles in one car for 242]the purpose of *obtaining the carload rate, even though the articles, if they had been shipped separately in carload quantities, might have been entitled to the carload rate. The extent of these limitations upon the right to enjoy the lesser rate for the carload in the territories in question is shown by a statement made by the then chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the dissenting opinion delivered by him in Export Shipping Co. v. Wabash R. Co. 14 Inters. Com. Rep. 437, 443, viz.:

"A recent careful and authoritative examination of the several classifications shows that in the Southern Classification there are 3,503 less-than-carload and only 773 carload ratings, the carload ratings being 22.1 per cent of the less-than-carload; in the Western Classification there are 5,729 less-than-carload and only 1,690 carload ratings, the carload ratings being 29.8 per cent of the less-than-carload."

In the same opinion it is also stated that in both the Western and Southern Classification territory the small percentage accorded a carload rate was confined to goods embraced within lower grades of classification, taking therefor the lowest rates. In the Official Classification territory, however, a widely different allowance of carload ratings prevailed, since in that territory the carload rating was permitted on a very large number of articles. In that territory, as likewise remarked by Chairman Knapp, "there are 5,852 less-than-carload ratings and 4,235 carload ratings, the carload ratings being 72.4 per cent of the less-than-carload" against, as we have said, 29.8 per cent and 22.1 per cent in the other territories. This large difference was besides in effect made much greater not only by the higher grades of traffic to which the carload rate was extended, but also because of the enlarged right to ship in one car articles embraced in various classes of traffic to which the carload rating was extended.

There can be no doubt that the privilege of shipping at *a lesser rate for the[243 carload shipment than was asked for a less-than-carload shipment came to be interwoven with and inseparable from the movement of commerce through the channels of railroad transportation. And the benefits of the lesser rate came to be obtained not alone by an owner of all the goods shipped in a carload, but by combinations of owners, by agreements between them concerning particular and isolated shipments, by the organization of associations of shippers having for their object the creating of agencies to receive merchandise belonging to the members of the association, and to aggregate and ship them in carload lots in the name of one consignor to a single consignee, at one destination, by the use of commission houses, storage and other companies, etc. It is also undoubted that, in consequence of the facility of shipping at a lesser rate for a carload than for a less-than-carload shipment, there developed a class of persons known as forwarding agents, who embarked in the business of obtaining a carload rate for various owners of merchandise by aggregating their shipments, such agents relying for their compensation upon what they could make from the difference between the carload and less-than-carload rates. The business so carried on by these agents was thus described by Mr. Commissioner Knapp in his dissenting opinion, to which we have previously referred (14 Inters. Com. Rep. 440):

"The business of the forwarding agent, in so far as is material to the question involved, is to collect less-than-carload shipments from different consignors, combine such shipments into carloads, and ship the same in the name of the forwarding agent, or of the owner of one of the less-than-carload shipments, to one consignee, who may be the forwarding agent himself, another forwarding agent at the point of destination with whom he has business relations, or the owner of part of the property transported. The consignee of the shipment, whoever he *may be, receives the carload and dis-[244 tributes its contents to the parties for whom they are intended. The forwarding agent finds his compensation and profit in the difference between the carload and less-than carload rates.

"The saving effected by securing application of the carload rather than the less-than-carload rates may be divided between the forwarding agent and his customer in any agreed proportion. To the extent that the customer secures the carriage of his property at a lower rate than the less-than-carload rate, which would otherwise be applied, he saves money, and the division of the difference between the carload and the less-than-carload rates is a matter of private bargain between him and the agent."

The extent to which the right to avail of the carload rating in the various modes above stated had come to be a part of the business of the country is described in the opinion of the Commission in California Commercial Asso. v. Wells, F. & Co. 14 Inters. Com. Rep. 422, delivered on the same day that its opinion concerning this controversy was announced. The Commission said (p. 433):

"Few practices have become more firmly established in the transportation world than that of combining small quantities of freight of various owners and shipping at the relatively lower rates applicable to large consignments; and under this practice has developed an immense volume of traffic which otherwise could never have been brought into being. It is not an exaggeration to say that the enforcement of such a rule by the carriers of the United States would bring disaster upon thousands of the smaller industries, and more surely establish the dominance of the greater industrial and commercial institutions."

And the alertness with which those engaged in commerce utilized every means afforded of shipping at lower cost is shown in the following testament made by Mr. 245]*Commissioner Knapp in his opinion to which we have referred (14 Inters. Com. Rep. 441):

"The individual shippers are not necessarily located at the same point, nor are the individual consignees. For instance, if a reduction in rates could be effected, a furniture dealer at Grand Rapids, Michigan, having a shipment for a point in Maine, and a furniture dealer in Rockford, Illinois, having a shipment for a point in Massachusetts, might forward their separate shipments at less-than-carload rates to Chicago; there the two shipments would be consolidated and forwarded at carload rates to Boston; and thence shipped again at less-than-carload rates from Boston to their respective destinations."

